HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Friday, September 12, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Sept. 12, 1980

Many views, opinions and attitudes to which you previously adhered strongly will be altered in the coming year. Your new outlook will be far more productive and positive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Protect your self-interests today, but be wary of deceiving yourself into believing you're entitled to more than you really are. Face the facts realistically. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Because you're a bit too trusting of others today, you are vulnerable when dealing with deceptive individuals. Do business only with those you know to be trustworthy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's very easy for you to get off-track today where important goals are concerned. Unless you want something badly enough, your chances are a trifle slim.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Underplay your recent accomplishments, or you may give one who is jealous of you grist for the mill. This is not a good day to pat yourself on the back.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There's a possibility you may not accomplish everything you hope to do today because of indecisiveness. Any decision is better than none at all.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be very explicit and detailed in giving instructions to anyone performing work or services for you today. They may not comprehend your desires.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your work will suffer today if you attempt to do tasks for which you have little or no enthusiasm. Shelve such projects until you're more inspired.

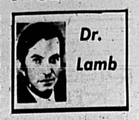
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be sincere when dealing with friends in social situations today. Flattery will put their guard up and make them back off, where honest comments won't.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Serious matters should not be treated frivolously today, or they may create problems for you at a later date. Responsible behavior is a must.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Avoid the company of one today whose presence tends to make you feel a bit uncomfortable. Select only chums with whom you are totally at ease.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Careless management of your resources today could result in an unnecessary loss. Don't take gambles. Keep an eye on your possessions.

Hot Flash: Males Can Have Problem



Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — Will you kindly discuss hot flashes in one of your columns? After my periods stopped I had perhaps 12 a day for about a year and then they practically stopped for about a year and now I have them again about one every hour. I know some doctors prescribe a hormone medicine to lessen them. But I'm reluctant to take hormones. I feel they might cause more harm than good.

DEAR READER — Hot flashes are one of the most annoying symptoms of the menopause. You might be surprised to know that people have hot flashes that are not caused by the menopause, too. This includes men.

We all have a temperature regulating center in the floor of the brain. When the body needs to lose heat, this mechanism sends signals through the nervous system to increase the blood flow in the skin. That's why some people have a flushed appearance at the same time they're having a hot flash. It also induces sweating which is a means of producing evaporative cooling. All these mechanisms are useful when the body needs to lose heat, but when the heat loss mechanism goes berserk as with hot flashes caused by the menopause, it can be rather disconcerting.

We don't really know why the temperature regulating center gets out of adjustment but it seems to have something to do with the pulsating release of hormones which comes and goes and may be some compensatory mechanism for the loss of female hormones normally produced by the ovaries. Periodic release of adrenaline may be a factor and that's one of the reasons why some doctors now use Inderal to help control hot flashes. Apparently this is useful in some people.

When the hot flashes are caused by the manopause, a small amount of female hormones often helps relieve them. The amount required is often below the level that could be a significant factor in increasing the risk of uterine cancer. Another approach that is currently being studied is the possibility of using the hormone progesterone rather than the estrogen hormones. Progesterone has not been shown to be associated with any increased risk of cancer whatsoever. Your doctor might want to try that in your case.

There's no set time for how long hot flashes should last. With the standard menopause they usually don't last more than a couple of years. The problem is there are other factors which can cause hot flashes as well. That's why it's important to have a medical examination.

We don't see it much anymore, but when tuberculosis was a major disease problem in the United States many tubercular patients had night sweats. I cite this example just to point out the diversity of things that can be associated with a temperature regulating mechanism getting out of balance for whatever reason.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 5-12, Menopause. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

We haven't reported a game at Elsinore Castle for some time. Here we find Hamlet in three notrump after the fair Ophelia raised him from one to two.

Polonius opened the four of hearts. Laertes played the jack and Hamlet might have stopped to soliloquize something like, "To duck or not to duck, that is the question. And if I do not duck whether 'tis better with the ace to falsecard or with the king to make the simple play. Aye, there's the rub and if all goes well the rubber will be ours and then to bed."

Hamlet knew better than to waste time at this point. He simply won the trick with the king and went after clubs.

Laertes got in with the ace and after considerable thought led the nine of hearts.

Hamlet, no longer the melancholy Dane, rattled off four notrump. He might well have made five, but Laertes hung on to all his diamonds.

A poorer player than Hamlet would have won the first heart trick with the ace. In that case when Laertes got in with the club he would have known where the king of hearts was located and would probably have shifted to a spade to defeat the contract.

FP&L Reaches Goal For Coal-Oil Mix

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

The Florida Power & Light Sanford facility reached its goal Thursday of operating at full electrical output on a 50-50 coal-oil mix, FP&L spokesman Dave Wolverton said.

The plant ran on the 50-50 mix for a short time Wednesday morning with a limited electrical output to see how it would work, explained Wolverton, and on Thursday it operated from 6 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The 120-day testing period began April 20 with 3-hour 45-minute burn at a 10 percent pulverized coal, 90 percent oil mix producing only 250 megawatts.

Since that time, FP&L has experimented with various percentages of oil and coal for limited periods, returning to use of 100 percent oil in between tests.

"We're up to goal and now we want to see how well it's going to work over a length of time," said Wolverton. "We want to see how well the plant works and what the emission output from the stacks is. We're watching all the gauges as it goes along to evaluate the results of the tests.

"For now we know we're up to the maximum mix and it's working," added Wolverton. If it proves feasible, the 50-50 mix will be the most economical.

Tom West, project coordinator, said at the beginning of the project, "At 45 to 50 percent coal, the mixture gets very critical. The viscosity (thickness) of the mixture increases dramatically after 40 percent. Over the 50 percent line, you're trying to pump a solid."

To move the project through its various steps, FP&L searched to find the proper pumps. It decided against designing new pumps and having them built, because it would take too long and cost too much. Pumps were finally found at FP&L's Martin County plant site in south Florida and were brought here and modified for the purpose.

According to federal regulations, the experiment may not cause particulate matter entering the air to exceed federal standards. For the experiment, FP&L has obtained a variance to allow for unknown smoke opacity.

If FP&L decides coal-oil-mix is a viable fuel, the company is committed to installing polution control devices at all plants which will use it. To have designed one just for the Sanford experiment, however, would have cost $30 million to $50 million.

Wolverton said use of coil-oil mix would mean a savings on oil bills and less reliance on foreign oil. Whether or not FP&L customers experience a savings on their electric bill will depend on use of the process at other FP&L facilities.

READY...AIM... TIME TO DUCK

When a young boy takes aim with his slingshot, neighbors start to worry about their windows, street lights and birds flying through the area. But James Buettner, 8, who lives on Alhambra Avenue in Forest City, said he would not shoot at any of those — but he said tin cans, fence posts and tree trunks are fair game.

Cable TV To Add 21 Stations

Seminole-Orange Cablevision will put the finishing touches on a $4 million expansion program to bring 30 channels into the Sanford area by March 1, Sanford City officials were notified today.

Currently, cablevision is serving Sanford with nine channels.

The first areas to receive the expanded service will be Winter Park and Maitland, beginning Oct. 1. The new service will begin in South Seminole County by the end of the year or early in the new year.

In a letter to members of the Sanford City Commission the news of the expanded service was announced.

The new channels are to include additional sports coverage, the Ted Turner show, the Christian network, black programming from New York City and several others.

The Communications Group which owns Seminole-Orange Cablevision set a press conference in Winter Park this afternoon to announce its expansion plans in the Orange County area, closest to the cablevision firm's main signal area.

Since the cablevision for the Seminole County area is handled via micro-wave, major changes will have to be made before the expanded service can be brought to this area.

The expanded service to Seminole County is to be phased in over a five-month period beginning Nov. 1.

Seminole-Orange Cablevision serves 60,000 subscribers in the two-county area. The firm has franchises with Sanford, Casselberry, Longwood and Winter Springs and with Seminole County.

Beauty Queen Roughs Up Purse Snatcher

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ann Arlege's husband is a network sports star, but the former beauty queen is the family expert on tackling.

Mrs. Arledge, whose husband Roone is president of ABC news and sports division, said Thursday a 6-foot man who tried to steal her purse should not have "messed" with her.

Police said the 5-foot-5 former Miss Alabama rammed Theodore Friedenthal, 25, with a tackle that sent the large AWOL sailor and the petite Mrs. Arledge crashing to the pavement.

"It was an imposition on my privacy. He just shouldn't have messed with me," she said.

The force of the crash sent Mrs. Arledge and her assailant to the pavement. She said the people who held down Friedenthal had "really punched on him and one man was twisting his arm."

Friedenthal was charged with assault and robbery.

Mrs. Arledge, the 1966 Alabama Junior Miss, said the moral of the whole episode was: "Beware of small people."

Man Loses Life, But Saves Others

Since Jan. 1, Michael Galvin of Casselberry had been on his job running a 300-foot crane at the site of the new Orlando Airport terminal, lifting huge 4-ton concrete beams.

On Thursday morning, right after he picked up his paycheck, Galvin was out lifting another beam into place. Something went wrong. The 90-ton crane began to topple.

A coworker guiding Galvin yelled to him to drop the load, but Galvin could not see where it would fall. He tried to lower the beam gently, but the crane fell on his side, crushing Galvin to death.

Several workers would have been killed if Galvin had just let the load drop a coworker, who asked not to be identified, said this morning.

Galvin's decision, also prevented extensive damage to the building he had helped put together over the last eight months, the coworker said.

"It was just a matter of seconds. When a crane starts to go, there's no in between," the coworker said. Crane operators have the choice when a crane starts to fall of releasing the brake which holds the lifting cable or trying slowly to lower the load.

Employees near the tilting crane say they yelled to Galvin to drop the load and save himself. But Galvin could not see where the load would fall, and chose to take the risk of death to save the lives of other workers on the other side of the building.

"Knowing him, I'm not surprised he tried his best to get it down without harming anyone," said his coworker.

Sims Crane Service, owner of the $580,000 crane destroyed in the accident, still has no information on what caused the accident. On Aug. 28, Galvin made his monthly report and stated it was in perfect condition, his coworker said, adding Galvin had no problem with it up until 9:02 a.m., when the accident occurred.

Military Seizes Control Of Turkey In Bloodless Coup

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — Turkey's armed forces seized control of the country today and arrested the prime minister in a bloodless coup but pledged to restore parliamentary government once they have stamped out terrorism that has killed 5,200 people this year.

The leaders of the takeover said Turkey also will honor its commitments to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Gen. Kenan Evren, 62, chief of staff of the armed forces, said Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel and the leader of the main opposition, former Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit, were in "protective custody."

Martial law was declared in all of Turkey's 67 provinces, and Evren said all political parties were abolished and a nationwide curfew was in effect.

The National Security Council composed of Evren and the commanders of the army, navy and air force will lead the nation of 43 million in civilian rule, "when peace and order of the state are restored," the balding general said.

In an apparent move to ease fears among Turkey's allies, Evren, a Korean War veteran, called the coup "an interim arrangement" and said Turkey "would honor all its international obligations toward NATO and other existing agreements."

In a 30-minute speech over the national radio, Evren related the litany of the nation's recent instability, its weak economy and the mounting terrorism by left-and rightwing extremists.

He disclosed that terrorist attacks had killed 5,241 people in 1980 alone, well over the official death toll of 1,700 released by the Demirel government. In contrast, Evren said, the Turkish war of independence in 1919-23 cost 5,713 lives.

He also noted that 14,740 people have been arrested this year alone for right-or left-wing terrorism.

Besides Demirel and Ecevit, Evren said Necmettin Erbakan, leader of the Moslem fundamentalist National Salvation Party, and Alparslan Turkes, leader of the extreme rightwing National Movement Party, were all taken into custody "to protect their lives."

Evren said many other deputies had been taken into custody, but added that none would be held responsible for his political activism. But he said the deputies may face trial for what he termed activities "against the law and constitution."

The takeover came after two warnings this year by Evren and the commanders in chief of the army, navy, air force and police in which they charged that "anarchists and separatists" were "rehearsing for a general uprising."

They called for a combined effort by Demirel's rightist Justice Party and Ecevit's socialist Republican People's Party to control the internal security.

The warnings, did not specifically mention military action, but accused politicians of failing to solve the country's social, political and economic problems. The predominantly Moslem nation owes a foreign debt of more than $12 billion despite a hefty loan of $1.5 billion from the International Monetary Fund last year.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said, "There has been a takeover of the government of Turkey by the military. We understand from our embassy there that there has been no violence and there is no danger to Americans."

Turkey, a nation of more than 43 million people, most of whom are Moslem, is strategically located to the south of the Soviet Union, and has been a cause for concern with recent events in neighboring Iran and the Soviet invasion of another Moslem nation, Afghanistan.

The United States, which maintained several military bases in Turkey, banned weapons sales to Ankara following the Turkish invasion of Cyprus in 1974. The decision was reversed in 1979 with a $50 million military aid package after Ecevit threatened to bar American spy planes from using Turkish bases to monitor Soviet activity.

Experts See Real Chance Of Nuclear War

NEW YORK (UPI) — A nuclear war is a real possibility by the end of the century, with Israel and the Arab nations the most likely combatants, say a panel of experts on weapons and international affairs.

The results of a NEXT magazine poll of 32 civilian and military experts, published in the magazine's October issue, paint a chilling scenario of potential nuclear conflicts.

Almost unanimously, the experts said, they saw no way to reduce the threat of nuclear war.

"We are not trying to scare people," said an editor's preface to the findings in NEXT, a new monthly that explores possibilities for the future. "We are trying to open up discussion on a subject that many people would prefer not to discuss."

They agreed there was only about a 5 percent chance of nuclear conflict before 1985, but in the latter part of the decade and during the 1990s, the chances will double.

Among the panel's consensus conclusions was that nuclear wars "most likely" would be regional, as opposed to global.

The experts predicted the first such war probably will be fought between Israel and the Arab nations, with Israel the eventual winner.

But they said a nuclear confrontation between India and Pakistan was almost as likely — a war India would win.

In the third most likely, the Soviet Union would defeat China, they said.

They said a global conflict involving the Russians and the United States was 40 percent as likely as an Israeli-Arab nuclear exchange.

The panelists are more concerned about nuclear war now because there is so much technology controlling weapons that "something might go out of whack," the magazine said.

The panelists also cited nuclear proliferation and increasing world instability.

"These shifts and turnings apparently have persuaded the panelists that we seem to be slouching toward Armageddon," NEXT said.

One panelist, George H. Quester, a Cornell University political science professor, did offer an optimistic analysis. "My own suspicion," he said, "is that optimism is always downplayed in these polls.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Mutiny, Not Fire, May Have Crippled Soviet Submarine

TOKYO (UPI) — A mutiny not a fire may have crippled the Soviet nuclear submarine that mysteriously surfaced in distress off Okinawa last month with nine dead crewmen, a Tokyo newspaper reported today.

The Tokyo Shimbun newspaper, quoting unnamed senior government officials in a front-page article, said analysis of infrared photos taken by Japan's Air Self Defense Force reconnaissance planes found no trace of a blaze aboard the Soviet vessel.

The officials also pointed out the Soviet sub turned down Japanese offers of help in rescuing the injured crew members.

They also told the newspaper a small-scale fire does not normally cripple the tightly guarded communications facilities on a submarine.

Carter Nominated For Nobel

OSLO, Norway (UPI) — President Carter, Pope John Paul II and Spanish King Juan Carlos are among those nominated for this year's Nobel Peace Prize.

Jacob Sverdrup, director of the Nobel Institute, said the winner of the prize will be announced in Oslo Oct. 13 by the Nobel Committee of the Norwegian Parliament, the body that chooses the laureate.

A total of 66 people have been nominated for the prize that is worth $215,000 this year.

Planes Collide In Louisiana

BAYOU BLUE, La. (UPI) — Two planes over south Louisiana swamplands collided today and one of them crashed in flames, apparently killing all aboard, authorities said.

The two people aboard one of the planes, a seaplane, survived the crash in good condition and were hospitalized in Houma, La., for observation.

The other craft, a seven-seat, twin-engine Cessna, went down in a remote area inaccessible by road. A Coast Guard helicopter crewman was lowered to the site but was unable to see inside the plane.

"The plane that they found was upside down, burned out pretty badly," said Coast Guard spokesman Joe Gibson.

He could not say how many were aboard the Cessna, but they "apparently" were killed, although "we don't know yet."

Fire consumed so much of the Cessna that most of its identification number was obliterated, the Coast Guard said.

Chief Deputy Norman Diaz of the Lafourche Parish Sheriff's office said the two planes fell about 4 miles apart.

Fire Damages Altamonte Machine Shop

By DAVID M. RAZLER
Herald Staff Writer

An early morning fire heavily damaged an Altamonte Springs area machine shop, destroying the business' office and doing an undetermined amount of damage to machine equipment.

Longwood, Altamonte Springs and county firefighters were called to the Calvert Machine Shop, Charlotte Street, at 5 a.m. today by a man living nearby who saw flames coming from the roof of the 900-square-foot steel building, firemen say.

It took just a little more than an hour to extinguish the flames, said Seminole County Fire Investigator Kirk Middleton.

He said other county investigators and a state fire investigator were still on the scene of the blaze late this morning attempting to determine its cause and the extent of damage.

ALTAMONTE BANK ROBBED

A man carrying a brown vinyl bag and possibly carrying a gun wrapped in a bandanna robbed an Altamonte Springs bank teller at 1 p.m. Thursday, FBI agents say.

Agent Perry Doran said the 5-foot-10 white male with neatly trimmed blond hair, wearing jeans and a red checkered shirt, walked into the Ellis Bank of Seminole County office at the Interstate Mall, State Road 436, and passed the teller a note saying he had a gun.

Action Reports

★ Courts
★ Police Beat

The teller handed him an undetermined amount of money and the suspect ran off with it in his bag, he said.

Doran said the suspect in Thursday's robbery partially fits the description given by tellers robbed Tuesday at savings and loan offices in Casselberry and Orlando. He said agents do not know if those two crimes were committed by one or two different thieves.

Neither of these two crimes involved notes, he said, adding in the Orlando holdup the robber only said he had a gun, displaying a wrapped object in his hand, while at the Casselberry robbery, the thief pointed a handgun at the teller.

Doran said agents hoped soon to make available photos of all three suspects taken by bank cameras.

MAN SHOT FOLLOWING FIGHT

A fight behind a Midway club ended last Friday night when a shotgun-toting man was shot in the leg by the man deputies say he was wiating for.

Deputies say they have yet to decide what kind of charges will be filed against whom in the incident, which ended when Elijah Johnson ,38, of State Road 46, Midway, was taken to Seminole Memorial Hospital for treatment of a bullet wound in his left knee. He was released following treatment, hospital officials said.

Deputies say Johnson left the Club Two Spot, State Road 46, following a fight. He came back with a shotgun, they say, but was shot by his antagonist as he crouched behind a vehicle. The other man also had returned following a trip to his nearby home to pick up a .32 caliber pistol, deputies say.

The man with the pistol saw Johnson behind a parked vehicle and fired under it once, striking Johnson in the knee, deputies say.

Deputies report they have recovered both weapons allegedly used in the fight and will soon make a decision on charges.

APARTMENT BURGLARS GET COINS

Thieves broke into a Spanish Trace apartment in Altamonte Springs Friday and stole $468 coin collection and a briefcase full of business papers, deputies say.

Altamonte Lowers Property Tax Rate By $2.66

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The Altamonte Springs City Commission at a special meeting Thursday evening reduced its tentative property tax rate from $7.06 per $1,000 assessed property value to $4.40.

Mayor Norman Floyd was instructed by the city commission to submit to Seminole County Property Appraiser Terry Goembel's office by noon today the reduced tentative tax rate to be rated in tax notices to the people of the city, as mandated by new state law.

City Commissioner Dolores, who spearheaded the move to reduce the tentative rate, said today the new rate is "very definitely tentative" and the actual tax rate may be reduced further.

The new state law, known as the TRIM bill (Truth in Millage law), requires city and county governments and the school board to set a tentative tax rate prior to the setting of the actual tax rate.

The governments theoretically won't know what their tax rate is until after the Oct. 7 primary when the voters will decide whether homestead exemptions should be increased this year from $5,000 to $15,000.

Mrs. Vickers said the law states that the actual tax rate cannot be higher than the tentative figure, but it may be reduced. Aware of this requirement of the law, Mrs. Vicker said she and other commissioners will be working with a heavy pencil to cut anticipated expenditures in the city's proposed budget.

"I'm assuming the increased homestead exemptions will certainly be passed by the people," she said.

Floyd was to spend much of his morning time at city hall today, making cuts in the proposed budget sufficient to permit the $2.66 per $1,000 reduction in the tentative tax rate.

Mrs. Vickers a week ago also spearheaded the increase in the tax rate from the current year's $3.43 cents per $1,000 to a tax rate of $7.06.

"As soon as I became aware that the tentative rate would be used on an official notice I knew we had to become much tighter, estimate much closer the amount of money the city would need for operation," she said today. She said one problem was that the city commission had not been given a budget for the new year in a format requested.

In other action, the city commission unanimously named Floyd as a citizen representative to the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council. Floyd, who has served on that planning council as mayor of the city, is also chairman of the organization. He resigned as mayor effective Nov. 3 to run for the county commission. He was defeated in the Democratic primary for the office Tuesday.

The commission named Mrs. Vickers to succeed Floyd as city representative on the Council of Local Governments in Seminole County.

Program Honoring Volunteers

The volunteers who make Seminole County's Juvenile Community Arbitration program work were to be honored today at 3 p.m. at a ceremony at the Seminole County Courthouse.

The ceremony was scheduled to honor the program's second full year of operation. It is now handling 20 percent of the cases brought against youths in Seminole County — those involving first-time offenders who have committed minor crimes.

In addition to doing a job law officers say is often more effective than regular courts for handling youths in trouble for the first time, the program is saving county taxpayers an estimated $100,000 a year in money not spent on formal court procedures.

Seminole's police chiefs, sheriff, state representatives and local office holders were scheduled to attend the ceremony. Twenty-two county residents received formal certificates of appointment as abritrators.

Another 22 were scheduled to receive certificates for a year of work with the program, 16 more for two years of work.

Nineteen other people who have worked closely with the program were also scheduled to receive awards.

Letters of Appointment as arbitrators will go to: Charles B. Andrews, David Balk, Lyn Cohen, Lawrence Duffy, Bruce W. Flower, Doreen Lynn Freeman, Errol Greene, Jean Harry, Christopher Holden, Stephen Horton Jr., Douglas Huth, ed Huth, Charles Jacobs, Martin D. Kjrsch, Ron Marshall, Marilyn Meredith, Fred C. Neuhart III, Edward Schuckman, Helen H. Shacoski, Gary E. Vogel, Nancy Warren, Shirley Young.

Certificates of Appreciation for a year of service will be given to: Anna Bartilnski, Fred Berger, Dan Bushrul, Lyn Cohen, Lawrence Duffy, Brenda Ford, Doreen Freeman, Christopher Holden, Steve Horton, Douglas Huth, Ed Huth, Margaret Lej, Linda McKenzie, Sue Morse, Fred Neuhart, Barbara Popp, Edward Schuckman, Alex Serrano, Helen Shacocki, Gary Vogel, Dr. John Washington, Shirley Young.

Second Year Certificates will go to: Judy Alper, Cindy Crain, Irving Gussow, Lee Hoover, Cyndee Hutchinson, Grace Kehrer, Richard Mamele, Eugene Minietta, Verna Moore, Kenneth Morse, Patrick Murray, Mark Rabinowitz, Gerald Rutberg, Robin St. Onge, Thomas Scarpello, Stan Stone.

Special Awards will go to: Larry Young, volunteer efforts in office; James Daniels, volunteer service; Katie Kramer, volunteer intern; Terry Richardson; Lois Walker, fiscal and probate counselor; Dr. Marvin Jones, Seminole Community College, Office of Community Services; training; John Curtis, training; Assist State Attorney Alan Robinson, training; and Tom McLaughlin, business liason.

Also Det. Bill Bernosky, Sanford Police Department work program; Lt. Donald McCullough, sheriff's jail tow program; Det. Bill Hasson, Outstanding Cooperation, Sanford Police; Capt. Jay Leman; outstanding cooperation, Sheriff's department; Thelma Mike, dispositional resource; Phyllis Oliva, dispositional resource; Cindy Lobig, student representative at student legislation; Leslie Akers, student representative at student legislation; Gene Duffy, monitor at hearings; Jim Green, monitor at hearings.

A special award was scheduled to be given to Tom Weinberg, direct services supervisor for Health and Rehabilitative Services' Orange County Office.

Weinberg was to receive a special citation signed by Circuit Judge J. William Woodson thanking him for his efforts which have led to the development of arbitration programs in Seminole and Brevard counties as well as other programs for youths in the two-county area which is covered by the 18th Judicial Circuit.

NATION IN BRIEF

3 American Cars Break 30 Miles-Per-Gallon Mark

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three American-made cars — the Chevrolet Chevette, Ford Escort and Lincoln Mercury Lynx — broke the 30 miles-per-gallon barrier for the first time since the government began testing cars for fuel economy, it was announced today.

The overall winner in the Environmental Protection Agency's annual ratings was once again the Volkswagen Rabbit diesel at 42 mpg. The Rabbit also is made in the United States but is considered by law an import because less than 75 percent of its parts and labor are domestic.

The Chevette, Escort and Lynx all weighed in at 30 mpg. Last year, the best any American car did was 26 mpg.

Economy Shows Good Signs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first time in six months, American businesses sold goods fast enough in July to make a dent in their inventory backlog. It is another in a series of recent signs the economy may be turning around.

The inventory-to-sales ratio dropped from 1.52, where it had peaked in May and June, to 1.49 in July, the Commerce Department said Thursday. This means it would take businesses 1.49 months to sell off all the goods they had on hand in July if they did not place any new orders.

Shoppers To Feel 'Heat'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The searing summer heat spell cut into livestock feed crops, strengthening the move toward higher retail meat and poultry prices. Most of the damage to crops for livestock feed such as corn and soybeans occurred in July's record high temperature and insufficient rainfall, according to a U.S. report released Thursday.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Cloud Mass Threatens East Coast Of Florida

MIAMI (UPI) — Erratic Hurricane Frances drifted slowly westward today in the Atlantic, still far from the United States, but a large cloud mass touching the Florida coast could develop into another tropical storm, forecasters said.

Frances, with 90-mph winds, was at latitude 17 north, longitude 38.5 west late Thursday night — about 800 miles west of the Cape Verde Islands off the coast of Africa, 3,000 miles away from the United States. It was heading west-north-west at less than 10 mph, the center said, and was expected to stick to its lazy course today.

The suspicious clouds extend from Cuba up to South Florida and out over the Bahamas into the Atlantic, he said.

McDuffie Family Sues Dade

MIAMI (UPI) — If Dade County had been more careful in keeping violent officers off its police force, Arthur McDuffie might never have died, the family of the black insuranceman says in a $25-million federal lawsuit.

McDuffie's death brought on Miami's deadly May riots.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court Thursday, accuses the county of not taking enough care in hiring police officers, or in weeding out ones whose records indicate a tendency to violence.

Divorced Men Gain Rights

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — A divorced man paying alimony is legally a "head of household" and cannot have his wages garnished to pay off a debt, according to the Florida Supreme Court. In another ruling Thursday, the high court said a person can be stopped and frisked by police officers working on an anonymous tip if they have reason to believe the tip is valid.

3 Killers Seek Mercy

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Three confessed killers seek mercy from Gov. Bob Graham and the Cabinet today, a rarity because most convicted killers facing execution in Florida have claimed they are innocent. The Cabinet, sitting as the executive clemency board, considers the cases of David Washington, who killed four people in Dade County; Lensen Hargrave, who killed a store clerk during a robbery in Dade; and Charles Kenneth Clark, who killed an Alabama man near Panama City.

Matlovich Ruling To Help?

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — The U.S. District Court ruling in favor of Leonard Matlovich could determine the fate of Staff Sgt. Harold Bryant, a 13-year veteran at MacDill Air Force Base, who claims he already has been given a separation physical and has had his permanent identification card revoked, all without due process. Bryant currently is undergoing psychological testing at Fort Gordon, Ga.

In a letter to the American Civil Liberties Union last month, Bryant said he was being processed for discharge because he is homosexual.

Exposed Bird Flock Killed

MIAMI (UPI) — For more than 10 hours, Agriculture Department officials covered the cages of parrots, macaws, parakeets and cockatoels and slipped pockets of poison gas inside — killing 7,211 birds exposed to fatal, highly contagious exotic Newcastle disease.

The birds, the flock of a wholesaler who has sent thousands of them to pet stores around the country, were destroyed Thursday as agriculture officials attempted to halt an outbreak of highly contagious disease they say may have spread to 14 states and infected a half million birds.

When the birds were dead, a specially formed task force prepared to visit pet stores around the country to check the 29,000 birds that Pet Farm Inc. has shipped

Frey Makes Runoff, Seeks Debates

WINTER PARK, Fla. (UPI) — Lou Frey pledges to run a clean, positive campaign, but the fight to win the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate could become divisive over the issue of debates.

Frey, a 10-year veteran of Congress from Winter Park, finished a weak second behind Mrs. Hawkins in the Republican primary. He finally earned his runoff spot Thursday when she fell just shy of the magic 50 percent-plus one vote to win outright.

He's a strong speaker and figures he'd win in one-on-one forums with Mrs. Hawkins, the former Public Service Commission chairman, who's long on popularity and does not want to yield any of the lime-light to Frey.

She and her staff say there's no need to debate — the two candidates already have discussed the issues at earlier forums and are mostly in agreement.

"We've already debated him eight times," said Hawkins campaign manager Don Weidner, referring to a series of candidate forums involving the original six Republican candidates. "We don't see anything to be accomplished by doing it again. There are no major issue differences between the two of them."

But Frey, 46, views it differently and said if Mrs. Hawkins refused his challenge she'd be showing the same "contempt" for the voters that President Carter has shown by refusing to discuss the issues with Ronald Reagan and John Anderson.

"If you can't handle a debate in a state race you better stay off the Senate floor," Frey said at a news conference Thursday, intimating that Mrs. Hawkins doesn't really know enough to be an effective senator.

"So far in this race I've been talking about the national and international issues — she's been talking about the Public Service Commission," he charged.

Frey, while agreeing to support Mrs. Hawkins against the winner of the Richard Stone-Bill Gunter Democratic runoff if she wins Oct. 7, also laughed off her suggestion from Wednesday that he concede to her since she won by a nearly 2-1 margin.

Aides To Carter, Reagan Trade Charges

United Press International

In the absence of a two-way presidential debate by President Carter and Ronald Reagan, surrogates for the two major party candidates have instituted full-scale attacks, charges, counter-charges and responses in a war of words.

Administration officials began it all by responding to Reagan attacks in their areas.

Both Republican Chairman Bill Brock and Reagan-Bush campaign chairman Sen. Paul Laxalt complained Thursday Carter is abusing his incumbency by the political use of government officers and employees.

Two Cabinet secretaries and a department head spoke out Thursday.

—In response to Reagan's charge Wednesday in Cleveland there "is no energy shortage and the administration has no energy program," Energy Secretary Charles Duncan said, the GOP candidate espouses "what I would call laissez faire attitudes, or 19th-century approaches, to 21st-century problems," and indulges in "a tremendous amount of rhetoric" about energy independence.

—Labor Secretary Ray Marshall responded to Reagan's remark in Erie, Pa., Thursday that accidents and fatalities in the work place have increased since the Occupational Safety and Health Administration came into being. "Again it is clear Reagan doesn't know what he is talking about," he said. "The death rate in America's work places has declined 28 percent from 1969 to 1979," OSHA came into being in 1970.

— Sam Brown, head of ACTION, the administration's anti-poverty and volunteer agency, told a National Energy Teach-In sponsored by the Center for Urban Environmental Studies that Reagan is "not a man of evil intent," but, "The danger of his election is that in looking to the past he is careless with the present and thoughtless about the future."

Brock acknowledged all incumbents use the office for political advantage, but said Carter's "abuses ... are the worst I've seen in all my years in politics."

He filed Freedom of Information requests with 29 government agencies to find out how much is being spent on travel by government officials to make speeches he says are largely political.

"There is no question taxpayer funds are being used to advance the president's reelection," he said.

Laxalt called a news conference to cite what he said were "two more examples just today of the Carter administration's continuing and unbridled abuse of the incumbency."

Cuban U.N. Diplomat Killed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Omega 7, a fanatic anti-Castro group that has taken credit for a score of terrorist bombings, is being held responsibility for the shooting death of an attache to Cuba's diplomatic corps to the United Nations.

The sniper attack Thursday night, which Omega 7 claimed was part of a months-long plan to assassinate Cuban diplomats, drew immediate condemnation from Secretary of State Edmund Muskie, who called it a "reprehensible murder."

The United States also offered an informal apology to Cuba, and police and FBI agents began an intense hunt for a killer of whom they acknowledged they had no description.

It was believed to be the first killing of a member of the U.N. diplomatic corps.

Police said the victim, Felix Garcia Rodriguez, in his 40s, was shot once in the head as he drove a station wagon with diplomatic plates toward Manhattan on Queens Boulevard, a busy 10-lane thoroughfare.

"It didn't start today. It started a few months ago," a man claiming to represent Omega 7 told United Press International within minutes of the killing.

"We intend to eliminate all these traitors from the face of the earth and we are going to continue to execute all these people who are responsible" for Cuba's current political situation, the caller said.

FBI Holds 2 Suspects In London Jewel Robbery

CHICAGO (UPI) — FBI agents, tipped off by Scotland Yard, were waiting. Within seconds of stepping off the plane, two middle-aged men were under arrest for a daring $2.4 million London jewel robbery that netted them the 45-carat Marlborough diamond.

Despite the arrests Thursday at O'Hare International Airport — only 12 hours after the well-planned daylight holdup at Graff Jewelers in London — no diamonds were found on the suspects.

FBI officials said they were satisfied the "goodies" were still in England.

Agents, acting on a tip from London's Scotland Yard, arrested Joseph J. Scalise and Arthur Rachel, both 42 and of Chicago, as they stepped off British Airways Flight 298 from London Thursday.

An FBI spokesman said the two had a history of arrests and convictions for "burglary, robbery and counterfeiting," and are reputed to be crime syndicate figures.

Both were charged with conspiracy to transport stolen property in interstate and foreign commerce and ordered held in the Metropolitan Correctional Center pending a hearing today before a U.S. magistrate.

One FBI agent described the two men as "very calm, cool and collected" when they were arrested. "They've been through this sort of thing before," he said.

Around The Clock

By DONNA ESTES

Florida, which has the largest percentage of older persons of any state in the union, will host the first state conference of the White House Conference on Aging next week.

The conference will be held Sept. 16-19 at the Sheraton Twin Towers Hotel in Orlando.

More than one of every six Floridians is 65 and older today — a forecast of the total United States population by the year 2020.

The Florida conference will open Tuesday evening, Sept. 16, with a reception hosted by Adele Graham, wife of Gov. Bob Graham. Former Gov. Leroy Collins, 71, will give the keynote address on "The Uniqueness of Older Floridians" on Wednesday morning, Sept. 17.

The Conference will conclude Friday morning at the Atlantis Theater in Sea World where Gov. Graham will introduce First Lady Rosalynn Carter to more than 5,000 elderly persons from all over the state.

Among the dignitaries in attendance will be: Sen. Lawton M. Chiles, (D-Fla.), Chairman of the Senate Special Committee on Aging; U.S. Rep. Claude Pepper, (D-Fla.), Chairman of the House Special Committee on Aging; Dr. Harold Sheppard, Counselor to the President on Aging; Jerome R. Waldie, Executive Director, White House Conference on Aging, and Dr. Sadie T.M. Alexander, Chairperson of the White House Conference on Aging.

State White House Conferences on Aging are being held in each of the states and U.S. Territories through June of 1981.

The conferences will allow citizens, organizations and government leaders to examine the quality of life for older Americans within each state; analyze the capacity of existing programs and social institutions to serve the needs of the elderly; project challenges that may arise as the proportion of senior citizens increases; and explore ways to enhance the ability of older Americans to serve as a growing national resource.

The state conferences will be organized by coordinators appointed by each Governor and are designed to assimilate the views of citizens in order to prepare formal recommendations for the White House Conference on Aging in 1981.

Health, education and supportive services will be three major areas to be discussed at the Florida conference.

Among the speakers on health care costs and access to health care will be Thomas B. Thames, president of the Florida Medical Association; and State Rep. Dick Batchelor, D-Orlando.

Addressing the issue of long term care for the aged are Alvin Taylor, secretary of the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, and State Sen. Jack Gordon of Miami.

Revolutionary Think Tank...

The Ethics and Public Policy Center in Washington has performed a major public service in reporting on the insidious work of the Institute for Policy Studies in the nation's capital.

Americans who have never heard of the IPS have been profoundly affected by its efforts to influence decision making in the United States.

Dr. Ernest Lefever, director of the Center, accurately described the IPS as "the hub of a revolutionary political network." The declared aim of the IPS is, in his words, "the radical transformation of America's basic intellectual, religious, economic and political institutions."

The IPS seeks the unilateral disarmament of the United States, the breakup of America's intelligence services, and the dismantlement of its capitalist economic system.

Dr. Rael Jean Isaac, who has taught at Brooklyn College, is the author of the report entitled "America The Enemy: Profile Of a Revolutionary Think Tank" which has been published by the Center.

According to Dr. Isaac, the IPS represents an unprecedented success story — "the achievement of the New Left after its supposed demise, in shaping United States policy." The new novel, The Spike is widely assumed to be based on the IPS. In the novel, Dr. Isaac says, "it is the channel through which the Soviet Union hopes to take over the United States."

The IPS has established cooperative programs with various colleges, including Antioch College. It has a joint program on "militarism" with the Cato Institute, a libertarian organization that opposes national defense efforts. It has supporters on Capitol Hill, such as Rep. John Conyers of Detroit. It made films designed to discredit U.S. intelligence agencies. It has been very active on behalf of the Palestine Liberation Organization, a terrorist group. The former head of its Transnational Institute unit, a Chilean radical, was in the pay of Cuba's intelligence service. The new head of that IPS unit is Tariq Ali, a leader of the British section of the Trotskyite Fourth Internationa.

Most significantly, says Dr. Isaac, under the Carter administration, there has been a movement of IPS-linked people "into the National Security Council and the Department of State."

The Ethics and Public Policy Center report is packed with facts and extensively foot-noted. It points out, for example, that the Rubin Foundation has poured millions of dollars into the IPS. Another $2 million came from the now defunct DJB Foundation whose founder said the chief enemy of mankind was "the injustice of governments and of the United States government in particular."

The full report on the Institute For Policy Studies is available from the Ethics and Public Center for $1. It is a dollar well spent for Americans who want to understand why the country has adopted left-leaning positions in recent years. Indeed, this report is an enormously important public document in this presidential election year.

As Palo Alto Goes, So Goes...

EMMETSBURG, Iowa — Emmetsburg and surrounding Palo Alto County are a Hollywood director's vision of a small Midwestern farming community. Located in northwestern Iowa, the area contains some of the richest farmland and friendliest people to be found anywhere.

But the county has a fame greater than its corn, soybeans and pork. That fame is political, for Palo Alto County has voted for the winning presidential candiate in every presidential election since 1896. It is the country's champion bellwether county.

In 1976, for instance, Iowa went for Gerald Ford. But true to tradition, Palo Alto County gave Jimmy Carter 3,181 of its votes to a mere 2,618 for Ford. The county's votes had gone to winners William McKinley, Teddy Roosevelt (in 1904), William H. Taft (in 1908), Woodrow Wilson, Warren Harding, Calvin Coolidge, Herbert Hoover (in 1928), Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman, Dwight Eisenhower, John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon in the 20 previous presidential elections.

Not only has Palo Alto County traditionally voted for winning presidential candiates, but those candidates' victory margins in the county have closely resembled their victory margins nationwide. Thus, the tightest race locally was the Kennedy-Nixon contest in 1960.

The county has about 14,000 residents, some 4,500 of them living in Emmetsburg, the county seat. The rest live on farms or in smaller towns like Ruthven or Cylinder or Mallard. (Town moto: "We're as friendly as ducks.")

When farm prices are high, as they are currently, this is a very prosperous community. But when prices are low, as they were last summer and into this spring, the economy of the county suffers. Currently, about 900 county residents receive some form of federal or state welfare assistance; that includes about 500 who get food stamps.

Palo Alto County is almost unique among Midwestern farming communities in its ethnic makeup. Settled by six Irish families from Chicago, the county today is strongly Irish and strongly Catholic. Most such regions are populated more heavily by Protestants of English, German and Scandinavian stock.

When local businessmen and farmers gather at Dutch's Diner for morning coffee, at the Redwood Inn for lunch or at the Hogs Breath Lounge for late-afternoon or evening drinks, the talk usually turns to crop prices and politics.

Jane Whitmore, editor of Emmetsburg's twice-weekly newspaper, says that Palo Alto County residents follow national politics very closely. "Quite a few people here subscribe to newspapers like the Chicago Tribune or New York Times or Wall Street Journal," she notes. "They are both well-read and serious about politics. Maybe our voting record is just luck or maybe we do reflect the nation as a whole. But whatever it is, it keeps working every four years."

So, who are the voters of Palo Alto County supporting this year? In 1980, will it again be "as Palo Alto County goes, so goes the nation?"

New Old China

Poland, the Reagan campaign against Ronald Reagan and invisible warplanes may be getting the headlines, but in the hindsight of history it could well turn out that the real news these days is being made in Peking.

China's Communist heirarchy has been turning in a remarkable performance on the stage provided by the National People's Congress. True, it is being played in part to a foreign audience. The session is open not only to the diplomatic corps, an innovation in itself, but to the foreign press. That is a revolutionary development in this so recently tightly closed revolutionary society.

But the agenda is still China, and what concerns the 3,000 delegates is not the present curiosity of the outside world but the future of China. The nation is being committed firmly to the modern world and a distinctly Chinese brand of socialism by a thoroughgoing economic, social and political restructuring.

Industrial enterprises are soon to be self- rather than state-managed to a considerable degree. Banks will be given more leeway to make loans, and charge interest, to finance projects based upon practicality and potential profitability rather than a rigid national plan.

The selection of technical and managerial personnel will be determined by their competence, not politics and seniority. Workers councils along the Yugoslav model, empowered to remove unsatisfactory plant supervisors, may be set up and local elections to perform a similar function at the grassroots level of government are a possibility.

But the key changes are in the political structure — and at the very top. The leadership is undergoing wholesale change. Prime Minister Hua Guofeng has stepped down, as foreseen, although he remains Communist Party chairman. Deputy Prime Minister Deng Xiaoping and a clutch of veteran colleagues are also relinquishing posts.

It is to younger men in all cases with the exception of the prime minister where Hua's successor, Zhao Ziyang, is two years older. But at 61 he is still a stripling by either Chinese or orthodox Communist standards.

It is not a complete changeover of the Peking guard, as indicated by Hua's continuing to head the party. Much more significant, however, is Deng's retention of a deputy chairmanship. He has all along exercised the real power in post-Mao China. He scripted the current changes and will continue to direct affairs from not too far behind the scenes. For how long he is not saying, and no one else is in a position to know.

Even so, the changes are like nothing seen before in Peking or any other Communist capital and are an impressive start toward something never before achieved by a Marxist regime — the transfer of power through orderly procedures rather than by purge or death, natural or otherwise.

The official line is that the changes in no way represent deviations from the Communist way. Possibly. But you could probably fool the average objective observer.

Hopes Linked To Lynx

By JAMES V. HIGGINS
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — A lynx is small, but still a pretty mean cat — and Gordon B. MacKenzie wants to make sure the public knows.

MacKenzie was appointed in June as general manager of the ailing Lincoln-Mercury Division of Ford Motor Co., and its rehabilitation is his task.

He has definite ideas on how to go about it. In fact, he did it once before.

The drive to bring car buyers back to Lincoln-Mercury showrooms will be built on the Lynx, the Mercury version of Ford's new 1981 small car, and on an advertising campaign that relies more on striking visual images than on a verbal sales pitch.

In the 18 months since the domestic auto industry went sour, Lincoln-Mercury has suffered more of a sales decline than any other domestic car division. While industry car sales are off 23 percent this year, MacKenzie's division has declined 42 percent.

That's because Lincoln-Mercury has symbolized automotive roominess, comfort, ride and luxury, he said in an interview.

"But with all those good things goes the term 'big,'" he said. "Well, if there's anything that's been out until the last two or three months in this country, it's been 'big.'"

In part, MacKenzie said, the division's reputation is a bum rap. It offers the compact Zephyr and small-sporty Capri, both of which are rated well above 20 miles per gallon, and will have a downsized Cougar on the market this fall in the intermediate class.

The Lynx, he said, "will carry with it the reputation that Lincoln-Mercury has comfortable, good-riding, roomy cars, and, we're very confident, at 30 miles per gallon.

"What this is going to do for us at Lincoln-Mercury, in addition to selling Lynxes, is help establish the fact that Lincoln-Mercury does have fuel-efficient vehicles."

MacKenzie said that message will be conveyed to the public via television, cinema and still photography advertising with intense visual impact and a minimum of chatter.

To accomplish that, the division hired British producer Howard Gard, formed its own production company and — not least — trained three real-life lynxes.

"Our advertising is about as non-Detroit as you could possibly get," MacKenzie said.

"This kind of thing has never been done before. If it didn't come off, we'd be in real trouble. But we just got the research on it and, boy, people get the message completely."

MacKenzie, 50, has been with Ford since 1954, most of that time in sales. He draws a parallel between Lincoln-Mercury's current situation and the role he played during a five-year European tour of duty introducing Ford's Fiesta subcompact.

"We were successful in Europe, but we were known for big, durable and I might even say thirsty, to use their term, cars," he said.

"So our opportunity with the Fiesta was to take that kind of a reputation, ... and transfer it to a new little car."

The Fiesta became Ford's most successful European-built car, and in some countries it doubled Ford's sales volume — even enhancing sales of other models, he said.

"So I think there's a chance that this little Lynx can do for us at Lincoln-Mercury what Fiesta did for Ford in Europe. What it did, it got people to consider a Ford Motor Co. product who never had walked into our showroom before."

Sen. Stewart Still Hasn't Answered

WASHINGTON — Three months ago, I reported on the murky financial problems of freshman Sen. Donald Stewart, D-Ala. The FBI launched a full-scale probe of Stewart's questionable 1978 campaign finances, and a federal grand jury reportedly convened in Birmingham last week to look into the long-festering controversy.

When I published my initial report of the FBI investigation, Stewart allegedly hadn't been given a chance to produce evidence that would disprove certain allegations. But he still hasn't produced convincing answers despite reporters' repeated questions.

One fact Stewart hasn't denied, because it's on the public record, is that he accepted $22,000 in illegal campaign contributions from a smooth-talking convicted con artist named James Dennis. The Federal Election Commission slapped Dennis with the biggest fine in its brief history. Though later cut in half, the fine has still not been paid.

Stewart insists he returned the tainted money as soon as he learned it was illegal, and downplayed his association with Dennis. He was "not a big player in my campaign," the senator said, adding: "I didn't have much contact with him." That's not the story given by Dennis and others familiar with Stewart's 1978 campaign.

My associates Jack Mitchell and Tony Capaccio learned that Dennis, while in prison on conviction unrelated to Stewart, told the FBI he had cashed Stewart's check returning the $22,000 in contributions and then gave Stewart the money back in cash. That's what triggered the FBI probe.

Stewart has produced an affidavit for Alabama reporters from an Anniston, Ala., banker as evidence that he borrowed $22,000 to replace the money he had to return to Dennis. That might explain the $22,000 deposited in Stewart's campaign account the same day he repaid Dennis. But so far, Stewart has failed to produce an actual loan agreement to substantiate the banker's affidavit.

As for his claim that Dennis didn't figure importantly in his campaign, Dennis told my reporters flatly, "no one was closer to Donald than me." Other former Stewart campaign workers have confirmed the Dennis, citing over one hundred personal contacts between Stewart and Dennis during the 1978 campaign.

The election commission, citing a lack of resources, accepted the unsworn assurances of Stewart's lawyer that free plane rides Dennis provided were "personal," despite published accounts quoting Dennis' pilot as saying he flew Dennis, Stewart and Stewart's family back from a political campaign rally.

While a few plane rides may be insignificant compared to illegal campaign donations, further probing casts doubt on the senator's insistence that the wheeling-and-dealing Dennis wasn't close to his campaign.

Nor has the FEC done anything about additional, apparently illegal, campaign gifts from Dennis (totaling $1,150. Stewart has refused to give the money back because he says the FEC hasn't asked him to return it. An FEC spokesman explained that since no formal complaint has been filed, those donations have not been investigated.

The senator hasn't cut his ties to the con man. Early in June, as the FBI was gearing up its investigation, Stewart went to Talladega, Ala., on a fact-finding mission concerned with Cuban refugee facilities.

While there he visited Dennis at the federal prison in Talladega. Stewart contends that a prison counselor informed him that Dennis had requested a visit. But Dennis, in a taped conversation, said, "I didn't know he was coming down."

Stewart also claimed the meeting was personal and lasted only several minutes. But an FBI source noted the two as meeting alone for about 25 minutes. Dennis has since been paroled.

WORKERS, UNITE! With nothing to lose but their chains, the Capitol Employees Organizing Group sent off a contribution to the Polish workers' movement. The Polish unions have now won recognition from the Communist Party government, but congressional employees have had no such success with the Democrats and Republicans on Capitol Hill.

Congressional workers — cafeteria help, janitors, groundskeepers, secretaries — are still hired and fired on whim, and receive no Social Security benefits. Nor are they covered by the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Equal Opportunity Act of 1972, the Equal Pay Act, the Fair Labor Standard Act, the National Labor Relations Act or the Occupational Safety and Health Act. They do not have Civil Service status.

Their only protection is under Rule 50 of the Standing Rules of the Senate, passed in 1979, which prohibits descrimination on the basis of race, religion or sex.

Many members are wearing green buttons that read "Human Rights Union Rights." More than 60 percent of the workers have asked for union representation; nearly 80 percent could be expected to vote for a union if Congress would allow an election.

So far, the union advocates' gesture of solidarity with the Polish workers has elicited no response from behind the Iron Curtain.

Longwood Commission Mulls Major Charter Revisions

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

The Longwood City Commission has authorized City Attorney Marvin Rooks to draw up an ordinance for proposed revisions to the city charter, to come before the commission next Monday night.

The commission reached tentative agreement at a recent workshop on a list of recommended changes submitted by the Charter Advisory Committee.

Revisions proposed would be as follows:

— The provision prohibiting a commissioner from serving as mayor for more than one year in succession would be eliminated.

— The section on vacancies would be amended to read that should a vacancy occur in the county commission more than 60 days prior to the next regular election, a special election would be held.

— The commission agreed with the Charter Advisory Committee that the city continue with a city administrator appointed by the commission rather than an elected mayor, but the majority of the commission disagreed with a recommendation of the committee that the administrator be appointed annually rather than for an indefinite term as at present.

— The commission agreed that the administrator should be appointed on the basis of qualifications defined in an ordinance or resolution.

— In regard to petitions, the percent of required signatures would be changed from 15 percent to 6 percent.

— The words "in the last regular city election" would be deleted from the section on certification of petitions.

— Sub-section A of Charter Section 3.01 would be changed to read that "the city commission should be composed of at least five members."

In other business this week the commission:

— Annex Staten Motel on Highway 17-92 as requested for N.A. Caizza

—approved the site plans of Shannon & Whittle for a shed addition and Intertec Components, Inc., both at Baywood Industrial Park

— reset the date for the Land Use Map workshop to 7:30 p.m., Sept. 23.

— authorized installation and maintenance of a traffic light opposite Township Plaza on State Road 434

— passed a resolution providing for the pavement and improvement of streets and installation of water lines, drainage and sewarage lines in Longwood Industrial Park and approved a promissory note to be issued by ComBank-Seminole County to finance the project

— presented certificate of appreciation to Andrew Amoroso for his part in getting the Longwood Industrial Park property owners to cooperate in the improvement projects

— approved ordinance increasing the monthly sewage rates

— approved an ordinance increasing water rates on first reading and set a public hearing for Oct. 13. Basic rates on the first 5,000 gallons would be raised from $3.85 to $4 and from 45 cents to 50 cents per thousand gallons over the minimum.

—postponed action on a code enforcement board for the city until next Monday night.

FLIGHT FOR LIFE

Sean Domanius Brown, a 2-pound, 5-ounce, premature boy born early Tuesday at Seminole Memorial Hospital, is loaded aboard a National Guard helicopter for a flight to University Hospital in Jacksonville where the fight for his life will continue. Nurse "Dee" Harnage, a 1967 Seminole High graduate and daughter of Mr. And Mr. C. By Wynn of Sanford, headed the special team from the neonatal unit at the Jacksonville hospital. The infant was listed in stable condition Thursday.

Seminole Commission Lists Top Drainage Problem Areas

The Seminole County Commission has approved in concept the acquisition of retention areas recommended by drainage studies of problem areas in the county.

Commissioners emphasized that in establishing priorities other critical areas in addition to those centered on in the studies would not be excluded.

Public Works Director Jack Schuder said that the five areas problem areas listed in the study include Midway, Winwood, Rolling Hills, Lockhart and the Smith Canal.

County Commissioner Dick Williams said: "There are at least two projects of long standing not included. Leota Drive (Forest City area), which we have been wrestling with for five years has water rushing down the road and washing sand in Mirror Lake. Balmy Beach Drive (Bear Lake area) also has an outfall. We have hassled with this thing with the Department of Environmental Regulation. They say they have no money to solve the problem as they identify it and have been after the county for years to get a retention area."

"It would be grossly unfair to exclude them from the program, I would hate to see them left out. They have been a problem for eight years or more and if they aren't included now it would be another four or five years before something is done," Williams said.

Schuder said there is no intent to exclude other areas that might be identified from the priority list.

He said the proposed retention areas would have to be appraised first. He added that there is a possibility all can be acquired with the funds budgeted, while it may be determined some are too costly and some other engineering solution would be preferable. —JANE CASSELBERRY

'Schutzhund' Trials Set

The U.S. trials for "Schutzhund" will be held Oct. 24-26 at Winter Park's Showalter Field.

"Schutzhund" is the German name for "protection dog," and originated in Germany over 80 years ago. It stands for the most highly disciplined training for dogs in the world.

Three separate events will pit America's top dogs of all breeds against each other in obedience, tracking, and man work. The obedience competition consists of the regular heeling, sitting, laying, staying and-command work.

Tracking is a suspense-filled event where each dog is required to actually find several objects hidden along a zig-zag path 1,200 feet in length.

Last in these trials is the most exciting event, "man work," where each dog must prove its courage by searching, finding and holding at bay, men or women hidden behind "blinds." In this event the dog must also through a simulated escape, capture a prisoner and remain aggressive even when threatened by a club or gun.

The trials are open to the public free of charge and begin each day at noon.

Okeechobee Flood

Lawsuits, Bitterness And Fear Remain 1 Year After Disaster In Rural Area

INDIANTOWN, Fla. (UPI) — At Barlow's Catfish Restaurant along U.S. 441 in the heart of Lake Okeechobee's sugar cane and cattle country, they still talk about the dike that burst last Halloween.

Twenty billion gallons of water gushed through a 100-yard breach in the earthen dam of a 6,700-acre reservoir owned by Florida Power & Light Co., flooding 60 square miles of prime ranchland on the northeast side of Lake Okeechobee.

In some places, the flood water was 29 feet deep and 1,700 people along a 18-mile stretch between Port Mayaca and Nubbins Slough fled their homes and fish camps for high ground.

Miraculously, no one was killed or seriously injured. But the wall of water unleashed by the dike rupture caused millions of dollars damage and turned the lives of some flood victims into a living hell.

Engineers are not certain, but believe subsurface soil erosion was responsible for the breach.

Little visible evidence remains of the flood today and only 20 of the 836 property damage claims filed against FPL remain unsettled. The utility says it has paid $10.24 million in claims.

Most people who were reimbursed for possessions ranging from ruined love letters to water-logged mobile homes seem satisfied, but there are five claimants suing FPL and 15 property owners still at odds over settlement offers.

Also unresolved is whether FPL will succeed in forcing its 2.2 million customers to pay the additional $71 million it's costing to reinforce and rebuild the ruptured dike.

Florida's Public Service Commission will ultimately decide who pays for rebuilding the reservoir for FPL's still unfinished fossil fuel generator at Indiantown and the commissioners aren't looking forward to the controversy the question is certain to create.

William Arrieta has already settled with FPL, but Judy Arrieta says the family hasn't been the same since it woke up early Oct. 31 to find flood waters swirling through the bedroom of their ranch home.

The Arrietas grabbed their three children and scrambled to a barn roof to escape the flood waters and prayed for 4½ hours before a Coast Guard helicopter rescued them.

"We've been through living hell ever since," says Mrs. Arrieta from their new home in Clewiston, where the family moved two months after the flood.

Things are beginning to perk up, she says, but no one really feels at home in the new place.

"It's depressing. We liked where we lived in Port Mayaca. But I don't think we could live through it again. Knowing they were going to build the dike back up, we weren't going to stay there. We had to move."

The hardest times, she says, are at night when it rains and "you get up to see where the water is coming from."

The flood also took its toll on her 12-year-old son Shawn. "His grades just dropped to nothing."

Russell and Jeanne Gipper, owners of Big Lake Lodge 16 miles north of Port Mayaca, are suing FPL. Gipper, 41, quit his job as a Sear's executive last year and bought the camp four months before the flood.

The flood gutted seven of the Gippers' efficiency apartments and three house trailers on their property, ruining walls, flooring, carpeting, appliances and furniture.

"We took every speck of it to the dump," Mrs. Gipper says.

After 10 months in their travel trailer, the Gippers finally moved into a mobile home on the property and got their telephone hooked up two weeks ago.

Gipper says his appraisers estimate total damages of $300,000. FPL has offered him "less than $100,000," an amount he says doesn't even cover property damage, let alone his loss of business.

"We got hurt bad and we're still hurting," he says. "But I think I have done my what I've lost. As far as I'm concerned it's in the attorney's hands right now."

Jean Efstathiou, owner of Barlow's, was just getting the catfish house back in business after a 1976 fire when flood water 14 inches deep invaded her restaurant 13 miles north of the Port Mayac locks.

"Sure, everyone talks about it," she says. "We had just got opened up again. People were just beginning to realize we were open ... and boom came the water."

Mrs. Efstathiou said she's had no problems collecting $34,000 to repair the restaurant. But she is still going over her business loss, which she estimates will exceed $100,000, with her accountants.

"FPL is not going to pay you five cents if they don't have to," says Mrs. Efstathiou.

How FPL will handle such losses and continue negotiations with the others suing the company — homeowner Earl Stripling, fish camp owner Norma Lewis, the Lattmaxcy Cattle Corp. and the Douglas family — is a matter of speculation since officials won't comment on still open claims.

Jake Lewandowski, of Claims Management Services, the Miami-based firm handling the claims for FPL's insurance carriers, refused comment on the pending flood claims.

And FPL officials were not anxious to discuss the open claims or indicate which insurance companies were making the payouts.

Meanwhile, rebuilding of the cement and dirt dike near Indiantown continues with hundreds of men working around-the-clock in an effort to begin refilling the reservoir by Nov. 10.

Gene Vancuren, FPL district manager in Stuart, says the South Florida Water Management District will have the final say before the reservoir refilling begins.

So far, however, the dike modifications made by FPL have been approved.

Vancuren said work on the two modifications is about 25 percent completed, but should be finished by the Nov. 10 target date.

Rebuilding and repair of the dam will cost $119 million — $71 million more than when the 28-foot tall, 17½-mile long dike was built in the 1970s, according to Wolverton. Insurance paid only $8.35 million.

Wolverton said FPL will ask its customers sometime next year to absorb most of the mammoth loss.

"In terms of determining who pays for the $71 million, that will be up to the Public Service Commission when we have our next rate proceeding," Wolverton says. "This $71 million will be part of what we want in our rate base because it's an improvement in our existing plant."

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Saturday, September 13, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY SEPT. 13, 1980

That which you have gained from personal experience has helped strengthen the leadership qualities that you will put to good use in the months ahead. Where you were once a follower, you'll now take command.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Avoid all forms of pretense today. Friends will be able to see through the veneer. No one will be fooled except yourself. Find out more of what lies dormant for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Don't be disappointed today if the kindness you show is not fully appreciated or reciprocated. Everyone isn't as compassionate as you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Enjoy your friends today, but be wary of putting yourself in a position where you feel you are competing against them. Being top dog isn't that important.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have everything it takes to be a winner today, but for some reason known only to yourself you might not put forth the proper effort. You could wind up in second place.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) As long as you maintain a philosophical attitude today you'll be able to handle whatever occurs in stride. Getting emotional is another story.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be very practical in commercial dealings today and try to keep your feelings out of the picture. Sentiment must not be permitted to overrule logic.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In partnership situations today you may find it a bit difficult to play a subordinate role. Seek harmony. Pull together, rather than apart.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Although your intentions will be good today, the very persons you try to help may be harmed by or may misunderstand your actions. Don't bull in unless your help is sought.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In situations where team effort is required today, strive to hold up your end. Your interests could be elsewhere. There's a chance you won't do what's expected.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may feel quite lucky today. This is justifiable, because you will be in most areas. However, don't expect another ace do something you should handle.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today you may be a bit more restless and aggressive than usual. This could cause you to act carelessly both with people and possessions. Be on guard.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In your material affairs you should be fortunate today, but you might ruffle the feathers of those you deal with in order to get what you're going after.

Impotence Causes Vary With Patient

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — In one of your columns you stated that diabetes affects the nervous system and that's how diabetes could cause a man to become impotent. I'm 47, married and the father of two children. Three years ago I was discovered to be a diabetic. Today I'm totally impotent. Is there any treatment or cure for this? My wife tells me not to worry so much and it will go away. I don't believe this. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER — You're probably correct. However, impotence frequently occurs for psychological reasons and diabetes is fairly common so there's no guarantee that a diabetic won't have psychological reasons for being impotent just the same as the nondiabetic.

There are studies which can be done to determine whether your nerve mechanism is affected and causing the impotence.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 3-12, Impotence. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The Health Letter I'm sending you explains that impotence is a symptom and discusses the numerous causes for it. Obviously, a medical examination is necessary to find out what the cause is before proper treatment can be instituted.

I did not discuss in The Health Letter I'm sending you some of the new prostheses that are available. Individuals who have damage to the nerves that cause impotence problems can be helped with an implanted device. One device is a permanent, flexible silicone rod. The other inflates and then deflates mechanically. I'm sure that if you'll visit a urologist, he will be able to discuss these recent advances with you and help you decide whether either one of these approaches is indicated in your case.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know something about lymphangiitis. Four years ago I hit my thumb and it became very sore with a small blister and then a red line started two-thirds up my arm. I went to a doctor and was given large doses of antibiotics. Last year and again this past week this happened again and always it's the same thumb. Is there anything I can do to prevent this? How dangerous is it?

DEAR READER — While most people know all about the arteries and veins that comprise the main circulation, they are not so aware that we have still another part of our circulation — the lymphatic system. These are little vessels all over the body that carry a clear substance called lymph. The lymph is full of lymph cells which are one form of white blood cells.

These lymph vessels are all connected to lymph nodes, the place where lymph cells are formed. We're usually unaware of these lymph nodes unless they get infected. But you have some in the arm pits, in the neck and throughout the body. When they're inflamed, they become swollen and tender.

Obviously, you developed an inflammation of one of the lymph vessels between you thumb and the lymph nodes underneath your arm. Since "itis" means inflammation and these involve lymph vessels, the disorder is called lymphangitis. I do not know why you get a recurrent infection of your thumb. In most instances, these problems can be quickly treated with antibiotics as has been done in your case.

One of the great sources of article hands is the Encyclopedia of Bridge. It is remarkably free from error, but even Homer nods. Today's hand was defended by George Rapee and B. Jay Becker some years ago.

Becker's four-heart opening put considerable pressure on North and South, but did not keep them out of the spade slam.

East's six of hearts forced South's ace at trick one. Then South played ace-king and a small spade. West was in with the queen and did not have a heart to lead. Fortunately for his peace of mind, East had discarded the king and three of hearts in order as a suit preference request for a diamond shift. West obliged by leading a diamond.

The Encyclopedists point out that a club lead would settle all South's problems and that the diamond lead led to a defeated slam contract.

We want to point out that an alert South would still make his slam by the simple expedient of taking all the rest of the tricks.

He would take his ace of diamonds, lead a diamond to dummy's king, ruff a diamond and run off all his trumps. Dummy's last three cards would be a small diamond, an ace and one club. West would have had to come down to two clubs in order to keep his 10 of diamonds and South's clubs would take the last three tricks.

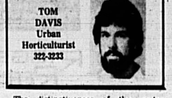
Easy-To-Grow Cacti Offer Variety Of Color, Forms



TOM DAVIS
Urban Horticulturist
322-2233

Cacti are a group of plants that are not only easy to grow but offer a variety of shapes, color and form. They can be grown in any sunny, well drained area and require little maintenance. They make excellent house plants and many hardy varieties may be grown outside.

The Cactus family (Cactaceae) is one of the most striking, distinctive, diversified and specialized. It includes about two thousand species; all are perennial and succulent. Their usually conspicious flowers are so different from those of all other plant families that the cacti are unique and alone, without obvious relationship to other plants.

The distinctiveness of the cactus family shows itself not only in the flower structure but also in one characteristic, that, although possessed by every cactus plant, is absent in all species of all other families. This is the spine cushion or areole. Whether or not spines are present, all cacti have areoles. This is one way of distinguising them, for these areoles differ in structure on different kinds of cacti.

The question is often asked, "Is this plant a cactus or a succulent?" members of the botanical family Cactaceae and are distinguished from the succulent members of other plant families by the structure of the flowers and the presence of the areoles on cacti. It therefore, makes equally poor sense to call all succulents "cacti". The question should be: "Is this plant a cactus or some other succulent?"

Cacti requires a sunny location with good drainage. They should be potted only in pots that have drainage holes. Replacing the top inch of soil with gravel is not only decorative but may also be keep the plant from rotting at the base. A potting media of equal volumes of coarse sand, peat, and perlite is suitable for most cacti.

Vertical plants should be planted in a container which has a diameter one half the height of the plant and round cacti in containers with a diameter two inches greater than that of the plant. Care should be taken to prevent rot from developing on recently potted or repotted plants. Be sure the pot is dry before transplanting and transplant into dry soil. Wait a week before watering to allow for the damaged roots to repair.

Cacti do need to be watered and fertilized but not so frequently as other plants. Water the pots when they dry out. Unglazed clay pots require more frequent watering than glazed clay or plastic pots, small pots require more frequent watering than large pots.

Many cacti, but not all, require a rest period during the year for maximum growth and flowering. During the winter they prefer cooler temperatures, about 50 degrees F, and watering should be reduced and fertilization stopped. The natural rest period for cacti varies so after a month look for signs of growth. If by three months you see no signs of growth resume normal care.

Cacti can be grown from seed and many seed companies offer packets of mixed varieties. These can be fun to grow if you can stand the suspense. Some cacti seed take a year to germinate and it may take a few years to see what your young cacti will look like. Cacti may also be propagated from branches or offshoots.

The offshoot should be removed from the plant and allowed to dry for 2 weeks. After the broken or cut edge has healed or suberized, plant it shallowly in dry media. Do not water for a week then water sparingly.

It was announced by Ed Senkarik that downtown Sanford merchants will display works of Sanford-Seminole Art members in their windows in October. Several new galleries have been opened recently by SSAA members, including John Yeackle's second Buckboard Galley at Sweetwater Square, Helen Hickey Gallery in downtown Sanford and Lou Phillips gallery on State Route 427.

Sissie Barr, president of Artist's League of Orlando, told members of the upcoming Channel 24 auction. Donation of paintings or other art work would be welcome by the Public TV which depends on the public for support.

Mildred Lind, program chairman, introduced John Yeackle, Central Florida artist who is well known nationally and the recipient of awards throughout the country. He is well known for his nostalgic rural south scenes as well as delicate flowers and seaside watercolors. He demonstrates his technique of water color.

The next meeting will be a regular business meeting with a guest photographer as speaker.

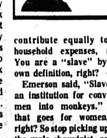
Macho Man Not So 'Mucho' In Modern Husband's Role



Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of a man who is so macho that he flatly refuses to help his wife with anything connected with housework? He says, "Men do not do women's work."

We have no children, by choice, and we both work days, but he insists that I get up earlier than I ordinarily would in order to blow-dry his hair every morning. He also thinks it's a wife's duty to pick up after her husband, so he leaves his dirty socks and underwear all over the house. He says his mother was his father's "slave," and he expects me to be his.

As a working wife, I contribute equally to the household expenses and think I should be treated as an equal, but I'm not. His old-world upbringing has given him the macho, male-supremacy attitude, and it's about to drive me to the divorce court. Any suggestions?

SLAVE

DEAR SLAVE: You're working full time, right? You contribute equally toward household expenses, right? You are a "slave" by your own definition, right?

Emerson said, "Slavery is an institution for converting men into monkeys." Well, that goes for women, too, right? So stop picking up after the male chauvinist, and tell him to use some of that hot air he's full of to blow-dry his own hair. (P.S. A counselor might be able to save your marriage, but I'm not optimistic about your chances of getting him there.)

DEAR ABBY: There is this snoopy women's editor in our office who insists on opening and reading mail addressed to Dear Abby, in care of this newspaper, before she forwards it to your Los Angeles office.

Shall we inform the postmaster general? What are your thoughts on people who open and read other people's mail?

NAME WITHHELD

DEAR NAME: My attorney tells me that it is a crime for a person to open mail addressed to another unless authorized to do so. The penalty for doing this is one year in prison or a fine of $500. After this hits print, I doubt that it will be necessary to inform anybody. If I am mistaken, please let me know.

DEAR ABBY: I am a church organist. Frequently I am asked to play for weddings of people I don't know. They pay me and also send me an invitation to the wedding, which includes the dinner.

Am I obligated to send a gift?

WITHHOLD MY NAME

DEAR WITHHOLD: You don't have to pull out all the stops. However, if you accept the invitation to the dinner, I think a small gift is in order.

DEAR READERS: I'm still getting responses to my survey. Here's one of my Spanish-speaking readers who disagrees with TIRED.

Late Break Sparks Bucs 10-9

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers capitalized on a lucky bounce and Los Angeles' mistakes to eke out their last-minute 10-9 victory over the Rams.

The Thursday night victory was the second come-from-behind win for the Bucs in five days. It was sealed when quarterback Doug Williams plunged over from the 1-yard-line, with 53 seconds left, after Rams cornerback Ivory Sully committed pass interference on the Los Angeles 11-yard-line.

Rams' Coach Ray Malavasi said he thought Sully was going for the ball and the call "was a bad one."

But he said the Rams had no alibi for failing to score a touchdown.

"A lot of things happened wrong and I thought there were a lot of bad calls. But there was no reason why we didn't get it in the end zone," he said. "We were not consistent. It looked like we were finishing pre-season."

The Rams, now 0-2, dominated the game offensively and outgained Tampa Bay, 380 yards to 183.

But they gave up the ball four times on interceptions, the last one coming when Bucs cornerback Norris Thomas picked off a Vince Ferragamo pass on the Bucs' 22 with seven seconds left. The interception killed any chance for the Rams to come back with a gamewinning field goal.

Los Angeles' kicker Frank Corral accounted for all nine Los Angeles points on field goals of 43, 32 and 27 yards.

Garo Yepremian, whose extra point after Williams' desperation touchdown sealed Tampa Bay's victory, tied the game at 3-3 late in the second quarter with a 43-yard field goal that nicked the crossbar and bounced over.

Yepremian, who had missed a 40-yarder just seconds before, said the Lord was on his side.

"I've got to thank God. He let my ball go through," the veteran kicker said. "It was going well, but I guess it got caught in the wind and just hung there ...."

The field goal was Yepremian's first three-pointer with the Bucs, a team he joined just a week before the season opened after being waived by the New Orleans Saints.

Williams, who connected on just 10 of 23 passes for 97 yards, said after the game he was battling strep throat and a 101-degree temperature and would have his tonsils removed at the end of the season.

"There are a lot of times that you have to play with pain and this thing tonight wasn't anything that would keep me from playing," he said.

The game took its toll on the Bucs defense, which Coach John McKay said played well.

Nosieguard Randy Crowder was knocked out for the season with a knee injury in the fourth quarter and linebacker Dewey Selmon and safety Cedric Brown sustained pulled groin and hamstring muscles respectively.

McKay was happy with the victory but not his team's performance.

"I thought we would play a lot better than that," he said. "We just didn't play well. We finally got a lucky break."

Tampa's next opponent is the Dallas Cowboys at Dallas Sept. 21. Los Angeles hosts the Green Bay Packers the same day.

Watson's Grand Slam Powers Yankees

By United Press International

The thought never entered his mind.

Squandering a lead, let alone giving up a home run, is so foreign to Bob Stanley these days the Boston reliever didn't even think twice when New York's Bob Watson came to bat in the sixth inning Thursday night with the Yankees trailing, 2-1.

"I wasn't even aware it was a grand slam until I saw four men cross the plate," Stanley said, after Watson blasted a 1-1 pitch over the left-field screen. "I didn't know the bases were loaded."

The grand slam was the first homer given up in relief all year by Stanley, who has lost a lead only twice in his last 22 appearances.

It gave the Yankees a 5-2 lead but, ironically, it wasn't enough for the Yankees as Boston chipped away with single runs in the next three innings to force the game into extra innings.

The high Watson got from his first AL grand slam, came back to haunt the Red Sox as he doubled home the tiebreaking run in the 10th inning, helping the Yankees to an 8-5 triumph that kept them three games ahead of the Baltimore Orioles, who beat Toronto 6-1, in the AL East.

But it was the grand slam that lingered in Boston Manager Don Zimmer's mind.

"One swing of the bat did it — the grand slam," he said.

Watson was just glad to make up for a misjudged pop fly in the first inning.

"I was determined not to hit a ground ball," said Watson. "I was working at a deficit and I wanted to get at least one run in."

Montreal Wins, Pirates Keep Pace

By United Press International

The Pirates trail Montreal by 3½ games in the East and just learned they must survive another two weeks without their clubhouse guru, Willie Stargell.

But the Expos find Pittsburgh an unusually tough opponent and have won just 3 of 13 games between the clubs this season.

"It's an important series but they are all important from here on out," Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner said Thursday night after the Pirates nipped St. Louis, 2-1.

The Pirates, also playing without Dave Parker who has a strained knee, rode the five-hit pitching of Bert Blyleven. The righthander, 8-11, earned his first victory since Aug. 16. Omar Moreno tripled in a run and scored on a sacrifice fly to back him.

Montreal Manager Dick Williams hopes his team, which leads Philadelphia by a halfgame, plays better than it did in subduing the Chicago Cubs, 6-5.

"Both teams played sloppy baseball," said Williams. "But with that big weekend series coming up against the Pirates, this has to be a big win for us."

Montreal has won eight of its last 10.

Woodie Fryman entered the game in the eighth with the bases loaded and the Expos guarding a 6-5 lead. He made Bill Buckner, the leading hitter in the NL, ground out to end the threat. In the ninth, Fryman, 6-4, set the Cubs down in order.

"Once again Woodie came through for us," Williams said. "He's just been magnificent all season."

Gary Carter led the offense for Montreal with an RBI double in the first and a solo homer, his 24th homer of the year, in the seventh.

In the other National League game, Philadelphia kept the pressure on the Expos and prepared for tonight's doubleheader with the Cardinals with a 6-3 victory over the New York Mets.

Tribe V-Ball Squad Opens With Impressive Showing

Luciano and the Lady Silver Hawks were one-half of Seminole High's victim list in the season opener, losing to the Lady Seminoles 15-9 and 15-6 before bouncing back for a 15-4 and 15-13 win over Spruce Creek on the night.

"We were hoping to be a strong as last year," observed Luciano after the split, "but we had trouble with Seminole tonight and they looked awfully impressive."

Tribe coach Donalyn Knight's charges did indeed, rolling over Spruce Creek, a two-time loser by scores of 15-2 and 15-8 before handing Lake Howell its set back.

"The whole team did the job tonight," said a happy Knight, who in pre-season predicted her girls would offer a strong challenge in unseating Lake Howell as the women's district volleyball champs.

"The serving was just super tonight and we had a lot of high precentage serves fall for us. The hustle and the heart paid off and got us off to a good start."

The Lady Seminoles stand at 2-0 both in conference play and overall following Thursday night's twin wins while Lake Howell's mark is 1-1 and Spruce Creek 0-3 in the young season.

Seminole's Lisa Harper constatantly smashed line drive serves to put both Lake Howell and Spruce Creek into defensive positions early in the matches.

Mann, Whigham Prepare For Carson-Newman

Former Tribe Grads Strengthen Knights

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Writer

Just a few short years ago Sanford's Mark Whigham and Ricky Mann unpealed their Fighting Seminole warpaint for the last time and with it their high school careers.

Whigham, who graduated in 1976, was a stellar quarterback for the Tribe. Mann, who played on Sanford's undefeated team of 1977, carved the path for halfback Tim Raines from his guard position.

Last year both contributed heavily to the University of Central Florida's 6-2 ledger in its infant season. The hardnosed Mann is still knocking people down from his guard spot, but Whigham has joined the hitters instead of the hittees.

"Mark came as a quarterback," Coach Don Jonas reflected before a Knight practice, "but we switched him over to defense."

The change apparently agreed with Whigham as he moved into a starting spot at strong safety as well as one of the defensive leaders.

"Mark's very aggressive and has the toughness it takes to play football here," related Jonas. "He's a very knowledgeable player."

Whighham's agressiveness comes in handy when the Knights run into the veer offense, which happened pretty often last year. The veer was originated at Houston University. It puts great run-pressure on the ends, linebackers and tackles.

"That's where Whigham is at his best," appraised former Seminole great Bernie Barbour, who coaches the Knights' secondary. "He really comes up and busts that ball carrier."

As a strong safety against the veer, Whigham is responsible for stopping the sweep and off tackle plays. Passing-wise he covers the flat area.

"I play it like an outside linebacker," instructed Whigham. "I have to come up and make the force. They can't get outside."

Knowing that the Knights would be facing a lot of veer teams this year, Whigham concentrated on honing his specialty this past summer.

"I worked real hard in the off season to attack the veer," Whigham confirmed. "My feet aren't as quick as they used to be, but I can still hit them."

Another guy that hasn't forgot how to hit them is the 5-11, 190-pound blockbuster Mann. The mere mention of his name brings the everpresent tobacco juice to the verge of Jonas' lips.

"Ricky Mann at 190 pounds is probably one of the greatest young people we have," gloated Jonas. "He is tremendously tough. If he had another 30 pounds, he'd be untouchable."

So far this year Mann has been touching up defensive lineman for offensive line coach Tom Murphy. Murphy, a former center at Purdue, has Mann battling for a starting guard slot.

"Ricky's strengths are his quickness and he has very good technique," said Murphy. "He's been responsible for getting (Mike) Stapp a lot of yardage on our power play."

On the power, Mann kicks out the onside defensive end to help spring Stapp loose.

"I have to beat them (the defensive tackles) off the ball," said Mann. "I have to get my position before they can get a hold on me."

Saturday night UCF gets ahold of Carson-Newman at the Tangerine Bowl at 7:30 p.m. in the 1980 season opener.

1980 High School Football Preview

Bounty Of Balance

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Editor

Seminole County High School football fans may have to wait until the final week of the season again this year to find out just what school captures the Five Star and Orange Belt Conference and district titles.

Defending conference champion Seminole faces a stiff challenge right here in the county from perennial rivals Lyman, Lake Howell and Lake Brantley.

Oviedo must find new ways to score if it is to defend its Orange Belt crown as well as district and regional championships.

Outside threats in the Five Star include DeLand and Spruce Creek while Kissimmee and St. Cloud look capable of making a run at Oviedo.

The new football season brings some new looks to some old teams, some new faces to coaches staffs and an unpredictable outcome.

Jerry Posey and his Fighting Tribe again have good size and exceptional speed. Seminole's strength is on the defensive line and offensive backfield, although the passing game is suspect.

Lyman may well pose the most serious offensive threat in the area with Audie Cleveland at tailback and Mike Andriano at quarterback. As good as the Greyhound offense looks, it's the defense that has head coach Bill Scott concerned. The Greyhounds must mold a young crew into an effective ball stopping force early in the year to be successful.

Lake Brantley's Patriots have a new head coach in Dave Tullis and a huge offensive line. The Big Blue squad will shoot for a more balanced offense this season in comparison to its previous pass oriented approach.

One team that will throw the ball this season is Lake Howell, with pre-season All-County quarterback Bob Capobianco teaming up with Chuck Scott.

The Silver Hawks boast a solid defense as well. If Lake Howell has a shortcoming it has to be the lack of depth, coach Sammy Weir's major concern over the long haul of a ten game season.

Oviedo's 1980 outlook has to be termed a rebuilding year as coach Joe Montgomery searches for ways to win without the likes of a graduated All-Conference backfield.

The Lions have many old hands returning from the "Black Friday" defensive unit that helped pave the way to a 13-1 slate. If the young offensive Lions can get it going, Oviedo could be the surprise of the county.

Tonight the title chases begin, and between now and the regular season finale on November 21, follow the big plays, the names that make them, who's winning and why.

Who will the headline makers be in the 1980 prep football season?

Without a doubt Lake Howell owns one of the best receivers in the state in Chuck Scott (40) while Seminole will depend on a defensive squad led by linebacker Cap Brown (57).

At 8 p.m. tonight the call goes out, and the 1980 prep football season kicks off in full gear

Big Blue Will Rebound In '80

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Edotor

Former offensive line coach Dave Tullis takes over the head coaching job as Lake Brantley tries to turn things around from a 3-7 water-logged record of a year ago.

How's this for size? Danny Morris, a 6-4, 240 pounder at tackle, Robin Graham, a 6-5 270 pound tackle and guard Scott Trimble at 6-7 and 266 pounds. Figure to be able to open more than a few holes for the Patriot backfield. The fourth member of that massive wall is dimunitive Kyle Davis, a comparable lightweight at guard at 190 pounds.

The center spot, vacated by a graduated Steve Johnston is up for grabs in a battle between Brian Gresham, a 6-1 170 pounder and Blair Davison, a 190 pounder who has played capably for the Patriots in a variety of positions over the past two seasons.

The backfield also has some handy experience returning.

Quarterback Greg Fry, who played behind Tony Constantine last year and saw limited action, gave the Patriot coaching staff a preview of what he's capable by tossing four touchdown passes against Seminole High in Lake Brantley's final 1979 game. He'll be pushed by another talented signal caller Jay Poag, a graduate of the Big Blue jv.

Don't look for any blazing speed in the backfield from the Patriots. Instead Lake Brantley has several consistant and capable running backs headed up by Rob Brown, shifty Kevin Besaw, Dave Gilliland, John Simas, Mike Freeman and John Gaze.

Gilliland's twin brother Mike anchors the tight end position and rounds out the talented Patriot recieving corps of Robert Corolla, a definite all-conference prospect at wide reciever along with flanker Rich Prom.

Rick Campbell, an aggressive 230-pound tackle anchors the Patriots in the defensive trenches and will be joined by Mack Lantrip, Dan Giglia, Bob Kalich, Kirk Menendez, Kevin harpe, Fred Rosenwinkle, Keith Powers and Kevin Bullock.

A Patriot strong point is the linebacking group. Spring Jamboree MVP Bryan Norman joins versatile Cory Carter and Otis Cliatt to give Tullis a promising trio.

The secondary will be bolstered by the two-way play of Corolla at safety. He'll be joined by senior returners Fred Baber, Tom Tanis, Gary Timlin and David Moore.

The Patriots won't be flashy, won't be awesome and won't be dominating. The 1980 edition of Lake Brantley football shows pretty fair balance and no glaring weaknesses.

Tullis will rely on the offensive line to dominate the line of scrimmage and keep things versatile for Fry and Poag at quarterback.

In a season where the entire conference is extremely well balanced, a good early start could get Lake Brantley in the picture for a run at the conference title. And the Patriots are no strangers to being on top in the Five Star Conference.

Lake Brantley's Patriots approach 1980 with optimism

Tullis Takes Over For Patriots

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Editor

The Lake Brantley Patriots will offer a new look and a new head coach in the Five Star Conference this season as former offensive line coach Dave Tullis takes over the head coaching job.

Tullis is no stranger to the Lake Brantley scheme of things, having served as offensive line coach for the past four seasons under departed Jim Raley.

The Florida Gator alumni was on hand for the Patriots back-to-back Five Star Conference title seasons in 77-78 and would like nothing better than to quickly turn around last season's 3-7 showing.

Tullis got his coaching start better than five years before his stint at the Lake Brantley campus. Prior to joining the Patriots he served as an assistant at Palatka for one season and coached for four years at Gainesville Eastside.

But 1980 and the head coaching job mean more than just the offensive line and ther personable Tullis has been hard at work with his staff in planning a Patriot revival.

"We'll try to be the best team that we can be this season," Tullis explained during fall work outs.

"Our emphasis is on the team concept more than the individual stars. We need solid play from every position and that includes the specialty teams, the whole works."

The added responsibilities have brought a slight change in Tullis' approach to football.

"As the head coach I've got more areas of responsibility and concern," he points out. "When the offense has a good day I worry about the defense and vice-versa."

Tullis has brought with him a more run oriented offense from his days as a line coach. For the past four years Lake Brantley has been blessed with superior passers in the likes of Baird Lyons and Tony Constantine.

Basically we're changing the offense to be a little more balanced," points out the Patriot skipper. "We've moved some people around and some coaching duties around.

Former offensive coordinator Jack Blanton will now handle defensive backs while Sam Monsary coaches the offensive backs, Ron Safford handles linebackers, Marty Williams, a member of Lake Brantley's first graduating class will shoulder defensive line duties while Kevin Carpenter will handle receivers.

"We've worked harder in the off season than ever before, we've got good enthusiasm and we're starting to think like a team," commented the coach on fall practice sessions.

With a new coach and new found enthusiasm, Lake Brantley should be right back in the thick of the Five Star Conference race.

Tribe Defends Conference Title

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Editor

The 1980 edition of the Fighting Seminole football squad is marked by contrasts. An experienced offensive unit, and a batch of new faces on defense.

How well that defense performs and how soon the offense finds a groove will dictate Seminole's football success in 1980.

Says head coach Jerry Posey of this season's squad, "they have the best attitude I've seen in several years. We don't have any giants or superstars. We do have pretty fair overall size and some speed."

The speed in the offensive backfield consists of returning senior starter Clarence Sippio at quarterback calling signals for a stable of running backs including Robert Guy, Wayne Pace, Jim Voltoline, Vince Edwards and Jim Williams. Guy and Voltoline will most likely see action in the defensive seconday as well. Posey will also call on Voltoline for place kicking duties. The senior booter will rival Lyman's Jon Hass as the best foot in the county this year.

Center Phil Reno will be called upon to lead the offensive blocking up front and will be joined by guards Bob Taylor and Dave Smith. Bob Buccalata has nailed down the right tackle spot while Posey feels his super strong left tackle Isaac Williams could be an all-state candidate.

Posey feels tightend Frank Rowe, 6-3 and 185 up from the jv squad, has been a pleasant surprise this fall and that wide receiver Marty Cersoll has the kind of hands that make a quarterback look good.

Cersoll's hands may come into play a little more than in the past as the Seminole coach would like to see his Tribe with a more balanced offensive attack than the previous emphasis on the running game.

Quarterbacks Sippio and backup Jeff Litton will have to improve the throwing game, which the Tribe has not been successful at, to open up the offense more however.

Defensively the Tribe's strength is up on the front line where assistant coach Roger Beahtard boasts a pair of returning defensive ends in Ricky Butler and Rufus Christian. Nose guard Nick Fisher and Harry Unsworth at tackle also lend experience. Lee Mosley, a transfer from DeLand and Phillip Williams are battling for the other tackle job while Isaac Williams will fill in if necessary.

The linebacking corps is headed up by returning starter Lenny Sutton. Junior varsity graduate Cap Brown along with Antonio Davis at the monster slot and John Owen on the weakside should give the Tribe solid and consistent play.

A pair of two-way performers head up the secondary as running backs Jim Voltoline and Vince Edwards appear to have claimed secondary jobs joined by junior varsity graduates Ed ones, Greg Register, Willie Carter, Victor Williams and senior returners Henry Hardy, Lee Young and Bill Terwilliger.

"It's kind of strange how certain positions run in cycles observed Posey about his 1980 Seminoles. "Our backfield is probably a little weaker than last year's but at the same time the offensive line is better as a whole."

The Seminoles face a tough schedule this season which included tonight's opener Evans. The Trojans have been picked to make a strong push for the Metro Conference title. Last year Evans narrowly knocked off the Tribe in a mud bowl game.

"We'll get tested early," assured Posey. "And it looks like there are several teams in the Five Star that could win it this year."

The Fighting Seminoles Are Out To Defend Their District Crown

Posey Taking Optimistic Approach

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Editor

Seminole High football coach Jerry Posey begins his sixth season as head coach of the Fighting Tribe at just about the point most coaches would like to begin the year; as defending district champs.

A year ago under the Florida Gator graduates guiding hand, Seminole experienced an up and down season before rounding out a mid-season tail spin to rescue the conference and district titles on the final week of the season.

Posey expects at least as tough a battle this year as the rest of the conference tries to unseat his Seminoles.

"I look for Lyman to be dangerous on offense while DeLand and Spruce Creek look tough outside the county," observed the Tribe mentor.

Balance seems to be the key word in the Five Star Conference and Posey will be keeping a close eye on the neighbors right in his back yard.

Lake Howell can make a run at it if they stay healthy," said an impressed Posey following the silver Hawks impressive showing in the spring jamboree. "Lyman has Audie Cleveland and Lake Brantley has a new coach, it's up for grabs."

The Seminole's face the task of rebuilding a game saving defense hit by the graduation of eight starters. The offensive line is a strong point and so is the backfield if it stays healthy, a problem Seminole has faced the past two seasons.

Prior to the final jamboree last week Posey was more than a little concerned about injuries to his offensive backs, in particular senior Robert Guy. If all goes well the Tribe skipper should have a healthy starting backfield tonight.

The Fighting Seminoles have their fair share of question marks for the 1980 season, but Posey has more than a little praise for his troops as they prepare to do regular season battle.

"We've got a little bit of size, a little bit of speed and some overall depth.

In the past we've had a few super kids on each side of the line, I think we're more balanced this year, we've got pretty solid people at all positions and an added bonus so far has been the play of our specialty teams."

Posey owns a 36-17 lifetime record at Seminole and hopes his Tribe is up to a tougher schedule in 1980.

"We've got Evans, Mainland, Edgewater and DeLand the first four ball games. I don't think anybody plays a tougher schedule than we do this year, plus those teams have had an extra week of practice."

The Fighting Tribe would like nothing better than to repeat its district championship, and with a little size, a little speed and overall depth, looks to be back in the chase again.

Greyhounds Show Offensive Strength

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Editor

Injuries will play a key role in Lyman's football fortunes in 1980 and the preseason has left the Greyhounds somewhat behind the eight ball.

Senior quarterback Mike Andriano, a talented roll-out passer would have joined returning starters Jon Haas, speedy Audie Cleveland and upcoming Vince Presely in the backfield to give Lyman the most potent offense in the county. But a back injury to Andriano will force coach Bill Scott to go with backup man Mike Burkhart or sophomore Dwayne Johnson. Either way, Lyman's plans to use the high powered run-and-shoot-o-ffense will be affected somewhat, the original plan was to get the ball to Audie Cleveland as many times and as many ways possible. Lyman will stick to the Cleveland express.

If the Greyhounds can get the passing game going early in the year, it will be a bonus. Not only will Lyman open things up for Cleveland on the ground, but a talented crew of receivers, headed by Jack Neff, Darrell Gilliam, John Reich, Willie Perkins and Burkhart could cause problems for defending secondaries.

But the key to the entire offense will be up front in the trenches.

Lyman boasts a solid veteran group in the offensive line. Returning letermen Chris Breen and Terry Barrett are back at their familiar guard positions while fellow vets Steve Schoefield at tackle and center Jay Mazeski at center give Lyman experience up front. Scott needs only fill one tackle slot as the Greyhounds also have an experienced tight end returning in Mike Gerrity.

While returning letterman and experience are the forte of the offense, a rebuilt and young defensive unit could be the telling factor in Lyman's push for the Five Star Conference title.

The Greyhounds have a lone returning starter on the flip side in noseguard Paul Hammond, a solidly built young man who Scott feels will be a tough obstacle to overcome. But the feeling around the Lyman camp is that the Greyhounds will light up the scoreboard this year.

"We've got seven good wide recievers," replied Scott who is in his tenth year at Lyman (seven as an assistant to Dick Copeland). "Our backfield should be set with Cleveland (Audie), Haas (Jon), and Presley (Vince)."

Defensively though, Scott seemed to hint that Hound opponents may score a few points of its own this year. "It's a young inexperienced defense," growled scott. "That's where we have to improve."

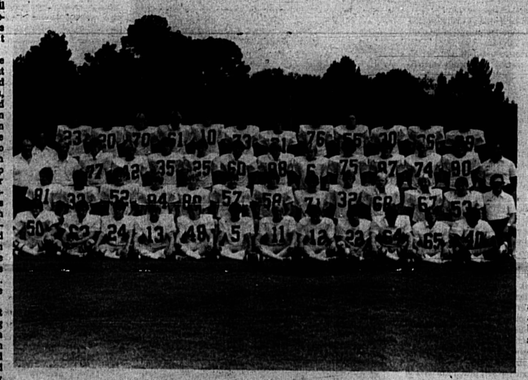
A pair of new faces have been added to the Lyman coaching staff. Former FSU gridder Doug Dane and Miami tackle Dan Johnson join Kelly Wainscott and Paul Thoman to assist Scott.

But Scott has given Greyhound rooters a sense of optimism which didn't exist during Lyman's last few seasons in the Five Star Conference. He may have picked up that sense of optimism from his playing days with the Jets, or he may have obtained it from his wrestling stints with the black bears.

After a 4-6 record in 1978, Scott turned things around last year picking up six vicotries, placing the Greyhounds second in the Five Star Conference.

So with the Lyman football program on an upswing, Scott may be a bit kinder to referees this season. Last year he was seen on the field numerous times showing displeasure with the men in black and white. Unlike other coaches, many officials felt it wise wise to ask Scott to leave the playing field instead of ordering him.

After all, who would want to be mistaken for a banty rooster.



Lyman's Greyhounds Hope To Put Points On The Board In 1980

Scott Looks For Next Step Up

If one were to glance through an old collection of football cards he may see a 1964 picture of a big man, named Bill Scott, is now found roaming the sidelines of his Lyman Greyhounds on Friday evenings during the fall.

Now in his third season as Lyman's head football coach, Scott looks more like Grizzly Adams than George Allen or Don Shula.

At first sight he seems like the type that wrestles with black bears instead of referees. And though he may not chew of golf balls or open bottle tops with his teeth, one would have a difficult time questioning him if he said he did.

Last season under Scott, the Greyhounds produced their first winning year since 1973, which included a Rotary Bowl bid.

The former Memphis State offensive guard concedes that the loss of 23 letterman will be a tough obstacle to overcome. But the feeling around the Lyman camp is that the Greyhounds will light up the scoreboard this year.

"We've got seven good wide recievers," replied Scott who is in his tenth year at Lyman (seven as an assistant to Dick Copeland). "Our backfield should be set with Cleveland (Audie), Haas (Jon), and Presley (Vince)."

Weir Anxious For Silver Hawk Encore

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Editor

When Sammy Weir took over the head coaching reigns at Lake Howell in 1979, it marked another chapter in a colorful and extensive career around football circles.

For Lake Howell's gridiron boss, starting as a freshman quarterback at Arkansas State followed a successful prep career. Despite his 5-11 size, Weir became a Little All-American at Arkansas State in the 1962 season and went on the spend several seasons in the National Football League.

Life in the pro's meant a few changes in Sammy's strategy.

"Anybody that weighs 165 pounds and plays in the NFL is crazy," states Weir. Despite his size, the Silver Hawk coach switched to wide receiver and spent seasons with the Houston Oilers and New York Jets, playing catch with a notable quarterback by the name of Joe Namath.

"He was the best field general at the pro level I've ever seen," recalls Weir of Namath's glory days.

The end of the 1966 season saw Weir turn his thoughts to coaching and he got involved at his alma-mater at Arkansas State. A year later he still had a taste for the game and journeyed to Orlando where he signed on with the Orlando Panthers as player-coach.

Weir moonlighed during that '67 season as j.v. football coach at Evans High and after a summer coaching stint at Marshall University rejoined the Panthers for the '68 season.

The next four seasons found the no-nonsense coach between returning to Arkansas due to his father's death and coaching once again at his former college.

In 1973 Sammy and wife Betty decided it was time to return to Florida's sunshine and Weir returned, first to Winter Garden then reviving the Evans Trojans and finally to Lake Howell.

Under his guiding hand the Silver Hawks sported a 4-4 record, the best in the school's 4A history. A play here or a play there and the Silver Hawks could have easily been 6-4 or 7-3, losing five games by a total of 20 points.

"I liked the challenge that Lake Howell offered," offered Weir about his decision to take over the doormat program of the Five Star Conference.

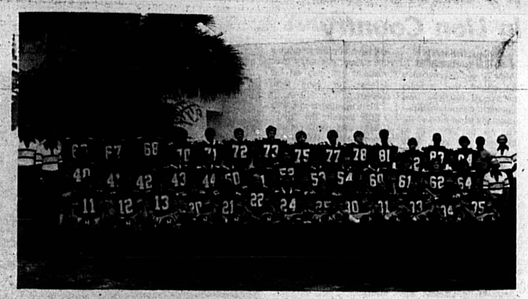
See WEIR Page 12



For the first time in a long time Lake Howell's Silver Hawks are a serious threat to make a run at the Five Star Conference football championship. A winning season and conference title would be a fitting encore for Sammy Weir who directed Lake Howell to its best season in school history last year.

Silver Hawks Setting Flight Path For Success

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Writer

"People are looking at us now...instead of walking on us."

The speaker is Lake Howell football coach Sam Weir. He is talking about how the football fortunes have changed for the Silver Hawks.

Weir, who has become somewhat of a mythical restorer of football programs, took over the downtrodden Silver Hawks last year. He inherited a Curtis Keen coached-team which was torn by frustration and failure.

Lake Howell teams generally did well on the freshman and junior varsity levels, but when they become varsity players something was missing.

That something was a Sam Weir. Weir, a former football player for the New York Jets, brought leadership and a cohesiveness to the Lake Howell program.

"It's been a complete turnaround," praised Silver Hawk Principal Dick Evans, who has labored through the five less than .500 varsity campaigns. "Sammy has great charisma and leads by example. You can sense the optimism in the whole school."

A year ago Weir took the Hawks to a 4-6 record. The earth shaking, represented the most ever by a Lake Howell varsity.

And as Weir likes to point out, it could have been better with a little luck. "We lost five games by 20 (total) points," he recalled with a grimace.

Fullback Carl Carlson echoed his coach's sentiments about Lake Howell finally turning the corner this year. "Like Coach Weir said 'last year we turned it around."

"This year we're looking for the conference. We talk in practice and we want to win the conference, that's something that really means a lot to us," confided the soft-spoken senior.

Making that conference dream possible will fall on the broad shoulders of one of Central Florida's best all around performers — senior Chuck Scott.

The 6-3, 185-pound Scott is a dual performer for Lake Howell at wide receiver and free safety. "Anytime Chuck's on the field, he's got the capability of breaking it wide open," Weir said about his gametbreaker.

"He'll be our roamer in the defensive backfield. Chuck is tremendously blessed with the utility to stop the option plays and the wide plays.

"If I had to call someone a blue chipper, Scott is certainly that," lauded Weir about his senior standout.

Wood moved to Tampa last year and has taken over the field generaship for the Tampa Plant football team. "Bob has stepped in and taken over," said Weir. "He's throwing better than last year and running better too.

"If he stays healthy, he'll probably sign very high somewhere too," Weir surprised about his senior signal caller who also does the punting for Lake Howell. Junior Scott Frick, who guided the JV's to a 6-1 record, provides a quality alternative for Weir.

Joining Scott on the receiving end of "Capo's" bombs will be wideout junior Nat Edmonds and huge, 6-3, 180-pound tight end Mark Layton. The junior Layton, also a fine basketball player, made a fantastic catch in the spring jamboree to fuel a Hawk touchdown march. Coach Lou Rajael coaches the receivers.

Heading up the backfield is another junior who had an excellent spring jamboree—Scott Grant. "Scott doesn't have blazing speed," Weir pointed out about his tailback. "But he knows how to read his blocks and set his angles. he's also an excellent receiver." Grant also does the Silver Hawk place kicking.

Leading the way for those blocks will be the Hawks hard charging fullback Carlson. "We call him 'Bull' because he runs like one," laughed Weir about his 190-pounder.

"I make a lot of my yards after the first contact," confirmed the "Bull." "It's tough yardage inside, but I feel we can get it."

And leading the path for Grant and Carlson will be an offensive line with a nice blend of experience and youthful aggressiveness, which is coordinated by assistant coach Paul Pope.

At left guard is two-year starting senior Chris Stone, who Weir calls, "one of the best pulling guards in the area." Next to Stone at tackle is sophomore Billy Norton. "Norton gets better every day," said Weir. "He'll be a terrific ball player by the time he's a senior."

Another of Weir's super sophs is at right guard. "Mike Rae had a terrific spring," said Weir. "He's very well built (5-10, 190) and a very rugged athlete."

Lending experience to the right side is senior stalwart Brian Lepak. Lepak, who is also a two year starter, will be used defensively too.

Defensively, Weir's Oklahoma 5-4 is in the hands of assistants Bob Becker (defensive line), Al Parker (linebackers, ends) and Birto Benjamin (secondary).

Becker's mainstay in the line looks to be "the new kid on the block," tackle Mark Hanson. "Hanson's extremely quick," said Weir about his Ocala newcomer. "He's been all over the field. We're having a tough time blocking him ourselves."

Hanson's partner at left tackle is sophomore Rae, who made three individual tackles in the backfield in the spring game. "People are already asking about him," smiled Weir.

Between the tackles at noseguard is a quarterback. Well, he used to be a quarterback. "Jay Drivas is going to earn a starting position somewhere on this team," said Weir about the son of Howell's athletic director Harry Drivas.

It's Encore Time In Lion Country

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Editor

How do you improve on a 12-1 record that includes conference, district and regional championships? Especially when most of the folks who put the points on the board are gone. With defense, the key to Oviedo's success in 1980.

Joe Montgomery was blessed with Troy Kessinger, Marvin McClennon and Mike Scott in the backfield last year, but graduation has claimed those standouts and the offense must be rebuilt.

Robert Isner and Jody Huggins are fighting for the quarterback job and it may not be until this afternoon before Monty decides who gets the starting call.

Running backs Frank Joyce and Dean Preising will be the primary backs called upon to fill in where Scott and McClennon left off.

Veteran Jeff Kerr at tackle, center Ted Boag and gdard John Conley will have to be even better than a year ago to open holes for a young backfield. The other two starting berths will most likely be filled by Darrel Tossie and Kip Sopp at guard and tackle respectively.

Instead of the big play offense of a year ago, Oviedo will have to grind things out this season, stay away from mistakes and rely on the defense for good field position.

While the offense may look a little anemic, the "Black Friday Defense" returns almost intact for Monty. That's fortunate because Oviedo must keep opposing teams off the scoreboard.

Montgomery has a pair of all-state defensive candidates in tackles Ray Williams, a huge 6-5 265 pounder and a smaller Troy Pagels at 6-2 and 225. Another all-state prospect lurks at linebacker in senior returner Roy Payne, "A headhunter," according to Monty.

That trio, plus others will be joined by Todd Duncan, a transfer from Georgia who has moved right into a starting spot at linebacker, providing Oviedo with the nucleus of a top notch defense. Duncan used to live in Seminole County and returns to the area after a three year absence.

Montgomery knows coming close to last season's success would take a minor miracle. But the Lion coach is doing anything but counting his rebuilt crew out of the Orange Belt Conference picture.

"The key for us is finding some offensive consistancy early, and winning early," points out the Lion boss.

"With our inexperience on offense, we need some early season confidence that we can put the ball in the end-zone once in a while."

Oviedo gets its first test against a strong 3A school Pelzron Taylor in tonight's season opener. A first stepping stone to confidence.

"People might be looking for us to return to Oviedo's traditional way of playing football this year, by losing," says Montgomery.

"I don't think you'll see that happen. We may not set the world on fire like last year but I think if we get things together early we can come up with a winning season and with a few breaks be in the picture again come playoff time."

What really hit home to the Lions was a poor showing in the spring jamboree and two losses in last week's fall jamboree.

"I think the kids fully realize that last year was last year, it doesn't mean anything in 1980.

"The key for us this season is to win early. We've got a lot of people that don't have much experience and getting off to a good start will play a big role in determining what kind of season we'll have," answers the former pro golf aspirant.

"We're going to have to grow up quick and gaining that early confidence is important."

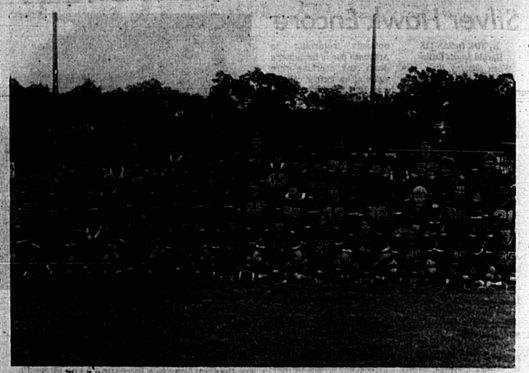
"When everybody else is finished playing on the 21st," observed Monty, "We want to be around for the first playoff game on the 28th."

Heady stuff for a team that just recently learned how to win. But then again, Montgomery has given Oviedo the kind of football lessons that are easy to remember.



The Young Lions Need To Win Early In 1980

Monty Eyes Future Following 1979 Success

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Editor

If any of Seminole County's prep football coaches honestly deserves a crying towel this season, it has to be Oviedo Lion boss, Joe Montgomery.

But don't shed any tears just yet. Montgomery begins his fifth season as head coach and the University of Georgia grad may have a few surprises in store in what's labeled officially as Oviedo's "rebuilding year."

Under Monty, success came in a big way last season. Oviedo never popped up when powerful prep football teams were mentioned. The Lions had long been the doormats of the Orange Belt Conference, and Montgomery had seen the seasons of futility for some time, having spend for years as an assistant prior to taking over as head coach.

In 1979 Monty culminated his first four year campaign by guiding the Lions to a record breaking 12-1 performance that saw Oviedo capture the conference, district and regional titles before bowing out in the sectional game to the eventual 3A state champs Milton.

"Everybody knows we lost a lot of people, people in the skill positions that are hard to replace in one season," offers Montgomery of the challenge the Lions face.

"Oviedo was a loser for ten years, now were the defending district champs. I'd rather be right here than 1-9 and trying to turn it around again."

Despite the loss of three all-conference performers at quarterback, tailback and fullback, the Lions have most of last season's "Black Friday Defense" intact and show strength on the offensive line.

How does Monty view his challenge for an encore?

Winning College Teams Do Little For Contributions

By the Editors of Psychology Today

It's an old campus maxim, especially in football season, that when college teams are winning, proud alumni send more contributions than they do when the teams are losing. Athletic directors have used this proposition for years to win increased funds for varsity sports.

But it's not true. A study of sports records and donations at 138 major schools over 15 years shows that there is no significant relationship between a school's athletic success and its alumni's generosity.

The research was done by Lee Sigelman, a political scientist at the University of Kentucky, and Robert Carter, then a graduate student at Texas Tech University. Using surveys conducted by the Council for Financial Aid to Education, the researchers analyzed the financial records of all the schools in Division I of the National Collegiate Athletic Association for the years from 1960 to 1975.

For each year, the researchers measured changes in the amount of money that alumni donated, changes in the average dollar value of the gifts, and changes in the number of alumni donors. Then they compared these financial indexes with the winning percentages racked up each year by the schools' football and basketball teams and with whether the football team went to a post-season bowl game.

The statistics showed no more connection between athletic success and alumni generosity than might have happened by chance.

The only two statistically significant links, in fact, were negative, colleges with winning football records in 1974-75 got fewer donors, on the average, than they did in 1973-74. In 1970, colleges that sent a football team to a bowl game actually got smaller donations than they had the year before.

Might not a winning season pay off in donations the following year? Further tests found no significant relationship between one year's victories or losses and the next year's gifts. Moreover, there was no significant relationship between improvement in a team's athletic success and alumni giving.

Sigelman adds that when it comes to recruiting undergraduates, his other research indicates that a school's athletic success is an attraction for only a relatively small proportion of college applicants, and indeed is a turn-off for some of them.

These days the argument that winning spurs giving is getting a new workout from people who say that spending athletic funds more equally on women's sports will undercut winning male teams — and contributions. It is possible, of course, that some links between athletics and donations are not measured by the statistics that Sigelman and Carter used.

But even if that were so, the researchers say, trying to "win one for the giver" should not be a decisive factor in setting colleges' financial priorities. Most schools do not obtain more than a "small portion" of their support from alumni, Sigelman and Carter say, and the academically prestigious ones that do are not particularly noted for their teams' athletic prowess.

Psychology of Inflation Dep't: In a recent paper for the Worldwatch Institute, the physicist Robert Fuller mournfully noted:

"Beyond actual economic losses attributable to inflation and rising...prices, there are also psychological losses.

"Even in a system that provided complete and perfect protection against all economic consequences, people would still object to inflation, if for no other reason than that stable, reliable prices offer a kind of security.

directed Weir.

At the defensive end will be two-year starter Dennis Marshall and either junior Jim Cook or senior Donald Rickett. "Marshall has great lateral movement and reads the option well," said Weir. "Both Cook and Rickett do a good job. We feel comfortable with either one."

Two veterans, Mike Gotschall and Ces Summers, will handle the linebacking chores. "Gotschall and Summers are comparable to anybody in our league," pointed out Weir. "They both have a great desire to hit."

Benjamin's defensive backfield is headed by free safety Scott and strong safety Jerry Winterhalter.

"Jerry has good speed and covers the flat area well," Weir said about the Hawks shortstop during baseball.

Charlie Miller returns at defensive back. Miller, also a baseball player, will be used as a running back too. Newcomer Pete Krzyzak currently holds the other defensive back spot.

"We cut Pete last year," recalled Weir. "But obviously his desire was too much. It just goes to show you what can happen if a kid really wants it." Krzyzak intercepted a pass in the spring jamboree and made a nice return.

"They feel it's their time," continued Weir in assessing his squad. "Once these kids get a taste of winning and you get in the habit of winning — it makes it a lot easier.

"It gets to the point where you think you can't lose. You play to keep that record and that position. We want the pressure. We want to be on top. Our people talk it all the time," emphasized the straight-talking Weir.

Will this lead to a Lake Howell football championship?

"I think, considering what we've worked for, if I told you and told the players different — that wouldn't be right," Weir disclosed.

"I'm going to tell you just like I tell our players. "If we didn't win it (the championship), it's our own fault."

"Our biggest accomplishment last year was being in every game," Sammy recalls of his modest success in 1979.

"I think the football team gave the Lake Howell community something to be proud of and look up to, especially for the future.

The future arrives tonight against the Bishop Moore Hornets. Lake Howell will be a heavy favorite. Moore, a team that was 0-10 last year and also went shopping for a new head coach.

"I've got good coaches with me and we believe we can make a winning football team out of the Silver Hawks," says Sammy.

"Like I mentioned before, I like a challenge in everything I do. Sure we hope to win the district and we hope to win the state, that's a big order to fill, now that's a challenge. But you never know, it could happen to anybody."

Weir gets his first football challenge of the 1980 season against the Hornets. A challenge Silver Hawk followers hope will be the first stepping stone to the district title.

Another Son Of Kirk Douglas Joins Acting Ranks

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Daddy acted, so Peter didn't want to. It's a common reaction in a father-son relationship, whether Daddy is an actor or an electrician.

"I went through the usual son's rebellious period," says Peter Vincent Douglas, the third of Kirk Douglas's four sons.

But the rebellion is over. Peter Douglas doesn't have to rebelljany more, because he's found his niche in life as a producer.

"I rebelled against a lot of things for a while," Douglas says, "but especially I rebelled against doing what my father did. It wasn't until much later that I realized I was interested in movies—and probably had been all along."

But never acting. When he was about 3 years old, he was in "The Viking" with his father. He was just an extra, one of a crowd of people running away, shouting, "The Vikings are coming, the Vikings are coming!"

"I was very frightened," Peter says. "I didn't know what it was all about, and all the people and the noise scared me to death. Maybe that one experience cured me of acting. I don't know."

But even that changed. In his first production effort—the current release, "The Final Countdown"—you can see Peter Douglas in a small bit part. He's the tall, thin, blond-haired man who looks like he could be Kirk Douglas' son.

There are four sons, and they came in two sets via two mothers. The older two are Michael (the actor-producer) and Joel, who are now 35 and 32. There is 10 years between the two sets, with Peter 25 and brother Eric, 22.

Michael and Joel grew up on the East coast, going to Eastern prep schools, camps and, later, colleges. But Peter and Eric are Westcoasters and attended Western prep schools (The Harvard School) and colleges (UC Santa Barbara and, later, UCLA).

Peter's first interest was photography. He began taking pictures commercially, and he was good at it, making $32,000 a year and getting great credits before he even finished college. So he dropped out of college.

"My father, who sets a great store by a college education," says Peter, "became very angry with me when I quit. For a while, he wouldn't talk to me. Oh, if I was in trouble, he would, but otherwise, no communication."

But that passed. When Peter was 22, after having worked summers for his father in various production capacities, he decided to produce his own movie. That's a tall order for anyone, particularly an untried, inexperienced 22-year-old.

He read a story submitted to him via friends, which was, in its essentials, another Bermuda Triangle story. Only switch was that it was set aboard an aircraft carrier.

"I liked the essential story," Douglas says. "But I felt it would be impossible to do using miniatures—it had to be shot aboard a real U.S. Navy aircraft carrier. But I didn't believe we could get the Navy's permission. I decided to try anyhow.

"I looked up the Navy in the phone book and called them. Eventually I got through to Bill Graves (he was the Navy's public affairs officer in Los Angeles) and things just started happening."

At that time, he had no idea of using his father.

"Actually," Peter says, "I didn't want him. I felt if he was in it, it would look like we were in production together. But I needed an aircraft carrier captain, and that had to be somebody like Dad, an actor of authority. I went through the list, and he was the best. So I hired him.

"That was just the way it was — I hired him. I paid him what his agent and I agreed on, no more, no less."

Now, with that well-made film behind him, Peter Douglas is looking ahead. He says he wants to try many things—producing other movies, producing TV, writing both. He is currently writing a musical comedy with Kenny Loggins.

"Ultimately," he says, "I'll see what I'm best at, what I enjoy doing the most, and concentrate on that."

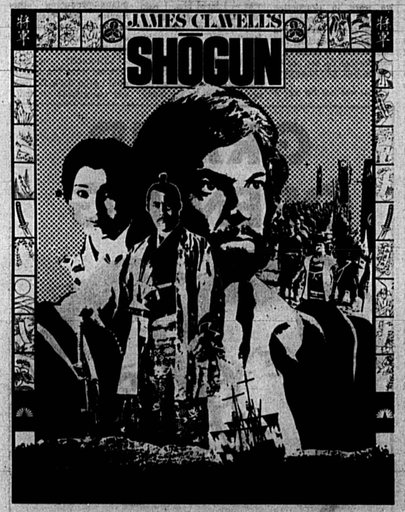
Chamberlain Trained Like An Athlete



James Clavell's "Shogun" will be broadcast over five consecutive nights starting Monday. Starring Richard Chamberlain, it also features Toshiro Mifune and Yoko Shimada.

Every role is a challenge to an actor, but few will probably match the physical and emotional demands of playing Blackthorne, the shipwrecked English navigator who becomes a samurai warrior in James Clavell's "Shogun," NBC's 12-hour mini-series about 17th-century Japan, to be broadcast over five consecutive nights starting Monday, Sept. 15.

Richard Chamberlain, who appeared in virtually every scene during the six months of location filming in Japan, had to prepare for the role with an athlete's discipline.

"Before I even got the part I knew they wanted somebody bigger than I am, so I started going to a gym for several months before coming out for meetings with James Clavell. I put on a lot of weight — about 12 pounds of muscle — and I really felt great.

"Unfortunately, I lost most of it during filming, but I worked hard to keep up my stamina. I knew I had to be in good shape because it was a very physical role."

One advantage was the fact that Chamberlain enjoyed Japanese food — mostly fish, rice and vegetables.

"It's tremendously nourishing. I tried to eat well, sleep as much as I could, go running and get a lot of exercise. I had sort of a little gym with barbells set up in my room."

Japan's summer heat was a major problem during the filming, Chamberlain says. "The heat was relentless, especially when we were doing the boat scenes in Nagashima. I found I had to just sit very still in a chair, or hold an umbrella over me so the sun wouldn't scald me. It was the only way to conserve energy.

Total concentration was a key to his performance.

"It was a great test because with all the technical problems of the armies running in and out there was so little time for rehearsal. Hours were spent on lighting and staging all the extras.

"And then there was the language problem," he adds, referring to the fact that he was the only American in the cast. "There were so many endless translations, by the time they got around to the actors you were expected to be right on the mark.

"It became like a game, which I found fascinating. It was like somebody was putting hurdles in your way moment to moment, day after day, to see if you could deliver in front of the camera."

Most Japanese verbs end in masu. To make a question, just add ka. "Wakarimasu ka" means "Do you understand?" "Wakarimasu" means "I understand." To make the verb negative, change masu to masen. "Wakarimasen" is "I do not understand." Following is a brief glossary of Japanese terms that viewers will frequently hear while watching "Shogun":

Arigato (arj-gat-o) — Thank you
Domo (doe-mo) — Thank you or please
Doushita Noda (doe-sta-noda) — What's the matter?

Sara Davidson: Essayist For Our Times

By CAROL FELSENTHAL
American Library Assn.

ABOUT BOOKS
Reviews prepared by the American Library Assn.

Sara Davidson, 36, is on the first leg of a national tour to promote "Real Property" (Doubleday, 306 pages, $10.95), a potpourri of essays on subjects ranging from Salvador Allende to Ozzie Nelson, from "condos" to communes, from feminists to polygamists.

Readers of Esquire, the New York Times Magazine and Harper's — where most of these first appeared — probably already admire Davidson for her relentless probing of her generation's, and her own, values and motivations. The author is more often a participant than an observer, a habit she honed in her first book, "Loose Change" (1977), a nonfiction account of the life and loves of its author and two friends, Jewish sorority girls turned student radicals. Davidson honestly presented herself as a pampered and sometimes pathetic child of her times.

In "Real Property" she is just as personal. She sighs with relief as she reports she will next turn to fiction — a novel-in-progress about "a social disease of epidemic proportions; the inability to make intimate connections." The idea came to her, she says, en route to lecture at a remote college. Her plane circled O'Hare for two hours and she missed her connection. Frantic, she dashed to an airline employee who coolly informed her she was a "misconnect" and instructed her to wait in the corner with "the others." Eventually they were bused to an airport motel for the night. The clerk asked how many were singles. They all were — mostly, Davidson postulated, like herself, divorced and forever searching for a mate, an anchor.

The novel will be set in California and Israel, locales Davidson shows in "Real Property" she knows intimately. She lives in Venice, Calif., where she owns running shoes, a 10-speed bike, a Mercedes 240 diesel and roller skates. When she's not writing, or studying volleyball at the local junior college, she's out scouting real estate with an agent named Milt. "I realized," she concluded in one essay, "that I was 35 and I was still waiting, expecting I would soon wake up from all of this."

"All of this" has included psychedelic drugs, Hindu meditation, est, Tai-chi, communes, Bab Ram Dass. "I was a seeker, walking with a staff. There was a spirit in me that was restless, eager to travel a road if it might lead to truth or transformation."

The pieces in this collection were published as early as 1969. In even the earliest ones, Davidson was able to see the seamy and silly side of her generation's most sacred movements. Despite her later interest in condominiums, she has long admired communal living.

But in her 1970 essay on communes, they sound far from idyllic or even workable. Teen-agers run away to the city. Their parents brush their teeth only once a week and then exclusively, with "organic toothpaste" (made from eggplant cooked in tinfoil). In between they down PCP (a horse tranquilizer) and any other drug they can find.

One road led Davidson to Israel, "the diametric opposite of life in Southern California." Israel, she decided, has meaning, direction, intensity, purpose. Israeli women, daily reminded of the transience of life, are too busy rearing children to worry about relationships. Their mothers fought to drive tractors but the daughters wanted to stay home and have babies. Davidson recalled meeting a Harvard professor who pleaded, "You've got to do something about the condition of Israeli women. They rarely speak, their job is to serve and clean up. It's appalling." "I'm not sure I represent a better way," Davidson replied.

The subjects of these essays are sometimes noble, sometimes banal. Following the piece on her pilgrimage to the Sinai is a description of the night she got busted for growing marijuana. She was sentenced to group therapy — the only white and the only non-addict in her group. The leader insisted she contribute to the dialogue. "What could I tell this group? I'm having writer's block?" Finally — typically — she began to open up and confessed that she was having an affair with a married man. "I can't help thinking, being with this person makes me happy. How could something that makes me feel so good be bad?" A thin man with ravaged skin nodded understandingly. "That's what I used to say ... about heroin."

Oswald's Widow Backs Out On ABC

It turned out to be "good night" at ABC's "Good Morning America" recently when Marina Oswald Porter, widow of JKF's accused assassin Lee Harvey Oswald, suddenly canceled a scheduled 7:30 a.m. appearance. Mrs. Oswald was set for a live interview with host David Hartman, when her lawyer called from Dallas at 2 a.m., urging her to cancel. He said anything she said on TV could have an affect on a court proceeding on whether to exhume Oswald's body to verify the identity of the man in the grave. She wanted to fulfill her commitment, but around 5 a.m., the lawyer called again, this time with her present husband, Kenneth Porter, on the line. Together they convinced her to bow out. She called ABC at 5:30 a.m. to deliver the bad news and, at 7:40, hopped a plane back to Dallas — just about the time she would have been on the air.

Cosby Educating Kids On 'Captain Kangaroo'

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Captain Kangaroo" celebrated a twofold blessing this week. He added eminent educator, Dr. William Cosby, to his vintage children's show and won assurance from his boss his time slot on CBS-TV is as inviolate as Mr. Greenjeans' green jeans.

The good Dr. Cosby — better known to fans of Fat Albert and his gang as comic Bill Cosby — joined Bob Keeshan's 25-year-old television classic Monday as the funniest teacher ever to take the lectern before 25 million children in the 3-to-7 age group.

Cosby has the credentials. The "Dr." title is no joke. He holds a Ph.D. in education from the University of Massachusetts and long has said he'd rather teach than writing laughter from an audience.

In a five-minute "Picturepages" segment on "Captain Kangaroo," he's doing both five days a week.

The segment is designed to enhance the verbal and conceptual skills of the pre-school through early grade school audience that traditionally follows "Captain Kangaroo."

Cosby uses the time to teach such fundamentals as "behind" as opposed to "in front of" and "above" as opposed to "below."

Along with the show, viewers can buy a "Picturepages" illustrated booklet published by "Weekly Reader." It costs $1 per six-week issue.

The only hitch is it demands participation by parents — and it's not the first effort Keeshan has made in that direction.

"We experienced this once before and it was a disaster," he told a news conference. "We had a terrible time. We couldn't handle the distribution. But this time Xerox Corp. is doing it for us and they know how. It's geared to an older person working with a child. Otherwise, it just won't work."

And getting children and parents together — even beyond a basic education — is Keeshan's primary concern.

"The program encourages parents to spend time with their children," he said. "That's the problem in the nation today — children are a low priority item. We may have developed the only species on earth that does not know how to raise its young."

Rumors that the network's successful "Morning News" staff coveted expansion into his 8 a.m.-to-9 a.m. time slot also may have haunted Keeshan, but if they did, CBS-TV Network President Jim Rosenfield laid the ghost at the news conference.

"There is no possibility of that at all," he said. "If we expand, it will be done in a way that will not interfere with 'Captain Kangaroo.'"

Hence, the signing of Cosby.

"When they wake up one morning and say, 'I can't stand the man any more,' then I'll know they've outgrown me and graduated and I'll feel very good about it," he said.

But Hugh Brannum — Keeshan's career-long sidekick as "Mr. Greenjeans" — may have summed it up best.

"After 25 years, I'm still saying it," he said. "We keep trying and trying, and one of these days, we're going to get it right."

NBC Actor Gets Back In Saddle

The summer's actors' strike gave Larry Wilcox, who co-stars in NBC's "CHiPs," a chance to get back in the saddle again. "The Screen Actors Guild strike has brought 'CHiPs' to a halt and is giving me time to hit the rodeo circuit," he said recently. Though born in California, Wilcox grew up in Wyoming. "I don't suppose there is any place in the world like Wyoming where the horse is admired and loved so much. That's where I learned to ride and to do my rodeo thing. I'm involved in team roping and cow cutting." The actor lives on a ranch in San Fernando Valley, where he has five Arabian horses and some

DeWitt Wears 'Bandaid And Belt

NEW YORK — Joyce DeWitt's new spiled-up, sexed-up glamour image doesn't know where to stop. She showed at a party dressed in what a sweet pal described as a low-cut, off-the-shoulder, backless, frontless, transparent, see-through-type job. Actually, it was little more than a Bandaid and a belt, but in silk ... Cathy Lee Crosby has special pockets built into her wardrobe to hide her pet chihuahua, without which she does not wish to be. Shlepe the thing on dates, planes, trains and teas-for-two ... Tom Bosley quit smoking. Had to. Seems he flunked his doctor's report card.

Anne Meara: "That cellulite under my arms and thighs has to go. Jelly belongs on the table, not on me" ... The odd couple: Newest best friends in L.A. are Dolly Parton and Jane Fonda. Can't you just see them wearing each other's clothes?

Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, onetime aide to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, past president of the U.N. General Assembly, original signatory to the United Nations charter, current foreign minister of the Republic of the Philippines and holder of the Pulitzer Prize, was just awarded his 72nd honorary degree — this time by Cincinnati University. Grinned the general, "I'm getting my education by degrees."

Christened "The Steel Magnolia" behind her shapely back, Victoria Principal is studying to be a film editor in her spare time. A business-woman with smarts, she wants to prepare for her future...Charlene Tilton, who is five feet and a perpetual nymphet (and a lover of chocolate ice cream "with sprinkles"), fasts two days a month on water and lemon juice ... I'm told that Cheryl Ladd was one reason "Charlie's Angels" dumped Shelly Hack. Seems the cage wasn't large enough for them both ... Joey Travolta, John'nr kid brother, copped another film offer. It was to be made in London. The offer went the way of the British Empire however. Poor Joey's crushed.

Hal Linden, aged about 56, is the latest to catch onto jogging. He logs a couple of miles each morning ... It's undecided whether Danny Kaye charmed or surprised his lectures when he spoke to a college group dressed in an old-fashioned wing collar ... Octagenarian Lowell Thomas smilingly explaining how he must be economical when he lectures because, "At my age, everything reminds me of something else."

Cheech & Chong's six-figure deal with Putnams to throw together a hardcover book will be titled, "How to Make It in Hollywood." What's it about, you ask? About 350 pages, they reply.

U.S. Officials Cautious On Khomeini's New Offer

By United Press International

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's sudden offer to free the 52 American hostages without the past demand for a public apology by Washington did not raise high hopes among U.S. officials for a swift conclusion to the captives' ordeal.

Friday, Khomeini, 80, broke his long silence on the 314-day crisis by giving a speech in which he listed four demands the United States must meet before the American captives are freed.

Khomeini's demands, contained in a "message to Moslem pilgrims" broadcast over Tehran Radio, said the hostages "will be freed as soon as the deposed shah's wealth is returned, all U.S. claims against Iran are canceled, there is a guarantee of no U.S. military or political intervention in Iran and all our funds are freed."

Significantly, however, there was no mention of the public U.S. apology for alleged crimes in Iran committed during the shah's rule that Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai and other hard-line Iranian officials have demanded.

In Washington, President Carter was cautious in assessing Khomeini's remarks, saying only that they were being examined "very carefully."

"We've learned to be very cautious about statements from Iran," the president told reporters. "We'll be monitoring what is going on and analyzing the statements further."

Turkish Curfew Lifted

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — Military authorities who one day earlier ousted the Turkish government lifted the curfew on Istanbul and other cities for a few hours Saturday to allow residents to buy food and other essential items.

In Istanbul, a city of 4 million, the curfew was lifted at 8 a.m. after having been in effect since the early hours Friday when Gen. Kenan Evren led the military's takeover of the government.

Turkish Consulate Seized

HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — Some 50 Turks seized control of the Turkish Consulate in Hamburg to protest what a spokesman for the group branded "the fascist military putsch" in Turkey.

Afghans Flee Soviet Bombs

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — About 500,000 terrified Afghan villagers have fled to Kabul because of a Soviet bombing campaign aimed at creating depopulated zones around the capital, reports from the country say.

$10,000 Reward Offered

NEW YORK (UPI) — City and federal authorities have offered $10,000 for information leading to the arrest of the killers of a Cuban attache. Mayor Edward Koch, who offered $10,000 of the reward, says he would "execute" them if he had his way.

Some Poles Still On Strike

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Organizers of the new free trade unions in the seaport strike center of Gdansk have accused Polish authorities of harassing workers trying to join the new organizations.

Dissident sources said Friday there still were a number of strikes around the country, including one at a ball bearing factory in a town south of Warsaw.

Terrorist Strike Feared

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — The Filipino terrorist bombers who killed an American woman and injured 33 others are expected to strike again soon in a continuing effort to topple President Ferdinand Marcos, authorities said Saturday.

With the eighth anniversary of Marcos' declaration of martial law on Sept. 21 eight days away, authorities mobilized police and urged Filipinos to avoid public places when possible.

Winter Park Man Arrested On Prescription Charge

By DAVID M. RAZLER
Herald Staff Writer

A Winter Park man was arrested Friday by Oviedo police who say he tried to forge a prescription.

Richard Martino, 24, of 1029 Denton Road, was arrested at 4:30 p.m. outside the Oviedo Drug Store.

Police say they were called to the drug store by a pharmacist, who was asked to fill an allegedly forged prescription.

When they arrived, Martino tried to run from them, leading to an additional charge of fleeing an officer. He was ordered held in lieu of $5,250 bond.

AIR CONDITIONER STOLEN

Thieves disconnected and carted off a Sanford's man air conditioner late last week; the third major theft from his home since March, he told police.

Francis Tooke, 4001 Country Club Road, told police the outdoor compressor unit was disconnected between Wednesday and Friday.

In the past few months, a $1,000 set of china and an $80 lawn mower have been taken from the same address, Tooke told police.

TELEVISION STOLEN

ARREST FOR BATTERY

D. C. Williams, 52, of 1010½ W. 13th St., was arrested at 7:15 p.m., a few minutes after he allegedly stabbed McClain Roosevelt, 1100 W. 13th St.

Police, who reported no reason for the attack, said Roosevelt suffered one puncture wound to his shoulder.

STOVE FIRE REPORTED

A Saturday afternoon minor explosion and fire caused about $100 damage to a Sanford home, police report.

Police say Willy Mae Lucas, 52, of 600 S. Cypress Ave., was lighting her stove when it flashed flame, burning the nearby walls.

Above, Seminole County and state officials and aides were briefed on Spring Hammock and take on a walking tour this past week of the environmentally sensitive area just south of the Five Points area. Seminole County Forester Mike Martin crosses a bridge over Soldier's Creek during the tour.

Spring Hammock 11th On Priority List

From Herald Services

Florida's Conservation and Recreation Lands Selection Committee Friday listed Seminole County's Spring Hammock area 11th on a priority list to be used by the Cabinet in spending $29 million in environmentally endangered land and parks and recreation money.

Spring Hammock is located on the western end of Lake Jessup and runs westerly across State Road 419, U.S. Highway 17-92 and County Road 427, just south of the Five Points area.

Seminole County Planner Woody Price recently said "indications are that funds are available for purchase of less than 10 sites," by the state.

The Conservation and Recreation Lands Selection Committee said Friday the Cabinet should not consider buying two areas involved in the conspiracy-extortion conviction of former Natural Resources Director Harmon Shields — Big Talbot Island in Duval County and Seminole Ranch in Brevard County.

The 27 state projects will be discussed at public hearings around the state in November before the Cabinet adopts them as a guide for final decisions on state land purchases and negotiations by the Department of Natural Resources.

Thirteen projects were eliminated from further consideration, including Big Talbot and Seminole Ranch.

Shields and Tallahassee real estate investor Jack Quick were convicted of conspiring to get kickbacks from the owners of the two projects in return for arranging state purchases.

That scandal led to a moratorium on state land purchases and new EEL selection procedures, including the preparation of the priority list by the interagency committee.

Getting a special number one priority from the committee was Rookery Bay in Collier County. The Cabinet already has committed to trying to buy 3,100 acres of the area in a joint venture with the federal government to establish a national estuarine sanctuary. The state's share of the cost would be $1.5 million.

DNR officials lobbied for the special priority for Rookery Bay, saying developers are primed and ready to move into the area if the land doesn't come into public ownership soon.

Heading the regular list is acquisition of land along the Apalachicola in Franklin County.

Longwood's Zoning Hearing Monday

A public hearing is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday at Longwood City Hall on an ordinance amending the city's zoning ordinance by restoring 1958 requirements for building on non-conforming lots of record.

The ordinance if passed should clear up confusion caused by the subsequent ordinances increasing size requirements, but failing to require single and separate ownership and non-contiguous lots as being necessary to obtain an exception to build.

A moratorium which the city commission placed on construction on non-conforming lots of record is expected to be lifted if the ordinance passes.

Also on Monday's agenda will be:

— a decision on a water system engineering study.

— reports by the city attorney on the Handy Way suit, the proposed code Enforcement Board and the charter revision ordinance.

NATION IN BRIEF

Philadelphia Jury Witnesses Videotape Of Abscam Deal

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Abscam defendant George Schartz, a self-described political "survivor," told FBI agents he never makes enemies "because in politics you never know who you are going to sleep with tomorrow night."

A standing-room-only crowd in U.S. District Court laughed Friday when those remarks, videotaped in a hotel suite last winter, were played on television monitors at the bribery trial of Schwartz and Harry P. Jannotti — both Democratic city councilmen.

A few minutes after Schwartz made the observation, he was seen accepting an envelope from an agent posing as a representative of a nonexistent Arab sheik wanting to build an equally fictitious hotel in South Philadelphi.

Klan Vows To Fight Order

SCOTLAND, Conn. (UPI) — The Ku Klux Klan vowed to track a judge down at home Saturday if necessary to fight a court order barring its anonymous members from carrying guns to Connecticut's first public Klan rally in more than 70 years.

The ruling Friday came only hours after the Klan said armed "security people" would be posted to keep non-whites and protesters away from Saturday night's planned rally and cross-burning in Scotland, a tiny northeastern Connecticut town.

Woman's Sentence Affirmed

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — The Alabama Supreme Court Friday affirmed the murder conviction and life sentence of a Key West, Fla., woman, even though her husband's conviction had been overturned earlier for the same crime. In a split decision, the court upheld the conviction on the narrow issue of whether the Morgan County Circuit Court erred in admitting evidence from a forensic odontologist during the trial of Sue Dolvin, 48.

Chemical Found In Homes

ATLANTA (UPI) — Elevated levels of PCP, the chemical pentachlorophenol suspected of being harmful to the reproductive systems of certain animals, have been found in residents of several log homes in Kentucky, federal health officials said Friday. The national Center for Disease Control said the logs used in construction of the homes had been dipped in PCP prior to construction to control sap stains of the wood. PCP is a widely used wood preservative and pesticide.

Berrigan Freed On Bail

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — With "mixed feelings," activist Roman Catholic Priest Daniel Berrigan accepted a $50,000 check from his fellow Jesuits and freed himself on bail following four days in custody.

Notable Deaths Reported

The following deaths were reported:

Josephine Hoffa, wife of missing ex-Teamsters Union boss James R. Hoffa, died Friday night in a Detroit hospital. She was 62.

Lillian Randolph, who played "Madame Queen" on the old "Amos and Andy" radio and television shows, died Friday in Arcadia, Calif. Following a two-month battle against cancer. She was 65.

Robert Linkletter, 35, the son of radio and television personality Art Linkletter, has died of chest injuries suffered in a head-on car collision in Los Angeles. The Linkletters previously lost a daughter, Diane, 20, who jumped to her death in 1969 while under the influence of LSD. A son-in-law had committed suicide three months earlier.

Atlanta Airport Terminal To Open Next Weekend

ATLANTA (UPI) — A $650 million midfield terminal complex opens next weekend that may eventually make Atlanta's airport the busiest in the world and further enhance the economy of the South.

"This is the economic engine of Atlanta," says airport commissioner George Berry. "It's the very foundation of the economy in this region."

The new terminal, scheduled to begin operations promptly at 2 a.m. EDT on Sept. 21, has been designed, planners say, to provide a smooth, uninterrrupted flow of people, aircraft and automobiles.

Only Chicago's O'Hare handles more total passengers, but Atlanta is the largest in terms of the number of gates, increasing from 72 in the old terminal complex to 138 in the new one.

Airport officials believe Atlanta could surpass O'Hare in total passengers by the mid-1980s — "That is our expectation," Berry says.

Providing 1,000-foot-wide taxi aprons between each concourse, the complex is designed to get aircraft in and out fast. Although a fourth runway will not be operational until at least 1983, Berry says the terminal's midfield location will help cut back on takeoff and landing delays so well known to passengers who regularly fly through Atlanta.

Berry says the fourth runway is the key to Atlanta surpassing O'Hare.

"We should pass O'Hare if present trends continue," Berry said. "We have been growing at a faster rate than O'Hare. We must build a fourth runway, though."

O'Hare handled 48 million passengers last year, down 2.7 percent from 1978, compared to Atlanta's 42 million, up 14 percent from 1978, and the new Atlanta terminal has a capacity of 70 million.

Previously able to handle only 105 takeoffs and landings per hour, the midfield terminal will allow an increase to 120 per hour.

Two 6,000-car parking lots abut the twin-structure terminal building, providing direct access to ticket counters in the North and South terminals, which are connected by a center mall.

After checking in at ticket counters, passengers will be funneled through a single security checkpoint and down escalators to a 1.1-mile long underground mall connecting the terminal to four remote concourses for domestic flight fanning out to the east.

A fifth concourse for international flights is being constructed as a wing off the North terminal building.

People-movers — high-speed rapid transit cars — whisk down tunnels parallel to the mall, guaranteeing a maximum five-minute trip from ticket counter to the farthest gate, while jetliners taxi above their heads. The system is being billed as the fifth busiest rapid transit system in the world, able to handle 250,000 passengers a day.

A series of moving sidewalks, separated at 500-foot intervals by glass doors with multicolored concrete slabs jutting from the ceiling to break the monotony, provide an alternate mode of transportation to and from the concourses and flank a walkway for those hardy enough to take the trip by foot.

Escalators carry passengers up to 2,000-foot long concourses designed as independent service centers. Each concourse has its own restaurants, cocktail lounges, shops, newsstands, and information desks.

Departure and arrival scheduling, airport officials say, is designed with the transfer passenger in mind. The most heavily used connecting flights are scheduled to be adjacent to each other, while the people-movers provide a two-minute, 20-second trip between the most remote concourses.

A $450,000 collection of contemporary art graces walls in the main terminal building and escalator wells leading into and out of each concourse. Free hanging canvasses, collages, tapestries, color photographs and neon-lighted glass tubing structures were designed especially for the airport by a team of 14 artists, some internationally renowned.

One of the great achievements in the terminal's construction, Berry said, has been the success of joint ventures involving minority-owned businesses.

"Why are we proud of it?" Berry asks himself. "We had no rulebook to go by."

There is now a rulebook, issued by the federal Equal Opportunity Commission, based for the most part on Atlanta's program.

One of the great failures is the lack of rapid transit service to downtown Atlanta, he said.

"I do believe when the public begins to use the new terminal and sees the station," the outspoken Berry said, "they will begin to ask some questions."

For instance, why did the state Legislature bow to city demands and put the schedule back for rapid rail service to the airport until 1985, while moving up the timetable for track construction to other areas of the city?

"The politics of MARTA are beyond my comprehension," he said with some resignation, adding only half-jokingly, "We're thinking about putting up a big banner saying, 'If the rail line was here, you'd be home by now.'"

The terrain of the Atlanta metropolitan area formed a natural setting for the terminus of the Western and Atlantic Railroad in the 1830s and helped the city develop as a rail transportation hub for the South.

Today, while still a rail transportation center, air travel has enhanced the city's reputation as a transportation crossroads. The airport last year handled 42 million passengers, more than 28 million of them transferring to other flights, an increase of 14 percent from 1978. Nearly 600,000 takeoffs and landings were recorded during 1979.

About 350,000 tons of cargo were handled during 1979, and while the nation's troubled economy has caused a slight decrease in the amount of cargo, Berry said he expects an increase in cargo traffic as new cargo space is constructed, also in the midfield area.

Atlanta's Airport 2nd Busiest In World

ATLANTA (UPI) — The 1979 Worldwide Airport Traffic Survey conducted by the Airport Operators Council International shows Hartsfield-Atlanta International Airport to be the second busiest in the world.

How Atlanta ranks:

Airport	Total Takeoffs and passengers	landings
Chicago	47,842,510	735,245
Atlanta	41,865,488	599,138
Los Angeles	34,923,205	539,319
London	27,979,196	298,549
New York	26,976,675	314,133
San Francisco	24,159,924	363,463
Dallas	22,570,117	445,163
Denver	20,542,682	486,300
Miami	19,627,851	382,228
New York	18,291,035	335,765

It Will Be World's Largest Terminal Complex

ATLANTA (UPI) — A statistical look at Atlanta's new midfield airport terminal:

Size — Ranks as world's largest terminal complex and world's second busiest airport. Main terminal buildings enclose 12.6 acres, or 11.5 football fields. Entire passenger complex is the equivalent of 45 football fields in size.

Cost — $650 million, including passenger and cargo complexes and support facilities. Passenger complex construction was $409 million.

Passenger capacity — Initially 55 million with expansion plans for 70 million annually.

Passenger transfers (1979) — 28 million.

Aircraft capacity — 720,000 takeoffs and landings annually with 4th runway (to be completed in 1983).

Aircraft traffic (1979) — 534,000 takeoffs and landings annually.

Distance between concourses — 1,000 feet.

No. passenger gates — 138.

Cargo capacity — 400,000 square feet (Sept. 1980) and 1 million square feet (Jan. 1981).

When the airport opens, 400,000 square feet of cargo space will be available and another 600,000 square feet is under construction, bringing the total cargo area to a million square feet by the end of 1980 and making it the largest cargo terminal complex in the world.

"I'm hoping with the opening of this new terminal," Berry said, "we can use the opportunity to tell the people of Atlanta what they have."

Berry says his "economic engine" is the largest employer in the state of Georgia, employing more than 25,000 people with an average salary of $24,000 a year.

Atlanta's designation as a hub city provides an unusually large number of flights compared to other cities its size, Berry said, and is a crucial factor in the city's $360 million a-year convention business employing another 75,000 people in related industries.

Berry said 80 percent of the one million convention delegates coming to Atlanta during 1980 arrive by airplane.

As a business center, Berry says the city's flight service, which allows a traveler to "go anywhere he wants to go in the country and return in the evening," is a "tremendous economic generator."

Surveys, he says, show that "air service is the most often mentioned reason for moving to Atlanta."

Today, 439 of the Fortune 500 top industrial firms in the United States have operations in the Atlanta area.

The new terminal has a capacity of 70 million passengers a year, compared to the overcrowded old terminal which has a capacity of 12 million and serves 42 million.

"Terminal capacity is no longer a restraint at this airport," Berry said.

He added that the facility was built with the idea of further expansion, providing for a fifth domestic concourse identical to the existing four, and construction of a second international terminal off the South terminal building.

Construction of a fourth runway is scheduled to begin in 1982 with completion expected by 1983 and the internal people-mover has been built to accomodate more transit cars

Golden Age Games Has Great Partners

Sanford struck a partnership this week which will surely launch this community into national, perhaps international prominence over the next few years.

Sanford used to be known as the Celery Capital of The World, but if may soon become better known as the city where the Post Fun 'n Fitness Golden Age Games are held.

Credit goes to Jack C. Horner, executive manager of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and the chamber's membership for completing a pact with General Foods making the foods company a co-sponsor of the games.

The games, of course, are those events established in 1975 in Sanford which have been known as the Golden Age Olympics.

The name had to be changed because of a law which permits only those sponsors sanctioned by the U.S. Olympics Committee to use the word olympics in such events.

General Foods' Post cereals division has named 72-year-old Buster Crabbe, former movie star and Olympic swimmer spokesperson for a national promotion to achieve a greater awareness of the Golden Age Games and communicate the benefits of remaining physically active in later years.

The Sanford Games will again attract hundreds of senior citizens 55 and older for this year's events slated for the week of Nov. 10-15.

The games are coordinated through the chairmanship of Jim Jernigan director of parks and recreation for the city.

The national attention focused on the games through the Post promotions should make this year's events as well as those in coming years a major plus for Sanford.

Health Care Costly

A report says the government should consider the cost of a new medical treatment or device before deciding what health care it will provide for the poor and elderly.

We agree with the report by the Congressional Office of Technology Assessment. Not only with regard to the medically indigent but in every phase of health care and medical research, there must be more concern with economic balance, weighing costs against benefits.

Because human life is involved, it seems heartless to talk about dollars. When death approaches, compassion says, "No matter the cost." And we feel there can be no economic factor in a life-and-death decision.

But our collective resources are limited. They must be put to the best use.

It is better to spend $6 billion a year for heart transplants, so 66,000 Americans can live an average of seven months longer, or to spend $1.5 billion a year on a mass education program showing Americans how they can reduce the risk of heart disease, so even more can increase their life expectancy by more than seven months?

Laboratory research into the great killer diseases is exciting and heavily funded by the government. Such research may ultimately produce miracle cures, like the polio vaccine. But what if much smaller expenditures on surveys and public health programs can identify and eliminate environmental and life-style factors, thereby greatly reducing the incidence of these diseases, today and tomorrow? We would be foolish to ignore the less glamorous approach. There are strong pressures from the medical and scientific community to fund all advanced procedures and research programs. But it is the duty of responsible public officials to resist such pressures in making decisions about the best use of public funds. Medical research and the application of medical technology must continually be reviewed from the standpoint of cost-effectiveness analysis.

"Why don't we call this alternative plan 'Operation Jack Anderson'?"

By DORIS DIETRICH

Granted, some of their prized notes are mental and never see a typewriter much less a publication.

Our best thoughts come to us in such instances as taking a shower when the phone sounds and we nearly slide to eternity on the slippery floor trying to get to the phone.

We don't make the last ring — and then nearly go beserk with curiosity wondering what the caller wanted.

Why, then, do we find it so difficult sometimes to come up with a column?

Just this morning, I pulled back the draperies to greet the beautiful day. My eyes moved over the lake which was a mirror of gorgeous, lush greenery. It was a sight to behold. One lone duck appeared to be meditating.

"Heck," I thought, "I want to paint today."

"By the way," I wondered, "what will my clock column be about this week?"

Let's see. Not too much has been going on. Much time has been spent going back and forth to Seminole Memorial Hospital where our Ma-Ma from South Carolina had surgery — five operations at one cutting. And the grand ole' girl came through with flying colors. That's our Ma-Ma.

I could mention the exceptional care she received and how she considers everybody at SMH "just darling." And she said "Kay Bartholomew is tops — just absolutely tops. She has so much feeling and compassion for the patient. She is just perfect for her job."

Maybe I should tell you about the neutral colored hose and shoes I bought to match the neutral colored dress I am wearing to my stepdaughter's wedding. As you can see, I really do have good intentions of remaining unbiased.

Pondering over a column subject while smearing on makeup didn't mix too well. I knocked over the cup of coffee on my dressing table. You know the rest.

After a quick change of clothing, I dashed madly out the door en route to work. I flopped in the car and just sat.

Something wasn't right.

What had I forgotten?

I unlocked the door and checked the coffee pot. Then I took dinner out of the freezer.

Why was I so unsure of myself? What else was wrong?

Now, I know.

Small Military Disclosure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — I daresay nobody who even casually follows the arms race was amazed to learn the Pentagon is working on an airplane that would be invisible to radar.

You could see that one coming with the naked eye.

Since most weapons are developed to counter other weapons, the development of radar those many years ago made inevitable the eventual development of radar immunity.

Thus, the only surprising thing about the new plane was its code name, Stealth.

In Pentagonese, the basic word form is the acronym. Defense officials may occasionally use other parts of speech — nouns, adverbs, prepositions, etc. — but essentially they talk in acronyms.

Take the common, everyday Manual Radar Reconnaissance Exploitation System. In Pentagonese, that comes out as MARRES. An Advanced Strategic Air Launched Missile is, of course, an ASALM. Which is not to be confused with an ASARS (Advanced Synthetic Aperture Radar System). And so on for as far as the eye can see.

The other day, while leafing through a volume of testimony published by the House subcommittee on defense appropriations, I came across a genuine neological rarity — a double acronym. Or, more precisely, an acronym within an acronym.

This unusual specimen was rendered by the Pentagon as IONDS. At first glance, it seemed just another ordinary, run-of-the-mill acronym. But as translated by the Pentagonese glossary, it assayed out as "Integrated Operational NUDETS Detection System."

Well, it was nice to know the Pentagon has in operation an integrated system for detecting NUDETS.

But what the hell is a NUDET?

My initial guess was that NUDET was a composite of the words "nude" and "cadet."

West Point is now co-educational, you know. It wouldn't do to have cadets running around naked. That sort of thing could easily lead to a nasty scandal.

It therefore would be reasonable to assume the Pentagon has developed a system for detecting nudity among cadets.

It would be reasonable, but it would be wrong.

Actually, according to the aforementioned glossary, NUDETS means "Nuclear Detonations." But don't be alarmed. You won't be quizzed on this.

Technology aside, the thing that makes Stealth so phenomenal is the fact that it is not an acronym. The name apparently refers to nothing save the airplane's furtive quality. What a breakthrough!

Even radar itself started out as an acronym. RADAR stood for Radio Detecting and Ranging.

As the arms race goes, the next development is predictable — a device for detecting airplanes that are invisible to radar. The name is less predictable.

In conventional Pentagonese, it would be DDAIR. But when the news leaks out, it may emerge as Gotcha.

Cure Worse Than Disease

"Trying to cure inflation by budget cutting is like trying to lose weight by chopping off your legs. You'll weigh less, but you won't solve your real problem and you will create painful new ones."

So says the Blueprint for a Working America, an economic prescription for the United States prepared by the Full Employment Action Council, a coalition of dozens of labor, civil-rights and religious groups.

Just as amputation is an extreme solution to the common problem of extra poundage, cutting programs that create jobs for the unemployed or rebuild decaying cities or feed hungry children produces more misery than the inflation it was designed to cure.

Nearly everyone agrees that something must be done about the persistent inflation in our economy. But they cannot agree on what to do.

So far, the winners of this debate have been those in government who have insisted that artificially induced recession can halt inflation.

The losers are the growing numbers of unemployed who are learning harshly what generations of black Americans have always known: Joblessness is no way to improve your economic condition.

The theory has been that increased unemployment will force down prices and wages. But like so many economic theories, this one is absolutely wrong.

More than 80 percent of today's inflation is concentrated in four sectors of the economy' that none of us can do without: food, housing, energy and health care. The combined costs of these four necessities increased at a rate of 18.2 percent in 1979, while the combined costs of everything else rose by less than 7 percent.

But as costs of these necessities went up, real take-home pay went down by 5.2 percent last year and by another 1 percent in the measurable portion of this year. That's one reason 60 percent of U.S. households are now drawing two paychecks — and still struggling to keep up with inflation.

The decline in the American family's ability to maintain itself makes one wonder why the popular solution has been to make things even harder. When there is budget cutting to be done, most of the money seems to come from those least able to enforce their claims to it. This bitter medicine, explain the budget cutters, helps more than it hurts.

But no one has proved that spending cuts reduce the inflation rate by more than .5 percent. In fact, the Congressional Budget Office estimates that cuts almost twice as high as those requested by the administration would reduce the inflation rate by only .3 percent.

Compare that with the 62.7 percent by which fuel costs increased last year. Those increases were due to the greed and selfishness of OPEC and the big oil companies, not of the American consumer. A contrived recession won't convince OPEC to lower oil prices.

Real-estate prices have doubled in the last 10 years. That wasn't because greedy carpenters, electricians and plumbers demanded more money; their share of home-construction costs went down 8 percent in the first seven years of the 1970s. But the finance and land share of the price of a new home increased by more than a third.

In those same seven years, food prices went up 67 percent. That's a frightening rise — but hardly as frightening as the 150 percent increase in after-tax profits earned by the food-marketing industry. There's no selfish farmer in this equation; for every $1 you spend on bread, he gets only 3 cents.

Ten years ago, a typical hospital bed cost $50. Today the price is closer to $200. Don't blame nurses or other hospital workers; in the two decades from 1955 and 1975, the labor share of hospital costs dropped 14 percent.

But how about the drug companies that spend $5,000 per doctor to advertise their wares while fighting to keep the consumer from comparing drug prices? And what about the insurance companies that have become doctors' collection agencies — even collecting billions for unnecessary surgery?

There are means to combat these real causes of our economic woes. But none of them lie in putting more people out of work.

Anthony Lewis And Anderson

My colleague and acquaintance of the New York Times, Mr. Anthony Lewis, has just written a Dump Anderson rationale for liberals.

Its logic is straightforward: Anderson is going nowhere. He pulls many more votes from Carter than he does from Reagan. Reagan must not be elected. Therefore, liberals should forget about Anderson and vote, if not precisely for Carter, then certainly against Reagan.

Mr. Lewis cites the election of 1968, when liberal lack of enthusiasm for Hubert Humphrey may have helped elect Richard Nixon — a disastrous result, Mr. Lewis thinks.

To be sure, that judgment is entirely the product of hindsight. In 1968, no one foresaw anything like Watergate. Indeed, Nixon was widely felt to be a competent professional with good qualifications in foreign affairs.

Humphrey that year had not run in a single presidential primary, and got the nomination anyway. A lot of people who had supported Eugene McCarthy and Robert Kennedy felt disenfranchised, and with good reason.

What Humphrey would have done in Vietnam, had he been elected, is impossible to know. Finally, Humphrey had had his own serious legal problems as regards the handling of campaign funds, and one of his principal assistants actually served time for such offenses.

It is not so clear that a Hubert Humphrey presidency in 1968 would have been overwhelmingly desirable, even from a liberal standpoint — certainly not so desirable that liberals who opposed Humphrey should feel deep guilt for having elected Nixon.

Now John Anderson, who is not the candidate I favor, could conceivably represent a valid strand in the American body politic. Mr. Anderson looks to be representing a combination of fiscal conservatism and social liberalism that represents the position of a considerable constituency.

These people, younger professionals and middle-to-upper middle class voters, dislike higher taxes and are both informed about and skeptical of massive federal social spending. But, unlike many Republican conservatives, they want the government out of such questions as pornography, abortion, marijuana and the like. They are not opposed to ERA.

Now, no one knows just how large that constituency really is, and John Anderson could do a political service by making just such a determination.

These voters tend to despise Jimmy Carter. They find his personal style repellent and his economics destructive. They have, often, read Daniel Patrick Moynihan on the social wreck caused by Great Society social legislation. From their perspective, there is little reason to reward Jimmy Carter for a completely inadequate performance.

In the actual political equation, there is a sense in which existing forces ought to express themselves. A heavy Anderson vote, given the above assumptions, would have an effect upon both parties: they would have to compete for that constituency.

Did Meat-Grader Serve Too Well?

WASHINGTON — Bureaucratic nitpickers in Washington have pummeled one of the Agriculture Department's most conscientious employees onto the ropes, forcing him into retirement with a series of low blows.

The dedicated civil servant is John Coplin, former supervisor of meat grading for the Chicago region. For years he has been the scrouge of crooked meat dealers who have robbed consumers of millions by falsely upgrading the cuts of meat they sell. He is everything the public could hope for in a public official.

But Coplin managed to antagonize his desk-bound superiors in the Agriculture Department, swamping them with memos detailing corrupt practices by meat industry fat cats. Apparently determined to silence their indefatigable "conscientious objector," the agency's top brass gave Coplin a poor performance rating and transferred him to Washington, where he could be more easily controlled.

Incredibly, one of the points of attack against Coplin was his participation in a mistaken case that was an outstanding victory for the government and the public.

With the approval of the department's inspector general, Coplin and 25 of his meat graders worked with the FBI in a massive raid on retail stores of Dominick's Finer Foods, a Chicago supermarket chain. They found that meat originally graded "Choice" by federal graders at the packing house had been sold as "Prime" by Dominick's. This allowed the stores to charge an extra 30 cents a pound to consumers on tons of mislabeled meat.

When Dominick's officials saw the staggering evidence arrayed against them, they entered guilty pleas and paid more than $200,000 in fines. They then held a huge sale of their meat products at bargain prices to recapture the good will of consumers they had cheated.

But even while the case was being pursued, the paper shufflers in Washington were sniping at Coplin. Far from encouraging his cooperation with the FBI, officials in the meat-grading division raised highly technical questions on the propriety of meat graders lending their expertise to the Justice Department in a criminal case.

And when the prosecution was settled successfully, Coplin's superiors reacted by charging him with exceeding his authority. They accused him of violating department regulations by grading retail meat cuts for the FBI. Department regulations restrict graders' activities to carcasses and large wholesale cuts.

Coplin denies having done this. But the charge was one of the items listed as justification for Coplin's lower performance rating.

Coplin has filed an appeal of his performance rating. He told my associate Tony Capaccio that if he wins his appeal, he'll return to public service and fight his dead-end transfer — as well as the crooked meat merchants.

SNUB TO BOLIVIA: It's traditional for a new ambassador to be invited to address the membership of the Organization of American States after his credentials are accepted. But the OAS permanent council snubbed the new Bolivian envoy, Alberto Quiroga, when he first appeared.

Quiroga was not asked to address the body. When he rose to speak, anyway, one fellow ambassador interrupted to charge that he was out of order, and another left the room until Quiroga had finished speaking. No questions were directed to the new ambassador after his speech.

The diplomatic slight was a follow-up to the OAS condemnation of the military coup that kept a freely elected president from taking office.

WORKHORSE OR SHOWHORSE? House Republicans are already deep into the process of picking a new minority leader to replace John Rhodes of Arizona who said he would resign the post if the GOP didn't win a majority in the House in November. The choice has narrowed down to a legislative workhorse, Robert Michel of Illinois, and an oratorical showhorse, Guy Vander Jagt of Michigan.

At this point Michel has a commanding lead on the loyalties of his colleagues, who figure he'd be a hardworking Jerry Ford-type, willing to shoulder the complex but routine chores nobody wants. Vander Jagt is counting on his chairmanship of the GOP congressional campaign committee to close the gap. His distribution of campaign funds will net him some political IOUs.

Apartment Living Rough For Low-Income Seniors

I'm a retired ex-proof reader who eagerly awaits the delivery of your paper each day. I find very few typographical errors and that's good.

I am an 80-year-old senior citizen, and I have a gripe. Did you ever check your apartments for rent? The ads are misleading to me.

One apartment advertises "very clean rooms." I lived in two apartments and hated to think of the roaches that even ran over me in bed. I spent a small fortune on sprays, then moved to another and found it was a playground for, rats. I actually found three rats dead in traps the owner had set.

So, I moved from there. Looking around, I found conditions bad for a person of low income. They want the first, and last month and $200 security. It's ridiculous. We oldsters don't have that kind of money. We need more low income housing.

I lived at one location in Sanford for two years and had a nice little apartment in the project. However, I had a bad heart attack and am not allowed to live alone.

Anderson Misses Facts

Thank the Lord Jack Anderson has a sense of humor. In a column on the editorial page of the Herald on July 27, he charges Farm Bureau with "manipulating the media" in information activities connected with a lawsuit against three federal agencies that we charge with unwarranted use of taxpayer funds in helping Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers organize farm workers. We know of nobody in the media that has felt "manipulated" but we confess just the thought of it gives us a feeling of power.

Apparently, too, Mr. Anderson has a great sense of incongruity. His statement that, "one inquiry has been completed concluding that no government money had been improperly spent on union organizing" (of UFW) must come as a sharp surprise to the inspector general of the community services administration who conducted the inquiry, and released many of its details to the media several days before the Anderson column.

The inspector general finds, citing an Associated Press dispatch of July 25, that: "$951,000 in Community Services Administration grants were used to support the activities of the United Farmworkers Union in direct violation of the poverty agency's rule against supporting unions."

Judge Hall Applauded

Congratulations to Judge Wallace Hall on his decision concerning discipline in the schools. I think it is a step in the right direction when teachers are "allowed" to chastise a child, placed in their care, for disobedience, disrespect, undue roughness or other behavior problems. Heaven forbid teachers acting like some of the parents who send their children to our schools.

There is where a large part of the trouble originates.

Parents who do not discipline or counsel their children are the cause of the disrespectful, discourteous, bigoted, and belligerent children of today. If the children were disciplined at home and sent to school knowing if they warranted a spanking in school another, more severe, awaited them at home, I do believe schools would have much of the chaos eliminated.

Of course, teachers should be strictly screened so only those of high moral character, self respect, a trait of airness, congeniality and subtle determination be allowed to fashion the lives of our children.

Remember these words:

"A time to work, a time to play

"Respect for others, goes a long, long way.

"A bit of laughter, an insight to sorrow

"Makes each one better to meet tomorrow.

"Respect for others — that goes both ways

Begin Cuban Flights

This letter is in reference to the hijackings of airplanes by Cubans wanting to return to Cuba. Bud Fowler of Orlando, in a letter to an area newspaper, said why not have a once a week flight from Miami to the Naval Base at Guantanamo Bay? That is better than having U.S. marshalls on all flights and stationed at airports.

This would cut way down on expenses.

Reader Explains Stand To Lake Mary Citizens

In reply to Ronald R. Ripp Sr., president of the Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce, I wish to state that the letters of criticism of the Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce and the city of Lake Mary were presented from facts given to me by three different people who live in and are citizens of the city of Lake Mary.

They provided the information for the letters and asked me to put them in a letter and have them sent to the Evening Herald. One of the three runs a business in Lake Mary. They did not want to live in an incorporated city and were very unhappy when it was incorporated. They further claim that they don't have any voice in the city government.

Mr. Ripp is very wrong in stating that I live in the city of Sanford. I live so near to Lake Mary, that I could throw a stone from my yard into the city limits of Lake Mary. At one time the area of my home was being considered to be annexed by Lake Mary; but they came north to State Route 46-A and stopped because they must have been afraid to cross the road.

Now as for people wanting to settle in Lake Mary because of its low tax rate and fine and courteous police department and fire protection, that is not entirely so. I know one family, (a man, wife and two children) that spent nearly three weeks in this area and canvassed the Lake Mary area and after talking to some of its citizens, decided against buying in Lake Mary. These people came up here from Miami and are expecting to locate here in the near future.

Another family after an extensive search and reading the local newspapers read about the city condemning and tearing down a couple's home, and decided to go elsewhere.

I can also name a third family that owns property in Lake Mary and is now living on the land. That family is looking to locate elsewhere. There are three kinds of people that live in a city. Some coming, some going and some staying.

I do hope that this will enlighten Mr. Ripp and answer some of his questions.

Carter To Walk Plank?

With your permission, I would like to point out that Robert Walters could not be more mistaken in his column Aug. 15. The captain of our ship of state is not some ham-handed, incompetent landlubber, he is as efficient as Black Beard, Teach, or Captain Kidd ever thought about being, in making this nation "walk the plank" into the sea of the new world order, or "Global Community," as Jimmy calls it.

On Feb. 27, Carter said: "The Khomeini government has made it clear ever since coming to power that they desire a close, working, and friendly relationship with the United States." That is why Khomeini has been entertaining 52 of our citizens for more than 250 days. He cannot bear to part with them.

The captain responsible for the state of our preparedness canceled the B-1 bomber, the neutron bomb, limited the range of the cruise missile and sat on in implementation of the laser technology (that would give us an ABM force capable of intercepting Russia's IRMs).

The captain could solve our energy problem with a stroke of the pen — the executive order — freeing the production of oil and Alaskan natural gas, giving us the breeder reactor nuclear power we so need to develop the potential of hydrogen.

Then he gave us the Department of Education, dominated by the National Education Association so that if he cannot bring us into the port of the new world order, then our children will. The NEA is dedicated, in their own words, "to change the course of education to make us amenable to becoming a member of the global community."

Rolf" stands in his pen at the Seminole County Animal Shelter. County Judge Alan Dickey is expected soon to issue a final ruling on Rolf's fate.

'Rolf' Can Be Trained

It is cruel to chain a dog at all, much less on a six-foot chain.

"Rolf" should be given to someone who will have him trained properly and confined properly in a fenced yard.

Dogs should either be in their houses except when on a leash or in a fenced area with a locked gate.

Rolf is no different than most of his breed, but do not think he should be killed.

If Mr. (Rich) Francis of K-9 of Orlando says the dog can be trained I'm sure Rolf can.

Let's Draw The Line

The trials and tribulation of the American way have been misunderstood in many, many ways. It seems, as communism is encroaching our lands, that the idea of the American flag is dead. As director of the organization Anzio Beachhead Veterans of World War II, I say we can stand no more.

At one battle I was in on the Anzio Beachhead, 18,000 men were killed and 30,000 were wounded. Those who are members of the organization have strong convictions in holding aloft the torch of true patriotism.

As I look at the flag hanging in our national headquarters, my heart saddens at the thought of the 52 American hostages in Iran. We, the greatest nation in the world, have decided that we can do nothing about it.

As my father once told me: "Son, you can back and back and back and somewhere along the line you have got to draw the line and move no more."

As Americans, my organization has drawn the line. We will move no more. We will die in battle before we'll go through life on our knees.

Medical Group Gives DMSO Drug Position

The Florida Medical Association would appreciate an opportunity through this section of your newspaper, to state the association's position and furnish what information we have available about the drug dimethyl sulfoxide, commonly known as DMSO.

DMSO is essentially the oil liquid which holds tree cells together. It is a by-product from the manufacture of paper. Research on the drug has been taking place since the early 1960s.

In April 1978 the drug was approved by the Food and Drug Administration for the symptomatic relief of interstitial cystitis only. On March 23, 1980, the CBS television program "60 Minutes" broadcast a segment on DMSO which featured claims for the drug in treating symptoms other than that for which it has been cleared by the FDA. The program also stated that the drug was available in Oregon and Florida.

Since that time an almost daily stream of inquiries both by letter and telephone have been directed to our state headquarters in Jacksonville. Most of the in-state questions are from the media while the majority from out-of-state are individuals seeking a physician to provide them with this perceived "miracle cure" for a variety of symptoms.

Without an approved new drug application, the drug cannot be marketed or distributed in Florida for indications other than the treatment of interstitial cystitis. However, legally, a doctor may prescribe an approved drug for other indications.

The Florida Legislature passed a law in 1978 which permits a physician to use DMSO after advising the patient of alternative treatment and any potential for cure. The law requires that upon request to the physician for DMSO treatment, the patient shall sign a written release of liability to the physician and when applicable, the hospital or facility. The physician shall inform the patient in writing if DMSO has been approved by the FDA for the disorder for which it is being prescribed.

The Florida Medical Association does not condone going outside of the approved and responsible mechanism for the introduction of a new drug. As a matter of fact, physicians covered by professional liability insurance under the FMA-sponsored plan have been warned regarding the drug. They will not be covered by the plan if they use DMSO for any symptom other than the relief of interstitial cystitis for which, as previously stated, it is approved by the FDA.

At the same time, the medical association does encourage its physician members who are interested, to take part in the FDA investigational program in this and other areas.

Assistance is available for obtaining from the FDA an Investigational New Drug Application plus sterile non-pyrogen DMSO solution. In order to participate in this research, the physician must agree to keep the necessary records. The DMSO solution will be supplied free of charge and assistance given to the physician in developing the necessary protocol.

As to the law passed during this year's legislative session allowing for the manufacture, distribution, and sale of a DMSO ointment in Florida the medical association has no direct knowledge and no participation in any way in this matter.

The medical association does not have, nor do we plan to develop, a list of physicians and/or clinics who are going outside of established protocol and administering the drug to patients. Not only would this be contrary to our policy of safeguarding the public's health, but could place the medical association in a libelous position. Consumer inquiries concerning DMSO or any other new experimental drugs should be directed to the FDA Bureau of Drugs, Advisory Opinion Board HFD 35, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Md., 20852.

Bud's Win By A 'Feather' Proves Every Vote Counts

The first primary election of 1980 is a thing of the past now but for the next few weeks some candidates will be analyzing and reanalyzing the results.

One of the most exciting results — because it pointed out so well the value of a single vote — was in the race between Tom Kanelis and Robert "Bud" Feather. Feather won by little more than two votes per precinct.

On the Monday before the election Feather was making rounds to thank those who had helped him during the campaign. He was asked where his victory party was going to be and he responded facetiously, "I don't want anyone to see me cry."

Parties & Politics

Donna Estes

Feather was cautiously optimistic during the campaign, a stance taken by most candidates who are involved in a tough political contest. He was trying to be safe rather than sorry later.

Now he can wonder what got him those 151 extra votes that spelled the difference between victory and defeat.

Feather, Republican, will be facing Longwood attorney Gerald Korman, Democrat, in the Nov. 4 election.

Another contest that was no less interesting was that among U.S. Rep. Richard Kelly, R-New Port Richey, State Sen. Vince Fechtel and Bill McCollum for the GOP nomination for Florida's Fifth District seat in Congress.

The fact that Fechtel did so well — he came in second — in Seminole County was amazing in one way. He had done practically no campaigning here, while Bill McCollum or a surrogate had campaigned almost continuously since last November.

Fechtel had held the seat in the state House of Representatives for the district comprising Seminole, Lake and a portion of Marion County for six years before winning a Florida Senate seat.

During those six years, he pushed through a number of bills benefitting Seminole County and requested by Seminole County people. Apparently, those people he helped remembered.

Many of Fechtel's former supporters had joined the McCollum campaign before Fechtel announced his candidacy. And Fechtel's campaign was one of the most disorganized seen for a long time. While McCollum was campaigning early in the season, Fechtel was concerned with his senatorial district and constituents and with the Ronald Regan campaign. Then he went to the GOP convention in Detroit. He seemed to have difficulty getting the campaign off the ground.

On the Democratic side of the ballot was the campaign waged by David Best. Best's opponent had roughly four times as much money to spend as Best. So, Best resorted to walking 300 miles across the eight-county district.

Seminole Countians remembered Best from two years ago when he lost to Kelly by only 2 percentage points.

Best got more votes than any other candidate in Seminole on either the Democratic or GOP ballot.

Many local politicians, both Democrats and Republicans, were predicting that Kelly would face either Fechtel or McCollum in the Oct. 7 runoff. This was the assessment of McCollum and Fechtel as well.

However, Best's campaign assistant, Jack Calderon, a week ago, predicted it would be McCollum and Fechtel in the runoff with Kelly wiped out in the first primary.

White Vinegar Useful Cleaner In Your House

For as long as I can remember, I have clipped trivia — mainly the useful kind. By strange coincidence, my wife, Gerry, is also a lifelong trivia clipper.

I have picked some items at random from our collection in the hope that you might benefit from them, too. Some might even save you money — and money saved is worth more than money earned because you don't pay taxes on it.

For instance, did you know that ordinary white vinegar can be used for a variety of chores around the house in addition to cooking? That's what the Vinegar Institute says.

If mineral deposits are clogging the inside heating element of your automatic-drip coffee maker, fill the reservoir with vinegar and run it through the brew cycle. Then rinse with water.

Gerry removes those brown and yellow climate stains that appear on clothing and linens in our sub-tropical Florida climate by rubbing the stains with white vinegar and then washing — provided the fabric is washable, of course. Vinegar can also remove those white underarm stains that appear on dark-colored garments.

Gerry cautions to first try vinegar in an inconspicuous place — such as under a hem — to make sure it does not discolor the fabric.

The department store where you bought your fine china may no longer carry your pattern. To replace any broken pieces, write to: Patterns of the Past, 515 S. Main St., Princeton, Ill. 61356, phone (815) 875-1944, or to The Jewel Box, Box 145, Albertville, Ala. 35950, phone (205) 878-3301.

Don't panic if you don't get a quick answer. Both companies have a heavy load of requests for replacements.

You will hear relatively promptly if the company has what you need. If the piece isn't in stock, your order will be placed in the files until your pattern is located. You will then be notified.

You can phone to find out quickly if your pattern is in stock.

If you cook for someone on a low-salt diet, you can use wine as well as herbs and spices for added flavor. But the American Heart Association cautions that it must be regular wine, not one of the so-called cooking wines that contain added salt.

If you want to preserve fresh-cut flowers, particularly those sent for a special occasion, prepare a one-to-one mixture of Borax and cornmeal.

Place a thin layer of this mixture in an uncovered box. Place the flowers in the box gently and add more of the mixture until the flowers are completely covered.

Place the uncovered box in a dark, dry place for two or three weeks — or until the flowers are completely crisp and dry.

Honestly, Gerry and I aren't training to become aging Quiz Kids. We simply jot down these bits of information because they could be helpful to us and to others.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

6 Men Killed In Crash Of Plane In Clearwater

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI) — Investigators are searching for clues as to what caused a twin-engine airplane to lose power and crash just short of an apartment complex, killing all six men aboard.

There were no injuries to anyone on the ground in Friday's crash, although a car driven by a woman was sprayed by gasoline when the plan crashed within 20 yards of the vehicle.

Police identified the victims, all of Miami, as Richard Larry Keats, 53; his son, David Bogin Keats, 20; Frank Campanille, 53; Steven Jay Schaffer, 19; Bernard Speigel, 42; and Robert Micknoff.

Refugee Hijack Try Foiled

MIAMI (UPI) — A crafty stewardess and a suspicious passenger foiled a young Cuban refugee's attempt to hijack a jetliner back to his homeland by using two pieces of plastic tubing he said were sticks of dynamite.

Guillermo Lima-Hernandez, 24, faces a charge of air piracy after his attempt to hijack Eastern Airlines Flight 5 from Newark to Miami ended Friday in less than two minutes, said FBI special agent Arthur Nehrbass.

The flight landed at miami only a few minutes late. None of the 79 passengers and six crew members was injured.

Death Sentence Supported

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — A Miami prosecutor says David Lee Washington should be executed for a "Charles Manson-like" series of three murders in 1976.

Attorneys for Washington asked Gov. Bob Graham and the Cabinet Friday for clemency — commutation of Washington's death sentence to life in prison — arguing he realizes now how horrible his crimes were and loses sleep at night over them.

Judge Hears Pay Arguments

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Attorney General Jim Smith and Gov. Bob Graham contend a circuit judge knows all he needs to know to order the release of $8.8 million for faculty pay raises.

But attorneys for the House say Circuit Judge Charles Miner should hold a full-blown trial on the matter.

Smith and John Aurell, a Tallahassee attorney representing Graham, urged Miner Friday to free the money, finding the Legislature violated the state constitution by tying the appropriation to final passage of a controversial higher education reform bill.

Gunter Misses Hearing

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter says he was not neglecting his official duties when he ducked out of a Clemency board hearing Friday to accept two political endorsements for the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination.

Gunter missed about 20 minutes of oral arguments Friday by attorneys in two separate capital cases. But he insisted he could still make fair decisions, if required, whether to grant clemency by reading transcripts later.

If Gov. Bob Graham recommends clemency in any of the cases heard by the board, at least three of the other members must concur.

Fiberglass Cars Wave Of Future?

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Fiberglass composites will replace steel in the cars of the future, say two University of Florida materials engineers who act as consultants to the automotive industry.

"By 1985, the average car will be made of 300 pounds of fiberglass composites (which will replace 600 to 900 pounds of metal)," Dr. C. T. Sun, of UF's Center of Studies for Advanced Structural Composites, said Tuesday.

Sun and Dr. Robert L. Sierakowski, campus program director, are developing new composite materials and suggesting standards for their use and testing. They also are trying to reduce their cost.

Fiberglass cars, since they are lighter, will be more economical to run than conventional cars, Sun said, getting twice the gas mileage of the heavier, mostly steel cars.

They also may be safer since some new, man-made materials are stronger and stiffer than steel, he said.

Composite materials already have taken the place of metal in front ends and grills, trunk lids and wheel wells. The cars of the future will be made almost entirely of fiberglass composites, the scientists said.

"The average car will get 27.5 miles per gallon by the year 1985, partly due to more composite parts," said Sun.

Because of high fabrication costs, composites currently are more expensive than their metal counterparts, Sierakowski said, so he and Sun also are looking at ways of making fiberglass cars more cost effective.

He added, however, that because cars made mostly of composites are two to three times lighter, the savings in gas mileage make the higher price tags worth the investment.

Park Testing Solar Privy

ESTES PARK, Colo. (UPI) — National Park Service officials are testing a sun-powered lavatory at Rocky Mountain National they hope to eventually install at other national parks across the nation.

Ron Cotten, chief of park maintenance, said the solar privy, which distills urine and dries excrement so it can be burned on the spot, would eliminate the need to move the wastes.

The park officials said presently human waste is airlifted from remote mountain parks by helicopter, an expensive and dangerous maneuver.

"The theory is good, but we still have to perfect the mechanics to fit the theory," he said. "We plan to redesign it this winter."

Cotten said the solar device was first used last winter on an experimental basis and was being used by park visitors this summer.

Gandhi Blames Woes On 'Foreign Hand'

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — A joke making the rounds in New Delhi says non-Indians should wear gloves to avoid confusion with the "foreign hand" Prime Minister Indira Gandhi says is "stirring up trouble" around the nation.

Opposition leaders, however, believe the charges of foreign intervention in Indian affairs are no joke and fear Mrs. Gandhi is setting up the country for another spell of national emergency rule.

Mrs. Gandhi and her supporters have accused Pakistan, China, New Zealand, the United States and Saudi Arabia of supplying arms and money to subversive groups and backing recent religious riots involving Moslems and Hindus.

The foreign country is seldom named, but everything from police rapes to sucessionist moves have been ascribed in the last month to "the foreign hand."

In a speech to her Congress Party working committee in late August, Mrs. Gandhi said she had received reports that a "foreign hand was behind the incidents at Moradabad," where religious rioting in August left more than 180 people dead.

"It is my impression that there are forces patronizing subversive elements," she said, without further identification.

"It is part of a major conspiracy to undermine the stability of the government," the Prime Minister said.

Saudi Arabia has poured more than $300 million into India for the renovation of mosques, construction of Islamic schools and other projects.

Christian missionaries have been criticized and, in some cases, expelled for spending money on influence — mostly in the form of Christian schools, hospitals and textbooks — in several states in India's volatile northeast.

Moslems in the Islamic Kashmir state have been found in possession of arms manufactured in Pakistan, which lies just a few miles across the border from Srinagar, the state capital.

The foreign fingerprints on domestic politics are no more than in any other country and the charges worry Indians who remember Mrs. Gandhi's previous 20-month emergency rule in 1977.

"If there is a foreign hand at work in India, let it be exposed," former Foreign Minister and opposition leader Atal Behari Vajpayee told UPI.

"This talk of a 'foreign hand' is calculated to make a case that there is a foreign threat to justify emergency," said Vajpayee, President and founder of the Bharatiya Janata Party.

When the Janata government in which Vajpayee served came to power following the last emergency, it amended the constitution to prevent the Prime Minister from declaring emergency rule in the absence of an armed rebellion or external threat.

Mrs. Gandhi declared the 1975-77 emergency rule — which imposed press censorship, curtailed personal and political freedom and allowed arrest without formal charges — on the basis of internal disturbances.

Madhu Limaye of the Opposition Lok Dal Party said an Aug. 27 move to amend the constitution to empower the national government to declare any area of the country "disturbed" and send in army troops also was a "pretext to impose emergency."

Vajpayee noted that emergency-like measures had already been approved by the government, including pressure on the news media and the arrest of 25 members of his party in Gujarat state in Western India for organizing demonstrations to protest price and tax increases.

The protests turned violent and more than a dozen people died.

One of Mrs. Gandhi's most avid supporters, Chief Minister Abdul Rahman Antulay, demanded publicly last week the curtailment of powers of the judiciary, another move reminiscent of emergency days.

"Whenever Mrs. Gandhi finds herself in difficulty she blames it on someone else," said Vajpayee.

Mrs. Gandhi's failures have resulted from too much politicization, he said. "Honest and efficient officers have been penalized and disgraced. Where is the incentive to do a decent job for the others?"

Vajpayee refered to N.K. Singh, a highly respected police officer who led an investigation against Mrs. Gandhi's late son, Sanjay, under the Janata government. Singh was transfered and demoted shortly after Mrs. Gandhi was reelected in January and now runs a nonexistent computer system in Orissa state in Eastern India.

He mentioned the abrupt dismissal of former Foreign Secretary Jagat Mehta, one of India's most respected public servants who formulated the nation's foreign policy through three governments, including that of Mrs. Gandhi.

"There are a hundred cases like these," Vaspayee said.

Although Vajpayee and other top politicans and intellectuals are pessimistic about Mrs. Gandhi's increasing tendencies toward repression and her failure to take positive action to solve the nation's problems, they say they hope it will finally unite the hopelessly divided opposition.

Trojans Punish Punchless Seminoles 27-2

Seminole High quarterback Jeff Litton, under pressure from the Evans Trojan defense as he was all night long unloads a desperation pass in second quarter action of the Tribe's 27-2 season opening loss Friday night. Litton, forced into the starting quarterback role due to an injury to Clarence Sippio, was banged up early in the fourth quarter and spent the rest of the contest on the bench, leaving quarterbacking duties to halfback Jim Votoline. Evans dominated throughout the contest and displayed proof of why the Trojans are ranked sixth in the state.

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Editor

Seminole High football coach Jerry Posey knew his Fighting Tribe had a tall order to fill against sixth-ranked Evans in Friday night's season opener for both clubs.

Even before kickoff the deck seemed stacked against the Tribe. Backup quarterback Jeff Litton had to move into the starting role, leaving Seminole with no backup quarterback and a questionable secondary to face the Metro's pre-season number one pick.

Everything that possibly could go wrong for the Tribe over the next 48 minutes did, and what didn't go wrong didn't exactly go right for Seminole either, thanks to a rugged Trojan defense and an opportunistic offense.

The Seminoles actually got their large following inspired for the hope of an upset when the Tribe came up with a two-point safety early in the second period when Evans sent the center snap on a punt attempt 30-yards over Scott Consoli's head into the end zone.

But from that point all Seminole saw the rest of the night were Trojan Horses in the likes of running backs Terry Tribue, Alex Ballard, Alfred Smith, Reggie Perry and quarterback Consoli.

The Trojans lived up to offensive expectations with that fivesome by compiling 225 rushing yards to go along with another 151 passing yards put together by a trio of Evans quarterbacks.

Following Sanford's safety, Evans got its running game cranked up which in turn lulled Seminole's secondary to sleep. Consoli caught the Tribe napping midway through the second period and found flanker Ephrian Leonard for a 35-yard strike to give Evans a 6-2 edge.

The next time the Trojans got the pigskin Consoli used the same blue print. Sending Tribue and Ballard consistently up the middle, the Trojan's versatile quarterback went again to the left flat for a successful 26-yard scoring strike to split end Mark Clayborne, a thorn in Seminole's side all night long.

The third period developed into a comedy of errors with no less than 15 penalties in a 10-minute span, three of them nullifying a trio of touchdowns less than three-and-a-half minutes apart.

First, Seminole middle linebacker Cap Brown sneakily swiped a Consoli pass over the middle and shot down the left sideline untouched for a 65-yard Sanford score. But a roughing the passer penalty against the Tribe killed the scoring opportunity.

Evans then had a pair of touchdowns called back, one on a clip, the other on a holding penalty.

If that wasn't bad enough for Seminole, quarterback Jeff Litton was decked early in the final period and had to retire to the bench with a bruised back.

Posey handed the offensive chores to halfback-defensive back Jim Voltoline in a real character building situation. Seminole had just stopped a fourth-and-goal-to-go from its own two. So Voltoline, who had all of three day's of practice as a quarterback took his first snap from center with his heels in his own endzone facing a 98-yard challenge.

The script had already been carved and the worst happened on the very next play. Voltoline got a poor snap from center and bobbled the ball. By the time the umpiring crew untangled the mass of bodies, Evans' Cedrick Clayton had nestled the ball back into Sanford's endzone, giving the Trojans a 27-2 bulge.

Evans drove three more times and threatened each time but it became obvious from consistent yellow flags that the ref's were trying to hold Evans from making the contest a complete route.

While the Trojan offense was busy marching up and down the field all night, the Evans defense played just as big a role by limiting Sanford to a skimpy 64 yards in total offense without senior starter Clarence Sippio at quarterback.

"We've got to do something to stop the long pass," said a depressed Posey after the game.

"They got their big backs ripping up the yardage on the ground and then hurt us with the deep pass. We didn't execute on offense and we really had to tonight to take some of the pressure off of the defense."

Pinch-quarterback Voltoline got a taste of that pressure when he had to come in and run the offense. But the versatile senior seemed unphased by stepping in with a first and ten at his own two-yard line.

"The only thing going through my head on that first snap was not to fumble," said the Tribe senior. "But the snap came up high and got away."

Undaunted, and facing the prospect of becoming the permanent backup signal caller the remainder of the season, Voltoline doesn't mind the extra task.

"I liked playing quarterback," he said. "Of course I could use a little more than three days of practice though."

Seminole has a week to regroup before hosting Five Star Conference rival Mainland at the Tribe Stadium.

"The defense did a credible job considering the amount of time it spent on the field tonight," closed Posey. "We'll have to take a long look at the game films to see a whole lot of positive things that came out of this game.

From The Sidelines

BY JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Sports Editor

Memorandum: To Bart Starr, Don Shula, Walt Michaels, Ron Erhardt, Tom Flores, Marv Levy and Tom Landry.

Subject: Dear coaches, it has come to my attention that none of your respective football teams played up to expectations last week. Your unpredictable play on a usually unpredictable first week of fiction cost me seven picks. (That's not all that bad, I know of another sports scribe who went 4-10 opening day, but no names please.)

In the future please refrain from freelancing the game plan, it's bad for prognostication percentages.

The opening week of NFL action found your's truly coming up with a less than awesome 7-7 mark, good for an even .500 on the young season.

Undaunted, here's this weeks selections.

Pittsburgh at Baltimore. Terry Bradshaw and company again served notice the Steelers plan on making early motel reservations for the Super Bowl with a convincing 31-17 opener against the Snake and Houston. Meanwhile the Bert Jones-led Colts opened with a few surprises by knocking off the supposedly awesome New York Jets. Baltimore showed a surprisingly strong defense but not strong enough to stop the Steelers. The Colts hope to escape this one with Jones' shoulder still intact. Pittsburgh 28 Baltimore 17.

New York Jets at Buffalo. The Bills don't have any 20-game streak to snap this week like they had against Miami on opening day. Richard Todd regroups the Big Apple Gang for a win on the road. New York 20 Buffalo 17.

Now that the Bengals have dried out from last week's wet loss to Tampa, they hit the road to tackle the other half of Florida's pro football connection. With Kenny Anderson out with an injury, and Don Strock moving in at quarterback for the Dolphins, Miami pacifies the Orange Bowl crowd with its first win of 1980. Miami 23 Cincinnati 16.

Dallas at Denver. Denver was supposed to lose last week and did. Dallas was supposed to loose Monday night and didn't. Matt Robinson looked as ineffective at Denver's helm as Danny White did at Dallas'. The Cowboy defense and its questionable secondary turned in a remarkable performance against Joe Theisman and the Skins, virtually wiping out the Washington ground game. In what promises to be a defensive struggle the Cowboys notch win number two. Dallas 20 Denver 13.

Seattle at Kansas City. The young Chiefs were thought of as a spoiler before the season even began. Everybody knows the Seahawks can put points on the board. Only trouble is they usually have to score the last touchdown of the game to hang on for a win. Kansas City got things rolling early last week and has enough defense to stop Jim Zorn just short. Kansas City 30 Seattle 21.

Atlanta at New England. Born again Steve Grogan stuffed it in New England fans craws last week with a spectacular performance. Atlanta meanwhile squandered a see-saw battle against lowly Minnesota. This one answers a few questions. Will New England be consistant and will Atlanta have another season of lost opportunities? I'll go with the Patriots. New England 24 Atlanta 17.

Oakland at San Diego. It's Dan Fouts versus Dante Pastorini, and may the last bomb win it. Fouts wasted no time in getting in high gear with the Charger offense while Oakland succumbed a week ago despite a solid performance by Pastorini. The Raider defense is suspect against both the pass and the run. San Diego doesn't have much of a run, but boy do

Shula, Dolphins Battle Bengals On The Rebound Sunday

Rebounding from a season-opening defeat has been accomplished consistently if too frequently by the Miami Dolphins, now 5-5-1 in first-day episodes under Coech Don Shula. His club responded with four straight wins in 1970, eight wins in nine games in 1974, seven straight wins in 1975 and five wins in six games in 1978.

So the Dolphins, striving for a more error-free offense, have three of their next four games in the Orange Bowl beginning with a visit by the Cincinnati Bengals for a 4 p.m. EDT kickoff Sunday. Miami and Cincinnati produced the fewest yards, 200 and 123, respectively, of all the 28 National Football League teams in 1980 openers, yet both clubs were leading in the fourth quarter.

"We lost to a team that turns it over to us seven times and has nine penalties," Shula said in the wake of a 17-7 loss to the Buffalo Bills which ended an NFL-record 20-game domination by the Dolphins. "That's really disheartening.

"You can't figure on scoring seven points and winning the football game," Shula said. "You'd have to say that our defense played well, but when they had to have it at the end, Buffalo came up with the big plays. If the defense has to shut them out to win a football game, then they've got to shut them out."

The Bengals, 4-12 last season, have switched to a three-man defensive line under new Coach Forrest Gregg. Cincinnati didn't allow a touchdown to Detroit in the preseason finale, and the Lions swamped Los Angeles, 41-20, a week later. But the Bengals dropped a 17-12 decision to Tampa Bay in the opener when a botched punt attempt gave the Buccaneers the football only five yards from the Cincinnati goal line in the final minutes.

Miami opened the 1980 season with an entirely new offensive line from the one which started 1979. Bob Kuechenberg moved from left tackle to left guard, Ed Newman went from left guard to right guard, left tackle Cleveland Green made his first NFL start, and center Mark Dennard and right tackle Eric Laakso lined up for their ninth and fourth starts, respectively.

"It's going to have to be done sooner or later," Shula described the rebuilding of the line, "we're just going to have to live through the growing pains and hope that they come along."

The Dolphins netted 90 yards rushing against Buffalo, although with only 22 attempts, the 4.1 yards per carry was certainly respectable.

But the Dolphins had two possessions after taking a 7-3 lead in the third quarter and failed to gain a first down. Then Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson, who had lost 155 times to the Dolphins, directed a 68-yard touchdown drive capped by a four-yard rollout pass to fullback Roosevelt Leaks with 3:42 remaining. An interception by linebacker Isiah Robertson and his 39-yard return set up a clinching two-yard TD plunge by Joe Cribbs.

"I usually get the feeling

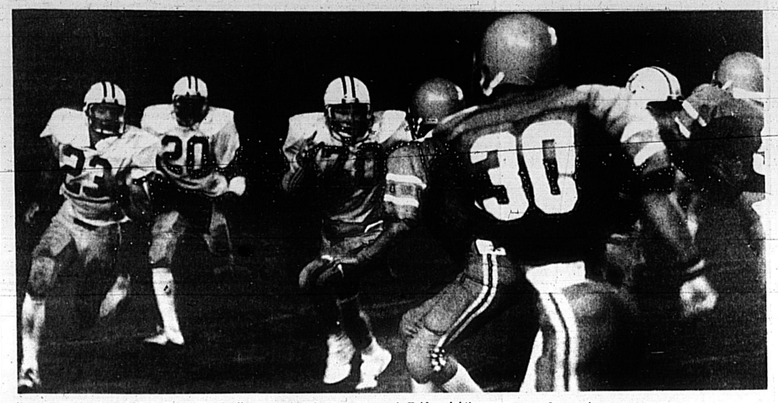
Boone's Talented Sophomores Pave Way Over Lyman



With Jon Hass (23) and Chris Breen (70) leading the way, Lyman tailback Audie Cleveland (20) prepares to turn the corner and head up field against the Boone Braves in Friday night's season opener. Despite the Greyhound's offensive ability to move the ball, fumbles and inconsistent defense cost Lyman its season opener.

Lyman head football coach Bill Scott wasn't kidding when he warned sceptics that the Greyhounds would move the ball offensively this year. However, he ruled out such possibilities as fumbles, interceptions and penalties.

The final result was a 21-20 loss at the hands of Metro Conference rival Boone in Friday evening's season opener at Lyman high school.

Lyman increased its lead with 4:36 remaining in the first half on a ten-yard pass from Andriano to senior Jack Neff.

Boone answered back on its next possession, going 78 yards in nine-plays, scoring on an eight-yard strike from Darryll Hayes to Roger Stalvey for a 14-7 Greyhound lead at halftime.

"We let them off the hook in the first half with our mistakes," a disgusted Coach Scott replied refering to five turnovers.

The Hounds increased their advantage to 20-7 early in the third quarter. Kinebacker Mike Donivan crashed through the Boone line to block a Frank Cawthon punt. Cleveland dashed five yards on the next play for the touchdown.

Sophomore, Gerald White returned the ensuing kickoff 88-yards to close the Greyhound lead to 20-14. He scored the winning touchdown from three-yards, four plays in to the final period.

White was a thorn in Lyman's side the entire evening. The dazzling sophomore compiled 234-yards total offense (53 yards rushing, three receptions for 51-yards, 125 return yards.)

"I knew they were good," Scott said about the backfield tandem of White and Greg Burden, both of which are sophomores. "They compare to most juniors on other teams because of their junior high school experience."

Cleveland picked up 136-yards on 31 carries, while fullback Jon Hass plowed for 125-yards on 19 carries.

"They're pretty tough," bragged Braves coach Bob Whittington. "We were impressed with the way they moved the ball ... Cleveland may be the finest back in the area."

Andriano was 8-14-2 for 106-yards on the evening. He disagreed with Lyman's defensive strategy.

Hornets Loss Streak Stretched To 20 Straight

Hawk's Galloping Grant 'Grounds' Bishop Moore

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Writer

(WINTER PARK) — Lake Howell's Scott Grant is not as swift as Ottis Anderson. He doesn't possess the power of Earl Campbell, nor the elusiveness of Walter Payton.

Friday night, however, the Bishop Moore Hornets may have settled for anyone of the three as Grant slashed, mashed and thrashed his way for 171 yards in the Silver Hawks 12-0 conquest of the Hornets at Showalter Field in the season opener for both teams.

The setback was the 20th straight for Bishop Moore and ruined the coaching debut of Brian Smith. The last time the Hornets won was the season opener in 1978. The victim was Lake Howell, which Hawks' Coach Sam Weir said he didn't hesitate to point out to his players Thursday.

Grant evidently took heed as he rambled for 97 yards on 9 carries in the opening half. The 5-11, junior spiced his efforts with two jaunts of 37 and 23 yards.

In the second half he was equally impressive Grant picked up 74 yards in eight carries including chunks of 25 on two occassions. He logged the ball 17 times all told, which computes to an average of 10 yards a carry.

"Mainly I was getting the yards up the middle," said the 170-pounder about his efforts. "The line was blowing them open one way and they (Bishop Moore) were overplaying it.

"I just cut back across the field and it was wide open," said Grant, who singled out seniors Chris Stone (guard) and Brian Lepak (tackle) as making his job easy.

In the beginning though, it looked as if it would be anything but easy for the Hawks. After the Hornets blunted Howell's initial drive, a fourth down punt snap went over Bob Capobianco's head into the endzone.

Somehow Capobianco chased down the football and threw a desperation pass, which was completed, but a penalty gave the Hornets possessoin at the Hawk 22.

Facing a third and nine, Thomas dropped back to pass only to find the Silver Hawks' junior defensive end Jim Cook come clawing for a 13-yard loss. Punter Vince Benedetti rolled a punt into the endzone, which turned out to be the only time the Hornets touched the cherished land.

"We lost the game basically because of our inexperience in the line," said Smith who felt score after the botched snap would have changed the game's complexion.

Doing the most to change the color nevertheless, was the relentless Grant, who jokingly described his running style as "praying I make it through the hole."

After an exchange of punts Lake Howell put together a quick (1:50), five-play 63-yard drive which Capobianco climaxed with a 28-yard scoring toss to fleet Nat Edmonds.

Lake Howell wide receiver Chuck Scott gets ready to take a hit from Bishop Moore's Dutch Elzer in the Silver Hawk's 12-0 win over Bishop Moore Friday night. Scott and quarterback Bob Capobianco didn't hook up as often as expected, but halfback Scott Grant took care of the offense by rambling for 171 yards on the night, averaging 10 yards per carry.

Two penalties fueled the Hawk drive. The big one came after Grant bolted for 23 yards to the Hornet 48. After finally subduing Grant, a late arriving Hornet buzzed into Grant and was called for a late hit.

Two plays later "Capo" found Edmonds five yards behind everybody for the score. Grant's extra point kick was blocked,

Tullis Gets First Win

Patriots Turn Back Colonial

By ANDY LUCE
Herald Sports Writer

ORLANDO — Lake Brantley head football coach Dave Tullis got his first taste of victory Friday night when his Big Blue Patriots defeated the Colonial Grenadiers 18-7.

"This is the greatest feeling I've ever had," remarked Tullis following his victory. "Colonial has a fine ball club and they're very physical. The difference in the game was our defense the second half."

"In the first half," continued Tullis, "They picked up good yardage on first down, making it tough on our defense on the second and third downs. We made some adjustments at halftime and they didn't get a single first down the second half."

Brantley fumbled on the first play of the game but recovered. Colonial was not as fortunate. On second-and-six from its own 22-yard line, Colonial halfback Daren Fahlbusch fumbled and Gary Timlin recovered for the Patriots. On the next play, Brantley tailback Dave Gillihand ran 24 yards for the first score of the game and Brantley led 6-0 with 6:16 left in the first period.

Colonial bounced back with a touchdown early in the second quarter. Keith Bostwick scored from one-yard out with 10:29 left in the half to tie the score. Rick Cadwallader kicked the PAT and Colonial led 7-6.

Colonial hung onto the 7-6 lead going into the final period.

Then early in the fourth quarter, Brantley quarterback Jay Poag hit tight-end Mike Gillihand with a 10-yard scoring pass to put Brantley up 12-7. The play climaxed a 56-yard drive that included two key third down runs by Kevin Besaw.

Trailing 12-7, Colonial took over at its own 35-yard line. On second wide receiver Steve Iannini fumbled and Fred Baber recovered for the Patriots at the 37-yard line.

Colonila held and got the ball back with five minutes to play.

On a third down play, linebacker Otis Cliatt picked off a Kirby Johnson pass to turn Colonial away again. From there Brantley cashed in.

Dejected head coach Bob Williams praised Lake Brantley.

Pierson Taylor Stops Oviedo 21-7

Pierson Taylor jumped on defending Three-Five Conference champ Oviedo for 21 first half points en route to a final at Oviedo Friday night.

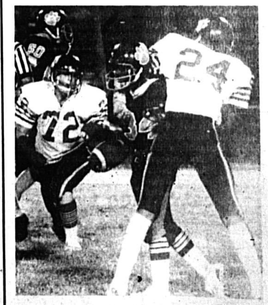
The visitors got good field position early in the game following a poor punt and capitalized six plays later when Pierson's Vender Rolle rolled in from the [illegible].

Pierson made it 14-0 at the half when Jim [illegible] of Oviedo suffered a partially blocked punt. The visitors got field position at the Oviedo [illegible] and made quick work of Pierson's scoring drive, a 47-yards on the very next play.

The Lions got on the scoreboard in the third period when Darryl Johnson hit Jamie [illegible] on a option to move Oviedo to Pierson's [illegible] yard line. The Lion's ground out yardage to the goal line before Johnson balked over for Oviedo's [illegible] contest.

Oviedo's Black Friday defense suffered at halftime chatter with the coaching staff, but they [illegible] play defense and held the young offensive [illegible] Lions in check, limiting Oviedo to just 82 yards.

The loss left Oviedo at 0-1 in both conference and overall. The Lions will host Orange Belt Conference Cloud in their next contest on September 19.



Oviedo's James Hamilton gets sandwiched in between a pair of Pierson Taylor defenders in Friday night's 21-7 season opening loss. The young offensive backfield had trouble moving all night long and accounted for only 82 yards total offense.

One would have a tough time explaining to Sanford's baseball czar Wes Rinker that fall means football. Undaunted, the caretaker of Sanford Memorial Stadium's catacombs is ready to unleash a veritable plethora of baseball activity locally.

This weekend marks the opening of the Sanford Baseball School Fall Class and Fall League. Rollins College, Florida Baseball Blue, Seminole Community College and Florida Baseball Red are scheduled to start games on September 22nd following the first week of the schooling session.

Wes also has firmed up plans for the Sixth Annual Zinn Beck Tourney.

This year's format will be a single round robin affair with a field that includes Milligan College, Rollins College, Flagler College, Florida Institute of Technology and Jacksonville University's Dolphin baseball squads.

The Zinn Beck Tournament is scheduled to open on Thursday, November 6 with Rollins taking on Flagler and Milligan meeting Jacksonville. The final day of the tourney, Sunday, November 9 shows Milligan facing FIT, and Jacksonville taking on Rollins and Flagler in a double header.

All games will be played under Rinker's watchfull baseball eye at Sanford Stadium with free admission for all interested baseball fans.

Lady Knights Open '80 With New Coach

ORLANDO — The University of Central Florida volleyball coaching staff will have a totally new look for the season ahead. As well as having a new head coach in Carmen Pernick, the Lady Knights have a new assistant in Laura Smith.

Dr. Jack O'Leary, UCF's athletic director, made the announcement today.

Smith is not a new face on the UCF volleyball courts, but it will be a different sight to see her on the bench instead of playing for the Lady Knights. During her playing years with UCF, the Bayshore, New York native earned all-American honors in 1977 and '78. She also received All-State and All Region honors in 1979. In the regional volleyball circles, Smith was considered a devastating middle blocker and hitter for the Lady Knights.

As Pennick stated, "Laura will be a definite asset to the team and me. She knows the sport and can help me with the little things involved with the team." Smith, who is taking classes toward a physical education degree, played with several of this year's players.

While at Bayshore High School, Smith was a four-sport letter winner, receiving MVP awards in tennis, volleyball, basketball and softball. She also participated on the women's track team.

Although she will be missed on the court, Smith will provide the team with the same type of leadership from the bench as she did on the court.

Smith helped lead the Lady Knights to the National Championship in 1978 and a 55-0 season record.

UCF opens the season, defending its Alabama Invitational title for the second straight year in Tuscaloosa September 19-20.

UCF's Opener Against Carson-Newman

Knights Take T-Bowl Spotlight, Seminole Well-Represented

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Writer

ORLANDO — Central Florida's Knights begin their second football season Saturday night against Carson-Newman (Tenn.) with a healthy sprinkling of Seminole County athletes at 7:35 p.m. in the Tangerine Bowl.

The Knights of Coach Don Jonas, who posted an incredible 6-2 ledger in their first season of intercollegiate football, start no less than four players from Seminole County high schools.

Heading up a strong defensive contingent will be linebacker Billy Giovanetti (Lyman), strong safety Mark Whigham (Sanford) and defensive end Mike O'Shaughnessy (Oviedo).

Seeing reserve duty from the county are guard Bob Solomon (Lake Howell), center Jim Bray (Lake Howell), and defensive back Steve Kurht (Lyman). Backup quarterback Bob Burkhart (Lyman) is sidelined with a knee injury.

Along with last year's surprise showing, UCF was able to recruit for the first time this year. The schedule, however, has been improved considerably with some tough Division II schools. The Knights are division III.

Despite the tough schedule, talk of an undefeated season continues to flow because of the fine 1979 campaign and the new "beef" that arrived this year.

"Everybody says that," the rapid-talking Jonas confirmed when queried about the prospects of a perfect season. "That's the way a football team should start out the season.

"If you have any other type of attitude, then you're not going to perform the way you should perform. The first one is going to be the tough one. Hopefully that's going to help us," he added.

Carson-Newman is a division II school from Jefferson City, Tenn. It's of Baptist affiliation and opened in 1851.

One of CNC's top defensive performers is a young man familiar to this area — Melvin Mellon. The 6-1 200-pounder was an outstanding football player, wrestler and weightlifter at Lyman.

Melton starred at defensive end last year for Carson Newman, but this year has been moved to linebacker and has a chance at All-American honors.

"I don't know that much about them. I haven't seen them play. I'm more concerned on how we're going to play," he said.

"Potentially we have a good football team. But you don't know until you put them on the field," Jonas continued.

"That's why you have to depend on the veterans.

"Guys like (Mike) Cullison, Whigham and Giovanetti have to take the leadership on the field. We look to them to get us going."

Giovanetti, who calls defensive signals from his middle linebacker position, feels a year's seasoning will help the defense plus its cohesiveness.

"The whole defense is really together," Billy Gio maintaines. "That's why we click. We also have a lot bigger line this year."

Giovanetti agreed with Jonas that an undefeated season was on the Knights' minds, but felt that a few breaks would have to go their way.

"We'd have to have a lotta luck," Giovanetti surmised. "But 9-0 looks pretty good, I think."

On the eve of Saturday Knight-Lite II, Giovanetti is definitely not alone with that train of thought.

Angelo's Mice Nibble Frisch's In Open 14-6

Angelo's Restaurant opened its 1980 fall softball season on a successful note. They defeated Frish's, 14-6 in Winter Park league play.

Angelo's "Mice" have their home base in Casselberry. They finished second in the Altamonte league this past summer but school schedules eliminated Wednesday night play for them in the fall, and thus, they are participating in the Winter Park league for the first time.

Kasie McDonough was the winning hurler for the Mice as she allowed just three hits. She had some fine defense from Dana Hale at short, Pat McDonough, Terri Fry and Mary Van Brunt in the outfield.

Leading the attack was Terri Fry with a perfect 4 for 4, 3 runs scored and 4 rbi's. One of her hits was a base clearing triple. Lisa Talasko chimed in with 2 hits including a homerun and 3 rbi's. Kasie McDonough had 3 hits, Daria Hale, Mary McDonough and Dee Dee Jashasley all added 2 hits apiece.

In addition to league play the Mice will be entering a pair of tournaments in November and hosting their own in December.

Lady Hatters Aiming At Best Season Ever

DeLAND — The 1980-81 season is showing signs of being the best ever for the Stetson University Hatters, who are coming off their first winning season in the school's history. Eight lettermen return for the Hats, including all five starters from the 13-12 squad in 1979-80.

The list of returning veterans is headed by two All-State performers at the guard position, Brenda Elrod and Donna Johnson. Elrod, a 5'7" senior and last season's MVP, averaged 12.2 points per contest and 4.5 rebounds. She also led the team in steals with 76 and was second in assists with 47. At 5'2", Johnson is the smallest Hatter on the court, but she led the team in scoring with a 14.1 average and shattered the school assist record for a season with 111. She was second in steals with 59 and was selected for the Coach's Award.

Also returning to lend experience to the Hatter ranks is last year's leading rebounder and Most Improved Player, Trina Hudson, a 5'9" senior forward. Hudson grabbed 8.1 rebounds a game and contributed 5.3 points. Joining Hudson will be two 5'11" sophomores, Diane Hayes and Karen Lovaglio. Hayes was second in both scoring and rebounding with 12.4 and 7.9 averages, respectively. She also led the team in free throw percentage with 74 percent. Lovaglio finished the year with a 7.8 points per game average and 6.9 rebound average.

Rounding out the list of returnees is senior forward Terry White (.9 points and 2.3 rebounds), senior forward Theresa King (3.8 points and 3.6 rebounds), and junior guard Tracey Byer (3.8 points and 1.7 rebounds).

In addition to the eight returning lettermen, the 1980-81 edition of Hatter basketball has four bright new stars on the horizon. Angela Head is a 6'0" freshman center out of Fort Walton Beach High School. Head connected on 54 percent of her shots from the field while compiling a 16.0 points per game average her senior year. She also pulled down 11.0 rebounds a game. Joining Head is another 6'0" freshman, Linda Kiefer, from Hilton Head, S.C. Kiefer enjoyed a successful career at May Ricer Academy, where she averaged 22.7 points and 11.4 rebounds her senior season. She was the recipient of many honors, including All-State recognition and selection to the North-South All Star team.

The tallest player ever to play for Stetson will be 6'3" freshman center Leslie Clutts. Clutts comes to Stetson via Tavares High School where she averaged nearly 10 points and over 18 rebounds. However, her strength is on defense; she averaged 4.2 blocked shots a game for her Tavares team.

"I am really excited about the talent that we have on our team for the upcoming season," commented head coach Kelly Jordan. "We have a much larger line-up than ever before and also greater depth than last year. I am anticipating solid performances from our veteran players, and I'm looking forward to increased output in the middle from our newcomers."

The Hatters will need great play from veterans and newcomers alike, as they strive to improve on their 13-12 mark from the previous season. They will be taking on such terms as the University of Florida, Miami, South Florida, Central Florida and FAMU from the state of Florida, in addition to some tough out-of-state competition from East Carolina University, Mercer University, Georgia Southern and Wake Forest University. The season will officially open on Nov. 24, when the Hats travel to St. Leo College.

Tennis Anyone?

By LARRY CASTLE

Footwork Fits Into Game Plan

Footwork is the Name of the Game.

How many of us have known players who had good skills in hitting the ball, had a good knowledge of the game, and enough strength to execute any stroke, yet seem to never do well in matches. I have known many of these players and indeed, have coached several who seemed to have all of the necessary ingredients to be a very good player. On very careful observation of some of these players though, we find one vital thing missing. Although the strokes are good these players do not have good enough footwork to get in proper position for sound, controlled strokes. Many players seem to be only slightly out of position time after time. Only out of position enough to cause them to make an error. Others simply cannot get to any ball that is more than ten feet from them. Footwork, moving the feet or getting into position to hit the ball is so vital to being a good player.

How does one go about developing good footwork? Well, unfortunately the ability to move the feet well and quickly is determined by your own God given natural ability. Some call it motor skill, some call it athletic ability. The more natural skill you have, the better your footwork can be. Footwork, however, can be improved with work, work and more work. Every time I watch Borg play, or Austin or Conners or any of the really good players I am amazed by the fact that they seem to almost never be out of position. Their footwork is great, they are almost always over the ball. A player with great foot work makes tennis look easy.

(1. Run after every ball. Even when you are just practicting you should run as hard as you can after every ball. When the ball is hit is the doubles alley, go after it. When it's deep or short go after it. Try for every ball no matter how difficult. If you do this for one hour three or four times a week your footwork will improve.

(3. Sliding drill — shift from one side of the court to the other and up and back pretending that you are going after balls. Try to go for one minute at a time without stopping.

Really almost anything you do involving foot and body movement is good. One or two practice sessions will not do though — you must do it 3 or 4 times per week for months and even years to improve.

Tip on footwork:

Start playing singles instead of doubles. Most social doubles is an exercise in standing and talking and not moving and running.

that we're going to keep fighting off the threats," strong safety Tim Foley said. "For a long period of time there, someone kept coming up with the play, knocking the ball loose, intercepting the ball."

A brilliant first start by two Dolphin defensive backs, left cornerback Don McNeal and free safety Glenn Blackwood, helped Miami gather five interceptions and two fumbles recoveries — seven takeaways — and miss the club record by one.

Dodgers Win But Lose Russell

By United Press International

The Los Angeles Dodgers got a bad break Friday night — the kind that could cost them the National League West pennant.

The Dodgers defeated the Cincinnati Reds, 5-2, to hang on to a first-place tie with the Houston Astros in the NL West, but in the process they lost shortstop Bill Russell, probably for the rest of the season, with a broken finger.

"Right now it doesn't look like I'll be able to play anymore this year," said Russell. "I've never had a broken finger before, but some of the guys said you can count on it being broken if it goes numb right away and it did."

Dodgers' Manager Tom Lasorda said he had "no idea" how much Russell's loss would hurt the club in its pennant drive against the Reds and Houston Astros.

Astros 5, Giants 3

Cardinals 7-5, Phillies 4-0

ROOKIE Leon Durham blasted his first career grand slam to help the Cardinals win the opener and Keith Hernandez hit a bases-loaded triple in the 11th inning of the nightcap to spark the sweep. The twin loss left the second-place Phillies two games behind first-place Montreal in the NL East.

Expos 1, Pirates 0

Larry Parrish singled home a second-inning run and Scott Sanderson tossed a five-hitter to spark Montreal's victory. Sanderson, 15-8, picked up his third shutout and seventh complete game of the season.

Cubs 10, Mets 5

Mike O'Berry's two-run single and Mike Vail's two-run homer highlighted a five-run 14th inning that helped the Cubs hand the Mets their 13th straight loss.

Braves 6, Padres 2

Phil Niekro and Rick Camp combined on a nine-hitter and Chris Chambliss drove in four runs with a homer and a single, enabling the Braves to snap the Padres' seven-game winning streak. Niekro, 14-14, went 7 2-3 innings to notch his sixth straight triumph.

Yanks Open East Gap To Four Games

By United Press International

New York Yankees' owner George Steinbrenner allegedly complained the Toronto Blue Jays used tougher pitchers against the Yankees than against Baltimore, and his comments infuriated Toronto management.

"We know we've hustled all year and we've done that for ourselves, not because of anything (New York Yankee owner) Steinbrenner or anyone else has to say," Toronto Manager Bobby Mattick said Friday night, after his club hung a 7-5 loss on the Baltimore Orioles that enabled the Yankees to widen their lead to four games in the AL East. "Of course, he has an out either way. He'll say he just did it to rustle us up against Baltimore."

"These unfair accusations call into question the integrity of the management and ownership of the Toronto Blue Jays and have placed us in unfair and embarrassing position in front of our media and public," Toronto President Peter Bavasi said in a telegram to Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

"Based upon your investigation, the very least we would expect is a fully complete public apology from George Steinbrenner, if not a substantial fine and suspension from your office."

He said, "It doesn't bother me a bit. He's (Bavasi) a laugh. If I were Peter Bavasi, I'd spend every waking hour trying to improve the fortunes of the Toronto Blue Jays. I know they're having troubles and I wouldn't do anything to impugn them."

"We have received a complaint from the Toronto club and we are investigating it jointly with the American League," he said.

Yankees 4, Red Sox 2

Rudy May won his seventh straight game, pitching a six-hitter over 7 1-3 innings to boost his record to 14-5. He credits his winning streak to Rich Gossage who notched his 27th save. Since May started his winning streak, Gossage has saved five of the seven victories and mopped up in another.

Tigers 6, Indians 3

White Sox 5, Twins 3

Brewers 7, Mariners 1

Moose Haas, 16-12, pitched a two-hitter and Gorman Thomas, Paul Molitor and Robin Yount belted homers. Thomas with 34 homers, tied with teammate Ben Oglivie for second, three behind Yankee Reggie Jackson for the league lead.

A's 9, Royals 5

Silver Hawks

In the second quarter Hornet Coach Smith went into his New York bag of tricks and unveiled his "Stinger" offense. The offense resembled a short punt formation.

Three men lineup behind the center, while another man stations himself behind the trio. The ball is snapped to the middle mad of the trio who hands off, runs or throws the ball.

The irrepressible Grant picked up 19 yards in two carries to the 10. An encroachment call placed the ball on the five. Fullback Carl Carlson "bulled" to the three on first down.

Weir then inserted the diminutive (5-2, 150) Billy Mosblech, who squirmed behind a short trap on the left side for a 12-0 Howell advantage, with 4:30 to play in the half. A run for the Pat failed.

"There were spots we looked real good and then there were spots we didn't look any good at all," said Weir about the victory. "Bishop Moore's defense was exceptional, but our execution was a little shakey at times."

After a slow start (2-6, 33 yards), Capobianco warned up the execution in the second half with 4-5 including three to big tight end Mark Layton. "Capo" finished 6-11 and 82 yards.

McKenna, who had an excellent all-around game, finished with 90 yards in nine carries for the Hornets.

Sidelines

New Orleans at Chicago. The Saints go marching in to a nasty Bear's den following Chester Marcol's hop-along-touchdown run that lifted the Packers to an overtime win against Chicago last week. New Orleans on the other hand was busy losing to the resurgent San Francisco 49ers. Chicago sees this as a week to either stay close to Tampa Bay or get themselves into early division race trouble. Chicago responds, with that bear-ly. Chicago 20 New Orleans 17.

Detroit at Green Bay. If having Gary Danielson back healthy at quarterback wasn't a big enough lift for Detroit, Billy Sims' rookie performance of better than 150 yards rushing is. With a little defense the Lions could turn into a threat this season. Green Bay's victory over the Bears was a fluke. This week the Packers prove it. Detroit 30 Green Bay 10.

Philadelphia at Minnesota. The Pennsylvania crew had an easy time with Denver last week while Minnesota struggled for a win against Atlanta. That should tell you something. That should tell you that the Eagles will win again this week. Philadelphia 24 Minnesota 16.

Washington at New York's Giants. The Redskin defense was totaly embarrassed at the ease in which Cowboy substitute running backs waltzed around the field Monday night. Meanwhile Phil Simms put the breaks on criticism by firing five touchdown passes in the Giant's opening win over St. Louis. Can Washington regroup on defense and generate a rushing attack. Was Simms unconscious last week? Yes and yes. Washington 24 New York 20.

St. Louis at San Francisco. These are the games that try men's souls. The 49ers look a little more soulfull. San Francisco 23 St. Louis 21.

Houston at Cleveland-Monday Night. Thank God the Cowboys aren't playing, now we're safe from spending 10-minutes in Roger Staubach's living room.

Both squads are coming off losses and need to get untracked; especially Houston. Earl Campbell couldn't get moving against the Pittsburgh defense last week and Oiler receivers couldn't hang on to Kenny Stabler's passes. Stabler won't throw five interceptions this week and the Browns won't win. Houston 23 Cleveland 20.

Newest U.S. Base Awaits Americans With Hope

BERBERA, Somalia (UPI) — Aaddaar, addaar," cry the ragtag bands of children who push metal hoops around pillars of dust and, like tiny sentinels, announce the arrival of a white man in this sleepy port city.

It has been nearly three years since several thousand Soviet advisers and experts were expelled from the nearby "Moscow Village," so the appearance of a white face once again excites curiosity in Berbera.

At the children's cries, a few women push heads shrouded in gauzy fabric past wooden louvers of their mud brick shops and peer inquiringly. Customers swaying gently in string chairs at the local market, idling away the broiling midday heat chewing the narcotic plant called khat and sipping highly sweetened tea, pause to look over the intruders carefully.

These days, Americans are welcome in Berbera.

In exchange for $40 million in foreign military sales credits and $5 million in cash, the United States reached agreement in August with the Somalis for the use of naval and air facilities here, and, on a limited basis, in the capital of Mogadishu to the south.

The agreement capped months of negotiations to establish military facilities along the Indian Ocean for the so-called Rapid Deployment Force which the Carter administration hopes to use in the event of an emergency in the Middle East. Similar agreements have been concluded with Kenya and Oman.

Situated on the headwaters of the Bab el Mandeb strait and the entrance to the Red Sea, Berbera has become virtually synonymous with "strategic" in the parlance of U.S. defense planners.

Berbera looks across the straits to Aden, capital of Southern Yemen, where the Soviet Union has naval facilities, including submarine pens.

Britain, the colonial power in both Northern Somalia and Southern Yemen before independence, recognized early that Aden and Berbera were strategically linked, though in the halycon days of gunboat diplomacy it was the plentiful supply of camels in Somalia that gave Berbera its luster.

Nowadays it is the 15,000-foot airstrip, the longest in Africa, plus the port and fuel facilities which makes Berbera such a valuable bargaining chip to the two superpowers.

Curiously, the Somali government has not announced the agreement with the United States, so most of the 30,000 residents of Berbera have only a vague notion that Americans, like the Russians before them who built buildings and watched Russian movies at their outdoor "kinos," will soon be coming to settle here.

"We like Americans to come to our country," says Ibrahim Huseein Yuusuf, the youngloking proprietor of a general store. "It's good for business."

On a recent afternoon, when the temperature in the current hot season crept above 115 degrees, making Berbera's few tarmac roads as mushy as porridge, Ibrahim managed a brisk trade by fishing from the depths of a deep freezer Coca Colas the consistency of ice. No other shop in Berbera has electricity.

"The Americans will buy things, you know," Ibrahim says. "We expect a lot of new business. They will buy everything."

Suleiman Jaman Ismail now runs a local hotel, though he is esteemed by his Berbera friends and neighbors for his worldly experience. Until recently he worked as a merchant seaman, fondly recalls a month of liberty in Los Angeles, and is the only person in Berbera a visitor met in a day of interviews who speaks English.

"With the Americans, it will be, ah, so good," Suleiman says, pursing his lips as if to blow a kiss. "After all, they are coming to help the Somali people. I also hope to do some more business."

A lot of people — most of Berbera, in fact — thinks the United States is "going to import Disneyland to Somalia," one American official said. "Boy, are they going to be disappointed."

In testimony in Washington, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense Robert H. Pelletreau told Congress that no U.S. military forces would be stationed in Berbera. He said $1 million would be spent in fiscal 1980 to upgrade its facilities and $10 million the following fiscal year.

Estimates vary, but most officials agree that several hundred American construction workers, either from the U.S. Navy or from private contractors, will be sent here initially to improve the facilities left behind by the evicted Russians, many of them uncompleted.

The greatest interest is focused on the airfield, about five miles from the seacoast. The airbase is unused, but is still out of bounds to nonmilitary personnel. Heat waves shimmering off the tarmac against a background of spectacular sandstone mountains is the closest most visitors get to it, despite the new friendship with the Americans.

American officials who have inspected the base say the runway built by the Russians is capable of handling most aircraft, even B52 strategic bombers. But the facility lacks apron parking, underground fuel tanks, even runway lights. The control tower is a tiny wooden shack and communications is limited to an ancient Russian radio capable only of Morse code.

The port is equally unimpressive.

A concrete jetty has berths for five medium-sized ships, already overcrowded with boats transporting camels to Saudi Arabia and unloading food aid for Somalia's hundreds of thousands of refugees.

Two giant Russian-built cranes have broken down and lie rusting on the quayside.

The Americans hope to utilize fuel bunkering facilities built by the Russians adjacent to the commercial port. They consist of 18 giant fuel tanks and the foundations for two more. The tanks are believed to have corroded, so they will have to be overhauled before use by American ships.

After the Russians were expelled in November 1977, when to Ethiopia in the Ogaden war, Somalia moved into the Russian homes and offices in the complex known as Moscow Village. A modern military hospital stands abandoned and empty in the middle of a field.

Current plans, according to American officials, call for stationing a "caretaker force" of between 50 and 200 men to keep the facilities in readiness for the arrival of larger forces in the event of an emergency.

But even the caretakers will need housing and other comforts which are clearly not available in Berbera.

"We have to be completely self-contained," said one American. "We're going to have to bring in everything, down to our own toilet paper."

President Raps Reagan In Talk To Supporters

By United Press International

But Carter managed to make a brief trip to Carter-Mondale campaign headquarters in Washington Friday to tell his supporters they must carry the ball for him and to criticize the Republicans.

"I have to conduct the affairs of our country," Carter said. "I can't take a three-month vacation from being president in order to run a campaign, attacking opponents who criticize every defect in our societal life and who make judgments about what might happen in an irresponsible fashion."

He predicted anything that goes wrong in the administration is "going to be highly publicized by the Republicans, most often in a distorted and highly irresponsible fashion."

Reagan's campaign manager, William Casey, held a news conference to denounce Carter for asking the Federal Communications Commission last week to require that broadcast stations give him equal time — free — for any ads placed by independent Reagan groups.

Casey said Carter's efforts to get equal air time is designed to keep stations from selling time to the pro-Reagan groups — and thus constitutes an abuse of free speech.

Hobbyists Consign Wares To New Shop In Sanford

By TOM NETSEL
Herald Staff Writer

The front of the shop is filled with dolls and puppets. Tiny figures, turtles and wooden whales fill the shelves. All items are made by hand.

There is a large multilevel doll house decorated with furniture made from wooden clothespins. Wall hangings and plant holders of macrame, items of clothing and paintings in oil compete for the browser's attention. Some are simple, some complex and oranate. Many are one-of-a-kind items made by local hobbyists and people who enjoy working with their hands.

"Many people, extremely talented, don't have an outlet for their products," said Joanne Smith, co-owner with Betsy Howard of the Jo-Lin House of Handicrafts on E. First Street, Sanford. "They can keep and give away only so much. They want to keep busy, so where do you go from there?"

Where more than 50 artists and craftsmen go is to the newly opened shop where they can sell their creations on consignment. Each artist sets his own price and the shop adds a percentage for their commission.

Mrs. Smith said many people bring in an item and ask what she thinks it should sell for. But it is hard to tell how much time and effort goes into a piece, especially in a field with which she is not familiar, so she leaves it up to the artist to determine what his work is worth.

Mrs. Smith estimates 75 percent of the hobbyists are elderly. One is an 83-year-old lady confined to a wheelchair who makes beautiful life-like flower arrangements. "Many are retired people," Mrs. Smith said, "who won't quit. They want something to do and to keep going."

Mrs. Smith's own specialty is ceramics and since they also operate the Outpouring Shop which stocks a complete line of ceramic supplies, they do not accept ceramic items on consignment. But artists in other fields amaze Mrs. Smith with their talent. "It fascinates me to know there are people who can pick up a paintbrush and look at a perfectly blank piece of carboard, or whatever, and come up with a beautiful picture."

The shop opened about two weeks ago on First Street. It originally opened last December in the Sanford Plaza, but the idea proved successful enough for Mrs. Smith to seek a larger facility. She said she had the idea for 10 or 15 years but it never got off the ground.

She has always been interested in crafts, dried flowers, ceramics and sewing, so the shop was an

The Bests Visit Home Of 30 Years Ago

Passion Play Highlights Germany Trip

Sybil and Tom Best review mementoes from the Passion Play in Oberammergau. The all-day religious drama has been presented there every 10 years for the past 300 years except during wartime.

In 1950 Sybil and Tom Best sat in a theater in the Bavarian Alps of Germany watching a play entirely in German. The seats were uncomfortable and the play, a religious drama, lasted all day.

"If anybody ever told me I'd sit on a wooden bench for eight hours to see a religious play," Best said, "I'd say they were crazy!" But sit he did and 30 years later he and his wife were doing it again.

The theater was in Oberammergau, where every 10 years the citizens of that mountain village present the Passion Play, a tradition that has lasted more than 300 years.

The Bests now live on Shealey Road in Lake Mary, but from 1948 to 1952 they lived in Germany. He was in the U. S. Air Force, a career pilot stationed in Frankfurt, and they lived in a small town called Hoescht.

At that time Germany was still trying to recover from the war. Many buildings were still in rubble but the Bests were living in a large three-story house that belonged to a chemist employed by one of Germany's large industrial firms. They had a young woman named Elfi working for them as a maid. Two of the Best's seven children were born in Frankfurt.

With the war over, the people of Oberammergau decided to continue with the vow they made centuries ago. In the early 1600s much of Europe was stricken with bubonic plague. Spread by fleas, it reached into all corners of the continent. Tucked away in the Alps, the little village of Oberammergau seemed immune until a shepherd brought the dreaded disease in with him.

Many caught the plague and died. The people of the village prayed for a cure and their prayers were answered. In return they vowed to present a play every decade depicting the last days on earth of Jesus Christ. Since 1632 they have kept their vow, interrupted only during the Napoleonic Wars and World War II.

In 1950 the play resumed. The Bests attended and planned to return some day. Two years later they left Germany and Elfi, their maid, saw them off at the railroad station.

Raising a family, going to school and careers prevented the Bests from returning in 1960 and 1970, but they vowed 1980 would be the year.

Best retired from the air force and Mrs. Best, a teacher at Midway Elementary School, had her summers free. They started planning their trip in 1979, making certain everything would be in order.

Hoping to visit their old home and see friends, the Bests tried to locate Elfi. She was engaged to marry a Herman Mille before they left and they had the address where he lived in the 1950s. As luck would have it, they had married and were living at the same address. They corresponded and planned to meet.

The Bests flew to Germany this summer and were met by their old friends. Much was still the same, said Best, but many of the old buildings had been repaired and there was a lot less rubble. Glass and steel skyscrapers had been added to the skylines.

But when they tried to locate their home in Hoescht, all they found was a parking lot. It had been leveled, paved over and was now part of a new highway.

They were more fortunate in searching for another dwelling where they lived in the '50s. "The second house had been designated a historical area," Mrs. Best said. The houses in that part of the town had been returned to their former pre-war grandeur.

Mrs. Best recalled the house had survived the war but was not kept up by the time they moved in. Now the inside had been remodeled, brocade wallpaper put up, nice furniture installed and the exterior freshly painted.

As they were photographing the house from the street, the present owner came out to speak with them. When he learned they had once lived there, he invited them in for a visit.

"It was a trip of nostalgia," Mrs. Best said of their journey back to Germany.

Spending about two weeks in Germany, they traveled primarily by train and were impressed by the punctual and frequent service. They were also impressed by the high prices. Gasoline sells for $3 a gallon, and a glass of "Florida Boy" orange juice on the train set them back $2.

After the war, Best recalled, the people wore very

Betsy Howard, Mrs. Smith's partner, handles much of the ceramic pouring and teaching. As a teen-ager she was troubled with leg problems and was in a cast for nine months. To keep her busy, doctors recommended she try ceramics. The hobby grew into a business.

She ran a ceremics shop in Jacksonville for a number of years before moving to Sanford. After working in the shop at the plaza, Mrs. Howard became a partner when they moved downtown.

In addition to chores in the shop, Mrs. Howard has two of her own children to occupy her time plus seven foster children. Though Mrs. Howard was too modest to mention it, but Mrs. Smith said all of the foster children in her care are retarded to some degree.

Local handicrafters are encouraged to submit their work for possible sale at Mrs. Howard's option, and while a piece may sit for several months and then sell, she advises hobbyists not to get discouraged.

Local shoppers and tourists drop in everyday with different tastes looking for different items. Today it might be a miniature mermaid— tomorrow, a mirror framed in seashells.

Series Of Bridal Parties Given For Debbie Ramsay

Debbie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ramsay, becomes the bride of Mark Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Smith, on Sept. 13.

Mrs. Owen (Karen) McCarron and her daughter, Sherri McCarron, entertained 25 guests. Mothers, Mrs. John Ramsay and Mrs. James Smith, and grandmothers, Mrs. Y.C. Bollinger and Mrs William E. Ramsay, were among those attending.

The bride-elect's color, apricot, was carried out in the refreshments and decor. Many gifts displayed under a white lace umbrella were received by Debbie. The cake was beautifully decorated in colors of apricot and white.

Mrs. L. E. (Gracie) Rumbaugh and her daughter, Mrs. Raymond (Donna) Maltby, Jr. honored Debbie at the Rumbaugh home at a miscellanious shower with 20 guests present.

A three-tiered wedding cake made by Mrs. Rumbaugh was decorated with apricot colored roses cascading down the sides and a miniature bride posed atop the cake.

A lingerie shower at the Sandlewood Villas Clubhouse was given by Mrs. John Mickey Searcy for Debbie. The 20 guests presented her with many gifts. Both mothers were among the guests.

A surprise linen shower was given by Miss Susan Mark on Sept. 4. Guests included the mothers and grandmothers. Refreshments were enjoyed while the bride-elect opened her gifts.

A bridesmaid's luncheon was held at the Casselberry home of the bride elect's aunt, Mrs. J. W. Bollinger last Saturday. Co-hostess was Mrs. Y.C. Bollinger, Debbie's grandmother.

The beautiful table was overlaid with a white lace tablecloth. An arrangement of white carnations, mums and baby breath of apricot color adorned the center of the table. Debbie presented her attendants with gifts and received crystal and silver serving pieces.

Among the guests were Miss Sherrie McCarron, maid of honor; Jenny McCarron, junior bridesmaid; Carol Van Winkle, Susan Mark, Kathy Burke, bridesmaids, and little Alyne Bollinger who will serve as flower girl.

The Hernerocallis Garden Club will convene Sept. 18 at the home of Pearl Bates for he first meeting of the new season. President Olga Hunter will preside. A silent auction will be held.

Marion Quigley recently spent a memorable 10 days at the shore in New Jersey visiting with her many friends. It was just one big happy party from beginning to end.

Remember, next week is Youth Week and Sept. 18 is Youth Day in Lake Mary. The Rotarians will be conducting activities from breakfast on through the day until awards are given out in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Gleason have returned after a glorious five weeks in northeastern New York state.

They lived in a cottage on the St. Lawrence river where they could look across into Canada. After an absence of seven years they truly enjoyed visits with relatives and friends. Mrs. Gleason declares the weather was very pleasant.

drab clothing. All that has changed now. With the highest economy in Europe, the Germans now wear bright, well-made and expensive clothing.

The theater seats 3,000 but the end near the stage is open to the weather. A 65-piece orchestra is hidden beneath the revolving stage and snow covered peaks can be seen in the distance above the actors.

The Bests attended a performance on July 2 but the weather behaved like November. "Oh, it was cold that day," Mrs. Best recalled.

"It was rainy and cold," her husband said. "It was in the low 40's."

Since the theater was open and not heated, Best said he wore two pairs of pants, two shirts, a T-shirt, a sweater, a jacket and a raincoat with a blanket over their laps.

They sat from 8 until 11 a.m. when the play halted for a two-hour lunch break. Live animals are used in the production and since the stage was open to the rainy weather, Best said the animals had to wear specially designed rubber boots to prevent their hooves from slipping on the wet floor. After lunch the play continued until 5 p.m.

It is a very realistic and moving production depicting Christ's crucification complete with thunder and lightning special effects. "A lot of people around us were crying when it was over," Mrs. Best said.

The actors are all local villagers and proceeds go to improve the town. A swimming pool and sports complex was built from funds raised in 1970, Best said.

Despite the bad weather the Bests experienced throughout Germany, they thoroughly enjoyed themselves and hope to do it again. "I don't regret a thing," said Best. "I wish we could have stayed a month — two months. I like it over there. The rain didn't stop us."

Clergywoman Takes Stand On Equality

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I enjoy your column thoroughly. It's one part of the newspaper I rarely skip. It's because of the influence you exercise that I'm moved to write.

Recently, the Richmond Times-Dispatch ran in your column the letter from "M. in Passaic," the railroad worker's widow who wished to marry religiously but not legally. You replied that if there were a compassionate minister in Passaic willing to bless a union of that sort, you "hope he contacts" you.

This is the second time within the past year that you've made the assumption that the minister would be a man.

Abby, there are several thousand dedicated women clergy among us, and we still face enormous discrimination in church employment. Fulfilling our calls to preach and administer the sacraments involves an often, lonely and uphill battle against deep-rooted prejudices in favor of male clergy.

Please don't make our struggle for recognition any more difficult than it is by assuming that all pastors are men.

Thank you for your consideration.

THE REV. ANITA J. BALYEA (PASTOR), ST. MATTHEW LUTHERAN CHURCH, RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR MS. BALY: Thanks for the reminder. From now on it will be "A-men and A-women!"

DEAR ABBY: Seeing as how I was new in town, I stopped a nice-looking man on the street and asked him for directions. He said it wasn't far, and since he was going that way he would walk me there. Before we parted he asked me if he could see me again and I said yes.

To make a long story short, Mike and I started going together and now, eight months later, we are very much in love and have even talked about marriage some time in the future.

Abby, Mike never talks about his parents, his life or anything to do with his past. He says he has no friends or living relatives, no parents, no sisters or brothers. He doesn't talk about his job, either. He just says he "sells" for a living.

I am 30 and have never been married. Mike says he is 33 and has never been married either. He has been to my flat but I have never been to his. (I don't even know where he lives.)

Is it possible that he has no friends or living relatives?

CHARLENE

DEAR CHARLENE: Possible, but not probable. Before you invest more time in this mysterious character, find out what it is he "sells" and for whom. It could be a line you don't need.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a traveling man, but I never worry about his going out with other women when he's on the road. Know why? Just before he leaves I give him so much loving he's lucky if he has enough strength to carry his sample cases to the car. Pass this on.

NO WORRIES IN WORCESTER

DEAR NO WORRIES: I don't want to worry you, lady, but a man can have the finest banquet in the world, and six hours later he's hungry again.

Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 122 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

When FFWC past presidents are honored at the Tuesday banquet, Mrs. Ralph Austin (Charlotte) Smith will be the keynote speaker using as her theme "FFWC — A Beacon to Follow."

Charlotte was president of the FFWC from 1942-44 during World War II. During tenure, over $3 million worth of War Bonds were sold by Florida clubs. Her administration began four months after Pearl Harbor and she emphasized the war effort.

For the past 18 years, Charlotte was parliamentarian of the Woman's Club of Sanford, and was the club president from 1933-34. Before becoming FFWC president, Charlotte held several other offices in the federation. She is also a past president of the Seminole County Federation of Women's Clubs.

Charlotte holds the distinction as the first woman in Seminole County called to jury duty. She is an honorary member of Beta Chi Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma and has served on the Salvation Army Advisory Board and the United Way Board. She is also a past president of the Seminole Mutural Concert Association and Orlando Parliamentarians.

During her travels with the General Federation of Women's Clubs tours, Charlotte has visited federated clubs in Hawaii, New Zealand, Australia, the Philippines, Tokyo, Berlin, Thailand, Taiwan and Alaska.

Her church accomplishments are numerous including serving as president of the Sanford United Church Women and the St. John's Presbyterial. Charlotte was a deacon, secretary of the Diaconate, and an elder at the First Presbyterian Church of Sanford.

She was born in Meridian, Miss. and has lived in Sanford for 54 years. She and Mr. Smith have two sons, four grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

The hostess districts for this meeting are Districts 5, 7, and 14. District 7 comprises the federated clubs of Seminole with Mrs. M.E. (Vida) Smith of the Sanford Club as president. The club is in charge of all activities on Tuesday, Sept. 23, including luncheon.

Dr. Edwards, who is from Orlando, is a 1970 graduate of Boone High School and Emory University School of Dentistry, Atlanta.

Joan is from Jackson, Tenn., and is a talented vocalist who has already signed in with the choir at the First United Methodist Church. Her other interests are piano and needlepoint.

Friends who know Dr. Edwards say he is "very good humored and quick with the wit," a characteristic of his associate, Dr. A.W. "Dub" Epps Jr., whose famous last words are, "Keep smiling."

Margo Dowlen was a June graduate of The University of South Florida. A belated gift is a trip to the Hawaiian Islands from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam (Joyce) Dowlen.

Joyce will accompany Margo and the two will meet with another daughter, Shelly Dowlen, a real estate agent in Santa Barbara, Calif. From there the three will drift toward the tropical islands for two weeks of fun and relaxation.

The trio plan to visit all of the islands then back to Los Angeles before touching down in Orlando.

Margo will dance in Atlanta after paradise in the islands. The former dancer with Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole said she will dance as opposed to teaching. "I still have a lot more of performance in me," the pretty blonde chuckled.

Speaking of Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole, Sonny Turner will present a benefit performance "An Evening with the Family" Sunday, Sept. 14, at Sheik's, Conway Center, Orlando. All ticket proceeds will go to the guild, a non-profit organization.

Advance tickets are available or tickets may be purchased at the door for the two performances, 8 and 10. For information, call Gail Bell, 323-3798, or Mary Blair, 323-3845.

The Ryes were in a party with their daughters and families, Mirian and David Wright, and Valerie and Goerge Weld, and daughters, Valerie Ann and Natalie.

The occasion was a birthday dinner for David.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry (Marcia) McLaulin will observe their 50th wedding anniversary with open house on Sunday, Sept. 21, from noon to 4 p.m. at the home of Jeanette Kinlaw, 307 Vihlen Road.

All friends and relatives are cordially invited to call during the appointed hours. The couple requests "no gifts, please."

Joan Cameron is planning another cake show this year. Proceeds from the first show last fall went to United Way. This year the show will benefit the elderly, according to Joan.

It will be held Oct. 25 at the Knights of Columbus Hall. Contestants will compete for prizes and trophies. Joan says she plans to bake and decorate 60 cakes for elderly shut-ins on the Meals On Wheels Program. Those who cannot eat sweets will be given a substitute, she said.

Beta Sigma Phi Chapters

Gamma Lambda

Members of Gamma Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi (BSP) held their first meeting of September at the home of Donna Frank.

The membership chairman, Wanda Bronson, reviewed ideas for the rush planned for October. There will be a model meeting for new members and then a Halloween party to welcome them to the chapter.

Members and their husbands will go to a movie and then to a local restaurant for the social in September. Other socials are being planned.

The Ways and Means committee discussed the items to be made and sold at a BSP bazaar to be held on Nov. 22 at the Sanford Garden Club. All of the chapters will participate.

Service projects for the year will include BETA house and the Lakeview Nursing Home.

The program was a baby shower for Marcy O'Brien and the O'Brien's newest addition, Joshua Andrew, who received many useful items. Cake and punch were served for refreshments.

Xi Theta Epsilon

The home of Al Kirtz in Longwood was the scene of The Beginning Day luncheon and swim party for the Xi Theta Epsilon Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi.

The luncheon consisted of a variety of salads prepared by members, iced tea and soft drinks. Ways and Means projects for the year were discussed.

Joanne Mize To Teach 'Divorce Crisis' Class

The Office of Community Services of Seminole Community College will offer a class "Dealing with the Crisis of Divorce and Separation."

This class is designed to help those who are: contemplating divorce, moving through the divorce process, and are divorced. A group setting will be established whereby individuals may realistically view options and alternatives. The general goals of the group are to provide: support, identify, information, and tools for positive self-growth and self-trust. The specific goals include: value clarification, social skills, and emotional release-coping.

The instructor for the class will be Joanne Page Mize, M.A., Individual, Marriage and Family counselor, who is in private practice in Sanford. Ms. Mize has special training in the area of divorce counseling, having completed the Divorce Adjustment Institute of Chicago counselor training course, and Dr. Shelia Kessler's Beyond Divorce I workshop.

The class will begin Sept. 15, and will continue for eight Monday evenings from 7-10 in room L-211. This class is open to men and women and the fee is $10.00.

For information call the Office of Community Services, 323-1450, ext. 304.

Revelation

It is so much more beautiful than words. The sun touches the lake to bronze and the sky is a wonderful blend of apricot and mauve and burnished orange. The big buck silhouetted at the water's edge seems to be looking right at you. For the moment, at least, you are both unafraid.

You store this sight in your memory, to be dusted off on days when the view is cloudy. Remembering, you realize anew that there's something so much bigger than all of us. No man could have made that lake, nor that sky, nor that deer, nor all that glory.

Nature is an ultimate teacher. It would seem, in fact, as if God must have chosen nature as a kind of reflection. Your place of worship is a reflection, too. Why not take a look at it?

Evangelistic Center Dedicated

Billy Graham's Dream Comes True

By DAVID SMOTHERS
UPI Senior Editor

WHEATON, Ill. (UPI) — The five-story, $13.5 million hunk of red bricks squats below the gracious, hill-topped campus of Wheaton College.

The monolith of Wheaton bears a distinguished name. It is the Billy Graham Center, named for the evangelist of international renown who graduated from Wheaton in 1943.

The center is Graham's dream and he has backed it with millions from his foundation. At first glance it would seem hard to find a better place than Wheaton to serve his purpose.

It is the home base of about 30 institutions and publications dedicated to the principles of Protestant evangelism.

No bars sully its leafy streets, although the Wheaton Theater shows R-rated movies, and the hard core of its 40,000 population is rock-ribbed Christian, in the strict Protestant sense.

It also has Wheaton College.

For 126 years, ever since it was founded "For Christ And His Kingdom," it has been the place where Bible-belt young people have come for a solid education in the liberal arts and, if they are so inclined, training and inspiration in going forth and spreading the word of God.

Billy Graham is only the most famous of them. Wheaton graduates have been preaching the Word around the world for generations.

Now, with the Graham Center, the college has the chance to become THE international center of evangelism.

Some faculty members are not at all sure they want that.

"I don't want this to become a Bible school," Dr. Robert Webber said. This seemed surprising since Wheaton College has often been regarded as just that and Webber is a professor in Biblical history.

He said the concept of Wheaton College as a school for Bible thumpers is wrong.

"The major reason for concern is that this has been a liberal arts college," he said. "Some of us feel the presence of the Graham Center may shift its emphasis to evangelism rather than the liberal arts.

"It's a Christian school. It teaches the Bible, and it teaches science, literature, and philosophy. The concern is that evangelism should become more important than philosophy, that the concerns of liberal education may be lost, the essential character of Wheaton College may be lost.

"Philosophy is just as important as missions and evangelism."

Dr. Harold Best is dean of the college's conservatory of music and director of the programs committee for the Graham Center. He said he was angry when the place started to go up and some of his fellow faculty members still are.

Now, he said, "I think the faculty is ready to be pivoted, to be turned away from a general feeling of 'What's going to happen down there? What's that large building going to do? Does it talk at night? After m i d n i g h t does it go 'Whoosh!'"

"It's a huge structure. It's not a pretty building. We have a huge facility down there which lacks aesthetic finesse. But that won't keep me as a person who loves beauty from saying 'OK, we're going to do beautiful things down there.'

"It's a very large entity bringing in a way a very international input into the campus. It's got to be controversial. Therein lies its potential glory and therein lies the potential danger.

"We've got to come up with the ideas whereby Wheaton will be enhanced without being done away with."

The reason, he said, is "because of the magnitude of world evangelism, because of the whole cultural meaning of Bible belt fundamentalism ... and ... Biblical evangelism — and there is a difference — and because the Graham Center brings both the theoretical and the evangelical together in a phenomenally large way."

Graham said he was hardly aware of any dispute. If such exists, he said in a telephone interview, he is hardly surprised.

"There's always controversy about anything on a college campus," he said. "That's part of a college.

"That center is just named after me. It is wholly owned and operated by Wheaton College. It's merely been enlarged. You won't find 'Bible' colleges giving masters' degrees in psychology and journalism as this one does."

OFFICERS ELECTED

New officers elected by the Sanford Ministerial Association include (from left) Capt. Curt Phillips of the Salvation Army, president; the Rev. Philip C. Walsanen, First Assembly of God, vice-president; and Rev. D.K. Gunter, Church of God, secretary; and the Rev. Gary DeBusk, Ravenna Park Baptist Church, treasurer. The association will meet Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the First Assembly of God, 304 W. 27th St.

Allen Chapel Sets Women's Day Events

Mrs. Linton was an advanced chemistry, algebra, health, and physical science teacher at Edgewater High School for seven years. She is a prospective March 1981 graduate of the College of Pharmacy, University of Florida.

DOROTHY LINTON

Mrs. Betty Luster of this city will deliver the message at the 5 p.m. service. Mrs. Luster is also an ardent church and community worker.

Hope For Married Priests Slim

Some ex-Roman Catholic priests, who gave up their calling in order to marry, may now feel there is new reason to hope that they will one day be re-admitted to the priesthood.

But it is unlikely that the Church will soon change its rule requiring celibacy for priests, even though it has agreed to accept some married Episcopal clergymen into the Catholic priesthood.

Most in the Church will defend celibacy on theological grounds: A celibate priest can serve God with greater "singleness of purpose." Some, however, will agree that the church's position is at least partly economic, for how could the Church afford to pay its clergy enough for them to support a wife and family? And others will make their argument on the grounds of clerical effectiveness: The unmarried clergyman does a better job.

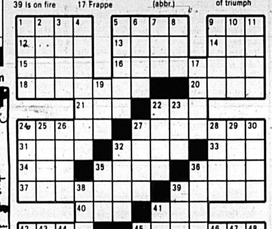
Answer to Previous Puzzle—



WIN AT BRIDGE

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Transfers to a major are a cinch here. You bid three diamonds for hearts and three hearts for spades.

Minor transfers present some difficulty since they would take you past three notrump. Therefore, best practice is to use the three spades as a general minor-suit hand.

Opener goes to three notrump if his strength is concentrated in majors — say S-K Q 10 6 H-A K Q D-Q 5 4 C-A J 5 — and otherwise bids his better minor. With minors the same, he bids four clubs. If responder bids four notrump next, he is suggesting that he is willing to stop at four notrump, but has some slam interest since otherwise he would have just raised two notrump to three.

Thus, with S-5 4 H-K 7 6 D-K 10 5 4 3 C-9 8 5, you would not bother with any effort to get to a diamond contract. But with S-6 H-K 7 6 D-K 10 9 7 5 2 C-10 5 4, you would bid that three spades to see what might happen.

In 30 years experience with ITB over two notrump, Oswald Jacoby has played exactly one hand at a major-suit part score and he says that was a mistake. His two-notrump opening was S-A 2 H-A K J x D-K Q x x C-A J 9. His partner bid three diamonds and he just bid three hearts. His partner with a real horror passed, but four was a laydown.

He explains that he should have jumped to four hearts rather than take the chance of missing game. A word to the wise: If you start using ITB over two notrump, make sure that you and your partner have a complete agreement as to what bids, if any, ask for aces.

Thus, in the sequence 2 NT-3 D-3 H-4 C, is 4 C Gerber, or is it just some sort of club bid?

YOUR BIRTHDAY
September 15, 1980

Sturdier foundations may be laid this coming year because of what the past two years have brought you. Gains and achievements that weren't possible before can now become reality.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Take time to clear up matters of importance. This is one of your better problem-solving days. The answers become clear as you delve into the situations. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Something to which you've been entitled has been denied you, or has been frustratingly delayed. It may now finally come through for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An older or more experienced person can be a great help to you today. He or she comes to your aid because of the diligence with which you work toward your goal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) That little extra push can get you something on which you've spent a great deal of time. Today's not the time to let up. Give it your all.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The way you view situations today can guide you to successful conclusions if you follow through on what you know to be right. Don't yield to pressure.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Worthwhile gains can come from shared involvements, if both parties are willing to give more of themselves. You set the example.

PISES (Feb. 20-March 20) Seek the advice of an older or wiserperson if you're not certain of how a situation should be handled. Experience is still the best guide.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Difficult situations involving work or career challenge you today, but it isn't likely they'll shake you up. You're more than a match for them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Although you'll enjoy social encounters today you won't let them interfere with things that must get done, or with how efficiently you handle your tasks.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today those dull, practical, domestic matters that usually bore you to tears shouldn't seem so difficult. Get them out of the way.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Duty may take precedence over frivolous activities today, but you'll take this in stride and feel very proud for doing what must be done.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your practical, no-nonsense approach makes this a good day to do the budgeting. If one can get blood from a turnip, you'll find the way.

Doctors Save Baby's Brain By Reshaping His Skull

DENVER (UPI) — The only evidence that 5-month-old Jason McTaggart went through a complicated operation to rearrange and reshape the bones in his head is a pink scar running ear-to-ear across the top of his hairless scalp.

But the scar, said Dr. Richard E. Albin of the Denver Children's Hospital, will disappear as the boy's hair grows back.

Albin examined Jason recently and proclaimed the surgery performed three weeks ago a success.

"The problem was that the bones of the skull were growing together too fast," said Albin, one of three doctors who operated on the baby. "It produced an abnormally shaped skull, without enough room for his brain to grow."

Albin warned Jason's parents that without the surgery the baby would likely become mentally retarded and the abnormality would increase, with part of the skull protruding more as the boy grew.

"Jason's as happy and alert as he ever was," said the baby's mother, Ruth, 24. "Everything went so well."

In the operation, an incision from the top of one ear to the other was made in Jason's scalp and the skin was peeled back to the eyes and to the neck.

Albin said a bone slice was taken from the top of Jason's head, from the hairline to the back of the skull, measuring about 2 inches by 4½ inches. With the removal of two other bones, the head was shortened from front to back.

"In front, we removed the entire forehead, all the way across above the eyes, to take one more piece of bone out," Albin said. That piece was reshaped and repositioned.

"In Jason's case, we pushed that bone forward about five-eights of an inch, then wired it in place," Albin explained. "We left an open place behind it for the brain to grow into — a space from temple to temple. The brain can now grow as it needs to."

He said the procedure was no more risky than childbirth.

The other doctors involved in the operation were neurosurgeon Robert Hendre and Richard S. O'Donnell, a plastic surgeon and dentist. Hendee completed the initial cutting and closure, while Albin and O'Donnell reshaped the bones.

'The Altamonte 500'

Kelly, 2, of 1106 Sheffield Court, is the daughter of Jack and Nancy Davis. John, 15, who lives on Apple Lane, performs stunts in the Lake Brantley High School parking lot. Is this how A.J. Iran To Tackle Hostage Issue

By United Press International

The speaker of Iran's parliament says the legislature will begin its long-awaited debate on the hostages Tuesday and "make a decision" on the fate of the 52 Americans, now in their 11th month of capitivity.

In Washington, former South Dakota Sen. James Abourzek, the official U.S. legal representative for Iran's government, told a Sioux Falls Radio station: "I think you will see some movement very quickly."

The abrupt decision to discuss the hostages came three days after Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini dropped the demand for a U.S. apology as a condition for release of the 52 Americans, held captive for 317 days.

It also came as Iran's border war with Iraq heated up and spread to a Persian Gulf port in the first naval encounter of the fighting between the two Middle East nations.

"The Iraqi forces are massed along the border," acting chief of staff Gen. Fallahi said on the radio Sunday after inspecting the battle zone. "They are ready and have deployed their entire capability."

The decision for a full debate on the hostages was made Sunday when an open letter sent last July from 187 U.S. Congressmen was read to the members of Iran's Majlis, or parliament.

Parliament speaker Ayatollah Hashemi Rafasanjani also confirmed he had received a second letter from congressmen that was a follow-up to the earlier letter in July to begin to act to release the hostages.

"A decision was made in the Majlis today regarding a reply to the letter by the U.S. Congress, and substantial discussion on the hostages will begin on Tuesday and the Majlis will make a decision," Rafsanjani said.

But Rafsanjani said that "in turn" America must show its sincerity by publishing parliament's full reply to the congressmen's request to begin action on the hostages.

"If it fails to do this it will have shown its lack of good will, and this will have an adverse effect on our talks," he said.

Khomeini Friday said the hostages could be released if the late shah's wealth is returned, U.S. claims against Iran are canceled, Washington guarantees no U.S. intervention in Iran and releases frozen Iranian funds.

U.S.-Built Plane Crash Kills 89 Saudi Crewmen

JEDDAH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — An American-built Hercules military transport plane crashed near the holy Moslem city of Medina, killing at least 89 of the crew and military personnel on board, a Saudi Defense Ministry statement said today.

"Preliminary investigations indicate at least 89 persons, including crew members, were killed in the catastrophic accident of the Hercules C-130 transport plane," it said.

The statement did not disclose whether the crash late Sunday occurred during takeoff or landing at Medina airport, or whether there were any survivors.

The official Saudi Press agency said investigators were still looking for the "black box" flight recorder to determine the cause of the accident near the airport in Medina, the third holiest city in Islam after Mecca and Jerusalem.

It was the second plane disaster in Saudi Arabia in less than a month. In August, all 301 passengers and crew on a Saudi Airlines L-1011 TriStar were killed at Jeddah airport when fire broke out onboard and rescue workers were unable to open the aircraft's doors.

The agency said Crown Prince Fahd, who has been substituting for King Khalid during the monarch's holiday in Switzerland, was following with "concern" news of the incident.

It was the second crash of a Hercules plane owned by an Arab army in 10 days. On Sept. 5, a similar plane crashed over southern France killing all eight Kuwaiti military personnel on board.

Sanford Church Youth Group Pickets 'Wholly Moses!'

Claiming that a biblical parody is "unfair to God," a handful of pickets from a local church youth group have taken up posts outside of Sanford's Plaza Twin movie theater.

The protesters, members of "The Lighthouse," youth group of Sanford's First Assembly of God, 304 W. 27th St., began their picket of "Wholly Moses!" Friday night. They say they will be back tonight and every night until the film closes Thursday.

"Wholly Moses!" is the story of "Herschel," who overhears God telling Moses to bring religion to his people and believes he is the one given the job.

"It's unfair to God. It shows his angels, God's messengers, drunk," said Steve Randall, leader of the group.

Randall, who said he has seen only a few minutes of the actual film plus television commercials and previews for it, said he did not plan to see the film he was protesting. One of the other protesters said he had left the theater after seeing only a few minutes of the film.

"I don't have to support the trash," he said, adding his group based its protests on reports by "an agent" sent to watch the film.

He and three other Lighthouse members were out in front of the theater in the Sanford Plaza Saturday night attempting to dissuade people from attending the film.

"Laugh now, pay later," and "God isn't laughing," read their signs.

But theater goers did not seem to be heeding their message. "With all that's going on in the world, he's got to be able to take a joke," said Tom Braceland, a moviegoer whose remarks typified feelings expressed by the audience about the way they believed God would react to the film.

Randall said the protests served more than one function. It also allowed youth group members to give their message to the crowds of people who gather outside the theater on weekend nights. "It's a party spot," he said, explaining, "every one of us will see someone he knows out here tonight, or someone who wants to know us."

Theater Manager Ernie Plitz said the protesters have not interfered with the showing of the film or with plans to show the film through Thursday.

"It's a free country. They have the right to be there," he said, adding the protest had not cut down on business. Several of the movie patrons commented they were particularly interested in seeing the film to find out what the protest was about.

Weekend Robberies Plague City

Two Sanford men suffered gunshot wounds and three Sanford men were arrested this weekend in three separate armed robberies, city police report.

Winston Dawson, 22, of 741 Riverview Ave., Sanford, was shot in the back Sunday night as he ran from robbers at the corner of First Street and Cedar Avenue, police say.

Dawson told police he was walking along First at 8:30 p.m. when two persons stopped him and demanded he give them money.

After Dawson told the two he had no cash, the one with the gun attempted to shoot him, police say. The gun misfired and Dawson ran from the thieves, police say.

A second shot fired properly, and Dawson was struck in the right shoulder. He ran to his brother's home at 111 Oleander Ave., and was taken from there by car to Seminole Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released.

In another robbery, two men leaving the Elk's Club with a cash box Saturday morning were also robbed at gunpoint, police say, adding one of the two was shot in the leg by a fleeing thief.

James Abney, 950 Pine Ave., Sanford, left the Elk's Club, 619 Cypress Ave., Sanford, with Ike Allexander, address unreported, at 5:39 a.m. Saturday, when the two men were approached by two robbers, one holding a pistol, police say.

Police say the thieves took a box from Abney containing about $200, then fled. One of the two fired a shot hitting Abney in the right calf, police say.

He was treated and released from Seminole Memorial Hospital.

Police say they have no suspects in either of those two robberies.

In a third robbery, police did make three arrests a short time after a Sanford gas station attendant was robbed at gunpoint Saturday night.

Shortly after 9 p.m., three men, one carrying a gun, robbed an attendant at Hi-Way Oil, 2100 S. french Ave., of an undisclosed amount of cash.

A short time later, police arrested three men, all charged with armed robbery and use of a firearm. All three were ordered held without bond.

Arrested were Willie James Nelmons, 20, of 2003 Summerlin Ave., Sanford; David Thomas, 19, of 122 Drew Ave., Sanford, and Izel Martin, 21, of 117 Hughes Ave., Sanford. — DAVID M. RAZLER
