Stay Sweet Will Attempt To Cop Third Victory Tonight

LONGWOOD.—Stay Sweet never worse than second in her four starts this season, will attempt to cop her third victory tomorrow night in the feature eighth race at the Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club.

Once she has beaten the rugged Hi-Guide, since she has defeated a lesser field and twice she has run second to Hi-Guide in starts to date.

Hi-Guide will not in tonight's race, but the W. Winton entry will be furnished tough competition by Jack Frost, Yoakl Boy and several other outstanding top flex hounds. Despite the opposition, however, she will probably be a hot favorite at 6 to 5 or less.

A modern track record was set on Monday night and when Dobbs, owned by the Pool brothers, started and won for the third time in as many racing nights he clicked off another. Friday, Saturday and came back Monday with one day's rest to repeat the performances—all victories recorded in 30 flat for the futurity distance.

Big money on some of the first places, and fast action for all of the races continued to hold the interest of greyhound racing enthusiasts, as the Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club continued its eighth consecutive season here last night.

Writer Jones, running in the ninth race, came in first to pay $8.20, while in the fifth, a 5-16 distance, Lady Of Fleer broke well and out finished Follow Officer to pay $22.60 for the win.

Another big winner came in the first race, when Blue Lilly paid $10.40 for first and $24.60 to place.

Blue Lilly broke slowly but picked up going away Marcel Wave took a good lead at first and could not hold it. Black Nigger raced evenly throughout the distance.

The rest in the race had no show. The quinella on a combination of 1-3 paid off $18.80, while the daily double, on a 4-6 combination of Bone Trouble and Railroad Gin paid $12.40.

Races will continue tonight, with good action on the featured event, and fast racing promised on the other nine races on the program.

Races are held at the Kennel Club each evening except Sunday throughout the season.

Madam, does an old TABOO prevent your knowing this help?

It's not taboo today to discuss plain facts. Thousands of women praise CARDUI's 2-way help: taken as a tonic, it usually pops up appetite, stimulates flow of gastric juices, thus aiding digestion and halting resistance. Started 3 days before the time, and taken as directed, it should help relieve much purely functional periodic pain. A 42-year record says it may help.

SURVIVAL
(From Talaria)

Strange and wild, but oh, so logical
Are the ways of a mother cat;
Soft, unclawed, and pedagogical,
Her paw is lifted—that's that!
The playful kitten, unhurt but awed,
Cuddles down for a theological
Dream of a potent jungle god,
As mother cat does a zoological
Lightning change to a dangerous beast,
Predatorily biological,
Stalking a gorily dripping feast.

As the tenth of the month draws nigh and the time comes when we will have to pay those December bills, we realize more than ever before that there is nothing mythical at all in this Santa Claus business.

The Florida Supreme Court has lost one of its most able judges in the retirement after 39 years service of Judge Whitfield, but in Tom Sebring, young and brilliant attorney and former football coach at the University of Florida, the court has a worthy successor.

Our guess is that if farmers, truck drivers, business men and others didn't have to stand in line for hours at a time at the Rationing Board every time they want to buy anything, they would have time enough to produce enough stuff to make rationing unnecessary.

In order to get a ration card you have to keep track of your mileage as indicated by your speedometer. In case your speedometer is broken or you don't have one, you don't get it fixed and you can't buy a new one because they don't make 'em any more, or even any parts. The bureaucrats just don't imagine an automobile being so old the speedometer is worn out.

Paying the Victory Tax is going to be fun as compared with paying 1942 income taxes which were the highest of all time. Instead of fewer people will pay income taxes this year than ever before, too. In fact a lot more will pay income taxes who always thought they were exempt for the big rich to pay. In 1939 there were 4,000,000 persons paying income taxes; in 1942 there will be 15,000,000.

Absent Workmen

One of the big industrial regions, now completely occupied with war work, reports that last Dec. 7, Pearl Harbor Day, one worker out of every 19 was absent from his job. The same ratio was found a week later. A previous survey in November had shown one out of 16 absent. Normal absences, as figured by the War Manpower Commission, would be only one worker out of 40.

The absentee curve always rises on Saturday, and on the day after Christmas it amounted to 30 percent in some plants.

Ordinarily such reports, while regrettable, would not be regarded as serious. But at a time when the fate of freedom and civilization is at stake, it suggests that too many American workmen either don't know, or don't care, what their absence means to their country and the world.

If they were in the army or navy they wouldn't lay off whenever they felt like it. True, they mostly work hard making those munitions. But they don't work so hard or so long as their friends and neighbors who are fighting in North Africa and the South Seas. They are safe and snug and making good money.

A big majority of workmen understand the situation, accept their responsibility, and do their best for their country. They should exert some patriotic pressure on the laggards.

Doubt In Japan

Improbable as it may seem, reason is beginning to penetrate the depths of Japanese fanaticism. General Tojo, in his capacity as minister of war, tells his countrymen that the war has just begun and they are in for a long struggle.

They are indeed, but this is the first sign that the military leaders realize that Americans are not push-overs. The first outward sign, that is, for the Japanese preparations have shown so much cool calculation that they can hardly have overlooked America's fundamental strength.

Tojo's warning is explained by the heavy losses of Japanese planes and shipping. Eddie Rickenbacker, who should know, says the quality of Nipponese pilots is deteriorating, and it is easier than it was to knock their planes down. Japan may lay in a heavy stock of war materials but in many lines she has not the means of getting more when they are gone. Some important ones are going fast.

Tojo's speech must be a shock to the worshipping peasants and workmen who have been taught that Japan was the strongest country in the world, and that the armaments of their enemies had been virtually destroyed. As time goes on, those same peasants and workmen may even begin to doubt the supreme wisdom of their rulers.

Everything Okay

"I'm sorry," said the diner, who hoped to get away with it, "but I haven't any money to pay for that meal."

"Don't do that. Everybody who comes in will see it."

"Oh, no, they won't. Your overcoat will be hanging over it."—Augusta (Me.) Rotary News.

The Miami Herald presents figures to show that of the 13 outstanding necessities of war the South furnishes a general average of 56½ percent of them.

From April, 1940, to July, 1942, 1,000,000 men, women and children left the farm. The war claimed 500,000 of the adults and war industries absorbed 500,000 of the men. The situation is getting so serious congress is considering a bill to make us stay on the farm.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. — Those aren't planes that darken the capital sky—they're storks.

If there is any place in the country where more babies are being born per capita, the statisticians haven't found it yet, in spite of the fact that the birth rate is zooming from border to gulf and coast to coast.

The birth rate for the nation started climbing in 1933. It didn't amount to much. It was 16.6 births per thousand of population in 1933. Seven years later, it was only 17.9, but in the following 12 months it went up 18.9 (The first year of the draft) and in the first year the United States was at war, it skyrocketed to 22.0—an all time high and nearly 4.5 births per thousand more than the peak reached in World War 1.

In Washington, the rate now is 25.2, one birth per thousand more than that figure that staggered the statisticians here last year.

You can get all sorts of reasons for this from the experts, but the one most often given is the concentration here of army and navy officers and their wives. Back in the summer months, the Children's Bureau made a survey of about half the states to determine the birth rate among military men and their wives. They found it was something like 8 per thousand in those areas surveyed, but in Washington, it was 7.9 for each thousand. That, it was said, was because there are very few married privates and noncoms stationed here and there are of course thousands of married officers.

Most of them have their wives here with them and have established homes here, while many officers and men stationed at training centers are separated from their families.

Not only do the experts differ on the reasons for the soaring birth rate in Washington; they differ on the whole problem of why the birth rate goes up in wartime, and always has all over the world.

Few of them "are willing" to state it so simply as: wars beget romance, romance begets marriages, and marriages beget babies.

Some attribute it to some deep stirring of nature to replenish the human race when it seems hellbent on killing itself off.

The simpler explanation seems better, especially in view of the fact that the number of marriages also has been "shooting skyward since the United States donned uniform.

One other explanation of the high birth rate is interesting—that the bumper crop of World War 1 babies have just come to the right marriageable age.

One thing is certain. If the present birth rate continues for any time at all, it is going to play hob with the predictions of statistical wizards who said the United States population would hold steady and start to tip off when it reached something over 140,000,000.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6.—Some new pictures:

"Stand By for Action" (Robert Taylor, Brian Donlevy, Charles Laughton, Walter Brennan) answers that consumed civilian question: "But why do they take statisticians into the navy and army?"

They take them, according to this new film, because sailors on a destroyer have a terrible time delivering the babies of the women they happen to rescue from torpedoed ships. There wasn't any statistician aboard the destroyer of this film, and there wasn't even a nursemaid to care for the sniffling of howling infants picked up along with the two expectant mothers.

That made it tough on the crew, fighting a sea battle with the Japs in the Pacific as they did, saved and nursed men they got on with both businesses and did the Navy proud. Even saved a Jap battleship with a movie destroyer on the second sighting, long before the crew from Frisco arrived, long after in a similar engagement in the Sulu Sea. This is guided by Norwegian Paul Muni, who escaped in a small boat to England and slipped off the British shore a new German airport being readied for harassing convoys to Russia. The Commando raid is a thumping climax.

For relief from all this warfare, there's "Arabian Nights." It's rich with color. It's about the Baghdad bazaar, caught Sinbad-sailor who wanted to marry a princess, but fell in love with the mysterious stranger who turned out to be the real Caliph, masked by his covetous brother.

Electrical Waves May Be Used To Find Submarines

Capital Mystery Men Live Up To Advance Billing

By HERMAN ALLEN
AP Features Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7, —The capital's Mystery Men—those administrative assistants President Roosevelt chooses becaus of their "passion for anonymity"—are living up to their advance billing in varying degrees. On the whole they've managed to keep themselves fairly dark.

Although Congress authorized the President to appoint six administrative assistants, he at present has only four on his staff. They are David K. Niles, William H. McReynolds, Lauchlin Currie and Lowell Mellett. Ranking right alongside with them, however, are Eugene Casey, listed as an executive assistant, and Wayne Coy, liaison officer between the President and the Office of Emergency Management, over-all agency which heads up WPB, OCD, OPA and the rest of the wartime establishments.

The one who has most consistently buried himself in anonymity is David K. Niles. This short, stocky veteran of Massachusetts politics, a Harvard graduate, was assistant to Harry Hopkins of WPA and secretary of commerce. Later he became an adviser on labor matters in the OPM and WPB. He was appointed an administrative assistant last August, the most recent appointee.

William H. McReynolds, a government servant for 40 years, has known FDR since his New York days. He's a smooth looker greying of hair, who will smoke several cigarets during a half-hour interview.

To McReynolds, a personnel expert, goes the credit for simplifying the civil service rules for the duration of the war. He also takes proud credit for arranging for many wartime agencies to use existing statistical and research outfits rather than set up new ones.

Lauchlin Currie, unobtrusive, sandy-haired, a native of Nova Scotia, is the President's contact man with China, where he traveled last year on an economic assignment from FDR, and Canada. Modestly he will admit that "I believe I may have been of some slight service to the President from time to time."

Currie toys constantly with an ivory cigaret holder while talking but he actually smokes few cigarets. There is a signed portrait of Chiang Kai-shek on the mantelpiece of his ornate State Department building office. (All the assistants are quartered in a wing in that venerable old monument.)

Lowell Mellett—called by some "the most dangerous man in Washington" and by other "one of the most important"—was editor of a Washington chain newspaper for 16 years, but quit his $10,000-a-year job in 1937 because he and his boss couldn't agree about President Roosevelt. He soon became head of the National Emergency Council, then a slow-poke agency which did such chores as looking up information for congressmen to use in making speeches.

Mellett organized a really efficient government information service, branched out into doing study work for such things as the Wage and Hour Law. He took over, too, the controversial study of economic conditions in executive family is Wayne Coy, the South.

Another bashful member of the his dislikes to talk about his job, reluctant to take the glory for anything—which may be one reason for his success in Washington.

An Indianan, like Mellett, Coy spends his days in conferences with worried officials and in dashing by auto among the numerous buildings which house the manifold OEM agencies.

The descendant of an Irish pioneer, Coy had a struggling youth and manhood until he climbed on Paul McNutt's bandwagon, helped elect him governor of Indiana, was put in charge of state relief (which gave him contacts with Harry Hopkins) and rode the bandwagon on into Washington, becoming assistant federal security administrator when McNutt took over the Security Agency. Hopkins introduced him to Mr. Roosevelt, and since then he has grown more and more solidly into the President's esteem.

Youngest of the "Secret Six" is 37-year-old Eugene Casey, originally slated to be the President's agricultural adviser but who really does a little bit of everything.

"More than any of the Boss' assistants, I suppose, I serve as his eyes and ears," he told me. "I appear for him in anwer to a good many invitations he can't meet, and you'd be surprised at how much you can pick up about what people are thinking and saying."

Son of a Washington plumber, Casey sold papers, jerked sodas, saved his money, finally was able to finance some housing projects during Washington's building boom of the '30s. Now he owns several farms in Maryland, sells 500 gallons of milk a day from them.

Librarian States Everybody Should Keep Daily Diary

AP Features

NEW YORK, Jan. 7, —Like to make your great-great-grandchildren proud of you?

All you've got to do is keep a diary, and see that it doesn't get lost.

Most public libraries and local historical societies are eager to preserve people's diaries, R. W. Hill, keeper of manuscripts at the New York Public Library which has about 400 of them, says:

"It doesn't matter how humdrum your life may seem to you; if you keep a daily record it will gain in importance through the years and will become a valuable contribution to society."

Particularly is this true in 1943, he adds, because posterity will want to understand what is happening today and will have to turn to diarists for the true flavor of our period.

But how can a stay-at-home's diary complete with a soldier's diary or today's newspapers? "A government order forbids U. S. troops to keep diaries while in foreign service," said Mr. Hill. "In all previous wars we've relied heavily on soldiers' diaries. And as for newspapers—well, an ordinary newspaper eventually becomes a fine, powdery dust. That's because they are printed on pulp paper. Diaries should be kept in a good rag-paper notebook."

To demonstrate the value of diary-writing as a hobby, Mr. Hill cited the case of Dr. Samuel Adams, a Massachusetts physician, who kept a daily record from 1768 to 1819.

'It wasn't the Sam Adams," he pointed out. "Just an unknown contemporary."

Dr. Adams' journal—a score of faded pocket notebooks in a shoe box—recently came into the possession of the New York Library and with several hundred other diaries has been evacuated for the duration.

'It gives a good picture of his times, as almost any diary is bound to do," Mr. Hill explained. "It is almost tremendously interesting to modern doctors, and even the U. S. meteorological department intends to make use of the weather reports in it because they cover so long a period in New England."

Another of the Library's "immortals" was an Ohio youth named John Roods. He kept a scrawled account of his trip through Wisconsin in 1847 with descriptions of a score of frontier cities. In 1938 it was republished in a Wilwaukee newspaper.

'The main thing is to keep your journal conscientiously," Mr. Hill said, "and see that it isn't lost or thrown away. Most libraries are glad to see that they have not read during the authors life."

As for the mechanics of keeping a diary: Samuel Pepys wrote in a shorthand of his own devising, presumably to guard his work from prying eyes, but his six fat volumes were transcribed two hundred years later and made him famous.

Other diarists, such as Samuel K. Wharton—an American artist of the 19th Century —have illustrated their notebooks elaborately, apparently to please future readers.

On The Spot

By DILLON GRAHAM
AP Features Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Baxter Jordan, one-time Boston Braves' first-baseman, probably had the costliest argument with an umpire on record.

Emil Fuchs, former Braves' owner, says the debate—which Jordan lost—cost his stockholders $1,000,000. Fuchs recalled the incident in a recent article he wrote for the Boston Globe.

Fuchs was seeking a buyer for the Braves. He had been told that a wealthy Detroiter was interested and might pay a million for the club. The conference went off well and the prospective buyer decided to see that afternoon's exhibition game between the Braves and the Detroit Tigers.

The game was nip and tuck but Boston held a 3-2 lead going into the last half of the ninth inning. There were two out with Goose Goslin on second base. The batter tapped a weak infield grounder. The play at first base was close and Jordan, who thought the runner had been called out, started to leave the field for the clubhouse. The umpire, however, called the runner safe and Jordan rushed back to argue with him. He turned his back on Goslin, who had reached third base on the play, and The Goose darted for home to score the tying run as Jordan still argued with the arbiter.

And, as Fuchs says, "we lost the game in the 14th inning, Boston lost a millionnaire owner, Jordan lost a $1,000,000 argument."

Frank Sinkwich, Georgia footballer, and Gloria Callen, the backstroke swimmer, recently were voted the No. 1 male and female athletes of the year. How many past winners of this annual poll, conducted by The Associated Press, can you remember? What sport contributed the only athlete to win two consecutive years?

One man and one woman have been named twice and both were tennists—Don Budge and Alice Marble. The poll was begun in 1931 and here are the winners:

1931—Pepper Martin, baseball, and Helene Madison, swimming. 1932—Gene Sarasen, golf, and Babe Didrikson, track. 1933—Carl Hubbell, baseball, and Helen Jacobs, tennis. 1934—Dizzy Dean, baseball, and Virginia Van Wie, golf. 1935—Joe Louis, boxing, and Helen Wills Moody, tennis. 1936—Jesse Owens, track, and Helen Stephens, track. 1937 — Don Budge, tennis, and Katherine Rawls, swimming. 1938 — Budge and Patty Berg, golf. 1939—Nile Kinnick, football, and Alice Marble, tennis; 1940—Tom Harmon, football, and Miss Marble. 1941—Joe DiMaggio, baseball, and Betty Hicks, golf.

Glenn Dobbs, the All-America back who pitched for Tulsa against Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl, had a better kicking average and a better passing average, as regards percentage of passes completed and interceptions, than any other college player and yet performed star[illegible]

Dobbs completed 62.6 percent of his passes (67 to 107) as against 58.6 for Sammy Baugh of the Washington Redskins and 54.4 for Cecil Isbell of the Green Bay Packers. Dobbs had only three interceptions as against 11 for Baugh and 14 for Isbell.

The earth's weight is computed at six sextillion, six hundred and sixty quintillion tons.

Brazil Studies New Process Of Getting Rubber

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 7, (AP)—Need of the United States for rubber has led to research in the field of an elastic producing plant growing wild and hitherto virtually untouched in Brazil—the mangabeira.

Elastic extracts from this shrubby tree do not substitute for rubber in all its qualities, emphasizes Ladario de Varvalho, chief of the rubber service in the National Technological Institute, but its properties make the mangabeira product useful in manufacture of many articles where rubber or rubber substitutes now are used.

The mangabeira, a plant ranging from six to 12 feet in height, grows wild and in abundance in the states of Piaui, Goiaz, Bahia, Minas Gerais and Sao Paulo. Its location is far more strategic than real Brazilian rubber, from a standpoint of harvest and shipment, for the mangabeira grows within easy distances of railroads or ports, while the rubber is far in the depths of the Amazon valley.

Real Brazilian rubber shows high resistance to tracting, while the mangabeira extract is more elastic but less resistant, according to Carvalho. Tests showed an average of 12 percent resin and 14 percent loss in washing, which is regarded as favorable.

Whole exploitation of mangabeira is now being studied.

HOW TO COMPUTE TAXES TO BE PAID THIS YEAR

Comparison of 1942-'43 Taxes

Here is a table comparing Federal income taxes paid in 1942 with those you will have to pay in 1943. The gross total income figure, at the left, is everything earned in any manner by the taxpayer during 1942. The tax-payment figures have been calculated after deducting all personal and dependency allowances and substracting another 10 percent, which is a reasonable average figure to cover all other allowable deductions.

In some cases the tax-payment figure may be slightly high or slightly low; if an individual has a little more or a little less than the 10 percent average deduction for all deduction allowances other than personal and dependency allowances. But the variation probably is very small.

The table reflects sharply how the income taxes payable this year have increased over those paid last year. For example, a married man with two children who brought $3,000 into the family budget hopper in 1942, will pay $135 this year in income tax alone. Last year he paid only $29.

Gross Total Income	Single Persons 1943	Single Persons 1942	Married No Dependents 1943	Married No Dependents 1942	Married One Dependent 1943	Married One Dependent 1942	Married Two Dependents 1943	Married Two Dependents 1942

Here are the chief details on the stepped-up income taxes and the new Victory tax for 1943.

VICTORY TAX

The Victory tax, beginning Jan. 1 and imposed for the duration of the war, is entirely separate and apart from the regular Federal income tax. It amounts to a flat 5 percent of all money over $12 a week, or $624 a year, earned in any manner by any person. It applies alike to office boys and high-salaried executives.

In the case of persons paid by salary or wages—by far the majority—the Victory tax will be withheld at the source by the employer, and turned over to the government.

This means that the next salary check or wage payment received by every American will be less than the customary figure—less by the amount of 5 percent of everything over $12 a week. The tax money wil be deducted even if part of the money represented by the pay check actually was earned in the closing days of 1942.

Some earners are not subject to the withholding phase of the Victory tax. They include service men and women, farm workers and casual laborers, domestics, Americans out of the country most of the time, and perhaps working in the United States for foreign governments. For these persons, the Victory tax must be paid in a lump by March 15, 1944, when regular Federal income tax is due on money earned in 1943.

It is intended that part of the Victory tax shall be returned to the taxpayer. Any taxpayer can get back his share of the refund after the war. Some taxpayers can get back their share in 1944 by the deducting the refund figure from the regular Federal income tax payable that year.

These refunds are called tax credits. A single person is allowed for any one year a credit of 75 percent of the year's total of his Victory tax payments, but the credit may not exceed $500.

A married person is allowed 40 percent credit, not exceeding $1,000, with 2 percent additional credit for each dependent, not exceeding $100 for each dependent.

If a person does not wish to collect his refunds until the war is over, he may so elect. If he chooses to collect his credit as he goes along, he may do so by deducting the amount of it from his regular Federal income tax payments, beginning in 1944, provided that during the previous year he had spent a sum equaling the credit for such non-inflationary items as insurance premiums, debt reductions, such as mortgage and bank loan payments and War Bond purchases.

For example suppose that during 1943 a single man pays $200 in Victory taxes. His credit then is $150. He can wait till after the war to collect it. Or, he can deduct the $150 from the regular Federal income tax due March 15, 1944, provided that during 1943 he spent at least $150 for the non-inflationary items.

At the end of each year, wage and salary earners will receive from employers a receipt for the Victory taxes deducted at the source during that year. On the regular Federal income tax blanks, which must be filed before March 15, of the next year, a space will appear for entering the amount of Victory tax paid.

Persons who do not wish to collect their refunds until after the war should keep records of the amount of Victory tax they pay. Businessmen are also required to keep records and report them to the government. Persons who are not subject to having the Victory tax withheld at the source, should keep records of their income so that they will know how much Victory tax they must pay at a later date, beginning on March 15, 1944.

Refunds received after the war may be taken in non-interest bearing bonds payable at any time, or may be taken as credits against future income taxes due after the war.

[illegible] persons has been reduced from $1,500 to $1,200, for single persons, from $750 to $600. Credit for dependents, other than a husband or wife, has been cut from $400 to $350.

The normal income tax is levied on gross income less authorized deductions such as personal exemption, dependency allowance and earned income credit has been increased from 4 per cent to 6 percent.

The surtax levied on income from which the earned income credit has not been deducted has been greatly increased. For example, on the lowest $2,000, it has been raised from 6 percent to 11 percent. On the second $2,000, the tax has been raised from 9 percent to 16 percent, on the third $2,000, from 13 percent to 20 percent, and so on.

The deadline for filing the tax return on income earned in 1942 is March 15, 1943. For the first time alimony payments made under court order and medical expenses are authorized as lawful deductions.

However, the deductions for medical expenses doctor, dentist and drug bills, not compensated for by insurance are allowed only on medical expenses in excess of 5 percent of the taxpayers net income. Medical and hospital insurance payments are allowed in the total. In the case of a husband and wife filing a joint return, the deductible medical expenses are only those in excess of 5 percent of the combined net income.

In all cases, the maximum medical expense deduction is $2,500 for husband and wife filing joint return, $2,500 for the head of the family, and $1,250 for any other person.

The total income tax can be paid at the time the return is filed. Or, it can be paid in quarterly installments—one-fourth at the time of filing, and the balance in equal payments on June 15, Sept. 15, and Dec. 15.

Again this year, persons who earned $3,000 or less may elect to file their return on the simplified 1040A form which does away with much figuring by assuming that deductible expenses come to 8 percent of gross income.

LONGWOOD

By MRS. J. H. MENICK

The marriage is announced of Pfc James Arthur MacGrath of Gloucester, Mass. to Mrs Maxine Clark McLaughlin of Longwood. The wedding ceremony was performed by Judge Ware at his home in Sanford on New Year's Eve.

Following the wedding a delightful banquet was tendered the bride and groom by 24 friends at Dyer's restaurant on the new Orlando Highway when the attractively appointed dinner table was centered by the bride's cake decorated with a miniature bridal couple.

The bride is the daughter of the late George Clark and Mrs. Clark, owners of Longwood Hotel and well known throughout Seminole County. The bridegroom is now in the office of the Orlando Air Base.

Lewis Elweis who recently joined the Army is now stationed at a Colorado Air Base taking technical training. Mr. Elweis and his Southern comrades are enjoying snow-balling.

Mrs. Vladimir Zworykin of Forest Hills, N. Y. who spent the holidays as guest of her cousin V. Zworykin at his home on Greenwood Lake, has left for her home. Mrs. Zworykin is the wife of R. C. A.'s brilliant scientist, often known as "the father of television". One of his latest inventions is the electron microscope.

The New Year's reception sponsored by the Civic League at the library was a very delightful affair attended by a large gathering of local ladies and gentlemen. The tea table was arranged with a center piece of Eucharistic lilies and a silver tea service. Russian tea, sandwiches and cakes were served from 3:00 o'clock until 5:00 o'clock.

The committee in charge of arrangements were Mrs. George Holden, Mrs. Ethel Ayers, Mrs. [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] Stallins and [illegible]

This was a fifth of a second faster than the time hung up by Hi-Guide, one of the world's heavy favorites for the same distance.

In defeating the same field Hi-Guide beat in his last start, Mystic Pride was forced to lose ground after a fast start to catch the flying Sunny Sands. The latter, a consistent performer finished a close second behind the Palmer dog. Both Green and Jump High ran fast in this feature attraction.

Four maidens were found chasing in the tenth and final race, with Cookie and Crazy Cards finishing in a dead heat for the 5-16 mile distance.

Good money was paid on some of the races, and the daily double, on a 1-8 combination made up of Jump High and Tom Jones paid $20.00.

Allied Fliers Batter Violently At 10-Ship Jap Convoy Remnants

House Survey Is Sponsored To Provide Rooms

C. of C. Committee States Situation Is Critical With No Vacant Houses

A survey of the housing situation in Sanford with a view to increasing the number of apartments for rent and the establishment of a local employment agency were authorized today at a luncheon of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce at the Mayfair Hotel.

James Gut, reporting for the real estate committee, declared that a critical situation exists locally as the result of the present occupancy of every house and apartment in town with only half of the expected personnel of the Naval Air Station here yet and with many tourists also expected to come here as the winter reaches its peak.

He expressed the belief that perhaps 50 or 60 additional apartments could be provided through the reconditioning or remodeling of many old houses, while J. L. Ingley suggested a campaign to acquaint the public with the facts and to encourage home owners to rent rooms.

President W. A. Leffler who presided over the meeting, declared, "We have a service to perform here in making quarters available for these people who want them."

H. P. Pope, as chairman of the merchants committee, said that the merchants at present have two primary problems: 1) obtaining the merchandise for their stores, and 2) securing the clerks to help them handle the trade. At his suggestion the creation of an employment bureau by the Chamber of Commerce was approved "so that the merchants who need help now can get it as those who once needed employment were helped to find work".

[illegible] committee, a conservative advertising program in farm publications in the east and middle west was endorsed so that "We can take advantage of easy money in northern markets and bring in new capital for our county to help tide us over the lean years which may follow this war".

Senator E. F. Householder said there was little which could be done by the roads committee at this time as no new construction could be authorized unless it had priority as essential to the war effort. He added, however, that some work is still being done on State Road No. 44.

Other committee chairmen reporting were: H. J. Lehman for the agricultural committee, G. D. Wortman for the naval committee, Gordon Brisson for the membership committee, George D. Bishop for the transportation committee, and L. F. Boyle for the rules and charter committee. Hibbard Sasseberry urged the establishment of a bus line between Sanford and Casselberry which he said "even on a trip a day would help our business and would help yours". He added, "We would like to patronize your merchants but at present we have no way to get here."

A letter from Representative L. B. Mann was read which called attention to the proposed opening of the St. Johns River for commercial fishing and asked for the recommendation of the Chamber of Commerce. No action was taken by the directors.

Senator Householder said that all bills for local legislation must be in the hands of the legislators before they leave for the legislative session.

[illegible] read a letter from Bob Quinn in which the Naval Reserve advised that Sterling Tomlinson of Florida has been called and a Junior Grade Lieutenant, the work for the coming year.

The directors voted to take information on the work and activities of the Chamber of Commerce of Sanford to the members of Seminole County now in the service.

Rural Production Program Made For Seminole County

Announcement of a new Rural War Production program was today made by Alex R. Johnson, director of this work in Seminole County.

"Congress has appointed $15,000,000 for classes of instruction, of which $219,000 has been alloted to Florida, which amount will be spent by July 1," he said.

A class of 31 growers in Oviedo has just completed one of three courses, that of the care and repair of tractors and repair pumps, with W. A. Hutchison of Orlando instructing, and under general direction of Prof. E. F. Cooper, Mr. Johnson added.

[illegible] for rural workers [illegible] Mr. Johnson stated. These included classes in metal work, auto mechanics, farm machinery repair, poultry production, milk production, pork production for home use, vegetable production, processing food for home use on farms.

In addition classes will be given to city residents in processing, and storing food for home use. Mrs. Ouida Wilson, county home demonstration agent, has been requested to contact all women's organizations and clubs to enlist their co-operation in this work, Mr. Johnson said. In all, 25 classes, including city and rural instruction, will be held, he stated.

L.P. Hagan Will Be '43 Townsend Leader

L. P. Hagan was re-elected president of the Townsend Club last evening and W. I. Hughey was elected vice president. Other officers who will serve in 1942 are: H. G. Landquist, second vice president; Mrs. J. A. Williams, secretary, Mrs. Martha Moffett, treasurer, Mrs. A. C. Starks, publicity chairman and J. G. Sharon, state speaker for the organization.

Mr. Hagan, Mr. Hughey and Mrs. Moffett were principal speakers at the first 1943 meeting and Abraham Lincoln Baisley of Chicago spoke on Townsend activities in Chicago. Members of the club agreed to hold meetings every second Thursday.

Commander Winchell Makes Secret Mission

MIAMI, Jan. 8, (AP) — Lieut. Comdr. Walter Winchell, columnist and radio commentator, returned last night aboard Pan American Airways' African clipper from Brazil, where he performed a mission for the United States Navy.

Winchell said he would report to the commandant of the Seventh Naval District, whose headquarters are here, for further orders.

He could not discuss his trip, except to say that he was on a secret mission, but merely a "hour of duty".

Bank Deposits Here Approach Peak In Boom

Sanford Atlantic Exceeds Any Previous Deposits In Local Banking History

Combined deposits of two banks in Sanford at the present time come within $1,034,628 of reaching the total deposits of both banks operating here during 1925 at the height of the Florida boom, and the $4,320,359 deposits of the Sanford Atlantic National Bank today exceed those at any other time since its organization in 1928, and of any other bank in the history of Sanford.

While local deposits are unusually high and more money is on deposit in Sanford than at any time since the boom years, the extremely sound condition of banks is reflected by the statement of loans and discounts which for both banks totaled on Dec. 31 last only $471,817.

Combined loans and discounts of the old First National Bank and Seminole County Bank in 1925 were $3,924,893, though their deposits at that time aggregated $5,103,587.

These deposits of the only two banks in Sanford at the close of 1925 were divided as follows: First National Bank, $2,888,539 and Seminole Bank, $2,215,048.

In a single year, from 1942 to 1943, the Sanford Atlantic National Bank's deposits have increased $1,371,461, from $1,948,898 to $3,320,359. The four-year old Florida State Bank's deposits have increased during the past year $321,000, from $428,000 to $749,000.

Loans and discounts of individual banks in 1925 were as follows: $1,918,028 for the First National Bank and $2,006,865 for the Seminole County Bank. In 1932, during the "depression," when the Sanford Atlantic National Bank was the only one operating here, its loans and discounts were $225,401 and its deposits were $1,248,702. Its Dec. 31, 1942 statement reported loans and discounts totaling $304,790, while the Florida State Bank's loans and discounts totaled $167,027.

The Atlantic National Bank of Jacksonville, with which the Sanford Atlantic is affiliated, had deposits totaling $28,087,037 on Dec. 31, 1932 and now its deposits total $92,188,811. Its loans and discounts today total $15,046,317, as compared with $2,798,119 in 1932.

Presbyterians Add 1452 Members In Past 30 Years

A total of 1452 new members have been received into the Presbyterian Church in the past 30 years, it was learned this morning from the Rev. E. D. Brownlee, who has just completed 30 years of service as pastor of the church.

Some 681 of this number have come into the church on Confession of Faith, and 771 by letter. The membership has grown from 135 in 1912, to 752, with 40 of the original members still in the church.

The present church was built and paid for and the manse built and almost paid for, in addition to a chapel on Beardall Avenue which has been paid for out of the church funds.

Dr. Brownlee stated that in the 30 years "We have experienced joy and sorrow together, Wars, boom, depression, fruit fly, marriage, christenings, life and death have crossed the threshold. All have made Christian love a reality, and as we begin a New Year's work, we can sincerely sing "Blest Be The Tie That Binds Our Hearts In Christian Love".

Arnall Is Wiping Out Evidence Of Talmadge

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 8, (AP)—The first objective of Ellis Arnall when he becomes Governor of Georgia on Tuesday next will be to wipe out as many evidences of the Eugene Talmadge administration as possible, it was apparent Thursday in the wake of rumors, well-based reports and a recapitulation of Arnall's campaign pledges.

Heads will be lopped off in the capitol halls and offices, bureaus and departments will disappear wholly or be merged with others, and the governor himself will have many of his powers taken away—at his own request.

General MacArthur Announces Virtual Completion Of Bitter Papuan Campaign

(By Associated Press)

American and Allied fliers battered violently at the remnants of a 10-ship Japanese convoy off the New Guinea coast today, climaxing a 24-hour running battle in which they were officially credited with sinking two big transports, damaging a third and shooting down 18 enemy fighters.

General MacArthur's headquarters announced the virtual completion of the bitter Papuan campaign in New Guinea with the annihilation of the Japanese, an Army that once totaled 15,000 troops.

American dispatches from Allied headquarters in North Africa said bad weather had closed in again on the northern section in Tunisia and indicated a lull.

Far to the south, a French and American camel corps, attacking against heavy odds, was reported to have captured the Axis outpost at Tamout Maller in "the territory of the oasis," killing 250 Italians.

Allied planes bombed the harbor of Palmero, Sicily, in a daylight raid yesterday, while the Navy in Washington reported United States Army Air Forces again blasted Japanese bases at Kiska off Alaska and Munda in the Solomons. The results were not disclosed.

American airmen, continuing assaults on Japanese supply lines and bases in the Solomons, have scored a possible bomb hit on an enemy transport and dumped tons of explosives on two Jap airfields northwest of Guadalcanal, the Navy reported Thursday.

A communique said American planes on Wednesday (Island time) returned to hurl destruction on the new enemy airdrome at Munda which only 24 hours earlier had been heavily bombed by both United States air and surface craft. They also bombed an airfield at Kahili, near Buin on Bougainville Island. Results of neither raid were reported.

Earlier the same day big army Flying Fortresses, escorted by Lockheed Lightning and Curtiss Warhawk fighters, spotted the enemy transport in the Shortland island area, 290 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, and claimed a possible hit on the stern.

From Melbourne, Australia, an earlier report government sources asserted Thursday that air reconnaissance had disclosed a concentration of Japanese shipping at Rabaul, New Britain, even greater than that marshaled by the enemy for his first counter-attack against the American forces holding the Eastern Solomon Islands.

This concentration, these quarters added, thus was shown to have been augmented since last Tuesday, when its presence was first reported by an Australian government spokesman.

At that time, the spokesman anonymously issued a widely published statement that the Japanese were gathering the largest sea force ever seen in the Southwest Pacific.

In connection with such reports Secretary of the Navy Knox said on Tuesday in Washington that while there was always enemy shipping at Rabaul, one of the principal Japanese bases in the Australian theater, he had no knowledge of any extraordinary concentration there.

Service Men Can Use Gasoline If Home On Leave

OPA Inspectors Are Checking Up To Enforce New Law

"Naval and military personnel on furlough may use basic gasoline rations to visit relatives or make social calls," an Associated Press dispatch states.

In the same report the Office of Price Administration also said that hundreds of inspectors, aided by State and local police, were in action "from Maine to Florida" to halt pleasure driving on "A" "B" and "C" ration books.

Simultaneously OPA gave its official definition of "pleasure driving" under the prohibition that became effective at noon on the Atlantic Seaboard.

OPA said its own enforcement agents and other law officers were checking on "the illegal presence of passenger cars at places of amusement, recreation and entertainment."

In its definition of permitted shopping, going to the doctor, attending church, attending funerals, going to business or professional meetings, or driving for the purpose of meeting an emergency "involving a threat to life, health, or property."

The full definition:

Victorious Red Armies Rip Through German Resistance

(By Associated Press)

Russia's victorious armies, ripping through a wall of German resistance with tanks and planes, were reported to have advanced within 65 miles of the great German base at Rostov and for the first time Berlin admitted Nazi reverses were in a bitter struggle.

The fall of Rostov, gateway to Caucasus, would cut off German forces unofficially estimated at between 500,000 and 1,000,000.

A British broadcast said the Germans had announced the evacuation of civilian population of Rzhev, key Nazi citadel 130 miles northwest of Moscow, as "a precautionary measure."

Front line advices said the Germans were battling desperately to keep open the corridor into the Caucasus, but declared the Red army was steadily battering its way through massed tanks and infantry.

The Germans reported they were burning villages and scattered thousands of land mines, but Red army headquarters said tank-led infantry columns had stormed into more than 40 additional towns in the Caucasus during the last 24 hours.

The battle in Stalingrad and its environs flared up as the Red army intensified its campaign to clear the Germans out of the menaced salient representing the bulk of Adolf Hitler's gains in his 1942 campaign, Thursday's late communique disclosed.

Soviet assault units seized booty and prisoners in the factory area of the Volga city, it said, while big guns of the Red army, in supporting the operations, silenced 12 German firing points and blasted out nine block-houses and dugouts.

To the west and northwest Soviet patrols thrusting at the defenses of 22 trapped German divisions drove the Nazis from 20 dugouts, wiping out 150 troops and capturing spoils including a radio transmitter, the high command said. Soviet guards and tanks pacing the advance wiped out about 300 German troops.

To as southwest of Stalingrad the Russians "overcoming enemy resistance, forged ahead and occupied a number of populated places."

A violent battle raged for a big populated place where the Germans had concentrated fresh forces among the elite units. The Soviet onslaught systematically beat down the fortifications and wore down the garrison.

A full battalion of German infantry was routed from strategic positions in another sector, the high command reported. In that struggle 600 Germans were wiped out and seven tanks and 26 trucks destroyed. The Russians captured prisoners, three tanks, two armored cars, 18 trucks and an ammunition dump.

German forces struggling desperately to check the Red army drive on the middle Don front launched counter attacks in some sectors. They were beaten off and the Soviet forces "successfully forged ahead," the communique reported.

A single Red army unit in two days of furious fighting destroyed up to two battalions of perhaps 2000 German troops, seven tanks, and 25 truckloads of supplies and ammunition.

One German garrison trying to break out of a Soviet encirclement attacked 12 times with no success, the high command reported.

"The ring of Soviet troops is being drawn closer around the German garrison, which is doomed to perish," the bulletin continued.

Among the prisoners taken by the Russians were seven colonels and the commanders of a German infantry regiment.

Altogether the Red army of the north Caucasus has occupied 40 populated places in the famout from captured Prokhladnenski on the trunk railway, the high command said. Soviet guards and tanks pacing the advance wiped out about 300 German troops.

Recreation Heads Plan New Program For Coming Year

New USO Activities Are Explained By Director Weiskopf

The Recreation Division of the Seminole County Defense Council meeting last night at the City Hall voted approval of the USO program, which contemplates two dances each week at the City Hall Auditorium, beginning next week. It was decided, according to Frank L. Shames, chairman, that the Recreation Division as such would cease operations of regular dances this week, and would merely retain sponsorship or supervision of servicemen's entertainment as conducted by the USO and other organizations.

Mr. Weiskopf, USO director, explained that the USO plans to use an orchestra for at least one and possibly two of its regular weekly dances. Other program activities will be developed to fill each evening of the week, including an amateur talent variety show, hobby clubs and a church sponsored open house, he said.

Lieut. Morris H. Gross, Welfare and Recreation Officer at the Naval Air Station, explained that a survey was being made which would disclose the hobbies and talents of the personnel at the base. This information will be made available to the Hobby committee and to the USO to aid them in planning activities for the men, he said.

It was decided to award Civilian Volunteer pins after 50 hours of scheduled service.

Herman Morris, chairman of the Sports and Athletic committee, announced that plans are being formulated for a community "play night" in which civilians and service men would participate.

A procedure for the issuance of passes to wives and visitors of service men was adopted. Mr. Weiskopf announced that wives of service men are always welcome at the USO club. Passes will be issued them upon request so that they may attend at any time.
