NATION IN BRIEF

Tornadoes Strike Oklahoma, Wreck Tulsa Homes

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A series of freak tornadoes struck eastern Oklahoma almost without warning Friday, injering nearly 40 persons. Twisters tore through 12 city blocks of Tulsa, wrecking scores of homes and businesses.

No one was killed, but authorities said 34 persons were taken to Tulsa hospitals. Seven remained hospitalized today, four in serious condition. Other twisters hit rural areas, but officials said they did not expect the total injured in the state to exceed 40.

Tulsa Mayor Robert J. LaFortune said damage could run into the millions of dollars. The Red Cross estimated about 50 Tulsa homes were demolished, another 150 suffered major damage and a total of 50 businesses suffered substantial destruction.

Red Cross officials set up aid stations at two schools to feed and shelter the homeless. About 300 persons came to the centers, officials said.

Ford: Courtesy Trip

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Ford flew to The Philippines Saturday for a second courtesy call on a Southeast Asian ally and his last stopover en route back to Washington from his China trip.

Before his departure, Ford met privately for 90 minutes with Indonesian President Suharto, after which the two presidents issued a joint communique that "expressed the intention of the United States to continue to provide substantial aid to Indonesia in support of Indonesia's development efforts.'

It said the two leaders had "a cordial and frank exchange of views on international, regional and bilateral issues of interest to the two governments," adding that both leaders were committed to "an expanded dialogue" between their nations.

Welfare Up 20 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — High unemployment and continued inflation sent public social welfare costs soaring to a record $387 billion in the last fiscal year—up almost 20 per cent from the previous 12 months.

A government report also said that public and private social programs together cost $389 billion—27 per cent of the Gross National Product, the total value of the nation's goods and services.

The Social Security Administration report, issued Friday, said the 19.7 per cent increase in public program costs was the largest since the dramatic boost in veterans, benefits which followed World War II.

Inflation ate up $21 billion of the $47-billion increase recorded in federal, state and local social welfare programs in the fiscal year ended June 30, the government said.

Hoffa Body Believed Buried

DETROIT (AP) — The FBI believes the body of ex-Teamsters boss James R. Hoffa may have been hauled to New Jersey in a barrel and buried in a Jersey City landfill, according to grand jury witnesses and other sources.

The grand jury recessed for the weekend, but three New Jersey Teamsters were headed for a police lineup today. A government informant has fingered the three men, two of them reputed Mafia figures, as responsible for the abduction-murder of Hoffa.

The lineup will be viewed by a second mysterious government witness who said he actually saw the abduction of Hoffa, but does not know the names of the men who abducted him, federal investigators said.

Unemployment Hits 8.3

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the economy seems to be well into a recovery from recession, unemployment remains near its highest level since World War II.

The Labor Department reported on Friday that the nation's unemployment rate dropped three-tenths of 1 per cent, or by 200,000 persons, last month to a total of 8.3 per cent. That means that of the 93 million persons in America's work force, 7.7 million were unemployed.

But as the unemployment rate took a slight dip last month, the actual number of persons seeking employment also fell. Analysts see that as a reason for the decline in the jobless figures.

FPL Asks Delay In Plan

CHICAGO (AP) — Ten electric utilities, including Florida Power & Light, have asked a federal court here for a delay in new federal water use planning rules.

In a suit filed Friday in U.S. District Court, the utilities asked for a judicial review of regulations they termed unconstitutional and invalid.

The rules, issued Nov. 21 by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, require all states to draw up comprehensive plans for managing water resources and reducing water pollution.

Utilities officials say they fear their power plant operations could be disrupted by the rules.

United Airlines Shuts Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Airlines canceled all of Saturday's flights after 11th hour negotiations under federal mediators failed to halt a walkout by the carrier's ground service workers.

Negotiations continued past the Friday midnight strike deadline, but there was no report of progress. The company said a decision would be made later Saturday whether to cancel flights Sunday and thereafter.

It is the second major U.S. airline currently on strike. National Airlines has been on strike since Sept. 1.

DEPUTY INJURED IN COLLISION

Sheriff's Deputy P.J. Riggins, 25, was treated at Florida Hospital North, Altamonte Springs, Saturday for a shoulder injury and Frank Anthony DiNardo, 32, of Maitland, for head lacerations after a collision at U.S. 17-92 and E. Church Ave., Longwood. Florida Highway Patrol Trooper P.C. Wright said DiNardo was charged with violation of right-of-way. Wright said Riggins was southbound on U.S. 17-92 when his patrol car (above) collided with a 1972 Mercury sedan, driven by DiNardo, exited E. Church Ave. and attempted to cross the southbound lanes of U.S. 17-92, apparently to make a left turn. Damage to the autos was estimated at $1,000 each. (Herald Photo by Bob Lloyd)

Spaziano Trial Set To Begin Here This Week

Sutton, 23, of 2105 Harrell Road, Orlando.

The trio was arrested Oct. 21 after a three-month consumer fraud probe by state and county authorities and officials of Cottman Transmission Systems Inc.

Direct informations filed by Herring's office in the case allege that undercover agents were charged from $270 to $320 for repairs to auto transmissions that weren't needed, repairs that weren't done, or for parts that in fact weren't replaced by the Fern Park operation.

The informations charge grand larceny by "color or aid of fraudulent or false representations or pretense, which representations were false or untrue . . . with the intent to deprive or to defraud the owner."

There are 15 other defendants docketed for trial in Judge McGregor's court this week. They include:

— Monroe P. Lee Jr., 25, of 565 Seminole Ave., Longwood, accused of manslaughter, aggravated assault and leaving the scene of an accident resulting in injury, in connection with the Sept. 3 death of a three-year-old New Jersey boy in a hit-and-run collision on I-4 near SR-436, Altamonte Springs.

— Robert J. Sheehy, 34, of Orlando, accused of grand larceny in the theft of a strongbox at the Sheraton Sanford Inn, SR-46 and I-4.

— Albert Jerome Bradley, 18, Lake Monroe Terrace, Sanford, accused of robbery of a teenager at a Sanford football game.

— Luther Judson McNamara, 53, of Orlando, charged with carrying a concealed firearm.

— Charles Leroy Holzman Jr., 19, of 81 S. Fairfax, Winter Springs, accused of auto burglary and theft of a motor vehicle safety inspection sticker.

— Charles Hillery Jr., 20, Sipes Ave., Midway: Sammie Lee Lowery, 20, Main St., Midway, and Wilford Chisolm, 22, Sanford Route Two, all charged with burglary and attempted burglary of autos at a Sanford area motel.

Knowles Inherited Corporate Millstone public office. You can't be a professional administrator and run for office at the same time."

Making enemies is one part of his job that he doesn't like, Knowles said. "My job is telling people 'you can do this or you can't do that' and that involves making enemies. But I couldn't pat everybody on the back all the time and do my job well."

Some landmarks of Sanford which have been completed since Knowles' arrival include the Sanford Civic Center, the marina on Lake Monroe, the Law Enforcement Center, and two new fire stations.

But the project Knowles seems most proud of was the acquisition of the Naval Air Station by the city in the late 1960s.

"It dragged on and we ran into problems getting it," Knowles said. "Finally I went to Washington alone and went from office to office trying to find the key official responsible for the air station. Finally I found the man and we sat down and had a face-to-face chat."

Thirty days later the city acquired the air station for one dollar.

"A lot of people were involved in that," Knowles said. "I was just glad to see it turn out all right after all that effort."

Since Knowles came to Sanford there have been many changes, many initiated by his office.

He displays an obvious pride in the streamlining of municipal functions accomplished under his administration, but when the word "retirement" was mentioned he said.

"How do you spell that?"

According to Knowles, his wife, Ava, refers to him as a "workaholic," and he confessed to having converted a room in his home into an office.

"That way I can compromise between my work and my family life," said Knowles, who has two daughters, Tracy Lee, 23 and Sinda, seven.

For relaxation, Knowles said he favors photography and although his entries into various contests have produced winning ribbons, he says the real reward comes from the people he meets.

"If you look around my office you can see a collection of what I call 'Ava's Rejects,'" Knowles said. "The pictures my wife really likes, she hangs at the house, the others she lets me bring down here."

Knowles, who occasionally teaches courses in public administration at Florida Technological University, holds numerous public service awards and is currently chairman of the Urban Administration Committee of the Florida League of Cities.

Process Developed At Sanford Farm Center

Fertilizing May Double Soybean Yield

By JOE ASKREN
Herald Staff Writer

A new method of fertilizing soybeans, developed by a state horticulturist working here in Sanford, means that the yield per acre may be doubled, both in this country and in developing tropical nations.

Dr. Walter T. Scudder, professor of horticulture at the University of Florida Agricultural Research and Education Center on Celery Ave., said he has "improved" the method of "inoculating" nitrogen-fixing bacteria into the soil at the time of planting soybeans in sub-tropical and tropical soils where traditional high temperatures and the rainy season destroy the bacteria.

This is usually done by spraying a water suspension of the nitrogen-fixing bacteria into the soil along in the furrows where the soybeans are planted by machine, Dr. Scudder explained. The suspension is attached to the planting machine.

Dr. Scudder said the conventional method of "coating the seeds" with the bacteria has usually failed to increase growth because it dries out due to the heat of the soil.

Dr. Scudder examines some of his mature Bragg soybean plants and beans at harvest time in one of the experimental fertilizer plots on Celery Ave. (Herald Photo by Joe Askren)

"This is important to developing tropical areas of the world such as Brazil," said Dr. John Darby, a plant pathologist and director of the center.

As a matter of fact, Congress has in committee a federal bill (the pending Humphrey-Finley Bill), which if passed would provide several billion dollars to assist such countries in the development of tropical agriculture Darby declared. Dr. Scudder likened it to an extension of foreign aid which would teach tropical areas "to grow their own."

Both Darby and Scudder are drafting a report along with U.F. agriculture faculty on the future involvement of their work in support of both domestic and international programs.

"The soybean offers the greatest potential for meeting the World's hunger needs because of the high content of protein and oil," said Dr. Scudder.

Darby and Scudder agreed the prospects of a 50 bushel per acre yield of soybeans in Florida looks very promising with the new soil inoculation method. The national average yield is about 28 bushels per acre this year, and Florida's average has been 27 bushels per acre, said Dr. Darby.

Soybeans are used to produce artificial milk and coffee cream substitutes, margarine, food oils, baby formulas, and even plastics, said Dr. Scudder. Soybeans are 44 per cent protein, he said.

"Everything from baby food to Corvette bodies," smiled Dr. Scudder.

He said Sanford farmer William Leffler Jr., pioneered a method four years ago of using liquid "inoculum" as a soil placement commercially. This inoculum is a diluted preparation of nitrogen-fixing bacteria, Dr. Scudder explained.

Dr. Scudder said granular or liquid soil inoculation of soybeans (or the process of placing the bacteria in the soil) works better than the ventional coating of the seeds with a culture of the nitrogen-fixing bacteria.

"This is something new with the soybean product this far South. It's just beginning to be recognized in production and research," said Dr. Scudder.

The nitrogen-fixing bacteria, which create nodules on the roots of plants, benefits the soybeans and enriches the soil at the same time, said Dr. Scudder.

Fertilizer with 33.3 per cent nitrogen costs about $150 a ton which would take care of an acre of cabbage, he said.

He said he has been spending more than half of his time harvesting a total of 1,500 soybean plots in Seminole, Orange and Volusia counties. He said he is also working with the U.S. Department of Agriculture on breeding new lines and varieties of soybeans on the Sanford lab site.

Besides the inoculation studies and variety trials, Dr. Scudder said he is involved with weed control and data planning studies of soybeans.

The University of Florida is also working on lab cultures of the nitrogen-fixing bacteria for soil placement (inoculation) with grasses and corn, Darby pointed out.

Can you imagine homeowners having grass someday that never needs regular fertilizing? Dr. Scudder said this is a possibility.

Dr. Scudder said he already has received a $1,000 grant from the Florida Soybean Produce Association.

Soybeans are generally planted in June or July and harvested in November, he said. Planting usually follows the cabbage or vegetable harvests in late Spring in South Florida. There are about 50,000 acres of soybeans grown in Central Florida.

"American farming technology and the free enterprise system have enabled the competition which has automatically eliminated inefficiency — that's what's made this country great!" said Darby.

Darby said state research is also being done on mycotoxins (fungus or mold producing toxins) found in rotting peanuts and corn and celery have been found to produce forms of cancer.

Wrangle Continues Unabated

Lake Mary Election A Bitter Pill

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY—The city election was held in this, Seminole's youngest, community Tuesday, but the bitterness is a continuing wrangle between the city officials and the volunteer fire department continues unabated.

Councilman Martin Bacon Sr. polled more votes than his two opponents combined at 301 while fireman Roger Stumbo garnered a scant 85 in official election tallies and county maintenance supervisor Henderson Ferguson received 153—for the seat three post on the governing body.

Stumbo said Friday he would be sending, by certified mail, a protest of the elections supervisor Dorothy Glisson. Stumbo charged irregularities [illegible] the single voting machine at the Lake Mary polling place somehow reversed his and Bacon's vote totals.

Bacon, however, believes his win was legitimate and that the people of the city gave him a mandate to follow through on election promises to hire a professional fire chief and to require the volunteer fire department to meet the same rules and regulations on spending tax money required of other city departments.

"He (Stumbo said those votes I got should have been his," Bacon said Friday. "None of us was inside the voting booth with the voters."

Bacon added that council member Virginia Mercer was a Stumbo supporter and she had recommened to Mayor Walter Sorenson all the poll officials with the lone exception of Homer Gleason.

"All of them (the poll officials), with the possible exception of Mr. Gleason, were in opposition to me.

"We must protect the people. [illegible] firemen) have threatened to strike. There is no telling what they will do," he said, calling "obscene" a sign posted at the former grocery store at Country Club and Lake Crystal Drive Friday.

The sign at the former grocery store contained extendre comment concerning council members Bacon, Harry Terry and Mrs. DeLores Lash.

Meanwhile, Jennifer Sanders, a fire department supporter, at her Alma Street home in the city had hung a large decorated with signs including "This House For Sale"; "Live in the Growing Metropolis of Lake Mary"; "Enjoy High Taxes, Crummy Roads, No Boating in Lake Mary"; "Go to the Council Meetings, Support Your Council or Else"; "The Greatest Show on Earth, See Them Perform Their Daring Acts of Nepotism"; "Support Your Local Realtor, if you get my drift."

"I suppose they (the volunteer fire department) know their bubble has burst. They think they are going to [illegible] a dual department, but my thinking is to recommend at Wednesday night's city council meeting that the city go for mutual (fire protection) aid and that the position of full time fire chief be immediately advertised," Bacon said.

"We (the governing body) have to put things in legal shape and we will be equally guilty if the competitive bid ordinance is permitted to be violated.

"If we don't pursue it, we would be accessories, at least that's the legal opinion I have been given," he said.

Bacon said in a research of city records he has found that the city's bid law was circumverted via split invoices (purchases made at one time for items totaling over $1,000, but listed on separate invoices to avoid the bid requirement.)

He said sales slips for eight walkie-talkies were in numerical order, but the invoices had different dates and each invoice was for two walkie-talkies at a total of $840, just under the $1,000 bid law requirement.

Bacon said eight walkie-talkies were purchased on four different occasions for over $3,200 and "there are many questions."

Bacon said Mrs. Mercer, then councilman in charge of the fire department, approved payment of the bills and that Mrs. Mercer and Mayor Walter Sorenson ordered City Clerk Kay Seasman to make out and sign checks for the purchases.

Shevin Warns Buyers About Dangerous Toys

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Christmas shoppers should be on a special lookout this year for dangerous toys, Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin says.

He said in a statement released Friday that consumers would have to be especially cautious because the Consumer Products Safety Commission is not issuing a list of potentially dangerous toys this year.

In addition, he said, buyers should:

—Examine toys that use a household electrical current for possible hazards or heat.

—Beware of possible lead content in paint.

—Check possible flammable hazard of toys and clothes.

—Avoid toys with sharp points, high noise levels or attachments that can be pulled off and swallowed, and baby rattlers that come apart easily.

Anti-Lobbying Vs. Statutes?

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Anti-lobbying provisions in Gov. Reubin Askew's proposed Sunshine Amendment may violate the U.S. Constitution, House Standards and Conduct Chairman Tom McPherson says.

McPherson, D-Cooper City, said Friday he supports the governor's goal but criticized several aspects of the amendment. "I feel there should be a full discussion of both the weak as well as the strong points," he said.

Askew is circulating petitions to put the proposed amendment on the November 1976 ballot. The Sunshine Amendment would require elected state officials to file net worth statements listing assets and liabilities exceeding $1,000, and either income tax returns or statements listing income sources exceeding $1,000.

Couple Seeks Adoption

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — A Naples couple will seek to legally adopt a grandson they say needs protection, thus attempting to thwart Gov. Reubin Askew's extradition order which would force them to face Ohio kidnaping charges, their lawyer says.

George A. Vega said Friday that Nelson and Elizabeth Kelber will be in Collier County Circuit Court on Dec. 15 to seek the adoption and to try to show that Ohio's extradition papers are legally insufficient.

In approving extradition of the Kelbers, Askew said requests for removal of legally indicted persons are rarely refused.

Miami Police Seek Bomber

MIAMI (AP) — "I'd give a month's salary to nail these guys," says the chief of a newly created police task force dedicated to arresting the persons who exploded seven bombs here this week.

"These bombs are exploding in public buildings. We're going to get an innocent person killed," Lt. Everett Kay said Friday as police worked with FBI, Customs and Secret Service agents to identify the bombers.

"I'm going to take off the kid gloves on this," Kay said. "If we hurt anybody's feelings, we'll apologize — after we find out they're not the bombers.

Askew Names Schlegel

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Gov. Reubin Askew has named Monroe County Judge Lew Emerson Schlegel as a circuit judge.

Askew's office said Friday that Schlegel, of Marathon Shores, was named to the additional judicial position created by the 1975 legislature on the circuit court in Monroe County.

Schlegel, 39, is a native of Bellingham, Wash., who received his law degree at Florida State University. He has served as county judge since June 1972.

Lobby Offices Broken Into

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — Offices of four lobbyists have been broken into by burglars who passed up valuables to go through files, police say.

One of the offices burglarized was that of Wilton Miller, a lawyer associated with Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner in two land deals.

Recreation Plans Made For County

By ED PRICKETT
Herald Staff Writer

Sometime in January a countywide recreation program will get under way in Seminole County.

County Parks Administrator Jim Buck said the county, for the first time, will have a full-fledged program offering sports events ranging from slimnastics to softball.

The program, Buck says, will be "cheaper for county residents and will provide recreation for the entire county."

County commissioners, at a Tuesday meeting, okayed the program with dissent from one commissioner.

Commissioner Harry Kwiatkowski objected on grounds that a countywide program conflicts with private enterprise, which for a fee provides somewhat identical services. Kwatkowski also said he has seen no "indication" of savings to citizens.

But, Commissioner Dick [illegible] assisted Kwiatkowski's attempts to sink the fledgling program before it becomes a reality.

"The overriding factor is that a county program can go where a private company can't afford to go," Williams said. The vote was 4-1, with Kwiatkowski dissenting.

The board annually will have the right to approve a general recreation budget. Fees may be adjusted up or down, according to need.

Buck said he expects fees to provide for about a $10,000-a-year recreation program.

In addition to athletic programs, the county will hold classes, leagues and sponsor other activities to be announced at a later date.

The ordinance spells out the following fees:

— Volleyball, $40 for a team, length of time is 10 weeks.

— Flag football (men), $65 a team, for 10 weeks.

— Basketball (indoors), $90 a team, for 10 weeks.

— Basketball (outdoors), $75 a team, for 10 weeks.

— Tennis, $12 individual, for 10 weeks.

— Slimnastics, $8 individual, for 10 weeks.

— Softball, $55 per team, for 10 weeks.

— Slimnastics, $8 individual, for 10 weeks.

— Softball, $55 per team, for 10 weeks.

For commercially-sponsored softball teams, the fee has been set at $75, excluding cost of shirts.

Longwood, Casselberry Oust Five Incumbents

Elections In County Reveal Mixed Results

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Election of city officials, for the government said to be closest to the people and to affect the people most directly, are over for another year in Seminole County.

In 1975 of the cities — Longwood and Casselberry — the electorate indicated its disfavor with incumbents, ousting three in Casselberry and two of the three up for election in Longwood.

The third, Longwood Council member June Lormann ran unopposed.

The voters in both cities opted for new faces.

In Casselberry, via the selection process, the electorate chose a new face for its city council in Nathan Z. Van Meter. It was Van Meter's first dip into the political waters.

John Leighty, absent from the city government for two years after an earlier election defeat, was given a resounding vote of confidence, polling more votes than ever given a candidate before in city history.

For the mayor's office, the choice was Gerry Christensen. Christensen had run for council once before unsuccessfully.

The issues in Casselberry were fairly clear cut. Some members of the city government had attempted to levy an ad valorem tax in that "property tax-free city" for the first time and the people didn't like it.

After a protest led by Van Meter, the council changed its mind, deciding it had sufficient money to operate the city without going the property tax route.

Secondly, the people appeared unhappy about the city's purchase of General Waterworks utility company, believing it to be a poor deal and the cause of high utility rates in the community.

Much confusion reigned about the actual size of a bond issue to purchase the utility. Some said it totaled $13 million ,while others said a $9 million bond issue retired the first issue.

In Longwood, Parker Anderson and Larry Goldberg had both faithfully attended city council meetings for much of the year. Goldberg was among citizens who early in the year protested proposed economy cuts in the police department.

Goldberg has lived in the community little more than a year.

Anderson, a native of the area, was among Lake Ruth South residents who protested the city council's granting industrial zoning within a stone's throw of their homes. The group, when it came before the council, was reportedly belittled, insulted and its fears made light of.

The zoning was ultimately granted on a four-to-one vote. Only Councilman Gerard Connell, in office one year and himself a resident of less than three years duration, sympathized and voted against the rezoning.

Both Goldberg and Anderson were elected to the city council and two more incumbents were ousted by the voters.

In the last 10 years Longwood has had no less than nine one-term councilmen and no less than seven different mayors. There were four mayors once in less than three years and at another time three in less than 16 months.

Winter Springs, meanwhile, chose Claude Ash, a builder-developer in his first bid for political office.

In Lake Mary the incumbents — Martin Bacon Sr. and Harry Terry — retained the voters' favor while DeLores Lash, who had earlier voluntarily retired from city politics, came back winning a two-year council post unopposed.

The fall city elections began in Altamonte Springs in November. The electorate there gave incumbent Mayor Norman Floyd a landslide victory and vote of confidence.

Analysis

City Commissioner Cal DeVoney went back into office with no opposition.

And another new face, and again in a first try for elective office, Glen Buschman, a retired military man, was the choice of the people.

Floyd had remained popular during his first two-year term.

Many municipal officeholders and candidates whose names bedecked the daily issues of the Evening Herald and were household words over the years bit the dust in the process.

It began with Lawrence Swofford's defeat — the worst he had suffered in a political career that spanned a quarter of a century — in a bid for re-election to the Altamonte Springs mayor's office he lost two years ago.

Swofford, a colorful figure during his eight years on the county commission and 20 years in the city government, came out swinging with both fists, to get his campaign on the road. He said the day after the election that he won't run for elective office again. "I'm all finished in politics," he said.

The city, whose destiny he had controlled and whose progress and growth he had personally charted over the years, no longer wanted him.

During the same November election. Helen Keyser, who provided her own kind of grandmotherly businesswoman approach for six years as a council member in Altamonte, was also defeated.

Mrs. Keyser had never really run a political campaign before — she had been elected three times unopposed beginning in 1969.

During those years she was always available for whatever chore was assigned to her.

The complete decorating job at the new city hall and civic center carry her mark of good taste.

Yet the voters turned away from her.

The list of defeated ones expanded, with this week's elections, to include Casselberry Council Chairman Edith Duerr, a fixture that provided continuity in that city's government for the past 10 years, who watched the city money and cared for the city as though it was her own property.

Councilman John Zacco, a native of the big city of New York, feared Casselberry's beauty as a residential community could easily be destroyed. He fought long and hard to keep the city green with open spaces and parklands.

A fighter for the underdog, Dr. Zacco, in his bid to become mayor, rather than remain a councilman, was rejected by the votes.

Mayor Bill Grier, who occupied the mayor's office which in and of itself has little power, followed city council's instructions, filing suit against the county when, after the city had been negotiating to purchase a utility company for some years, the county commission, with more money and more clout, took it away from Casselberry.

Grier, who could not have taken the action on his own initiative, was nevertheless tagged with the blame for costing taxpayers countywide additional sums for the delay in the county purchase caused by the lawsuit.

No one asked why the taxpayers at large would be footing the bill for delay in purchasing a utility that would serve only a few residents in relation to the county's total population.

And no one asked why the county should be given priority in the purchase when Casselberry had been working on it for months.

Despite the unanswered questions, Grier was tagged by the voters as the culprit.

In Winter Springs, Irene Van Eepoel, another strong-willed person whose ideas of right and wrong have always been predictable, never stepped away from a fight where her principles were involved, and, she went down fighting losing by 30 votes.

In Longwood, Don Schreiner, who was the shining light when he was elected to the city council two years ago, prided himself on the fact that he made decisions all through his term without regard to a possible re-election.

In his campaign letter to the people, he urged that the voters look at the issues upon which he may have vote unpopularly and consider whether they were or were not in the city's best interest.

H.A. Scott, who had served a total of 10 years, none of the terms consecutively, beginning in 1948, saw re-election elude him again.

One of the unsuccessful candidates in a first time effort in recent weeks repeated the complaint of many voters.

When persons run for public office initially, he said, they are anxious to serve and want the people's opinions on every matter.

How they change? he said. Once in office, many times they become so smart, know so much, they don't need the people anymore.

Except at election time.

Around The Clock

How long has it been since you're been to a basketball game, be it high school, college, or just a pick-up game among youngsters?

Well, apparently the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Sports Committee feels it's been too long, 'cause they're concerned that not enough people are attending local games at area high schools nor at Seminole Community College.

As a result, the Sports Committee is inviting everyone in the community to attend an evening of basketball on Dec. 15, free of charge, at Seminole High School.

A girls' game is scheduled for 5 p.m., to be followed at 6:30 by a game featuring the Seminole High jayvees against Orlando Colonial's junior varsity.

Then at 7:30 p.m. comes the 'biggie' when Seminole High's varsity takes on the Colonial Grenadiers.

According to Jack Horner, executive manager of the Greater Sanford C. of C., free tickets to the entire happening will be available within the next few days and may be picked up at The Evening Herald, the Chamber of Commerce, all local banks and savings and loan institutions, and at Chase & Co., as well as at Celery City Printing.

Everyone in the area is urged to take advantage of this generous offer and turn out to support our local high school basketball program.

A similar free night is planned at Seminole Community College at a later date.

Having trouble finding a parking spot in Downtown Sanford while trying to do your Christmas shopping?

According to a number of Downtown merchants, George Brown, owner of the parking lot at Palmetto and Commercial streets, has opened the lot for free parking to all persons wishing to shop in the Downtown Sanford area.

The lot is located behind the public library.

Thanks Mr. Brown, for your generosity.

How safe is your home from burglars or a fire? A home security day is scheduled to be held in Casselberry at Seminole Plaza, in front of the Seminole Cinema, on Friday, Dec. 12, and Saturday, Dec. 13.

Sponsored jointly be the Casselberry Police and Fire Departments, the 'seminar' will be conducted from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Dec. 12 and from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. the following day.

Exhibits of suggested door and window locks will be on display, as well as other security exhibits, and continuous films will be shown on fire safety and prevention and on home burglary protection.

Community Relations Officers Durbin Gatch and Edna Abell will also be available to answer questions from spectators.

On Saturday at 2:30, a demonstration of the 'Hurst Tool,' which is used to pry open doors of wrecked vehicles, will take place followed at 4 p.m. by a roof-top rescue operation to be performed by the Casselberry Fire Department, under the direction of Fire Chief Mark Walker.

The public is invited to this free Home Security Day.

An Economic 'Peace' Vital

President Ford left for Europe recently to take part in an unusual summit meeting. Leaders of the top industrial nations of the West— the United States, Great Britian, France, West Germany, Italy, Japan, and possibly Canada—will gather in the Paris suburb of Rambouillet to try to reach an understanding on meshing their economic policies for their common good.

All of these countries took their lumps in the recession that hit last year. All of them now have reason to hope that the worst is behind them. Yet all of them are aware that a return to healthy economic growth is by no means assured.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger helped set the stage for the summit in a speech to the Pittsburgh World Affairs Council last Monday. Unless the major industrial nations work out cooperative solutions to their individual economic problems, he said, there is a danger they will lapse into "economic warfare."

The challenge of the summit is to put into some workable form the concept of interdependence which has been used recently by Mr. Ford and Mr. Kissinger to describe the relationship that should bind together the nations of the Free World, including the developing countries and the oil-exporting countries whose star is rising.

Obviously the industrialized nations cannot hope to supply leadership in giving life to that concept if they cannot first work out the problems of their own interdependence. Without some spirit of unity at Rambouillet the prospects would look dim for constructive results at the major international economic conference opening Dec. 16 in Paris which will find Third World countries, the oil exporters and the industrial nations sitting at the same table.

While the idea of economic interdependence is easy to state, it is another matter to apply it to today's realities. Great Britian is a case in point. The British are desperate to increase their exports, and are urging France and West Germany to pursue expansionist economic policies to improve the market for British goods. The French and the Germans, however, are more concerned about inflation and want to keep a tighter rein on their economies.

President Ford goes to the summit representing the nation with the strongest economy of all, and will be under pressure to agree to trade and monetary policies that best suit the needs of the other partners. Obviously, Mr. Ford can go only so far in this direction without jeopardizing our own effort to keep economic growth on course without resurgent inflation.

Complete economic coordination between nations is impossible without sacrifice of sovereignty and a surrender of national interests. At the other extreme, if nations look only to their own economic interests they could slip into trade wars which would shatter the unity of the Western democracies. The task at Rambouillet is to chart the course of interdependence that lies somewhere in between.

Misuse Of Power

Police are working people, and like other working people deserve the right to collective bargaining with their employers — so goes the argument.

But what if the social role of the police offer differs in important respects from the role of the working man?

Then the argument for collective bargaining for police would be seriously weakened.

What happened in San Francisco after the recent municipal elections goes to this point.

The police lost the elections. The measures they favored were defeated. Propositions that they regarded as punitive were approved by the voters.

The next day the San Francisco police issued an extraordinary number of parking and traffic tickets. That was not because there were more violations than usual. It was simply the way the police showed their displeasure with the election results. They were discipling the voters.

It was a clear misuse of police power. And it demonstrated that the custodians of such power hold a special place of duty and responsibility in our society. Theirs is a special relationship to the community, not subject to the rules that govern ordinary employes.

The Search For Low Fat In Foods

I am indebted to the ubiquitous poet "Anonymous" for the following rhyme:

Fats and sweets may do you in;
High cholesterol! Avoid it.
Food used to be rich in vitamin But processing destroyed it.
So let your life be guided By each new documented fact.
We may ail die of malnutrition
But with arteries intact!

We have become a nation of calorie counters and have been made aware of the additives found in so many foods. Also today everyone, young and old, seems to be cholesterol-conscious.

Cholesterol is a wax-like substance manufactured normally by the human body and needed for various metabolic functions. But some foods we eat build up more cholesterol than the body normally needs. And this fatty, waxy substance gathers in the arteries, mostly around the heart. This can lead to atherosclerosis, which is a medical term for hardening of the arteries, one of the main causes of heart attacks among the aging population.

A few years ago my wife, Gerry, read a report by Dr. Elaine R. Monsen of the Harvard School of Public Health and Dr. Ancel Keys, director of the Laboratory of Physiological Hygiene of the University of Minnesota. They had been working independently and reached the same conclusion that the coconut oil used in most substitute whipped creams was higher in cholesterol-causing fat than the butterfat in real whipped cream. Dr. Monsen said, "They may represent it as a vegetable oil, but it is a saturated oil, not typical of the vegetable oils." Dr. Keys' research showed "coconut oil to be two times as bad as butter oil on the cholesterol level of the blood. It's the worst oil they could have chosen."

We were not using any of these ersatz whipped creams but had been using a widely distributed substitute sour cream which we bought, thinking it was lower in harmful fat content.

Gerry went to the refrigerator, read the fine print on the container and, sure enough, it was made with coconut oil! We switched to another popular brand of mock sour cream because they listed their oil as "vegetable oil."

Not merely to help the Post Office out of its deficit position, she exchanged several letters with the second producer of the substitute sour cream. Her persistence paid off — almost. Grudgingly, they sent a list of the ingredients. They used an asterisk next to "vegetable oil" and on the bottom of the page was another asterisk with the explanation "coconut oil!" Today, no more commercial ersatz sour creams are on our shopping lists. We now make our own in a blender.

We use non-fat dry milk and drink our coffee black. But we had been serving an artificial powdered cream substitute for our guests who like cream in their coffee. This leading brand, produced by a company we trust so much for other food in our daily diet, listed "vegetable fat" among its ingredients.

No Proof Of Presidential Involvement

The Senate Intelligence Committee was unable to pin down any proof that past President authorized the CIA to assassinate foreign leaders.

Top CIA officials, however, however, have now broken their silence on this subject. They have told us categorically that all the assassination plots had White House approval.

To avoid embarrassing a President, no written record was kept. This provided the Presidents with what the Senate report calls "plausible deniability." But the CIA officials have given us this rundown:

Eisenhower Administration — The late CIA chief Allen Dulles personally consulted President Eisenhower about the plot to poison the Congo's Patrice Lumumba. Dulles had a tendency to talk in circles. He probably used delicate words in discussing the assassination plot.

But he came back and reported to associates that the President had authorized the plot to kill Lumumba.

Kennedy Administration — The late Robert Kennedy, according to our sources, took a personal interest in the effort to eliminate Cuba's Fidel Castro. Kennedy pursued the details down through the lower levels. He had full knowledge of the "executive action plan," as the plot against Castro was known.

Our sources weren't privy to Robert Kennedy's private conversations with his brother, the President. But our sources regard it as highly unlikely that Robert withheld anything from his brother.

In any event, President Kennedy put Robert in charge of a counterinsurgency committee, called the Special Group, which concentrated on harassing Castro. The President's brother complained about the use of mobsters to kill Castro but approved of the plot, our sources swear.

Johnson Administration — President Johnson, upon being advised of the CIA plots to assassinate foreign leaders, made it clear he didn't want to know about them. There were some activities, he indicated, that the President shouldn't be told about.

Or as one source put it: "Lyndon Johnson was really quite sagacious in staying away from anything that might later blow up in his face."

LBJ, therefore, was not informed personally about the continuing effort to knock off Castro.

Nixon Administration — President Nixon was given an oral briefing on the assassination attempts, a briefing which might have been recorded on the secret White House tapes.

Our sources say Nixon was "gung ho" about covert activities, that he personally ordered CIA chief Richard Helms to foment a coup against Chile's late President Salvador Allende. But Nixon gave no assassination orders.

Clearly, not only the CIA but the White House must be restricted against using murder as an instrument of U.S. foreign policy.

SOVIET HARASSMENT: American tourists have come home from Russia with stories of harassment, apparently because they were Jewish.

U.S. Jewish leaders have told us the mistreatment is still rare, but they fear it could be the beginning of a campaign to discourage Jewish visitors.

For example, a Miami physician, Dr. Joel Sandberg, and his wife, Adele, spent 10 days in Russia earlier this year seeing the sights and visiting Jewish families.

In Kishinev, they spent four evenings with Mark Abramovich, a Soviet Jew who had asked to go to Israel. "We went to Mark's apartment openly," the Sandbergs told our associate Joe Spear. "No officials ever told us not to visit him. We can emphatically state that they said nothing against the Soviet Union."

Yet the Sandbergs, apparently because of their brief association with Abramovich, were grilled for 10 hours. They were accused of being Israeli spies, of smuggling documents, of engaging in "hostile" acts against the Soviet Union.

They were told that they wouldn't be going home for four or five years, that they wouldn't be seeing their three children for a long time. Several times, Adele Sandberg broke down and wept.

In the end, the Sandbergs were packed off to Romania. The local communist paper later portrayed them as Zionist agents and excoriated Abramovich as a man who "slanders the country that had raised him." Such public denunciation often is a prelude to a trial and sentence.

Another Miami couple, Ralph and Miriam Gordon, were taking pictures in Soviet Armenia last September when Ralph suddenly died of a heart attack. The Soviets forcibly injected Miriam with medication, interrogated her for hours and accused her of slipping poison into her husband's vodka martini. She was allowed to return home after several anxious days.

Footnote: The State Department had lodged official protests over the maltreatment of American citizens. Our calls to the Soviet Embassy were not returned.

President's 'Stirring' Strategy

One of my minor political acquaintances once told me his strategy in any contest was simple. Stir things up by any means possible, then watch for any breaks the turmoil offered.

It is not my belief that this is President Ford's objective in his all-out drive against the hidebound regulatory agencies, new and old. His emotions on regulations ran too high. His interest in the subject is too old — begun well before he'd developed a presidential political strategy. But the results may be similar, all the same, to the stir-things-up strategy of my old acquaintance.

What seems clear is that Mr. Ford will now have a great many people up in arms, crossing party and ideological lines.

What's more, Mr. Ford seems to be enjoying the turmoil immensely. Intimates say he's delighted by the kind of opposition he's getting. These are the type of political enemies he wants.

For those thinking of 1976 and the type of man they want as president, this fight on the regulatory agencies will be a testing time for Mr. Ford — far more significant as to the man's ability or lack of it than his strategy on New York City's problems.

In the next few months we will have a chance to see President Ford's political ingenuity and leadership severely challenged in a catch-as-catch-can series of battles in which traditional foes and allies will be so criss-crossed that no second rater could possibly bring order out of the chaos.

One way or another, Mr. Ford may find in his corner such unlikely colleagues as Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), Ralph Nader and his consumer groups, farm associations and major environmentalists. Aligned against him may be the Teamsters, big truckers and some of the Men who have been among his major backers in industry.

At immediate stake is the success or failure of Mr. Ford's attack on the noose-like regulations which control the trucking business, largely, his aides say, for the benefit of established companies.

Simultaneously, there will be battles over Ford administration bills defusing regulations in the airline and railroad industries.

These will be minor skirmishes compared to what will come next: successive drives on the tangle of regulations binding the broadcasting industry, oil and gas pricing and a series of reforms the White House is developing on the enforcement of employe safety and environmental protection and the regulation of drugs for medical use.

On his side, the President has gathered a team of young men as ideologically committed and as fervent as Nader's raiders or President Kennedy's Irish mafia. Some have spent their entire working lives in private research, as college professors and in government developing their objectives and dreaming what changes they would make in government regulation of industry and the economy if opportunity should come their way. Despite the number of Ph.D.s among them this is no band of paper tigers. The opposition is equally adept at political infighting.

A Nobel For Seminole

Seminole High School principal Don Reynolds is as proud as anyone of the school's football success this season.

But Reynolds also believes in a well-rounded education. Brandishing a copy of last year's student literary magazine, Reynolds expressed his hope that some day a Seminole grad would help put Sanford on the map by winning a Nobel Prize.

Ever wonder how Seminole Community College came up with that beautiful gym?

According to Edison Junior College basketball coach Hugh Thimlar, the builder gym was just a gleam in Seminole coach Joe Sterling's eyes a few years ago when Sterling took his Raiders to play Edison at Fort Meyers and saw the brand-new Edison gym.

"Joe said he liked ours and wanted one just like it. You know, the very next year he had one, copied from us," Thimlar said.

At the Dec. 1 meeting of property owners and businessmen sponsored by the Downtown Development Council, City Commissioner Julian Stenstrom suggested downtown merchants stay open later in the evening.

Stenstrom cited one occasion recently, when his plans to buy a pair of trousers were thwarted by the stores being closed.

"And when I buy a pair of trousers—that's something!" the substantial Stenstrom remarked.

Educators in Seminole County have their share of close shaves, too.

After an annual review of all courtesy busing was suggested recently as one of the four alternatives to this costly service, Sal Manfre, principal of Milwee Middle School, had this comment:

"All you're doing is shaving a jackass...When you're all through, you still have the problem."

Some tradition may have been broken at a recent Sanford City Commission meeting recently.

Just before Miss Sara Jacobson, executive director of the Downtown Development Council, showed up apologizing for being seven minutes late at a recent special brainstorming meeting in City Hall, Commissioner Julian Stenstrom told fellow commissioners:

"This is the first time in four years that a city commission meeting has started late!"

"What's in a name" may have crossed the minds of readers in the recent school pot smoking incident in Seminole County.

The School Board has since called for stricter enforcement of rules and regulations regarding tabacco and marijuana on school buses and school propery.

However, two of the school officials involved in the controversy were Oviedo High School Principal Keith Stone, and bus driver Jack Grass...

WORLD IN BRIEF

Nationalists Hold 61 Hostages In Consulate, On Board Train

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) — South Moluccan nationalists held up to 61 hostages today in twin standoffs at the Indonesian consulate in Amsterdam and aboard a hijacked train in northern Holland.

Mediators from the South Moluccan community in Amsterdam won the release of seven children from the consulate Friday, but as night fell the six gunmen continued to hold four children and between 16 and 21 adults. Negotiations were suspended until morning.

An explosion in the train hijacked by South Moluccans near Beilen, 90 miles north of here, resulted in the release of two hostages and the surrender of an injured gunmen. Security officals said the explosion was "accidental."

Ford Stops In Philippines

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — President Ford flew to The Philippines today for a second courtesy call on a Southeast Asian ally before returning home from his China trip.

The President was greeted on arrival at Manila International Airport by thousands of school children singing in a slight drizzle.

Before departing from Jakarta three hours earlier, Ford met privately with Indonesian President Suharto, after which the two presidents issued a joint communique that "expressed the intention of the United States to continue to provide substantial aid to Indonesia in support of Indonesia's development efforts."

Church Council Elects Leaders

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The assembly of the World Council of Churches today elected as leaders its first women, an American and an African, and its first Soviet-bloc churchman.

They were among a six-member presidium voted into office by the global interdenominational body, along with 136 members of its policymaking central committee.

In the council's 27-year history, two women previously have served as members of the presidium, but only through selection by the central committee to fill out unfinished terms of men, and not through election by a general assembly.

AREA DEATHS

MRS. MABEL WOOLERY

Funeral services were held Thursday in Woodlawn Memorial Park, Orlando, for Mrs. Mabel L. Woolery, 81, of 306 W. Concord St., Orlando, who died Dec. 2. Born in Larksville, Pa., she lived in Orlando since 1910 and was the sister of Mrs. B.C. Moore of Sanford. She was a member of the Eastern Star, Amaranth Cathedral 38, and the Christian Church. She was a former matron of the Orange County Parental Home.

Other survivors include her husband, Paul, Orlando; sister, Mrs. W.M. Bradbury, Sugarloaf, Pa.; two foster sons, Paul Woolery Jr., Orlando and E.C. Thompson, Ft. Lauderdale and several nieces and nephews.

Fairchild Funeral Home was in charge.

Missing In Asia Talks Make Progress, Delegate Says

PARIS (AP) — Members of the House Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia made progress Saturday in 3½ hours of talks with Vietnamese Communist officials in Paris, Rep. G.V. Montgomery said.

However, no detauls were given on what had been discussed in the meeting. The two sides scheduled another meeting Saturday afternoon, after which a statement was expected.

"The meeting has been cooperative and constructive. We are making progress ... We think we will have some news for the American people that will be of interest," Montgomery, D.-Miss., the committee chairman, said.

"The meetings so far have been very significant. I think both sides have gained a lot ... The meeting is moving very very well. Mainly we've been talking about the MIAs. Later this afternoon we will move into across-the-board matters that affect both nations."

It was believed the first time since the end of the Vietnam war that the North Vietnamese have talked substantively with U.S. officials about the estimated 850 Americans still listed as missing in action.

Sources said the North Vietnaese ambassador to Paris, Vo Van Sung, who returned with instructions from Hanoi recently, was not stalling on the issues.

Chinese leaders recently released information on seven Americans missing since 1952 in the Far East, but only one case revealed any thing new, the Pentagon said.

That was a change in the status of parachute rigger Kenneth Pugh of Lancaster, Calif., from missing in action to killed in action.

He was aboard a Navy plane when it was shot down in 1966 while flying near China's Leicho Peninsula en route from The Phillipines to a naval carrier in the Gulf of Tonkin.

The Chinese said he was buried and indicated a willingness to return his remains to the United States, along with the body of Navy Lt. Cmdr. Jimmy Buckley of Sac City, Iowa, the Pentagon said on Friday.

Buckley has been recorded as killed in action ever since his A6 Intruder was shot down in 1967 just inside the border of South China enroute from a bombing mission over North Vietnam.

Three of the seven men covered in the China release already are back in the United States, the Pentagon said.

Chinese officials also reported that Norm Schwartz of Lexington, Ky., and Bob Snoddy of Roseburg, Ore., were killed in a 1952 plane crash in northeast China during the Korean War. They were buried near the crash site, but because of the passage of time, the Chinese said their grave sites cannot be located.

Jets Narrowly Miss Mid-Air Collision

CHICAGO (AP) — A Trans World Airlines jet with 77 persons aboard narrowly missed colliding at 21,000 feet with a United Airlines plane carrying 60 passengers, federal authorities said.

The near-miss Friday over Lake Michigan was the second time in nine days a TWA aircraft came close to an aerial crash. A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said it was the 14th near-miss this year.

Passengers said the TWA jet swerved sharply to avoid collision but no passenger or crew member on either Boeing 727 jet was injured.

On Nov. 26, a Trans World Airlines jumbo jet carrying 114 persons from Philadelphia to Los Angeles and an American Airlines plane with 194 persons came within 20 to 100 feet of each other near Detroit. Twenty-four persons were injured when the pilot of the American jet swerved sharply to avoid collision.

FAA spokesman Neal Callahan said the near-miss Friday occurred at 4:39 p.m. CST on the Michigan side of the lake about 60 miles northeast of O'Hare International Airport, the world's busiest.

United flight 291 was en route to Chicago from Providence, R.I., and TWA flight 403 was approaching O'Hare from Hartford, Conn.

"The TWA captain reported that he came up behind the United aircraft at the same altitude, saw it when it was about 300 feet in front, made an immediate left turn and descended about 100 feet," Callahan said.

He said both flights continued on to O'Hare and landed safely. Both pilots filed reports, but there was no immediate reason given for the near miss, which was under investigation by the FAA.

"Visibility was unlimited at the time of the incident" and weather was no factor, Callahan said.

A passenger on the United plane notified The Associated Press of the near-miss. He said the TWA plane swerved sharply to the left to avoid hitting the United plane which had just been cleared to descend into its landing approach pattern.

The passenger, a Wilmette, Ill., businessman who asked not to be identified, said the jet "went into a holding pattern over the lake and (we) were about 15 minutes to a landing.

"The captain was announcing the weather and said we had broken a heat record today. His next words were, 'The old record was....' and at that point a TWA 727 passed us coming up behind us and banking to the left about 50 feet under our left wing." The passenger estimated the TWA pilot steered the plane into "about a 45-degree angle" to avoid the collision.

The passenger said the United pilot held a steady course. Afterward, said the businessman, who travels 55,000 to 70,000 miles a year, "the captain apologized and said these incidents do happen. He said, 'I understand you all being upset. But we definitely are flying at our prescribed altitude."

Local Policeman Stops Attempt On Man's Life

The quick action of a Sanford police officer probably saved the life of a 46-year-old Sanford man early today when he disarmed a knife-wielding assailant and arrested him after he had inflicted several wounds on his victim.

Patrolman Richard Bennett, a member of the Sanford Police Department for the past two years, was stopped by a woman as he drove along West 13th Street about 1:23 a.m.

The woman, Mrs. Ellinor Walker, frantically waved down the patrol car and pointed toward her home at 1200 Lincoln court telling Bennett that someone was "killing" her husband.

Bennett ran up to the house, and saw the assailant stabbing his victim, Charles Walker, according to the police report.

Bennett rushed into the house, disarmed the attacker and arrested Sylvester Thomas, 46, of 516 East 10th St.

Walker was taken to Seminole County Hospital where he was admitted with multiple stab wounds in the hands, arms, face and head. He was listed in fair condition today.

Thomas has been charged with breaking and entering, attempted murder and use of a weapon in the commission of a felony. The weapon was described as a 9-inch corrugated steak knife.

Mayor Dumps Employes, Hires Wife, Son

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — Utica Mayor Edward Hanna laid off a number of city employes in an austerity move and said he would impose a wage freeze.

Then he hired his wife as commissioner of the city board of water supply and his son as an urban renewal department employe. Wife Ellen earns $800 a year in her post and son Paul, 24, makes $11,500 annually on the city payroll.

Defending his appointments, Hanna said his wife is "coming in under an emergency situation where I need total dedication to the job and total loyalty to me personally. I know of nobody I can trust more."

He said Mrs. Hanna will return her salary to the city. He said his son has been working for the city for about a year and a half without pay. "He can see the lack of loyalty to the job by city employes, the indifference and waste," Hanna said. "It's good to know you've got somebody across the hall who's giving you the work."

Alimony Suit Rejected

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — A suit by Princess Ira Furstenberg for $2,000 a month in alimony from wealthy Brazilian industrialist Francisco "Baby" Pignatari has been rejected by the Brazilian Supreme Court.

Princess Ira, 35, daughter of Prince Tassilo Furstenberg, and Pignatari, former international playboy, were married in 1959 and divorced in 1964.

Pignatari paid the Italianborn princess $25,000 when the divorce was finalized and paid $2,000 a month in alimony until 1966. She began Brazilian court action in 1967 to get the payments restored, but Friday's unanimous court ruling upheld a lower court's decision against continuation of the payments.

Pignatari's lawyers argued that the princess "is a very rich person," noting that the family of her mother, Clara Agnelli, controls a Italian industrial complex that includes the Fiat auto company.

Nixon Telephones Dole

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert J. Dole received a telephone call from former President Richard M. Nixon offering contratulations on his upcoming marriage to Federal Trade Commissioner M. Elizabeth Hanford.

The Kansas Republican said Friday that Nixon "was in good spirits" and "invited us to San Clemente for a cup of tea."

Dole was Republican national chairman from 1970 through Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign. Miss Hanford was nominated in 1973 by Nixon for her seven-year term on the FTC. The couple will be married in a private ceremony Saturday in a crypt chapel of the Protestant Episcopal Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul.

Santa Claus 'Excused'

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — James Russell of Fresno was given a reprieve from midDecember jury duty for the best of reasons. He's Santa Claus.

The county jury commissioner's office said it granted Russell a delay in serving because "we want you to know the jury commissioner's office has a heart," an employe said.

Russel serves as a Santa Claus at a regional shopping center. He will be put back on the jury duty list after Christmas.

FBI Attempts To Provoke Clash Failed

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI officials tried for two years to provoke a clash between the Mafia and U.S. Communists but gave up because both sides apparently ignored them, according to newly disclosed FBI documents.

Called Operation Hoodwink, the program was launched in October 1966 and ended in July 1968 after the New York FBI office reported that several disruptive activities were carried out but "none have produced substantial tangible results."

Details of Operation Hoodwink were disclosed for the first time in 45 pages of documents which the FBI released on Friday to 10 reporters who sought them under the Freedom of Information Act.

Operation Hoodwink was one of 12 FBI counterintelligence programs conducted against the Communist party U.S.A. and groups such as the Weatherman, Black Panthers, Ku Klux Klan and civil rights organizations.

"A dispute between the Communist party U.S.A. and La Cosa Nostra would cause disruption of both groups by having each expend their energies, time and money attacking the other," said the FBI memo launching Operation Hoodwink.

The operation apparently was the most limited of all the so-called Cointelpro activities and apparently involved only the distribution of four phony letters.

Operation Hoodwink was concentrated in the New York FBI office, but Philadelphia agents joined the effort in August 1968, the memos said. FBI headquarters invited Hoodwink ideas from other FBI offices, but received a reply only from the bureau's San Francisco office.

Office brainstorm sessions "have not produced any ideas that could be logically expected to successfully pit the hoodlums against the communists," the memo to other offices said.

The documents showed that the New York agents mailed a phony letter to the Communist party newspaper "The Worker," condemning organized crime for oppression of the working class.

Ad Ban Revision Proposed

CHICAGO (AP) — A committee of the American Bar Association today recommended eliminating the traditional ban on advertising by lawyers. Consumer groups say resulting price competition should lower fees for a wide variety of personal legal services.

The proposals to amend the ABA's Code of Professional Conduct will be further reviewed before being placed before the ABA's House of Delegates at a meeting in February at Philadelphia.

Lawrence E. Walsh, the association's president, said in August he has "a low view of advertising" and thinks "it is a device to get people to buy things they don't need."

Nevertheless, there is growing pressure, including at least one pending suit, to drop the ban. Currently it limits lawyers to placing a name, address and office number in a telephone directory.

The proposed revision of the ABA's code would permit lawyers to advertise biographical data, fields of specialty and fees for specific types of cases in newspapers and on television and radio.

Standard consulting fees and credit availability could also be publicized.

Still banned, however, would be false or misleading statements; personal testimonials of client satisfaction with a lawyer; statistics on past performance or prediction of future success; and average, minimum or set fees without full disclosure of all contingencies.

Threatened Rail Strike Averted

NEW YORK (AP) — A threatened strike against the nation's railroads was averted this past week, but the threat of a veto still loomed over Congressional plans to prop up the railroads financially.

A tentative contract agreement provides a 41 per cent increase in wages and fringe benefits over three years for the 76,000 members of four shopcraft unions, who still must ratify it.

Had they walked off, members of other unions that have already reached similar agreements would have honored the picket lines, shutting down virtually all of the nation's rail service for commuters, freight and long distance travelers.

The U.S. Senate, meanwhile was approving more than $8 billion in loans for the railroads, despite President's Ford's warning that he would veto the measure because he considers it too costly.

Included in the bill were $3 billion in loans for Consolidated Rail Corp., the federally chartered company created to move freight over the track systems of the seven financially collapsed northeastern railroads.

Also provided in the bill are $1.4 billion in loans for track repairs on other lines and $3 billion in loans to improve service between Washington and Boston.

Transportation Secretary William Coleman said the Senate bill and a similar, but less costly House subcommittee plan, were both unacceptable to the President.

Ford has proposed spending $2.1 billion to fund the reorganized railroads and $1.2 billion to upgrade Washington—Boston passenger service.

Other industries, notably automobiles and retail merchandise were reporting happier times.

The auto makers said domestic car sales in November shot up 35 per cent above last November's level, the sharpest year-to-year gain for any month in almost four years.

In another sign of growing consumer activity, the nation's major retail chains boasted higher sales figures for November, including a 22.5 per cent jump for S.S. Kresge Co., a 13.3 per cent rise for F.W. Woolworth Co., and an increase of 6.7 per cent for Sears, Roebuck & Co.

The unemployment rate, the percentage of persons working or looking for work who are jobless, dropped from 8.6 per cent in October to 8.3 per cent. About 7.7 million persons were unemployed in November, about the same number as in October.

A marked drop in farm products and an equal rise in prices of industrial goods and commodities left the government's wholesale price index for the month unchanged, after seasonal adjustments.

Government economists said the evening off was better than what can be expected in the next few months, but James L. Pate, a Commerce Department economist, said "Any way you look at it, I think it's good news."

Third Extortion Attempt In Three Months

Bank Official Abducted; $250,000 Ransom Demanded

DETROIT (AP) — Two men have demanded a $250,000 ransom be paid for an assistant manager of a bank branch who was abducted as he arrived for work.

Police said another branch of the bank received a telephoned ransom call Friday demanding the money in exchange for the release of 25-year-old James Crawford, who police said was abducted earlier in the day.

The Detroit Free Press quoted police in Saturday's editions as saying the ransom would be paid. The newspaper did not say who would pay the ransom. Neither police nor the FBI would confirm the report.

A witness, whom police refused to identify, said the abductors arrived at the rear of the bank in a late model, blue Chevrolet Monte Carlo.

The witness said one of the men, in his early 20s with a moustache and neatly trimmed black hair, jumped from the car and pointed at Crawford with a hand concealed in the pocket of a tan raincoat.

Crawford was forced into the car, which sped away. It was not known if the abductors were actually armed.

Police and FBI agents converged on the small bank on Detroit's west side and waited for word from the abductors. Regular business operations were maintained, but police ordered reporters and photographers to leave.

A woman who identified herself as Crawford's mother told reporters, "We have heard nothing."

Crawford is single, a graduate of Wayne State University and has been an employe of National Bank of Detroit since 1969.

It was the third extortion attempt of a bank official in the Detroit area in the last three months. An FBI official refused comment when asked if the agency was investigating links among the cases.

Mary Zedan, wife of a bank official, was abducted last month, but she was released unharmed after a ransom reported at $100,000 was paid. No arrests have been made in the case.

Six weeks earlier, the Detroit home of bank manager Richard Bachman was invaded by two gunmen who demanded $200,000 for the safety of Bachman's wife, his daughter, a niece and a nephew.

The family was not harmed and the gunmen left after Bachman took about $66,000 from the bank in suburban Taylor and dropped it off in an alley in Hamtramck, another Detroit-area community.

The FBI said it recovered more than $50,000 of the ransom money in the Bachman case and arrested five men and a woman. All face federal extortion charges.

Sent To White House For Approval

Loans To New York Okayed By Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation authorizing $2.3 billion in federal loans to save New York City from default passed easily in the Senate early Saturday and was sent to the White House for certain approval.

"Somehow or another an awful lot of fiscal rabbits have been pulled out of New York's hat in the last few weeks," said Sen. James Buckley, R-N.Y., who voted for the bill. Senate approval came on a 57 to 30 vote.

Final congressional action ended months of speculation as to whether the federal government would step in to keep the city from defaulting on its obligations. The bill extends $2.3 billion in short-term loans for the city and is effective for the next three years.

President Ford proposed the bill in late November, reversing his previous opposition to federal aid for the city. The House okayed the measure 213 to 203 last Tuesday.

City officials have warned that default could come as soon as next Thursday, but with approval of the federal loans, it is expected that city bondholders will exchange their due notes for long-term notes to enable New York to continue operations without a formal default.

"On behalf of eight million New Yorkers, I commend the members of Congress from all over the country who recognized that we have a practical self-help plan in place and that this legislation is in the national interest," said New York Mayor Abraham Beame.

The final Senate vote, at 12:15 a.m., came after prolonged debate and parliamentary gimmickry by opponents who failed to mount a threatened filibuster. Amendments to weaken the bill all failed.

The Senate may now be faced with a round of filibusters against the appropriations bill to actually provide the money to cover the loans.

The bill approved today creates a vehicle by which New York City can borrow from the federal Treasury. Still to be considered by both the House and Senate is a $10.3-billion supplemental appropriations bill which contains the money to be loaned.

Beame said, "I am hopeful that the appropriations bill will be speedily approved and that the federal loan program will be implemented in time to complete the financing package assembled here in New York."

Gray Defends Navy Lieutenant

ATLANTA (AP) — Former acting FBI director L. Patrick Gray III will defend a Navy lieutenant charged in Atlanta with conspiring to extort $6.5 million from several oil companies.

Gray's office in New London, Conn., confirmed Friday that Gray will defend Lt. William Watkins, one of four men indicted by a federal grand jury in connection with explosive devices which detonated Sept. 11 at the Pierce Oil Co. and a service station, both in the Atlanta suburb of Chamblee.

A similar bomb went off in New Jersey.

The indictment charged that Watkins helped make the devices and that he and the three other men conspired to extort money from oil companies throughout the nation by threatening to plant bombs.

Two undetonated bombs were found by FBI agents Sept. 27 in Jacksonville.

Also charged in the case were Paul Douglass Methven of Virginia Beach, Va., and Laarry Shaffer of Chicago. Agents said a third man, William Carpenter of Virginia Beach, had worked with the pair but was not charged in the indictment. He reportedly aided the FBI in its investigation.

Haynes' Hunches

By JIM HAYNES

Hey Sis, How About Going One On One After Breakfast?

Guess what the topic of conversation at the breakfast table is for Cheryl and Gary Hird, sister-brother combination at Oviedo High School.

It's one of those situations of pass the butter, please, and remember to block out on defense.

Girls basketball has arrived on the sports scene in the Sunshine State. For a number of years, the distaff side has been the headline grabber in the Midwest.

Judging from the initial reception this season, girls basketball is here to stay.

It remains to be determined if girls basketball shall ever run stride for stride with the boys program.

Cheryl Hird isn't the average high school junior. She's 6-2 and size-wise would be an addition to most varsity football programs. But Cheryl's case of playing basketball exemplifies the plight of girls' role in athletics, or rather the absence of it.

The Heroine Gets The Guy

Not all female athletes are frustrated about not being born male. Some of them just want the same rights as their counterparts. And basketball is a sport where they can press their point.

So far, I haven't seen any boy cheerleaders for the girls games, but I have seen a boy outside the girls' locker room, waiting to plant a hug and kiss on the game's heroine.

"I think it's great that girls can have the same advantages as the boys," says Cheryl Phillips, a pert young blonde who coaches the Oviedo High girls team. She is also Mrs. Dale Phillips, her husband coaching the boys varsity.

Cheryl looks as if she were a point guard for Terre Haute. "No, I never played basketball," she admits. "I never took much interest until I met my husband. Over the last four years I have been converted. Now, it's just a way of life."

Back To The Basics

Mrs. Phillips must have had some second thoughts the first day she called practice.

"Okay, team," she said in her best coaching voice, "today we are going to start with a defense drill."

The girls just stared at her. A what drill?

"They didn't know what defense was," Mrs. Phillips said. "That's where you know we are doing some good. These girls have a better knowledge of the game, besides participating."

The rule of thumb for girls games seems to be strong on spirit and short on talent, at least talent as compared to the boys.

The girls do a lot of fast breaking, quick missing and play with a slippery ball. Crowds seem to prefer girls basketball to boys junior varsity at most area schools, and attendance has received a shot in the arm.

"And I think you can safely say the girls who play have gained a new respect for the difficulty of the game," says Dale Phillips. "From the stands it might look easy. But when you've shot under the

Lyman Grabs No. 4, Lions Lose

Mark up another one for Lyman, and one against Oviedo.

Lyman High School's basketball team won its fourth game without a loss Friday night, dribbling past Lake Brantley, 83-70.

Oviedo started slowly and didn't gain much momentum in dropping its third straight defeat without a victory in a 63-42 game against Orlando Colonial.

Saturday night it was Howey Academy at Sanford Naval Academy in the only game involving a Seminole County team.

An estimated 700 fans saw an explosive Lyman club meet an explosive Lake Brantley, but Lyman managed to hold off the inspired Patriots.

The game saw seven players hit double figures. Leading the Lyman attack were Bernard Wright (20), Clyde Hudson (18), Randy Taylor (16), and Jon Kaufman (12).

Brantley responded with strong efforts from Bill Wall (19), Jim Fry (18), and Scott Alexander (16).

Both clubs shot outstandingly from the free throw line. Lyman hit 18-of-24 for 75 per cent, and Brantley sunk 18-of-22 for 81 per cent.

70 Not Enough For Pats

FOREST CITY—"I was pleased with our offensive production tonight," said Lake Brantley coach Chris Butterworth shortly after the Patriot loss to Lyman Friday. "Our players did as well as we expected and then some."

Brantley has averaged about 60 points per outing in the young season, but Friday hit its highest total of the year, 70, in the losing cause.

Despite the offensive punch, Brantley suffered two cold spells during the game. One cold spell the Pats recovered from, the other they didn't.

The cold spell that the Brantley bunch never overcame resulted in a 20-12 Lyman lead in the first quarter, and it quite possibly cost Brantley the game.

With Bill Wall, Jim Alexander, Joe Dellatto and Jim Fry leading the attack, the Pats jumped out to a surprising 10-4 lead midway through the first frame.

But then Lyman played the variation game with its man to man defense, shifting to a zone spread formation by putting two men on the guard bringing the ball down court.

"They shifted back and forth between those two defenses all night," said Butterworth. The first of the 30 Brantley turnovers began appearing at that point, and Lyman capitalized on enough of them to take the lead permanently.

"I'd like to use that type defense myself," said Butterworth, "but as yet we don't have the personnel for it."

Of the 12-point margin in the game's final score, eight of the points came in that first period.

The second Brantley cold spell came right after intermission, but their remarkable recovery from it kept the game relatively close and showed the Pats something about themselves.

Brantley made only one basket in the first four minutes of play, and two more minute elasped before the Pats could

Steinke Has It Figured

By SCOTT ABRAMS
Herald Correspondent

FOREST CITY — "I want to tell you something," said Lyman coach Rick Steinke with a twinkle in his eye, "this ball club is just about where I planned they'd be at this point."

The point Steinke referred to is a 4-0 record, with the Greyhounds poised to enter Metro Conference play next Tuesday. Despite indications he wants his team is up for it.

But despite his club's 83-70 victory over Lake Brantley Friday night, Steinke feels there are some difficulties to be worked out.

Difficulty number one is capitalizing on turnovers.

"Lake Brantley had 23 turnovers first half," said Steinke, "and we didn't score anywhere near as many points as we should have." Lyman barely managed to stay ahead of Brantley in the second period, 22-21.

"There's no excuse for that," he added.

Difficulty number two is rebounds.

"Brantley did a super job on rebounds tonight," said Steinke. "In fact, I wouldn't be surprised if they didn't outdo us."

His feelings were correct. Brantley pulled down 41 rebounds to Lyman's 37.

"We've got to learn to play positions better to get those rebounds," the coach said. "We did not do a good job in that department tonight."

Several Lyman players got in foul trouble late in the game, and Steinke was quick to praise two substitutes, Frankie Carter and Greg Thomas.

"Those guys are only sophomores, but they play like juniors and seniors. They may not be the guys who score a lot of points for you, but they handle the ball well and keep the team from making mistakes."

Steinke feels the good attitudes of Carter and Thomas

Lions Limp Home After Loss

Phillips: So This Is Metro

By JIM HAYNES
Herald Sports Editor

"So this is the Metro Conference," said Dale Phillips as he watched Colonial go through pregame warmups.

He wasn't being critical, just a quick assessment.

He got a better evaluation of Metro strength in the next hour and one-half as Colonial sent his Oviedo Lions limping home to the tune of a 62-42 defeat.

"We got beat, but we helped beat ourselves," said Phillips, who saw his slightly quicker team fall prey to the old nemesis, the turnover.

Colonial guard Rocky Sorice was credited with half a dozen steals en route to his game-big 26 points, but a number of bad passes were included in that number.

Guard was Colonial's strength, and it paid off handsomely for coach Bill Payne, whose club opened the season with an impressive victory.

Defense was a little too tight for Oviedo. Lions senior Lee Ward got into early foul trouble and wound up playing sparingly and scoring only two points.

In fact, the only player for Oviedo who had anything close to a solid game was Ron Ribbon, scoring 16 points and serving as the only Lion in double figures. Fred Moore as next in the modest Oviedo scoring parade with eight points while Cedrick Canley added seven.

Oviedo wasn't out of it until the third period. Scrapping their way downcourt on infrequent fast breaks but making them count, Oviedo trailed at intermission by seven, 30-23.

Colonial simply controlled the tempo of the game in the fourth quarter and ball control enabled it to win going away.

Title Brawl Set Tuesday

Ross: I'll Be Ready For Perez

By LOUIS SAPSIS
Herald Boxing Writer

ORLANDO — Southern junior middleweight champion Victor Perez of Sanford puts his title on the line Tuesday night when he squares off against Edgar Ross in a scheduled 10-rounder at the Orlando Sports Stadium.

Perez, who claimed the vacant Southern crown by stopping Joey Vincent last August, has called the bout "the toughest I will ever have."

The match was originally scheduled for last Tuesday but was delayed a week when Ross was stricken with a cold.

To find out about the bout, the delay and the man who is known as the Mad Dog, the Evening Herald visited Ross at his training camp on the eve of pre-fight weekend.

The Herald interview with Ross follows:

Herald: Will you be ready to fight this Tuesday night?

Ross: I'll be ready. I'll be right back on top of it in just a few days. I pulled out because I had a severe head cold and infected sinuses. I didn't have my strength and my strength is my main asset.

Edgar Ross thinks about his bout with Vic Perez.

Herald: It has been reported that you never broke your training, that you have been training right along. Is that true?

Ross: That's true. But I wasn't training right. I had to force everything I was doing. I wasn't relaxed and I wasn't ready to fight more than six rounds.

Herald: I understand you picked up your nickname of Mad Dog because of the way you spar. You don't know how to pace yourself. . . .

Ross: The truth is I do know how to spar. I have learned a whole lot. I still have a long ways to go about learning but I know I have improved greatly as far as my boxing ability is concerned. I stopped coming in here and trying to kill folks.

Herald: Frank Brazell was your trainer till this past October. But he isn't here now. Do you have a trainer?

Ross: Jimmy Williams is helping me out now but I expect Mr. (Pete) Ashlock will be getting a full-time trainer eventually.

Herald: Who is getting you ready for this fight?

Ross: I am just taking the things that Frank taught me. I still remember them. I go over them in my mind and I try to apply them every day in the gym. In fact sometimes I go to the corner where he used to stand because I know he would have been there. And I go to that corner and visualize what he would have said. And then I try to do it.

Herald: Who is going to work your corner for the fight?

Ross: Bill Watkins will be there and if Gene (Wells) isn't fighting I hope he will be there too.

Herald: Perez has said he is fighting this fight as much for his trainer, Jimmy Williams, as he is for himself. He wants to prove that Williams is a better trainer than Brazell was.

Ross: That's alright, but Frank Brazell worked with Vic for a long time too and tried to correct his bad habits. I'm sure he and Jimmy have a good relationship but I tell Jimmy and I are as good a friends as Vic and Jimmy are. There are a lot of things motivating me. I have joined the Tabernacle Baptist Church, where Brother Bob Ware is the pastor, and

Raiders Visit Tampa

TAMPA — Seminole Community College's basketball Raiders were looking for their eighth victory in nine games when they met Florida College here Saturday night.

Seminole coach Joe Sterling was expected to county heavily on Reggie McDonald, Randy Faber, Chip Noe, Vernon Johnson, Bob Jacobs and Terry Jameson in a bid for the third win in a row for the Raiders.

The Falcons, 95-93 losers to Seminole in Sanford earlier this season, were expected to counter with a strong tandem of Leroy Staley and Marvin Allen. The pair scored 55 points between them in the first game.

Seminole meets Valencia Community College in Orlando Monday night, before returning to Sanford to host Brevard in another big match Wednesday.

Seminole bested Brevard 96-84 in Cocoa Nov. 22.

Wilkes Whistles A German Tune

DeLAND — Two weeks ago Stetson basketball coach Glenn Wilkes was singing the blues.

Now he's whistling the tune of Watch on the Rhine!

The German did a job in the Crescent City.

Pete Nordhorn, 6-7 low post, is a senior who has played for Stetson for three years. Nordhorn played opposite Edmond Lawrence in the Stetson-McNeese State game and the 7-foot center for the Cowboys was awesome. He scored 29 points and took 15 rebounds. Pete "The German" Nordhorn tallied 29 points and captured 13 rebounds.

Against Georgia Southern, Nordhorn was again paired opposite a taller center but again came through on the plus side — 16 points and 11 rebounds.

His 12 field goals came on only 23 attempts for a phenomenal .826 percentage. Pete also connected with 7 of 11 free throws.

The two-game New Orleans Classic was split series for Stetson losing to McNeese State 84-81 in over-time and besting Georgia Southern 91-68. Both Pete Nordhorn and Dave Stowers were selected for the all-tournament team.

The Hatters opened their 15-game home schedule on Saturday night against the Eagles of Georgia Southern who were expected to be primed to avenge their loss to Stetson. DeLand High School played a preliminary game against Lake Worth. Tip-off for the Stetson game was at 8:10 p.m. and the preliminary was to start at 6:30.

Stetson set a state record in attendance in Florida last year and the Georgia Southern game is assured to be a "near packed house." However, Wilkes indicated Wednesday that reserved seats were still available both on a season or a single game basis.

Games will be broadcast over WETO (DeLand), WNDB (Daytona Beach) and WTLN-FM.

Chargers Hope To Salvage Pride In NFL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

While 13 teams—half the National Football League—resume their struggles today for the eight playoff berths that signify the starting line on the road to Super Bowl X, a 14th team resumes its struggle to salvage some pride and avert a most embarrassing record.

There have, of course, been winless teams in the league before but not since the NFL went to a 14-game regular-season schedule. The San Diego Chargers have three more chances to avoid becoming the first.

They've gone through 11 games without as much as a tie—although sudden-death overtime has twice prevented them from coming out of games with half a pie. They've lost a 13-10 overtime decision to Los Angeles and Denver.

Now they visit Kansas City—and Chiefs Coach Paul Wiggin bristles when it's suggested that his Chiefs have a breather. "We're going to be playing a frustrated team that'll be coming out of the chute hard," he says. "We're going to have our hands full.

"If anybody thinks we're taking the Chargers lightly, they just don't know much of anything about this game or these teams...No matter how you break it down, 11 losses and no victories means a team is going to be frustrated. I expect the Chargers will be fighting for their dignity, and it's going to be a battle."

In today's other games it's Buffalo at Miami, Baltimore at the New York Giants, Dallas at St. Louis, Washington at Atlanta, Cleveland at Pittsburgh, Cincinnati at Philadelphia, Houston at San Francisco, Green Bay at Minnesota, Los Angeles at New Orleans, the New York Jets at New England and Detroit at Chicago. On Monday night it's Denver at Oakland.

Both the Chargers and Chiefs are battered by injuries. The biggest setback for San Diego was the loss of running back Don Woods, who virtually carried the club's offense as a rookie last season.

Longhorn Akins Likes Texas A&M

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Texas quarterback Marty Akins was "kind of looking for Texas A&M to win" in Saturday's showdown between the second-ranked Aggies and 18th-ranked Arkansas for the host spot in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day.

"It must be A&M's year because nobody gets to play against them at full strength," said Akins, still unhappy because he was injured in the first half of Texas' 20-10 Southwest Conference loss to A&M and couldn't return to the game.

"Arkansas has real good running backs, but as usual, the runners won't be playing against A&M," said Akins. "I think Arkansas could have given them a good game and maybe beat them if Arkansas was at full strength."

The status of injured Arkansas running backs Ike Forte and Jerry Eckwood was questionable right up to the 3:05 p.m. nationally-televised kickoff in War Memorial Stadium with a sellout crowd of 54,000 in the stands.

Akins said "I think football is a lot just keeping people healthy. I thought I could get outside against A&M, but I wasn't able to run. Probably, A&M's defense is a little better than Arkansas', but maybe it just seems that way because A&M has had more publicity.

"I kind of look for A&M to win, but Arkansas is always tough at home and they'll be especially tough playing for the Southwest Conference championship."

All the chips were on the table and the rewards were these:

—If unbeaten Texas A&M, 10-0, triumphed, the Aggies would win the SWC title outright and play Georgia in the Cotton Bowl. Arkansas would get the consolation prize of meeting Southern California in the Liberty Bowl Dec. 22.

—If Arkansas, 8-2, triumphed, the Razorbacks shared the SWC title with A&M and Texas and make their first Cotton Bowl appearance since 1966. A&M goes to the Liberty Bowl.

The Aggies went into the game seven-point favorites and without starting quarterback Mike Jay, who suffered a back injury against Texas.

A&M boasted the best defense in the country over-all, allowing just 175 yards per contest, and the No. 1 defense against the rush, 71.9 yards.

Arkansas was the nation's No. 2 rushing offense with 335 yards per game out of the Razorback's Veer-T offense.

In the only other major college game, Tennessee visited Hawaii in a night game.

In NCAA Division II semifinals, Western Kentucky played New Hampshire at Baton Rouge, La., in the Grantland Rice Bowl and Northern Michigan met Livingston at Wichita Falls, Tex. in the Pioneer Bowl. In the Stagg Bowl at Phenix City, Ala., Ithaca took on Wittenberg for the NCAA Division III title.

Texas A&I, the AP top-ranked College Division team, faced Oregon College of Education.

And Florida A&M was hosting entucky State in the Orange Blossom classic at Miami.

Heiber Repeats As Eastern Player Of Year In Division 2

CENTERVILLE, Mass. (AP) — Lynn Hieber, quarterback for Indiana University of Pennsylvania, is the first player ever to be named twice as Eastern College Athletic Conference Division II Player of the Year.

The Team of the Year is the University of New Hampshire, 8-2 during the regular season, the Eastern representative in the NCAA football semifinals.

The awards were announced Friday by William Lechonby, athletic director of Lehigh University and chairman of Division II Football Awards Committee.

Maple Syrup, Ham Wagered

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — More than a chance to play for a national collegiate football championship is riding on today' Grantland Rice Bowl game between the University of New Hampshire and Western Kentucky.

New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thomson and Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll have made a little side wager on the game. Thomson put up a gallon of maple syrup taken from his farm at Orford, and Carroll put up a ham grown and cured in Kentucky.

Thomson left here Friday for Baton Rouge, La., site of the NCAA Division II semifinal game between the two schools.

basket in a crowd and missed, you know some of the factors involved in missing."

Games are generally low scoring tilts, and a 40-30 score isn't unusual.

Two Gates Or One?

There seems some discussion as to whether schools benefit most from staging three games — girls, jayvee and varsity — in one night, or whether girls games should be staged on separate nights. Schools who draw full houses obviously would benefit financially from two gates.

On the other hand, the one-night, three-game session can be a hypo to sagging athletic programs. Generally, games stretch from 5 to 10:30 p.m. Concession stands prosper. The trend seems to be for varsity games to be bumped back slightly from an 8 o'clock tipoff because of excessive fouls or overtimes in the preliminaries.

The advent of girls basketball is refreshing. Forget federal funding, equal rights, Helen Reddy's "I Am Woman" theme song for women's lib.

There are no underlining factors here. The girls are simply doing their thing. They pose no threat to male superiority, because most boys can beat the girls one-on-one with one hand tied behind their backs.

The future may hold a girls junior varsity, a letterwoman's club and boy cheerleaders.

I can see it now. Girls basketball gains such popularity within a few years that the boys varsity game is scheduled at 5 followed by the girls junior varsity and the girls varsity. The boys junior varsity plays in total obscurity.

This time may never come, but it's possible. Sort of a Dr. James Naismith doomsday.

get three more. They were down 56-36 before they roared back in the final two minutes, outpointing Lyman 12-4 to remain within ten.

Wall and Fry led the resurgent Patriots. Wall hit seven points and pulled down five rebounds, while Fry hit six tallies and four rebounds. Wall hit five of six free throws during that stretch.

"We proved to ourselves then that despite stretches of cold shooting, we do have some pretty good shooters on this team," Butterworth remarked. "They came through when we needed them."

In addition to his high scorers, Butterworth had praise for Rick Crawford and Bob Scott. Of Crawford, a 5-11 junior guard, Butterworth said, "He did a fine job of keeping our offense moving second quarter with six points, and he kept the ball away from Lyman. I pulled him after he got in foul trouble."

Butterworth also singled out Scott, a junior who last year played JV ball for Lyman. The 5-9 center went up against Lyman's 6-9 center Jon Kaufman, and Butterworth said, "Bob played Kaufman well, despite the fact he's playing with practically no experience. Why, he pulled down three rebounds tonight, the first he's ever had."

those people are all behind me. Since I joined the church my whole life is completely turned about. Since I got right with the Lord, I don't think there is anything I can't do.

Herald: How can a professional fighter call himself a Christian? A lot of people say that fighting goes against all of Jesus's principals.

Ross: Well, it's a sport for one thing. You see I love Victor Perez, he's my brother. But we come to this gym and train our bodies to take this punishment. So it's not hurting one hurting the kid's it would hurt the man on the street if he were to get in there. Through boxing I have been able to talk to a lot of people about my Christian life. Because I am a fighter who led a real rough life before I was saved last September, I can reach these people. You can say, through boxing I am doing the Lord's work. As long as I use the good things that are going to come my way for His glory and not just to high on myself, then I will be doing His will.

Herald: Do you know that Taco Perez believes in reincarnation? That he believes that he was a knight back in the days of King Arthur?

Ross: He does believe in that? Well, everybody to his own belief but you can tell him I am Sir Lancelot and I am going to put it on him this Tuesday night.

San Jose Falls 90-80

Bartow Gains First Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gene Bartow is having a difficult time following legendary John Wooden as UCLA's basketball coach—and just as much difficulty in finding a cohesive combination on the court.

Bartow, who took over the defending national champions this season after Wooden retired, savored his first victory with the Bruins Friday night. But it was not an impressive triumph. The highly touted, fifth-ranked Bruins had to struggle before subduing undistinguished San Jose State 90-80.

The game was the first for the Bruins since Nov. 29, when they opened their season with a crushing 84-64 loss to top-rated Indiana.

Other members of The Associated Press' Top 20 in action Friday night included No. 12 San Francisco, a 49-44 winner over Stanford, and 20th-ranked Washington, which downed Wyoming 76-69.

Meanwhile, four early-season tournaments got underway. At Nashville, Tenn., Southern California defeated Vanderbilt 77-72 and Kansas State, behind Chackie Williams' 47 points, outlasted Holy Cross 89-85 in overtime in the Vanderbilt Classic.

In the Sun Devil Classic at Tempe, Ariz., 19th-ranked Arizona State beat Santa Clara 69-59 after Dave Norwood's 35 points helped DePaul outscore Memphis State 100-91.

Missouri routed Baylor 105-70 and Oklahoma City walloped Cleveland State 84-60 in the Show-Me Classic at Columbia, Mo. And Duquesne edged Pitt 75-74 and Nevada-Las Vegas trounced Syracuse 105-83 in the Steel Bowl tournament at Pittsburgh.

The winners in each of those tourneys played for the titles Saturday.

In a doubleheader at Philadelphia, Temple defeated Fordham 63-57 and Villanova trimmed American University 68-55. Other scores included: Oregon State 106, Portland State 76, and Portland 70, Idaho 69.

Brad Holland, a freshman guard who did't make the trip to St. Louis for UCLA's game against Indiana because Bartow apparently did not consider him one of the team's 10 best players—a new NCAA rule this season prohibits a visiting team from carrying more than 10 players—sparked the Bruins against San Jose State.

Holland came off the bench and scored 17 points, including nine late in the first half when the Bruins took a 49-39 lead. San Jose State closed the gap to 59-56 with six minutes gone in the second half, before UCLA pulled away.

"I was upset at not going to St. Louis...because I felt I was one of the 10 best players on the team," said the gratified Holland. "But Coach Bartow assured me that the cream will come to the top, and I would play based on my practices."

Bartow used several combinations in an effort to find his best lineup. "Although we're not where we want to be," he said, "I saw some bright spots tonight. Our guards, particularly, Andre McCarter and Brad Holland, played well."

McCarter finished with 16 points.

Brave Reserve Charles Paces Victory Over Cavs

By the Associated Press

Unheralded Ken Charles may have shunted heralded Ernie DiGregorio to the bench for a while, and at the same time provided the impetus for the sluggish Buffalo Braves.

Charles, starting in place of the slumping DiGregorio Friday night, scored a career-high 24 points in sparking the Braves to a club-record 125-88 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers, breaking their six-game National Basketball Association losing streak.

Celtics 104, Jazz 93

Dave Cowens, who had a game-high 34 points, triggered a 22-8 Boston spurt in the first six minutes of the fourth period that carried the Celtics past the slumping Jazz.

76ers 99, Knicks 97

George McGinnis scored 30 points, including the winning field goal with 58 seconds left, and Fred Carter collected 32 points as the surging 76ers rallied for their 14th victory in 20 games, the best record in the league.

But it was a costly triumph. Billy Cunningham, the 76ers' veteran forward, suffered a torn ligament and torn cartilage in the left knee after colliding with New York's Butch Beard in the second period.

Pistons 102, Rockets 91

Al Eberhard scored his NBA high of 30 points as the Pistons, Midwest Division leaders, won their sixth game in the last seven and snapped Houston's five-game winning streak. Eberhard, who had been plagued by the flu and an ailing back recently, hit 15 of his 18 shots in what he called his "greatest all-around game."

Bucks 103, Kings 95

Brian Winters scored 23 points, Bob Dandridge had 22 and Elmore Smith netted 20, helping the Bucks post their third straight victory. Dandridge fired in four baskets during a 21-6 Milwaukee burst in the second period that enabled the Bucks to break way from a 24-24 tie and take command. Nate Archibald paced the Kings with 29 points.

Bullets 92, Suns 87

Elvin Hayes pumped in 29 points, 21 in the first half, leading the Bullets over the Suns. Rookie Alvan Adams was high for Phoenix with 17 points, but scored only three in the second half.

Pacers Trounce Newest Spirits

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A basketball court is hardly the place for a proper introduction—especially if it's with your own teammates.

The St. Louis Spirits, sporting three new players, learned that the hard way Friday night, losing to the Indiana Pacers 123-105.

The victory moved Indiana into a virtual first-place tie with the Denver Nuggets in the American Basketball Association. The teams collide tonight at Denver.

In the only other ABA game Friday night, Kentucky broke a four-game losing streak with a 120-111 victory over last-place Virginia.

Of course, the Spirits, who acquired their new players from the ill-fated Utah Stars earlier this week, had met one another before the game. They just played as if they hadn't.

The Pacers outscored St. Louis 20-2 midway through the first half, went on another 10-point tear in the third period and built the lead to 35 points early in the fourth quarter.

Forward Darnell Hillman led Indiana with 23 points, 15 rebounds, seven assists and five blocked shots. Reserve Bo Lamar scored 22 points, Dave Robisch had 22 Billy Knight 16.

Pacer Coach Bobby Leonard said, "We really got after the ball on the boards. When Darnell is clicking underneath it seems to get the rest of our team going."

Spirits Coach Rod Thorn agreed, "That's the best I've ever seen Hillman play. The way the Pacers played tonight hurt us more than the disorganization of our team."

St. Louis, playing much of the game with newcomers Ron Boone, Steve Green and Randy Denton—all former Stars—shot only 38 per cent in the first quarter and 31 per cent in the first half.

Star forward Marvin Barnes was limited to four points and sat out most the second half. And the Spirits went for more than five minutes at the start of the second quarter without scoring.

Boone led St. Louis with 29 points, 15 of them in the last period.

Colonels 128, Squires 111

Bird Averitt scored eight of his 36 points in the final two minutes by downing the Squires. The Squires had pulled within 110-109 with 2:03 left before Averitt pulled the Colonels out of danger.

Artis Gilmore added 30 points for the Colonels.

Johnny Neumann scored 36 points for the Squires, including 34 in the second half, a club record for that span. Ticky Burden added 29 points for Virginia.

are indicative of the entire team.

"I'll tell you the main reason why this team won only three games last year, and has already won four this year," Steinke said. "It's attitude. Last year the kids didn't want to play. Now they do."

But Steinke returned to the problem areas the Brantley game uncovered. "We can't let ourselves be out-rebounded when we go up against the Mentro conference," he said. "We have to make every turnover the other side makes count in our favor."

Activities Programs Set

The Sanford Recreation Department will initiate two new programs this winter—children's and teen's after-school activities.

The children's program for first through fifth graders will be on Monday and Wednesday afternoons 3:30 to 5 at the Recreation Center. Games, sports, dance and arts and crafts are a few of the activities planned. The program will be run as a mini-day camp.

A $1 fee will be charged to cover the cost of supplies.

The teen after-school program for sixth through ninth graders and will be on Tuesday and Thursday from 3:30-5 at the Recreation Center. This program will be the lead-off for our new emphasis on programming for young teens.

Registration for both programs is held at the Recreation Department Dec. 8-31.

Cut your current Federal income tax...

...and have more money for your retirement, too.

If you're working and not covered by a pension program, there is now a tax-favored way for you to build your own retirement fund.

You can defer Federal income taxes each year on up to 15% of your income or $1,500, whichever is less, by putting this income to work to set up your own retirement fund.

Think about that! You can purchase your own retirement plan with money you deduct on your income tax. You won't be subject to tax until years from now after retirement, when your tax bracket probably will be lower.

So if you're not scheduled to get a pension, call me and we'll arrange one.

Graham, Miller Key U.S. Cup Bid

BANGKOK (AP) — The United States regained the lead in the 22nd World Cup Golf Championship Saturday after Johnny Miller and Lou Graham shot matching two-under-par 70s for a three-round total of 416.

Taiwan, despite a four-under-par 68 by Hsieh Min-Nan, slipped to second place, one stroke behind the United States after sharing top honors overnight.

Australia, sparked by the day's low score of six-under-par 66 by Bob Shearer, surged into third position at 418.

Taiwan and Argentina shared the fourth spot at 422.

Ben Arda of the Philippines fired a three-under-par 69 Saturday but surrendered his solitary lead and settled for a tie for top spot with Taiwan's Hsieh Min-Nan at 204. Miller carded a 207 to retain third position—one stroke ahead of Shearer and Argentina's Juan Cabrera, who were in fourth place.

The championship, being played on the 6,966-yard, par-72, Navatanee course, ends today.

A switch back by Graham to the big ball after a disastrous front nine enabled the United States to recover from its early slump and regain the lead.

Graham, the reigning U.S. Open king, who hit the dreaded, soft-sand bunkers of the course for bogeys on the first, second and sixth holes, took the turn at 38—two over par.

"I changed over from a small ball I was using to the big ball on the 10th and it was a smooth run from then onwards," said Graham, who burned up the back nine for four birdies, including the 13th and 14th.

Miller had two birdies on the way out, sinking an incredible 40-footer on the third hole. The blond-haired tournament favorite, commanded a massive gallery of 2,000.

Taiwan was in trouble on the first hole as Hsieh Min-NCan drove into the deep rough for a double-bogey. But the 1972 individual champion fired a 15-foot birdie putt on the fifth and sank another birdie on the ninth to finish at par.

Backed by precision approach shots, Hsieh Min-Nan studded the back nine with four birdies—on the 10th, 12th, 14th and 18th holes. He missed five and seven-foot birdie putts on the 13th and the 17th.

Two bogeys forced teammate Kuo Chie-Hsiung into a one-over-par 73 round. On the fifth, Chie-Hsiung drove his tee shot into the sand for a bogey. On the 15th, he shanked a No. 2 iron and landed into another bunker.

Saints Get By Denver

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota's Henry Boucha had the whole world to shoot at and thought for a minute he might have missed.

"The goalie was down when the rebound squirted out to my stick," said Boucha, who scored the winning goal Friday night in the Fighting Saints 4-3 World Hockey Association victory over Denver. "I had the whole net to shoot at and almost missed it."

Saints 4, Spurs 3

Fran Huck gave Minnesota a 1-0 lead, but Denver's Peter Mara scored late in the opening period and Rick Morris scored early in the next frame as the Spurs moved ahead 2-1. Mike Antonovich's score on a breakaway goal 23 seconds after Morris' goal tied the game 2-2.

Toros 7, Nordiques 4

Peter Marrin's two scores led a five-goal assault in the third period that lifted Toronto to its victory over Quebec. Marc Tardif's second goal of the game gave Quebec a 2-2 tie going into the third period before the Toros exploded. Tom Simpson, Gavin Kirk, Jim Dorey, Mike Amodeo and Vaclav Nedomansky scored for Toronto.

Aeros 5, Jets 4

Trailing 4-2 with less than two minutes left, Larry Hale scored twice and Murray Hall connected once to lift Houston to its victory over Winnipeg. The defeat ruined a two-goal performance by the Jets' Bobby Hull.

Cowboys 8, Calgary 3

Danny Lawson scored three goals to power Calgary over Edmonton. Don Tannahill's fifth short-handed goal of the season broke a 3-3 tie and the Cowboys broke it open.

DELTONA GOLD RUSH IS ON

Ashe Takes On Bjorn Borg, All Of Sweden

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Arthur Ashe was facing the whole of Sweden Saturday—Bjorn Borg on the other side of a tennis net and the rest of the eight million population rooting their 19-year-old hero on.

Ashe, the Wimbledon and World Championship Tennis king, is hoping to add the Masters Tournament to his 1975 collection. Borg stands in his way in the semifinals.

Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, the defending champion, had to play Ilie Nastase of Romania in the other semifinal.

Borg's phenomenal success on the international circuit has lifted enthusiasm for tennis to a new level in Sweden. The Kungliga Hall, which seats more than 4,000 people, has been sold out every night for the Masters Tournament and millions more watch Borg's bid on television.

Ashe has high respect for young Borg.

Having already defeated Adriano Panatta of Italy and Manuel Orantes of Spain on his way to the semis, Ashe talked about national character as it emerges on a tennis court.

"There is a difference between the Latin temperament and the Nordic temperament," he said. "I am aware of that when I play Panatta and when I play Borg.

"Their temperaments come out in their tennis, and all this has to be remembered by their opponents when planning tactics. I think of it all the time."

Panatta, easily excited by bad luck and dubious line calls, blew hot and cold in his three tournament matches and ended by losing all of them. Ashe beat him 7-6, 6-3.

Borg has had his full share of bad luck in the tournament thus far but never showed a trace of emotion. He just played steadily on, hitting his top-spin forehands like clockwork.

Ashe has an over-all record of 12-8 in matches against Borg. He has beaten the young Swede five times this year and lost to him twice.

Vilas and Nastase have played each other 13 times. Vilas has won six times and Nastase seven times.

10 Bad Minutes Enough

By The Associated Press

"We played 10 minutes of bad hockey, that's all," said Kansas City Scouts Coach Bed Guidolin.

The trouble is there's 60 minutes in a National Hockey League game.

The New York Rangers scored twice in the first period and went on to defeat Kansas City 3-2.

Rangers 3, Scouts 2

Rick Middleton scored the game's first goal and added an assist to pace New York's victory over the Kansas City. Middleton's 14th goal of the season came when he deflected Phil Esposito's shot past Scouts goalie Denis Herron.

Seals 3, Red Wings 2

Bob Murdoch and Dave Hrechkosy scored second-period goals and goalie Gilles Meloche made four saves in the final minute to help California nip Detroit.

Flames 6, Canucks 2

Two goals each by Curt Bennett and Dave Kryskow led Atlanta to its easy victory over Vancouver. The Flames pushed out to a 5-0 lead and were never really threatened as Hilliard Graves added a goal and two assists and Ray Comeau picked up a single tally for the Flames.

ABC's Arledge Does It Differently

(Last of a Series)

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Everybody in the trade knows that it's the little woman in the house who controls the television set—that is, except on Saturday and Sunday afternoons when the tube is the full domain of the males.

It took Roone Arledge of ABC to defy this deeply-embedded tradition with a unique concept called Monday night football.

With the three networks boosting their sports lineups to more than 1,000 hours and $300 million in revenues a year, there ensued a mad scramble for new franchises and new leagues plus million-dollar bonuses and salaries for the athletes.

Now ABC is going to wed Monday night with baseball in 1976, as part of its participation in a new $92.8 million contract with baseball.

Some observers are skeptical. After all, almost every football game has impact on the title races. Baseball drags on for months and the importance of games doesn't begin to jell until late summer. Arledge is convinced he can make prime-time baseball go, just as he did with football.

"It will need a different approach. It will take personalities and planning but it can succeed," insists Arledge.

Herb Granath, ABC vice president in charge of sports programming, said, "Nobody thought Monday night football was possible. Women may have been dragged in, kicking and screaming, but they were brought in. Most of them stayed."

Monday night football is one of the phenomenons of network TV. The rival networks brought out their heaviest artillery to try to sink it, but failed.

"This has been our best season ever," says Granath.

"It is not just a football game, it is an event," insists Arledge.

True. It is one-third football and two thirds flak. It is more Howard Cosell than Bob Griese and O.J. Simpson. It entertains. It irritates. It sells.

Monday night football suffered a slight decline in 1974, as did most sports generally, but rebounded this season although CBS threw in top-rated "All in The Family" to join "Rhoda" and "Phyllis" on the enemy firing line. NBC continued to hit back with topflight movies, even tossing the $12-million "Godfather" against Cosell, pillowy Alex Karras and straightman Frank Gifford last year.

CBS continues to have an edge in the ratings for that time slot with ABC second and NBC third, but Monday night football with a 37 share of the audience (compared with CBS' 42) is said to have damaged Archie Bunker and Marlon Brando more than it got hurt itself.

While Madison Avenue trend-watchers wonder how long the cascade of revenue dollars can continue in this climate of tight money and escalating costs, Arledge strikes a posture of disarming confidence.

"Nineteen seventy-six will be our biggest year ever," he says. "Ultimately I think we will have 500 hours of network sports and $215 million in revenues."

ABC not only jumps into the baseball picture for the first time but has exclusive national rights to both the Winter and Summer Olympics.

The network paid $40 million for the Summer Games at Montreal and $22 million for the Winter Games at Innsbruck. Both are sold out.

ABC pulled a coup in breaking NBC's baseball monopoly and reportedly will pay the bigger share—$50 million—in the four-year, $92.8-million contract because of the Monday prime time. Under the sharing arrangement, ABC also gets the league playoffs and All-Star game next year while NBC hosts the World Series.

In addition, ABC will continue its near dominance of the major golf events, showing the U.S. and British Opens, the American PGA and the U.S. Women's Open. CBS clings to the Masters, but Arledge won't be content until he nabs that one, also.

ABC stole the Kentucky Derby, most prestigious of horse races, from CBS. It also has the Indianapolis 500 auto race and NCAA college football, the latter at a cost of $15 million.

Arledge has not been as eager to get on the tennis bandwagon as have his rivals at CBS and NBC. "You hear tennis talked a lot at lunch and the country clubs," he says, "but I don't think people are watching it. They'd rather watch wrestling."

At the same time, Arledge has not been reluctant to cram his screen with oddball events such as demolition derbies, arm-wrestling, rope-walking and barrel-jumping on his prize baby, "Wide World of Sports."

Most of it is taped and lacking in spot appeal, but Granath, discussing the Saturday and Sunday feature, insists, "We still pick and choose. The sponsor dollar is still there but is selective. We find these special events very attractive.

"In fact, when Evel Knevel jumped over those 14 buses—live—we had the highest rating of any show yet, a 52 share of the audience."

Ex-Utah State Coach Joins Bucs

He's Phil Krueger, head coach at Utah State.

"Being with a new team is exciting, and I'm the type of guy who looks for excitement," Krueger said in an interview in Utah. "Coaching is the same in college or pro ball. It is a matter of teaching."

Bucs Coach John McKay announced Friday that Krueger, 46, will join the ranks of the expansion team Jan. 1 as a coaching assistant.

McKay said he plans to have about eight assistants, but he will not announce any assignments until all are hired. Krueger is the first assistant to be named.

McKay praised Krueger as a "great detail man. He never lets things go; he does it right now."

Krueger has compiled a 21-12 record in his three years as the Aggies' boss, guiding Utah State to a 6-5 finish this year.

Before Utah State, he coached at the University of Illinois under Bob Blackmon in 1971-72. Prior to that, he was an assistant to McKay at the University of Southern California for five years where he coached linebackers and was in charge of the defense.

"He was here five years and we were usually pretty good," cracked McKay.

He called his new assistant a "very brilliant person. He's an English teacher and I think one of the better teachers of fundamental football."

Krueger said he's looking forward to working with McKay again. "I left Utah State to renew the good times I had as an assistant coach with McKay," he said.

Krueger said it is hard to evaluate the team Tampa will have because none of the players has been picked. Players will be selected in an expansion draft.

"I have confidence McKay will develop a winner," Kreuger said. "McKay has been innovative in the past. I am sure he will come up with some good ideas for the Buccaneers."

A native of St. Louis, Mo., Krueger graduated from Southeast Missouri State and the University of Missouri. He holds a master's degree in English, which he taught on the college level.

Gals Cage Meeting Set Dec. 15

There will be an organizational meeting and clinic for all girls ages 10-14 who are interested in playing in the basketball league, their parents, and coaches Monday, Dec. 15 at the Sanford Civic Center.

The 7 p.m. meeting will cover this year's scheduling, rules, playing hints, and techniques. A filmstrip will be shown, and any questions answered. It will be possible for girls to register to play at this meeting.

All girls who wish to play in the league this year are required to attend, and are requested to bring at least one parent.

Anyone interested in coaching a team is also requested to attend.

Specks Continue As Main Attraction

Speckled perch continue to be the big area attraction. At Marina Isle Camp, C.O. Penney says the water level is down again and bass are striking best along the shore line.

The land-locked anglers are getting good strings of pan fish from the bank at the camp and those exploring the many creeks and waterways are doing even better. Two visitors from North Carolina, Mr. Grey and Mr. Baucher, fished four days this week taking home a chest full of big specks.

Don Bangs landed his limit of specks by 2 p.m. last Saturday, Daisy Davis and Alonze Dalcon of Orlando and Mr. Blye took 60 specks and bluegills and even landed a large turtle which bit on a live minnow.

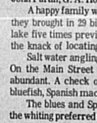
A couple of professors from FTU had a very nice first time trip, enjoying the sunshine and fresh air, next time they hope to find the fish. Strings of 20 or more perch too numerous to mention, were landed here during the week.

At the Osteen Bridge Camp, John Lankford told of four pound bass landed by Mrs. Chuck Conners and 37 big specks taken by a couple visiting from Virginia.

No direct reports from Lake Monroe but on several occasions this week, many boats were observed drift fishing the deep water out from the seawall.

Lake Jessup continues its winning ways on the perch. Some sample catches recorded by Lowell Illey's Camp include 37 for Thurman Wright and son of Winter Park, 28 landed by Mr. and Mrs. Johnson from the same town.

Dorsey Bailey, the old pro, only fished 'till 10 a.m. and had his limit, 30 was the score for an Orlando trio comprised of Chuck Beech, Jim Petteford and Marvin Snyder on a Thursday trip.



Outdoors

By BOB ORRELL

James Gardiner, and Rex Rushing of Ocoee took 18, while John Partin, G. A. Hoover, and Edgar Fry landed 40.

A happy family was Ray Seawright, his wife and daughter, as they brought in 29 big specks Thursday after having fished the lake five times previously with no results. They finally learned the knack of locating and boating the fish.

Salt water angling reports showed some outstanding catches. On the Main Street Pier in Daytona Thursday, whiting were abundant. A check of some of the angler's fish boxes showed bluefish, Spanish mackerel, and flounder to be the best bet.

The blues and Spanish were taking "Seahawk" plugs while the whiting preferred shrimp fished on the bottom.

Wayne Brady at the "Fishin' Hole" told of trout, channel bass and flounder caught up at Matanzas Inlet and about the same fare in Tomoke Basin.

Some anglers prefer to do it the hard way, that is, using extra light tackle to land extra large fish. Kent Gibbens at the "Tackle Box" told of an outstanding catch made by Greg LaCour — six king mackerel weighing over 200 pounds, the largest a whopping 50 pounder, all taken on 12 pound test line! LaCour fished between the Inlet and the buoy marker buoy at Daytona.

Lots of whiting and blues are landed in the surf and some big channel bass are being taken just inside the inlet.

On the ocean, party boats are getting good hauls of small red snapper and plenty of grouper while the amberjacks are so thick they are hitting trolled lures. Unusual because they are usually caught by freelining live panfish or shrimp.

A reminder to allfishermen visiting the salt water areas of the state — no license is required but there are size limits! It was called to the attention of this column that many anglers, through ignorance or greed, are keeping many illegal fish. This can be costly if the Marine Patrol or conservation officer happens to check. Bluefish must be ten inches — flounder, 11 inches — mackerel, 12 inches — sneak, 18 inches — spotted trout, 12 inches — channel bass (redfish), 12 inches — pompano, nine and one-half inches.

No limit on the number of fish taken except for snook, 4 per day, and tarpon, two per day.

Snook, a few years back, were almost depleted due to the heavy fishing pressure and commercial use. Since the law regulating size and number was passed, they have come back to the extent that they are one of the leading gamefish in the state. However, reports have been received that a commercial netter took a haul of over 1,000 pounds of these delicious, fighting gamefish from Mosquito Lagoon recently! That's taking a mighty big chance.

Doubles Match Set

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Jimmy Connors tried to make it three in a row Saturday in teaming up with ex-fiancee Chris Evert against Marty Riessen and Billie Jean King in a $150,000 mixed doubles tennis match.

Connors has won $350,000 in two singles challenges by beating Rod Laver and John Newcombe. This time the game is mixed doubles.

Sponsors were billing it as "Love Doubles", a kind of heavyweight battle pitting the top-ranked singles stars against women doubles players.

The oddsmakers like the proven ability and have made Ms. King and Riessen, both of whom have won numerous doubles titles, the favorites.

Although Connors and Miss Evert had the advantage of having played together they do not have as much competitive experience over-all in doubles.

Landscape Maintenance Important

By REGINALD L. BROWN
The Herald Services

Now that cooler weather has arrived, many of you have probably given some thought to making changes in your landscape. In any type of landscape development, maintenance is a very important consideration. This phase of landscaping is often overlooked in many ambitious landscape designs planned for maximum effect.

Design and arrangement should not be too fancy. Useless curves, odd-shaped flower beds and hedges only add to confusion and to maintenance work.

Avoid a scattered arrangement of beds, shrubs, trees and garden features. Every object in the garden should have some reason for being there. Spotty design is difficult to maintain. Group planting of shrubs and flowers are more attractive and much easier to care for.

Steep terraces are quite a problem when lawn mowing is necessary. Long gentle slopes look more natural and allow free movement of lawn-mowing equipment. A retaining wall oftentimes is the more economical method in the long run.

The choice of plant material will definitely affect the maintenance work. Native material requires less upkeep. Try to choose some slow growing and dwarf type shrubs, particularly for small properties because pruning of the shrubs can become quite a job.

Present-day gardeners are using less of the clipped-hedge type of plant such as ligustrum, privet and barberry. Dwarf yaupon, azalea and holly are some shrubs which require minimum of pruning.

A walkway that is flush with the ground with no edging material is much easier to maintain than one that has a flower border or some other low-edging material.

More maintenance is required for flowers on a square foot basis than for any other plant in the garden however, flowers are usually the most desired plant in the landscape because of color. Select flowering plants such as daylilies which have minimum maintenance requirements.

Flower beds can be edged with bricks or flat stones that are sunk into the ground to allow a track for the lawn mower wheels. Grass in a flower bed is a nuisance, especially the running grasses such as Bermuda and centipede.

A mulch will help keep down weed growth, conserve moisture and save work.

It is very easy to take in too much lawn area, especially for homeowners in rural areas. Never overextend your capabilities. A small, well-kept lawn is much better than acres of weed growth.

The variety of lawn grass and its rate of growth will influence mowing, fertilization, irrigation, weed and pest control, and development of that. Lawn grasses which make the best lawns may require the most care and should not be planted unless proper maintenance is intended.

Structural materials in the landscape may require periodic maintenance. A concrete patio or walk will not need not need maintenance for 12 to 15 years, whereas asphalt drives or walks should be sealed every 2 years. Painted wood structures and fences need repainting every 3 or 4 years. However, wood suited for outdoor use can be bleached or stained with a preservative, or allowed to weather naturally. Such treatment usually lasts for the 20 year life span of the structure. The choice of stain, paint, or other finish will dramatically affect how much maintenance will be needed over the life of the structure.

Design and plant your yard to be enjoyed, and not to be a continuous job of pruning, watering, spraying, mowing and weed pulling.

Improvements Best Shelter

Dear Mr. Saxon,
What would you consider the ideal tax shelter?
Mr. A.D.

Dear Mr. A.D.
Where the improvements are worth more than the land on which they sit — over-improved property.

Dear Mr. Saxon,
My partner and I have decided to call it quits after ten years. We're not mad at each other, or anything like that, but he makes a huge salary every year and needs to buy what he calls "tax-shelter." Needless to say, i don't have that problem. We've owned a 10 unit apartment for the ten years and it is doing fine. He doesn't want to keep it as it doesn't throw much shelter. I want to keep it for the income when it is paid for — about five years, I think. He wants me to buy him out, which I can't. He won't buy me out because it wouldn't help him any. Is there any way I can take over the building and leave him free to go on with whatever he needs?
R.V.

Dear Mr. R.V.,
Your letter indicated to me that a happy solution to both your problems can be achieved with a minimum of effort.

We haven't counseled as yet, of course, but I feel a way can be designed to secure the entire building for you without cash, and still not injure your partner tax-wise.

Your partner requires a new tax basis that will provide him more tax shelter. And we should be able to secure this for him without triggering a capital gains tax upon transferring his interest to you. The trick is to secure another building with his one-half interest in your building, but still transfer his one-half to you.

Why don't you call — Real Estate counselor for an appointment and the three of you can study your present tax position, your individual needs, and then design a method of obtaining them that your tax man will approve.

Send you question to: Real Estate Investments, The Evening Herald, 300 North French Avenue, Sanford, Florida 32771.

Flowers Superior Gifts

Christmas is just a few days away and this is the time for giving and receiving flowering potted plants. A bright, colorful azalea, Christmas begonia, chrysanthemum or a gaily decorated poinsettia, cyclamen or Christmas pepper added to the other decorations in the home give the holiday season a festive air.

These Christmas plants can be enjoyed not only during the holidays but will remain attractive far into January and even February if properly cared for. Care of Christmas plants, whether a corlorful cyclamen, a long-lasting kalanchoe or a cheerful Christmas begonia, is easy. Faithful attention will add days and even weeks of life to any of these popular Christmas plants.

Temperature has an important influence on the length of time a flowering house plant will remain attractive. The poinsettia is especially sensitive to chilling, and a prolonged chill will cause it to lose it leaves. The plant should be placed in the coolest part of the room, but not in a cold draft. This means away from radiators and other sources of heat. A temperature of 65 degrees at night is satisfactory but 60 degrees is still better for most of the flowering potted plants. In fact, cylamen like a 50 degree night temperature.

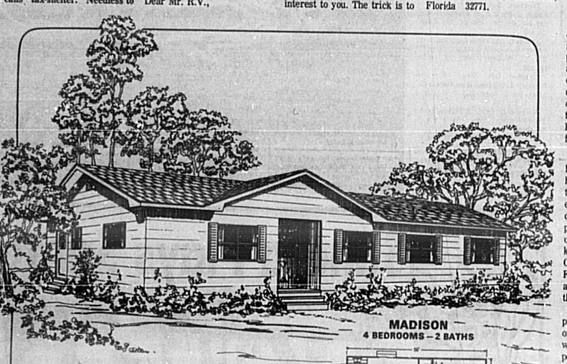
The method of watering many times determines the life of a plant. Many people drown their plants by watering at regular intervals, not considering whether the plant needs it.

Yanceys Renovate Old Home

Mr. & Mrs. Edward (Ned and Martha) Yancey, 2100 Cordova Dr., purchased their home in July of this year, and completely renovated inside and out, with a good part of the work done by the owners.

A large living room added to the back of the house; the garage, which originally opened to the front, was given a fake front and turned into a workshop. More fake front added for the present garage. The changes have given the house tremendous increase in size, both in looks and actual [illegible]

Both Martha and Ned graduated from high school in Sanford, and Ned taught school here during the years of 1938-39. They returned upon their retirement after 32 years with civil service at the federal penitentiary in Atlanta.



YES!
This home is easy to finance!

Together We'll Build

Together . . . you, your family and Jim Walter can build together so that you will have a whole lot of home for less money than you would believe possible. Here's how. We'll provide the mortgage financing. You furnish the property.

We'll build your new home completely finishing the outside. Then, beginning with the inside, you tell us how much to finish. You and your family can finish the rest. Where we stop building and you take over is pretty much up to you but the more you can do for yourself . . . the less your cost will be. Let's build together and when you finish you'll have a great investment . . . one that will pay you handsomely for every bit of your effort. Finding just the right home for your family won't be difficult either because in standard plans alone there are OVER 20 MODELS that can be BUILT ON YOUR PROPERTY.

INSTANT MORTGAGE FINANCING is available to qualified property owners. Contact Jim Walter today. We want you to know all the facts. We want you to see all of the models offered. We would like to tell you the exact costs and what your monthly mortgage payment would be for any of our homes built on your property to whatever stage of inside completion you choose. We want you to have all the facts. Then you decide whether your new home should be Jim Walter built.

Call . . . call collect or stop by the display park nearest you. If you prefer we'll contact you. Send the coupon below.

A complete line of second home COTTAGES is also offered.

Women Honored At Chamber Brunch

By JEAN PATTESON
Women's Editor

One hundred and one working women of Sanford took time away from their desks and service counters Thursday morning to attend the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce's annual Women's Brunch held from 10-11 a.m. at the Chamber.

Hostess for the event was Virginia Longwell, secretary to Chamber Executive Manager Jack Horner. She was assisted during the distribution of prizes by Mrs. Jack (Peg) Horner, and Chamber boardmember, Pat Register.

"There are so many women who work for the firms which belong to the Chamber, but who never come to our meetings or participate in our activities," said Mrs. Longwell. "This brunch is our way of showing appreciation to the women associated thus indirectly with the Chamber."

The brunch is an annual event held during the Thanksgiving-Christmas season.

Women attending included representatives from Sanford City Hall and Seminole County Court House, Southern Bell and Florida Power and Light Co., Chase and Co. and local banks, area beauty shops and other businesses.

Following refreshments and an extensive prize awarding session, the women were entertained by the Amazing Praising Puppet Pals, a group of young puppeteers from Sanford's First Baptist Church. Under the direction of the church's pastor and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. J.T. Cosmato, the young people — Debbie Fairfield, Wendy Hirt, Janet Thomas, Julie Reagan, Jody Pickens, Dan McIntosh and Richard Cosmato — presented a charming version of "The Night Before Christmas."

Horner wrapped up the gathering with a brief reminder to shop and conduct other business downtown Sanford — an area which already offers varied shopping and business facilities, and which promises much greater things for the future.

Winner of a lamp from Carroll's Furniture was Cindy Monahan (second right), County Court House employe, pictured with (from left) Virginia Longwell, Pat Register and Peg Horner

Yule Table Decorations Can Be Simple, Inexpensive

There are a lot of different ways to welcome the Christmas season, and naturally the Sanford Garden Club does it with flowers.

Their three-day table show and bazaar, held at the Garden Club, Thursday through Saturday, was a celebration of traditional red, white and green Christmas decor with some interesting contemporary touches added.

While shoppers streamed in to the bazaar, they were also entertained and inspired on the side by the beautiful table show presented by the seven club circles.

These tables, both large and small, were set with china and other accessories, and each featured an arrangement of flowers and greenery representing a holiday theme.

First placed among the large tables was Camellia Circle's interpretation "Winter Wonderland." The semi-formal dinner party table, overlaid with fine white cloth & set with gold-ringed china and brass goblets, featured a beautiful centerpiece of white mums, gold ivy and crystal candelabra with slender white candles. The colors and textures all suggested a fresh "White Christmas" theme.

Placed second among the large table exhibits was Magnolia Circle's exciting "Christmas Glitters" creation. Mrs. Blanton (Abby) Owen explained: "During the holidays you can use all the gaudy glitter and shine you wouldn't think of using any other time of year."

Her arrangement was an extravagant swirl of translucent plastic leaf-shapes hung with blown glass ornaments made by her daughter, Jan Owen, and completed with dried alliums loaded with gold glitter. Classic white china complimented the elaborate arrangement.

Camellia Circle also came in first in the small table section with a delicate concoction, "Sugar Plums and Fairies." On a table set with bright china, a miniature live Christmas tree was hung with candies, cookies and tiny, bright dolls — "goodies for the grandchildren," was the interpretation.

The Junior Gardeners won second place for their charming exhibit. "I saw Mommie Kissing Santa Claus." A snack tray for Santa was placed on the seat of a small chair, and hanging from the back was a mistletoe kissing ball.

The message of the table show was clearly that effective table decorations for the holiday season need not be elaborate or expensive to be effective.

A pine branch set in a dish of water will stay fresh for weeks; brighten it up with a few glass baubles, a couple of special Christmas cards or — as the Mimosa Circle did — with a miniature sleigh, Santa and reindeer riding through this "forest" to the theme of "Jingle Bells."

The Jacaranda Circle achieved a dramatic effect by massing red poinsettia blooms behind four slender white statuettes of the Virgin Mary. Their aim was to create a warm, religious atmosphere to illustrate the "Legend of the Poinsettia."

"Gifts from the heart," was the theme of the Hibiscus Circle's exhibit. A large Santa in his goodies-filled sleigh ride atop a mound of greenery and all around were the wrappings and trappings of gift giving. Tiny cloth dolls, crocheted nick-nacks and a colorful bow or two on a table quickly and inexpensively convey the spirit of the season, was the message of this exhibit.

Moving through Christmas to the New Year, Central Circle chose the champagne, silver and crystal colors and sparkle for their arrangement, "Out with the Old; In with the New."

Thin aluminum sheets, cut into strips and rolled into curls and swirls outlined an elegant design of dried materials — simplicity itself, offset with tall silver candles, but so much in the celebratory spirit of a brand new Bicentennial year.

"Out with the Old; In with the New," an arrangement by Central Circle for New Year's, is admired by Mrs. E. R. Wood

The bride-to-be, born in Sanford, is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. H.W. Cole of South Charleston, W. Va. and the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dunn of Pinehurst, N.C. A 1970 graduate of Seminole High School, she graduated from Florida State University in 1974 and is employed as a medical technologist interne at Mercy Hospital, Charlotte, N.C.

Her fiance, born in Gracesville, graduated from Lion High School, Tallahassee, attended Florida State University, and is employed by Seaboard Coast Line. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. T.W. Smith of Bonifay and William Addison Cogburn Sr. of Marianna.

They will be married March 27, 1976 at 7 p.m. at First Presbyterian Church, Sanford.

In Poolside Ceremony

Black-Weber Say Vows

Jamie Ann Black became the bride of Sterl Allen Weber in a candlelight, double ring ceremony performed by Rev. Ken Miller beside the pool at the bride's parents' Lake Emma Road home in Longwood on Nov. 15 at 7 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Black of Longwood. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sterl Warren Weber, 106 Oakland Ave., Sanford.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-line candlelight knit dress with matching ruffled, full length cape. She carried a bouquet of three bird of paradise blooms.

Mrs. Taryn Constantine served as matron of honor in a dark green knit halter dress with jacket. She carried a small bouquet of orange miniature carnations.

Bridesmaid Mrs. Cheryl Carlton was identically attired to the honor attendant.

Danny Leeds served as best man and Frank Murray as groomsman.

A poolside reception was also held at the home of the bride's parents. Floating lilies and candles enhanced the outdoors setting.

Following a wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains, Pa., the couple will live at 829-C Wildmere Avenue. The bride is employed at Halstead's flower shop; the bridegroom does lawn maintenance for Garden Fair.

Mrs. Sterl Allen Weber

DAISY ELIZABETH LEE

Miss Lee Graduates

The graduation is announced of Daisy Elizabeth Lee from Central Adult High on Dec. 16. She was a member of the school's honor roll.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest M. Lee, 212 Forest Dr., Loch Arbor, she will be honored at an open house at the home of Constance Bennett, 215 Forest Dr., Loch Arbor, on Dec. 14 from 2-4 p.m. All friends and relatives are invited to attend.

Plants Do Have Feelings

Ever since people found out that plants were good listeners, they've been treating them with the respect they deserve. Experiments have shown that plants have personalities. They respond to friendly voices, good music, even an occasional trip to the shower.

A group of Vermont woodworkers kept all this in mind when they designed something to make plants look as important as they feel: plant furniture, a collection of lightweight wood planters and pedestals that incorporate plants into today's "outdoors" look in interior design.

Plant furniture satisfies the normal cravings of most outgoing plants: to move around and to be where the action is, like in the middle of a party where the carbon dioxide flows like wine. . . next to the stereo during a Beethoven sonata. . . standing high off the floor like a majestic piece of sculpture. . . under a spotlight, the center of attention (plants grow well under artificial light, if it's bright enough).

But most of all, plants respond to love.

She Tunes Out When Older Men Turn On

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am a college junior and my problem is that older men are always making passes at me. I'm no "touch-me-not," but I just don't dig older men. In fact, they turn me off.

First off, my roommate's father (he's divorced) propositioned me, and I told him "No way." He kept trying to talk me into it. I finally told him he reminded me too much of my father, so he gave up.

Then, one of my professors (an old, married man of 47) told me that I had a very good mind but that I didn't know how to study. Then, he offered to teach me.

I said, "Great," but when he told me he had the key to a friend's apartment for the instruction, I told him I wasn't interested. He looked crushed!

Last week, I went to the health service with an infected toe, and the doctor, who must have been 50, asked me for a date. He really was gross and wouldn't take no for an answer. I finally told him he was too old for me. I know I hurt his feelings.

When you tell a young guy to get lost, he accepts it and there's no hassle, but you can't turn down an older man without destroying his ego. How come?

HATES HASSLES

DEAR HATES: Men are no different from women. No one wants to be turned down because of age. Don't waste your tears on older men. If they approach enough young gals, they're bound to find one who digs older men.

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago, I read a letter in your column from a man whose family beat him to the newspaper every night. His wife had already clipped the coupons out, his mother-in-law had torn out the crossword puzzle and his daughter had cut out Dear Abby. Of course, the paper was unreadable by that time.

As a solution, you suggested that he treat himself to a second subscription.

It may be a little late to tell you this, but when I was growing up and my dad got home from work, all he wanted was his favorite chair and the evening paper. Sometimes he had to remind us to get out of his chair, and occasionally we'd have to hunt around for the paper, but he always got them both. That was one of the first lessons of respect I can ever remember learning.

I think you should have advised that family to go ahead and read the paper, but to leave it the way they found it until the man of the house had seen it. Then do the clipping.

KATHY S.

DEAR KATHY: Thanks. Your answer was better than mine.

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column where to send for a form to donate my eyes after death. Then I heard that they don't want anyone's eyes unless they have perfect vision, which I do not have. Is that true?

WANTS TO DONATE

DEAR WANTS: Not true.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MR. J.:

1. When was the last time you told your wife you loved her?
2. When was the last time you paid her a compliment about the way she looked (or cooked)?
3. When was the last time you gave her a kiss. (Not a peck, but a real honest-to-goodness, toe-curling kiss?)
4. When was the last time you surprised her with a little gift — flowers, a silly card or something you knew she wanted?

If the answer to three out of these four questions is "over six months," your marriage could be in trouble.

Doctor Develops Home Treatment that

RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS
HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES . . .

QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE 15 MINUTE HOME TREATMENT
MUST SHOW IMMEDIATE IMPROVEMENT OR — YOUR MONEY BACK!

A leading New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home treatment that rinses away blackheads, helps dry up acne pimples, and shrinks enlarged pores. The name of this medicated product is QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE. Apply this delightfully Mint Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" are kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads, and other foreign impurities. As it firms and hardens, its suction action draws out waste matter from the pores. . . In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your wash cloth. And your skin feels clean . . . really clean . . . refreshed, smooth like velvet. Women 35 and over will enjoy the skin tight-ening experience as the masque relaxes tired facial muscles and eases tension lines on face and throat. If you suffer the agony of Blackheads, acne-pimples, and enlarged pores, give yourself this home treatment and see the breakthrough results. Ask for it by name, QUEEN HELENE MINT JULEP MASQUE.

Farewell Tea Honors Bride-To-Be

Gowned in an attractive green skirt with coordinated print top, Stella Pryor was the center of attraction Tuesday at a farewell tea, given in her honor at the Power Road home of Mrs. Elton (Gloria) Warren.

Some 50 guests were invited to the drop-in affair to bid their longtime friend a fond farewell. Stella, widow of Irving Pryor, will become the bride of D. Herbert Willey on Dec. 14, at Allen, Md.

Other hostesses for the event were Laurel Rodgers, who made the bride-doll cake centering the refreshment table, Marie Richter, Mae Sheppard, Mamie J. Warner and Nell Tanner.

Stella's Eastern Star friends presented her with a feminine tearose peignoir set and a corsage to complement her gown. She is a past Matron of Seminole Chapter 2, Order of Eastern Star.

A red and white color scheme was carried out in the decor and party refreshments for the guests enjoyment during the appointed hours, 2-5 p.m.

Stella lived in Maryland, just ten miles from her first boy friend and present fiance, until 1948. In 1953 the Pryors moved to Sanford after living in Jacksonville and Daytona for five years.

A fancier of antiques and exotic plants, Stella contributed her talents to the community, which she loved and served diligently. She joined Sanford Garden Club shortly after in Sanford where she served as club treasurer for seven years and was president of Jacaranda Circle for two years.

Her other activities included a member and treasurer of Seminole Memorial Hospital Auxiliary, and secretary of Sanford Woman's Club. She served on the Advisory Board of the Salvation Army for 15 years (12 years as secretary) and taught a Sunday School class at First Baptist Church for 20 years.

Sanford's loss is Maryland's gain, but Stella promised to return to visit. We wish her all the happiness she deserves.

It was a big day in Sanford Wednesday when Gov. Reubin Askew helped Auto-Tran Corp. president, Eugene Garfield, welcome the one millionth passenger to ride the train.

Democratic Women's Club of Seminole County members and guests are reminded of the annual Christmas party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Norris, 115 Larkwood Drive, on Dec. 13, at 7 p.m.

The party will be a covered dish and B.Y.O.B. affair. Women will bring a gift for a woman, and likewise for the men.

Congratulations are in order to Annette Wing and Peggy Conrad for a successful Champagne Ball, sponsored by Seminole Mutual Concert Association, at The Forest Clubhouse this weekend.

Speaking of the Forest, a medley of music, to the tune of a donation of only $1.00 will be presented there on Dec. 12, at 7:30 p.m. under the auspices of Lake Mary Woman's Club to benefit The Little Red School House.

Stars of the concert will be Sanford's own Central Florida Chorale, who will captivate your hearts, just as favorably as when their talent was so well-received during their tour of Poland last summer.

Mrs. E. Gordon (Thelma) Lewis continues on the sick list, but is able to have visitors. Her address is 411 Orange Ave.

Mrs. M. E. (Vida) Smith has returned from a visit to Waycross, Ga., due to the illness of her brother. Accompanying Vida home for a few days visit was her niece, Deborah Minchew.

Volunteers are needed to ring the bells for Salvation Army during the Holiday Season. Sanford Woman's Club has volunteered to man the posts at McCrory's in downtown Sanford, on Dec. 17. More volunteers are needed by calling Mrs. Walter (Bill) Gielow.

Others offering their services to date are Virginia Burney, Dottie Reynolds, Pat Foster, Jerri Kirk, Dottie Karns, Olive Hunt, Marian Coker, Charlotte Smith, Lorraine Graham and Doshia Brown.

Now Don't Blush: Gas Gets Everyone

BY THE EDITORS OF CONSUMER REPORTS
(Third in a Series)

Perhaps no part of the body is as misunderstood as the lower digestive tract, which is involved in absorption of nutrients and elimination of solid waste matier. Many people still believe that a daily bowel movement is needed for good health. This belief is false. Not everyone functions on a once-a-day schedule — or needs to.

If you take laxatives frequently (without a physician telling you to do so), Consumers Union's medical consultants urge you to try to stop using them. Continual use of laxatives may lead you to become dependent on them, and, in certain instances, daily use may be harmful to your health. Many people who have broken the laxative habit, either on their own or at the insistence of a physician, have been surprised to find that after a few days or a week the bowels begin to move effectively again without laxatives. If there is a significaht change in bowel habits, or if constipation persists for more than a week or two, you should consult a physician.

The best guarantee against constipation is a diet containing fiber in the form of whole-grain cereals, vegetables, and fruit. Among the more valuable foods for this purpose are cereals high in bran content (Kellogg's All-Bran or Post's and Kellogg's 40 per cent Bran Flakes and Raisin Bran, for example), fresh leafy vegetables, salads, and raw fruit (such as peaches, pears, apples, or apricots). Prunes or prune juice can also be effective.

Many people complain of "gas," or belching. Belching is commonly caused by swallowing air, which may be a nervous habit. It may also follow drinking carbonated beverages, rapid eating, or gulping fluids. To help you cut down on belching, Consumers Union's medical consultants recommend the following:

— Stop drinking carbonated beverages.
— Eat and drink slowly.
— Restrict your use of gum and hard candy (both of which require frequent swallowing).

Other causes of gas are less well understood. At the present time, there is no known cure for intestinal gas or for the flatulence that is often associated with it. Some foods, notably beans, have been implicated as causative foods. But a number of other foods in the bean or root family and such vegetables as broccoli, cabbage, and cauliflower may also cause problems. Intolerance to milk and milk products can also produce gaslike symptoms in some people. If you can pinpoint the cause of your gas, then, by all means, do your best to avoid that food.

'Treasure Hunters' Help Area Easter Seal Center

A unique display of gold, silver and artifacts salvaged from Spanish wreck sites will be hosted by the Winter Park Mall Dec. 11 - 13.

The display, sponsored by the Kellyco Company and valued at approximately $60,000 will include rare Spanish coins, cannonballs and other paraphernalia raised from sunken Spanish galleons.

Indian relics from various Florida sites will also be shown.

A unique aspect of this display will be a huge sandbox "salted" with valuable coins and tokens redeemable for prizes. For a 50-cent donation to the Easter Seal Speech and Hearing Center, a donor will be given a metal detector to hunt "treasure" in the sandbox.

As a special bonus, a professional model compass metal detector will be given away to one of the lucky people who register.

Experts in the field of treasure hunting and wreck diving will be on hand to discuss the rare finds and answer questions. Among them in John Durham, head tester for Kellyco metal detectors, who has one of the finest collections of treasures discovered on dry land sites. Fred Kaiser, noted treasure seeker and author, will be on hand to answer questions and autograph copies of his book, "Treasure in the Sun."

Sorority Plans Craft Sale; Also Has Baked Goodies

The Nov. 18 meeting of the Xi Theta Epsilon Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was held at the home of Ercell Gray in Deltona. The meeting was presided over by Evelyn Serraes, president.

An interesting program on "Of House and Home" was presented by Vickie Hall and Kay Harris.

Other members present were Elizabeth Jett, Sue Ceynowa, Lessie Pauline, Linda Dunn, Jan Myers, Arlene Blum, and Connie Dean.

Xi Theta Epsilon's Dec. 2 meeting was at the home of Vickie Hall with Evelyn Serraes presiding. Jan Myers presented the programs on "Women To Whom We Are Indebted" and "Women Who Have Made a Difference."

Ercell Gray, ways and means chairman, reported the home-made craft sale of Nov. 29 was a success, and the chapter is planning another craft and bake from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Publix, in the Sanford Plaza, on Dec. 13.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

A psychic bid is one designed to give misinformation. In the early '30s such bids were often called Jacobys because young Oswald Jacoby was known to bid them frequently.

Forty years later, old Oswald Jacoby has given them up, but Jim still tries one on occasion.

His one-spade bid in the East seat, made in a rubber bridge game turned out to be super-successful. It wasn't too risky. He wasn't vulnerable and could always run to diamonds if he got into spade trouble.

If Jim had passed or raised diamonds immediately the chances are that North and South would get to four spades and wind up making five odd. They might still have found spades if South had doubled one spade, but South elected to bid hearts and North raised him to game.

West opened a spade. South rose with dummy's ace and led a trump, but it did him no good. West grabbed the first heart, led a second spade which Jim ruffed. Jim led a diamond to his partner's ace, whereupon a second diamond ruff set the unfortunate declarer.

Ask the Jacobys

A Quebec reader wants to know what we would open the bidding with, holding:

♠ A Q 10 6 5 ♥ K 3 2 ♦ K J 3 ♣ K 10 4

Our answer is one notrump. With 16 high-card points and 5-3-3-2 distribution our hand fulfils all requirements for an opening notrump. We bid it in spite of holding a five-card major suit.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sunday, December 7, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The bigger or more active the gathering, the better it should suit you today. Try to attend a function where you can meet new people.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Though this normally isn't your work day, something good could be developed careerwise if you had a chance to talk with the boss.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't be afraid to think in big, bold terms today. Your ideas won't be all that far out. Even if you fall short, you'll be ahead.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll find today that people who aren't always that generous toward you will be surprisingly willing to share.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your judgment is particularly keen today. A good day to make major decisions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Set aside mundane tasks today. Get yourself out-of-doors in the fresh air, doing something that's just plain fun.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A short trip to visit someone you haven't seen for some time could turn out to be a ball. Phone first.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Get in touch with a family member who has something you've been wanting to make a deal on. He's in a generous mood today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is a good day for you to take care of an important matter that must be committed to writing. Spell out your terms.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) An unusual shift in conditions is now developing. It should be of substantial benefit to you materially. Some benefits may even surface today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your leadership qualities are excellent today. You may not fully appreciate this fact, but others will.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Benefits are likely to come your way today either through very unusual channels or in a unique manner. Trust in Lady Luck.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Dec. 7, 1975

You will be extremely enterprising this coming year. You could have several worthy projects going at the same time. Explore all opportunities but be sure risks are minimized.

For Monday, December 8, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're apt to suffer a disappointment today if you lead yourself to believe another is as enthusiastic about something as you are.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful. Don't tread on too many toes in order to satisfy your self-interests. Slights won't be quickly forgiven.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You have good ideas and intentions today, but when it comes to implementing them, you'll leave a lot to be desired.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Know when to back off today on business propositions. The party you'll deal with will go only just so far.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't bore associates or companions with problems that don't directly affect them, especially if it's a family matter.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It isn't likely you'll get the thanks you expect for a service you perform today. Take satisfaction in knowing you did your best.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You'll be in a sociable generous mood today. This could suddenly switch if others turn out to be freeloaders.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) What you accomplish today will have to be earned through your own merits. It's not likely others will make things easier for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A promise impulsively made to you today will only be partially fulfilled. Be realistic as to what to expect.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This could be a profitable day if you stay in areas you're familiar with. Getting out of your element would be a mistake.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The timing is all wrong for you to talk with one you know socially about help with something careerwise.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's marvelous to be a Good Samaritan, but be careful you don't take on more than you can manage.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Dec. 8, 1975

This coming year you'll become closely associated with a very active and "fun" companion. Your new pal will introduce you to a large circle of friends.

Students Honored For Contributions

By BECKY LOCKHART

Lyman High

Students and Club of the Month for October have been selected. Those chosen were Rob Cole, Stacey Sweat, Carie Cato, and Keyettes. They were selected for their contributions to the community and the school.

Rob, a junior, is in his second year at Lyman. He is a member of International Thespians, vice president of Drama Club, and in "The Company". He worked the lights for Homecoming Skit Night and appeared in Drama's skit. In the recent production of "Barefoot in the Park", Rob served as technical director. He portrays Greensleeves in the upcoming "Greensleeves Magic." Rob hopes to attend a local college, majoring in theater, later working in special effects electronics.

Sophomore Student of the Month, Stacey Sweat, is a JV Cheerleader, and a member of Keyettes. During Homecoming activities she participated in skit and float competition for Keyettes. Stacey is interested in sports, especially skating, softball, and football. She is also interested in art, considering it as a career possibility.

Carie Cato, a Lyman freshman, is her class president. At Lyman, Carie is a Trackette and a member of National Beta Club. She is also on the Girls' basketball team. In the future Carie hopes to attend Auburn University, majoring in architecture or veterinary medicine. She is very interested in animals and has cats, dogs, and gerbils as pets. Carie loves all sports and enjoys participating in them.

Keyettes participated in Homecoming activities during October. Many of the girls played Powderpuff football. The club presented a skit on Skit Night and won first place in the float competition.

Youth Libbers Lack Senators' Support

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Not a single U.S. senator is willing to come out against taxation without representation as it applies to people under 18, according to a survey by a youth group here.

Youth Liberation, a nonprofit organization working toward more rights for children and teenagers, announced that finding in the December issue of its monthly publication FPS: a Magazine of Young People's Liberation.

In that issue, staff writer Jon Schaller says that young people should either be given the right to vote, or be made exempt from taxes. "King George III, two centuries ago, told the colonists that Parliament would watch out for their interests even though they had no voice in electing it," he writes. "Today kids are told the same thing about Congress. But the colonists didn't swallow that argument then, and it hasn't improved with age. There's no reason we should swallow it today."

The survey was undertaken "to see if this country is willing to fully live up to the ideals of its founders," according to Linda Baugh, spokesperson for the group.

Sea World Trip Team Reward

This year the Sanford Middle School's first EEP (Enrichment Student Participation) field trip was won by 7-3, which has approximately 140 seventh graders. Based on the teams' academic grade average, conduct, community involvement and other special projects, this group— (one of seven — had the most points for the trip to Sea World.

This positive school approach at Sanford Middle School has drawn inquiries from across the nation since its inception last year. Teachers and chaperones report excellent behavior on the students behalf and Principal Dan Pelham says the program will continue with the next nine week period winners going to Silver Springs.

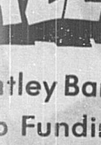
Lake Brantley Band Seeks Trip Funding

By ROSEMARY JOHNSON



Lake Brantley

One of the things that makes Lake Brantley High School known all around, is our Red, White and Blue Marching Machine"—The Band.

In the recent District V Marching Festival at Merritt Island H. S., Brantley's Band received superior rating for their music, inspection prior to the performance, marching skill, and their general effect of the performance.

Having one of the best bands and directors (Donald Shmaus) in the state, they were invited to participate in the "King Orange Bowl Parade" in Miami on Dec. 31. Another red-letter date on the band's calendar is April 3. That is when they will represent Florida in the "Bicentennial Cherry Blossom Festival" in Washington, D. C. This is, to say the least, a great honor.

In order to finance these activities, the band has a few fund raising projects on the agenda. At present, they are selling beautiful candles. Also, on December 13, they are holding an auction at 2 p.m. at Lake Brantley. All kinds of items are being donated by students and their families, school officials, and persons living in the community. The band really needs the auction to be successful and the participation of the general public would be greatly appreciated.

School Hosts Veterans Post

Casselberry Veterans of Foreign Wars Post and Auxiliary 10050 were guests of honor recently at the Northside Christian School in Altamonte Springs for a Bicentennial Thanksgiving presentation.

Under the direction of Principal John B. Book, the children — kindergarten through eighth grade, sang many patriotic songs. Five-year-old Susan Kast of Altamonte Springs recited the preamble to the Constitution.

One-Act Plays Set By Trinity Players

By MARTHA McDONALD

Trinity Prep

It's "Lights, curtain and action" for the Trinity Players this coming week. Dec. 11, will be the opening of the Trinity Players eighth theatrical season. They will perform for the fall production four one-act plays. The evening will begin with William Saroyan's "Hello Out There." Set in a small town jailhouse, this story is about a young man who has been falsely imprisoned for rape, desperately looking for someone who will listen to his side of the story.

After this moving drama, two short comedies follow. "The Still Alarm" is not a small scale "Towering Inferno," but rather a farce about a hotel fire in which everyone is quite nonchalant about. The second comedy, "If Men Played Cards The Way Women Do," is just as hysterical as it sounds. Several of Trinity's football and soccer heroes are in the cast. Wrapping up the evening is a murder mystery called, "Sorry, Wrong Number." This fright-filled drama will leave you on the edge of your seats.

Curtain time is 8:30 p. m. Dec. 11, 12 and 13 in the George Witmer Science Building on campus.

The Shakespeare Players from FTU will give "Humorous Sketches from Shakespeare" at 8 p.m., Dec. 8, in the Audio-Visual Room in Trinity's library.

Tennessee Williams Play Is Scheduled

By MARY MARTINDILL

Seminole Comm. College

Tension is mounting as the end of Term I and Christmas are approaching. On cold mornings as students bundled in warm clothing are crowded around the coffee machines in the Student Center at SCC, conversation revolves around the term papers that are due for final grades and the speeches that are to be presented to the class.

Central Florida Womens Chorale and a new member of a vocational education, a student at SCC.

A reminder that a play by Tennessee Williams, "A Period of Adjustment" will be presented in the theatre at SCC on Dec. 11, 12, 13 and 14 at 7.30 p.m. Admission is free and everyone is welcome!

SCC basketball team is having a good year. For those of you who don't attend the games, you don't know what you are missing. Where's your school spirit? Any SCC student with an I.D. card is admitted free. The next home game is Dec. 13, at 7:30 p.m. SCC will host Brevard Community College.

Teague Revives Greek Olympics

By ELDA NICHOLS
Herald Correspondent

Teague Middle School recently recreated some of the original Olympic Games, with signs advertising, "776 B.C.", "Olympic Games, Athens, Greece"; and "In Honor of Zeus"; seen all over the halls and classrooms.

Students in the 6th grade Social Studies participated in this new event at Teague, competing for the simple wreath of olive leaves. Wayne Joiner, Social Studies teacher, said, "Students made their own track equipment. It was very exciting to watch these young people competing for the first time, in the 100 yard, dash, broad jump, discus throwing, javeling throwing, pole vault and shot-put. Maybe we will find talent in the middle school to give Mark Spitz some competition."

After the games, everyone met in a group, and discussed good sportsmanship and character, which had been on display all afternoon.

Longwood Family Steeped In History

Text and Photos by Elda Nichols

Bistline family stems from one of earliest settlers and takes pride in reviewing their heritage

A young girl, playing in her yard in Longwood, gives little thought to the fact that she is the youngest great, great-granddaughter of one of Longwood's first settlers, Josiah B. Chouser. Janine Bistline, 9, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bistline, Jr., of Longwood. Their daughter, Adeline Bistline, 8, is a Longwood resident who take pride and pleasure in reviewing their heritage.

Chouser was born in 1830, in Pennsylvania. He studied carpentry and decided to become a Presbyterian carpenter. After his marriage, he decided to become a Presbyterian minister. His wife's health, He chose Longwood after learning there was a large sawmill located there. With his carpentry background, he was able to build a Yellow Cottage, on Church Street. He and his family lived in this Yellow Cottage, on Church Street. He built the Longwood Hotel, on Warren Avenue. He built the Longwood Victorian House, on Warren Avenue. He built the Longwood Hotel, that was to become so popular with the wealthy and famous people of that day.

As his skills were in construction work, and concentrated on cabinet making and furniture. Many of the pieces of hand-made furniture decorate the Bistline home today. In fact, some of his original tools are now treasured keepsakes of the Bistlines. Chouser had a lifetime love of wood, and even at a very old age, he enjoyed whittling small objects out of orange wood.

The Chouser's had a daughter, Frances, who married Fred Niemeyer, of Longwood. Their daughter, Adeline (Addie) was to become the wife of John A. Bistline.

Addie was a graduate of Longwood High School. Pennsylvania, after being offered a job in Longwood with transportation expenses thrown in. Although he didn't know it at the time, his destiny was awaiting him in the small town, to become a jack-of-all-trades," he chuckled. Mr. Niemeyer, "I worked in Niemeyer's grocery store, and delivered groceries in a horse and buggy. I also tended a couple of cows and tended a construction business at that time, and Bistline also helped in his carpentry work.

After meeting Addie Niemeyer, Bistline decided Longwood was the place for him. He was ready to settle down. After a proper courtship, Addie and Bistline were married and took off on a long honeymoon trip to the North. Bistline said, "We travelled by train to Jacksonville, and then by boat to Baltimore. Everyone became seasick on the trip, except Addie. We ate our meals at the captain's table because no one else was able to eat."

Bistline built a home, and went into the squab raising business. He shipped the squab north, mostly to New York City. Squab was a popular delicacy. It was no easy matter, in those days, packing the birds, getting them to the railroad shipping boxes, and getting them to the railroad station.

Bistline worked hard, and planted orange groves on both sides of what is now SR 434. "I hard work could kill, I'd have been dead at a very early age," he chuckled.

In Bistline's early years in Longwood, only one general store was in business. The original First Baptist Church and Christ Episcopal Church were there, plus a two-room school house. The Bistline's lived in a two-room house. Roads were just dirt, with the City Hall for many years located. The home Bistline built, over 60 years ago, will now be bulldozed to make way the four-laning of the new hard surfaced road.

Bistline recalls the weather as milder back in his early years in Longwood. "I was able to grow pineapples, avocados and bananas, with no trouble." He also cultivated a hobby of raising prize-winning poultry, including Silver Wyandottes, which he exhibited all over the country, and sold many shelves in his home, including several Best of Show, breeding stock to exhibit at the Madison Square Garden Show, won by his chickens.

Bistline, always civic minded, was elected to the Seminole County School Board, and served 18 years. He was town councilman for 20 years and was in office when the town's first water system was installed. The Longwood Gymnasium, at Milnee Middle School, was named in his honor, and today he recalls, "It was the Lyman High School Dem, and it was a proud moment for me when the students and faculty honored me with a plaque, naming the gymnasium in my honor."

After three heart attacks, Bistline underwent open heart surgery, but continues to do his own yard work. The Bistline married Mrs. Fred Niemeyer, who also had been a long-time family friend. She and her husband had known the Bistlines for 40 years. She, too, passed away three years ago.

Fred Bistline, son of J.A. Bistline's sons, lives in Longwood with his wife, Carolyn, and their three children. Their children, Walter, Frances, Jane and Janine, are all named after relatives; "We like to keep the names in the family," Carolyn explained. Their daughter, Frances, (recently married), was named after Frances Chouser, Bistline's mother.

From Longwood's earliest history, and J. B. Chouser's helped shape it, to the present youngest member of the Bistline family, a proud heritage has been established. Memories may, a proud heritage has been established. Memories may, a proud heritage has been established. J. A. Bistline, as he contemplates destruction of the home he has known for so many years.

The 60-year-old Bistline home on SR 434 will be torn down to make way for expansion of the road.

Second Witness Beaten

Illness Delays Spaziano Trial

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

The murder trial of former "outlaw" motorcycle gang member Joseph Robert Spaziano was postponed today until the week of Jan. 19 after prosecutors reported a witness hospitalized with a heart condition has "taken a turn for the worse."

Circuit Court Judge Robert B. McGregor ordered sworn testimony taken from the ill witness at a hospital to perpetuate the testimony.

Assistant State Atty. Claude Van Hook told the court that another state witness in the Spaziano case has had his home "shot up" and that the witness "was beaten by outlaw gang members."

The court denied a state motion asking testimony be taken from this witness and another "who now fear for their lives."

Spaziano, 30, was indicted Sept. 12 for first-degree murder in the August 1973 slaying of 18-year-old Orlando hospital clerk Laura Lynn Harberts.

Miss Harberts was identified through dental records after her decomposing body was found at a dumping area near SR-431 in west Altamonte Springs on Aug. 23, 1973.

The body of a second woman found with Miss Harberts on the trash heap still hasn't been identified.

In October Judge McGregor issued a protective order making the addresses of five state witnesses "unavailable for public inspection" after the state alleged that the witnesses were in fear for their lives.

Some of the witnesses being protected are reportedly former Outlaw motorcycle gang members and former girlfriends of Spaziano.

Spaziano is already serving a life prison sentence for an Orange County rape conviction.

Van Hook also told the court that the state will seek a court order directing Spaziano's defense attorney, Edward Kirkland, to produce two letters written by Spaziano.

In October, Judge (Robert B.) McGregor issued a protective order making the addresses of five state witnesses "unavailable for public inspection" after the state alleged that the witnesses were in fear for their lives.

Van Hook said the state "found out about the letters from Spaziano's girlfriend, but when we tried to subpoenae the letters we discovered that Kirkland has them."

Also continued until Jan. 19 for trial were three men charged with grand larceny and conspiracy in connection with alleged automotive transmission repairs.

The postponement of a trial for Thomas Ward Myers Jr., 33, William Carson Myers, 21, and John Sutton, 23, was announced by the court because the court has yet to enter a formal ruling and order on a defense motion to dismiss the three grand larceny counts against the defendants.

The trio was arrested Oct. 21 after a three-month undercover consumer fraud probe by state and county agents.

Judge McGregor indicated that selection of a jury in the grand larceny trial of James Randolph Tabor, 21, of Sanford Route One, would take place this afternoon.

Tabor is accused in the alleged theft of a disabled auto from a parking lot at a shopping center at Sanford.

Sanford Firm Investigated

Taxi License To Be Aired

A spokesman for the Sanford Transit Line will be on hand at tonight's City Commission meeting to reply to the Commission's queries about that company's needs for the seven taxi licenses it holds.

According to a memo to the commission from City Manager Warren E. Knowles, a police investigation of the company, ordered by the commission, revealed Sanford Transit Line operates only two of its Yellow Cabs in the daytime and two during the busy part of the evening.

The commission reportedly ordered the investigation after denying Sanford Transit's request for an eighth license.

Knowles' memo said Sanford Transit Line president Fadel Elbadramany is expected to defend the company's need for the licenses on the grounds that some taxis have been taken to Daytona Beach for repairs and some others are called upon to make trips out of the city.

Elbadramany also is expected to cite a slump in business activity and alleged illegal activities on the part of his company's competitors in his defense of his company's need for the licenses, Knowles' memo said.

In other business, public hearings are scheduled to consider the adoption of Sanford's Comprehensive Development Plan and the rezoning of property at the intersection of 25th Street and Mellonville Avenue.

Public hearings also are scheduled to consider the adoption of the National Fire Codes and a resolution to vacate a portion of a plat.

Finally, the commission will consider a request to waive the requirement of a fence on the east property line of the ABC Liquor Store; and take under consideration requests by three local banks to serve as depositories of City Funds for 1976.

Police Chief Urges Strong Locks

Sheriff: Violence Puts People In Armed Camp

By AUDIE MURPHY
Herald Staff Writer

"We're going to be living in an armed camp," Seminole County Sheriff John Polk said today.

Commenting on the recent wave of robberies and abductions in Central Florida, Polk said the "good people are going to be living in an armed camp to protect themselves."

Asked what measures are needed to combat the crime wave, Polk said the restoration of the death penalty was the best answer.

"The death penalty is the only answer to this," Polk said. "I don't think any government — local, county, or state — could afford to hire enough men to stop it. That would mean putting a man on every corner."

Polk said there are measures that people can take to increase their protection.

"They should make sure they have good locks, not only on the doors, but on the windows as well. Sliding glass doors should have pins in them to reinforce the locks."

Polk added that while extra lighting for yards was a good idea, it can be expensive, and suggested a large dog, such as a German shepard or a doberman, could provide some protection.

Asked if he thought the weekend murder-abduction in DeLand was connected with other incidents that occurred in Central Florida, Polk said, "It could be, but I don't know all the circumstances."

In the DeLand case, 20-year-old Henry Kersey was murdered, and his wife Leslie, 23, was abducted after the couple returned from a football game late Friday and found two burglars in their home.

According to police, Mrs. Kersey was abducted by the burglars, two black males, driven to the Interstate-4 bridge over Lake Monroe, and tossed into the water. She was rescued almost immediately by a family that was fishing near the bridge.

BEN BUTLER

Sanford Police Chief Ben Butler agrees with Sheriff Polk that the Kersey abduction could be related to similar incidents that have occurred in Orange, Lake, Polk and Highland Counties.

"They (Volusia County investigators) apparently believe that some connection might exist," Butler said.

Asked what people can do to protect themselves, Butler said, "We encourage people to call us if they hear noises at home or find anything suspicious."

Butler said his department would gladly send men to give advice to people about the locks and other security measures that might be needed.

"They should call us if they have any questions at all."

The police chief also recommended good, strong locks on doors and windows as standard protection.

On the question of keeping weapons in the home or in the automobile, both Polk and Butler were reluctant to endorse the practice, but Polk said, "I'll put it this way — I have one in my home."

"People have a right to protect themselves and their families," Butler said.

Both Polk and Butler said citizens should be reminded that it is unlawful for an unlicensed person to carry a weapon on his person.

Butler said his department is trying to beef up patrols of residential areas, because "times are changing, people are robbing more residences than businesses."

Despite the increase in robberies, citizens apparently are not flocking to gun shops to purchase weapons.

Stores in both Seminole and Volusia Counties said they have not experienced any noticeable increase in gun sales.

Chamber Directors To Meet

DAYS TO CHRISTMAS

Advice Sought On Indictments

County Commissioner John Kimbrough said today he is preparing a memo to County Attorney Tom Freeman that it is "rumored that indictments held by the courts involved county employees" and is asking Freeman for the legal procedure to follow in the event that county employees must be suspended.

Kimbrough said he is asking Freeman for a legal opinion. The commissioner included in the memo statements from the county's personnel policy. The policy says in part:

"Employes who are indicted by a grand jury or on whom information has been filed by prosecuting officials for a felonious offense shall be automatically suspended.

"Suspension shall continue until any such charge shall have been disposed of by trial and conviction or acquittal of the accused or by dismissal or quashing of the charge.

"If the employe is tried and found guilty and his conviction is not reversed he shall automatically forfeit his position in the county service.

"In the event such persons are tried and acquitted or the information or indictment is dismissed or quashed the employee may be reinstated into county service."

Kimbrough said he is asking "what steps and procedures should be followed if county employees are indicted."

He also pointed out that in the past when county employees have been indicted by a grand jury they have been removed from their jobs until such time as the charges were heard by the circuit court.

A Seminole county grand jury has reportedly issued four indictments and named one person as a co-conspirator.

However, Circuit Court judges have refused to release the indictments. And, Brevard-Seminole State Attorney Abbott Herring has vowed to appeal the judges' decision to the State Supreme Court.

Herring has publicly stated that the indictments should be revealed and arrest warrants issued.

The judges based their action on a state law that allows the sealing of a grand jury report for 15 days to allow unindicted co-conspirators an opportunity to reply before the indictment becomes public.

Seminole County government is adding an additional director to the county staff at a salary in the $20,000 range.

The new position, according to county officials, will be a director of the Office of Management Analysis and Evaluation (OMAE).

Though the exact salary is not known at present, Commissioner John Kimbrough said the 1975-76 fiscal budget contains about $20,000 for an OMAE director's salary.

Initially the OMAE department, which was created out of a management study presented by E.H. Underwood, called for a director.

But, to save money the commission had Sig Pearson, the chief budget analyst, perform the director's job.

At a recent meeting, commissioners decided it was time for a director. Notice was forwarded to Circuit Court Clerk Arthur Bockwith's office that an advertisement should be placed for an OMAE director.

Bob Ellis, the county commission's administrative assistant, said the OMAE office is envisioned with a director at the helm, Pearson as second in command and Eleanor Anderson as the third departmental officer, also assigned the title of budget analyst.

However, the position will be posted and Pearson, as well as other county officers, will be urged to bid for the post.

OMAE was created by Underwood as an information-providing body to government with power to review and make recommendations to department heads concerning budgetary matters. During budget time, commissioners are constantly on the phone to OMAE for updated information.

Also, the agency has been assigned numerous studies other than the budget. For example, turning the fountains into flower beds was shunted off to the OMAE department by Commissioner Harry Kwiatkowski. No update on that study has been provided.

Another assignment was a telephone survey to determine the best and cheapest method of use of courthouse telephones.

A major assignment was monthly monitoring of budgets submitted by six department heads.

Kimbrough agreed with Ellis that it was the county's intention all along to hire a director of OMAE.

OMAE was only one of many changes to county government envisioned by Underwood in his management study.
