Gray Supplied Dean With FBI Reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III said today ousted White House Counsel John W. Dean III assured him falsely last year that he was relaying FBI reports of the Watergate investigation directly to President Nixon.

Gray also said that when he began supplying Dean with FBI reports "I felt it was proper and I would do it even if Sen. (George) McGovern were president."

Gray told the Senate Watergate committee that he first started giving FBI information to Dean barely a month after the break-in at Democratic headquarters on June 17, 1972.

Gray began answering questions about his role in the Watergate scandal a day after a member of the committee, Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., said no evidence has been found to justify impeaching Nixon.

Talmadge said the only testimony so far which implicates Nixon are accounts of Dean and of Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Gray has disputed Walters' second-hand version of a telephone call between Gray and Nixon. Walters said Gray told Nixon the Watergate investigation would lead quite high and that Nixon should fire those responsible. Gray said all he told Nixon was that men on his staff were trying to wound him. Gray said Nixon told him to proceed with his probe of the wiretapping.

Gray was asked why he supplied DBI reports directly to Dean, rather than through the chain of command that included the attorney general. "There's no doubt in my mind that when the counsel to the President of the United States asked for information I was going to give it to him," Gray said.

"You didn't work for Mr. Dean, did you?" asked assistant committee counsel Rufus Edmisten.

"I worked for the President," Gray said.

Gray said Dean assured him that he was reporting directly to Nixon.

"I specifically asked, 'John, are you reporting directly to the President?' or through Mr. Haldeman and Mr. Ehrlichman?' And he told me, 'Directly to the President.'" Gray said.

Robbery Victim Satisfactory, Investigators Lacking Clues

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

A 16-year-old South Seminole boy shot in the Sunday robbery of Ireland's Restaurant, SR 436, Altamonte Springs, was listed in satisfactory condition today at Florida Hospital North.

Altamonte Spring Police Chief Justus East said "as far as our investigators can tell at this point we have no suspects in the case and don't know how they left the area."

East said Jeff Hammond, 16, was shot in the right side in the back by one of the gunmen as the employes were being herded toward a walk-in cooler.

Ireland's employes told police three young black men entered by a rear door about 5:10 a.m. Sunday and confronted workers with pistols. Seven workers were cleaning up after Saturday night diners.

The bandits escaped with an undisclosed amount of cash after forcing an employe to open the safe and locking the employes in the cooler.

Seminole sheriff's deputies are assisting Altamonte Springs police in the robbery-shooting investigation.

SANFORD SHOOTING

Sanford police were still searching today for a man who shot Emma Lee McBride, 43, 1113 West Ninth Street, in the head and stomach with a .22 caliber pistol Saturday night.

Dectitive Lt. William Lykens said the McBride woman was listed in fair condition this morning at Orange Memorial Hospital, Orlando.

"We are looking for a suspect in the case but haven't made any arrests yet," Lykens said.

Police said the shooting erupted during an argument at the McBride woman's home.

CHULUOTA ROBBERY

Sheriff's Sgt. Tony Calangelo is investigating the 11 p. m. armed robbery Sunday night of the Shop 'N Go store, Chuluota.

Two men, ages 18 to 20, announced at gunpoint "This is a holdup" and took a small amount of money from a cash register before forcing two women to lie on the floor while the bandits made good their escape.

Lake Mary Majority Must Decide Issue

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — Proponents of the incorporation effort for this community were girding for the final battle Tuesday to get the people out to vote on whether they want their town to be a municipality.

The work now is not centered on getting "yes" votes, but rather on getting the citizens to the polls at Lake Mary School which will open at 7 a.m. and close some 12 hours later at 7 p.m., Acting Mayor Donald Jackson said.

Under the provisions of the charter passed during the last session of the Florida Legislature, at least 50 per cent plus one (369) of the 736 voters must vote in the election. A simple majority of 185 votes is needed then for passage. Kay Sassman, who is to be the municipality's first city clerk, said 72 absentee votes were received by this morning.

Jackson indicated a little bitterness, in an interview with The Herald, on the stiff requirements set by the Legislature for passage of the incorporation. "They (the legislators) do not require a majority of the people to turn out to elect them or to elect anyone else running for office. It doesn't seem fair," he said.

If the incorporation passes, and the committee in charge of the effort is placing last minute calls and organizing a car pool for use Tuesday, the first meeting of the new city council is scheduled for Aug. 13. Those needing transportation to the polls may call 322-5218, Mrs. Sassman said.

ACTING MAYOR JACKSON
. . .369 voters needed

Jackson said in the telephone campaign the voters are being urged to "show the legislators they are interested enough to turn out at the polls."

For many years various groups in Lake Mary have discussed incorporation, but a group of the chamber of commerce there began work in earnest 18-months to 2-years ago, Jackson said. "We feel confident of success," he said.

The charter provides a governing body of five councilman and a mayor, who will have authority to vote in cases of ties.

AROUND THE CLOCK

By John A. Spolski

If you don't already know the meaning of euthanasia, you'd better prepare yourself because it'll be in the new more and more.

A subject many of us shy away from.....the act of painlessly killing, killing someone for reasons assumed to be merciful. (The key word is "assumed", and please don't intrepret this as being an endorsement on my part.)

That would be just as fallacious as this past weekend's big drug bust.....first reported in the area of $600,000 and now we're being told that it's more like $6,000.

With all of the law enforcement personnel connected with this "huge" Central Florida Drug raid, it would appear that someone didn't do their homework!

TIMELY QUOTE ..... "Ecology, unfortunately has become the 'motherhood' of today and perhaps it is time we discovered a pill to control it. The road back to the 'good old days' of wild rivers, beaver and buffalo is paved with outhouses, hunger and ignorance." — Eric F. Johnson, executive director of the American Water Works Association.

How unfortunate ..... within the U.S. Supreme Court we have "politics" regarding the cessation of bombing in Cambodia. In the meantime, the bombs keep dropping and innocent victims are added to the list (literally in today's report what with our allies being killed by our bombs).

It brings to mind the comments of Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, on a Defense Department admission that U.S. planes were secretly bombing Cambodia as early as 1969 — "If Congress and the American people have been lied to in this instance, how can they have any confidence in Pentagon spokesmen when they come before the (Armed Service) committee in classified, closed session and ask for billions of dollars?"

ANGLING FOR THE BIG ONE

HUNDREDS OF area children, ages two to 12 years, lined the shores of Lake Carola in Ft. Mellon Park at Sanford Saturday for the annual Sanford-Seminole Jaycees Fish-a-thon. Adults accompanying youngsters were observed joining in the fun as lines were unsnarled and hooks baited for 90 minutes. Largest fish caught by a child was a 3¾ pound catfish landed by eight-year-old Brenda Isley of Sanford. Related photo and names of Fish-a-thon prize winners on pages 8A and 3B.

Supermarkets, Consumers Await New Beef Shipment

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Supermarkets hoped for new shipments of beef today to replace merchandise snapped up by weekend shoppers, but many stores said they expected only a fraction of what they needed.

A spokesman for one Los Angeles market said he was figuring on "probably a 60 per cent cut" in the amount of beef he normally gets.

You open the door and it's like gangbusters," said a supermarket employe in Sacramento, Calif., as he looked at the long line at the meat counter.

Meanwhile, the government was sticking to its guns on the beef price freeze — at least for the time being.

Sanford's Supplies Thin

By JEAN PATTESON
Herald Staff Writer

Beef is spread thinly on Sanford supermarket shelves today. Hamburger looks decidedly pale, and steaks are scarce. Prices on all other meats are continuing to soar.

Although all stores have beef for sale, nowhere is the supply abundant. Meat department managers in most stores reported heavy buying of beef over the weekend, with shoppers declaring they wanted to buy while some beef was still available.

"Customers were trying to get hind quarters and fronts," said a Park and Shop spokesman. "They were buying alright, but we didn't run out," said a spokesman for Publix Market in Sanford Plaza. Publix in Seminole Plaza also said there was a rush on beef, "But it's not too bad yet."

Most stores said they thought the shortage would become more serious because wholesalers were shorting orders for beef. "We're only getting about 40 per cent our usual order of beef," said manager of Park and Shop. Publix supplies are reportedly "cut a little," supplies at Barley's Meat Market in Lake Mary are said to be "greatly curtailed," and spokesman for Fairway said it is difficult to get any beef at all. One shopper at Winn Dixie on French Ave. said he bought the last package of hamburger in the store, Sunday.

Dr. C.L. Campbell, director of the Division of Animal Industry, Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, said there is a pressing shortage of beef. He said farmers are holding cattle on pastures to get them to market after September 12 to get a better price. The ceiling comes off beef on that date.

"We are not likely to have a famine because the cattle are out there," Campbell explained. He said there have been no reports in Florida of a meat black market and no increase in rustling cattle, although both have been reported elsewhere in the United States.

However, two Orlando meat wholesalers contacted Friday said the only beef available was on the black market. Spokesman for C.A. Long meat packers said he had been offered beef at ten to 20 cents per pound higher than ceiling prices, and spokesman for Fairway Market supplier said he had been made similar offers.

Campbell said schools, other institutions and military buses cannot obtain meat because packers cannot be promised a supply of meat with which to fulfil contracts.

14-Year-Old Among Nine Road Deaths

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Florida traffic accidents over the weekend killed nine people, including a Fort Lauderdale pedestrian who was struck by a car on her 14th birthday.

The Florida Highway Patrol said Cynthia Kent of Fort Lauderdale was killed Saturday while crossing a street in Fort Myers.

Cetta M. Roberts, 21, of Tampa, was fatally injured when she crashed through the windshield of a vehicle which left the roadway on a curve near Brandon, police said. She was a passenger in the car.

The Florida Highway Patrol gave the following accounts of other accidents:

Susan Elaine Yates, 20, of Shalimar, died when she was thrown from her car when it went out of control in Okaloosa County.

Gloria Anderson, 51, of Riverview, was killed when the car in which she was riding was struck in the rear by another vehicle in Gibsonton.

A two-car crash in Pensacola killed Larry Dean White, 26, of Pensacola.

In Volusia County, Jennie M. Bell, 52, of Crescent City, was killed in a headon collision.

Pedestrian James Jones of Havana, Fla., was struck and killed by a car in Gadsden County.

A perfect service and payment record brough the title of Sanford Herald "Newsboy of the Month of July" to George Tierce Jr., 13-year-old student from Crooms High School. Women Invading Rich Construction Industry

By PAT LEISNER
Associated Press Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Women are invading Florida's booming construction industry after abandoning low paying, menial office work for ditch digging and trucking jobs that leave them grimy and calloused — but richer.

Secretaries and clerks and receptionists, they're taking to the streets, swinging picks and shovels, manipulating bulldozers and cement choppers, flagging traffic and fitting cables and pipes.

"It's here to stay so the industry might just as well accept it," says Dick Trent, operations supervisor at Cone Brothers Construction Co. in Tampa.

In the past five years, Trent has hired 30 women workers for the firm's fleet of 24-ton asphalt loaders.

"Some of them are tought as nails," says Trent. "They can hold their own with any of the men."

And while admitting to some initial misgivings, the hard hats on the job say the new influx of women are proving their worth.

Law Must Be Preserved

The Environment Act Is Under Fire

The effort to preserve our God-given gifts of nature while still meeting the more mundane needs of people certainly is among the front-ranking issue collisions of the 20th Century.

Just about everybody is for "ecology" and "protection of the environment," yet there is little genuine disposition to compromise. We want to preserve the pristine nature of our land while pursuing a lifestyle that demands mountains of natural resources — and we usually leave a trail of litter behind us as we go about our affairs.

We cannot have it both ways, and the effort to find a middle ground is painful, to say the least.

Nowhere was the pain more evident recently than in Congress which earnestly seeks to mediate the national passions while generating a few of its own. On the whole, however, Congress has responded well to the crisis; to the need to move the environmental clock forward and backward at the same time.

Among the landmark legislation intended to help preserve natural surroundings was the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. It requires federal agencies to submit environmental impact statements to the President and his Council on Environmental Quality for every major project that they undertake. By doing so the agencies are forced to give detailed thought to the environment and to examine all possible alternatives on programs that affect water, air, forests, animals, scenery, wilderness — and people. The Act also makes the administrative decisions subject to ultimate court review.

All in all, the act is perhaps one of the single most important pieces of law on the subject considering the federal government's role in constructing highways, airports, public works projects, defense installations, transit and so forth.

All possible must be done to preserve the intent of the act. Unfortunately, it has been struck a serious blow by the Stevens-Gravel amendment to the Alaskan pipeline bill. That amendment has Congress declaring that the Alaskan pipeline meets all of the requirements of the 1969 act and therefore is not subject to further judicial review.

Other Thoughts

The Supreme Court's recognition that moral standards aren't the same in every community and that local attitudes should be the prime factor in determing what is obscene is a landmark decision that reaches much further than pornography alone.

Stripped bare, the ruling recognizes the right of local groups to make their own decisions on issues of purely local consequence. In this instance, the court felt that application of a single standard for the entire nation was too harsh, and that people at the grass-roots level are better qualified to set guidelines which will affect the moral fiber of their communities.

The Record News believes this is good. Without doubt, local leaders elected by local citizens will be more responsive to the desires of the community as a whole than would administrators elsewhere.

In communities where enough pressure is brought to bear, there will be stringent guidelines on the limits of sexual candor in books and movies. In others where there is a permissive attitude, the rules will be more lax. But in either case, that which exists will be a reflection of the majority attitude in that community.

The court moved a bit more toward returning basic rights to the people. The action is welcomed.—Wichita Falls (Tex.) Record News

Urgent Response Essential

Public Awaits Nixon Reply

Many people are saying today that the gravest constitutional crisis ever confronted by the United States of America is upon us as a result of the President's refusal to supply tapes of White House conversations to the Senate Watergate committee and to Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox. Reading the exchanges of communications among those embroiled in the controversy and putting the matter into perspective, we are not prepared to declare that such a crisis exists — or need exist in the future.

On the whole, the tone of the President's message to the Senate committee was conciliatory. He emphasized his desire to cooperate in every way consistent with the national interest, to the extent of actually furnishing requested information and documents when they are not in conflict with his constitutional responsibilities. He reaffirmed his softened position on executive privilege and he made it clear that he will abide by the ultimate decision of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Sen. Sam Ervin's reaction that the committee was not "clairvoyant" and could not know which tapes to ask for actually begged the question. The committee does not have to be clairvoyant to know what doubts exist in the minds of its members as a result of testimony by the parade of personalities that have come before it. It can and should ask for tapes that would in any way help to clear up these specific points.

We believe it is now essential for the President to respond to such requests — to work out a procedure that will make public the pertinent content of the critical tapes and documents.

He could do this in several ways. He could pass them on to Special Prosecutor Cox with instructions that all matter extraneous to the Watergate issue be removed.

Alternatively, the suggestion by Sen. Howard Baker that an unimpeachable committee of citizens be brought on the scene for the same purpose might be adequate.

The American people, however, are hungry to see and hear Mr. Nixon on the politician. They want him to allay their concerns, their suspicions, and even their sorrows over the trouble that Watergate has sowed.

Energy, Ecology Needs Are Clear

Copley News

Russell Train, chairman of the government's Council on Environmental Quality, went before the Washington Rotary Club the other day to sound a warning that should be heard and heeded across the land. There is a current tendency, he said, to blame all our energy problems on environmentalists and the antipollution standards they have fought to have imposed.

It is an old and ignoble human trait to seek out a scapegoat when something goes wrong. To place responsibility for shortages of fuel and power entirely on the environmental movement is unfair, confuses the issues and could impede the solution of our energy problems. It could also blunt the thrust of antipollution programs that must be sustained if we are going to win our environmental battles.

Experience is showing there will have to be some compromises in the way we pursue our environmental goals. Some antipollution legislation expects too much too soon. The goals themselves must not be sacrificed, however, even if the timetable or procedures for achieving them have to be modified. What Mr. Train fears is that the role which environmentalism has played in creating our current energy problems will be exaggerated to the point that antipollution standards will be relaxed too much and the pendulum will swing too far back in the other direction.

The forces which have produced our energy shortage are far too complex to lay the blame at any single doorstep. As a nation we have formed habits — in political and economic decisions, and in our personal lives — which indulge an appetite for fuel and power as if there would be no tomorrow.

Some critics of environmental laws, for instance, would tie the gasoline shortage exclusively to the fact that antismog devices reduce the performance of auto engines. They do take such a penalty, but government studies have shown that the mileage loss is caused far more by automatic transmissions, air conditioners, power-assist equipment and weight-adding safety features that motorists are demanding in their cars.

It is true that environmental rules have delayed drilling of new oil wells, laying pipelines, constructing refineries and developing new power plants. It is equally true, however, that the gap between the demand for energy and our ability to produce it is being widened by the reluctance of so many Americans to change a lifestyle based on the profligate use of gasoline and electricity.

Let's Reminisce

What Happened To Children's Day?

By HELEN M. PAGEL
Copley News Service

One of the most important days in the whole year used to be Children's Day. It wasn't exactly a fixed holiday, but it always occurred just before school closed for the long summer vacation.

Actually, the celebration covered two days. One day was devoted to exercises at the school and the children of each room had their own program to which mothers and aunts and grandmothers were invited — and came.

Every child in the room had some part in the program. There were recitations such as "The Children's Hour," "The Barefoot Boy" and "The Landing of the Pilgrims." And the boy who was chosen to give Patrick Henry's speech or Lincoln's Gettysburg Address was the most envied person in the room.

And his mother nearly burst with pride when he thundered forth those stirring words, "Give me liberty or give me death," his childish face stern with the responsibility of repeating a great man's sentiments.

There were songs, of course, such as "Little Gypsy Dandelion," "A Little Man Bought Him a Big Bass Drum" and "Cherries Are Ripe." But the most fun were the action songs like "Oats, Peas, Beans and Barley Grow," "The Mulberry Bush" or "Up Was I On My Father's Farm." There were always a number of patriotic songs, too, for in those days people believed that patriotism should be taught right along with the three R's, and certainly nobody would have dreamed of putting on a program without including at least "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner."

There were probably one or two plays based on some historical event, and almost certainly there would be flag drills.

And it might be hard to determine who enjoyed the programs most — the children who put them on or the parents who came to see them. When the program was over, everyone went home with a feeling of exhilaration and satisfaction impossible to describe, coupled with excited anticipation for the next day.

That was the day that all the school children marched through town, and if there is anything more thrilling than marching down the street with bands playing and flags flying and the sidewalks lined with cheering friends and relatives, it would be hard to say what it could be. The parade always started on the East Side, marched across the bridge and ended up at a park on the West Side.

All the children gathered on Market Street, which was a mysterious place known to most of them only as the spot where they all assembled to be formed into marching order.

Each school formed a complete section with banners printed with the school name carried by some of the bigger boys, and each school had their own "school yell" which they shouted out with a right good will as they marched along. Even Haskell School, which had only four grades while the other schools had eight, made themselves heard with.

Puerto Rico deaf to snub by Nixon

SAN JUAN, P. R. (NEA)

Whef President Nixon's representatives come here within days to open talks on establishment of a new ad hoc committee aimed at refining Puerto Rico's unique commonwealth status within the American Union, they'll have some immediate repair work to do.

In the first place, the President delivered the proud islanders a careless snub when he failed to send Vice President Agnew here to represent him at Puerto Rico's 21st anniversary celebration July 25 of the constitution which gave them their special freedoms under commonwealth.

Originally, Attorney General Elliot Richardson was coming, but the President's constitutional difficulties over Watergate kept him home. In his stead was a mere assistant attorney general. It was an act of gross insensitivity, upon which young Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon nevertheless chose to put the best face possible.

Hernandez is taking the same graceful posture toward the coming of Kenneth Cole and Richard Fairbanks as Mr. Nixon's spokesmen in the status committee talks, though Cole's July 17 letter to the governor on the President's behalf was inexcusably vague.

The letter does indicate the President's agreement with Hernandez' request that an ad hoc committee be set up and proposes that the negotiators settle quickly upon an agenda, a membership formula, and similar necessary detail.

But, in speaking of goals, the language refers fuzzily to "an area of mutual concern" and "an area of exploration." And, on the membership matter, it uses the phrase "broad-based".

According to some Puerto Rican sources, these ambiguities reflect pressure on the President in Washington by the island's defeated statehood forces, with the intent of slowing down if not halting the movement toward a freer but still firmly binding commonwealth status.

In the eyes of the governor and his victorious Popular Democratic party, the fundamentals of the issue are simple. In a 1967 plebiscite, Puerto Ricans voted to keep and further develop the commonwealth status with the UUnited States. They rejected statehood.

Meantime, the Puerto Rican Supreme Court ruled that any ad hoc committees established to further this decreed purpose should be composed only of commonwealth sympathizers — and not include advocates of either statehood or independence. In this context, Cole's use of the expression "broad-based" is seen as unwisely misleading.

Leaning over backward, Hernandez actually is willing to put a member of former Gov. Luis Ferre's Statehood party on a new committee but only one of known sympathy for the commonwealth idea.

In Hernandez' major July 25 speech here, he made clear what his Popular Democratic government considers fit subject matter for a new committee's agenda: Special application of U.S. environmental regulations which take note of Puerto Rico's water-bound isolation; attention to air and water freight rates which place undue burdens today on the island's huge commerce with the mainland; similar special consideration on application of federal tax laws, minimum wage regulations, radio communications.

Underlying all is a desire here for clearly expressed recognition that Puerto Rico, separated by distance, language and culture, should have as much autonomy as is consistent with "union," and should thus consistently be given special, exceptional treatment.

Precedents jolt Nixon 'privilege'

By Don Oakley

If the concept of separation of powers is to be a workable one, it has to be on the basis of equality among the three branches of the federal government.

If Congress may not interfere with the legitimate functioning of the executive, neither can a president interfere with that of the legislative branch. Nor can either one tread upon the constitutional prerogatives of the judiciary, and vice-versa.

On this basis, there may be at least two recent precedents that cast serious doubt on the legality of President Nixon's refusal to turn over to the Watergate committee tapes of presidential conversations that the committee believes could assist its investigation.

On the same day in June, 1972, the Supreme Court ruled in two cases AGAINST congressional separation-of-powers claims that we are strikingly similar to the argument now being put forward on behalf of the presidency by Mr. Nixon, says Nathan Lewin, a Washington attorney and former deputy assistant attorney general.

The first, he recounts in the New Republic, concerned Sen. Mike Gravel of Alaska. In this case, the Justice Department was investigating the circumstances of Gravel's midnight reading of the Pentagon Papers and their subsequent publication by the Beacon Press, a Massachusetts publisher.

The question put to the court was whether the senator's assistant could be subpoened by a federal grand jury and compelled to testify about publication of the papers. Justice Byron White, speaking for himself and the four Nixon court appointees, went beyond the issue presented by the government and ruled that even the senator himself could be called by a grand jury and asked about his sources of information if they were "irrelevant to investigating possible third-party crime" and where the questions "do not require testimony about or impunge a legislative act."

The other ruling concerned former Senator Daniel Brewster of Maryland and was written by Chief Justice Warren Berger. It involved the criminal prosecution of Brewster for having received a bribe to influence his action on postal rate legislation.

Space Walk To Include Repair Work

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Two Skylab 2 astronauts planned a 3½-hour space walk today to load telescope film and to install an awning over their orbiting laboratory.

Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma were to leave the space station through an airlock just before noon EDT while orbiting 271 miles above the earth.

Skylab 2's commander, Alan L. Bean, was to monitor the walk from inside the station, relaying instructions from mission control.

Ground experts continued to study problems that caused leaks in two jet engines on the Apollo taxi ship, which is docked with the space station. They still are hopeful the astronauts will be able to return to earth in the craft Sept. 25 after a record 59-day flight.

In case they can't, around-the-clock work went on at Cape Kennedy, Fla., to prepared the Skylab 3 rocket and Apollo as possible rescue vehicles that could be launched Sept. 10 or later.

Although mission control doesn't understand fully the jet thruster problem, experts feel confident the Apollo could bring the astronauts home safely if necessary before the rescue ship is ready.

They emphasize the rescue craft is being prepared as a precaution and they hope to launch it as planned to ferry the Skylab 3 crew to the station.

On Sunday night, mission control told the astronauts of a potential long-term problem. Analysis disclosed leaks in two systems that cool certain electronic systems.

The control center said experts had been studying the leaks and determined that the primary system still had about 16 days' supply of coolant. A backup system had enough for 60 days—enough to complete the mission.

The spacewalkers were to link rods into two 55-foot poles, join the poles in a V and attach them to a strut on the telescope assembly. The 22-by 24-foot aluminum-coated shade is to be fitted over the poles.

The shade will supplement a large parasol installed in May by the Skylab 1 crew to cool the laboratory by reflecting away the sun's rays.

The space walk originally was scheduled last Tuesday but was postponed four times while the astronauts recovered from motion sickness and mission control troubleshot the Apollo problem, which at one time had officials considering a quick return to earth.

A female spider made her debut aboard Skylab on Sunday. The common cross spider, named Arabella, will be studied to determine how well she can spin a web in space weightlessness. Garriott moved her from a small vial into a transparent cage.

"I tossed her out of the vial with all eight legs flailing," he reported, adding that the spider bounced a few times before she settled in one corner of her cage.

Arabella will be given a week to spin a web. If she fails, a backup spider named Anita will be given a chance.

Wiretap Battle Resumes

By JOHN MUELLER
Associated Press Writer

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A Justice Department attorney says he will present evidence today of possible wiretaps on the telephones of the Gainesville Eight trial judge and U. S. Attorney's office.

Anticipation of what Robert Schneider will tell U.S. District Judge Winston Arnow at an afternoon hearing has diverted attention from the trial of the eight antiwar activists accused of plotting violence during the 1972 Republican National Convention which resumes this morning.

The wiretap controversy arose last Tuesday when two FBI agents were discovered in a telephone distribution room by defense assistants who were holding a meeting in the next room. The agents said they were checking FBI telephone lines for possible taps.

"The government intends to show there was possible evidence of a wiretap going to the U.S. Attorney's office," Schneider said Saturday before Arnow recessed the bugging probe until today.

VVAW's Future May Hinge On Outcome Of '8' Trial

By Terry Ryan
Associated Press Writer

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — They've struck the mess tent, knocked down the command post, and left town. But members and leaders of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War say they will not follow the rest of the peace movement into oblivion.

The language is laden with the jargon of militant political activitism when VVAW people talk about the future. Words like racism, imperialism, and repression sprinkle the conversation.

"It's really very simple," said Ron Kovic. "We want to make a new America, a true democracy run for the people. It isn't that way now. Nobody knows it better than us."

Kovic, a former Marine Corps sergeant, was sitting in a wheelchair he has needed since two machine gun bullets found him in Vietnam.

About 180 VVAW members gathered here last week for a series of very peaceful, low-keyed demonstrations. Eight members of the antiwar group are on trial on charges of plotting violence during last year's Republican National Convention with everything from automatic rifles to slingshots.

The future of the VVAW may depend on the outcome of that trial.

"It isn't just eight members, the government has put VVAW on trial," explained Ray Arnold, 24, a former airborne trooper from Phoenix, Ariz. "If the government convicts them, it will convict the organization in the eyes of the public. We would become an outlaw organization. It would make it very, very difficult to continue."

The trial goes into its second week today, but most of the veterans left Sunday after the end of their planned protests. They had camped for a week on city property near the outskirts of town.

VVAW was started in 1967 by six New York City veterans but it was not until 1971 that its existence was brought home to most Americans.

One day in April, 700 members in old fatigues and jungle boots filed silently past the Capitol in Washington, D.C., and cast on its steps the medals and ribbons they had won in Vietnam.

The organization went on to become one of the mainstays of the antiwar movement in its later days. It had structure and discipline, articulate leaders, and a built-in credibility. Originally committed to lawful protests through the system — its national coordinator had addressed the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at the time of the Washington demonstration — VVAW became increasingly militant.

Late in 1971, VVAW members "occupied" the Statue of Liberty, the Betsy Ross House, and the Lincoln Memorial in Washington and the South Vietnamese Consulate in San Francisco.

Air Force Recruiter May Close Up Shop

By John Mueller
Associated Press Writer

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — "It's killing us; we might as well close up shop and go home," moaned an Air Force recruiter whose office is a few steps from the courtroom where the Gainesville Eight are on trial.

M Sgt. Billy P. Outen, like most of the recruiters with offices on the third floor of the federal courthouse here, says the trial of eight Vietnam Veterans Against the War is hampering his business.

"We haven't had but one walk-in all week," said Outen, one of four Air Force recruiters on the third floor. "They take one look at those long-haired Vietnam veterans outside and turn around and leave."

Supporters of the Gainesville Eight were standing outside the federal building last week while spectators were banned from the courtroom during the jury selection process. The VVAW-Winter Soldier Organization staged a week-long demonstration in support of the eight last week.

The eight antiwar activists are charged with plotting violence on Miami Beach during last summer's Republican National Convention.

Security in the building has been especially tight, with visitors to federal offices required to pass through a metal detector and inspection on the first floor and for some, again on the third floor.

Inflation Virus Traced To Peak Boom Of 1960's

By BARBARA HERRERA
Copley News Service

Inflation is a plague on everybody's house.

Even if you don't understand its anatomy, the virus has attacked your wallet and is gnawing hungrily at your dollars.

Economic scientists trace the current strain to the mid-1960s, when it was generated by peak military outlays during the Vietnam war and big government spending on the domestic scene.

Since then it has grown and mutated to its present level, the highest rate of inflation in more than 20 years, and it is infesting everything from the stock market to your personal bank account.

And while the President's advisers huddle in Washington in a desperate effort to come up with Phase 4 controls that will salvage the economy, workers huddle around the water cooler expressing their own confusion and concern over financial woes.

Food prices, one major result of inflation, are the prime topic of concern these days, getting more conversational attention than even sex or taxes.

Why are prices so high, people want to know. Is somebody "up there" profiting at the consumer's expense? Why don't farmers produce more crops so prices will come down?

On the other hand, some people wonder, what's so bad about inflation so long as wages keep pace with prices?

Some questions were put recently to "the experts" in economics and the food and building industries.

Their answers, among other things, reveal that:

—Though you seem to be making more now and enjoying it less, the average personal income in the United States has actually gone up nearly twice as fast as food prices and four times faster than corporate profits since the mid-'60s. So people have more to spend, and they're spending it.

—Increased buying power produces increased demand; thus prices skyrocket. In the food industry, particularly, supply is down, aggravating the price spiral.

—Nobody in retail food sales thinks he's making enough money. This includes the grocer, the "middleman," and the farmer, too.

—One of the biggest reasons inflation causes consumer headaches is because wages go up in periodic jumps while prices rise weekly and daily.

To get these answers, three big questions were put to the experts. The first question asked:

Why is inflation bad for the consumer?

"If prices and wages increased at the same rate, you could learn to live with inflation," answered economist Robert Oster. "The problem is that an even balance between wages and prices almost never exists during inflation," he added.

Oster is vice president of the Bank of America in Los Angeles.

Thus, no matter where you stand on the economic scale—wealthy, middle-income, or poor—inflation gets to your pocketbook in insidious ways.

The middle-income wage earner hurts because he's absorbing the shock of prices that climb weekly or monthly with a salary that goes up only every 6 or 12 months.

'Hammer' Suspect Violent, Drinker

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Former neighbors of a Fort Myers man charged in the hammer deaths of an Illinois father and four children described him as a heavy drinker with a violent temper.

Paul Frederick Lenea, who police say was arrested three times in Fort Myers during the two years he lived in the area was arrested in Romeoville, Ill. Saturday, and charged with murder in the deaths of Robert Kloeckner, 38, his son Anthony, 15, daughter, Crystal, 12, and a friend of the Kloeckner children, Tracy Richards, 12.

Kloeckner's wife, Patsy, 37, ran screaming from their Romeoville house for help after being beaten and was reported in satisfactory condition.

"Lenea never held a job very long because he drank a lot. He kept promising me he'd come up with the rent but he never did and he was always borrowing money and never paid it back," Bud Casson, manager of the Cape Coral Trailer Park where Lenea once lived, said Sunday.

Casson said he evicted Lenea in November and his 50-foot trailer was repossessed.

"The police were always coming in here to check on him but I don't think they ever carried him off," he said.

Records at the Lee County Sheriff's office show Lenea had been arrested in 1971 for driving while under the influence of alcohol, careless driving, and distributing worthless checks.

Former trailer park manager, Frank Bitosky, said he knew Lenea "drank a lot. ...and was always behind in his rent."

Mrs. Mable Gilson, 74, a lousin of Lenea's wife Carol, said Lenea, his wife and three children left town in the middle of the night one day last November for Bay City, Mich., Mrs. Lenea's hometown.

"He came here wanting to borrow $400 from me once and when I told him I didn't have that kind of money on me, he started using filthy language," said Mrs. Gilson, who lives in the trailer park.

Poachers Quite Busy

Divers Raid Lobster Traps

MARATHON, Fla. (AP) — Faced with spiraling food costs, fishermen and divers are raiding commercial lobster traps in record numbers, raising fears of violence from retaliating lobstermen.

"There have been murders in the past over trap robbing," said Capt Ed Little of the Florida Marine Patrol. "I just talked to some fishermen and I'm sure if they catch somebody, there's going to be some violence."

Little said the patrol has received about 100 complaints of trap poaching since the Florida lobster season opened Wednesday but there have been no arrests. "There's a scarcity of meat and people are going to the sea for food," Little said. "There's an increase in people going after crawfish because of the increasing price of groceries. People have more leisure time — more time to dive or fish and apparently more time to rob traps."

Little said the patrol has two airplanes, 11 boats and 33, "very tired, very frustrated men, patroling the area."

He estimated there are about 3.5 million spiney Florida lobster, known commonly as crawfish, and stone crab traps set each year off the Keys.

"Its like 3.5 million unguarded little cash registers sitting out there and enforcement is really a problem," he said.

But with 15,000 divers now in the Keys and potential of 40,000 flooding the South Florida area, Marine patrol spokesmen report catching poachers is almost impossible.

Poachers could face grand larceny charges if caught with more than 50 pounds of lobster and crabs.

"There has been a lot of damage to traps," Little said. "They're not just satisfied with taking crawfish. A lot of fishermen are missing complete traps — buoys, ropes and all."

George Cooper of Angelo's Seafood Inc. in Marathon estimated his company has lost an average $2,500 worth of crawfish, or 30 per cent of the total catch, each day since the season began.

But John Browning of Marathon Seafood Inc. said fishermen may be blaming trap robbers for the season's poor catches. He said the season's crawfish catches have been small and "that's the way this talk gets started."

Harmon Shields, state director of marine resources, said that the crawfish catch seems smaller because it is divided among more and more trappers. But he added that the total production appears to remain constant.

"We're spreading the fishing too thin...if it goes on, a man can't make a living at crawfishing," he said.

Shields said the industry needs to protect itself through better management by limiting the number of commercial fishing permits and the number of traps or increasing the closed season.

Full Speed Search Continues For Tot

OCALA, Fla. (AP) — The chances are slim of finding 2-year-old Christy Davis alive after nine days alone in a mosquito infested swamp but searchers say "we don't want to quit until we know."

"We've had no success, but we're continuing the search at full speed," Marion County Sheriff's Sgt. Martin Stephens said Sunday. "We don't know where all the searchers are coming from, but we want to get as many back as we can to keep going.

"We think the chances are slim that she's alive but we can't just quit. This is our problem—does a 2-year-old sit down or wander the whole time and if she wasn't too scared and drank water could she still be live?"

he added. "We just don't know."

A police spokesman said the all-out search would continue at least through Wednesday for Christy, who disappeared July 28 after going on a two-block shopping trip with her great-great-grandmother, Rebecca Henderson, and 3-year-old sister, Pam.

Mrs. Henderson was found dazed and incoherent about 13 miles from the grocery store and Pam was found nearby and led police to a brushy area where she said she last saw her sister, officers said.

More than 2,000 military personnel and civilians using helicopters, tracker dogs, and a horse-mounted posse have taken part in the search through swamplands. Area residents and businesses have sent food, drinks and equipment to the searchers.

Stephens said the only clue found so far — a single, small footprint — didn't "develop into anything at all."

"We searched every nearby bush, but it didn't do us any good," he said. "Remember we're searching a mighty large area."

Sheriff Don Moreland was reluctant to consider the possibility that the toddler may never be located despite search efforts.

"I don't like to think about it," he said. "But there is a possibility we may never find her."

Prison Racial Fights Take Life Of Inmate

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Officials report Florida State Prison was quiet again today after racial fighting Sunday night left one inmate dead and 10 others injured.

The fighting, which broke out simultaneously in three wings, was not brought under control until the prison's riot squad moved in, officials said.

About 300 inmates in the three cell blocks, who were moved out into the corridors when the fighting started, were put back in their cells when order was restored an hour and a half later.

"This has racial overtones," said Rex Newman, a spokesman for the Florida Division of Corrections. "It appears to have been in retaliation for two blacks being seriously injured Friday and Saturday."

Officials said five of the 10 persons injured Sunday were hospitalized in serious condition. Four had multiple stab wounds and the fifth was seriously burned with lighter fluid.

Four were admitted to the University of Florida Medical Center at Gainesville and the fifth was taken to the Union Correctional Institution hospital.

Officials identified the dead man as James E. Brown, 26. Brown, who was white, was serving an 11 year sentence for escape and attempted escape from jails in Palm Beach and Seminole counties.

Newman said one black was injured Friday night when a white threw lighter fluid on him and another black was injured Saturday when a white stabbed him. Both were reported in serious condition also.

Property damage was minor in the fighting, Newman said.

He said prison officials and the state attorney's office would conduct an investigation into the weekend disturbances.

The prison facility at Starke houses a total of 2,000 inmates.

No One Injured In Crash

TAMARAC, Fla. (AP) — No one was injured when an old Lockheed Super Constellation crash landed in a vacant field here and hit soft dirt, police say.

Pilot Howard Turner said he had "no altitude, no air speed, lost two engines, and had to land" after experiencing mechanical and fuel line trouble.

Seven persons were aboard the four-engine plane, owned by Ruscoe Aviation of Fort Lauderdale and operated by the Happy Hour Travel Club, when it made a forced landing Sunday on University Drive.

About 58 others disembarked from the old propeller-driven plane when it landed at a St. Petersburg area airport, Turner said.

The seven included Jack Jarrow, an officer of Ruscoe Aviation, and his 16-year-old son James, and five crew members, including co-pilot Leon Sutton and chief stewardess Lynn Ruscoe, whose father, Jim Ruscoe, owns the aviation firm and is president of the flying club.

A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said details of the plane's destination and crash were sketchy but the FAA was investigating.

Mercy Killing Cases Increasing Euthanasia Society Membership

NEW YORK (AP) — The Euthanasia Society of America's membership has jumped from hundreds to tens of thousands in the last four years, and its director says interest continues to swell.

"The phones have been a steady tattoo," said Mrs. Elizabeth T. Halsey, 70, head of the organization that was established in 1938.

The most recent surge of interest in the legal and moral questions of euthanasia, or the act of painlessly killing someone for reasons assumed to be merciful, was sparked by the two widely publicized cases in New York and New Jersey this summer.

Dr. Vincent A. Montemarano of East Meadow, N.Y., has been accused of injecting a fatal dose of potassium chloride into a comatose patient. Lester Zygmaniak of Englishtown, N.J., has been charged with fatally shooting his brother, who had been paralyzed by a motorcycle accident.

Mrs. Halsey has received about $100,000 in donations so far this year; as much as was received during all of 1972. Donations totaled about $33,000 in 1970. Membership has jumped from 600 in 1969 to 50,000 this year, she said.

Mrs. Halsey attributes the increase to more publicity and because "now there are so many ways of keeping people alive."

"People are becoming very afraid of this," she said. "A person doesn't die anymore in the bosom of his family. They attach tubes to him and stick him into intensive care, and it's far from dignified."

Mrs. Halsey, a widow who was directed the organization since 1969.

Longshoremen Visit China

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Harry Bridges and a delegation from his International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union will visit the People's Republic of China next month.

Bridges, 72, writing in his weekly union newspaper column Friday, said the group would leave Sept. 24 for Honolulu and go from there to Hong Kong and Canton, the China Gateway.

Bridges—who advocated U.S. trade and communications with China long before President Nixon's celebrated trip there last year—said the IWLU received an invitation to visit Peking last year from Chinese officials.

Fast Asteroid Reported

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A scientist has reported an asteroid which she says travels faster than anything else in the sky.

Eleanor Helin, a scientist at the California Institute of Technology here, said Sunday that the asteroid, with a diameter of five miles, travels 60,000 miles an hour in relation to the earth.

Mrs. Helin said she discovered the unnamed asteroid last month while taking photographs at the Palomar Observatory. The object passed within seven million miles of the earth when discovered, she said.

The asteroid is in the constellation Scorpius.

Egypt-Libya Resume Talks

CAIRO (AP) — Egyptian and Libyan leaders have begun a new round of talks in Tripoli seeking to iron out differences over the projected unification of the two countries, the Middle East News Agency said today.

The report said the two delegations, led by Deputy Premier Abdel Kader Hatem of Egypt and Premier Abdel Salam Jalloud of Libya, met for nine hours on Sunday and also met with President Moammar Khadafy.

A date for union has not been agreed upon. Libya wants a complete merger with Egypt by Sept. 1, but Egypt prefers a gradual approach stretching over a long period of time.

Plains Indians Sun Dance

MISSION, S.D. (AP) — The Sioux Sun Dance attracted an estimated 2,000 Indians to witness the start of the four-day main sacrificial religious ceremony of the Plains Indians.

Most of the worshippers on hand Sunday apparently were from the Rosebud Indian Reservation in south central South Dakota, where the Sun Dance is being held. But some came from as far away as New York, California and Oklahoma.

The Sun Dance goes back at least 500 years in Indian history.

A spokesman said the ancient custom of piercing the dancers' skin will be a part of the thanksgiving ceremony — probably on Wednesday.

The rite involves insertion of leather thongs under the skin of the dancers' chests and backs. The skin is ripped away in strips as the dancers pull away from a pole to which the thongs are tied.

The practice is prohibited by the federal government.

Or Due Major Overhaul

Has 'Dream' Ended?

By BOB CORBETT
Copley News Service

The "Great American Dream" — the idea that a young man or woman can enter a profession or industry and rise meteorically to the top — may be due for a major overhaul.

This idea was expressed recently by Dr. Roger Revelle, director of the Harvard University Center for Population Studies and former head of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, La Jolla, Calif.

A wise man, Revelle insists that the dream isn't dead, only that "it has to change its form."

This change, he argued, is almost mandated by the nation's return toward a stable population pattern. He noted that since World War II the U.S. population has been in a state of flux.

The baby booms of the '40s and '50s, he said, overloaded the country with young people. There were less in the middle-age brackets and even less in what is called the old-age category.

Every "red-blooded American boy" almost knew that he would get promoted, Revelle said.

But now, he cautioned, with the U.S. birthrate dropping almost to the zero population growth level, the relative numbers in these age groups are evening out.

The result, Revelle said, is that there will be "just as many bosses ahead" of these young people as there are young people. "Promotions will be less likely," he said.

Blocked from "getting ahead" on the job, Revelle indicated that the young people may change their life styles, to begin seeking fulfillment in leisure, civic and perhaps academic pursuits outside the job.

If what Revelle has to say is true, the much-ballyhooed "youth cult" may be on the way out.

In fact, Revelle argued, an old-age cult may become the "in" thing.

Right now, Revelle said, about 28 per cent of the U.S. population is over 65 years of age. But with the decrease in the birthrate and increase in longevity brought about by modern medicine that figure should grow to almost 40 per cent over the next 30 years.

"This means we're going to have to learn to treat these people better," he said, "if only because they will have more political clout."

This accent on age, Revelle said, is only part of the changes that will occur in America because of shifting population ratios.

For example, he said, that women, freed from large families, will be looking more and more outside the home for activities to fulfill themselves.

Pentagon PR Spending Double Imposed Limit

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon overshot its fiscal 1972 public-relations budget by more than 100 per cent, the General Accounting Office says.

In a report to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Sunday, GAO said the Defense Department went beyond its $22-million budget and the $28-million limit imposed by Congress by using a narrow definition of "public affairs."

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., Foreign Relations chairman, said the GAO findings indicate "how difficult it is to bring about effective congressional control over any entrenched Department of Defense practice, whether it is persuading the public to support more military spending or tolerating cost overruns on weapons systems."

Although the Pentagon listed public-affairs spending at $22 million, a selective audit showed about $24 million in expenditures for other promotional activities, GAO reported. The agency said it had not concluded that all those projects were for "public affairs" but said they are promotional and should be reported as public-affairs expenditures.

As examples, GAO noted that the Defense Department spent $5.3 million to finance four aerial-stunt teams, such as the Navy's Blue Angels, and $10.6 million for five Washington-based ceremonial bands.

The Pentagon considers neither of those as public-affairs activities.

Rollins' Applicant Rise Sharp

WINTER PARK — Mr. William M. Hartog, Director of Admissions at Rollins College, has announced that Rollins has received some 1900 applications for the 1973-74 academic year. The 1900 applications show an increase of 550 over last year's 1350 applicants.

"Internal changes in the institution have accounted for the increase in applications", commented Hartog. "Rollins has constantly increased the quality of its faculty and academic programs, its facilities, and its administrative leadership."

This year's entering freshman class will number 404 with an additional 45 to 50 upperclassmen transfer students. The breakdown of the entering students show approximately 40 percent to be from the Northeast, 30 percent dispersed throughout the U.S. and abroad, and 30 percent from the State of Florida. Some of the other major states represented include Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New York, Connecticut, New Jersey and Massachusetts.

"We have made an all-out attempt to direct our admission efforts towards residents of Florida, specifically from the Central Florida area," said Hartog "because studies over the last five years have shown that our finer students come from these areas." Hartog also mentioned that a higher percentage of students in Florida require some type of financial aid and that Rollins is attempting to direct the majority of its funds toward these students.

According to the College admissions director, Rollins will work towards increasing its Florida enrollment from a present 30 percent to 40 percent within the next few years. The Florida Student Assistance Program, a new financial aid opportunity sponsored by the State, will help provide financial assistance to Florida residents attending Florida schools. "This," said Hartog, "will also help in our Florida drive for students."

Supermarkets, Consumers Await New Beef Shipment

P. Shultz on ABC television's "Issues and Answers" Sunday said that the freeze on retail beef prices would be kept until Sept. 12, the date set by President Nixon last month when he lifted price controls from all other foods.

Saying that the cattle being held off the market now would have to be sold sometime, the secretary added: "The more they hold back now, the more will come onto the market on Sept. 12, and that will tend to hold prices down in the future."

However, New York City's consumer affairs commissioner, Betty Furness, said on Sunday that prices would soar once controls were removed.

Speaking on a local television program, she advised shoppers to "forget about buying beef until this hysteria has passed."

Beef was the critical item for most people over the weekend.

"One guy came in here and filled three shopping bags with meat for his restaurant," said the meat manager of Ralph's Market in Los Angeles. "It's not fair to the customers." The store later imposed a limit of two steaks and two pounds of ground beef per shopper—a practice adopted by supermarkets in many cities.

Dr. Herrell F. DeGraff, president of the American Meat Institute, said beef would get even scarcer in the days ahead.

DeGraff's comments were in an interview in the current issue of U.S. News & World Report.

He said the beef freeze also would lead to shortages of other meats. "It is simple arithmetic," he said. "Beef normally supplies 55 per cent of the meat that Americans eat; pork and poultry 45 per cent. If the majority of demand is concentrated on that 45 per cent, there will be a real scramble in supermarkets, and the cost of pork, bacon, ham and broiler chickens is going to soar right out of sight."

A Richway supermarket in an Atlanta, Ga., suburb ran out of beef over the weekend. "Sorry, no more beef," read a sign over the meat counter.

Supermarkets weren't the only ones with problems. Restaurants were complaining too.

Restaurant officials in the Santa Monica, Calif., area said guards were being put on delivery trucks by some meat suppliers because of the possibility of theft. "These trucks are worth a fortune now," said George Bennett, head of the Santa Monica Bay area restaurant association.

Sewer Plant Capacity Increase Is Expected

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

CASSELBERRY—The city council at its 7:30 meeting tonight is expected to authorize engineering to double the capacity of the sewer plant it purchased little more than two months ago.

City Engineer R.C. Conklin will be told to start engineering to expand the plant capacity from its present 1.4 million gallons per day to three million or four million gallons per day, whichever is feasible.

At the same time, the council will authorize negotiations for the purchase of additional property to expand polishing ponds in line with the plant expansion.

Last September when the city contracted for purchase of the utility system, part of the agreement was that the 700,000 gallon per day sewer plant be increased to the 1.4 million gallon level which is now almost completed.

Also on the agenda for tonight's meeting is bid opening on auxiliary power generators for the utility system and formulation of a utility hookup agreement policy.

The recreation department has urged that bids be asked to light the ball field at Secret Lake Park.

In a work session to follow the official meeting, the council will consider the planning board's recommendations on a preliminary plat for a mobile home park at the Colonnades, a tri-county league of cities report and a letter from the Chamber of Commerce on the 911 emergency system.

Two Wives Nabbed In Narc Raid

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

Two south Seminole housewives were among more than 50 suspects arrested Sunday in a sweeping Central Florida move against a narcotics ring that detectives said did more than $600,000 a month in drug sales over the last two years.

Seminole Sheriff's Sgt. Ray Parker arrested Judith Ann Edelman, 29, 520 Whippoorwill Lane, Oviedo, and Gloria Taub Silverstein, 30, 112 Satsuma Drive, Altamonte Springs, on Orange County warrants charging conspiracy to commit a felony. Bond for both women was set at $1,000.

Parker said the two were reportedly the only Seminole residents named in over 100 warrants issued after a two-year undercover investigation in Polk, Orange, Dade, Hillsborough, Pinellas, Duval and Alachua counties by federal, state and local law enforcement agencies.

Polk County Sheriff's Capt. Melton Godwin headed the teams that made sweeping arrests Saturday and Sunday throughout central Florida. Approximately 100 pounds of marijuana, 15,000 pills and an undetermined amount of other drugs, including cocaine, were seized.

Parker said no drugs were seized when the local women were arrested at their homes.

Polk County Sheriff Monroe Brannen said the widespread drug ring also was involved in gun running, smuggling and international sale of stolen property but federal agencies had instructed him not to comment on these aspects of the investigation.

Among those arrested in midnight raids on homes and night spots at Lakeland, Lake Wales, Winter Haven and Orlando were Jack Harper, 26, a former University of Florida football star and now a Lakeland realtor; William Wilson Reed, 25.

In unrelated cases four other persons were arrested in Seminole on drug charges. Casselberry police charged Steven William Mistler, 17, Suffolk, N.Y., with illegal possession of dangerous drugs.

Longwood police arrested John Richard Wehrer 19, Orlando, for possession of hashish, marijuana and drug paraphernalia after he was stopped for a traffic violation Sunday night on Longdale Avenue.

'Misdirected' U.S. Bombers Kill 100 Civilians Without Warning

By DENNIS NEELD
Associated Press Writer

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — A misdirected U.S. B52 bombing strike hit the Cambodian navy's Mekong River base at Neak Luong today, killing about 100 persons and wounding many others, military sources said.

Another off-base U.S. air strike killed at least a dozen civilians Sunday in a village southeast of Phnom Penh, according to field reports. The reports said the bombing, at Prek Eng six miles southeast of Phnom Penh, was in close support of government forces in the area of Highway 1.

The navy and military base, 32 miles southeast of the capital of Phnom Penh, was hit with about 20 bombs, the sources said.

First reports said there were about 100 persons killed and at least another 100 wounded at the base.

More than 60 wounded soldiers and civilians were taken to Phnom Penh's Preah Ket Mealea Hospital. Some of the wounded were children.

"There was no warning," said army Pvt. Preap Tuot, who said he lost his wife and three children. "We were all sleeping."

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy refused to confirm or deny the misdirected strikes.

At the navy base hit by U.S. bombs, government forces hold a four-square-mile perimeter around the base and the town of Neak Loung. The government forces also hold a six-mile stretch of road toward the south.

The base, virtually surrounded by Communist-led forces, has about 3,000 soldiers and is the home port for navy gunboats that escort ship convoys carrying supplies from South Vietnam to Phnom Penh.

The area around the bases has been bombed for months by B52s and U.S. fighter-bombers. Reports from the countryside say the area has been devastated.

In Bangkok, Thailand, a government official said the deadline of Aug. 15 set by the U.S. Congress for ending the bombing in Cambodia was "irresponsible." The leader, Deputy Premier Praphas Charusathien, said the deadline was a clear indication of the United States abandoning its Asian allies.

In Saigon, the Viet Cong charged Monday that South Vietnamese bombers attacked a village 30 miles north of Saigon last Saturday, killing or injuring 50 persons and destroying homes.

A spokesman for the Saigon command declined to comment on the alleged bombing of the village, identified by the Viet Cong as Thanh An on the Saigon River.

The Cambodian army claimed meanwhile it had cleared insurgent forces from the village of Veal Sbau, three miles from Phnom Penh.

The army also said it had reopened the Phnom Penh-Saigon highway for 13 miles southeast of the capital.

Associated Press photographer Neal Ulevich made the trip down the highway — Route 1 — today for 12 miles, to the district town of Koki.

The Saigon command claimed there were more than 200 Communist cease-fire violations in the 24 hours ending at dawn today.

Spy Missions Killed 102 Since 1965

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The Pentagon has disclosed that 102 Americans were killed on spy missions in Laos and Cambodia since 1965. But it has not told whether any Americans died on similar missions inside North Vietnam.

Prior to 1968, secret patrols were frequently sent into North Vietnam as well as into Laos and Cambodia to gather intelligence. The patrols were made up of Indochinese directed by American team chiefs. Such operations were given the general code name "Daniel Boone," and they were directed by the mysterious SOG, the Studies and Observations Group.

Newsmen in Vietnam reported some of these missions at the time. But generally the U.S. public and Congress chose to accept the official response to the reports: denial, no comment or the phony cover story that American troops were in "hot pursuit" of enemy forces or U.S. aircraft had accidentally strayed over the border.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong also reported on the spy missions; the standard response from the U.S. Command in Saigon was a denial or the statement that it never commented on Hanoi's propaganda.

The patrols into North Vietnam were eventually discontinued because too many teams were lost. The Pentagon has not said whether the casualties included any Americans, and there is considerable suspicion that some of those the Pentagon says were killed in Laos actually died while directing teams in North Vietnam.

The intelligence gathering teams were originally organized by the Central Intelligence Agency and the Green Berets of the 5th Special Forces Group. They later were put under the control of SOG, which was part of the U.S. Command in Saigon.

Some Americans who went on such missions in Laos said the teams not only gathered information but often carried out acts of sabotage, blowing up North Vietnamese supply trucks and fuel lines and kidnaping North Vietnamese troops for interrogation.

The Pentagon also has never reported the number of aircraft lost before 1970 during secret operations in Laos and Cambodia. Such losses at the time were listed as losses in South Vietnam.

County Tax Cut Possible

By CHRIS NELSON
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County Commissioners are aiming for a "philosophical" tax cut for the next fiscal year, but admit the cut, if any, will be minor.

"Come hell or high water, as far as I'm concerned, we will make a tax cut," vowed Chairman Sid Vihlen this morning, admitting his suggested $191,000 cut proposal will be more philosophical than anything else.

Vihlen made his comments during informal discussions with other commissioners.

Vihlen and Ashby Jones, deputy circuit court clerk, met Sunday for a complete run through of departmental budgets, and estimated that without any cuts being made last year's 8.28 millage would fund the requests as currently budgeted. One mill will bring in $679,208 in ad valorem taxes.

However, Vihlen said today, by cutting $191,000 from the three large contingency budgets, a 7.98 millage can be achieved.

Adding support to Vihlen's position, this morning, were Commissioners Mike Hattaway and Dick Williams, who noted that many of last year's anticipated receipts such as building permits and landfill fees were "vastly underestimated."

The commissioners also noted that state revenue sharing funds have nearly doubled to $1 million this year.

Barnett Bank's Foster Elected U.F. President

GEORGE FOSTER

George W. Foster, president of Barnett Bank of Seminole County, was elected by the directors of United Fund of Seminole County to serve as president for the 1973-74 year.

Other officers elected include Jack C. Horner of Martin Marietta Corp., first vice-president; Robert M. Morris of Hutchison, Leffler and Morris, second vice-president; Mrs. Walter Gielow of the Sanford Herald, secretary; and J. R. Dycus of Greene & Dycus CPA, treasurer.

In addition to these officers, serving on the budget committee charged with setting a goal for the 1973 campaign, are Leonard F. Units, campaign chairman; George W. Touby and James T. Cooper.

The Full Campaign will be "kicked off" on Sept. 25 and a gala victory dinner is scheduled for Oct. 25.

On Airport Attack

Arab Terrorists Silent

By PHILIP DOPOULOS
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Two Arab men who opened up with grenades and pistols in the crowded Athens airport Sunday today refused to answer police questions, the police reported.

The attack killed two Americans and an Austrian and wounded 55 persons.

The Americans were identified as Mrs. Jeannie Salandi, 23, of Highland Park, N.J., and Elbert Kersen, 53, a Union, N. J., plumbing contractor. Kersen's wife Kate, 49, was injured.

The Austrian was a 50-year-old attorney named Ullhofen.

In addition to the two men, two women were being questioned.

Police said they disarmed a time bomb, which had not been set to go off, that was found inside a letter box in the transit lounge four hours after the attack. Witnesses told police they saw a man drop a large object in the box before the shooting began in the lounge.

The two Arabs surrendered Sunday after crouching with 35 hostages behind the lounge's marble bar for two hours while they tried to get a plane to take them to the Middle East.

It was not known what promises, if any, were made to get them to surrender.

Witnesses said passengers were preparing to board Trans World Airlines flights to Tel Aviv and New York when one of the Arabs, about to check his baggage, threw a hand grenade to the ground. Then both men began firing pistols.

Bank Loan Rate Hike Slows Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices were mixed today as investors watched more banks raise their prime rates to 9 per cent and read reports of a strengthening dollar in Europe.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down more than a point in early trading, but a few more issues had advanced than declined on the New York Stock Exchange.

Active issues on the Big Board included Texas Industries, off ⅝ to 17; Levitz Furniture, unchanged at 7⅞; and Texas Gulf, up ¼ to 26¼. Curtis Wright was ahead ⅝ to 27½, while Merck & Co. fell 1 to 89¼.

After a July rise which had brokers saying that the summer rally had finally arrived, the market slipped back last week with the Dow Jones blue chip average dropping every day for a week-long loss of 27.84. Brokers attributed the showing to consolidation of the previous rally and increased concern over higher interest rates and continued inflation.

On Friday several banks lifted their primes to 9 per cent, and this morning New York's Chase Manhattan and others followed suit.

Circuit Court To Hear Cambodia Appeal

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. bombing in Cambodia, which survived an abbreviated Supreme Court test over the weekend, will be in for further judicial review by a federal appeals court this week.

On Saturday, Justice Thurgood Marshall overturned a bombing ban issued hours earlier by fellow Justice William O. Douglas. Marshall said he had consulted with and won the agreement of the seven other Supreme Court members in granting the Nixon administration's request to overturn Douglas' action.

During the brief period of time that Douglas' ruling was in effect, the bombing continued uninterrupted. The Pentagon declared that "pending appropriate legal action on this matter, we will abide by the congressional mandate to end the bombing on Aug. 15," the date selected by Congress for cutting off funds for the air war over Cambodia.

Any ban before that date apparently would have to come from the U.S. 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals in New York. That panel had stayed, pending appeal by the government, a lower-court ruling declaring U.S. participation in the Cambodia war unconstitutional and ordering a halt to the bombing.

The Circuit Court is scheduled to hear the government's appeal on Wednesday.

The legal challenge to the bombing was launched by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., and four Air Force officers, who won a decision from U.S. District Court Judge Orrin G. Judd of New York ordering the bombing halted at 6 p.m. July 27. The 2nd Circuit Court stayed Judd's order pending the outcome of Wednesday's hearing.

With the Supreme Court in recess until Oct. 1, lawyers for Rep. Holtzman asked Justice Marshall to overturn the stay, but last Wednesday he refused, saying he lacked the legal authority as a lone justice to take action that would stop the bombing.

The petitioners had appealed to Marshall in accordance with the accepted procedure that applications and motions are directed to the justice normally responsible for that area of the nation. Marshall is the circuit justice for the 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals, headquartered in New York.

Dissatisfied with the first ruling, the petitioners moved on to Douglas, a process called "justice shopping" that is frowned upon by the court. Justices receiving such a second attempt when the court is in session generally refer it to the full court automatically.

Gunter Asks Forest Chief

Close Ocala Bomb Range

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Rep. Bill Gunter (D-Fla.) asked the Chief of the U.S. Forest Service to exercise his "right and authority" to close down the Navy's bombing range within the Ocala National Forest.

In addition, Gunter proposed to Forest Service Chief John R. McGuire that he demand that the Navy immediately cease its bombing and strafing runs with live ammunition.

In a strongly worded letter to McGuire, Gunter wrote:

"It seems to me that the use of live ammunition (500-pound bombs and lesser variety) constitutes unacceptable hazards and is incompatible with the stated purposes of our national forests under federal law. It certainly is not in keeping with the national goals of timber production and conservation, public recreation, and wildlife preservation. . . Therefore I believe that you would be completely justified to request of the Navy that it immediately cease using live ammunition in its bombing runs over the forest."

This, Gunter noted, could be accomplished prior to the establishment of an agreed to schedule for the abandonment of the facility which dates back to the Second World War.

Noting that McGuire himself has expressed the desire to close the bombing range but has been thwarted by the Navy's invocation of the catch-all cloak of "national security," Gunter added:

". . . since there are obviously other bombing ranges available to the Navy located within various military installations, I urge you in the interest of proper management of the national forest program" to close the 6,000 acre target area.

Prime Rates Increased

NEW YORK (AP) — Several major banks raised their prime lending rates to 9 per cent today, following through on a ¼ percentage point increase initiated by three banks on Friday.

The increases today by New York's Chase Manhattan Bank, the country's third largest, and others brought the prime to an all-time high and virtually assured that the 9 per cent level would spread throughout the industry within the next few days.

The prime rate is the minimum interest banks charge their corporate borrowers for short-term loans.

While it is not directly linked to consumer installment loans or mortgage rates, a rise in the prime frequently signals a general boost in over-all interest rates, which might occur some months later.

A Thought to Remember

We have all heard of the wonderful way Luther Burbank, the California botanist, succeeded in freeing flowers and fruits from their original bad qualities. He grew a walnut without tannin, and freed it from its disagreeable taste;
developed a dahlia with a pleasant instead of a disagreeable odor; produced plums and apricots without stones; and evolved thornless cacti.

Can man be freed of all his faults of constitution, habit and training? They do it every day.

These changes are brought on without the skillfulness and knowledge of men like Burbank. It is the result of the individual efforts and the search for strength to overcome!
How? By earnestly and honestly seeking—this strange and wonderful strength can always be found.

Secretariat's 2nd Chance

By DICK JOYCE
Associated Press Sports Writer

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Meadow Stable's Secretariat, his image tarnished by a stunning upset loss Saturday, has an opportunity to show his supremacy on the same Saratoga track Aug. 18.

The occasion is the $100,000-added Travers Stakes, a 1¼-mile test. It is expected to draw the top 3-year-olds and an even greater crowd than the Saratoga record of 30,119 which saw the supposedly invincible Secretariat finish a length behind front-running Onion Saturday in the $57,850 Whitney Stakes.

Reasons for the Triple Crown winner's setback range from a bump on his head when he broke through the starting gate before the start of the 1⅛-mile race; jockey Ron Turcotte's decision to keep the colt on the rail and the track, which was called fast, but was still drying out after Thursday's day-long rain.

The Whitney was Secretariat's first start against older horses and a victory would have made him the 13th thoroughbred in history to earn $1 million in purses.

Onion, a 4-year-old gelding owned by the Hobeau Farm, was ridden by Jacinto Vasquez, who was aboard Angle Light when he whipped Secretariat in the Wood Memorial earlier this year.

The time of the race was 1:49 3-5, a full second off the track record.

The Whitney result took some of the edge off the match race between Secretariat and his millionaire stablemate, Riva Ridge, set for Sept. 15 at Belmont. Wichita Oil upset Riva Ridge on the turf here last Wednesday.

49er-Browns Tilt Winds Up 1st Week Of Pro Grid Tests

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Although veterans will dominate the starting lineups, Cleveland Coach Nick Skorich and San Francisco Coach Dick Nolan both plan to take a long look at some key rookies when their teams meet tonight at Cleveland's Municipal Stadium in the winding up of the first full weekend of National Football League exhibition action.

In Sunday night's only game, the New England Patriots rallied for two touchdowns in the final period to pull out a 17-17 tie with the Oakland Raiders.

Saturday night, the Miami Dolphins edged the Cincinnati Bengals 14-13, the Philadelphia Eagles beat the Buffalo Bills 13-6, the Kansas City Chiefs defeated the New Orleans Saints 12-6, the New York Giants crushed the San Diego Chargers 26-3, the Pittsburgh Steelers trounced the Baltimore Colts 34-7 and the Chicago Bears tied the Green Bay Packers 13-13.

The New York Jets nipped the Houston Oilers 16-13, the Detroit Lions topped the Washington Redskins 17-14 and the Dallas Cowboys beat the Los Angeles Rams 24-7 in Friday night games.

Skorich will start Mike Phipps at quarterback and give second-year man Brian Sipe some work in the second half. Nolan will counter with John Brodie at the start and go to Steve Spurrier in the second half, with young Joe Reed also possibly seeing some action.

Skorich wants to get a good look at some young running backs as possible bench strength behind veterans Leroy Kelly and Bo Scott.

Nolan wants to examine his rookie wide receivers.

Following their fine comeback, the Patriots were given a scare as veteran George Blanda attempted a 43-yard field goal at the final gun. But his attempt was low and short.

Daryle Lamonica tossed touchdown passes for Oakland, but John Tarver scored on a three-yard run for the Patriots' first touchdown, then New England capitalized on a short punt by Oakland rookie Ray Guy to tie the score. Jim Plunkett hitting Tommy Reynolds with a 21-yard pass for the touchdown.

The NFL champion Dolphins had their hands full in posting their 20th consecutive victory—the final preseason game of 1972, 14 regular season games, three playoff games and a 14-3 win over the College All-Stars in Chicago last Friday being the previous 19.

Philadelphia's Po James set up the winning touchdown with a 35-yard scamper, then ran it in from three yards out with 3:06 left in the game to make the Eagles' debut under Coach Mike McCormack a winning one.

Jan Stenerud booted four field goals to Happy Feller's two as the Chiefs topped the Saints.

John Unitas made his debut for San Diego, playing the first period, but was overshadowed by the Giants' quarterback tandem of Norm Snead and Randy Johnson.

Pittsburgh showed mid-season precision in whipping the newlook Baltimore Colts. Pittsburgh's Preston Pearson set up two touchdowns in the first four minutes with runs of 69 and 39 yards.

Green Bay's Chester Marcol, whose kicking had beaten the Bears three times last year, missed what would have been the winning field goal from 39 yards out with eight seconds left Saturday night as the Packers and Bears tied 13-13.

No-Hitter For Atlanta Hurler

Padres 'Knuckle Under' To Nikero

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Phil Niekro beat Warren Spahn to the Hall of Fame Sunday.

Spahn, the former Milwaukee Braves' ace and the winningest left-handed pitcher in baseball history, was to be inducted into the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., today.

Niekro, the Atlanta Braves' 34-year-old knuckleballer, probably won't make it careerwise, but he fluttered past Spahn and into the Hall's no-hit section Sunday the way his pitches danced past San Diego Padre bats in a 9-0 no-hitter.

Niekro walked three and struck out four in hurling the Braves' first no-hitter since Spahn did it against San Francisco 12 years ago. Two other Padres reached on infield throwing errors.

Niekro's was the fifth no-hitter of the season but the first in the National League.

"I knew I had a no-hitter going. You're usually aware until the first guy gets a hit. When they came up for the second time around I knew they didn't have a hit. After that, no one on the bench spoke to me," he said.

Niekro, a native of Blaine, Ohio, was signed by the Braves for a $500 bonus after attending a tryout camp in 1958. The no-hitter boosted his record to 11-8 and capped a season which he began in the bullpen. He didn't make his first start until May 15.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the San Francisco Giants 4-3, the Cincinnati Reds trimmed the Houston Astros 7-1, the St. Louis Cardinals won a pair from the New York Mets 3-2 and 4-1, the Montreal Expos nipped the Chicago Cubs 3-2 and the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Philadelphia Phillies 4-1.

Dodgers 4, Giants 3

Bill Buckner's two-run homer and Jim Brewer's clutch relief pitching highlighted the Dodgers' victory, which kept them three games ahead of Cincinnati in the West Division and dropped the third-place Giants 7½ out.

Tommy John limited the Giants to four hits and one unearned run before they rallied on Bobby Bonds' two-run homer in the eighth, his 30th.

Bonds became the second player in history to hit 30 home runs and steal 30 bases in the same season twice. Willie Mays is the other.

Reds 7, Astros 1

Pete Rose and Joe Morgan drove in three of Cincinnati's four second-inning unearned runs with singles and Ross Grimsley spaced eight hits. The only damaging blow was Jim Wynn's 17th homer. The Reds added three runs in the fifth, triggered by Dan Driessen's triple which stretched his hitting streak to 17 games.

Cards 3-4, Mets 2-1

Rick Wise pitched a five-hitter in the nightcap and drove in two runs with a homer and sacrifice fly. In the opener, rookie Bake McBride knocked in the tying run with a pinch single in the seventh inning off Tom Seaver and scored the winner on Lou Brock's single. The sweep boosted the Cards' lead in the National League East to five games over the Cubs.

Expos 3, Cubs 2

The Cubs lost for the 18th time in 24 starts when Ron Fairly's two-run single off reliever Dave LaRoche in the seventh inning gave the Expos their victory before a record crowd of 31,019 at Montreal's Jarry Park.

Pirates 4, Phils 1

Richie Zisk doubled to set up Pittsburgh's first run and doubled home a pair of runs in the seventh. Willie Stargell singled to open the second inning and took third on Zisk's first double. Loser Wayne Twitchell then uncorked a wild pitch, allowing a run to score.

It remained 1-0 until the eighth, when Rennie Stennett walked, Dave Parker was hit by a pitch and Stargell was purposely passed after Al Oliver's long fly moved the runners up. Zisk followed with his second double.

In the American League, Boston beat Baltimore 7-4, Detroit shaded New York 8-6, Minnesota trounced Kansas City 7-1, Oakland topped California 6-2, Cleveland swept Milwaukee 6-5 and 4-1 and Chicago took two from Texas 7-3 and 3-4.

Pitching Feat Steals Show

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — It took a no-hitter to do it, but someone finally stole the show from Hank Aaron—at least for a day.

Phil Niekro, the Atlanta Braves' knuckleballing right-hander, was the star of the show Sunday, bewildering the San Diego Padres with his dancing serves and tossing the first no-hitter in eight years of National League baseball at Atlanta Stadium.

"We kept thinking the next guy would get a hit," said San Diego Manager Don Zimmer. "But outside of one hard-hit ball, that was about it. He pitched a heck of a game."

The Braves won the game 9-0 with the Padres managing just five base runners off the 34-year-old Niekro—three on walks and two on infield throwing errors by shortstop Marty Perez and third baseman Darrell Evans.

The game was wrapped up by the sixth inning and the only excitement left for the 8,748 fans on the hot, muggy afternoon was whether Niekro could achieve his masterpiece.

The last no-hitter pitched by a Brave was 12 years ago—ironically by Warren Spahn, who was to be inducted into the Hall of Fame today. Spahn did it in Milwaukee, beating San Francisco 1-0.

"I had never been through anything like this before," said Niekro, who upped his record to 11-5. "It probably happened at the best time in my life. My father is ill in a hospital and maybe this will pick him up a bit."

Aaron had been getting all the headlines in Atlanta with his chase of Babe Ruth's alltime home run record but the Braves' slugger took the day off Sunday. He wasn't needed as Niekro's battery mate, Paul Casanova, slugged an inside-the-park homer, Ralph Garr drilled hits to touch off three scoring innings and Dusty Baker and Frank Tepedino each drove in two runs.

Soviets Charged For 'Grappling' Aid

MIAMI (AP) — Bulgaria captured the freestyle team title in the Junior World Wrestling Championships here in a stormy ending which found officials charging a Soviet trainer with using stimulants.

The charge could not be substantiated, however, and the Soviet Union finished second to Bulgaria in the team standings, 42 points to 44.

The United States was third with 41 points, followed by Japan's 37½, East Germany 13, Canada 9, Romania 7, West Germany and Sweden 4, Korea 2, Mexico 1 and Colombia one-half point.

Officials searched the locker room for evidence of illegal stimulents after witnesses claimed Soviet trainer, Dr. Aleksandre Jakian, administered something in a towel to wrestler Aratsiun Magomed after the second period in the tournament's final match.

Magomed rallied in the final period from a 5-4 disadvantage to post a 7-6 decision over Joe Carr of Erie, Pa., for a gold medal in the 163.5 pound category.

Judy Rankin 'Forgets' To Take LPGA Win, Top Money Position

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Judy Rankin doubted her normal mental stance to win her third Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament of the year.

"I usually can feel when I'm going to win a tournament. I didn't have that feeling today," said the No. 1 women's pro money winner this year after posting a par 72 Sunday for a four-under-par 212 total and an LPGA Classic victory.

"I normally don't feel this nervous either," she said of her three-shot victory over young Debbie Austin in the tournament marred by four last round disqualifications.

Pitched out by LPGA officials were Betty Burfeindt, Jane Blalock, Beth Stone and Jo Ann Prentice for what LPGA co-director Rene Mondine termed "improper relief from tree wires in the second round."

The four contestants had removed guy wires from some young trees along the course in violation of LPGA rules.

Mrs. Rankin, who now has 11 tour victories in 12 years, said she played well all week in scoring the lop-sided triumph.

"I had only one three-putter Saturday and only one today. I didn't hit a sand trap all week," said the 110-pound blonde with more than $52,000 in 1973 earnings.

The slender veteran from Midland, Tex., earned a check for $5,250.

Miss Austin, from Oneida, N.Y., fashioned a final round 70 for her 215 total. Sandra Palmer fired a women's course record six-under-par 66 to share third place with Sandra Spuzich, Shelley Hamlin, Laura Baugh and Donna Young at par 216 for the 54-hole tournament.

Florida Boys In Finals

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Larry Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., upset top-seeded Van Winitsky of Miami 6-0, 6-1 Saturday to win the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association Boys 14 championship.

Gottfried, seeded second, took eleven straight points from Winitsky at the end of the first set and beginning of the second set in the finals at Charlotte's Old Providence Racquet and Swim Club.

Gottfried played well throughout the week, losing only six games in six matches.

Winitsky fell short during an attempted comeback during the fourth game of the championship set. Winitsky and John Evroe of Douglaston, N.Y., took the doubles title, defeating Mel Lewell of Murray, Ky., and Ron Hightower of Los Angeles 6-6, 6-1, 6-4.

South Takes Football Win; But North Has 'The Song'

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — South Florida's high school football All-Stars have retained their mastery over the North but the Rebel basketball stars have been dethroned by their upstate rivals.

Sparked by the running of three Dade County prep stars—Ed Beckman, Leverga Walker and L.T. Edwards—the South football All-Stars beat the North 28-10 Saturday night.

But earlier in the day, 6-foot-3 guard Otis Birdsong of Winter Haven banged in 28 points to lead the North All-Stars to a 98-94 upset basketball win over the South.

The football victory boosted the South's advantage in the grid series to 16-8-1. And even with the North basketball win, the South retained a 15-9 advantage in the cage series.

In the football game, the South scored a touchdown in each quarter. Walker, of Jackson High, scored first on a 38-yard pass from Tampa King's Jimmy Fisher. Quarterback Jimmy Black of Merritt Island scored in the second quarter on a five-yard run. In the third period, Edwards, who was named U . South's Most Valuable Back, scored on a 15-yard pass from Black. Beckman of South Miami scored in the final quarter on a 10-yard pass from Fisher. He also booted three extra points.

The North's 10 points all came in the second period on a 75-yard pass play from Pat Padgett to Mike Shumann and a 35-yard field goal by Collis Dennison.

"Those runners were something else," said South Coach Al Werneke of Glades Central High. "Edwards was a surprise. And Walker ran well despite a pulled muscle."

In the basketball contest, Birdsong, who is headed for the University of Houston, was the main factor in the North win.

He led the North to a 19-point advantage midway through the second half before being taken out of the game. But when a furious South rally tied the game up at 88-88 with three minutes to play, Birdsong came off the bench, sank a 14-footer the first time he got his hands on the ball and sparked the North to a chain of three consecutive goals that iced the win.

"I wanted to prove I was the best player in the state," said Birdsong, who sparked Winter Haven to the Class AAAA state championship last season. "I also wanted to win because everybody was saying the North was the underdog."

The South attack, which was marred by turnovers, was led by Lake Worth's James Smith, who sank 11 of 15 shots for 25 points.

"I think Smith belongs right up there with Birdsong," said South Coath Don Wallen of Stuart Martin.

Strom Ups Win Skein—To One

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Brent Strom's on a winning streak—one in a row. Well, for him it's a winning streak.

"I have been wondering when I would win again," said the Cleveland Indian pitcher after stopping a personal 10-game losing streak with a four-hit, 4-1 decision over the Milwaukee Brewers in the second game of a Sunday doubleheader. The Indians won the first game, 6-5.

The last time—and the only time—that Strom won a game in the major leagues was on April 9 this season. He beat the New York Yankees 3-1 with an eight-hitter.

Strom's first victory in more than four months was fashioned with the help of George Hendrick's 21st home run of the year, a solo shot, and Oscar Gamble's two hits and sacrifice fly.

The Indians won the first game with the aid of an error. Frank Duffy came home on shortstop Tim Johnson's miscue in the ninth for the go-ahead run.

In the other American League games, the Chicago White Sox took a doubleheader from the Texas Rangers, 7-3 and 5-4; the Detroit Tigers topped the New York Yankees 8-6; the Minnesota Twins trimmed the Kansas City Royals 7-1; the Boston Red Sox tripped the Baltimore Orioles 7-4 and the Oakland A's whipped the California Angels 6-2.

White Sox 7-5, Rangers 3-4

Carlos May drove in four runs with a homer, double and sacrifice fly to pace Chicago to a 7-3 victory over Texas in their first game.

The White Sox took the second 5-4 as John Mayberry doubled home the winning run in the ninth inning.

Tigers 8, Yankees 6

Dick McAuliffe drove in four runs with a pair of homers and Jim Northrup and Mickey Stanley also homered, powering Detroit to an 8-6 triumph over New York.

Twins 7, Royals 1

Bert Blyleven hurled six perfect innings and finished with a three-hitter, leading Minnesota over Kansas City 7-1. The loss stopped the Royals' winning streak at seven games.

Kansas City shortstop Fred Patek broke up Blyleven's no hit bid with a triple off the left field wall leading off the seventh. Cookie Rojas followed with a run-scoring single.

Red Sox 7, Orioles 4

Tommy Harper blasted a three-run double and then stole third and came home on an error for Boston's fifth run of the seventh inning, leading the Red Sox to a 7-4 victory over Baltimore.

A's 6, Angels 2

Dick Green slugged a grand slam home run in the eighth inning to power Oakland to a 6-2 success over California.

Nichols 'Charges' To End Drought

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Bobby Nichols went home to Ohio a winner again—for the first time in a long time.

Tom Weiskopf went home to Ohio unhappy and disgruntled again—for the first time in a long time.

"All I'm going to say is that I'm glad to be going home to Ohio. That's all I'll say about it," the obviously angry Weiskopf said after a quadruple-bogey eight and the end of his winning streak.

Nichols, meanwhile, was bubbling happy after his dramatic triumph in the 37-hole window Sunday in the rich Westchester Golf Classic.

The 37-year-old veteran did it in thrilling fashion. He came from nowhere with a blazing, five-under-par 31 on the final nine holes to tie Bob Murphy and then won the ensuing playoff by dropping a 25-foot birdie putt on the first extra hole.

Nichols, five strokes back when the second of Sunday's two rounds started, closed up with a 63, seven under par on the 6,614-yard Westchester Country Club course, and finished with a 272 total. Murphy had a final round 67.

Weiskopf, meanwhile, took a fat eight on the par four fourth hole and his rally fell just short when he missed an eagle putt on the 18th hole.

San Diego Chargers

By Murray Olderman

PROSPECTUS —
How'd you like to wrap your present around a 40-year-old quarterback with aching knee and creaking arm? That's what veteran-tinged Chargers have done. If Johnny U. can throw, they have a chance to get out of last year's basement descent. Puts a lot of pressure on the Harland Svare regime. Age on defense is also a big problem.

OFFENSE

PASSING — Even Unitas admits his arm isn't what it was. And maybe in the Chargers' close-to-the-vest offense he doesn't have to throw bombs. Understudying him is Wayne Clark. Risky situation. Fair

RECEIVING — Talent's there, with Gary Garrison a great receiver and Jerry Levias a threat. Dropoff behind them; John Mackey couldn't shave off his middle poundage; retired from tight end. Chargers have to go with Pettis Norman, a good blocker, until rookie James Thaxton develops. Big question is how receivers will be used. Good

RUNNING — Definitely strengthened; not that there was anything wrong with Mike Garrett (1,031 yards) and Clid Edwards, team MVP. Garrett doesn't always last a full season, so now they've acquired Bob Thomas, who hits hole fast as anybody in game. Very good

LINE — Probably strongest department on team, comparable with any unit in NFL. Tops at guards with Doug Wilkerson, Walt Sweeney, stable and big at tackles with Terry Owens, Russ Washington. Carl Mauck is serviceable center. Unit forte is pass protection. Very good

DEFENSE

LINE — The trick is fitting Coy Bacon into starting spot. He's an end. So are Deacon Jones, ta' at 275, and Lionel Aldridge. Shifting Coy to tackle adds size but reduces his pass rush. They need the size to augment holdovers Dave Costa, Ron East. Other factor is that they're all over 30, going downhill. Fair

LINEBACKING — Rex Kennan would like to stick to coaching, but they'll probably need him on strong side again because Pete Lazetich isn't ready. Two guys with knee history — Tim Rossovich and Bob Babich — fill out the corps. Altogether questionable. Fair

SECONDARY — Good competitive situation with Ron Smith coming from Bears to challenge for safety spot and Willie McGee, world class sprinter, looking good as corner man. They have plenty of tested people, led by leading interceptor Bryant Salter. Good

KICKING — Dennis Partee is one of the few double-duty men still around. Very good short field goal kicker. Bill McClard will try again in this department. Partee needs to lengthen punting. Addition of Ron Smith jacks up kick return units. Good

PREDICTION

Not even the venerable image of Unitas can project Chargers as serious challengers. Not against KC, Oakland — third in division.

Dolphins' QB Staying

Del Gaizo Too Good To Trade

By JOHN R. SKINNER
Associated Press Sports Writer

MIAMI (AP) — All the talk about trading third-string quarterback Jim Del Gaizo died to a whisper after the southpaw completed 11 of 14 passes in Miami's 14-13 exhibition victory over Cincinnati.

"He's in the competition for a position on this football team," said Coach Don Shula in the locker room after the Saturday night National Football League contest.

Cincinnati had led all the way until Del Gaizo threw a 52 yard pass to rookie Charley Wade at the Bengals' five-yard line and then a four-yard touchdown pass to Charlie Leigh with 3:25 left to play.

Del Gaizo, who asked to be traded, was apparently too good for his own good with his 167-yard throwing effort, but said,'I love it here. The Dolphins are the best.

"The only reason I'd want to leave was if I were getting a shot at a starting job elsewhere," said Del Gaizo. "I'm a third man here. I know I'm not going to beat out Bob Griese's backup, Earl Morrall. Earl's even better this year than last."

Shula, who also has highly regarded rookie quarterback Don Strock in camp, was impressed as much by veteran reserve Leigh as he was with Del Gaizo. Leigh totaled 127 yards through kickoff and punt returns, three pass receptions for 19 yards and 57 yards running.

The victory was Miami's 20th in a row, including the final exhibition game of 1972, all regular season, the playoff games last year, the Super Bowl and the College All-Star game.

"It sure would have been nice to break that string," said Bengals' quarterback Ken Anderson, who had little luck moving the ball against the Dolphins in the first half. Virgil Carter came off the bench to lead the Bengals to all of their scores.

Carter ran seven yards for a touchdown just before the half ended. Other scores came on field goals of eight and 11 yards by Bengals' rookie Dave Green and a one-yard plunge by Miami's Hubert Ginn.

"I guess the game served its purpose," said Cincinnati mastermind Paul Brown. "We played 57 men, everybody that came here with us. I think they played 60. That's what I mean by serving its purpose. How else can we judge who will help us when things start counting?"

Eagles' Field Generals Happy After Performance

F.T. MACFEELY
Associated Press Writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — It would seem difficult for a pair of professional football quarterbacks to be happy about a game where they gained one yard between them and completed just three passes.

But Norman Gabriel and John Reaves say they were pleased with Saturday night's effort because their Philadelphia Eagles opened their National Football League pre-season competition with a 13-6 victory over the Buffalo Bills.

Heavy rain made the Gator Bowl turf slippery and the Eagles played it mostly on the ground.

"I didn't throw probably as much as people thought I should," said Reaves, a University of Florida star before going to the pros last year. "Our effort was geared for running after the weather popped up like it did."

The veteran Gabriel, going to the Eagles from the Los Angeles Rams, called the victory "vitally important for this team because it will bring us that much closer together."

Both quarterbacks had good protection on the 14 passes they threw. "It's a great change from last year, when we had to snap, drop back and duck," Reaves said.

Although Buffalo lost, Coach Lou Saban said it was a good game for the Bills' defense and the quarterbacks.

Dennis Shaw worked at quarterback the first half while Leo Hart took most of the second half and rookie Joe Ferguson tried a desperate attempt to come back in the final three minutes after Ron "Po" James scored Philadelphia's and the game's only touchdown.

Shaw was four of nine for 25 yards, Hart six of seven for 84 yards, and Ferguson two of six for 32 yards.

"The loss won't kill us that much," Saban said, but he said he was disappointed in the kicking and in some things the special teams did.

Buffalo punter Spike Jones averaged just 36 yards and placekicker Mike Clark had a field goal attempt blocked from only 14 yards out.

Eagles' coach Mike McCormack gave injury-prone Norm Bulaich a good look in the first half. The 218-pound runner gained 33 yards in ten carries. James, who led Philadelphia rushers with 565 as a rookie last season, provided the spark with a 32-yard sprint to set up the winning touchdown and a three-yard smash through the line to score.

James was the game's leading runner with 107 yards in 15 carries. He beat out Buffalo's wizard, O.J. Simpson, who carried 10 times for 95 yards, including a 59-yard run

'Old Lady' Of Tennis Still On Winning Streak

By TOM SIEBERT
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — The self-styled "old lady" of tennis headed for Nashville, Tenn., and the second stop on the women's pro tennis circuit today after pocketing $7,000 in the championship bracket of the opening meet Sunday.

Billie Jean King overcame a blazing start by her taller, stronger opponent, Betty Stove, and beat Holland's No. 1 player 6-4, 6-2.

"Betty had a great tournament. I had to play very well to win," said Mrs. King, winner at Wimbledon this year and the top seed at the Denver meet.

Miss Stove's concentration faltered in the third game after she stopped serving to ask several parents to remove crying babies from the stands.

Julie Heldman of New York won the $1,950 consolation match, beating Janet Newberry of La Jolla, Calif., 6-4.

The doubles finals, halted by rain with Mrs. King and Rosemary Casals leading Miss Stove and Francoise Durr 3-2, will be restarted at that point later in the week at Nashville, tournament officials said.

The 29-year-old Mrs. King said she plans to push herself as hard as possible over the rest of the Slims tour in preparation for her Sept. 20 five-set battle with Bobby Riggs.

The $100,000 winner-take-all match will be played in the Astrodome at Houston.

U.S. Davis Cuppers In 'Marathon' Fight

By HARRY KING
Associated Press Writer

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Tennis has its own version of the Boston Marathon.

It's called the American Zone finals of the Davis Cup.

The tennis marathon began Friday when Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash., and Jaime Fillol of Chile played the second longest singles set in Cup history, Gorman winning 17-15. The kicker came Sunday—a 76-game set that lasted three hours and 45 minutes, establishing a Davis Cup record.

The Chilean team of Fillol and Pat Cornejo won the set 39-37 over Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., and Erik van Dillen of San Mateo, Calif. The U.S. team rebounded to take the next set 8-6 and established a commanding 3-1 lead in the fourth set before darkness suspended play. The Chilean team won the first set 9-7.

So the action will continue today and possibly extend into Tuesday in an event that was scheduled to end Sunday.

The United States leads in the competition 2-0 with Gorman's singles victory and a triumph by Smith over Cornejo in a match that began Friday and ended Saturday. The winner of the American Zone meets Romania, which defeated the Soviet Union.

Liberated fiancee nixes traditional stag party

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: As the cliche goes: "I never thought I'd be writing to Dear Abby, but here goes."

My oldest and dearest friend is marrying a gal he's been living with for two years. Some of his buddies wanted to have a stag for him—the typical kind—a dinner with drinks, and a lot of gags about his "last chance" to enjoy bachelorhood. We wouldn't go so far as to have any nude girls jumping out of cake or anything like that.

The problem is his fiancee. She says the traditional stag is a "chauvinistic idea" and if his friends want to honor him, they should entertain the two of them together.

The groom doesn't want to upset his fiancee, so he's asked us to call off the stag. I am pretty burned up about the whole thing. I think the decision should be the guy's, and not his fiancee's. So you tell me, Abby, who is being unreasonable here?

D. R.

DEAR D. R.: The decision WAS the guy's. He decided not to upset his fiancee. So if you want to honor your buddy, do it his way or not at all.

DEAR ABBY: Is it standard practice to charge close relatives for wedding pictures? My sister in law has had two children marry this past year. (My son was in one of the wedding parties). She had pictures taken of all the guests as well as the bridal couple and wedding party. Then she went ahead and had a lot of pictures made up, and she charged her own parents, sisters, and brothers for the copies of the pictures that included THEM.

Is this right? And if it is, don't you think $5 is a little stiff for one five by seven black and white glossy?

D.A. IN C'VILLE

DEAR D.A.: It's standard practice (if one can afford it) to GIVE close relatives one picture of themselves as well as one of the bride and groom. Those who want additional pictures should order (and pay for) their own.

And yes, I think $5 for one black and white glossy is a little stiff.

DEAR ABBY: We had to write! Our oldest son, who was a fine athlete before he entered the service, also stepped on a mine in Viet Nam. He lost one leg, and the sight of one eye.

Three months later, he won a trophy in skiing competition, and we have several shelves of trophies he has won every winter since his accident in 1970. He is still able to surf, and has a license for scuba diving. Next year he graduates from college with a degree in physical education.

Last March we attended a meeting of the National Inconvenienced Sportsmen's Association in Winter Park, Colo. There were both male and female entrants from 12 years old to 50, and some of their accomplishments were absolutely unbelievable! The last thing these people want is sympathy.

We were heartbroken when we heard the extent of our son's injuries. Now we have the greatest admiration for his courage. Do you wonder why we are such proud parents?

POLLY'S POINTERS
'Old But Forgotten' Way to Change Baby

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — I am answering Mrs. B. G. D. who never knows where to put her baby to change his diaper when they are out shopping. An old but forgotten method of diaper changing is to lay baby, stomach down, across your lap and change him back side up. It takes doing this a few times to get used to it, but once mastered, many mothers prefer it to a table when it is available. Baby cannot kick and squirm as much on his stomach and he cannot roll over and fall off if you hold one hand firmly on his back. Baby will certainly like your lap better than a cold hard table. It is probably far more sanitary than a public table. — MRS. W. J. G.

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell Mrs. B. G. D. that I always take my baby shopping in his stroller and when he is wet and needs changing I simply lower the back lay him down and change him right there. — MRS. J. D. S.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I hope the girls have some suggestions for making napkin rings with the individual names of the family members on them. I thought of using cardboard but that is as far as I have gotten. While our central air conditioning fan is on I spray a disinfectant deodorizer up around the vents and that spreads all over the room making it smell much nicer and clears the air. — GLADYS

DEAR POLLY — When wrapped gifts must travel a long way in the car trunk, put them in a plastic bag (leave some air in it). You will find this keeps the wrappings pretty and in good shape. My Pet Peeve is with the manufacturers of children's pajamas who put the snaps on the backs. My little daughter likes to dress and undress herself and always has to put her pajama tops on backwards so she can snap them herself. — LOUISE

DEAR POLLY — To save time and energy while sewing I press small seams open by rubbing the opened seams over the light bulb on the sewing machine. The heat from the light will keep those many small seams flat until you have a larger one to press. This enables one to press most seams at one time and saves getting up from the machine to do each one separately. Sew curtain rings to the backs of children's stuffed toys and hang them on the walls of their rooms out of the way. They make a gay, attractive display and can be taken down easily for playtime. — FAY

DEAR POLLY — We live in a damp humid climate. To keep my closets dry and sweet smelling I keep several unwrapped bars of toilet soap in each closet. Some are on the shelves and others on the floor. This keeps our clothes from getting moldy and acquiring mildew spots. — EMMA JO

Oswald: The recent death of Alphonse (Sonny) Moyse has taken away another of my oldtime bridge friends. Sonny started to work for Ely Culbertson shortly after Ely founded Bridge World magazine and became editor and publisher after Ely died. Illness caused him to sell it some years ago but he remained a contributing editor.

Jim: I knew him slightly. He was always pleasant and nice to everyone although he did sort of feel that anything thought of after 1935 was not good bridge. He had one particular obsession. He believed that the 4-3 trump fit was likely to be really worthwhile.

Oswald: Let's tell them about a good recent example from the Fort Worth Regional.

Jim: "I was North and opened one club with my 20 points. Minda Brachman, my partner, responded one spade and I bid two diamonds which is forcing in our system. She temporized with two hearts and eventually I put her in six spades.

Oswald: Most pairs who reached a slam played it in notrump and could only collect 11 tricks. Playing in spades, Minda was able to make a 12th trick by ruffing a heart with one of your trumps. To add to the record, the top score on the hand won the open pairs for you and Minda.

The subject is dirt

By Joanne and Lew Koch

(Note: Today's column is written by Lew.)

The Supreme Court has ruled that the 50 states can determine what is and what is not obscene.

I'm going to have a bit of a problem understanding exactly how each of the states is going to judge what is obscene.

To my mind there are a whole raft of things that I think are obscene and in case any state legislator is looking around for a list of things to ban, he might start here:

—No supermarket shall be permitted to use the word "SALE" in newspaper, television or radio advertisements when that same supermarket is selling steak for more than a dollar a pound or lettuce for 59 cents a pound. What the American public is forced to pay for food is definitely obscene.

—Any television show or movie which portrays violence such as shooting, knifing, garroting, strangling, axing, etc. as a means of resolving conflict shall be judged as obscene since such behavior does not raise the moral standards of the public.

—Miss America, Miss World, Miss Universe contests shall be banned unless brains and talent can gain contestants as many points as beauty.

—Before any public funds are used to ban dirty books and dirty movies, funds shall be used to eliminate the following "dirty" problems: discrimination, poverty, housing, poor medical help, lack of education. After all, what is "dirty" is in the mind of the beholder.

Now, of course, I have my own very personal list of what is obscene, which, of course, I wouldn't want any person to follow unless he really believes in it. But in case you're interested, here are some of my personal obscenities:

—Anyone who orders a pizza and leaves more than two pieces while I'm standing in line waiting to order should be publicly thrashed.

—Any policeman who devotes time to writing me parking tickets instead of chasing muggers and burglars is guilty of obscenely wasting time and energy.

—Fashion designers. All of them, without exception. It is obscene to spend money for the kinds of clothes they believe are beautiful.

—Any neighbor whose lawn or garden is in better shape is certainly guilty of something.

All right, I've given you my list. What is yours? Since this column appears in big cities and small towns in various parts of the country, why don't you write us your list of what is obscene and we'll print as many as space and the law allow.

Send us your "dirty" list in a plain envelope, fast!

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Della's sexual complex formerly caused millions of wives to nag their husbands, falsely accusing them of infidelity. For women have absorbed an entirely false notion about female sexual appeal! Boudoir cheesecake is based on your brain; not your uterus!

CASE X-579: Della D., aged 44, has her husband worried.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "Della used to be a vivacious wife and sweetheart.

"But during the past year, a great change has come over her.

"Now she broods and cries a lot.

"And she has grown suspicious of me, often claiming that I don't love her.

"She even accuses me of having affairs with other women who work in my office.

"And she berates me half the night till I grow so angry that I tell her to shut up, saying she knows she is the ONLY woman whom I ever loved.

"This may mollify her at the moment, but the very next night she starts this nagging all over again.

"Is this typical of the female menopause, for she stopped her menstrual periods about a year ago?"

MENOPAUSE MISTAKES

Millions of women now go through the menopause without any appreciable upset.

For in hundreds of newspaper areas this column has exploded the old myths about the menopause!

"Actually, the female uterus (womb) has little chemical effect on a woman's physiology.

Like the vermiform appendix, it can thus be surgically removed without reducing a woman's erotic hunger, just as an appendectomy doesn't kill a woman's enjoyment of dining room menus thereafter!

Thus, the womb and the appendix are relatively "excess baggage" on a woman's anatomy.

But if she develops the age-old notion that the womb is the main barometer of her sexual appeal to her husband, then such a woman may go into a mental tailspin and sprout all these classical symptoms that Della demonstrates.

For when she reaches the age of about 45, or has had her womb removed surgically at an earlier date (hysterectomy), she suddenly wonders if her husband will be as affectionate and erotic as formerly.

Now, the first time in maybe 20 years of marriage, such a wife begins to focus her ideas around the subject of marital sex.

Obviously, her husband is less ardent at the age of 45 than he was at 25, so she immediately believes her lack of a functioning womb must be the cause.

It definitely is NOT!

Wives, get help!

The female uterus doesn't contribute any thrills to your husband's enjoyment of marital relations!

So it is your fat tummy and long continued previous frigidity in the boudoir that have reduced his erotic fervor by the time he reaches 45.

If you wives will quit concentrating on dining room roast beef and become adept at serving him boudoir cheesecake, he'll perk up, regardless of the state of your uterus!

And so will you!

For you can be shot full of estrogenic hormones and still be a twin for nagging, weepy Della, unless you wise up to the medical and psychological facts about sex.

Send for my medical booklet "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents, for your husband can then prove that your menopausal complex is merely a false notion, developed above your eyes!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

FEELING SUPER — Actress Merle Oberon says one must care for the body as though it were a favorite plant, and adds that she doesn't consider herself "old."

Actress Says Talking Age Makes People Grow Older

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Why can't a mature woman have a romance with a younger man and have it accepted for what it should be — a natural experience. So says actress Merle Oberon, who has brought such a film to the screen as product of "Interval," in which she plays the leading role.

"As the woman says in the picture — we are all born and we all will die — we live in between. ..."

In a real-life parallel to the movie Miss Oberon, who says she is 56, has been romantically linked with the leading man, Robert Wolders, 37. Now that she is separated from her husband of 16 years — Bruno Paglai of Mexico City — she has confirmed the rumors: she and Wolders intend to marry.

Her age invites speculation everywhere, she says.

"People make me feel like I am 100 years old because they are talking and writing about my age all the time. I think it could be aging to think about age. I never do on my own. In fact one man sitting at a dinner party with me in Los Angeles said, "In New York they are always talking about how many times you have had your face lifted."

"But if one didn't keep herself healthy and well, it would soon look unnatural. ..." she added.

It is pretty silly to concentrate on age in this way, she says. She doesn't consider 56 old. Her birth certificate would reveal that she was born Estelle Merle O'Brien-Thompson, Feb. 9, 1917 on the Island of Tasmania. Her father was a British Army Officer.

At lunch during the interview in her hotel suite Miss Oberon was eating the kind of lunch she considers healthful — watercress, cucumbers and cold fresh salmon. Her pink sweater and corduroy pants revealed a shapely figure and the only lines in her face were good-humored ones when she smiled. Her neckline is smooth.

It isn't necessary "to show ugly and private things on the screen," she insists. "It is awful too, that the worst of America is filmed and sent to other countries and naturally they are pleased to show that kind of thing. Producers are scared. Nothing is making money and they are going further out in trying to discover why."

She wouldn't know how to go about making "A Clockwork Orange" or a "Last Tango" she explained, but she had begun backing away from her love story thinking it might be too different from what moviegoers had grown accustomed to. Then an enthusiastic telegram came from Noel Coward advising her not to change a word of the script, which he had read.

After two years in production she plans to take a long rest — a three-month cruise maybe.

"If the film makes money — how much money does one need to be happy — I'd like to use it to do something for older people, to take away from their loneliness. I think about it every day of my life — when I was in Rangoon an old man told me I am happy now." We look forward to being old when we can be cared for. ...we are spoiled and everything is done for us."

In Acapulco she built a 5-acre park for underprivileged children with pool, rink, theater, library, but many children have too much, in her opinion.

"There is the instant car, the instant anything — children should need to forage for their food."

She hopes to put her own children — Bruno, 15, and Francesca, 14 — in schools in the United States — Arizona maybe.

"With 14 servants around how can you bring up children for the kind of world we live in," she remarked.

Her house on the beach in Malibu will provide her with opportunities for interests she loves — walking, hiking, swimming.

"One must care for one's body as one would care for a favorite plant. I feel sorry for people who cannot get outdoors and who have never enjoyed the pleasures of working in a garden and the exhaustion that can make going to bed so marvelous. If more people could do that there would be less meanness in the world, I am convinced."

As for producing another movie — she thinks she might be "too old for all that, not that she feels 'old.'" In fact sometimes when people are talking about how old they think she is, and she reflects upon her accomplishments, "It really makes me feel pretty super," she observed.

Women will enjoy the old-fashioned love story she is bringing to the screen, she remarked.

"A young man meets a contemporary woman who loves nature. She has had a tremendous tragedy, and has overcome it. He finds her different from young women he is meeting and it becomes a love story — much against her wish."

Studios in Mexico and the United States had been asking her to work. She would read scripts, but nothing clicked.

"But I was intrigued. I asked a friend, Gavin Lambert, to write a story and script, and I worked with him on it."

Highlights TV Time Previews

8-9 CBS GUNSMOKE (Rerun) "Tatum" Marshall Dillon is faced with an attempt to thwart his intentions to carry out a dying man's wish. The man is Tatum (Gene Evans), a reformed outlaw who is mortally injured in a fight with a vicious bear, and his last request is to be buried in his home town. Dillon escorts the old man home, but the local citizens attempt to block him.

8-to-conclusion NBC MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL. Oscar-winning (although he refused to accept it) actor George C. Scott tries his skill as a baseball commentator tonight. He'll be the celebrity analyst as the New York Yankees visit the Detroit Tigers at Detroit. The backup game, in New York and Detroit, will be the Baltimore Orioles playing host to the Boston Red Sox.

8-9 ABC THE ROOKIES (Rerun) "The Informant" An exciting outing. On a tip from his girl friend, Jimmy Carter is arrested with a stolen fur coat and his two partners are caught hiding the rest of the coats. Jimmy decides to cooperate with the police, but the other two are freed when a surprise witness gives them an alibi. Then they scheme to eliminate Jimmy.

9-9:30 CBS HERE'S LUCY (rerun) "Scarlet and Prissy." Flip Wilson joins the fun. They get involved in a local little-theater group which is presenting "Gone with the Wind." Lucy plays Scarlet; good casting, Flip plays Prissy. 'Nuff said.

9-11 ABC MONDAY NIGHT MOVIE (Rerun) "Maroc 7". Gene Barry is a secret agent, and Cyd Charisse is the beautiful but bad girl. She heads up an international jewel-smuggling ring, infiltrated by secret agent Barry when they head for Morocco to swipe a priceless ancient jeweled medallion. There's a lot of double-and triple-crossing, plenty of murders—all set against the exotic Moroccan background.

10-11 CBS MEDICAL CENTER (Rerun) An efficiency expert dispassionately decides an elderly surgeon must retire, even though he appears to be as skilled and alert as ever. Among his patients is the daughter of the woman whom Dr. Lochner (James Daly) hopes to marry, suggesting a strong emotional drama.

Coming TV Seasons Contains 183 Games

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Last week, while recuperating from a softball game in which an 8-year-old pitcher named Gaylord beat my team 13-4, I turned on the television set and assumed the prone position.

A pro football game blinked on. This seemed bizarre, as it still was July. The coming television season contains 183 pro football games, courtesy of CBS and NBC, but the earliest game is scheduled for Aug. 18.

The game on television seemed a bit weird, too. The team with the ball jousted with the other side for two downs, then punted. There was no kickoff after a touchdown. There were 12 men on each team.

At halftime, there was no press box bull session. Instead, there was a very big, burly man in the stands, and he was interviewing some very pretty girls. "Boy, are you built!" he told one.

Subsequent announcements disclosed the man was Alex Karras, the game the season-opener between the Montreal Alouettes and the Hamilton Tiger-Cats and the circuit the Canadian Football League.

The villain—as far as football-weary housewives are concerned—is a small, New York-based firm called Raltmar Sports Productions, Inc.

Institutions Dominate Market; Individual Endangered Species

By F. RICHARD CICCONE
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — When an American corporation picks up an all-expenses tab for moving an employe to another state, it now averages a hefty $2,280, a moving line executive reports.

"The average interstate move costs about $1,259," said Jack Thorne, vice president of marketing for Atlas Van Lines, Inc. "That includes packing a household, which accounts for a third of the total moving cost."

"By the time the companies pay for meals, motels, premove house-hunting trips, appliance services and all the miscellaneous expenses, they figure the average move costs $2,280," he added during an interview.

Interstate long distance moving costs about $700 million a year in the United States, and Thorne said about $2 billion is spent for all moving services. About 40 million Americans a year change addresses.

Atlas, one of the nation's largest moving firms, surveyed 200 corporation traffic executives to find out who is moving and what the company does for transferred personnel.

"Twenty per cent of the companies we surveyed move their executives about once every two years. A third of the companies moved people once every five years," Thorne said.

The Atlas survey showed that nearly half the transfered personnel are between the ages of 30 and 35 and nearly all the are between 30 and 40.

"Many companies used to have no policy about what they would pay for in an employe's move. Now, just about all of them do," Thorne said.

Most companies won't move a third automobile, a camper van or firewood, Thorne said. About half of the companies will pay for moving pets.

Many companies have started getting involved in real estate to take care of the sale and purchase of houses for transfered employes.

Thorne said some companies are beginning to question their transfer policies. "When they replace a top man, they have to continue promoting all the way down the line, and it has a domino effect. Some companies say they have 14 moves to pay for just because one man retired."

Genealogy Is Expensive

By JOAN COLBY
Copley News Service

An aunt of my husband's recently became a genealogy fan and thrilled his entire family by confiding they all were descended from some renowned Crusader.

I hate to spoil the fun by applying mathematical logic and bringing up the unknown cast of thousands who were also their ancestors. It is quite curious that people are forever boasting about being descended from William the Conqueror while never mentioning John the Peddler who must figure just as importantly in their genealogy.

Though it may be gratifying to discover William the Conqueror was your forebear, it is also quite expensive.

Interstate Move Costs Now $2,280

By DONALD C. BAUDER
Copley News Service

The market today is utterly dominated by the institutions—mutual funds, insurance companies, pension funds and bank trust departments. They are doing 70 per cent of the trading yet paying only 30 per cent of the brokerage commissions. Even worse, they are simply swapping among themselves a handful of high-multiple glamor stocks (IBM, Xero, Avon Products, etc.)

Little wonder that G. Bradford Cook, during his last days as chairman of the Securities & Exchange Com- "like the curator of the national zoo, I feel constrained to warn: the individual has acquired the status of an endangered species."

Yes, the little man has left the market, and Wall Street's response is on the edge of lunacy, it wants to increase the commission for the small investor. (Can you imagine your local saloon keeper, lamenting a lack of business, trying to woo the public back by raising his prices?)

Meanwhile, the institutions are drumming up support in Washington to get them permitted to sit on the exchanges — a move which would further debilitate the commission structure and clearly threaten to put even more brokerages out of business.

Both proposed moves would exacerbate the present cancer raising the commission rate to the little guy would further drive him to the sidelines, and lowering the rates institutions pay would encourage them to continue the incestuous stock-swapping of a handful of stocks—"the favored fifty," some call them.

Some in Washington are warning darkly that the situation smacks of the 1920s "pooling" arrangements, where a conspiratorial group of investors would drive a stock up for their own fat profits.

Voices—mainly from Washington (but including Merrill Lych's co-chairman, Donald Regan)—are calling for basic reforms, among which would be:

1. "Breaking up" of some of the larger institutions through antitrust actions;

2. Elimination of private meetings between corporate managements and institutions;

3. Legal forcing of institutions to disclose their trading and holdings on at least a quarterly basis;

4. Making it illegal for an institution to hold more than a small (hopefully) percentage of stock in any one company;

5. Making it illegal for an institution to buy or well more than a given amount of stock in any one trading period; and

6. Giving the small investor more liberalized capital gains treatment.

While even many of the most sympathetic observers of Wall Street would agree that it has proved itself incapable (for now) of self-regulation, it is doubtful if the securities industry needs any more such legislation at this time, with the exception of Point Six. Without question, the small investor needs capital gains relief—particularly if his commission charges are to be raised (a move which would further wipe out his capital gains).

What the market needs is an old-time dose of correction, and ironically enough, that correction should come from the small investor.

'74 Models Force Use Of Seat Belt

By DICK APPLEGATE
Copley News Service

Lights! Buzzer! Cut!

No action — you just sat down in a 1974 automobile and tried to start it without fastening the seat belts.

Sensors in the front seats detect the presence of the driver and passengers and will signal the interlock system to prevent driving — until all necessary seat belts are buckled.

This was done, of course, in compliance with federal safety regulations. Even if the car is in neutral and the driver unbuckles the belt, the buzzer will sound and the light will flash until the belt is buckled again.

The system will also prevent the car from operating if the belt is buckled before the driver or passenger sits in the car.

"This is one more example of solid state electronics being utilized by the automotive manufacturers to make highway vehicles safer, more efficient and more maintenance free than ever before," said Bernard V. Vonderschmitt, vice president and general manager, RCA Solid State Division, a major supplier.

"We envision the day when a wide variety of automotive systems, ranging from antiskid devices to collision avoidance systems, will be automatically controlled in a truck, bus or automobile by solid state electronic systems.

"Before the end of this decade, the automotive industry will be using $3 billion worth of electronic equipment for automotive systems such as obstacle detectors, antiskid braking systems, sobriety detection devices, variable speed windshield wipers and ignition systems which reduce pollution," Vonderschmitt said.

The reason automotive designers are taking a creative look at electronics, he added, is that solid state devices such as transistors, thyristors and integrated circuits offer such advantages as improved reliability, low power consumption, low cost, compactness and light weight.

Not all of these systems will be popular with the auto owners, however. The seat belt interlocks, for certain, are sure to elicit some strong words on occasion, especially when there is a malfunction.

Batista 'Heart' Victim

MARBELLA, Spain (AP) — Fulgencio Batista, the Cuban dictator Fidel Castrol overthrew in 1959, suffered a heart attack and died early today at Guadalmina, a resort colony near Marbella, on the southern coast of Spain. He was 72.

A son, Reuben, said the ex-sergeant who staged two revolutions in Cuba and ruled the island for 18 years became ill shortly after dining with his family at the villa he had taken at Guadalmina.

A doctor was called but could not save Batista's life, the family said.

A stocky robust man, Batista had given no indication of illness during the day, the family said.

Reuben Batista said his father would be buried in Madrid, where he had an apartment.

Batista came to the Spanish coast on Sunday from his home in Portugal and had planned to spend August and September in Guadalmina, near Marbella.

It was expected that his body would be brought to Madrid for burial Tuesday, the sources said. He maintained an apartment in the Spanish capital in addition to his home in Portugal.

Batista in his triumphant days boasted "my destiny is to carry out revolutions without bloodshed." He called himself an "idealist but a practical one."

But his dictatorship in Cuba collapsed with bewildering suddenness on New Year's Day, 1959, and Castro, the leader of the successful revolution, accused him and his men of killing 20,000 Cubans by torture and terror.

He was a tough army sergeant on Aug. 12, 1933, when he joined in the overthrow of the Gerardo Machado dictatorship. Twenty-three days later Batista's handpicked band of noncommissioned officers overthrew the ineffective provisional government.

Agnew Under Investigation For Bribery And Money Deals

SPIRO AGNEW
. . . I am innocent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said Monday night he had been informed he is under investigation for possible criminal violations. The Wall Street Journal reported in its Tuesday editions that the investigation involved allegations of bribery, extortion and tax fraud.

Agnew was notified formally by the Justice Department last week that he is involved in a far-ranging criminal investigation by the U.S. Attorney's office in Baltimore, the Journal said.

Agnew made the disclosure through his press secretary, J. Marsh Thomson, and declined further comment "other than to say that I am innocent of any wrongdoing, that I have confidence in the criminal justice system of the United States and that I am equally confident my innocence will be affirmed."

The investigation is being carried on in strictest secrecy, the Journal said. On receiving the Justice Department notice, the paper said, the vice president sought a White House audience, presumably to inform President Nixon.

At Camp David, Md., a White House spokesman declined comment. But he said the White House was aware of Agnew's statement before it was released.

The Justice Department notification, sent by U.S. Atty. George Beall, was hand delivered to the vice president, the paper said.

The Journal said the allegations against Agnew stem from the award of state contracts during Agnew's tenure as governor of Maryland in 1967 and 1968 and from federal contracts in Maryland let by the General Services Administration since Agnew became vice president in 1969. The GSA is the agency in charge of constructing federal buildings.

The investigation isn't related to the Watergate scandal, but the letter to Agnew was cleared by Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, who then notified Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox, the paper said.

The prosecutors have not yet presented to a grand jury sitting in Baltimore the evidence they have assembled, the newspaper said.

The vice president hasn't been asked to testify before the grand jury, the paper said. If he were called, he would in all liklihood be invited instead of subpoenaed, partly in deference to his office.

Mobile Home Owners Safe Providing Drainage Is OK

CHAIRMAN VIHLEN
. . . Grandfather people in

COMMISSIONER HATTAWAY
. . . No one thrown out

By CHRIS NELSON
Herald Staff Writer

Mobile home owners will not be thrown off their small, agriculturally zoned plots — unless the drainage is sub-standard — according to the Seminole County Commission.

That was the message delivered today to an apprehensive delegation of mobile home owners protesting the board's recent actions of trailers in agricultural and commercial areas.

According to the board today, residents on agricultural plots of 10 acres or less need not fear eviction after expiration of a two-to-four year grace period when their present permit expires.

Chairman Sid Vihlen, noting "we're going to have to set up some strict criteria and grandfather these people in," said it would be impossible to require each resident to apply for a special exception on an individual basis.

Only in cases where the county finds the plot's drainage to be below state anti-pollution standards will the owner be required to move, Vihlen added.

Specific plans to avoid evictions implicit in the county's June 19 amendment to the agriculture (A-1) zoning law will be worked on, hopefully with the aid of a professional organization of mobile home residents and businesses, Vihlen said.

"No one is going to be thrown out of a mobile home," vowed Commissioner Mike Hattaway. "We are just seeking a buifer while we come up with something. If your home is in a proper area, you don't have a thing to worry about."

Hattaway indignantly denied making statements implying trailer residents are "second class citizens," adding his intent is to stop "indiscriminate exceptions to our zoning laws."

Commissioners pledged the delegation from C.R.O.P (Committee to Resist Oppressive Politicians) they will attend an Aug. 24 meeting in Geneva to help work on the problem.

The confrontation at this morning's work session stems from two recent commission actions:

First, the June 19 amendment to the zoning ordinance which Zoning Director J. B. Williams explained as being intended to restrict agricultural land to "legitimate agricultural pursuits," adding the ordinance was "never intended" to allow permanent occupancy by landowners;

Second, the July 31 commission orders that Williams begin re-vamping commercial zoning to ban all but temporary trailers.

Murder Try Fails, Suspect 'On Ice'

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

A 37-year-old Sanford man accused of attempting to murder his wife was nabbed by police late Monday as he crouched in the cab of an ice truck stopped at the intersection of 25th street and Park Drive.

Frank McBride, of 1113 W. Ninth St., is being held in county jail on $18,000 bond on charges of assault with intent to murder, use of a firearm in commission of a felony and aggravated assault.

Emma Lee McBride, 43, was listed in fair condition today at Orange Memorial Hospital, Orlando. Sanford detective Lt. William Lykens said she was shot in the head and stomach by McBride at their home Saturday night after an argument.

Lykens and Sgt. Gary Swaim arrested McBride as he crouched in the cab of an ice company truck in which he had hitchhiked to Brevard County and back Monday.

The driver of the truck, owned by a company for which McBride worked, was not charged.

2nd Rape Trial Is Underway

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

Trials of two Sanford men on rape charges proceeded today in separate circuit courtrooms today at Sanford.

Selection of a jury in the trial of Walter Ross Jr., 43, 1712 West 15th St., was begun before Circuit Judge Dominick Salfi. Ross is accused of raping a 23-year-old Sanford woman at knifepoint near Longwood June 28. Authorities said he picked the woman up on West 13th Street and promised to take her home.

The trial of John Archie Harrison, 33, Apt. 82, Castle Brewer Court, entered its second day before Circuit Judge Clarence Johnson Jr. and a three woman, three man jury.

Monday a 16-year-old Sanford girl testified Harrison dragged her by the arm from a bar-b-que cafe on Southwest Road early June 30 to a wooded area east of Academy Manor subdivision where he raped her after threatening to kill her with a pistol.

"He put the gun to my head and said he'd kill me if I didn't keep still," the alleged victim said.

She said after the attack Harrison said he was going to "smash my head and tie me on the railroad tracks so it would look like a train killed me."

During intensive cross examination by assistant public defender Mike Mathews the girl admitted an unidentified boy walked by the attack site during the incident but she didn't cry out "because I feared for my life."

She admitted talking to several passersby on streets leading to the alleged attack site but didn't struggle or tell them she was being forced to accompany Harrison.

Scheduled for trial later this week before Judge Johnson are Clayton Thomas, 58, Altamonte Springs and Tommie Anderson, 53, and Willie Charles Campbell, 37, both of Apopka.

The trio is charged with aiding or assisting in a lottery, possession of lottery tickets and transmitting lottery tickets.

Casselberry Firemen Brand Charges 'Lies'

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

CASSELBERRY— Fire Department personnel Monday night branded "erroneous, in fact lies" charges from Physicians and Surgeons Ambulance Service (P and S) and asked the city council to confine the company's operation in the city to private calls.

Current city policy is that the police department rotate calls to scenes of accidents between Herndon Ambulance Service and P and S.

Fire Chief Roger Rasooli said his department has had trouble with P and S for some time. Police Chief George Karcher, after reporting that Bob Turney, president of the service, had "berated" one of the police dispatchers, backed up Rasooli's request.

"Lies" was the response of Harry Sambrook, captain of the city's rescue squad, to Turney's written complaint to the mayor that the fire department rescue truck has been showing up at accident scenes improperly equipped. Turney said on two occasions in July the city rescue equipment was needed at accidents and on both occasions it was apparently stored on an old rescue truck at the Casselberry fire station.

"No problem has been brought to my attention by the Casselberry departments but as always I am willing to work out differences," Turney told The Herald by telephone today.

He said his letter was intended to find out if the city plans to send both its old and new rescue trucks to accidents "considering the city has only one fireman."

Sambrook, Monday, night, insisted the rescue truck is better equipped than P and S ambulances and that the city has more emergency medically trained personnel than P and S as well.

Altamonte Springs Fire Chief Tom Siegfried told the Casselberry Council Monday night he is also having a problem with P and S, and set a meeting today to work out differences. Turney insisted today he was asked to no meeting.

The city council instructed Mayor Bill Grier to look into both sides of the issue and report back to council for action next Monday night.

Another response from an earlier reader's comment anent their displeasure on having a local fireworks display in Sanford.

We invited others to offer their views. Thanks to Ron Harrell for the following:

Dear J.S.

With regard to "No Fireworks"....People who dislike the ocean certainly don't go to the beach.

If fireworks "shred one's nerves" one has only to remain at home while those of us who enjoy the waterfront display each year take in the beauty and excitement it is designed to produce.

I AM against Firecrackers, bombs, etc. that are fired in neighborhoods, and will certainly protest to that type of noise and danger ... but certainly not an organized show such as we've enjoyed in the past on our waterfront.

"Nervous, sick people" should NOT be down on the waterfront listening to explosions!!!

Here's hoping that you've taken the time to make an appropriate notation somewhere close to your telephone of the new countywide emergency number .....830-8111.

This will cover "all calls" in this county's six municipalities and coordinate them through the Sheriff's Department.

FSU Coeds Get 'Guards' To Stop Rapes, Assaults

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A hastily assembled coed escort service has been set up at Florida State University following a rash of rapes and assaults on campus.

A campus police spokesman said there have been four reported assaults in the last five days on the campus, prompting the initiation of the after-dark coed escorts by campus security officers, fraternity men and student government officials.

"We had to do something," said Capt. Steve Hooker of the campus police. "We've only been able to make one arrest so far and we believe different men are involved in each case."

William Jude Norman, 23, of Tallahassee, has been charged with the rape of a 23-year-old coed. Police said Norman was not a student at the university.

Hooker said all the assaults have occurred in isolated, dark areas of the campus and against coeds alone.

He said all coeds and female staff members could call campus security for an escort during the final two weeks of the summer quarter rather than walk on campus alone between 10 p.m. and dawn.

"We've set this one up rather hastily," he said. "We hope the students will set up their own escort service when classes resume in the fall."

Hooker said FSU students had operated a regular escort service for several years but that it was discontinued two years ago.

Many coeds said they would welcome the escort service.

"I'm not leaving this dorm without an escort," said Marilyn Whitehead, 20.

VOTERS DECIDE LAKE MARY'S FATE

TO INCORPORATE or not incorporate that was the question as residents went to the polls at Lake Mary School today. As this picture was taken at 9:15 there had been 65 votes cast and 77 absentee ballots. Polls will be open until 7 p.m. and in order for the issue to pass at least 369 of the 736 registered voters must vote with at least 185 "yes" votes needed for a simple majority.
