Dear Classmates of Class of 1926,

You will be interested to learn that one of our classmates through the year 1925 has written a manuscript, soon to be published, in which many of us are included.

"The Roaring Twenties in Lake Mary and Sanford, Florida" by Margaret Sprout Green tells of school days in Sanford from 1919 through 1929, and gives a comprehensive history of Lake Mary from its beginnings to 1930. It is chock full of names, and contains many pictures.

The preface reads, in part:

"When an older one passes we are suddenly struck with the realization of how much knowledge went with him, forever lost to the rest of us. My concern at the rapid disappearance of evidence and knowledge of the past has prompted me to put down in permanent form some word-pictures of our heritage, to record my memories of events, persons, and landmarks which have already passed from the scene, along with the historical background that was a forerunner of the roaring twenties.

"This record of former days is seen through a young girl's eyes. It is a young story--a fun story--laced with nostalgia. It is presented to the reader in the hope that you will enjoy it and in your pleasure will gain a deepened appreciation of our heritage from the past. It has been written especially for the people of an area I love and for its future generations in order that they may know what life in Lake Mary and Sanford was like in the 1920's, an era I knew first-hand, lived in, and enjoyed. This book is my small contribution to my kind "e'er I go hence."
