Violent criminals' gain time erased

SANFORD — She should be taking her place with other Lake Brantley seniors this month, tasseled cap on her head, a billowing gown covering her good dress. But Ursula Sunshine Anasid never got the chance to go to school, to earn her high school diploma. She was killed 13 years ago at the hands of her mother's boyfriend. She was only five.

After her short life and violent death, the legacy she leaves is a revamped criminal justice system in Florida.

Donald McDougall was sentenced to 34 years in prison for the torture and murder of Sunshine in which the girl's mother, Susan Anasid, cooperated. McDougall barely missed getting released from prison after serving just 12 years of his 34-year sentence.

Had it not been for the work of State Attorney Norman Wolfinger, over 6,000 outraged Floridians and the decision of Secretary of the Florida Department of Corrections, Harry Singletary, McDougall would be a free man today.

Singing the praises of SHS choral groups

By JEFF BERLINGER

SANFORD — Before each performance, Seminole High choral performing groups take a moment of silence backstage.

The silence is ironic since what follows is some of the best noise anywhere. Not just in Florida, but anywhere.

Two weeks ago, four of Seminole's musical groups — the gospel choir, show choir, chamber choir and jazz choir — traveled to Atlanta for a musical competition and came back to Sanford with a national championship. A fifth group, a second show choir called Destiny, would have won the national championship if not for its twin group, Pizazz, which won the title.

Fantasy, yet another show choir, and the Seminole jazz ensemble, also earned a second place trophy while student Vince Butler won a special award for student director.

Not too bad for the school's musical groups, the oldest of which dates back to only 1984. That's when Robert Maguire, then the band director at Seminole, formed a show choir named Destiny. The name made a lot of sense since Maguire had an awful lot in mind when he formed the choir.

Deputies tie two Sanford residents to gang beating

By ROGER HANNACK

DELAND — Volusia County Sheriff's deputies Wednesday night arrested two Sanford residents for their part in what authorities called a gang-related break-in and subsequent beating of a DeLand teen-ager.

According to a Sheriff's Office report, Justin B. Bengt, 22, and Dawn E. McKee, 19, both of Sanford, were charged with being a principle to a felony for witnessing the break-in and beating, failing to report it to police, and not trying to prevent it or help the victim.

Deputies believe neither Bengt nor McKee actually took part in the incident, the report said.

However, the two Sanford residents were part of an estimated 30 gang members who

Pine Crest school to go back to the future

By VICKI BOGGERMAN
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Pine Crest Elementary School family is preparing to go back to the future.

On Tuesday, May 14, the school will celebrate its 40th anniversary, a bit belatedly, by burying a time capsule that will be reopened in another four decades.

The school opened in September 1955 with 10 classrooms and 10 teachers and has more than quintupled in size through a number of expansion projects, including the project which caused the postponement of the anniversary celebration until the end of this school year. The students are excitedly preparing a time capsule which will include memorabilia from classrooms over the years, news stories about the school from the Sanford Herald and trinkets from teachers, administrators and students who have been associated with the school over the years.

Members of the Pine Crest family who have items they would like to have included in the time capsule should bring them by the school as soon as possible.

Every item that is included in the capsule will be recorded on a videotape that will be kept in the

Belleville follows the man who first loved Florida

SANFORD — Sanford resident Bill Belleville is ready to lead an expedition of thousands down the St. Johns River into Lake Monroe.

The crowds will not overwhelm the landscape and boat trails on the river, however.

Except for a small crew on a high tech houseboat with Belleville, the other travelers will be scattered across the country in front of their computer screens.

Belleville, who last year traveled in the steps of Charles Darwin to the Galapagos Islands, is making another trip for Discovery Channel Online. That trip was one of the most widely watched series ever produced on the service.

The multi-themed online site features originally-produced interactive stories about the real world through the photographs and written observations of explorers like Belleville.

"It's very exciting," he said of the upcoming trip. "Following (eighteenth century William "Bibi") Bartram's path will give us a good look at what Florida looked like when he was here."

Bartram made two trips down the St. Johns River. In the winter of 1768, he made the trip with his father, botanist William Bartram. In the spring of 1774, he made the trek down the St. Johns by himself.

Bartram was the first naturalist to chronicle the natural riches of the area. The Discovery Channel Online trip down the St. Johns River will follow the course of Bartram's second trip from near Jacksonville to the southern reaches of Lake Monroe, where he camped on the islands to study and record with paint the natural beauty of the area.

Saturday, Belleville and his crew launched their houseboat in the same way that Bartram saw them.

Each day, he said, he will download several pictures taken with a special digital camera and write an 800-800 word essay of his impressions of the day.

In addition, those explorers from around the world who are watching Belleville's progress down the St. Johns will be able to ask him questions and to make suggestions about new avenues of exploration.

Belleville said he will be bringing a kayak and scuba gear in addition to a laptop computer and cellular telephone on the boat.

"That way we can venture out and explore away from the houseboat," he explained.

Idylwild Elementary School's Family Fun Night festivities attracted nearly 1,200 people Friday. There were numerous activities for families to enjoy, including playing catch with the Larry Cash and his son Ryan did. With all the excitement, some youngsters and their families had to take a break in the shade. Patrick and Laura Stinson, and their daughters Alysa (left) and Shelby did just that. However, they only sat for a minute because the children wanted to go for a special walk.

Sunshine Asa still had her life. Sunshine's five years had been marked by a sense of closure at the hands of her mother and McDougall. According to trial testimony, the little blonde-haired girl was forced to eat soap, go for days at a time without food and water and stand naked for hours, reciting the alphabet.

Her mother received a sentence of 15 years. She served five before her 1985 release. McDougall, charged with aggravated child abuse and second-degree murder, almost got out after 10.

Flashback to New Year's Eve, 1988. As McDougall sat in prison, preparing for his release, Central Florida citizens were furiously turning in over 6,000 petitions demanding McDougall serve his sentence. At the final hour, the state, following the efforts of local politicians who had been promising stiffer sentences for violent offenders, decided to keep McDougall in prison.

Flash ahead to 1988. McDougall could be out as early as this summer. He is scheduled to be released in December due to receiving up to 37 days incentive gain time for each month served in prison but additional incentive time is racking up.

The case has spurred Wolfinger, who described the system as "archaic," in his battle to keep violent offenders in prison for at least 90 percent of their sentences. Wolfinger said he has a problem with taking the money that goes into the system, but that, without hope for release, prison violence and disobedience would grow to alarming levels.

In a letter to Wolfinger, Singletary wrote, "The reward of an opportunity to earn incentive time encourages inmates not only to work and to behave but also to participate in programs and excel in their assignments. Over the years, through the use of incentive gain time, the Florida Department of Corrections has been able to build prisons, maintain facilities, encourage educational achievement, reward meritorious behavior and provide a workforce to the community."

Wolfinger disagreed. "The public is tired of the same stories that we can't keep people in prison when there aren't enough beds," he said. "Somebody who takes a five-year-old life has aroused the anger of the public.

On Feb. 22, Wolfinger fired off a letter to Singletary calling incentive gain time a "dirty, little secret." Since the problem has become public, he has reported over 300 phone calls from concerned citizens to the governor's office expressing outrage.

An often-heard excuse for early release is a lack of prison beds due to overcrowding but Wolfinger refuses to buy into that.

"There are 3-4,000 empty prison beds in Florida," Wolfinger said. "It's a danger to be releasing these people. You have empty prison beds. This is the most effective means to preserve and protect the public."

As a result of his battle, Singletary recently agreed to deny additional incentive gain time for prisoners convicted of violent and dangerous crimes which occurred before Oct. 1, 1986 until 85 percent of their time has been served. Because of the change in policy, countless violent inmates and at least 100 convicted murderers remain in state prisons.

The ruling would not change gain time which had been earned up to the point before Singletary's ruling but would rule out any additional gain time from piling up. Prisoners may also petition the governor for clemency in their sentences.

Wolfinger said he has a problem with taking the money that goes into the system, but that, without hope for release, prison violence and disobedience would grow to alarming levels.

"We feel they have to be addressed as well," Wolfinger said. "Armed robbers are one of the highest classifications to be repeat offenders."

What is the main benefit of removing gain time from the prisons?

"You'll see a drop in crime," Wolfinger said. "Is that important? I believe it is."

Wolfinger said if it brings about a reduction in violent crimes and offenders running the streets before the blood of their victims is even dry, perhaps Sunshine Asa's five years will not have been in vain. Her death and the public outcry about the release of her killer have been the leading forces behind the change to reform the current system of incentive gain time.

Because of the new rulings, Donald McDougall is still behind bars. At least until this summer.

Music

"Our time is better spent teaching the kids to sing and dance in live entertainment."

The teaching has paid off as scores of Seminole grade have gone off to perform at parks such as Walt Disney World, Sea World, Universal Studios and even Opryland in Tennessee.

Since the original group Destiny, the number of students wanting to participate has grown with the amount of success. Five years after Destiny was formed, an all-girl group, Pizazz, was formed from members of Destiny. Their popularity grew to such heights that Pizazz separated into its own group and another show group, Fantasy joined the Seminole mix.

Other performing groups include the Gospel Choir, the Jags and show band Jazz Chiefs and the Madrigals, a chamber choir.

New the groups have ballooned to over 200 members and are performing at various venues throughout the county.

"I've had to be a little bit out repeatedly as national champions as members anticipated the title by reciting the Seminole war chant and Seminoles' cheer. Chorus vocalist Audrey Ogden said the kids "went nuts" when they heard their name called but senior Kelly Ballingall said she wasn't surprised.

"I wasn't surprised because we worked hard for a long time," Ballingall said. "But we don't expect to win every time."

Maguire has no problems hiding his pride over his performers.

"What you have to do is pick out something and do it better than anyone else," he said.

At times, Maguire can sound a little like another Seminole coach, Florida State football's Bobby Bowden. Especially when he described last year's performers.

"We lost over 60 centers from the year before so we had a really young group last year," he said. "We didn't recruit too well so from my perspective they got a little bit inexperienced."

Even with the young crop, Seminole brought home a national championship in jazz ensemble and placed highly with both show choirs and the gospel choir.

Don't get the idea, though, that Seminole is growing weary of its success story. Even after traveling all over the country and performing nine times at Disney World this year alone, the thrill of victory is still present.

"It is still a big thrill to go up in front of people to perform," said Fantasy President Chad Wellborn, a senior. "There are a lot of competitions but we're so closely fit together that it never becomes boring."

"They look forward to competing," Maguire, a classically trained musician added. "I've never had a serious problem with any of them in seven years. The worst problem I've ever had was using a cigarette lit last year."

At a school that sometimes suffers a poor reputation for problem students, the Seminole music department has brought a lot of good out of its enrollment.

"Some of these kids, the only reason they go to school is to be here," Maguire said.

Seminole centers will perform for the final time tonight at the Florida Youth Association State Finals on the campus of Florida State University. As with groups for next year's coming season.

The success doesn't come without a cost. Students raised nearly $80,000 to cover expenses and even ended up with a $7,000 surplus to use on uniform improvements for next year. Some of them even went the extra mile.

Junior Keri Weddie raised $312 in one day and freshman Sharon Vellonoweth, who had previously performed at AT&T, had an ad put in the company's newsletter asking for donations and raised $314.

The hard earned money and effort is paying off in a big way.

Now when most people hear about the Seminoles, they think of the FSU football team, but they only have one national championship. Seminole High seems to top that every time they hit the stage.

drove up in front of a house on Kendra Street in DeLand, piled out of the cars, and went after their 15-year-old victim at approximately 9:45 p.m.

The teen-ager called 9-1-1 when the cars arrived and told police a large group of people was trying to break into his home, the report said.

As the victim talked with the 9-1-1 dispatcher, one of the gang members used a knife and managed to break into the home, the report said.

The telecommunicator heard a lot of yelling and screaming, as well as the victim moaning, the report said.

Four deputies were dispatched to the home, but arrived after the crowd had dispersed.

One eyewitness told deputies one of the suspects walked out of the house and declared, "He's taken care of."

The teen-ager was taken to Memorial Hospital-West Volusia in DeLand where he was treated for the injuries to his head and face sustained during the beating.

Authorities developed a lead in the case late Wednesday night after stopping a black Monte Carlo with six passengers believed to be present during the break-in and beating.

Deputies found a .38 caliber automatic handgun and live ammunition in the car.

Benge and Miller were among the occupants in the car arrested for being a principle to a felony.

In addition to the Sanford residents, James K. Broadbent, 18, of DeBary; Misty Mobley, 17, of DeLand; Michael Langdon, 16, of DeLand, and John Lipphardt, 31, also of DeLand were arrested.

Benge is also facing an additional charge for trying to bring tobacco into a correctional facility in Volusia County.

The Volusia County Sheriff's Office is continuing to investigate the gang-related incident and is predicting more arrests will follow.

Folic acid can reduce birth defects

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. — The March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation, which rallied the nation's leading maternal and child health organizations in support of a federal regulation fortifying everyday foods with folic acid to reduce birth defects, has praised U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services Donna Shalala for approving the measure.

"The decision to add folic acid to our nation's fortified grain foods is a victory for mothers and babies," said Dr. Jennifer L. Howse, president of the March of Dimes. "It's so rare that we have the opportunity to prevent disabling or fatal birth defects by such a low-tech means."

Dr. Howse called the new regulation an important first step toward reducing the number of babies born with serious birth defects of the brain and spine known as neural tube defects (NTDs). "Fortification at this level will help prevent many babies from being born with neural tube defects. However, the March of Dimes believes that FDA should eventually increase the level of fortification in order to protect the maximum number of babies from these very serious birth defects."

For more information on birth defects prevention and how to have a healthy baby, contact the East Central Florida Chapter of the March of Dimes at (407) 848-0790.

HIV-infected nurse calls for safer needle systems

By JEFFREY BROUSSER
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA — Nurse Lynda Arnold was following all the correct procedures and wearing latex rubber gloves the day she removed a catheter needle from an AIDS patient's arm and felt it pierce her left palm.

Six months later, she tested HIV-positive.

Today, Arnold, 26, is using her experience to push for safer needle systems in the nation's health care facilities, calling for each to sign a pledge to implement the system within a year.

"I truly think what happened to me is preventable," she said. "I don't want this to happen to anyone else."

Arnold, four months out of college with a nursing degree, was working in the intensive care unit of Community Hospital of Lancaster on Sept. 9, 1992, when the AIDS patient she was treating suddenly moved his arm, hitting her and forcing the needle into her hand.

"It was a moment I will never forget," she said.

She became one of the 800,000 health care workers in the United States who suffer needle-stick injuries each year.

Arnold originally tested negative, but on April 7, 1993, she was told a follow-up test was positive for the virus that causes AIDS.

According to statistics gathered by the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention through June 1995, 143 health care workers in the United States have contracted the virus, 46 of them in job-related incidents.

"I am one," Arnold said. "I am living proof that needle-sticks happen and that the consequences can be deadly."

Dr. Janine Jagger, director of the International Health Care Worker Safety Research and Resource Center at the University of Virginia, said Arnold was using a very common large-bore "introducer needle" when she was stuck.

"Once the placement of the catheter is correct, then the introducer needle is withdrawn out the back, so you have direct contact with it," she said. "It's a fat needle, it's a long needle and there's a lot of blood in it."

Those IV catheters and other high-risk blood-drawing needles are what Arnold and a number of organizations, including the American Nurses Association and the Service Employees union, want hospitals and clinics to exchange for needles equipped with safety devices.

They allow a retracted needle to slide directly into a plastic protective sheath, Jagger said.

Already more than 1,000 patents use the safety needles, some spring-loaded and some manually retracted, she said.

"Manufacturers have responded to this one," Jagger said.

The tough part, she said, is getting hospitals to adopt new procedures and products.

"There's so much bureaucracy and so many hurdles to go through in order to actually get them in the hospital," she said. "The limiting factor is the hospital door."

Arnold's hospital was in the process of testing the safety needles when she was stuck. They are now standard there.

"In retrospect, we certainly wish that these were in effect at the time of Lynda's unfortunate accident," said hospital spokesman Mike Capabianco.

Arnold, who left the hospital under workers' compensation, said she did not hold any ill will toward her former employer.

"I wish they had had them," she said. "But it won't happen again at my hospital, and I'm happy about that."

Arnold, who has a 10-month-old adopted son, said she's undaunted by the prospect of meeting resistance to the safety needles from hospital administrators.

Who's coming here, where are they from?

The American Movers Conference (AMC) has recently conducted a survey to determine who is moving, as well as to and from where.

Contrary to reports issued by various organizations during the past years, the AMC has not indicated that Florida is attracting new residents, at least in the top percentage across the nation.

States listed as having more people moved in were, in order, Oregon, North Carolina, Nevada, Arizona, Alaska, Georgia, Colorado, Washington, Idaho, and Tennessee.

States listed by AMC as having the largest number of move-outs were, New York,

New Jersey, California, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, North Dakota, Illinois, Maryland, Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

In the final quarter of 1995, Florida was listed by AMC as having 55,263 persons moving in, while 48,680 moved out. While the numbers were higher than that reported by Oregon, the statistics are based on percentages rather than actual numbers. In the actual amount of people moved, Florida ranked second in both inbound and outbound residents, with only California having higher numbers.

The statistics however, are based on moving companies which are members of the AMC, and participated in the data-gathering.

The average person would look at the people who have benefited from the lower mortality rate and how the lives of these people continued to be healthy, happy and productive for years after the surgery.

Reforming welfare

Clinton announces steps aimed at keeping teen moms in school

By LAWRENCE L. ROYCE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Clinton directed the states on Saturday to keep teen-age mothers who apply for welfare in their homes, in school and on track for a job.

The president announced a four-step plan he said would help end the cycle of welfare dependence for teen mothers.

Clinton also renewed his call for the Republican-controlled Congress to pass a welfare reform bill tailored to his specifications, including money for child care to permit parents to take jobs.

"If Congress sends me a welfare reform bill that is tough on work instead of tough on children and weak on work, I will proudly sign it," Clinton said in his weekly radio address.

But Republican governors and the House Republican Conference immediately attacked Clinton's overall welfare proposals, saying they keep the system in the hands of federal bureaucrats and sustain welfare as a way of life for millions.

Clinton said: "We have to make it clear that a baby doesn't give you the right, and won't give you the money, to leave home and drop out of school."

"Today we are moving to make responsibility a way of life, not an option," the president said as he announced these steps directed at the states:

—Require teen-age mothers to stay in school as a condition for receiving welfare. Twenty six of the 50 states already have such a requirement. "We're going to assist the progress of every state and make the results public," the president said.

—Challenge all 50 states to exercise their option to require teen-age mothers to live at home, a step now taken by only 21 states. "There should be no incentive to leave home for a bigger welfare check," Clinton said.

—Authorize states to pay bonuses to teen-age mothers who go to school and complete high school and to cut back the welfare checks of those who don't.

—Require teen-age mothers who have dropped out of the education system and are receiving welfare to go back to school and sign contracts spelling out "exactly how they're going to take responsibility for their own lives."

The contracts require the teens to pledge to live at home, work toward finishing high school, attend parenting classes, and establish the paternity of their children in order to help obtain child support. The contract states that benefits may be reduced for noncompliance.

The president said his administration has already slashed red tape to permit 37 states to "take steps to fix our broken welfare system" and asserted that welfare and food stamp rolls are down as a result, that teen pregnancy rates have dropped and that more welfare recipients are working.

"Our job is to fix a welfare system that too often pulls families apart and turn it into one that pulls families together, to fix a system that traps too many people in a cycle of dependency ... and instead to create one that promotes jobs and independence," he said.

"Now Congress needs to do its job — pass welfare reform," he said.

But Republican governors said they were not impressed.

"Four years ago, Bill Clinton came to Wisconsin and promised to end welfare as we know it," said Wisconsin Gov. Tommy Thompson. "It's now 1988 and Wisconsin has ended welfare but Bill Clinton hasn't done a thing."

Michigan Gov. John Engler wondered, "Why should the nation's governors, mayors and other local leaders have to go to Washington, get down on bended knee and plead for waivers, simply to require people to go to work?"

In January, Clinton vetoed the Republican version of welfare reform, contending that the measure would make policy changes and budget cuts that would fall hardest on children and undermine states' ability to move people from welfare to work.

Time Capsule

school's media center. After the capsule is planted, it will be left undisturbed for 40 years and then unearthed in another ceremony.

"We are very excited about the response we've been getting," said Debbie Bowlin, a fourth grade teacher who is helping to organize the project. "People have a lot of fond memories of this school over the years."

The time capsule project is also helping to teach the current students at the school about the ways in which history can play a role in their own lives. They have been reading about "the good old days" of the school and talking to many people who attended the school in days gone by.

"It's been a learning experience," said Bowlin.

The school will be accepting items for inclusion in the capsule for the next few days and the capsule will be buried in a ceremony a week from Tuesday.

"Every member of the Pine Crest family is invited to take part in the ceremony," Bowlin said.

Mrs. W.L. Morgan, Mrs. J.W. Dickins, R.A. Newman, Schelle Malmes, and all the doctors of the city. This committee's duties were to look into the present status of the old hospital association and to decide whether to form a new one.

Organization committee

The organization committee met two nights later. Also present was Mr. M.P. Robinson, president of the Hospital Association of Sanford, who told of its present status. It had a balance of $2500 which had been collected from membership fees and receipts from Field Day. The association also owned five lots. He stated that membership had gradually dropped off each year although every effort had been made to collect dues.

It was realized by the group that the old association was not really functioning and, according to the terms of Mrs. Fernald's gift, a new organization would have to be formed. They then began the procedure to do so.

They first elected Mr. E. A. Douglas as temporary president of the Fernald-Laughton Memerial Hospital Association. Other temporary officers elected were Mr. Maynes, first vice president; Mrs. W.E. Turner, second vice-president; Schelle Malmes, third vice president; Mrs. J.W. Dickins, recording secretary; Mrs. R.A. Turbey, corresponding secretary; Mrs. E.M. Calloway, treasurer and Mrs. A.E. Hall, auditor.

Mr. Douglas then appointed a committee to nominate members of the board of directors. This board would consist of representatives from the outlying precincts and the city churches. The committee was chaired by Mr. Douglas and consisted of several of the same people listed above.

A committee to draw up a charter and by-laws was appointed and these were for Schelle Malmes, Mrs. J.W. Dickins, and Mrs. E.M. Calloway.

Time is next week for the completion of the organization and the opening of the hospital.

Minimum wage likely to be raised

WASHINGTON — Congress probably will raise the minimum wage, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole said.

"I would guess, if I had to guess, that there probably will be an increase in the minimum wage," the Republican presidential nominee-to-be said in an interview on "NBC Nightly News" Friday. "Maybe not what the Democrats are talking about, but some increase."

Congressional Democrats and the Clinton administration want to raise the minimum wage from $4.35 an hour to $5.15. Dole has so far denied them a vote.

Discussions are under way to permit a vote, possibly in connection with the passage of the bill. Dole has also mentioned the possibility of combining a minimum wage vote with his call for repealing the 4.5-cent-per-gallon gasoline tax increase Democrats passed in 1983.

LONGWOOD — Danny Bogeajis struck out 18 batters and surrendered just two hits and two walks to lead defending Class 6A state champion Lyman to a 5-0 win over Fort Walton Beach-Choctawhatchee in a North II Regional semifinal game.

"I felt really good out there," Bogeajis said. "My fastball was working well, and I was able to throw my curveball for strikes in the later innings."

Bogeajis recorded two strikeouts and caught a pop fly to retire the first three Choctawhatchee batters he faced, and his efforts were rewarded as the Lyman offense responded with two runs in the bottom of the inning.

Clyde Chaney drew a lead off walk for the Greyhounds, stole second, reached third on an error and scored to make the score 1-0 when Kevin Nasa flied out to center field. Jason Shipley followed with a walk, stole second, and extended the Greyhounds lead to 2-0 on an RBI single by Jason Dickey.

"Danny pitched a good game," said Lyman coach Bob McCullough. "This was a team effort, and that effort is as good as we can play."

Jarrett Anderson reached first on a two-out walk in the Choctawhatchee third inning, took second when Chris Burke was hit by a pitch, and the runners took second and third on a passed ball. Bogeajis got Chris Plummer to fly out to left field to end the Indians threat, then struck out the first three batters he faced in the fourth inning.

While their standout hurler was keeping Choctawhatchee off balance, the Lyman hitters were providing plenty of run support. Joe Sustain doubled to lead off the fourth inning, and scored to make the score 3-0 on an RBI single by Chaney. Chaney advanced to third as Nasa took second on a two-base error, and scored to give Lyman a 4-0 edge when Shipley flew out to center field.

Chris Woodard took first after being hit by a pitch to open the Choctawhatchee fifth inning, while Anderson walked and Burke singled two outs later to lead the bases. Bogeajis then ended another Indians threat as he got Plummer to fly out to second base.

Jason Ware walked to lead off the Lyman fifth inning before being replaced by pinch runner Matt Cangio. Cangio reached third on a single by Randy Jonda, and scored when Chaney followed with an RBI single. Chaney and Dickey were both 2-for-3 at the plate to lead Lyman, while Nasa, Young, Sustain and Jonda each collected one hit.

Lyman will travel to play 6A-District 8 champion Sarasota-Riverview in the Class 6A North II Regional championship game on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. Riverview defeated 6A-7 runner-up University 10-3 on Friday.

GFC Camp provides kids with education and fun

The school year might be ending soon, but that doesn't mean kids have to stop learning. The summer camp program sponsored by the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission (GFC) not only offers children a great time, it provides them with an educational experience.

The GFC's youth conservation camp is near the Florida Everglades, in the J.W. Corbett Wildlife Management Area just west of West Palm Beach. Camp sessions run six days, beginning with the first session on June 16, and ending with the last session on August 4. Children arrive at the camp on a Sunday and head back home the following Friday after dinner.

"Anyone who has ever attended summer camp knows how much fun it is, and how you make friends for life," said Judy Gillen, the GFC's education coordinator. "Our camp not only provides these experiences, but also teaches kids about the outdoors, wildlife, fishing, and so much more."

The GFC's summer camp is also a bargain for parents. The registration fee is $150 per child, which includes all meals, lodging, program materials and even minor accident insurance.

JIM SHUPE

The camp is split into four different programs: "Nature Builders" for children ages 5-9; "Wild about Wildlife" for those 10-11; "Expedition" for children 12-14; and "Wildlife Conservation and Firearms Safety," also for children 12-14.

The youngest campers, who take part in the Nature Builders program, learn about the outdoors through arts and crafts, games, and hands-on experiences. They also participate in fishing, swimming, canoeing and archery. Campers 10-11 years old experience south Florida's natural environment and wildlife through hiking, fishing, swimming, canoeing, and other outdoor activities and games. Children 12-14 years of age can either take part in a primitive camping experience, where they learn about wilderness survival, backpacking, setting and using traps, or they can focus on wildlife identification and management, outdoor ethics and firearms safety. Both 12-14 year old age groups also participate in archery, shooting sports, canoeing, swimming and other recreational activities.

Youth Camp can accommodate only 100 campers each session. For a registration form, call the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission at 904-486-4676.

FISHING FORECAST

Shrimp fishing continues to improve with dropping water levels. Bass can be found around canals, through marshes, and areas of running water, where they stage to ambush baitfish. Specks, bream and catfish are biting in the deep ponds.

Shrimp sales continue to provide good action with snook, redfish, flounder, small bluefish and jack crevalle. The upcoming full moon this weekend should feature good night fishing on the outgoing tide. A few crabs are also hitting back in the Sebastian River.

Captain Jack at Fort Covecroft reports fair action offshore with dolphins in 100-300 feet of water. Some fish in the 40-50 pound class were caught last weekend. King mackerel and cobia are scattered on SA Beach and Pelican Shoals. Inside the Port, sheepshead, flounder and snook are active. Trout and redfish are on the flag of the Banana and Indian Rivers.

Ponce Inlet has plenty of sheepshead, drum, redfish, small bluefish and jack crevalle. The hole at the top of the north jetty is still the hot spot. A few flounder are hitting finger mullet on the south side of the south jetty. Trout and redfish are rated as good in Mosquito Lagoon.

The Red Dog beer sponsored 1988's Racing Classics Series which featured fiberglass cars based on 1966 Ford's (foreground) and 1966 Chevrolet's (background). The series will run a 18 race schedule at Orlando SpeedWorld, New Smyrna Speedway, Volusia County Speedway in Sebringville and Sunshine Speedway in Clearwater from late May until late November.

Racing Classics Series to hit Florida

Special to the Herald

MILWAUKEE - Officials from Plank Road Brewery, a division of Miller Brewing Company, has announced that Plank Road's Red Dog beer will sponsor a 1988's Racing Classics Series that pits amateur and professional drivers behind the wheels of 4-scale 1966 Ford and 1966 Chevrolet cars. The series will travel to four Florida venues for 18 races from May 28th through November 28th.

"We're excited about launching this series in Florida because of the state's tremendous car racing tradition and enthusiasm for the sport," said Dan Hansen, Florida Marketing Manager for Miller Brewing Company. "One of the series' biggest strengths is that it makes the sport accessible to drivers who previously only dreamed about competing in cars of this caliber."

The racing series debuts May 28th at the Sunshine Speedway in Clearwater. Subsequent races are at Orlando SpeedWorld on May 31st, New Smyrna Speedway on July 4th, Volusia County Speedway in Sebringville on July 20th, Sunshine Speedway in Clearwater on August 17th, and Sunshine Speedway in Clearwater on October 10th and 20th and Sebringville on October 18th and 20th.

Orlando SpeedWorld on November 28th

The individual race winners who earn the most points will race-off in a state championship race at Sunshine Speedway in Clearwater on November 28th.

In order to participate in the series, potential drivers must purchase one of the two specially-developed racing models. The cars, which sell for approximately $20,000 each, are 4-scale duplicates of the vintage 1966 Ford and 1966 Chevrolet models.

Both cars have fiberglass bodies that feature V-8 engines, 4-wheel disk brakes and full-welded steel roll cage interiors for driver protection.

Race drivers will compete against contestants driving one of two 50's models manufactured with identical features. Contesters will vie for a $10,000 cash purse at each event, with a $5,000 cash prize being awarded to one winner at each locale.

"We want to get fans from across the state involved in the car series in a way that allows them to be part of the action," Hansen said.

Special recognition will be awarded during the series for Best Appearance, Driver Mechanics of the Year, Pole Award, Half-way Leader Award, Hard Luck Award, Best Appearing Car and Best Appearing Crew.

As the featured sponsor of the Racing Classics Series, Red Dog beer will be the featured beverage at all series events. The Red Dog beer will be served at various locations. It has been Competition, Pro-Tech

Laugh stress away, Nellie surprised on birthday

Marge Ducharno gave members of the Sanford Woman's Club the perfect solution for managing stress at the May meeting Wednesday. According to the bubbly coordinator of continuing education at Orlando Regional Hospital, a sure cure for what appears terminal stress is lots of laughter, two beers and a bag of Nachos.

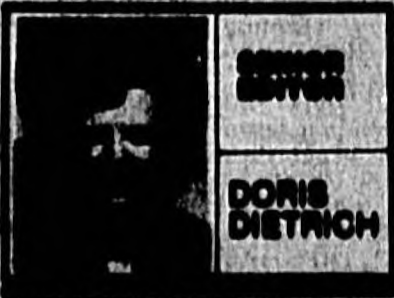

"What's wrong with the world is that we can't laugh," the personable nurse told the clubwomen. She went on to explain the therapeutic value of laughter in her own inimitable style. "You gotta lighten up," she said.

The speaker was introduced by Betty Halback, chairman of the Home Life Department. Several members agreed that the speaker, who takes her pitch on the road, may have missed her calling and should be a stand-up comedian on national television.

Pat Foster, past president, opened the meeting with a meaningful Mother's Day poem, presented to her by her daughter, Diana.

Delegates to the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs state convention, held at the Orlando Twin Towers were DeLores Lash, Ruth Gaines and Viola Frank.

President DeLores Lash presided over the business meeting and heard routine reports. She announced the club received a certificate from the Salvation Army for ringing bells during the holidays. Congratulations were extended to two members: Jean Metta for winning the J.C. Penney Golden

DORIS DIETRICH

Rule Award and Kay Bartholomew as the recipient of the Warren "Pete" Knowles Award.

Viola Frank, first vice president and co-chairman of the club's recent fashion show and luncheon, thanked the committee for making the spring event so successful. About $1,500 was cleared for the club's education program.

The president announced that two $1,000 scholarships were presented to two Seminole High seniors in honor of the club from the Lake Mary-Heathrow Festival of the Arts.

Pats Elder, second vice president, welcomed a new member to the club: Ellen Rollins, who heads up the "Senior Friends" program at Central Florida Regional Hospital.

Kathy Kramoff, center sponsor to the Sanford Junior Women's Club, reported on the Juniors' activities. The mother-daughter tea has been postponed to a later date and invitations will be sent out. Kathy also reported that both clubs will be among the hosts at a "bag race" to benefit Camp Challenge on May 25 at the camp. Activities will get under way at 10 a.m. and last until about 6 p.m. Barbecue, at $5 per person, will be served during this time. There will also be games, a flea market, a plant sale and other activities. More on this later.

Rose Jacobson, chairman of the public affairs department, reminded members that Family Fun Fest, under the auspices of Sanford Main Street, will be held May 17 and 18 at Fort Mellon Park.

Frances Webster announced the next Epillon Sigma Omicron meeting will be held at the home of Emy Sokol. Libby Prevatt told members the next Bridge Social will be held at the home of Dibs McElrath. The club will host the Seminole County Federation of Women's Club meeting at the clubhouse on May 20.

President Lash named Viola Frank as the recipient of the president's Sharing and Caring Award for April. Viola was cited for her outstanding dedication and devotion to the club.

The clubhouse was decorated in a beautiful spring motif by Martha Stevens, chairman of the hostesses and her committee: Eve Rogers, co-chairman; Doris Stein, Rose Jacobson, Mary Tills and Vivian Buck.

Following the June meeting, at which time officers will be installed, the club will recess until October.

Nellie Coleman honored on her birthday

Elegance in all its glory was reflected Thursday, April 25, at the beautiful Mayfair home of Jewell Williams. The occasion was a surprise birthday party to honor her sister-in-law, Nellie Coleman. Assisting Jewell as co-hostess was Nellie's sister, Sue Elsie of New Smyrna Beach and Aurora, Ohio.

About 25 friends were on hand to wish the surprised Nellie a happy birthday. The pretense was that Nellie and the two hostesses were going out to lunch. When they arrived back at Jewell's home, for Nellie, "It was such a surprise."

Nellie made no bones about her age. This was a very special day — her 85th birthday. Sanford will never forget the personable and popular educator who taught drama and Latin at Seminole High school for so many years. Upon retiring, Nellie took over a corner of Ace Hardware, owned by her husband, Boyd, for a gift business and later they successfully operated Gifts by Nan in downtown Sanford.

Nellie received a money tree decorated with colorful balloons and a number of colorful bouquets from friends.

The beautifully-appointed tables featured arrangements of spring flowers. A delicious and attractive cold plate including chicken salad, shrimp salad, a melon round stuffed with assorted fruits and topped with a large red strawberry and rolls was served by the hostesses.

After luncheon, the large artistically decorated birthday cake was cut and served with coffee. Assisting the hostesses was Ed Elsie, Sue's husband, a retired attorney, who seemed to be having a lot of fun pampering the guests.

Invited to join the hostesses and guest of honor were: Jean Morris, Glynn Brockman,

Visitors were: Cheryl Jones, Mary Joyce Bateman, Denise Suzain, Ruby King and her sister Hazel Fowler of Tennessee, Annette Jones, June Winn, Mary Nancy Terwilliger, Boo Ganas, Lucy McLeod, Martha Vihlen, Ginny Wadekind, Shirley Schilke, Rusie Deane, Mary Ellen Martina and this writer.

The theme was Pilot — the Key to Success. Speakers included Clare Rice, a neuro-linguistic programmer, and Chris Cosner Sizemore, author of "I'm Eve."

The convention also included the annual meeting of the Florida Pilot Scholarship Foundation. Florida Pilots provide a scholarship residential house at UF and FSU.

The Sanford club received a three-star recognition for accomplishments and activities during the past year. Ruth Gaines was appointed Florida senior programs representative.

'Lime in Coconut' thrills audience

Boy Scout Pack 548 held its monthly pack meeting on Wednesday, April 26, at Lake Mary Elementary. One den presented a skit to be able to attract a girl. Den 548-1, 'Lime in Coconut', was in charge of the big event. The skit was presented to the boys, 'Lime in the Coconut' a skit for the audience.

The skit and their skitings also learned how to make popcorn and a straw, paper plate and construction paper. The skit got the knowledge to use the Boy Scout Pack 548. The pack had a lunch, then the parents took home a bag of popcorn and a straw and a paper plate to make the popcorn.

Performing at girls in 'Coconut' are Mar Berry, Jean Nicks, Nichole Howard and Sarah Jones.

Sheriff speaks to CIA

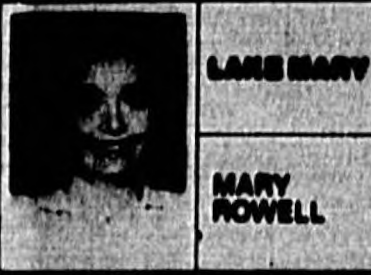

One of the speakers at the back of the Tabernacle, Lake Mary CIA We Love (presented by a heart shaped skit) was Sheriff Don Salinger. The front of the Tabernacle, Sheriff Salinger. The April meeting of the Lake Mary Community Improvement Association was held April 28, at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Building. Old Scouts from Troop 488 were on hand to present one of the Standard T-shirts to CIA President Sheila Sawyer. The girls also gave Sheila a ribbon and a certificate of appreciation for the CIA's sponsorship of the local Girl Scout's Olympics.

Special guest for the meeting was Sheriff Don Salinger who told members about some of the programs offered by the Sheriff's Office. One of the programs is "DC", Daily Call, a computerized system which accepts calls from individuals to notify the sheriff's department that they are okay. This service is designed for people who live alone, have a family member in ill health, or is homebound. You call DC between 6:00 p.m. and 7:00 a.m. each day and tell the computer you're okay. If you don't call, the computer calls you. If you don't answer, the computer calls your contact person. If the computer can't get your contact person, a Sheriff's deputy comes to your home to check on you. So, for instance, if you slip and fall in the bathtub, you don't have to lie there for days waiting for someone to come. Daily Call will call you and help you get help.

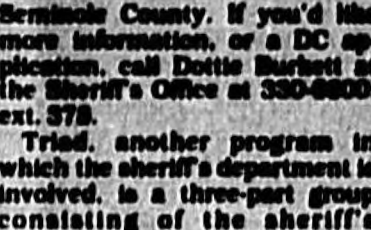

What do you need to join DC? A computer phone, a modem, a computer, and a connection with rotary phones. And of course, you must be a resident of Seminole County. If you'd like more information, or a DC application, call Dottie Barbet at the Sheriff's Office at 330-8800, ext. 372.

Triad, another program in which the sheriff's department is involved, is a three-part group consisting of the sheriff's department, the chiefs of police within the county and a senior citizens group. The purpose of Triad is crime prevention and educational programs for senior citizens of the community. Better informed citizens are less likely to be victims of crimes.

The next meeting of the Lake Mary CIA will be in July.

'Spuds in Space' wins two first place awards

"Spuds in Space" is the name of the science project that Meg Andrews submitted to the Seminole County Science Fair and she won first place. This award provided eligibility to compete in the 41st Annual State Science and Engineering Fair of Florida where she was awarded first place in the Junior Division of the Earth and Space category.

"Spuds in Space" is actually a three-year project. As a 6th grader, Meg tried to find a use for mixed colored recycled glass and tried using this as a growing medium for plants. The ultimate goal is to grow in Space. Although this project was successful, it did spur her interest in growing plants in space. This project received an Honorable Mention at her school, Rock Lake Middle School.

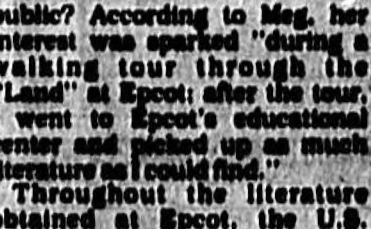

The second year project used glass and added the hydroponic system. The goal again is to establish the best process for growing plants in Space, while trying to find a use for the multi-colored glass. This project took her to the State competition where she placed 4th and she was thrilled.

This year's project, the third year, hypothesized "that a system could be developed to grow sweet potatoes hydroponically with the utilization of pressure on the root system where the tuber develops." What Meg did involved "building a machine to apply pressure to the roots of the plant by the hydroponic system which would simulate the pressure that is typically applied to the roots by the soil." Again, the ultimate goal is to grow plants in space, particularly now, the tuber plants, the sweet potato.

How did Meg Andrews develop her interest? Her contacts and past research, information on ideas and processes that are not even available to the general

Dean Reynolds displays rugs and wall hangings he has created in his spare time.

Latch hook creations are flattering to any decor

By GAYLE WATKINS
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Dean Reynolds has become very good with his hobby of latch hook and plastic canvas. Much of his work has been displayed or sold throughout the area and out of state, often to family and friends and other people to complete projects.

Reynolds began latch hook over 30 years ago. As a self-taught master of the trade, he has created rugs and wall hangings to flatter any decor.

The beautiful works of art range in size from 21 to 24 inches. First of the group was a gift to his mother. "I gave the first one I ever made to my mother," he said. "It was a latch hook of two owls."

One of his more unique pieces was named "an antique Bentley car with a chequer board border around it." The old Bentley is still treasured today.

Over 30 latch hook endeavors have been given to family and friends. He did admit selling a few at yard sales or to interested parties.

In some projects, Reynolds uses paper plates and Christmas tree ornaments. He confirmed that the holiday seemed brighter and jollier after two were presented for others.

"I do my work in my spare time," he said. "Sometimes I latch hook about one to two hours a day. Most projects take about a month to complete."

Reynolds noted that he hasn't finished all the latch hook work he wants to finish. "One day I want to make a big rug," he said. "It's made it out of these days. It will be a 26 by 70 size rug."

As for his plastic canvas creations Reynolds said "a friend taught" him the basics some 15 years ago. "My friend taught me the stitch," he said. "I have made a few of my own designs and the rest I taught myself."

From baskets, these holders, pencil holders, vases and coasters, Reynolds has tried his hand at all and then some. Baskets have been a big effort during various holidays.

"I made round baskets for all my grandchildren for Halloween," he said. "For the last five years I have made Easter baskets for my friends and my grandchildren."

He continued by saying, "If I get bored with one thing in the canvas I can go on to another. There's always more bits you can buy."

Reynolds did recommend "rod knot yarn" as his thread of choice. "I get it from department stores," he said. "I usually go with whoever has it on sale."

For holders of both kinds, Reynolds said he uses "rod knot yarn" and "rod knot yarn" (the others he said small).

Reynolds has been married to his wife, Ellen, for 31 years. He has three children, Cindy, Elmer and Jay and three grandchildren. They have lived in Sanford for eight years. Reynolds has been employed as a utility man for Canteen Corporation for two years.

S. The plants must be washed closely and all signs of fungus and insects must be checked in the early stages. A final project early in an early and a late from one during the plants out, then the project. King has already begun work on next year's project because she wants to make sure she has the best possible stock from which to begin her hydroponic system with its new and improved mechanisms. Her confidence about the possibilities for the future are strengthened growing a grafted tomato/peach plant, or actually growing plants in space, or creating sweet potato seeds.

The Awards were presented at Sea World and King was excited about not only her project but several others that she thought were especially progressive. The presentations are held from 10 to 11 a.m. and are very cooperative. When the North Award, the Honor Award, the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th Awards then the 1st. "After they announced the 1st Place Award winner, I said, 'I don't know anything, I was so busy, I didn't win anything and then they announced the 1st Place and my name and I was like so excited, I was just so excited," King Andrews won the Robert S. Murray Award, a $25.00 award for 1st Place in the South and Space category of the Junior Division of the 41st Annual State Science and Engineering Fair of Florida. As a 1st Place award winner at the Seminole County Science Fair, she won $50.00, a Certificate from NASA and a Certificate from the Air Force Academy. According to King, the best part about going to the State Competition was being able to study the High School competition; she observed the type of boards used, the usual number of exhibits, the average number of years studying a particular subject and adding on to it. The common number of words in a title, all types of observations were noted and recorded in her brain for future use, most notably were awards of scholarships, or jobs at NASA, North Space, and trips to study abroad.

Another wonderful award was bestowed on King Andrews this year as she is the Winner of the Daisy Drexler and Deer Award for 5th Grade at Rock Lake Middle School. She was also the 5th grade winner of the Drexler and Deer Award, and remember her name, because she will be making curves in the scientific world, the art world or journalistic centers around the world, or wherever she chooses to perform, a young and extremely talented person.

Gardners end year

Sweetwater Oaks Garden Club will end the year with a luncheon on May 13 at the Midland Sheraton Hotel, 11:30 a.m. A style show will be presented by Fashioning's and installation of the 1966-67 officers will be held.
