Child recovering from injury

Two-year-old Dalton Evans is home again this morning.
On Tuesday morning, the little boy slipped in the bathroom of his French Avenue home and hit his head.
According to a spokesman for the Arnold Palmer Hospital for Children and Women, a bolt protruding from the floor pierced his skull and came close to his brain. He was airlifted to the hospital and treated.
Hospital records indicate that the bolt did not reach the brain and that there has been no damage to the brain.
Evans was released from the hospital Wednesday afternoon.
His skull is fractured, but he is expected to make a full recovery, the hospital said.

Sunbeam could zap asteroid

TUCSON, Ariz. — An asteroid on a collision course with Earth could be diverted from its doomsday path by a concentrated sunbeam, researchers suggest.
Some researchers have proposed an orbiting nuclear bomb as the most practical way to slap away a threatening asteroid.
But two planetary scientists reported today in the British Journal Nature that a giant orbiting mirror could focus a light beam of sunlight on the asteroid, vaporizing enough of it to move it slowly aside.
H.J. Melosh of the University of Arizona said the idea he developed with L.V. Nemchinov of the Institute for Dynamics of Geospheres in Moscow is a safer alternative.
"The hazard of having a couple gigaton bombs in orbit around the Earth greatly exceeds the threat due to asteroids," Melosh said.
NASA estimates an asteroid of 1.2 miles in diameter will hit Earth once every 500,000 years, killing more than 1 billion people.

Secretary sues after finding video camera under her desk

SANTA ROSA, Calif. — A secretary who found a remote-controlled video camera hidden under her desk at the law firm where she worked has filed a sexual harassment claim against her employer.
Jackie Burgo, 36, discovered the camera on June 8 when she bent down to pick up something. The camera was in a plywood box fastened to the underside.
An attorney at the firm, Thomas Jeffrey, eventually admitted putting the camera there and was immediately fired, the woman's employer said. He also admitted drilling a peephole into the women's bathroom, the firm said.
She filed a sexual harassment claim with the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, and a stress-related workers compensation claim.

House bill passes; tougher laws for teens, parents

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

A compromise juvenile gun bill sponsored by Rep. Marvin Couch of Oviedo sailed through the state House but a Senate bill remained stuck in a committee as lawmakers debated how much money to spend on punishing kids who arm themselves.

Couch called an earlier version of the proposal that would have simply taken a juvenile's driver's license if found violating the law a "do nothing bill" and fought to tighten punishment. Couch proposed an amendment that was accepted that would require juveniles to be tried as adults on third or subsequent felony charges involving firearms.

The agenda of this week's special session includes strengthening state law to ban gun possession for anyone under the age of 18, except for hunting and marksmanship. Current law merely says anyone under the age of 16 must be accompanied by an adult while hunting.

Sentences: Teen-ager, 22 years; Billups, probation

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

A Sanford teen-ager and an ex-professional football player were sentenced Wednesday by Judge O.H. Eaton.

Ben Scott, 14, was sentenced to 22 years in prison and 15 years probation for second degree murder and attempted armed robbery. According to the negotiated plea agreement, Scott will serve the first six years as a minimum mandatory sentence for use of a firearm. No gain time or early release credits are earned during the minimum mandatory period.

Scott pleaded guilty in August to killing Mark Edward Marsh, 20, on a Sanford street in November last year. Scott's co-defendant, Terrance Brooks, 15, entered a no contest plea to second degree murder and attempted robbery with a firearm.

He is to receive a 9 year sentence with no minimum mandatory sentence followed by 15 years probation under a negotiated plea.

Former professional football player Lewis Billups will not have a criminal record on the local charge if he successfully completes his sentence for conspiracy to commit extortion.

Lewis Billups, 30, was sentenced Wednesday to administrative probation after pleading no contest to the charge last month. He also pleaded no contest to a reckless driving charge. Judge O.H. Eaton withheld adjudication of guilt.

Billups sentence, which included no jail time on the local charge, is to run concurrently with a federal sentence.

Assistant state attorney Stewart Stone explained under the plea, Billups will not lose his right to vote.

Paramedic says he got AIDS on job

MIAMI BEACH — A city paramedic suspects he contracted the HIV virus through an open wound while treating a stabbing victim.

The 30-year-old has applied for disability benefits and has taken paid sick leave for testing and counseling, City Manager Roger Carlton said.

The paramedic had a cut on his right arm that had not healed by April 5 when he assisted a combative stabbing victim who later revealed she had AIDS.

As of September, the national Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta had no documented cases of public safety workers becoming infected on the job, spokesman Russ Metler said.

Several public employees have claimed on-the-job infection, but the origin of the virus often is difficult to pinpoint.

In 1989, Hallandale firefighter Jon Gauthier was among the first firefighters to claim he had contracted AIDS through contact with bodily fluids on the job. The city disputed the claim but agreed a month before his death in 1991 to pay him a disability and pension settlement.

Medical records released by the city with whom Gauthier had a history of sexually transmitted diseases, putting him at a high risk for contracting HIV and casting doubt on his work-related claim.

Witness says he discussed bombing

MIAMI — A government witness in a Miami drug trial has testified he discussed the bombing of a Colombian jet liner with cocaine kingpin Pablo Escobar. The 1989 explosion on an Avianca jet killed 107.

Jimmy Ellard also said he talked with the Medellin cartel leader about the 1989 assassination of leading Colombian presidential candidate Luis Carlos Galan, and was offered $1 million to kill a top drug informant.

Ellard continued on the stand Wednesday in the trial of Rodney Matthews, a former U.S. Customs Service informant accused of smuggling more than 50 tons of cocaine into the United States in the 1980s. The two men were business partners.

On Tuesday, Ellard testified for prosecutors that he held several meetings with cartel leaders on Escobar's ranch. Once, he was asked to murder Max Mermelstein, former transportation captain for the cartel, who turned federal informant.

"The Medellin cartel offered me $1 million to kill him," Ellard told prosecutor Terry Thompson, but added he refused the deal.

Beached whale rushed to Marineland

PONTE VEDRA BEACH — The sole survivor of six pilot whales found beached has been rushed to Marineland of Florida where biologists will attempt to save its life.

A resident reported the sea mammals on Ponte Vedra Beach about 7 a.m., Lt. Jim Tillis of the Florida Marine Patrol said Wednesday.

Five of the animals were dead when officials arrived, Tillis said.

One 12-foot whale survived, and was loaded onto a trailer by Dr. Joanne Whaley of Marineland, located south of St. Augustine.

Ms. Whaley returned to Ponte Vedra Beach later Wednesday to perform necropsies on the five dead whales.

Bob Pickering, a lab technician at Marineland, said workers were in the tank with the surviving whale.

"It is lying on one side and we have to keep it upright so it can breathe," he said.

Pilot whales, members of the dolphin family ranging in size from 12 feet to 28 feet, travel in pods and follow a leader, even when it beaches. When that happens, the whole pod may die.

Spray paint possession criminal offense

MIAMI — Disgusted with offensive graffiti painted on buildings and highways throughout the county, Dade commissioners voted to make possession of spray paint a criminal offense for minors.

Under the new county ordinance passed Wednesday anyone under 18 could be arrested if they're caught with the paint or indelible-ink markers. It will take effect in 30 days.

Those convicted under the ordinance face up to 60 days in jail. They could also be subject to fines of up to $1,000, the forfeiture of their property and payment for the damage they did.

And shop owners have been banned from selling spray paint or permanent markers to minors if the customers are not under adult supervision. Violators could be fined up to $200.

Store owners will also have to display their spray paint and markers within clear view of a cashier or keep the goods locked up.

Crime pinches economy

Tourism drops 12 percent following slayings

By BILL KACZOR
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — State officials are playing down crime as a factor in a one-month drop in tourism, but they say it was at least partly responsible.

Florida hosted 3.2 million tourists in August, about 480,000, or 12 percent fewer than in the same month last year.

The reduction came in the midst of a series of highly publicized tourist murders.

"I think it would be inaccurate to attribute it all to this," Commerce Secretary Greg Farmer said Wednesday. "Clearly, part of the drop is due to the perception of crime in Florida."

"I think we are seeing some signs that this has cost us," said Gov. Lawton Chiles.

Farmer said tourism also suffered because of increased competition from other destinations, higher air fares and a stronger dollar that kept some foreigners away.

He said Florida was just one of many "sun destinations" that had a disappointing August. Smith Travel Research identified decreases in hotel and resort occupancy rates in Honolulu, Phoenix and San Diego as well as Orlando and Miami, Farmer said.

The August reduction broke a 13-month string of visitor increases in the Sunshine State. However, tourism for the first eight months of the year remained ahead of the same period in 1992 by 2.3 percent.

State tourism spokesman Gary Stogner noted the last prior slaying of a foreign visitor was in April, yet the overall tourism numbers remained up for May through July.

If crime had been the driving factor, the numbers should have dropped sooner, Stogner said.

Instead, he attributed the August downturn primarily to higher air fares, pointing out airlines had been in a fare war last year, boosting the August 1992 numbers.

Nine foreigners have been slain in Florida during the past year and others have been robbed or injured by criminals. In the latest slaying of a foreign tourist, four teens ranging in age from 13 to 16 were charged with murdering British visitor Gary Colley at a rest area on Interstate 10 near Tallahassee.

Catastrophe fund, reforms trigger problems in Senate

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — State lawmakers are stumbling ahead with efforts to establish a hurricane catastrophe fund and other insurance reforms while they argue over whether they are trying to protect consumers or insurance companies.

The Senate's version of a catastrophe fund to reimburse insurers for hurricane-related losses and other measures to improve the insurance market triggered a barrage of industry-bashing by Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher and House Insurance Committee Chairman John Cosgrove, D-Miami.

"My feeling is it's time to stand up for Florida and not lay down to special interests," said Cosgrove, who is seeking tougher regulations for insurers.

The House legislation pushed by Cosgrove is portrayed as protecting consumers, while the Senate bill was viewed as favoring the industry. The two chambers still must settle differences in the legislation before they send it to the governor. Industry representatives downplayed the disputes, saying they believed the Legislature will pass a catastrophe fund and other reforms before a statewide moratorium on policy cancellations expires Nov. 14. The measures are designed to prevent insurers from dropping between 700,000 and 844,000 policyholders.

The so-called "cat" fund passed by the House would be triggered when an insurer's claims exceeded two times the total annual premiums they collect from their customers. The fund will reimburse insurers for 75 percent of their losses above that amount. Allstate said it would back off its plan to cancel 300,000 policyholders if the House plan passed.

The Senate catastrophe fund was identical to the House bill until Senate members adopted a measure by GOP Sen. Locke Burt, an insurance executive from Ormond Beach, to increase the trigger to three times the total premiums collected by an insurer.

Burt said the increased trigger would force insurers to try to find conventional reinsurance and not rely on the state fund to pay its hurricane-related claims. Opponents said it would hurt the state's ability to attract more insurers.

Social workers air health care plan

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

ORLANDO — The Clinton administration is "open to discussion and to negotiation" and welcomes changes that strengthen its health care reform plan, Hillary Rodham Clinton says.

"But make no mistake," she cautioned in a special video hookup to an Orlando audience Wednesday. "There are six basic principles on which we will not compromise and on which our plan is based."

She then proceeded to outline the core of the Clinton plan to some 2,500 delegates to a convention of the National Association of Social Workers.

The long debate expected over the plan in Congress requires a united stand "against those who do not share our vision," Mrs. Clinton said. "Let's be very careful to scrutinize every (alternative) proposal."

As a founding member of a diverse coalition of consumers, businesses and organizations committed to reform, the NASW has its own proposal for change. But it supports the same principles outlined by President Clinton in presenting his American Health Security Act to Congress last week.

— Security for universal coverage that stresses preventive care and includes mental health and substance abuse benefits.

— Reduction of paperwork that saps the system of resources to take care of patients.

— More choices of health plans than are available now.

— Cost savings that can be better utilized to improve care. "The status quo will decrease quality and increase cost," Mrs. Clinton said.

— Quality standards and quality results.

— Responsibility at all levels from the individual through the providers of care.

Murder suspect arrested

Seminole County Sheriff's deputies officially arrested Richard Mims, 25, of Oviedo, on Tuesday. The grand jury had issued an indictment, charging him with first degree murder. Mims was already in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility on several other felony charges. Mims is accused of shooting to death Anthony Brooks on Oct. 10th. Mims had originally turned himself in at the Sheriff's Office on Oct. 11, and according to the original arrest report, gave a sworn statement that he did discharge a 22 caliber pistol two or three times into Brooks.

Mims was scheduled to make his initial court appearance yesterday afternoon.

Drug arrest

Lake Mary police arrested Lonnie Paul Griffin, 23, 314 Dorchester Square, at his residence Tuesday. Officers responding to a call regarding loud music coming from Griffin's home, uncovered what was proven to be marijuana, and drug paraphernalia in various areas of his home.

Police confiscated the items as well as $1,240 in currency. Griffin was charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute (approximately 128 grams), and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Capsule caper

Raymond J. Corno, 39, of Winter Springs, was arrested at a store on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Longwood by Longwood police Tuesday. Officers said he was held by a store security guard, after being seen reportedly trying to remove two boxes of capsules valued at $35.98 from the store without paying for them. Corno was charged with retail theft.

Traffic stop

Sanford police conducted a traffic stop in the 2500 block of Oak Avenue Tuesday, when a vehicle was seen with what was reported as a faulty exhaust system. The driver of the car, George Eugene Melton, 48, of 805 W. First Street in Sanford, was found to be a habitual traffic violator with his license suspended or revoked in the past. He was charged with driving with a suspended/revoked license.

Domestic case

Randy Edward Buck, 35, 100 Red Cedar Drive, Sanford, was arrested by Sanford police Tuesday at his residence following a dispute with a female. He was charged with domestic violence, battery.

Warrant arrests

Samuel William McClarien, 39, 2010 E. Summerlin Avenue, was arrested by sheriff's deputies at his residence Tuesday. He was wanted for violation of parole on a conviction of unemployment compensation fraud.

Hattie Oliver Hardy, 41, of 2832 Empire Place, Sanford, was found walking on Wylie Avenue by sheriff's deputies Tuesday. She was wanted on a warrant for obtaining property with a worthless check.

Raymond Norris, 36, 1106 Hickory Avenue, Sanford, was served a warrant at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility Tuesday. He was wanted for failure to appear on a charge of petit theft.

Renee Michelle Ware, 22, 1201 W. 7th Street, Sanford, was served a warrant at the jail Tuesday. She was wanted for obtaining property with a worthless check.

Prosecution: Playful toddler flees mother, is snatched by truants

By KARIN DAVIES
Associated Press Writer

PRESTON, England — Two-year-old James Bulger rode a seesaw, helped himself to candy and playfully ran away from his mother the day he was abducted from a shopping mall and killed by two 10-year-olds, prosecutors say.

James wandered away as his mother bought sausages at a butcher's shop. The boys lured him out of the mall to a railroad track, where they savagely beat him, poured paint in his eye and stripped him half-naked, the prosecution says.

Now 11, the boys are the youngest children to be charged in Britain with murder. They have pleaded innocent, though the prosecution says one confessed to the crime under police questioning.

The three boys' paths crossed at a shopping center in Liverpool on Feb. 12. James was taken on a shopping trip. The older boys, who may be identified by the media only as Child A and Child B, had skipped school.

In a police statement read to the court Wednesday, Mrs.

Bulger described her high-spirited son, who took candy from a store, tossed a fallen baby suit over his head and ate a sausage roll for lunch.

Nicola Bailey, who was with Mrs. Bulger the day James was abducted, said the boy kept breaking free from his mother.

"Denise told James off several times for this and had to smack his legs," Ms. Bailey said in her police statement, which also was read in court.

Mrs. Bulger, 25, is pregnant and has not attended the trial, which opened Monday. Her husband, Ralph, 26, skipped Wednesday's session to take his wife to a medical appointment.

With rapt attention, the court also watched a 16-minute videotape of James' last moments in the mall, compiled from several security cameras.

The tapes at the Liverpool shopping mall showed the two boys playing with James, then taking him out onto a busy street. Defense attorneys agreed with prosecutors that the boys in the tape were the two on trial.

Wuornos says 'execute me if appeal denied'

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Convicted serial killer Aileen Wuornos would rather die than wait in prison while lawyers appealed her death sentences, her attorney says.

Wuornos will try to speed up her execution if the Florida Supreme Court rejects appeals of her first-degree murder convictions, said Gainesville lawyer Steven Glazer.

The court heard arguments Wednesday in the first appeal on Wuornos' six murder convictions and death sentences. The hitchhiking prostitute was sentenced to death for robbing and killing six middle-aged men in 1989 and 1990.

Glazer said Wuornos will try to follow the same strategy used by Michael Durocher, who was the first Florida death row inmate executed on his initial death warrant Aug. 25 after opposing appeals on his behalf. Durocher was executed for the triple-murder of his girlfriend, his infant son and her daughter in November 1983.

Like Durocher, Wuornos does not want to be represented by Capital Collateral Representative, which serves Death Row inmates in appeals, said Glazer, who did not attend the Supreme Court arguments.

"The way she feels, she's had enough of this world. She's ready for the next," said Glazer, who said he spoke with Wuornos two weeks ago at Broward Correctional Institution in Pembroke Pines.

"She feels that nobody believes her story of self-defense," he said. "She doesn't want to go through the waiting."

Glazer said he believed it will take the Supreme Court a year or more to hear and rule on her appeals.

In oral arguments Wednesday, Chris Quarles, an assistant public defender in Volusia County, said Wuornos deserves another day in court because mistakes and evidence in her first trial hurt her chances to defend herself.

The oral arguments centered on her trial that resulted in her conviction and death sentence last year for the 1989 murder and robbery of Clearwater busnessmen Richard Mallory, who picked up Wuornos on Interstate 4 near Tampa. Wuornos testified she acted in self defense after Mallory raped her repeatedly.

After the guilty verdict, Wuornos pleaded guilty to robbing and killing five other middle-aged men who picked her up hitchhiking.

Quarles argued that Wuornos' lawyers objected and complained about the types of witnesses and evidence introduced by prosecutors in the trial for Mallory's murder, including testimony about other victims and photos of victims' bodies.

"The court shirked its responsibility and failed to make any findings" about the objections, Quarles told the jurists.

Margene Roper, an assistant attorney general, told the court that Wuornos' lawyers repeatedly complained about the trial but many of the objections were "not made in good faith." She said the evidence that convicted Wuornos of killing Mallory showed "a cold deliberate act of murder."

Fire control: learn by example

The tragic fires which have destroyed thousands of acres in California, can be used as a warning. Damage has been estimated in hundreds of millions of dollars.

Perhaps looking at the California fires, we can also use them as encouragement to make our areas more fire-proof.

Hopefully, this area of Central Florida will never have such mass fire destruction. It is not impossible however, and everyone must be as prepared as possible.

Preparation does not necessarily mean the installation of fire alarms. Fire alarms are necessary however, and should be in every home and business. Owners must be certain they are in operating condition at all times.

In cases of forest fires such as those in California, an alarm would do little in the way of warning, except to indicate where a new blaze may have started.

What is needed to protect property against forest fires is a cleared area.

We have many residential areas where there are very few trees and shrubs may only be required in beautification buffer zones. Some homes however, are in the more rural areas, or were built in woods for the sake of giving a rural appearance.

In cases such as these, forestry officials suggest a minimum of 30 feet of cleared area should be maintained around all structures. In cases where some of the trees are larger, an even wider distance may be necessary.

Water with which to fight a blaze should also be a consideration. For homes near a lake or river, some type of pumping mechanism could provide a water spray in an emergency situation.

For homes in non-wooded areas, removal of dead leaves, branches and shrubs is also a good recommendation. While fire may flow easily through woods, it can also cover a great deal of ground if given dry leaves as fuel.

Prepare for the possibility of a forest-type fire, and over the months and years ahead, continue exercising all safety precautions.

School district job

I am writing to you today not just as a Seminole County resident and a parent with children in Seminole County schools but as a friend of Rebecca (Becky) Presley. I am concerned about the problems going on in the maintenance department of the school board. Let me explain a few of the basics as far as I know.

Last year, Becky applied for the landscape mechanic's job when it was posted. Following the promotion process that was then in place, she was told that she had won the job. The day before it was to be approved by the school board, Dr. Hagerty had a meeting with several disgruntled employees and the union representative. Dr. Hagerty has stated that up until that meeting he was going to approve Becky for the job. After the meeting, he changed his mind and put the job on hold.

Becky was unable to find out any reason why she did not get the job when everyone agreed that she was more than qualified. This went on for quite some time.

Becky felt that she had been cheated out of a job that she felt she deserved and could do, so she filed a suit against the school board and the union. After spending over $10,000 of her own money and many months of anguish, she did lose the case.

A couple of weeks ago, the job was again posted. This time the promotion process had been changed at the request of union representatives. Again, Becky came out as the top person for the job. It was announced to everyone that she had the job.

But then Dr. Hagerty had another meeting with the union representative and some employees and Becky was told that he (Dr. Hagerty) was not aware that the job had been posted, he had not authorized it to be filled and that she did not have the job.

I find it hard to believe that he could feel that everyone is gullible enough to believe that he did not know the job was to be posted. If in fact he did not know, then he most certainly is not aware of what is going on at the school board.

Becky has been humiliated twice now and made the brunt of a conflict between management and the union. The same union that is supposed to protect her rights is going against her. There are several troublemakers that hold a personal grudge against Becky that really have nothing to do with her ability to do the job.

I have known the Presleys for almost 20 years. Becky is one of the most honest, hardworking people I've ever met. She is more than qualified for this job. She has taken classes at the community college at her own expense in order to learn more about landscaping, etc. She has done several jobs for my real estate company on her own time as far as landscaping and lawn maintenance.

I feel that she has been put through more, than most people could stand. During all this turmoil of the past year, she has been on the job doing the best job possible. She has done nothing to incur the humiliation and anguish that has been put upon her.

Congress: Say yes to free trade pact

Both Houses of Congress will shortly vote to approve or reject the North American Free Trade Agreement, and it is time for everyone interested in public affairs in this country to stand up and be counted on the issue. Let me, then, go on record as urging Congress to approve NAFTA.

One of the great central themes of modern American conservatism has been the preferability of free trade to protectionism. The basic analysis goes back to Adam Smith: Everyone is better off in the long run when markets, rather than governments, determine prices. A tariff on Italian shoes (for example) "protects" American shoe manufacturers, but results in every American paying more for shoes than would otherwise be the case. The same goes for men's shirts, automobiles, and indeed every other commodity.

Letting the international market determine prices, on the other hand, results over time in each nation concentrating on those things that it can do best and least cheaply -- to the benefit of buyers everywhere.

What has happened in recent years is that, thanks to technology, the nature of what America can do best has been shifting: from basic manufacturing (at which many other countries can now compete with us successfully) to all sorts of high-tech enterprises at which we can run circles around almost everybody else. This has unquestionably resulted in a certain amount of damage to some traditional American businesses, and will inevitably result in a certain amount more if it is allowed to continue (as NAFTA would do).

The only alternative, however, is to rig the market to "protect" politically powerful American businesses, to the immediate detriment of consumers and the long-range detriment of the entire American economy, which would be doomed to continue outdated economic practices while the world outside rushed on to a more efficient future.

If we have the courage to lower the barriers to free trade with our North American neighbors, our economy will right itself again swiftly and generate far more jobs than will be lost.

Naturally the big unions dread NAFTA -- not so much because existing union jobs will be lost but because they can't be sure of unionizing the tremendous number of new jobs that will be created. So President Clinton, who is in bed with the unions on just about everything else, is totally dependent on Republican votes to pull NAFTA through both the House and the Senate.

I hope he gets them. This is no time to play politics. If the Republicans join the majority of their Democratic colleagues in shooting NAFTA down, there will, to be sure, be a certain amount of egg on President Clinton's face. But long after it has disappeared, the historians of our time will remember and say that on this major issue the congressional Republicans simply and cynically abandoned their constituents.

I am well aware that some conservatives fear that the so-called "side agreements" (on the environment, etc.) that Mr. Clinton has negotiated in order to placate his Democratic critics have turned an essentially good arrangement into an engine for international control of important economic decisions. But the arguments are dubious, the alleged damage is remediable, and the benefits of NAFTA vastly outweigh minor objections to it.

Let me, then, go on record as urging Congress to approve NAFTA.

Fact finding on NAFTA trail

We are tracking, today, one liberal's independent odyssey to judgment along the old NAFTA trail.

It's my trip -- and it starts with those dueling television ads chocked full of statistics that alternately shriek "Apocalypse Manana!" or promise that prosperity is just around our southernmost corner. They focus on what will happen once we enact the North American Free Trade Agreement, which will basically eliminate tariffs between the participants. America now charges an average tariff on imports of 4 percent; Mexico's is more than two and a half times higher.

Click: "Economists who've studied job loss say we'll lose up to 500,000 jobs to NAFTA ... NAFTA: It's a bad deal for America and Americans know it." That's the doomsday scenario served up by the AFL-CIO.

Click: "What would you think if the United States made an agreement that saved 700,000 American jobs and created 200,000 new jobs?... NAFTA: Good for jobs, good for us." So claims the TV ad paid for by a group of U.S. corporations that call themselves USA-NAFTA.

The numbers in both ads contain only a touch of truth. They draw upon the worst- and best-case scenarios that the ad makers could find. They should be labeled "GDP" -- Gross Distortion Pleading. It is the new way ad makers lie to us without lying.

Check it out: The AFL-CIO ad's claim of 500,000 jobs lost was based upon a prediction made by the Economic Policy Institute, a liberal think tank that gets large funds from organized labor. It assumes American companies will invest a whopping $44 billion to shift jobs to Mexico -- an assumption shared by few other economists.

Check it out: The corporate ad makers' claim of saving 700,000 jobs is based upon a government figure of U.S. jobs "supported by" the $40.6 billion in U.S. exports to Mexico last year -- as if those exports would disappear if NAFTA were to be defeated.

Some 300 economists, both liberals and conservatives, have signed a letter to President Clinton supporting NAFTA. They reviewed dozens of analyses and wrote: "The effects on the U.S. economy -- both good and bad -- would be small for many years."

Here is what we know: We have this increasing problem: Thousands of jobs have already gone south, from the United States to Mexico -- without NAFTA. U.S. companies are finding it advantageous to move production to Mexico, where minimum wages are so much lower and companies are required to spend little or nothing on environmental cleanup -- without NAFTA.

We have this potential: Exports worldwide have generated nearly all of America's new manufacturing jobs, writes Paula Stern of the Progressive Policy Institute, a Democratic-oriented think tank that supports NAFTA. And since Mexico began to open its trade policies in 1987, U.S. exports there have tripled. In 1992, Mexico became the third largest market for U.S. exports and "surpassed Japan to become the second largest for U.S. manufactured goods."

We have this chance at leverage: Under side agreements that Clinton negotiated, NAFTA will require Mexican industries to make modest increases in environmental cleanup. And it led Mexico's President Carlos Salinas to promise (albeit, it's no mandate) to increase Mexico's minimum wage.

We need to enact NAFTA as a best hope for America's working men and women in this era of global economy. And we need a new generation of progressive labor leaders who can forcefully pressure the president and Congress to meet tomorrow's test. That test: When the macro-economists total their numbers and report NAFTA indeed produced a net positive impact -- a net gain of jobs -- we must remember the thousands whose jobs will indeed be lost to Mexico, as thousands have been before NAFTA.

For them, NAFTA's negative impact will be 100 percent. And the president, Congress, the corporate leaders and labor leaders, need to sign on -- now! -- to a compact to retrain and reemploy those who lose their jobs to secure America's net gain.

The numbers in both ads contain only a touch of truth.

Free speech is compromised

After 202 years of fitful existence, the First Amendment to the United States Constitution could soon fall victim to a bunch of rapacious moguls who specialize in mayhem and murder.

Attorney General Janet Reno didn't put it quite like that during a recent Senate hearing on three bills that would regulate television violence, but to free speech freaks like myself, it amounts to the same thing. "The regulation of violence is constitutionally permissible," she said.

She also said: "My instincts militate against governmental involvement in this area. The best solutions lie with industry officials, parents and educators. But if... voluntary steps are not taken and a deadline is established, government should respond."

The hallowed principles of free speech and press that survived espionage acts, obscenity laws, sedition statutes, A. Mitchell Palmer, Joe McCarthy and Richard Nixon may now be felled by a handful of greedy television tycoons.

What a revolting prospect. For four decades, the networks have been beating and bombing and shooting and stabbing their characters with increasing abandon, even as critics were warning them to cool their lust for blood money. Three thousand studies have documented some sort of link between reel violence and real violence. The American Psychological Association estimates that children in this country witness 8,000 murders and 100,000 acts of violence before they finish elementary school.

It's just too much, said the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence in 1969, the Surgeon General in 1972, the National Institute of Mental Health in 1982, the U.S. Attorney General's Task Force on Family Violence in 1984, the National Parent/Teacher Association in 1987 and the APA in 1992.

And how did the media barons respond? During last May's "sweeps," they collectively broadcast what is commonly regarded as the most violent month in television history.

Hence the continued interest in regulation. Can anti-violence laws be written that would transcend the constitutional guarantees of free speech and press? If you don't mind destroying these precious precepts in the process, probably.

The Communications Act of 1934, the basis of all broadcast regulation, is rooted in the notion that the public "owns" the airwaves and that the government may regulate their use in the "public interest." The Supreme Court has upheld this principle on several occasions, and in 1978 it ruled that the Federal Communications Commission could regulate "indecent" broadcasts in the interest of, among other things, protecting children.

Justice John Paul Stevens held that "patently offensive, indecent material presented over the airwaves confronts the citizen, not only in public, but also in the privacy of the home, where the individual's right to be let alone plainly outweighs the First Amendment rights of an intruder."

Stevens further ruled that broadcast material is "uniquely accessible to children, even those too young to read," and that it can be regulated to protect them.

Can it not be argued that televised carnage is "patently offensive?" I think so. I also don't see why cable television cannot be regulated, since operators receive the programming they distribute to their customers via the public's airwaves.

The First Amendment could soon fall victim to a bunch of rapacious moguls who specialize in mayhem and murder.

Crime

The issue was added to the agenda in the wake of high-profile crime cases involving teenagers, including some against foreign tourists.

One section of the compromise bill (CS-11B 91 C) passed Wednesday by the House gives judges the option of ordering parents to do 100 hours of community service along with their children if the teens are convicted of illegal possession.

That's something some judges already are doing, but they felt they were on uncharted waters, said Rep. Buzz Ritchie, D-Pensacola.

"We've set the stage to be tough on crime," said Rep. Willie Logan, D-Opa Locka. The House bill has a price tag of $837,000 to staff more detention beds.

The estimated cost of the Senate bill, meanwhile, dropped Wednesday from $60 million to $22 million with modifications and fiscal proposals today to bring it down to $5 million.

"Everybody's all over the place on this," Sen. Ronald Silver, D-North Miami Beach, said. "Some want less, some want more."

Gov. Lawton Chiles and the legislative leaders have agreed to wait for the 60-day session that begins in February for comprehensive review of the juvenile justice system.

The Senate plan originally called for mandatory detention of teen felons convicted of gun possession.

The detention sentence would have to be at least 10 days for a first offense and 20 days for a second offense. And that was on top of detention waiting for trial and sentencing.

Since Florida already has a waiting list for its five detention centers, more beds would have to be built under the Senate plan. A staff analysis of the proposal put the one-year cost of building and running the beds at $60 million.

Silver offered to change the bill (CS-SB 10-C) in a couple of ways. The first amendment gives judges the flexibility to credit teen-age felons caught with guns with time served. The second change was to make the 10-day and 20-day detention sentences a cap as well as a floor.

That brought the price tag down to $20 million.

The Appropriations Committee approved those changes but some lawmakers continued to express concern about spending that much money without a full review of the juvenile justice system.

Information from the Associated Press is contained in this report.

establish a dedicated funding source for the massive stormwater needs of the county, which could cost more than $100 million during the next 20 years. In 1991 and 1992, they choose not to adopt a per-lot fee to pay for the expense and instead use property taxes. Such a fee is now charged in all seven cities of the county.

This year, County Manager Ron Rabun proposed a hike in the unincorporated utility tax to pay the expenses, but on a recommendation from commissioner Larry Furlong, commissioners decided to cut their $5.6 million emergency reserve fund to $2.8 million to pay the expense.

Pam Hastings, capitol programs analyst, told commissioners she wasn't promoting the special tax, but if commissioners wanted it as an option during next summer's budget discussions, the district must be created prior to Jan. 1, 1994. A public hearing on the district — not the tax — would be held in December.

"I have no problem considering it as an option, but I don't want to signal you to prepare the budget with this in it," said Furlong.

"I'll take any option," answered Rabun. "I'm not sure the option we chose this year was the best."

serve on a jury or other civil liberties. However, should he get into trouble in the state, the conspiracy case would be scored for sentencing purposes.

The federal charge against Billups was for threatening to end the career of professional basketball player Rex Chapman over interstate telephone lines.

Billups and his roommate Gregory Calloway were originally charged with sexual battery on an impaired female, extortion, conspiracy to commit extortion and burglary of a conspiracy. None of the remaining charges will be prosecuted.

Calloway was sentenced to two years probation and fined $1,000 when he pleaded no contest to extortion. He was adjudicated guilty and ordered not to have contact with Billups or the victim.

information manager, and management consultant.

Her background in historic areas includes development and co-authoring "Old North Knoxville Historic District Design Guidelines," a feasibility study on bed & breakfast establishments, and participation of a team research project for the growth of the City of Rockwood, Tenn.

"This is not an announcement saying that we are hiring Fulton," said Chris Cranias, Sanford Main Street President. "The position we are in at present is that we have interviewed her, given her serious consideration, and are sending her an offer. It will be up to her to accept it, then we will have to get all of the paperwork done before we can officially say we have a manager and have her move down here."

As outlined in previous plans, the salary for the position has been set at $30,000 per year. Should Fulton accept the offer and start later in the fiscal year, the salary is expected to be reduced according to that time period.

Fulton was not among a group of five finalists selected several months ago. Included among the original group was Jayna Hamel, Main Street manager in Auburndale, Cranias said. "We made her an offer, but Auburndale turned around and gave her an increase in wages, which she just couldn't refuse."

Other people in original list were from New Smyrna Beach, Palm Beach, Maitland, and Daytona Beach.

"Since then," Cranias said, "we've interviewed four more people, including Fulton, who came down from Tennessee just last Thursday to meet with us."

Sanford was selected as a Florida Main Street Community on Aug. 24, after an extensive review by a selection panel.

The selection of a manager however, has been a long process. It was originally hoped that a new manager could be announced during a fund-raising cruise on the RiverShip Grand Romance on Sept. 26.

No decision had been made at that time however, and it was decided that the announcement should wait until the official declaration of Sanford as a Main Street Community was held in a function at Sanford City Hall.

On Sept. 30, Florida Secretary of State Jim Smith came to Sanford to present the official Main Street plaque to Cranias and Mayor Bettye Smith. With still no decision made, the planned announcement of a manager was again postponed.

Cranias indicated that official word on the selection will be made as soon as the applicant, (whoever it may be) and the Sanford Main Street organization reach agreements.

The Main Street program has revitalized over 700 small cities across the nation including 29 in the Florida Main Street program. Main Street officials say it has created almost $2 billion in reinvestment and tens of thousands of jobs in designated cities.

Other Main Street cities in the area include DeLand, New Smyrna Beach, Ocala and Titusville.

in the job market.

All four teachers work in the school's Academy of Health Careers. They are math and science teachers.

"They have to be able to tell their students how they will be able to use what they are learning in the classroom after graduation," Nancy Julian, director of the Academy, said. "A student who hopes to be a physician, for example, may be unsure why they have to learn algebra. If the teacher can tell them, from first hand experience, why they need it, it will be so much better."

Following a breakfast with HCA Central Florida Regional Hospital administrators, the teacher-interns were assigned to a pair of physicians.

The participating physicians are Orlando Garcia-Piedra, MD; Edward Scanlon, MD; Michael Smigielski, MD; P. Travis Smith, MD; Lawrence Vallario, MD; and Brenda Baracka, MD.

They were to have spent today with one doctor and Tuesday with the other. They will follow the physicians on their daily rounds as they visit patients, perform surgery, take emergency calls and care for patients.

"This is a unique educational opportunity for the teachers as well as for their students," said

Jane Lane of the Dividends School Volunteer program, who helped organize the program. "The experience they will be able to bring back to their students is invaluable."

According to Lane, the purpose of the mini-internships is two-fold. The teachers will gain a better understanding of the various aspects of the health care industry. By having that understanding, she said, the teachers will be able to make their curriculum more relevant to the students' needs.

"The curriculum is constantly being updated and revised to meet the changing needs of the students who hope to enter the health-related fields," she explained. "This will help them do that."

At the same time, the teachers will be exposed to the latest modern technology. They will learn the importance of this technology for quality patient care, she said, and will see how political and economic decisions impact the care patients receive.

"In the classroom, teachers don't see what is happening in the field. This helps them do that," Lane said.

Lane added that the school district is working on a plan that will allow students to do similar mini-internships. She said she hopes have that program in place by the spring.

state property.

Warren declined to name the property and said she was not critical of the program, but wanted assurance that it was being run according to voters' acceptance in November 1990.

"I wanted to be real sure the money is being used according to what was approved by the voters," said Warren. "I don't have a problem with the program, but I want to be sure it is being used to protect the environment or water recharge areas."

Coleen Logan, county natural lands planner, said some properties at the lowest ranking in the 40-item list may be flooded during certain times of the year, including Grassy Point in Lake Monroe. Logan said their ranking was low because of the unlikelyhood of development.

Assistant County Attorney Lonnie Groot said the county does acquire title to lands which ultimately may be state sovereign lands, but does so because the low value of the land is often less costly than the expensive surveys and possible litigation over the boundary determination.

Dan Peyton, a St. Johns River Water Management District land acquisition agent, said the district is prevented by state law from acquiring sovereign lands, but wetlands and water bodies may serve to increase the price of non-sovereign lands.

Groot also cited the Chira property in Spring Hammock, which the county had decided was undevelopable. Courts later declared the position amounted to a taking of property rights. The county subsequently bought the five acres for $425,000 to settle the case.

Commissioners will later consider the costs to maintain the lands, once they're purchased. Logan said the Boy Scouts have offered to maintain Camp Hedrick if the county buys it. Warren suggested using $5 million of the land bond money for maintenance, but Groot said such a use would violate the bond and referendum restrictions.

Frances Chandler, county comprehensive planning manager, said the county can use the bond money to prepare management plans for the properties, but not to conduct the actual long-range care-taking. Land maintenance can include controlled burning or clearing to remove unwanted plants from a habitat.

NRA donations—United Way

By DAVID WILKISON
Associated Press Writer

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. — The National Rifle Association is encouraging members to donate to the organization through the United Way, disturbing some United Way officials.

"There are so many important matters that need to be addressed," said Pete Prokopchuk of the United Way chapter in Morgantown. "People cutting, getting shoes on their feet, clothing and a warm place to live seem like a better place for the money."

The NRA Foundation, the NRA's fundraising arm, says it's just as worthy as other nonprofit groups supported by the United Way and that many of its 3.3 million members have been making donations that way for years.

The United Way's 2,100 autonomous chapters collect donations and distribute them to thousands of local charities. Each chapter decides which charities are eligible, and contributors can designate where they want their money to go.

The recipient groups must be non-profit and, generally, health- or social service-oriented. The United Way also favors groups that operate in the community served by the chapter.

In October issues of the American Rifleman and the American Hunter magazines, the NRA Foundation included pull-out cards asking members to support the NRA through their local United Way. It said donations will go toward community programs such as gun safety, wildlife conservation and recreational shooting. Joe Suarez, director of donor marketing for the NRA Foundation in Fairfax, Va., said checks have been "rolling in the doors" for several years via the United Way.

He said the NRA provides a vital service and that its safety and educational programs are not unlike those offered by the American Cancer Society or the American Heart Association.

"A free and democratic society should have that option to select who they want their hard-earned dollars to go to," Suarez said. "While some United Way chapters do pass along donations earmarked for the NRA, citing its non-profit status, most balk at the prospect."

"It's not a matter of pro or con. It's a matter of what fits our mission," said Mary Lance, spokeswoman for the United Way chapter in San Antonio.

The United Way in Macon, Ga., had to tell about a dozen people it could not accept donations for the NRA because it was not one of the chapter's designated charities, spokeswoman Betsey Bell said.

In Morgantown, Prokopchuk said: "Minutely, technically it qualifies, but it isn't the intention of the United Way. It kind of defeats the purpose."

The United Way national organization, United Way of America, mailed guidelines to its chapters on how to handle such donations.

"The bottom line is. It's their decision to make whether to make this donation or not," said Claire Austin, a spokeswoman for the Alexandria, Va., organization.

Low-paid Mexicans hope for better under NAFTA

By BILL CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY — Antonio Gonzalez Rodriguez makes $12 a day, cutting steel sheets that are welded into gas tanks at the Armebe Metallica plant in Mexico City. He makes what his American counterpart makes in an hour.

Low Mexican wages are at the center of debate over the North American Free Trade Agreement, sent by President Clinton to the U.S. Congress on Wednesday. The House votes on the agreement Nov. 17.

Gonzalez counts himself lucky to earn $240 a month, nearly three times the minimum wage of $4.50 a day.

"It's not a lot but it just about pays the bills," said Gonzalez, 25, who has two children and a third on the way. "Sometimes, though, it's a struggle to buy new shoes for the kids."

"We eat well enough: bread, vegetables, frijoles (beans) and rice. Sometimes we even eat meat," said Gonzalez. But little is left after paying for groceries, clothes and his wife's prenatal checkups.

Critics complain that Mexico will steal thousands of American jobs. But NAFTA supporters scoff at suggestions most Mexicans work and live in extreme poverty, and say NAFTA will actually help raise Mexican wages.

"I have heard about the treaty, some good things, so maybe it will help bring more jobs or better paying jobs," said Gonzalez, grim-aced from making gas tanks for buses, trucks and stoves.

Government statistics show 20 percent of the workforce in this nation of 85 million earn only the minimum wage. "Many simply won't work for that," said Mexico City merchant Delino Ochoa, "so we pay our janitors double that."

The U.N. Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean reported in October that Mexican living standards are rising under the free-market reforms of President Carlos Salinas de Gortari.

It said 13.6 million Mexicans, 16 percent of the population, live in extreme poverty, down from 15 million in 1989. But another 23.6 million like Gonzalez are struggling, according to the commission.

If Gonzalez paid what he would be broke; his two-room cinderblock house in a poor barrio belongs to his father. Many younger workers live packed with parents or relatives to avoid rents of about $130 a month.

Literally cutting corners, he walks more than 10 blocks to work to avoid a 32-cent bus fare. His family can rarely afford the movies.

At least his job is steady and secure — he can't be fired without cause or severance pay, though many others get hired and paid by the day.

But the lot of workers is improving after Salinas hiked the minimum wage by 9.5 percent last month on the strength of lowered inflation and the selloff of hundreds of inefficient state enterprises.

Few, however, expect wages to rise to American levels.

"Wages will go up, but not too much, otherwise Japan will eat our lunch," said Michael Allen, the head of a pro-NAFTA business group in Texas, the Economic Development Corp. He argued that U.S. manufacturers stand to reap big profits from cheaper Mexican labor, while also selling more to Mexico in a tariff-free future. Opponents argue businesses may win while American jobs lose out.

The Institute for International Economics estimates Mexico will gain 600,000 short-term jobs and that 175,000 new U.S. jobs will be created by 1995 because of more exports to Mexico.

Treaty backers also argue that overregulation and antiquated labor laws will block a job rush, not to mention creaky ports, roads and rails that slow delivery of raw products and finished goods.

"The script Americans have been given is that everyone will relocate here because labor costs are so much lower," said Jerry Pacheco, New Mexico's trade envoy. "But why haven't American jobs already gone to Taiwan?"

Worker productivity, for one. Gonzalez is often tired when he gets home, and like fellow factory workers burdened with the daily struggle, his productivity is lower than American counterparts.

But he said as he sweated over steel, "This is a lot better than crossing the border, though you do work nine hours a day with only a half-hour lunch break. At least I have my family."

Now NAFTA's fate is before an undecided U.S. Congress with constituent mail running heavily against.

"Some of us have difficulties with NAFTA because of the possible displacement of our own workers," said wavering Republican David Hobson of Ohio. "But we must have some agreement for the benefit of our hemisphere."

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

Youth hoops at YMCA

LAKE MARY — The Seminole County YMCA is registering boys and girls interested in participating in its Youth Basketball League. Leagues are available for children from kindergarten through high school. Also, adult volunteers are needed to coach teams or referee games. To register your child or volunteer, call the YMCA at 321-8944.

YMCA offers adult basketball

LAKE MARY — Registration is now available for anyone wishing to participate in the Seminole County YMCA's next adult 3-on-3 basketball league. The league, which will have an eight-week season beginning Sunday, Dec. 4, will be played on Sunday nights at area high schools. A single-elimination tournament will follow the regular season. Registration fees are $22.50 for YMCA members or $37.50 for non-members. Participants may register as a team for $150. For more information or a registration form, call the YMCA at 321-8944.

Shaquille signs away autograph

ORLANDO — Shaquille O'Neal added another aspect to his endorsement package on Wednesday when he signed away exclusive rights to his autograph to Score Board Inc. Score Board Inc., parent company of Classic Trading Cards, also received rights to produce memorabilia and collectibles bearing O'Neal's likeness in its five-year agreement. The agreement also gives Hallmark Greeting Cards Co. the rights to produce greeting cards bearing O'Neal's likeness. The company is producing Christmas, birthday and announcement cards that will go on the market soon.

AROUND THE NATION

Maddux wins Cy Young again

NEW YORK — Greg Maddux won his second straight Cy Young Award, joining Sandy Koufax as the only National League pitchers to win in successive seasons. Maddux, 20-10 with a major league-leading 2.36 ERA in his first season for Atlanta, is also the first to win the award in consecutive years with different teams. He went 20-11 with a 2.18 ERA in 1992 for Chicago, then signed a five-year, $28 million contract with the Braves.

Mitchell, Nickerson tabbed

NEW YORK — Miami's Scott Mitchell, who passed for 344 yards and three touchdowns in the Dolphins' 30-10 victory over Kansas City on Sunday, is the AFC offensive player of the week. Mitchell was making his second start since replacing injured Dan Marino. San Diego's Donald Frank, who returned an interception 102 yards for the tiebreaking touchdown against the Los Angeles Raiders, is the AFC defensive player. Emmitt Smith of Dallas, who rushed for a team-record 237 yards against Philadelphia, and Tampa Bay's Hardy Nickerson, who had 10 tackles against Atlanta, were honored in the NFC.

AROUND THE WORLD

Les Habs blank Lightning

MONTREAL — Vincent Damphousse scored in the first period and Patrick Roy made it stand up with 37 saves Wednesday night and the Montreal Canadiens beat the Tampa Bay Lightning 1-0. The Lightning outshot Montreal 37-21, but Roy picked up his second shutout in his last four games and the 22nd of his career.

Maple Leafs drop Panthers

TORONTO — The Toronto Maple Leafs and an unkind schedule spoiled the Florida Panthers' first game in Canada. Dave Andreychuk scored twice and Doug Gilmour collected four assists as Toronto cruised to a 6-3 victory Wednesday night to improve its league-best record to 11-1-1. Jesse Belanger, Jamie Leach and Brent Severyn scored for the expansion Panthers, who lost 4-3 Tuesday night to Philadelphia in Miami, rushed to fly north and didn't get in until 4 a.m.

Capturing the crown

Neth & Son/Crazy Wings second baseman Tim Winkle was able to force Illusions' Dan Spivey (No. 33) and complete this double play in the second inning to protect a 2-0 lead. Illusions later rallied to win 7-5 in eight innings, knocking Neth & Son/Crazy Wings out of the pennant chase.

Illusions helps Heilig Meyers wrap up title

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — With a lot of help from Illusions, Heilig Meyers wrapped up the Sanford Recreation Wednesday Men's Slowpitch Softball League championship last night at Chase Park. Illusions opened the night with a 7-5 eight-inning victory over Neth & Son/Crazy Wings, one of two games that began play Wednesday night for second place one game behind Heilig Meyers. Later in the evening, Heilig Meyers defeated the other one, clipping Sportmart 17-8. In between those two contests, Continental Express won its second game of the season at the expense of winless Briar Corp., 15-3.

With one week left in the season, Heilig Meyers (8-1) now has an insurmountable two-game lead over Neth & Son/Crazy Wings and Sportmart (both 6-3). They're followed by Illusions (5-4), Continental Express (2-7), and Briar Corp. (0-9).

Next week, Continental Express is scheduled to take on Illusions at 6:30 p.m.; Sportmart plays Briar Corp. in the 7:30 p.m. game; and Heilig Meyers battles Neth & Son/Crazy Wings at 8:30 p.m. in the final game of the season.

Trailing 4-2 through five innings, Neth & Son/Crazy Wings struck for three runs in the bottom of the sixth to take a 5-4 lead. Illusions tied the game with a run in the top of the seventh and sent the game into extra innings.

George Porzig came through with the game-winning hit for Illusions (and Heilig Meyers), driving in Brian Burgess and Bob Wells Jr. with a two-out single. Neth & Son/Crazy Wings managed to get the potential tying runs on base with two out, but came up short.

Porzig also hit a two-run home run earlier in the game, giving him two hits, a run scored, and four RBI to lead Illusions' 14-hit attack. John Scott added a triple, single, and a run scored.

John Haddock, John Stewart, and James Garner each hit two singles and scored a run. Burgess singled and scored a run. Bob Garner had a single and an RBI. Dan Spivey and Randy Smathers each singled. Wells scored a run.

Dave Goldstick paced the 14-hit effort of Neth & Son/Crazy Wings with two doubles, a single, one run, and an RBI. Don Macher contributed three singles and two RBI. Craig Appel and Don Baati each hit two singles and scored two runs. Ron Wirth had a double, single, and an RBI. Stacey Bliz singled twice. Steve Cooper also

Toucan Willie's clinches tie

From Staff Reports

OVIEDO — Toucan Willie's swept its doubleheader Wednesday night at the Oviedo Sports Complex and, in the process, clinched a share of the championship in the Oviedo Recreation Men's Slowpitch Softball League.

In the first game, Toucan Willie's ripped Capital Gale 15-3. Later in the evening, they thumped the Strike Force 13-3.

Now 10-2 on the season, Toucan Willie's has a two-game lead over its nearest competitor with two weeks left in the season. Next week, Toucan Willie's plays the Wise Guys at 9 p.m.

Dennis Codrey was the winning pitcher for Toucan Willie's in the victory over Capital Gale. Codrey tossed a six-hitter and contributed three hits (including a triple), two runs, two RBI to the Toucan Willie's attack.

Ryan Alkire was 3-for-3 with two doubles, two runs, and two RBI. Harold Hitt, who hit a three-run home run, was 2-for-3 with five RBI. Lance Abney went 2-for-3 with three RBI and an inside-the-park home run. Billy Stripp also had two hits.

In the nightcap, Greg Register was the winning pitcher, allowing eight hits.

Alkire completed a perfect night by going 4-for-4 with a triple, two doubles, two runs, and three RBI. Ronnie Gardner also went 4-for-4 (all singles) and scored two runs.

Rick Tribbit was 2-for-3 with two RBI. Jerry Curry also had two RBI. Hitt and Eddie Norton each scored two runs.

Crazy Wings, Young Guns put an end to streaks

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Victories don't come much sweeter than this.

After losing its first 18 matches, Crazy Wings finally registered its first win in the Sanford Recreation Co-ed Power Volleyball League on Wednesday night at the Sanford Middle School Gymnasium.

Crazy Wings, which lost its first match of the evening to Carter and Son 15-8, 15-10, came back to beat the Wanna-Becs 8-15, 15-12, 16-14.

While it wasn't quite as dramatic as Crazy Wings' feat, the Young Guns also ended a frustrating streak of their own last night.

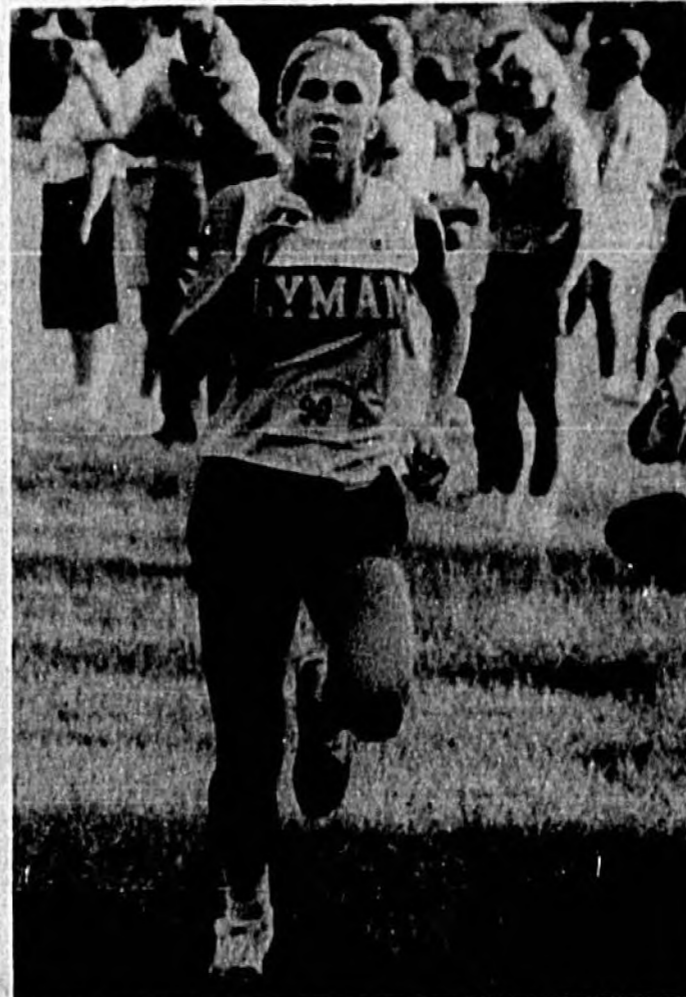

Through the first five weeks of the season, the Young Guns and Carter and Sons took turns winning their weekly match. On Wednesday, the Young Guns broke that pattern, sweeping to a 15-7, 15-12 victory for their second consecutive win over Carter and Sons.

Combined with their wins over the Wanna-Becs (15-4, 15-8) and Crazy Wings (15-11, 15-7), the Young Guns improve to 18-2 on the season.

Carter and Sons, which rebounded from its defeat at the hands of the Young Guns to outlast Carter and Sons 15-8, 8-15, 15-11, is now two games off the pace at 14-4.

Suffering through their first winless night of the season, the Wanna-Becs drop to 5-13. Crazy Wings improves to 1-17.

Each Wednesday night, the league's four teams gather at the Sanford Middle School and play one another in a rotation of six matches, each team playing the other three squads once.

Janet Greenberg

Amy Ginetto

Local harriers still running strong

From Staff Reports

LONGWOOD — When they were in high school, Janet Greenberg and Amy Ginetto were two of Seminole County's top female distance runners, a level of success they continue to enjoy at the collegiate level.

Now a sophomore at Emory University in Atlanta, Greenberg recently led the Eagles to a second-place team finish in the University Athletic Association Championships.

Greenberg, a graduate of Lyman High School, finished eighth overall, covering the 8,000-meter course in 19 minutes, 28 seconds to earn All-USA second team honors.

Emory's team score of 54 was only four points off the winning mark of the University of Chicago. It was the second year in a row that Emory finished second at the meet, which was run in late October at Atlanta's Piedmont Park.

The Eagles will attempt to win their third consecutive regional title when they run in the NCAA Division III South Regional Championships on Saturday, Nov. 13, in Fayetteville, N.C. The winner of the meet will advance to the national championship meet.

Ginetto, now a junior majoring in business administration at Furman University in Greenville, S.C., finished fourth in the University of South Carolina-Spartanburg Invitational on Saturday, Oct. 16, with a time of 19:12.18.

A graduate of Lake Brantley High School, Ginetto helped the Lady Paladins to finish first at the event with a near-perfect team score of 16.

NOTICE OF CHANGE OF LAND USE/ZONING PUBLI HEARING TO BE HELD

Notice is hereby given that the Seminole County Local Land Planning Agency/Planning and Zoning Commission (LPA/P&Z) will conduct a public hearing on December 1, 1993, beginning at 4:00 p.m. or as soon thereafter as possible, in the County Services Building, 1101 East First Street, Sanford, Florida, Room 102B (the Board Chambers). The purpose of this hearing is to receive public input, input from any local government or other agency, and to make recommendations to the Seminole County Board of County Commissioners regarding the proposed amendments to the Seminole County Comprehensive Plan, and associated zoning, where applicable, described as follows:

Robert Merrill - Plan Amendment from Recreation to Commercial and associated rezoning from A-1 (Agricultural) to C-2 (Retail Commercial District) described as the approximately 240 feet of Lot 23 (less the south 33.22 feet thereof), Spring Hammock, according to the plat thereof as recorded in Plat Book 2, Pages 2-3 of the public records of Seminole County, Florida, further described as located east of U.S. 17, with the Toyota Land auto dealership located to the north, and the Seminole County Center Transit Station on the east, containing approximately 2.4 acres (BCC District 21).

Martha Ramez-Putts - Plan Amendment from Low Density Residential to Planned Development and associated rezoning from A-1 (Agriculture) to PD (Planned Development) described as Tax Parcels 4A and 5, (less road right-of-way), Section 36, Township 21S, Range 30E, Seminole County, Florida, further described as located on the north side of S.R. 24, approximately 330 feet east of the intersection of S.R. 438 and Tusawilla Road abutting the railroad right-of-way located to the north, containing approximately 9.5 acres (BCC District 11).

Herling Lecklin - Plan Amendment from Suburban Estates to Planned Development and associated rezoning from A-1 (Agriculture) to PUD (Planned Unit Development) described as Lots 1, 2 and 23, Unrecorded Unit Subdivision (LPA/P&Z file) located at the intersection of Red Bug Lake Road, Official Records Book 491, Page 437, of the public records of Seminole County, Florida, further described as located at the northeast and northwest corners of Red Bug Lake Road and Palmiro Way, containing approximately 7.5 acres (BCC District 11).

Herling Lecklin - Plan Amendment from Low Density Residential/Office to Commercial described as Tax Parcels 20 and 21A, Section 30, Township 19S, Range 30E, further described as located at the northeast corner of S.R. 44 and Orange Boulevard, containing approximately 4.9 acres (BCC District 3).

Herling Lecklin - Plan Amendments from Low Density Residential/Office to Commercial described as Tax Parcels 20A, 31 and the south approximately 205 feet of Parcel 3 (less road), Section 30, Township 19S, Range 30E, further described as located at the northeast corner of S.R. 44 and Orange Boulevard and extending east to Henderson Lane, containing approximately 9.9 acres (BCC District 3).

Note: Land use amendments on property containing flood prone and wetland areas remain subject to the applicable Conservation land use designation and various overlay zoning classifications and the provisions relating thereto. The general public is encouraged to appear at this hearing and present input in accordance with the procedures utilized by the LPA/P&Z, including the submission of written comments to the LPA/P&Z (the Comprehensive Planning Office), 1101 East First Street, Sanford, FL 32771, telephone (407) 321-1130, extension 7294. Comments must be received no later than November 17, 1993 to be included in the staff report distributed to LPA/P&Z members. This hearing may be continued from time to time as deemed necessary by the LPA/P&Z. Copies of the proposed amendments and zoning, and related information, including complete legal descriptions of the above described properties and any comments received, are available for public review at the address above, Room 3187, between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, excluding holidays.

Cancer of mouth can be treated

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is lichen planus a precursor to cancer? I first experienced this after a reaction to iodine following hysterectomy. It cleared up and didn't appear again until after gum surgery. I never smoked or drank and have no diseases that would cause leukoplakia, which later developed. I've now had a tongue operation after a cancerous tumor was found on the floor of my mouth. Would you recommend radiation therapy? What is happening to me?

DEAR READER: Lichen planus, a recurring inflammatory eruption that often affects the oral cavity, is not itself precancerous. However, any kind of chronic ulcer in the mouth may lead to cancer. Moreover, early cancers in this area can resemble lichen planus.

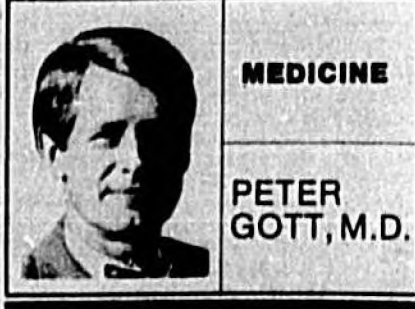

As in your case, lichen planus frequently occurs after exposure to certain drugs such as those containing bismuth or iodine. Leukoplakia, whitish inflammations in the mouth, were once believed to be pre-malignant. The current theory is that they are not. Further, they are unrelated to lichen planus.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I take atenolol. During a recent stress test, I had difficulty keeping my pulse rate at 90, while my cardiologist was bent on attaining a 120-135 rate. Are there forces throwing undue strain on my heart during this procedure?

DEAR READER: I don't know why your cardiologist was being so inflexible. Atenolol (Tenormin), a beta-blocker, slows the pulse whether a person is exercising or not. Therefore, during a stress test (a cardiogram taken during exercise), the pulse rate is always lower than "normal," and physicians customarily take this into account.

Thus, when patients on beta-blockers fail to reach the predicted pulse rate for age, cardiologists call this a "blunted" stress test response. (C)1993 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Pre-empts to the right of them, pre-empts to the left of them, pre-empts in front of them, into the Valley of Death rode modern bridge players. And if you read "Pre-empts from A to Z" by Sabine Zenkel and Ron Andersen (Magnus Books, $17.95, 800-274-2221), you will — until the last few pages — get the impression that the opponents of the pre-emptor always die.

This book describes much modern warfare: various versions of the Multi, two-under, two-way and transfer pre-empts; and so on. However, along with descriptions of the methods, you are given recommended defenses. For a serious partnership, this is a useful book.

After several successes for pre-empts, the book ends with a monumental disaster. It occurred during the semifinals of the 1989 Women's World Team Championship. Near the end of the match, Germany led the Netherlands by a moderate margin. In one room, the German West played in four spades, making with an overtrick. The German pair, in the second room did slightly worse.

The three-heart opening showed either a normal three-heart pre-empt or a long, solid club suit with no side ace or king. Because of her heart holding, South assumed the latter; hence her four-club bid. North assumed that South would pass over the double, waiting for her, North, to remove to four clubs if she held that suit. She assumed four clubs was natural.

The "lucky" lead allowed declarer to win the first four tricks, but that was still 1700 points away. The Dutch rode out of the Valley of Death and into the final.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
 Nov. 5, 1993

In the year ahead you could be luckier than usual in your dealings with foreigners or foreign merchandise. Take pains to build relationships both commercially and socially.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you might be more secretive about something than the matter warrants. This could deprive you of receiving valuable information from a friend who could help you. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N. Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you are unduly curious today, there is a possibility you might be drawn into a friend's affairs resulting in some complications for which you didn't bargain. Mind your own p's and q's.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If at all possible, try to avoid bringing subordinates into decision making today. They could offer a lot of input, with very little of it being constructive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today it might be your lot to delegate assignments to others. Unfortunately, you may pick persons for their affabilities instead of for their capabilities.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Keep in mind today that any gambles you take should be in proportion to what you hope to gain. Don't bet a dollar if the best you can do is win back a dime.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your mate might be difficult to please today, even when you make special concessions. You must let your spouse realize you are half of the decision making process.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Adhere to tested or proven methods and procedures instead of experimenting with shortcuts today where your work is concerned. The short route could turn out to be the long way around.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Something in which you're presently involved should be yielding you a larger return than you're receiving. Re-examine this situation today to see how it can be improved upon.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Tactics from which you've derived desirable end results might not be effective on an endeavor on which you'll be working today. This situation's basic elements differ considerably.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be optimistic today regarding the outcome of events, but don't build your hopes upon unrealistic assessments. If you do, something could burst your bubble.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In order to impress a friend today who is a bit better off than you are materially, you might try to match his/her spending habits. This could turn out to be rather foolish.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In order to fulfill your ambitious objectives today, you might not share fairly with an associate who had a hand in your success. Don't expect this person to help you again.
