Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Eliminating the national speed limit means nothing more than changing the numbers on signs to reflect what people are already doing, advocates for higher limits say.

President Clinton on Tuesday signed the $6 billion National Highway System bill, which ends federal speed limit and motorcycle helmet laws, but he made clear that he had serious misgivings that the new law might lead to more accidents, highway deaths and injuries.

He signed it because he believes it will strengthen the nation's transportation system, providing jobs and economic opportunities, White House spokesman Mike McCurry

"I am deeply disturbed by the repeal of both the national maximum speed limit law and the law encouraging states to enact motorcycle helmet use laws," Clinton said in a written statement. But Steve Carrellas of the National office said "Most states are prepared to deal with it (speed limits)." All it means is "changing the numbers on the signs to reflect the reasonable behavior of the vast

States later were permitted to set a 65-mph limit on rural interstates. States that failed to comply faced the threat of losing federal highway

While advocates for higher speeds and those contending that such rules should be left to the states were happy with the measure, other reaction ranged from concern to fear of highway carnage.

Safety advocates such as Ralph Nader and former surgeon general C. Everett Koop have warned that deaths could jump by as much as 6,000 annually at higher speeds.

White House spokesman Mike McCurry said that while Clinton was "very concerned about highway fatalities," the president felt a veto could cost states nearly $6 billion in "necessary highway improvement projects," including finishing missing links in the Interstate Highway system. New area code

TALLAHASSEE - Phone customers in Palm Beach, Martin, St. Lucie and Indian River counties will get a new area code starting next April when it changes from 407 to 561.

The Orlando area, along with Orange, Seminole, Occeola, Brevard and Volusia counties, will keep the same 407 area code, BellSouth and Sprint/United officials said Tuesday.

Customers can use 561 or 407 from April 14, 1996, to April 13, 1997, to give them time to adjust to the change, such as changing stationary and updating telecommunications equipment.

Company officials said the change in the southeastern portion of the 407 area code to 561 was based on lower population growth in the four-county area compared with Central Florida. The new area code will primarily affect Southern Bell customers.

During the four hour span there were arrests on other charges as well, but Beary was especially pleased with the ar-rest that was made for attempted armed robbery.

The chief said the Arby's, the Checkers and the Krystal's res-taurants on Lake Mary Boulevard had been targeted earlier in the evening by a would-be rob-ber. He said the alleged robber went through the drive-thru at each restaurant and ordered a cash drawer to go. Each time he was refused and he left.

Police had word that the Miami Subs on State Road 434 had also been targeted.

"I had a hunch that he would come back through this way," Beary said. "People have certain driving habits and I figured he'd be back this way."

Officers at the roadblock were on the lookout for him and when he was spotted, officers pulled him over and a witness from one of the restaurants was called and Clifton Lewis Davis, 27, was positively identified as the alleged robber.

Beary concedes that drivethrough robberies are not the best way for a thief to raise revenue.

"But if they were all PhDs we wouldn't catch them," he said. Overall, Beary was pleased with the number of arrests that came out of the roadblock.

Tougher school standards?

By BILL BERGSTROM Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Tougher high school competency tests being considered by Gov. Lawton Chiles and the Cabinet are just part of what it will take to improve the performance of Florida students, education of-Ociale say. Education Commissioner Frank Brogan also plans to ask lawmakers next year to raise the current minimum 1.5 grade point average - a D-plus - that schools may require for high school graduation to 2.0 or C. Brogan said Tuesday he expected the governor and Cabinet today to approve raising the passing score on the High School Competency Test that public school students must pass to graduate. 'The Cabinet has been thus far very supportive of increased standards and expectations for students," said Brogan.

Also before the panel was a proposed rule that would let the Department of Education intervene at schools labeled as "critically low performing" for more than three years. If the panel backs the concept, the 1996 Legislature will be asked to outline specifically what form the intervention would take, Brogan said.

On the high school competency tests, Brogan argues that requiring more correct answers would better prepare students for jobs or college.

Some educators caution against raising standards too fast and hurting disadvantaged students.

With tougher tests, teachers would have to do more remedial work with struggling students, Brogan acknowledges. But he argues the students would perform better in the long run. Students usually take the competency test in their junior year and can retake it until they pass. Last October, 96,293 students took the multiple-choice exam. The test consists of two parts, mathematics and communications. Currently, students must correctly answer 39 of 55 mathematics questions and 48 of 65 communications questions

Brogan wants to require correct answers on three more mathematics problems and seven more communications questions.

Education officials estimate that would decrease the percentage of juniors passing the mathematics portion on their first try from 78 to 71, and the percentage passing the com-munications section from 89 to 75 percent.

Federal agency joins sex-bias suit against Publix

By LICA HOLEWA Associated Press Writer

TAMPA — When Carmen Pena began working for the Publix supermarket chain, she hoped to move to the ranks of upper management. Instead, she got stuck in the bakery.

There, she says, her management aspirations were ignored, she was told she should stay home with her four children, and she was subjected to sexual comments from co-workers. After four years, Pena guit.

She also became one of eight women to sue Publix, accusing the Fortune 500 company of discriminating against women by keeping them in dead-end, low-wage jobs.

On Tuesday, the U.S. Equal Opportunity Commission joined their federal lewsuit What this case is about is the job assignments," said Angelo Filippi, acting regional attorney for the EEOC's Miami office.

"It's a case where women are channeled into the lower-paying jobs like the deli workers or cashiers, and men are channeled into the higher-paying jobs that also give room for promotional opportunities."

The agency is seeking back wages and damages for women it says were harmed by Publix's hiring practices. More than 45,000 women who have worked for Publix or applied for work since July 1986 could be included, Filippi said.

A spokeswoman for Lakeland-based Publix said more than 30 percent of the supermarket chain's managers are women and minorities. Publix officials have said in the past that the company forbids discrimination or harasament.

"The EEOC is just wrong. This is a belated reaction to information that is out of date," said Publix spokeswoman Jennifer Bush. "We go to court confident of our case because of the progress we have made in increasing opportunity for all of the talented people at Publix."

The eight women who filed the lawsuit all had previously filed complaints with the EEOC.

Last week, they asked the U.S. District Court in Tampa to certify their lawsuit a class action on behalf of all women who have worked in Publix stores. Filippi said the agency expects that to happen at a Jan. 16 hearing.

"When I first started, I wanted to advance." Pena said in a telephone interview after the EEOC's announcement. "I thought I had a future with Publix. I wanted to go all the way to upper Pena, 37, worked in a Publix bakery department in St. Augustine. "I saw other women being treated the way I was treated. But I feit, well, I'm going to college. I'm taking courses. I'm going to be different. They're going to notice me," she said.

"But they didn't. Every time I tried to take two steps forward, they would knock me back all the way, five steps back."

Pena also said her complaints about co-workers who frequently made sexual jokes and disparaging remarks about women were ignored by the store manager. She quit the store in January and complained to the EEOC.

Publix is the nation's eighth-largest supermarket chain and Florida's largest private employer. It has more than 470 stores in Florida. Georgia and South Carolina.

The EEOC had been investigating charges of gender and race discrimination at Publix stores for three years. Each year, the agency investigates thousands of employee complaints, but rarely goes to court over them.

Filippi said the EEOC tried before joining the lawsuit to work out a settlement with Publix, but was unsuccessful. He also said the agency's investigation showed Publix has not stopped its discrimination against women.

Charles Shanor, an attorney who represents Publix, called the EEOC's decision "a last-ditch effort to save face. The lawsuit follows a string of sex-discrimination claims against grocery chains in the past few years.

Two years ago, Lucky Stores Inc. of northern California paid $107 million to 14,000 women after facing similar charges. Albertson's Inc. settled a class-action decrimination suit last year in California for $29.4 million for women and Hispanic workers.

And Safeway Stores settled for $7.5 million in a 1994 class-action sex-discrimination suit covering 20,000 employees in northern California.

Prison program dives into seafood processing

By ADAM YEOMANS Associated Press Writer

TALLAHABSEE - Florida inmates are about to get into the commercial seafood business. The state's privately run prison industries program is opening a processing plant in a rural Panhandle county eager for some economic help. Inmate workers will fillet and package everything from catfish to jellyfish.

PRIDE, or Prison Rehabilitative Industries & Diversified Enterprises Inc., hopes to succeed where a similar venture failed. PRIDE is reopening a plant built with $2 million in government financing four years ago to process pond-raised catfish. The plant, located near Blountstown, about 50 miles west of Tallahassee, closed a year later when money ran out. PRIDE president Pamela Jo Davis said the timing was right for the latest effort to establish a scafood processing business in North Florida. A grand opening was scheduled today.

"We believe this is a wave of future, the whole aquaculture thing," she said Tuesday.

The company, based in Clearwater, and local officials got lawmakers this year to exempt PRIDE from a prohibition on aquaculture processing so it

PRIDE operates 53 industries at 21 prisons. About 5,000 inmates are paid 15 cents to 50 cents an hour to produce goods and services such as sports utility vehicles for export, furniture, soap, shooting range targets, printing, nursery plants and milk.

Davis said she doesn't know how long it will take PRIDE to turn a profit with the processing plant. But the company has the financial resources the previous operators did not.

Sprucing up

When something is determined to be wrong, someone, somewhere, will try to bring about some kind of rule intended to fix it. It may be a federal law, state law, county or city ordinance, or a code.

As a result, the problem may be resolved, but there may also be complications.

Anyone who drives through the streets of Sanford knows there are a number of businesses in operation, which are poorly maintained. They need painting. Signs are either faded or falling apart. Weeds are growing along the sidewalk.

Even though the business is operating, the physical appearance of the building, or the unkempt parking area or frontal area has a tendency to make passersby formulate a poor opinion not only of that establishment, but possibly the entire city.

What could happen? Let's say for example there is a business in poor condition somewhere on S. French Avenue in Sanford. Someone complains and the city takes action. They set up special codes for the buildings, and code inspectors begin to hand out notices of violations.

The codes may force a business to undertake improvements, if they can be afforded. But owners of other businesses that may be properly maintained may find themselves also in violation. It's a case where fixing one problem could cause problems to others.

it's the old paradox. The business owner dould repaint and fix up the place if he had more customers and could earn more money. But more customers are highly unlikely unless the business is fixed up and cleaned.

we do the converse district in the city or come so strict codes that people are driven away because they can't afford to comply.

What we would rather see is those few businesses that know full well they can use some refurbishing, take it upon themselves and get some work done.

They will not only be doing themselves a favor, but helping the entire city. A person's opinion of an area can be good, but it doesn't take much to have that opinion change completely.

Right and wrong

All of us can feel for Dave Farr. Each of us has more than apt done things we regret, and have asked forgiveness. He is a very good man, and I wish him well.

The most intriguing thing in your article (Sunday, Nov. 19) was the attitude of Kerry Lyons. The city commissioner and mayor are supposed to be representatives of the voters and should know what is happening with taxpayers' money given various groups. Commissioners serving on these boards should, and must, report back to the city commission, as a group, on problems with that agency. A commissioner does not have the right to keep problems hidden from our elected representatives.

Mayor Bettye Smith and Kerry Lyons, in my opinion, were completely wrong about this.

The C-SPANNING of Hollywood

WASHINGTON-"The American President" is a delightful film in which Michael Douglas plays a widower Chief Executive hungry for a date. The lady of his dreams turns up in the form of a sassy environmental lobbyist played by Annette Bening.

The barriers to a happy ending arise from the difficult logistics of wooling in the White House, under the noses of a snoopy press, but it turns out they can be overcome. Douglas also resolves a not-very-tricky moral dilemma over cutting a deal with the "Motown Three," your basic congressional sleazes.

But before the final clinch, the audience is subjected to a five-minute presidential address, in which we learn: first, that you cannot truly love the Constitution unless you belong to the American Civil Liberties Union; second, that the only federal crime bill that makes sense is one banning assault weapons and handguns; and third, that when it comes to environmental measures, the stricter the standard, the better

In short, Rob Reiner, the producer-director of this basically entertaining movie, has loaded it up with the whole liberal message and told the ticket-buyers to swallow it along with their popcorn and soft drinks. I know that the left may have more clout in Hollywood than in most precincts, but there have to be some Republican moguls out there. If "The American President" is the lift it seems to be, how long until the West Coast fanciers of Newt Gingrich and Bob Dole decide to cash in?

legislator on a mission to overthrow the "corrupt liberal welfare state." Unable to defeat him on the issues, his enemies harass him unmercifully with spurious ethics complaints and attempted exposes of his private life.

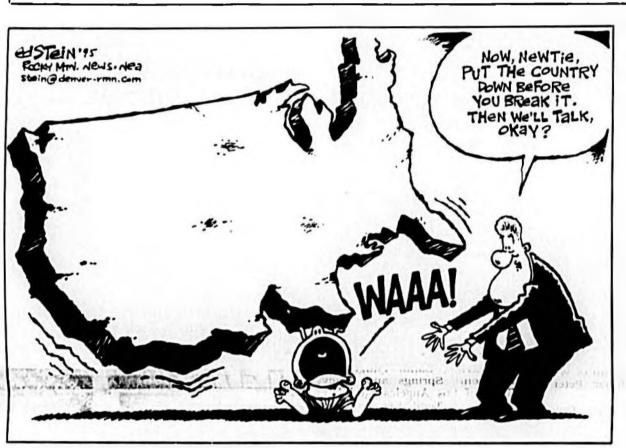

And consider the commercial potential in the "Masterful Majority Leader" series, recounting the continuing travails of a sage but short-tempered prairie politician, perpetually frustrated in his quest to escape from Congress and get an executive branch job. In earlier films, we have seen him recover from repeated rejections when the public chose a more glamorous or wealthier rival. But now, when everything is in place, the hero's wife quits her job as the head of America's favorite charity only to discover that she is not covered by his health insurance policy.

In a tearful scene, she implores him to remember that this happens to millions of ordinary people every year and begs him to pass a national health plan.

He turns to her, his eyes moist, and says: "If you think I'm going to fall for that socialistic sob story and forget the Contract that my pal Newt signed, you've got another think coming.

Clinton will assert 'leadership'

With President Clinton significantly ahead in the still-to-be-concluded 1995 political sweepstakes, the White House is planning to use an unlikely theme -- leadership -- to help him win re-election in 1996. A tough issue, Bosnia, may help.

Top White House aides say that while Clinton is frequently accused of "waffling and having no backbone," he actually has a record of "taking on tough issues," and his 1996 campaign will consist partly of reminding people of the fact.

Aides list the 1993 deficit-reduction fight, the North American Free Trade Agreement, sending U.S. troops to Halti, intervention in the Mexican peso crisis, defense of affirmative action, and battles against the National Rifle Association and the tobacco lobby as evidence of Clinton's standing up for principle.

They say that the 1995 budget controversy is giving him another opportunity to demonstrate conviction in defense of the social safety net and the environment that are under attack from Republicans.

While the public tends to support the current GOP position on Bosnia -- that U.S. troops shouldn't be sent to patrol a precarious peace -- Clinton isn't likely to be seen as a waffler as he asserts to Congress that U.S. leadership of NATO and the world community requires a military role.

Right now, every major poll indicates that Clinton is clobbering the Republicans for political advantage going into 1996, although as one aide says, "what happens in the next couple of weeks is going to stick in people's minds about who did what."

The polls show mixed results on whether approval of Clinton's performance is improving, but they are unanimous in showing a precipitous fall in esteem for the Republicans against whom he'll be campaigning.

Last week's ABC/Washington Post poll showed Clinton's approval rating up seven points since June, to 54 percent, while the NBC/Wall Street Journal Poll had him at 49 percent, and the CBS/New York Times poll put him at 48.

At the same time, House Speaker Newt Gingrich's approval ratings have dropped to 27 percent in all three polls (down 18 points since May) and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole's are down from 60 percent in March to 45 percent now in the ABC/Washington Post poll.

Congress' approval rating, according to CBS/New York Times, is down to 22 percent, its low before the 1994 GOP victory. The same poll showed that voters trust Clinton more than Congress to deal both with Medicare and the deficit, and by 53-34 they believe that he's "concerned more about doing what's best for you."

The NBC/Wall Street Journal poll shows that only 49 percent of Americans think that Clinton's budget actions show him as "a strong leader standing up for what he believes in" while 43 percent see him as "putting his own political agenda shead of what's good for the country." However, only 33 percent consider Gingrich a leader, and only 30 percent see Dole as one.

One top White House aide commented that "Bob Dole makes Bill Clinton look line a ramrod." Clinton is now consistently running 10 points ahead of Dole in head-to-head presidential polls. Democrats have a fourpoint advantage in the CBS/New York Times congressional test vote, reversing a silight GOP advantage last month

tage last month.

Besides "leadership." White House aides indicate they plan to campaign in 1996 on the theme that Clinton represents "the mainstream" while the Republicans are "radicals," and that Clinton is trying to secure a better future for most Americans.

A tough issue,

Bosnia, may help.

The polls indicate that these themes will find some resonance among the electorate. In the NBC/Wall Street Journal poll, 62 percent of voters worry that Republicans will "go too far" in making changes, while only 29 percent think they will not go far enough.

Clinton's own internal polls, aides say, show that "people want smaller government, but they do not want it eviscerated. They see education as the key to their kids' future. They want reduced government regulation, but a clean environment. They want some reductions in Medicare, but they want to be sure that its future is secured."

Clinton aides say that if Dole wins the GOP nomination, they will exploit his age by saying that Clinton represents the "future" while Dole is "the past." "From the point of view of physiognomy, he represents the past." one aide said.

According to one of Clinton's top political advisers, "the general election campaign begins April 1," when it's likely that the GOP nominee will be known and Clinton will begin spending between $8 million and $12 million on pre-convention TV ads.

Wake up and smell the column

The Curmudgeon has been occupied lately with trying to figure out what his column ought to smell like.

Put down your pens, crities and philistines. I'm talking about food smells here—like the Magie Scents Crayola erayons that kids were cating because they had the odor of coconut, licorice and chocolate. I think it would be neat to write a column that smelled so delicious people would want to eat it. I have heard from a few readers who regularly chew it up and spit it out, but I don't think they do it for the nutritional value.

The Curmudgeon will ponder it. Meanwhile, your inquiries:

Dear Curmudgeon:
What do you make of the latest Newt Gingrich flap? The House Speaker said he and Bob Dote closed down the government in part because Bill Clinton ignored them on an Air Force One flight to Israel. Is he also blaming this ruckus on the "socialists" in the newsrooms? ...

he said, but it didn't wash because his comments were taped. Several of his political buddles tried to claim his words were "taken out of context." And Newt's spokesman said reporters ignored the real story, which was the GOP's admirable effort to balance the budget. Clearly, in the interests of truth and accuracy, the media should let pols edit their own remarks.

Dear Curmudgeon: Another Jesse Helms story for your file: Old cotton-mouth is so fond of holding up ambassadorial nominations that he even held up the appointment of a former Senate colleague, James Sasser of Tennessee, to be the U.S. envoy to China. Jesse said Sasser was a "nice guy, but I'm not sure he knows a chopstick from a tuning fork." -- Ralph in Raleigh

Dear RNR: This comes from a man, mind you, who once referred to North Korean dictator Kim Jong II as "Kim Jong Two" and introduced Pakistani Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto as the "distinguished prime minister of India." Old Jes is a nice guy, but he probably thinks Panama was named after the

Dear Dallas: It's a children's book, written with his daughter Amy and based on stories he used to tell his children about a sea monster. It's called "The Little Baby Snoogle-Fleejer," I hear there have been numerous complaints from bookstore customers who thought they were buying his memoirs.

Dear Curmudgeon: Did you read about the haby cougar that bit Newt? I'm serious. A zoo director from Ohio brought a bunch of animals to the Capital, and Newt picked up the cougar and it took a nip out of one of Newt's chips. a. College in Columbus.

Newt's chins. -- Colleen in Columbus Dear CNC: Damn socialist cats.

Dear Curmudgeon: Did you know that officials at a Miami courthouse have created a "Voodoo Squad" to clean up dead chickens and entrails after the trials of Cubans and Haitians who call on their gods for help? I think you need something like this up in Washington to clean up the blood after Newt and Bill and the rest have one of their fights. -- Mimi in Miami

Dear MNM: We have something similar aiready. We call it the Doodoo Squad.

Going back to the beginning, I'm kind of leaning toward a beef jerky smell. You know -- tough, chewy and full of protein.

Repeat champions

Bottoms Up/Playtime wins Tuesday Fall SB title

From Staff Reports

SANFORD - The team got a repeat, but it was a first for the sponsor.

Tuesday night at Chase Park, Bottoms Up Pub/Playtime Darts got the victory its been looking for all season, following up its spring champlonship by winning the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Fall Tuesday Night Solowpitch Softball League title.

The team was almost the same squad that won in the spring while playing as Suzanne's Oyster-Reef/Lake Mary Pub and gives Bottoms Up Pub/Playtime Darts its first crown as sponsor's.

Bottom's Up Pub/Playtime Darts used a four run third inning to erase a 2-1 deficit and went on to defeat Whelchel & Howard 6-3.

But the win was kind of anticlimactic as Whelchel & Howard had earlier in the evening lost a 13-12, 8-inning decision to M.T. Muggs to over Zoo Crew II. Bottoms Up Pub/Playtime Darts finishes the season at 9.2, while Whechel & Howard was 6.5 and Sanford First Baptist Church 5-5. M.T. Muggs comes home in fourth place with a 4-7 mark, while Zoo Crew II ended up 3-8.

M.T. Muggs had jumped out to an early 8-2 lead only to see Whechel & Howard battle back to tie the game at 8-8. M.T. Muggs reassumed control by scoring single runs in the fourth and seventh innings and two runs in the lifth inning to build a 12-8 lead heading into the bottom of the seventh inning.

But Whelchel & Howard refused to go easily, as singles by James Thompson and Jerry Governelli and a walk to Keith Denton loaded the bases with no one out. Vince Howard lifted a sacrifice fly to left and Trey Brasseur doubled to close the score to 12-11. After a ground out, Brasseur scored the tying run on an error.

Whelchel & Howard then returned the favor in the top of the eighth inning as, with two out and no one on. Kyle Brubaker singled and went to second on an error. Mike Miller then singled in what proved to be the winning run.

Parental prying seems more like meddling

DEAR ABBY: "Irritated in Ohio" wrote to say she was upon that her 38-year-old husband phones his parents twice daily. You couldn't understand why that irritated her. Obviously, you never had to deal with nony parents - consider your-

I am a university professor in my late 30s, married for more than a decade, with older children of my own. I live several hundred miles from my parents, who sound very much like "Irritated's" in-laws. My parents expect a weekly telephone report of my activities. If I don't call,

I, too, get the "guilt trip."

When we travel, we're instructed to call upon our return, so my folks will know we're not "tying dead on the highway somewhere."

Mother and Dad pry into our lives. They insist on knowing what my wife and I do, what we buy, how much we spend, and what we're having for dinner, etc.

Their interest goes far beyond idle curiosity. It's always followed up by my father passing judgment on whatever we did. The last time they visited, he revealed that his father asked how much money I make, how much I save, and what my bank balance is.

My parents treat my married siblings the same way, even asking questions about their sex lives! When we protest that we're being treated like children instead of responsible adults, they act as if they've been wounded.

My wife says there's still an umbilical cord between my perents and me. I've tried to be more nesertive by waiting for them to call me, so I won't have to spend my money on long-distance calls that amount to nothing more than 45 minutes of meddling.

I love and respect my parents, but there are boundaries, and they don't know where theirs should be. I suspect you will find that there are many others in the same boat.

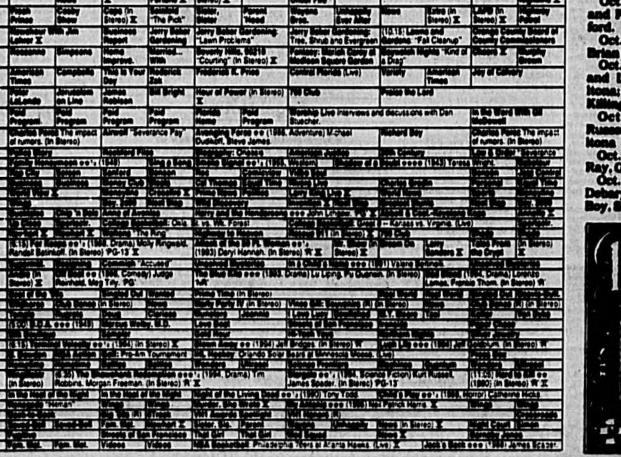

TREATED LIKE A CHILD

DEAR 30-PLUS: I was taken aback by the number of letters I received that echood your sentiments. Keeping the lines of communication open is of great impertance, but it should never be at the expense of the privacy of adult children. More on this temerrow.
