

Re-designing For Convenience Was Begun By Dreyfuss

Industrial Designing Started By Lifting Alarm Clock's Face

By SIGRID ARNE.
AP Feature Service Writer
NEW YORK. Remember several years back when the alarm clock had its face lifted? The tubby-looking tin number that was always tumbling over on its tiny feet suddenly came out with a substantial base and a thinner body.

That change was dictated by a young man who had been designing stage sets. Name: Henry Dreyfuss. The cottage 34 Both New York. Works here. Has lived there in a penthouse.

That's what put him into a profession now; it had no name then. Now it has some industrial designing. There are several industrial designers, but Dreyfuss is a pioneer and he's still a leader.

A trio of "Easiers." The thing that makes his tick is his desire to redesign objects so they will be easier to use, to keep clean and to look at. When that happens, he says, sales jump; whether it happens to ice picks or trains. And Dreyfuss has designed both. He did the new rugged train. He did the new Twentieth Century muted.

He started as a stage designer at 19 and kept at it until a huge store wanted him to redesign kitchen utensils. He turned that down, but got on the road himself. The clock job was the result.

Since then he's dipped his fingers into the average home a dozen times. Take ice picks. The manufacturer of one type wanted to have sides. His pick had a long handle, not very easy to grasp. He chipped away and that's about all. First, Dreyfuss turned the handle into a ball that fit the hand snugly. Then he flattened one side so it would roll when you laid it on the table. And he put a piece of metal into the flattened part that made the handle a well hammer for cracking the ice after you'd chipped it off the cake.

Another time he tackled a washing machine. He went to the factory and ran one. The controls were on the side, and he grew tired bending over to find them. The Dreyfuss model has controls on top in plain sight, and the machine is encased in a white metal cylinder that's easy to keep clean.

He got another idea because he travels everywhere by plane. He noticed that stewardesses had trouble juggling lunch trays when a plane was in the air. So he designed a spill-proof lunch tray of paper mache. It's the size of a portable typewriter. The dinner plate is merely an indentation in the tray. Several paper cups are set around the edge in other indentations that prevent them from spilling. A top fits over the whole tray to keep the food warm. And the trays are so inexpensive they can be thrown away without means no washing and saving of dishes.

Dreyfuss is entranced with his Twentieth Century. It's sleek, swank on wheels. Inside it is two shades of gray with accents of rust and royal blue. Outside it's grey with accents of shining aluminum and blue. The club car has cork walls with strips of copper for accent. Dreyfuss doesn't like the old facing-forward of train chairs, so his club car couches are grouped as they are in a real club lounge. But the gadget that really pleases the travelling boyz and girlz is the speedometer in the observation car. Dreyfuss puts that in because he had $\frac{1}{2}$ much fun watching the speedometer in the railroad president's private car.

He's having great sport now designing via telephone, one of the two thousand buildings in the New York's west fair. It's a ball, 180 feet in diameter. It's filling it with a model city near the base. The cash customers will look down on the city from two circular platforms moving in opposite directions high in the ball.

Recently Dreyfuss was the subject of an editorial in an important New York paper. He never thought that would happen until he was dead. So now this enthusiastic young man refers to himself as "The Late Mr. Dreyfuss."

Florida has 274,781 rooms available in hotels, apartment houses and rooming houses operating under the supervision of the Florida State Hotel Commission this season, according to statement released this week by Commissioner Taylor.

Mannequins With Curves Developed By Jean Spadea

By SIGRID ARNE

NEW YORK. Miss Jean Spadea was going along in a well-tempered way as one of Fifth Avenue's bright young things. Then she hit upon a hobby—curves. A very arty, slinky, curvy curve, that is.

But two years ago, she became annoyed by the glass-veined store window mannequins with straight up-and-down muscles that she sat down and carved her own idea of a mannequin. Thereby she announced herself for the very small crowd that's pioneering in new ideas of store display.

Her mannequin had the curves of a live, alluring lady. One of Fifth Avenue's fanciest stores snapped up Eve (that's what Mrs. Spadea had named it) and Spadea figures are being sold across the country. And Eve has been booked to appear at the New York World's Fair of 1939.

Old fashioned mannequins, says Mrs. Spadea, weren't clothes racks, but neither were they women.

Mrs. Spadea's models are brooding beauties. They are plenty thin, but they bulge where they should. They're long-legged. Some stand on one foot, and that curves the other leg nicely. They have deep eye sockets and high cheek bones.

One with real hair costs $165 and one with silk cold locks is $135. The stores that buy Spadea models use about 20 a year.

They must be something because they seem to be cutting in on the flesh-and-blood beauties. There's a legend that New York young bloods are sneaking off each week to ogle their favorite Spadea model in the window of the New York store that has them exclusively. Seems the gents want to see how their pleasant lady looks in each week's change of dress.

They're turned out in the dim-witted heart of Manhattan—57th Street just off Fifth. Mrs. Spadea uses a whole floor of the building; one room for what she meant to do (draw fashion pictures) and the rest for the mannequin business that just happened.

Fact is, the Spadeas live all within a radius of three Manhattan blocks. Jim Spadea's "turning" in the new-beauty mag, "You," is in the office across the street. Their two children are stowed away at home three blocks off with their nurse. Weekends they rush off to their Pennsylvania farm.

The Spadeas met in Chicago where she'd arrived from Wisconsin to learn Michelangelo's tricks at the Academy of Fine Arts. She designs in so many directions so naturally that she's found she doesn't know her own strength.

That crushed ice cream cone women have been wearing as a hat is an example. Mrs. Spadea made one for herself four years ago. Forgot about it. Then dug it out to put on a mannequin in a display window. Month later similar hats popped up all over New York. Maybe there's no relation, but anyway Mrs. Spadea eventually saw hats like hers selling by the hundreds in bargain basements.

The reason the Democrats favored for the New York governorship was that the Republicans were pushing the international young racket-buster Thomas Dewey for the important office. A Dewey victory might foreshadow further political advance. Already there is talk of the presidency.

So she's probably a good fashion weather vane. Which brings up pleasant news for the ladies. Just now she has a feeling (she doesn't know why) that she should add half an inch to her mannequin's hips. That could start a new style trend—and one more comfortable to the ladies.

Foreign Policy Of U.S. Is Opposed By Germany, Japan

Nazi Ambassador Called Home To Explain "Queer Attitude" Toward German Events

American Demand Rejected By Japs

Note To Washington Says Treaty Obsolete Since Conquest

Japan and Germany both took action today in opposition to the American foreign policy.

Germany called home her ambassador to Washington, Hans Dieckhoff, to explain the "queer attitude" in the United States toward "events in Germany."

Japan rejected major contention of the United States protest against closing the "open door" in China and declared that "ideas and principles of the past" no longer applied.

The Japanese answer to Washington's strong protest of Oct. 6, protesting "unwarranted interference" with American rights in China was interpreted authoritatively as a notice that Japan considers her conquest of a large portion of China has made the nine-power treaty obse-lete.

In Tokyo, radical-socialist deputies unanimously adopted a resolution opposing the revision of any French possession to Germany and approving France's lack of racial prejudice.

Radical-socialist Premier Daladier's own party split, however, on a vote to endorse his drastic economy program which brought a warning from former Socialist Premier Leon Blum against attempting to set up a dictatorship.

Daladier won a majority but nine of 112 of the party's deputies voted against him and 31 others abstained from voting.

Recall by Germany of Ambassador Dieckhoff followed the summons to Washington last Monday of U. S. Ambassador Hugh R. Wilson from Berlin.

In Spain, insurgents were reported preparing a new general offensive against Valencia and Tarragona, while the Japanese forged deeper into China from Hankow, captured provisional capital.

Citrus Hearing Is Adjourned By Judge M. B. Smith

Testimony On Arsenic Will Be Resumed In Titusville Monday

The hearing in the case of T. L. Longo, Seminole County grower, seeking to expel Commissioner Mayo from enforcement of the arsenic spray law, was adjourned yesterday afternoon by Judge Millard B. Smith who said the hearings would be resumed at Titusville Monday morning at 10:00 o'clock.

The parade of witnesses, testifying on behalf of the spray law, continued yesterday. Since the opening of the hearing here last Monday afternoon, witnesses from all over the state, including inspectors, growers, shippers, canners and experts have testified as to the adverse effects of citrus, particularly oranges, resulting from the use of arsenic sprays.

The first witness to be called to the stand yesterday was P. Davis, chief arsenic inspector, who testified that more than 2,100 acres of oranges and tangerines were tied up by the Commission because of the use of arsenic in violation of the spray law.

He explained the method used for testing for arsenic and also declared that the department for the PWA, by Jack Githrie, state director for the National Emergency Council.

According to Mr. Cole, 2,615 separate projects will be included in the PWA program of public improvements, including in Florida elementary schools and college

Lions Pass Resolution Against Use Of Seines, Nets In Fresh Water

Harry Rockwood, a member of the Gainesville Lions Club, presented a set of movie reels centered on organized major league baseball at the regular weekly meeting of the local Lions Club held Wednesday evening at the Valdez Hotel.

Claude Howard, deputy State game warden, was the guest speaker at the meeting and gave an address on the conservation of game and fish and at the conclusion of his remarks, the following resolution was adopted for transmission to the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission:

"We the Lions Club of the City of Sanford, Florida, in regular session, take this opportunity to advise the Honorable body of Game and Fresh Water Fish Commissioners, against the opening of any of the fresh water in Florida to seining or the use of gill nets in any manner.

"Due to the fact that an overwhelming majority of our own people, as well as visitors, derive pleasure and benefit from fresh water fishing, we would even recommend more stress be paid to the protection of the same in the future than in the past."

Mr. Rockwood presented the moving pictures through the courtesy of the American League of Professional Baseball Clubs and the General Motors Corporation. The sound movies showed what a young boy or man could accomplish in baseball by clean living, being a true sportsman and playing the game, if he were inclined toward following such a career.

John Meisch, Jr., president of the club, said that it is hoped Certain inhabitants of China have to pay their taxes 30 years in advance. Undoubtedly this plan was adopted in order to prevent anyone from cheating the collector by suicide.

Our idea of fitting retribution for some of the world's outstanding undesirables, would be for Hitler to take up enforced residence in the Bronx, Milwaukee in Harlem, and the Japanese Mikado in San Francisco's Chinatown.

If America becomes involved in war with a foreign power, it will be interesting to see, in view of the potentialities of airplanes, how many cities, now claiming to be the greatest coastal shipping centers, will suddenly become just mere inland trading posts.

If there are any squabbles during the next two weeks about post business, remember the hunting season opens on the 20th. Then the commercial life of the city moves to the woods and activity is centered chiefly in bird dogs and quail, to say nothing of turkey and deer.

Promised Daladier seems to be worried about how to keep French preparedness from running behind while Frenchmen refuse to work more than forty hours a week and Germans put in a good ten hours a day's work. It's like trying to win a war with a forty-hour week for your soldiers.

Business men, more and more are realizing that they have an important interest in defending their position before the public against attacks. Business has a case, and public opinion can be made to realize it, and the best way of accomplishing this is through newspaper advertising people, which are today carrying increased usage of institutional copy.

On the heels of announcements of new home construction, the purchase of the Mayfair, the approval of a new hospital, and other items of an optimistic hue, Sanford has just been selected as meeting training headquarters for the Chattanooga Lookouts, an achievement for this city which will result in plenty of publicity and will bring many welcome visitors.

Fireproofing

The man on a budget—and who isn't?—may think of fireproofing in terms of costly construction or renovation. But he's wrong, asserts Selma Robinson in the current Rotarian Magazine, for there are many instances of low-cost, fire-safe dwellings in the $5,000 class, and the safety in small houses as well as in large is achieved by careful attention to the whole problem and not merely by putting money.

The modern house, with its improved living conditions has not arrived to eliminate fire hazards, but merely to change them source, so do not be committing upon the use of labor-saving devices, mechanical appliances, air conditioning and better heating methods. Air conditioning systems, with tunnels from the cellar to every room in the house provide vertical airways which can be highly dangerous in case of fire or escape routes.

"Obviously, the answer is not to eliminate air condensation in the home, but to eliminate the hazards of inexperienced construction and inadequate materials," Miss Robinson points out. Non-combustible linings in ducts should replace inflammable material; automatic dampers will close if the temperature becomes too high; an automatic shutdown for the propane gas of fire, and other fireproofing aids should be installed.

Secondly among the materials used to protect homes, has been a flame-stopping spray that has been used with great success on draperies, blankets, and rugs in hotels, ships, restaurants, and other public places. Fabrics and even paper which are treated with this solution, which does not weaken or impair fabrics, char at the touch of fire and the carbonization engulfs the flame. A paint that smotheres fire and a method of processing wood for fireproofing it has recently been developed, according to the writer. Asbestos shingles and siding for exterior walls and roofing, brick or mineral wood fire stops, and a host of millions of ideas can be used to reduce fire hazards in the home.

Because two-thirds of the fires in the United States occur in private dwellings, efforts of home owners and fire departments to prevent fires are exceedingly important, concludes Mrs. Robinson. If every family is protected in a fireproofed home, in an automatic fire-alarming device, fire extinguisher, and a rope fire escape, parent and children alike can relax and feel safe both day and night.

Defeat In Victory

Time was when there were a few outstanding football teams in the country which could defeat any aggregation outside of their restricted circles by a flock of touch-downs. These few teams received all the publicity for their colleges and the public came to consider the colleges in terms of football teams and victories instead of its places of learning.

The smaller colleges, and the less publicized institutions saw the possibilities of gaining fame through the merits of winning football teams, so the great drive from coast to coast got under way for victories on the gridiron.

Of course, this practice might have worked out successfully if it had not been so universally adopted. But as it turned out, competition became so keen that no college could gain and hold the spotlight. Every time a college developed what it thought was an invincible aggregation, some little insignificant outfit came along and knocked it off.

Now, the situation has arrived at the point where every college football team in the country has the potential strength to sink the mightiest juggernaut in the land. There is no longer a select sphere within which gridiron greats can operate without fear of being taken for a fall by Old Swish.

There has become a plethora of top-flight football teams. No section of the country, no group of teams, and no single eleven can claim the spotlight for long. The hope of retaining nation-wide attention via the football route has passed. There are too many good ones. The situation is similar to that which might exist if there were 100 Babe Ruths in the country. There is no premium any longer on football prowess. In fact, the changes are better for gaining publicity by having inferior teams than by producing winners. Such a case would be an omen.

PWA Will Spend 150 Million In Southeast Region

buildings, water works and sewers, State, county and municipal buildings, as well as an extensive highway and bridge construction program.

The projects vary from an elementary school at Avon Park, costing $1,000, to a university building at Tallahassee costing approximately one-half million dollars from a county home in Kendall costing $35,000 to a monumental building in St. Petersburg costing nearly $100,000. The State of Florida is also making use of the PWA to extend its facilities at the State College for Women at Tallahassee, the University of Florida at Gainesville, and its system of hospitals, and to improve its facilities for handling tubercular patients.

According to Mr. Cole, engineer figures indicate that there will be over 7,120 million man-hours on construction work in Florida and another million man-hours of work in basic industries, so that there will be an approximate total of 25 man-hours of work created in the regular channels of trade by the work done in this state.

All PWA work is done by contract. Plans and specifications are prepared, and submitted to bid in the same manner as for private work.

The Federal Government, through the PWA, is furnishing an outright grant of 45 percent of the cost and the applicant in each case has to match this with 15 percent of the cost either in labor or in loans.

On the heels of announcements of new home construction, the purchase of the Mayfair, the approval of a new hospital, and other items of an optimistic hue, Sanford has just been selected as meeting training headquarters for the Chattanooga Lookouts, an achievement for this city which will result in plenty of publicity and will bring many welcome visitors.

its author to soothe the jangled nerves of a distraught world was signed yesterday in the same White House that British Troops left a few swipes on a century and a quarter ago.

That tag setting was provided by the administration to demonstrate what it sets down as a great moment in history, a moment when democracy is meeting a new challenge to the outlook of totalitarianism. In the signing of that British-American trade pact there are implications of a widening economic alliance among the democracies of the world, implications that hold no one swaying to Berlin, to Rome and to Japan.

Set against the background of fore-politics in Central Europe, in Spain, in Ethiopia and in China, the new pact is, in the view of administration men, far more than the essential cornerstone to the world peace arch. Secretary Hull has labored to hold ever since he took office. The White House and state department paid no effort to make it appear in the eyes of the world, an important step in the rallying of democracy to defense of its ideals.

It stands as an economic compact to the grim preparations both the United States and Great Britain are making to arm themselves for defense. To what extent the war fears of event months hastened the trade pact negotiations is a matter for conjecture. But the agreement itself, backed by similar agreements with 18 other nations, is a symbol of the democratic unity of purpose induced by events in Europe and Asia.

The pact holds out to all
"most-favored nations" a share in the increased trade it is designed to stimulate by means of lowered commercial barriers.

Just as certainly it means that other nations will be excluded from those benefits—perhaps isolated economically from the bulk of the world's busiest commerce.

The present program is the largest so far undertaken by the Public Works Administration. It equals in Florida approximately one-half as much as all previous programs combined, the total cost of the work previously done in this state being approximately $27,000,000.

Feds Play Eleven From St. Augustine To-night

Seminole Favored To Win Since Visitors Have Lost Services Of 2 Backfield Men

The Seminole High School Celery Feds will take to the gridiron tonight for their eighth contest this season with the St. Augustine Mullets furnishing the opposition.

Coch Bill Ferrazzi will bring his crippled eleven here for the tilt which is scheduled to begin at 8:00 o'clock at the local athletic field. On the injured list for the visitors is Bruce, ace halfback, who suffered a broken hand during the Daytona Beach tilt last week and was reported Wednesday that William Forson, ace fullback, had left town and would not return in time for the game.

Coach Leonard A. Lucas will probably send Babe Wilcox in as left end, Robert How-

Quadruplets To Live

PRO DE JANEIRO, Brazil—A country doctor, Alvaro da Rosa, told the Associated Press yesterday that he had quadruplets to live.

DASHING GEORGE McCLELLAND, wingback on the Stetson football team, will be in the spotlight again Saturday afternoon when the Hatters meet Oglethorpe U. in the Homecoming game at DeLand. The Sanford boy, playing his third and last season for Stetson, has been a real powerhouse in his team's offensive this season—in which the Hatters have won five out of six starts, trouncing over the Florida Gators and the Tampa Spartans. McClelland's running gains were the most spectacular of the Armistice Day victory at Tampa when the Stetson lads piled up 42 points and held their rivals scoreless. A great crowd of gridiron fans is expected to view the Stetson-Oglethorpe struggle, which will begin at 3 o'clock.

Program For Expansion Of Navy Endures

Contracts Awarded By Department For Construction Of Three More Battleships

U.S. Supremacy In Air Is Threatened

Nation's Air Force Must Be Tripled, Johnson Declares

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The Navy Department today awarded contracts for the construction of three battleships at an estimated cost of well over $150,000,000. One will be built in Newport News, Va., another at Quincy, Mass., both in private yards, and a third at the Norfolk, Va., navy yard.

A contract for a fourth battleship was not awarded, pending further study of costs by the Navy Department.

The Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation of Quincy, Mass., was awarded the contract on one battleship at a cost of $19,15,000.

Another battleship will be built by the Drydock Company at a cost of $19,540,000. The third ship to be built by the government will cost about the same amount.

BOSTON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The prediction that the United States must "lobby" and perhaps quadruple its air force because of the threat to our supremacy by Europe's advances was voiced yesterday by Louis Johnson, Assistant Secretary of War.

Johnson said he believed President Roosevelt would ask Congress for an Army air force of

Hendricks Favors Proposed St. Johns Indian River Canal

TITUSVILLE, Nov. 19.—Congressman Joe Hendricks, Deland, representing the fifth district, was a guest of the Kiwanis Club at the regular Tuesday luncheon. Congressman Hendricks was introduced by Senator J. J. Parikh, and talked briefly.

Declaring that he is going to see that his Congressional district "gets what is coming to it," Congressman Hendricks told Kiwanians at lunch here that he is "much encouraged" at progress being made toward ultimate development of projects of importance to this section, among them, the proposed Indian River canal and the development of Canaveral harbor.

Before the creation of the Fifth Congressional District, the Congressman pointed out, the district extended virtually the entire length of the East Coast and the large cities of the district received the greatest benefits when Federal projects were approved, so that waterways and natural harbors have gone undeveloped. Now, he said, that the Fifth is an independent district, as it were, it is in a position to benefit in this respect to a great extent.

6 Army Fliers Are Killed In Airplane Crash

One Seriously Hurt, Another Unaccounted For As Bomber Cracks Up In Storm

LAFRANCE, Ga., Nov. 19.—(UPI)—A crash of a twin-engined Army bombing plane during a storm in an isolated woodland killed six Army fliers today and seriously injured another.

An eighth man believed aboard the plane was sent down in a flying傂 and was recovered. He and survivors beat his body wet in the still-sounding wreckage.

The ship was on a routine flight from Mitchell Field, N. Y., to Maxwell Field, Ala., when it was caught in one of the many downpours that swept the south during the night.

A negro heard the crash and came here for help but police parties were huddled down in the rain-soaked dirt roads and took hours to reach the scene.

The big plane had plowed through trees for nearly 100 yards. Second Lieutenant John Madie and Private Joseph J. Niemirovich were brought into the hospital here.

Nineteen switch and later, physicians and Madie might die. Immediate identification of the bodies was impossible due to their condition. They were fully burned.

The Army and the following were aboard the plane: Second Lieutenant Kirkland Black, Second Lieutenant R. H. McKechnie, Second Lieutenant Alton M. Howery, Second Lieutenant Madie, Sergeant Harry T. Jones, Private Narowichuk, First Lieutenant James W. Stewart and Corporal Galloway whose first name was not available.

Both cases involve attempts to prevent enforcement of laws against arsenated oranges under which Commissioner of Agriculture Nathan Mays planned to ban the use of arsenic for the cure of citrus fruit.

The case already has been appealed here on an appeal from Polk county. Another is expected to result from a long hearing in circuit court at Titusville and Sanford on Wednesday night by a large number of members and friends of every department of the church gathered at the parsonage to express their welcome.

Dr. Buhman said that everyone regrets the transfer of Rev. Redfern but that the sincere good wishes of Sanford will go with him when he enters the larger field of service. Dr. Buhman expressed his thanks for the fine spirit the church members and others accorded him upon his arrival here.

The Rev. A. R. Buhman, son of Dr. Buhman, is at present the director of the Wesley Foundation of the Methodist Church at the University of Florida.

Edward Buhman, another son, is a local food inspector and Mrs. Betty Buhman, a daughter, is an instructor at the Junior High School.

He said he believed another member should be added to the six-man court to prevent three to three decisions that have occurred frequently in the past.

A proposal to amend the Constitution to increase the court to seven members was submitted to referendum in 1932 but failed to pass. Justice Thomas said at least one reason for its defeat was the economy feature against creating a new office.

"If there were seven justices," he said, "the court would have more time for its opinion, we have time for more opinions."

He remarked that split decisions of the court sometimes permitted one interpretation of law to apply in one circuit while another applies elsewhere, because any lower court decision is affirmed when the supreme court disagrees.

Justice Thomas and other members of the court addressed attorneys from Leon, Gadsden, Wakulla, Franklin, Liberty and Jefferson counties at dinner when a Circuit Bar Association was formed.

Rowson To Speak At Legionnaires Dinner

Howard Rowson, state adjutant for the American Legion, will be the guest speaker at the monthly dinner of the local post in the Legion Hut Monday night, according to Commander George Weinstein.

Mr. Weinstein stated that those who plan to attend the dinner must make reservations with him before noon on Monday in order that arrangements can be made to serve them.

Filling Station Operator Held Up By Armed Robbers

Louis Roberts, Lake Monroe filling station operator, yesterday reported to Volusia officers that he was robbed of $28 cash at 10:05 P. M. Thursday night by a young-looking white man who threatened him with a pistol.

Roberts' station, on State Highway 3 just north of the St. Johns River bridge, was deserted except for himself and a girl employee when a car stopped in front of his place of business, the bandit alighted, and fleeced him of $20 cash he said he was carrying in his pockets besides an additional $10 from the station cash register.

He added that another man waited in the car for the bandit and was the driver of the machine, but claimed he could not tell whether the accomplice was a white man or a negro.

Volusia officers reported that a man filling the bandit's description has been apprehended in Orlando, and that Orange County deputies are holding him as a suspect pending identification by Roberts.

ARRESTED IN FRAUD CASE

WASHINGTON—(AP)—W. M. Malone, head of the Securities Commission, said yesterday Washington police had arrested Charles Davenport, one of eleven salesmen indicted in connection with the allegedly fraudulent sale of $300,000 in stock of the Farmers Life Insurance Company, Jacksonville, Fla.

Kennedy States Only Few Would Benefit From Lift Of Ban

Although efforts are being made to open the St. Johns River and Lake Monroe to the use of seines for the commercial taking of shad, catfish and mullet, a letter from E. N. Kennedy, secretary of the State Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, would indicate that the ban on the use of seines in these waters will not be lifted by the commission.

Following a request to the Board of County Commissioners that commercial fishing for mullet be allowed, a letter from E. N. Kennedy, secretary of the State Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, would indicate that the ban on the use of seines in these waters will not be lifted by the commission.

In his reply Mr. Kennedy declared that "I do not believe the commission would look favorably on request of this kind, as these waters are now open to the taking of catfish with hook and line or trot line and seem to give employment to a large number of persons." Therefore, there would be only a few who would be benefited by the use of nets."

Many local sportsmen have expressed opinions for and against the use of seines in these rivers and creeks clubs have been asked to make resolutions on the matter.

Those against the use of seines contend that in the past there have been flagrant violations of the law which provides that only catfish, shad, mullet may be kept. They offensive launched a resolute protest against the dredging of nets across the bottom of the river.

Those in favor of seines declare that the undesirable fish such as garfish, mudfish are removed from the streams in down by Chinese counter offensives.

The use of seines is prohibited by law but there are provisions for the use of special authority of the game commission which considers recommendations of County Commissioners.

The law provides that it is unlawful to take fish by any other means other than a hook and line.

Views Conflict On British Trade Pact

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Conflicting viewpoints expressed on the new British and Canadian trade agreements by business and political leaders here showed a lively discussion in the Senate.

The comments ranged from bitter criticism to unstinted praise.

Those of Congress members for the most part followed party lines.

Democrats praising the agreement and Republicans questioning their value to the United States.

Any discussion in the next
