World Champs

Altamonte All-Stars Defeat Taiwan For Little League Title

GARY, Ind. — The Altamonte Senior League U.S.A. South All-Stars scored nine runs in the first three innings Saturday night and held off a late Far East (Ping Tung, Taiwan, Republic of China) surge to claim a 10-7 victory and the Little League Senior League World Series title.

The newly crowned Senior League World Champions returned home Sunday to a heroes welcome at Orlando International Airport and a police escort home to Altamonte Springs.

The Senior League All-Stars were the first ever Altamonte team to win a World Series title. The Altamonte Junior League All-Stars finished second in the world last year. The Altamonte Major National League All-Stars will try to bring another title home as they open play in the Little League World Series Tuesday in Williamsport, Pa.

"I'll tell you, it's quite a thrill when the Taiwan manager comes over and tells you that you've got the best team in the whole world," Altamonte manager Gene Letterio said.

Early fireworks by Mike Schmitt, who cracked a two-run home run, and Dan Beaty, who slammed a solo shot, highlighted the Altamonte offensive barrage in the first three innings.

Altamonte took a 9-1 lead before the Far East came charging back, the big blow being a grand slam homer off the bat of Lee I-Bao. The Far East cut Altamonte's lead to 9-7 in the sixth inning before Neal Harris came on in relief of Anthony Laszale and shut them down the rest of the way.

"It was a game of many emotions," said Letterio. "We beat three stateside teams (Delaware, Michigan and California) to get to the championship game. To play Taiwan for the title was a game made in heaven."

Blast Accidental

Deputy Shot By Officer After Chase

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer
A Seminole County sheriff's deputy is recovering at his home from a shotgun wound accidentally inflicted Sunday by a Casselberry policeman and the man the lawmen were pursuing at the time of the shooting is hospitalized with self-inflicted cut throat.

Deputy Mike Messer, 34, was wounded in the right leg when the shotgun Casselberry policeman Steven Brick hit against the rear window of the pickup truck they had been chasing accidentally discharged. The driver of the truck was holeup inside following a high-speed chase and subsequent crash into a tree. Brick was trying to pop out the window of the truck, said sheriff's spokesman John Spolaki, because the suspect would not come out.

Joseph Serge Delmedico, 22, was lying on the seat of the wrecked truck, bleeding from the throat cut, but refusing to obey lawmen's orders that he come out, Spolaki said.

Delmedico's pickup crashed into the tree near General Hutchinson Parkway, just off U.S. Highway 17-92. During the chase his vehicle reached speeds of 80 mph, Spolaki said.

Casselberry police were joined in the 5:30 a.m. pursuit of Delmedico by Seminole County sheriff's deputies and Longwood police. The chase began on Lemon Lane, Casselberry, continued north on 17-92, toward Sanford, until the suspect's truck turned near the parkway, left the road and hit the tree, Spolaki said.

Lawmen were chasing Delmedico because they had received a radio report from Altamonte Springs police saying that he had just fled the scene of an assault at 101 E. Altamonte Drive #520 where 21-year-old Kim Marshall had been stabbed several times in the throat.

Dep. Mike Messer

according to Altamonte policeman Jim Viner.

Altamonte Springs officers responded to a disturbance call at 5:10 a.m. at Ms. Marshall's home, but the suspect fled the scene, Viner said. Ms. Marshall was transported to Orlando Regional Medical Center, where Viner said Monday she was in serious condition in intensive care following surgery on her throat. Viner did not know what provoked the attack on Ms. Marshall.

Messer, who was standing on the ground, behind Delmedico's truck, when he was hit by the shotgun blast, which came from the truck bed where Brick was standing, was treated at South Seminole Community Hospital, Longwood, and released Sunday. Messer has been a Seminole deputy for five months.

Sheriff's deputies are investigating the shooting, but Casselberry's assistant police chief Fred Gates said, "At this point there is no indication of wrong doing on the part of our officer."

He added that his department will know more after the sheriff's investigation into the accident is completed and the sheriff issues a report on the shooting.

Viner said charges are pending against Delmedico, who is under a suicide watch at South Seminole Community Hospital, where he is in stable condition, following treatment for a self-inflicted slashed throat.

Geraldine Ferraro

Ferraro: 'We Pay Our Taxes'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Geraldine Ferraro said Americans will be satisfied she and her husband pay their fair share of income taxes when the couple's financial status is revealed today in detail.

"You'll see that we do pay our taxes and we pay them separately and that will all come out tomorrow," Ms. Ferraro said Sunday.

She was infuriated by speculation that her husband John Zaccaro was reluctant to release his returns because he may have paid little or no taxes. He relented and agreed to release his tax forms back to 1979 to put an end to "outrageous conclusions," she said.

The refusal to release the returns raised a furor that plagued Ms. Ferraro and Walter Moncale on the campaign trail all week.

Ms. Ferraro has never detailed her husband's financial holdings, claiming on congressional disclosure forms she was entitled to an exemption because she had no knowledge and derived no benefit from Zaccaro's real estate business. But she is a stockholder and an officer in one of her husband's corporations.

She said in an appearance on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley" she will put to rest all questions in a news conference on Tuesday. Neither she nor her husband will attend the briefing by accountants in Washington today.

The three-term New York congresswoman bristled at reports that Zaccaro has links to organized crime and she apologized for joking about the tribulations of being married to an Italian man.

She denied she owns half of one of her husband's companies and had nothing to say about an accountant's mistake on the couple's 1978 return that resulted in underpayment of about $60,000 in taxes.

Glitter, Optimism Abound

It's GOP's Turn

By Laurence McQuillan
UPI Political Reporter
DALLAS (UPI) — Abounding in glitter and optimism, Republicans open a four-day convention today that will ratify President Reagan as their standardbearer and equip him with a conservative platform that forcefully restates his dream for America.

Vice President George Bush — assured of his own place on the ticket — is in Dallas and hailed the 33rd GOP conclave as a prime time spectacle showing "what's right and what's good and what's decent about this country."

Bush said Republicans will "take these four days to express an upbeat, positive feeling of this country ... and to go and ask the American people ... 'Give us four more years and watch what the American people can do.'"

GOP Chairman Frank Fahrenkopf issues a call to order at 10 a.m. CDT for a largely ceremonial two-hour session, followed by an 8 p.m. CDT round that includes speeches by U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick and Senate GOP leader Howard Baker. It culminates with a keynote address by U.S. Treasurer Katherine Ortega.

The mood of the assembly, already festive, became even more optimistic with the release of a Time magazine poll Sunday night showing the GOP ticket with a solid lead over the Democrats — 45 percent to 31 percent.

Despite Geraldine Ferraro's presence on the ticket, the Reagan-Bush ticket even led among women, who favored the GOP 41 percent to 32 percent.

The party's 106-member platform committee today officially votes to submit its 68-page report to the 2,235 delegates for a approval. The document serves as a blueprint of party goals and hopes — which the conservatives who drafted it want to use for realigning the nation's body politik.

The platform, reiterating stands long held by Reagan and other conservative Republicans, opposes a tax increase, endorses a constitutional amendment outlawing abortion, calls for a strong national defense and rejects gun control laws.

A late push developed to broaden the image of the platform and the GOP, with deputy press secretary Larry Speakes Sunday calling it "a centrist document that enjoys the support of the entire party."

"I think any Republican can feel comfortable running on that platform, including the president," he said.

"It is a very good document and one the president is very comfortable with," he said.

No suspense hangs over this political gathering, which began informally over the weekend with a series of gala banquets for delegates, guests and party leaders.

The Reagan-Bush ticket was never seriously challenged for renomination — something that has not happened in GOP circles since 1956, when Dwight Eisenhower and Richard Nixon were renominated without opposition.

1 Killed, 1 Seriously Hurt In Multiple-Car Wreck

An Orlando man was killed and another Orlando man seriously injured Sunday in a four-vehicle accident in Casselberry.

Darrell Kendall, age and address not available, was pronounced dead shortly after the 1:43 a.m. accident on state Road 436, just east of Oxford Road. In serious condition early today in an intensive care unit at Orlando Regional Medical Center was David Megahee, 23, according to hospital spokesman Donna Kelley.

Kendall and Megahee were occupants of a pickup truck that left the westbound lane of SR 436, crossed the median and struck three vehicles, said

Casselberry's Assistant Police Chief Win Gates. He said it was undetermined today which man was driving the truck. Six people in the other vehicles received minor injuries.

After the truck hit the three cars, a Capri, a Buick, and a Pontiac, it flipped and was ripped in two, according to police.

Gates said the accident halted traffic in both directions on SR 436 for approximately one hour.

Kendall is the 23 traffic fatality in Seminole County this year. On Aug. 12, a 32-year-old Longwood man died from injuries when his motorcycle was hit by a car.

Power Restored

Power was restored early today to homes in Casselberry and Longwood after a Sunday afternoon thunderstorm downed power lines, cutting off electricity to about 8,000 Seminole County residents, according to Florida Power Corp. spokesman Tracy Smith.

Smith said the "vicious" storm had repair crews scrambling all night to mend the lines.

"We were busy all night. Some customers were out all night and some were out until this morning," Smith said.

Officials for Florida Power and Light said today that they had only a few scattered outages which were quickly restored Sunday.

Most New Voters Republican

A record 85,324 registered voters are eligible to vote in the Sept. 4 primary election in Seminole County, said Supervisor of Elections Sandy Gourd.

In the five weeks between the last voter count on June 30 and the closing of voter registration books on Aug. 4 for the primary election, 2,815 new voters added their names to the voter rolls.

Most — 1,709 — of the new voters registered as Republicans. Less than half as many — 833 — registered as Democrats.

And, despite intensive voter registration drives by the Democrats among blacks throughout the county, the numbers of black voters increased by only 147 during the five weeks.

James Weinberg, chairman of the Seminole County Republican Executive Committee, said he is delighted that Republicans are closing the gap with Democrats in the ranks of the registered voters in the county.

He said the GOP will be scheduling a voter registration drive before the books close for the general election and the Republicans could become the majority party in the county by then.

Democrats still have 3,900 more voters than the Republicans do.

Democratic Chairman Marvin Meltzer said, "I'm shocked and surprised" by the gains made by the Republican Party in voter registration.

Senate Incumbents Average $367,000 From PAC Coffers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Special interest groups gave Senate candidates more than $14.5 million in campaign contributions over the past 18 months, with the lion's share going to the 29 senators seeking re-election this fall.

Common Cause, a national citizen's lobbying group, calculated the figures after studying Federal Election Commission reports filed by the 73 current candidates for the Senate.

The organization said political action committees contributed $14,581,786 to candidates for the Senate from Jan. 1, 1983 through June 30, 1984.

PACs are created by special interest groups to funnel money to candidates generally favoring their positions. Of the more than 3,500 PACs in existence, the top 10 contributors belong to labor unions, the medical profession, realtors and auto dealers.

Of the more than $14.6 million given to the candidates, $10.6 million, or 73 percent, went to the 29 incumbents seeking re-election.

PAC contributions to individual candidates, the study found, averaged $367,306 per incumbent, $71,283 per challenger and $137,406 for each candidate seeking an open seat.

"With five PAC dollars going to incumbents for every one PAC dollar that goes to challengers, it is once again clear that PACs aren't so much interested in channeling their money to Republicans or Democrats, liberals or conservatives — their party of choice is incumbency," Common Cause President Fred Wertheimer said.

Of the top 10 recipients of PAC contributions, eight are incumbents and two are members of the House seeking Senate seats. They are:

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., $611,503; Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., $577,110; Rep. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., $564,221; Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., $556,483; Sen. Walter Huddleston, D-Ky., $534,306; Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., $477,208; Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss., $474,472; Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., $472,316; Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., $471,957; and Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., $449,745.

Common Cause also found the 73 Senate candidates raised a combined total of $81.8 million from all sources — not just PACs — during the same 18-month period. The top recipients are involved in key races that will determine which political party controls the GOP-led Senate next year.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., raised the most of any candidate — $9.1 million — while his Democratic opponent, Gov. Jim Hunt, raised $5.3 million.

In the Senate race in Texas, Republican Rep. Phil Gramm raised $3.7 million to Democrat Lloyd Doggett's $3.2 million.

Republican Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois raised $2.8 million and Political action committees (groups not affiliated with a candidate or party) contributed $83.6 million to 1982 congressional campaigns. The six lobbies that contributed more than $1 million each were responsible for nearly 11 percent of all PAC donations.

his opponent, Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., received $2.1 million.

Others among the top 10 recipients are: West Virginia Gov. Jay Rockefeller, $5.3 million; Boschwitz, $4.4 million; Bradley, $2.9 million; and Ray Shamie, a Republican in Massachusetts, $2.4 million.

The 73 candidates spent a total of $57.6 million and had a total of $24.3 million cash-on-hand as of June 30. The 10 candidates reporting the greatest expenditures and the amount each spent:

Helms, R-N.C., $8.7 million; Rockefeller, $4.9 million; Hunt, $3.9 million; Gramm, $3.7 million; Doggett, $3.2 million; Boschwitz, $2.8 million; Percy, $2.5 million; Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., $1.8 million; Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, $1.4 million; Armstrong, $1.3 million.

Challengers reported significantly lower expenditures and significantly less cash-on-hand, Common Cause said. The 10 candidates reporting the highest total cash-on-hand and the amount each had available as of June 30 are:

Bradley, $2.5 million; Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., $1.7 million; Boschwitz, $1.7 million; Hunt, $1.2 million; Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., $1.3 million; Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., $1.1 million; Gore, $938,000; Cochran, $889,000; Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., $852,000; and Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., $698,000.

Virus Believed To Be Cause Of AIDS Found

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A virus similar to one discovered in France and believed to be a cause of AIDS may be widespread among San Francisco homosexuals but apparently does not always cause disease, scientists report.

The researchers at the University of California School of Medicine, San Francisco, said last week that they found a virus similar to the French virus in about half the 45 AIDS victims they examined and in some male partners of AIDS victims and apparently healthy homosexuals.

The report was the first independent confirmation of a virus like the French-discovered one, called LAV or lymphadenopathy-associated virus, in patients outside Europe, the researchers said.

"The surprising thing is the isolation (of virus) from healthy homosexual partners and healthy homosexual men," said Dr. Jay Levy, an associate professor of medicine.

The virus was found in 22 of 45 victims of acquired immune deficiency syndrome, the team reported in the journal Science. It was also isolated from five of 10 victims of lymphadenopathy, a syndrome characterized by swollen lymph glands that is sometimes a precursor to AIDS.

Antibodies, which indicate past contact with the virus or the presence of virus in the bloodstream, were found in three of 14 male sexual partners of homosexuals and in two of nine apparently healthy homosexual men.

"Obviously, not everyone comes down with the disease," Levy said. "There is some way the body maintains the virus so it doesn't give rise to the disease, or there are other factors that come together to give rise to the full-blown syndrome."

These factors might include infection by other viruses, he said.

Levy said tests have indicated the San Francisco virus is similar to LAV, but no comparison has been made with HTLV 3, a variation of a human cancer virus linked to AIDS by researchers at the National Cancer Institute.

HTLV stands for human T-cell leukemia virus.

The Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta reported that as of Aug. 6, there were 5,479 cases of AIDS in the United States, of which 2,483 were fatal.

The disease is characterized by lowered immunity, which leaves the victim open to cancer and a variety of rare infections. Although the majority of victims in this country have been homosexuals, the disease has also struck Haitians, intravenous drug abusers, hemophiliacs and some heterosexual women.

Let's Use Some Restraint, Please

The gentle but public scolding that Justice John Paul Stevens gave his Supreme Court colleagues recently was as appropriate as it was unexpected.

Justice Stevens broke tradition during a speech at Northwestern University Law School by publicly criticizing his colleagues for their "enthusiastic attempts to codify the law instead of merely performing the judicial task of deciding the cases that come before them."

Such criticism was frequently leveled at the court during the tenure of Chief Justice Earl Warren. Nevertheless, Justice Stevens's broadside was fired not at liberal holdovers from the Warren Court but at Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices William H. Rehnquist, Byron R. White, and Sandra Day O'Connor, all of whom are generally regarded as conservatives.

In expressing disdain for the court's activism, Justice Stevens made the same point he had made in his vigorous dissents in the three specific cases cited in his speech. This public discussion of Supreme Court decisions by a justice is a healthy thing for the court, so long as it does not lead to bickering by the justices. Thus far, this has not been a problem.

Indeed, both Chief Justice Burger and Justice O'Connor later delivered speeches to the same American Bar Association convention where Justice Stevens made his remarks and neither mentioned his rebuke.

Nevertheless, we hope they read and will heed Justice Stevens's warning. This court has shown a disturbing tendency to follow the lead of the Warren Court and, in the words of Justice Stevens, "make a far reaching pronouncement" in cases where its proper role was merely to decide "what was necessary to dispose of the case." Judicial legislation by the court is equally important whether by a conservative Burger Court or the liberal Warren Court.

The Constitution gives the Congress, not the courts, the responsibility for making laws. When the justices forget that their constitutionally defined role is to interpret law, it's good to have someone like Justice Stevens around to remind them.

The Real Test

In its study of "education renewal" in the United States, the Task Force on Education for Economic Growth attempted to measure the progress the states are making to improve public schools.

Among the things the task force examined were spending increases, initiatives to encourage better teaching, curriculum changes and firmer student discipline rules.

Forty-six states are working on comprehensive plans to improve their public schools. Twenty of the programs are less than a year old.

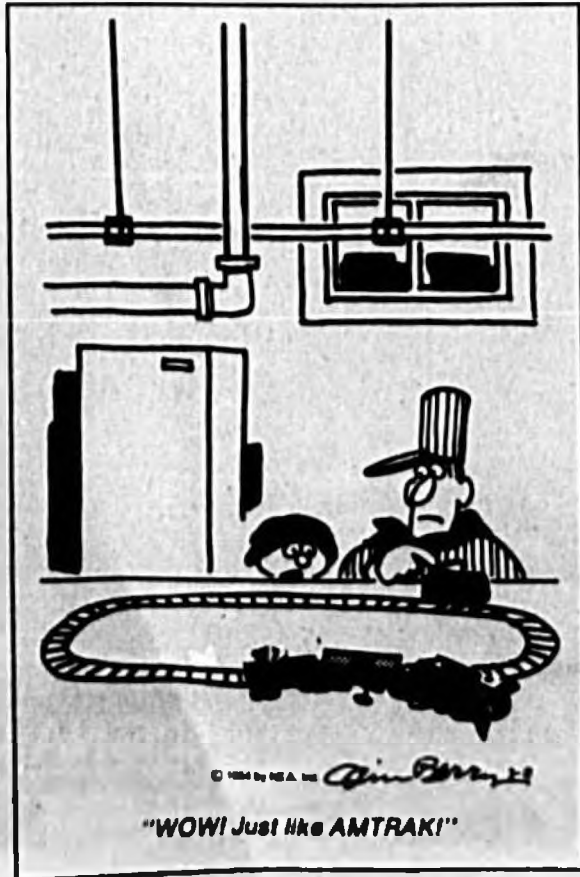

Such measures as improving the quality of teachers, lengthening the school day or year, more homework and reducing the size of classes should have positive effects.

But such measures are just a means to an end: better education. The effects will have to be measured over a number of years.

Delaware Gov. Pierre S. DuPont, chairman of the task force, warned at the National Governors' Conference in Nashville that if states pull back on programs, "we'll quickly find ourselves falling behind again."

True enough. It is encouraging to see activity related to school improvement efforts in so many states. But the real test is whether that activity results in a better education for the nation's youngsters.

BERRY'S WORLD

By Diane Petryk

If you or your kids are tempted to try breakdancing, the Florida Chiropractic Association has some advice for you.

First, be aware that it can be dangerous.

Breakdancing often involves movements that have a whip-lash effect on head, neck, arms and legs. These movements and gyrations of the hips and pelvis, and sharp twists and turns can bring on symptoms of weakness, headache, nausea and general discomfort.

The association reminds us that in a recent incident, a 25-year-old broke his neck attempting a breakdance movement.

"We recognize the artistic expression of breakdancing," said Dr. Frank DiDonato, Florida Chiropractic Association president. "We want it to be a safe experience and to alert breakdancers of ways to help protect their necks and backs."

DiDonato said breakdancers need preconditioning as much as gymnasts, ballet dancers and football players. The association suggests the following guidelines:

- Get instruction from a professional breakdancer, teacher or coach before attempting all but the simplest movements.

- Get professional advice and a medical check-up before starting to breakdance if you have a history of back or spinal problems.

- Do warm-up exercises for your back, neck, arms and legs for five to 15 minutes and 10 minutes of dance movements, brisk walking or light jogging before breakdancing.

- Support wrists, hands, ankles and other vulnerable body parts with gloves elbow and knee pads or tape and bandaging.

- Wear protective clothing with long sleeves and legs, such as warm-up suits, to help avoid abrasions and provide cushioning.

- Don't breakdance alone, in case you are injured and need assistance.
- Don't absorb impact in your wrists, hands or forearms when performing a flip from the standing position onto the hands. Let your elbows flex and your shoulders take the full impact.

- Don't spin your body while you are in a head-stand position. The quick rotation of the body while the head is in a fixed position can jar the spine off the base of the skull or cause other serious neck injury. The neck is meant to support the weight of the head only, not the entire body.

- Eliminate excessive starts and stops. This can jar the movable bones of the back and neck out of position and tear and pull the connecting muscle tissue, tendons and ligaments.

Be especially cautious of such intricate movements as the head spin, "windmill" and "helicopter." It is advisable to avoid the "suicide" completely or to first seek instruction from a gymnastics expert. These motions can subject the back and sensitive parts of the body to harsh impact, causing bone misalignments, dislocations and fractures.

And, finally, the association advises you stop immediately if pain occurs and subsists.

DON GRAFF Where Are They Now?

Where are you, Anne Burford and Rita Lavelle, now that I need you?

Back when you two were running the Environmental Protection Agency's toxic waste cleanup show, there was no problem telling the bad guys and the bad environmental policies from the good ones. Primarily, maybe, because there were so few of the latter.

Now, I'm no longer so sure. Especially about Superfund, the multi-billion-dollar effort to clean up an estimated 22,000 abandoned toxic waste dumps across the nation.

Legislation extending and expanding the original program is moving through Congress on an exceedingly fast track. It passed the House overwhelmingly — 323 to 33 — and will be priority business when the Senate returns from its the Republican convention recess.

Before Congress adjourns for the election, the bill could be on the desk of the president, who has backed off from initial opposition but has let it be known he would much rather postpone the extension until next year.

The House version would authorize expenditure of $10.2 billion — largely raised from taxes on industry — over a five-year period on the cleanup effort. The original Superfund, voted in 1980, was for $1.6 billion for a similar period.

The new legislation would also tighten performance requirements, mandating cleanup timetables and spelling out standards. All this is necessary now, supporters say, a year before the expiration of the existing legislation because of the unsatisfactory record to date: Only six sites have been completely sanitized out of a priority list of 546 judged most dangerous.

Opponents say that in the rush to legislate, substantive questions, such as correlating the size of the fund with the EPA's ability to spend the money effectively and distributing the funding burden equitably, were trampled in the political dust.

On the last point, the chemical industry thinks users as well as producers of toxic substances should be tapped. The first Superfund was based on a "feed stock" tax on the chemical raw materials. What is asked now is an additional "waste end" tax on the products manufactured from the chemicals that likewise end up in the dumps.

Both sides are in accord that the initial cleanup effort suffered from EPA's performance during the Burford-Lavelle era — a time of "environmental mismanagement," in the words of Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., the new bill's chief sponsor.

The End Of Kennedy

The inside word is that familiar one. Teddy Kennedy expects Monday to lose and is gearing up for a climactic presidential effort in 1988. A lot of people have their careers tied to another Kennedy presidency and are certainly urging him to run, but the whole project is doomed and the Kennedy phase of American history is over. The new book by Peter Collier and David Horowitz called "The Kennedys: An American Drama" is moving and has moments of profundity about all of this, and it is less an expose than a genuine tragedy.

The excerpt from the book that was published in "Playboy" magazine created a distorted expression of what the book as a whole is really about. The "Playboy" excerpt dealt with the degenerate behavior of the generation of old Joseph Kennedy's grandchildren, the drugs and the irresponsibility, and it had a grisly appropriateness since it appeared at about the same time as Bobby Kennedy's son David Odd on heroin in Florida, but the Collier-Horowitz book, covering four Kennedy generations, is more like a Greek generational tragedy by Aeschylus than a pop magazine expose. Old Joe Kennedy, the "founding father" as Richard Whelan called him in a biography, possessed what can only be called an almost demonic energy, rising relentlessly to the top of the corporate manipulation ladder, scheming to be president himself, and when that failed, plotting endlessly to make one of his sons president himself, with their cooperation if possible, without it if necessary.

Old Joe Kennedy was a harsh, amoral and enormously powerful man who could insult Franklin Roosevelt over the telephone or Bishop Cushing in his Boston office, and Roosevelt realized that he had either to destroy Kennedy politically or be destroyed by him. What blackmail Roosevelt used to prevent Kennedy from endorsing Wendell Wilkie in 1940 even Collier and Horowitz have not been able to discover, but when Roosevelt discussed this situation with his intimates he drew a finger across his throat, as if cutting Kennedy's.

It was this dynamism in the background that made the John Kennedy presidency possible, but the dynamism no longer exists. In Collier-Horowitz, Bobby Shriver shrewdly sums it all up. "We have to measure what we are by what our parents were. Grandpa had things complete wired — Massachusetts, the whole of the East Coast. He had it under control. He was a political consultant, a political action committee, and a media consultant all rolled into one. His only client was his family. He was fanatically dedicated to making it happen. Nobody in this family is ever going to decide that it's a life-or-death matter whether or not Kennedy gets elected to something. Even if they did, they can't make it happen any more. That's what's changed and we might as well admit it."

Bobby Shriver is right. It really is over. During Teddy Kennedy's losing run against Carter in 1980, he completely lost the respect of the traveling press. "By the midpoint of the campaign," write Collier and Horowitz, "the press had adopted a raucously irreverent tone that colored their perception of Teddy's candidacy. Reporters had noted, for instance, that Teddy and Joan could hardly stand each other.

There was much speculation on the campaign plane about whether and when they would ever hug or kiss. When Teddy finally did find himself in a situation where it was necessary to give her a brief peck on the cheek, the moment was captured by one of the television cameramen.

ROBERT WALTERS Mixing Politics, Religion

DALLAS (NEA) — The subjects of politics and religion invariably engender emotional responses, even when they're discussed separately. When combined, they can produce a synergistic effect that's unpredictable and explosive.

"Questions about any candidate's commitment to religion should not be part of the political discourse," says a senior aide to President Reagan.

"It's always safer not to talk about religious beliefs because (they) are so personal that they tend to antagonize," says New York Gov. Mario M. Cuomo, a Democrat.

Most politicians, terrified of that volatility, go to great lengths to avoid religion as a campaign issue — but this year's contest for the presidency is being inexorably drawn toward that potentially devastating combination.

"The debate has begun in earnest now," says Cuomo. Its roots, however, can be traced back to the president's base of political support during his successful bid for the White House four years ago.

Conservative political analyst and theoretician Kevin P. Phillips notes that in the 1980 campaign Reagan was exceptionally popular "among voters with cultural and religious issues on their minds — Northern Catholics, Orthodox Jews, Western Mormons and white Southern fundamentalist Protestants."

In the ensuing years, the president has reinforced that natural affinity by paying special attention to a small but exceptionally vocal group of fundamentalist clergymen who have embraced conservative politics in general and the Reagan administration in particular.

One member of the White House staff has described a Capitol Hill lobbying effort as "an indication of what can be done if the Christian people in America join together on a particular issue."

Another Reagan aide (Carolyn Sundseth, his liaison for religious affairs) has called upon "all saved Christians" to pray that fellow members of the president's staff "get saved or get out" of government.

An increasing number of people have become appalled by what one Reagan critic describes as the president's "holier-than-thou political rhetoric" and his inability or unwillingness to separate religious dogma from public policy.

The first to criticize Reagan publicly was House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass. "There's a man who doesn't go to church and he talks about prayer," O'Neill said in early March. "When you mention the peace keeper, the president thinks it's a misalle. That's not what the Lord meant."

The GOP's Election Strategy

WASHINGTON — Walter Mondale's introduction of tax increases as a major issue in the campaign threw a monkey wrench into the Republicans' well-planned election strategy.

From White House sources and internal GOP working papers, I've been able to get a picture of President Reagan's re-election strategy. If they can just contain the damage already caused by Mondale's tax-increase gamble — which obviously caught them by surprise — here's what Reagan's political professionals have charted for the campaign:

- Economic issues are the voters' chief concern, according to a confidential White House briefing report. "Our political success depends on what happens to the federal budget deficit, interest rates and unemployment," the report warned, noting that voters are more concerned about unemployment than inflation.

- Social issues rate No. 2 in the public's mind, the GOP strategy paper asserts. Crime is the big concern here, followed by education, Social Security and race relations.

- International relations — war and peace — is the third most important category of voter worries, the Republican strategists believe.

- The campaign planners have regretfully acknowledged that voters in general seem to be less concerned about the quality of leadership and the state of the nation's morality — precisely the areas where the president is regarded as strongest.

Given their certainty that economic issues are what voters care about most — and history is generally on their side in this — how do Reagan's advisers plan to capitalize on the present healthy state of the economy?

Essentially, they intend to replay their successful 1980 campaign.

According to a planning document reviewed by my associate Dale Van Atta, the president will continue to harp on the need to reduce total government spending, eliminate "undue and cumbersome regulations that smother initiative" and bring pressure "on all federal agencies to reduce waste and fraud."

To Democratic suggestions that Reagan has had four years to do this, the Republicans will be happy to respond that four years wasn't enough to clean up the mess they inherited from the Democrats.

In the GOP's economic blue skies there is only one small cloud — no bigger than a man's hand. But that hand belongs to Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker, and the dark cloud of rising interest rates could turn into a campaign thunderstorm for the Republicans.

The president's advisers are worried about what they refer to as the new "interest-rate constituency" — Americans at all economic levels who pay close attention to interest rates before buying a house or other major credit items. If they get too nervous to buy because of high interest rates, the economic recovery will shudder to a halt — and Reagan will lose his best campaign issue.

White House insiders blame Volcker's money policies for the recent rise in interest rates, and privately concede that Reagan's reappointment of Volcker was a mistake. All they can do now, though, is cross their fingers and hope Volcker doesn't bring on a recession before Election Day.

Barring such a disaster, the Republicans are confident they can ride the economic issues to another four years in the White House.

White House Wants Off-The-Cuff Remarks Off Evening News

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House is taking steps to see that the incident in which President Reagan joked about bombing the Soviet Union goes down in history as the last political and diplomatic embarrassment of its kind.

White House officials, who winced when Reagan, in a similar episode two years ago, called Poland's military leaders "lousy bums," want to ensure that from now on, remarks not intended for public airing are not heard by reporters.

Sources said the bombing remark, which created diplomatic as well as domestic political repercussions, was under review by the White House Communications Agency (WHCA), which feeds Reagan's weekly radio address to news agencies.

The agency inadvertently fed Reagan's remarks during a microphone check over an audio line used by the television networks. And while there was no evidence any reprimands would be issued, White House sources said there would be a redoubled effort to ensure the unintentional audio feed — perhaps the most damaging of several notable gaffes by Reagan over the last few years — does not recur.

"The lesson was learned," one source said, "and the White House has made clear they don't want to see it happen again."

White House officials were said to have been infuriated by the engineering lapse that carried Reagan's quip during a microphone test some 10 minutes before his paid political broadcast Aug. 11 to an audio feed distribution box utilized by television crews.

"My fellow Americans," Reagan said, "I'm pleased to tell you today that I've signed legislation that will outlaw Russia forever. We begin bombing in five minutes." The quip was followed by laughter.

Reagan may have kept the issue alive last week with a light-hearted reference to the flap during a closed-door meeting with 10 Jewish leaders.

Edgar Bronfman, head of the World Jewish Congress, said Reagan, in preparing to leave the Oval Office near the end of the 15 minute meeting, smiled and "said he had to go to a Cabinet meeting and he wanted to assure everybody that he was not going to bomb the Soviet Union in the next five minutes."

Reporters listening to the Reagan broadcast from the Santa Barbara hotel that serves as headquarters for the traveling

White House were not aware of his self-styled joke at the time.

The remark was fed to only one of the junction boxes placed in the makeshift White House press room. Standard procedure is to have only one "mult box" available. However, WHCA personnel added a second unit to accommodate television crews set up in another area of the room.

Audio technicians said the error came at one of two points: the ranch, where a WHCA staffer should have prevented the microphone test from being sent down the line to Santa Barbara.

or the hotel, where a second staffer blocked out the sound on the line from the usual mult box, but left a switch open to the second box.

Two networks, Cable News Network and CBS, recorded the Reagan remark.

Drivers Favor Tougher DUI Penalties, Helmet Laws

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A Florida State University poll of public attitudes toward drunken driving came up with some sobering statistics.

Although only 46 percent of the drivers contacted in the survey said they drank alcohol at all, 13 percent said the regulary drove while drunk — committing the offense about once a month.

"We're seeing a clear-cut trend in favor of stricter laws to regulate driving, particularly driving under the influence," said Dr. W. James Potter, the communications professor who supervised the telephone survey of 604 licensed drivers in late June and early July.

He said 67.4 percent of those surveyed favored clubside spot checks by police — the random samplings used in some states outside nightclubs and bars to catch drunks — and that 78.6 percent would like to see an "open container" law. During the 1984 legislative session, a bill forbidding drivers to drive with a drink in their hands passed the House but died in the Senate.

The survey showed 87.4 percent support for the motorcycle helmet law — which bikers have tried unsuccessfully to repeal — and 74 percent backing for automobile safety inspections. Gov. Bob Graham opposes resumption of the safety inspections, saying they cost too much, inconvenience drivers in long lines and do not prevent many accidents.

Although 48 percent of the respondents felt the state's drunken-driving laws were too lenient, very few could identify all the penalties for the offense. The minimum penalty on first offense is a $250 fine and six-month license suspension.

The only survey item drawing strong negative response was the "drum shop" proposal, which would make bar owners financially liable for damages caused by drunken drivers they serve. Only 27.4 percent of those surveyed felt bartenders should be responsible for cutting off inebriated drivers.

Potter said 32.9 percent of non-drinkers and 21.5 percent of drinkers favored the "drum shop" idea — but that there was "an interesting pattern" in age groups on the question. He said very young drivers and older motorists were more favorable toward it, while middle-aged drivers were strongly against it.

Fourth-four percent of teenaged drivers and 40 percent of those over age 70 favored the drum shop law, while only 18.8 percent of the drivers in their 40s supported the idea.

Altamonte Seniors Rule World

Harris Shuts Down Taiwan Rally

By Sam Cook

Herald Sports Editor
GARY, Ind. — Altamonte manager Gene Letterio summoned his Senior League All-Stars to the middle of the Junedale Joe Eckert Field Saturday night. The veteran skipper had just one more thing to say.

"Is there any team, anywhere left to beat?" he demanded.

There was no reply. No reply from as far away as the Dominican Republic. No reply from as close as Tampa Belmont-Heights. Not even a distant reply from Ping-Tung, Taiwan, Republic of China.

The 14 players looked at Letterio and screamed with glee. It was a scream only a team which rules the world can scream. The South Florida's Altamonte Springs Senior League All-Stars, had taken on the most powerful and successful baseball program in the world, Taiwan, and beat it to win the Senior League World Series title.

Nine runs in the first three innings saw to that. The final was 10-7. Taiwan, the Far East representative, staged an exciting comeback in the sixth inning but the Altamonte Seniors had come too far and fought too long to let this one get away.

More than anyone, Neal Harris saw to that. The slim righthander came on for a tired Anthony Laszale in the sixth inning and snuffed out a Far East rally which had pulled Taiwan to within two runs. Harris nailed down the championship with a perfect one, two, three seventh inning.

"I wasn't worried," said Altamonte second baseman Shane Letterio. "I caught Neal Friday and he threw real well. I knew he could do the job."

"When I saw the way Neal was throwing, I knew we had them," catcher Ryan Lisle teased in. "I know when Neal is on, and he was on tonight."

"This is the greatest feeling in the world," agreed team MVP Mike Schmit. "Neal came in and did a great job of holding them. I knew we had them."

The confirmation from Letterio, Lisle and Schmit was necessary. These three, along with Harris and manager Letterio, had been on the verge of greatness twice before. But Belmont Heights had stolen their glory. Once as 12-year-olds and again as 13-year-olds. Both came at the State Tournament and Belmont parlayed those two victories into a second (12's) and first (13's) finish in the world.

But there was no slippage this time. After Lee I-Bao had slugged a grand slam homer to pull Taiwan within 9-7, manager Letterio called for Harris to get the final out in the sixth inning.

"I just wanted to come in and throw strikes," Harris said. "But I knew Anthony wasn't getting any calls, so I was a little nervous."

It showed. He walked cleanup hitter Par Tung-Hun and then walked the dangerous Chiu Yao-Chu on a 3-2 pitch. Yang Chung-Wen then came to the plate representing the go ahead run. Harris, however, was up to the task. Chung-Wen didn't have a Chinamen's chance as Harris struck him out to end the inning.

"I found out where the ump was calling them and where he wasn't," Harris said about the strike zone. "Then, I knew we had them. I didn't think anybody could come back and beat our team. I was so pumped up before the seventh inning, I knew they weren't going to get any runs."

Lisle and "Dandy Randy" Green, nevertheless, gave Harris one more run to work with in the seventh. Lisle, who reached base five times and scored three runs, started the inning when the shortstop kicked his ground ball for his fourth error.

Letterio flew out to left for the first out. Schmit, who had crushed a two-run homer in the first inning, but hadn't seen many strikes since, was up next. Reliever Shan Chun-Chang tried to pick Lisle off first, but his wild throw allowed Lisle to move to second. Next, Schmit struck out on a low 3-2 pitch but the ball bounced away from the catcher. As the catcher was throwing out Schmit, Lisle scrambled to third barely making it with a head-first slide.

Green did his thing next. "I was trying to lay off the low pitch because I knew he would throw me curves," said Green. "He got a curve a little inside and I just tried to do my job."

The result was a ground ball to the left side. Shortstop Kuo-Chian moved swiftly to his left, but as he was approaching the ball, it struck a pebble and bounced over his head for a single to score Lisle for a 10-7 lead.

It was more than enough. Harris retired the first hitter in the seventh on a fly ball to center, then struck out the next hitter swinging. He got the last one on a called third strike which sent the Altamonte players and their vocal contingent of fans up for grabs.

Although manager Letterio was ecstatic with the championship he was quick to applaud Taiwan. "I think they were tired," he said. "Those two games on Friday really took it out of them. They weren't at their best defensively (seven errors)."

But I'll tell you, it's quite a thrill when the Taiwan manager comes over and tells you that you've got the best team in the whole world."

After the South and the Far East traded runs in the second, Altamonte added three more in the third for a 9-1 bulge. Beatty started things with a bang by drilling an 0-2 pitch over the left field fence for his second homer of the series. "The pitcher did the same thing both times," pointed out Beatty. "He got two strikes with junk balls, then threw a fastball on the inside

Altamonte catcher Ryan Lisle puts the tag on Altamonte, representing the U.S.A. South the Far East's Kuo-Chian after a perfect built an early lead and hung on for a 10-7 throw to the plate from right fielder Bill Henley. The play thwarted a Far East scoring threat in the first inning and corner. That's my pitch."

One out later, Lisle walked. Letterio then lifted a fly ball to short center and one of the most bizarre plays in baseball followed. The centerfielder made a diving catch or trap. Lisle, thinking the ball was caught, hustled back to first. When he realized it was trapped, he broke for second. The first baseman received the ball from the outfield, but then hurled it into centerfield, allowing both runners to reach safely.

Altamonte took immediate advantage of its luck. Schmit reached on another error by the shortstop to load the bases. Pinch-hitter Green then lifted a fly ball to center but it wasn't deep enough to score a runner. Chun-Chang then balked to score Lisle and Henley followed with a base hit for a 9-1 lead. Altamonte and Laszale seemed to have things under control. Laszale set down the side in order in the third, and then faced just three hitters in the fourth thanks to a snappy Schmit-to Letterio-to Harris double play in the fourth inning.

Min-Hsuang, led off the fifth with a homer, but Laszale retired three of the next four to bring Altamonte within six outs of its dream.

Collins' Triple Carries Blue Jays Over White Sox

The seemingly endless supply of Chicago White Sox pitchers in the past few years may keep the club's starters from getting burned out, but it might burn them once in a while too.

Tom Seaver was cruising along Sunday with a 4-3 lead against the Toronto Blue Jays in Chicago, when Juan Agosto came on to pitch the ninth inning. After two consecutive pinch-hit singles, Dave Collins tripled with one out to ignite a four-run rally that lifted the Jays to a 7-4 victory.

Red Sox 5, Twins 4

At Boston, Bill Buckner singled home the tying run and scored the game-winner on a single by Ed Jurak in the eighth inning to rally the Red Sox. Reliever Len Whitehouse, 2-2, took the loss. Steve Crawford raised his record to 5-0 and Bob Stanley pitched the ninth to earn his 18th save.

Mariners 4, Tigers 1

At Detroit, rookie Mark Langston's four-hit, 11-strikeout performance over 8 1-3 innings sparked the Mariners. Phil Bradley singled three times and scored twice and Steve Henderson drove in a pair of runs with three singles to pin Dan Petry, who struck out a career-best 11 for the Tigers, with his sixth loss in 21 decisions.

Yankees 9, A's 6

At New York, Ken Griffey capped a five-run eighth inning with a three-run homer and Dave Winfield had four hits and three RBI to lift the Yankees. Jay Howell, 6-4, pitched 1 2-3 innings for the victory, with Dave Righetti hurling the ninth for his 22nd save. Bill Caudill, 8-6, took the loss.

Indians 8-2, Brewers 6-1

At Cleveland, Mel Hall homered with one out in the ninth inning in the opener and scored the winning run on Pat Tabler's triple in the bottom of the ninth of the nightcap to pace the Indians' sweep. Reliever Tom Waddell got the opening victory and Steve Comer, 7-5, went the distance for the first time this season in the nightcap.

Orioles 10, Angels 4

At Baltimore, light-hitting Rick Dempsey rapped two home runs and Gary Roenicke homered and knocked in four runs to help Mike Flanagan break a personal five-game losing streak and spark the Orioles. The loss was the fifth in a row for California. Flanagan, 10-11, benefitted from a 16-hit attack to gain his first victory since July 7. Bruce Kison, 3-2, took the loss.

Rangers 6, Royals 4

At Arlington, Texas, Ned Yost and Gary Ward drove in two runs each and George Wright hit his second homer in two nights to help the Rangers win a game in which the temperature reached 113 degrees. Frank Tanana, 13-11, recorded his third straight win, allowing nine hits and striking out one in 6 1-3 innings. Tanana retired 15 straight batters.

Jimmy Musselwhite will be on the mound Tuesday as the Altamonte Major National League All-Stars open play in the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa., against Los Gatos, Ca. Musselwhite has a 5-0 record in tournament play thus far.

Trevino Bolts To Record, Wins PGA Title By 4 Strokes

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Lee Trevino has won a lot of tournaments, including six majors, and more than $3 million during his pro golf career, but he says winning this year's PGA Championship had to be the best.

"When you are young, you figure it's inevitable that you are going to win sooner or later," said the 44-year-old Merry Mex. "But when you're old, the inevitable is over with."

"Mentally, you still feel you can win — but it doesn't happen."

Until Sunday, Trevino had not won a major title in a decade and hadn't won anywhere in more than three years. He beat his two closest rivals, former PGA champions Gary Player and Lanny Wadkins, by four strokes with a 3-under-par 69 for a 15-under 273 that set a record for this prestigious tournament.

The victory in the $700,000 event was worth $125,000 and made Trevino only the third golfer (with Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson) to earn more than $3 million on the PGA Tour.

"But I haven't cashed the check yet," quipped Trevino when he bummed a cigarette.

Player (71) and Wadkins (72) had 277s. Calvin Peete, who slowed down after a fast start, was fourth at 68-278. British Open champion Severiano Ballesteros of Spain, making a charge before putting his approach shot in the water in front of the 17th hole, was fifth at 70-279.

Defending champion Hal Sutton got off to a 74-73 start but surged with an 8-under 64 on Saturday and finished at 69-280, where he was tied for sixth with Scott Simpson (70), Gary Hallberg (72) and Larry Mize (73).

Trevino, Wadkins and Player had just finished the sixth hole when a fierce thunderstorm swept the Shoal Creek course. Trevino, who was struck by lightning during the 1975 Western Open and since has been bothered by a bad back which now doesn't allow him to practice on tournament days, didn't want to wait for a van to take them back to the clubhouse during the one-hour delay.

LOPEZ WINS WORLD TITLE

SHAKER HEIGHTS, Ohio (UPI) — Why does Nancy Lopez say she feels lucky?

Her feet were all blistered from new golf shoes, but she wrapped them in foam rubber after using anesthetic ointments and sprays.

Also, the 27-year-old golfer's contact lenses were irritating her. The simple solution was to remove them, despite not having any eyeglasses with her.

"I really couldn't see the flagstick, it was too blurry," Lopez said. "Maybe it's better that way."

The squinting Lopez struggled Sunday to a final-round 73, but that was good enough for a tournament-record 7-under-par 281 and a one-stroke victory over defending champion JoAnne Carner in the $200,000

World Championship of Women's Golf.

Carner, who earned $35,000, finished with a 69 and tied the previous 72-hole record of 6-under 282 she set last year and shared with 1980 titlist Beth Daniel. The 45-year-old veteran compiled rounds of 72-71-70-69.

"No contacts and bad feet, eh?" Carner said. "We're lucky Nancy didn't have a headache — she would've won by 10 shots."

ROOKIE QUINLAN WINS 1ST
NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (UPI) — Rookies in every sport go through difficult periods, and Sally Quinlan is no exception.

The 23-year-old Quinlan Sunday won her first LPGA event, the $100,000 LPGA Pro Am, with a 4-under-par 284 good for a five-stroke victory over second-place finisher Jane Geddes.

Geddes shot a 1-under 71 on the final round to place second with a 289 total. Alexandra Reinhardt posted the best score of the final round, a 69, to finish third at 290.

Theresa Hession, who started the day in second place at even-par, shot 3-over in the final round to finish fourth. Pat Meyers was fifth at 292 and Kathy Whitworth fired a 70 to come in sixth with a 293. She was the only other golfer to break par on the final day over the 6,213-yard Wykagyl Country Club course.

Quinlan started the day with a six-stroke lead following her women's course-record 67 Saturday at the Westchester Hills Golf Club, one of three courses used in the tournament.

Jensen Boosts Miami Past L.A.; Falcons Pound Buccaneers, 52-24

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A year ago, with his club in trouble, Miami Coach Don Shula unleashed rookie Dan Marino on the NFL and the result was an AFC Eastern Division title.

Now Shula appears to have an even more versatile secret weapon at his disposal. His name is Jim Jensen and not only does he throw passes, he catches them. He's also a pretty talented runner.

Jensen, a fourth-string quarterback and third-string wide receiver last season, ran 3 yards for the winning touchdown with 8:51 left to play Sunday, lifting the Dolphins to a 29-23 pre-season victory over the NFL champion Los Angeles Raiders.

Miami, which trailed 20-6 at halftime, stormed back with 20 consecutive points to pull ahead. Rookie Joe Carter raced 58 yards to the Raiders' 17 early in the second half and then scored from the 4 to help spark the Dolphins' rally.

Uwe von Schamann's 49-yard field goal made it 20-16 and Al Del Greco's 36-yarder cut it to 20-19. Jensen then engineered an 84-yard drive and capped it with his 3-yard run around right end for a 26-20 lead.

Jensen, a four-year pro from Boston University, carried twice for 13 yards. He lined up at wide receiver in the first half and caught two passes for 16 yards.

"I was happy with the second half, not the first," Shula said. "We planned patterned substitutions and we went with them. Jensen did a good job and Carter broke off a big run to help get us going."

"We needed a big play to kinda spark things," said Carter, a rookie from Alabama. "The play was a simple dive up the middle. I got a great block from the fullback and it went wide."

The Raiders, playing for the first time at home in the Coliseum since winning the Super Bowl at Tampa in January, were disappointed with their showing.

"At this point in the season, in the third pre-season game, we should have played better but we didn't," said coach Tom Flores. "Overall, we just weren't precise. We just have to play better. It was a physical game.

We have a short week, coming back Friday, so we'll just have to get ready."

"I'm disappointed we didn't move the ball better and score more points," said Raiders quarterback Marc Wilson, who brought Los Angeles to the Miami 7 in the final minute. "They held the ball well on us in the third quarter. It would have been nice to pull it out."

Marino was out with a broken finger. Raiders star Marcus Allen injured his side early in the game but X-rays were negative.

ATLANTA (UPI) — Gerald Riggs ran for two touchdowns Saturday night and quarterback Steve Bartkowski threw a 71-yard scoring pass to Stacey Bailey to lead the Atlanta Falcons to a 52-21 rout of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in an NFL exhibition game.

Riggs scored his first touchdown on a 2-yard run early in the first quarter, but the Bucs tied the score 7-7 on a 5-yard run by fullback Melvin Carver with 14:31 gone in the first quarter.

The win gave Atlanta a 1-2 pre-season record. Tampa Bay is 2-2.

Bartkowski threw his 71-yard strike to Bailey early in the second quarter. Riggs scored again on a 1-yard run with 20 seconds left in the half to culminate a 70-yard drive that took 11 plays.

Falcons running back William Andrews scored on a 1-yard plunge with 11:17 elapsed in the third quarter. Atlanta added its third touchdown on a 38-yard pass from backup quarterback Mike Moroski to rookie split end Willie Curran.

Rookie quarterback Dave Archer, out of Iowa State, hit Curran again with a 37-yard scoring pass 46 seconds into the final quarter, capping an 85-yard drive in six plays. Falcons kicker Mick Luckhurst then added a 49-yard field goal.

Tampa Bay got its second touchdown on a 20-yard pass from backup quarterback Blair Kiel to fullback Scott Dierking. The Buccaneers scored again late in the final period on a 1-yard pass from Kiel to Dierking to end a 74-yard drive in 11 plays.

Atlanta running back Eddie Meyers scored from 4 yards out in the fourth quarter.

Miami's Uwe von Schamann boots a field goal out of Don Strock's hold. Uwe nailed a 49-yard field goal Sunday and another Dolphin place-kicker, Al Del Greco booted a pair of field goals as Miami upended the L.A. Raiders.

Cey, Bosley Power Cubs Over Cincinnati, Rose, 9-6

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Pete Rose is giving the fans their money's worth; Ron Cey is showing them he's worth the money.

Rose, playing in his third straight game since taking over last Friday as player-manager of the Reds, had three more hits Sunday in Cincinnati but they didn't help much as Cey and Thad Bosley each hit a three-run homer to power the Chicago Cubs to a 9-6 victory.

At Pittsburgh, Phil Garner went 3-for-4, including a solo home run that snapped a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning, as the Astros stretched their winning streak to nine games.

At St. Louis, David Green hit an inside-the-park homer and drove in three runs to lead the Cardinals. Ricky Horton, 8-2, went 5 2-3 innings for the victory, giving up four hits and three runs.

N.L. Baseball

Phillies 6, Dodgers 3

At Los Angeles, Ozzie Virgil's two-run single highlighted a four-run seventh inning that gave Shane Rawley and the Phillies a victory.

Expos 3, Padres 0

At San Diego, Andre Dawson drove in three runs with a single and a homer and rookie Joe Hesketh and Jeff Reardon combined on a six-hitter to lead the Expos.

Giants 7-2, Mets 6-4

At San Francisco, Brad Wellman's two-run homer with one out in the bottom of the ninth lifted the Giants in the first game of a double-header.

Clunn Dedicates BASS Masters Classic Championship To Father

PINE BLUFF, Ark (UPI) — Rick Clunn, who may have put together one of his best performances ever in winning a third BASS Masters Classic world championship, headed to Texas Sunday to visit the man who inspired his career.

The Montgomery, Texas, fisherman learned on the opening day of the tournament on the Arkansas River that his father, Holmes Clunn, 66, was critically ill in a Houston hospital.

Clunn, 38, who led the tournament from the beginning, decided to finish it instead of returning to Texas, a decision with which he felt his father would agree. His performance remained steady with each outing, culminating in a final-day catch of seven fish weighing 27 pounds, five ounces, and giving him a record, three-day total of 75 pounds, nine ounces.

A 10-year veteran of the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society circuit, Clunn beat his nearest competitor in a field of 40 anglers by 25 1/2 pounds and broke his previous classic record of 59 pounds, 15 ounces set in 1976 on Lake Gunterville, Ala. He also won the championship tournament in 1977.

Clunn's victory that earned him the grand prize of $40,000 Saturday brought the capacity crowd in the Pine Bluff Convention Center to its feet.

Rebels Ousted From Nationals

BUFFALO, N.Y. — The Orlando Rebels couldn't muster an offensive attack and, after going scoreless on just four hits in two games, were quickly ousted from the National Women's Fastpitch Softball tournament.

The Rebels dropped a 3-0 decision to the host Buffalo Shamrocks on Saturday, then lost to the Philadelphia Bandits, 1-0, on Sunday.

Three Seminole County prep softball stars played for the Rebels this season and contributed to the team's success. They included Sandy Gillies and Grace Ley of Lake Howell and Lisa Simkins of Lake Mary.

Ley and Gillies had one hit each in the game against Buffalo on Saturday, but the remaining Rebels had just one hit between them. On Sunday, Philadelphia held the Rebels to just one hit. Ley was part of the only Orlando scoring threat Sunday as she reached on an error after Chris DePersia's leadoff single.

Gillies, Ley and Simkins will be entering their senior years when school starts next Monday.

Harding Leads Way For Loreleis

JACKSONVILLE — The Loreleis Sharidan Aquatic Club of Longwood continued to blaze new trails for Central Florida in synchronized swimming as four Loreleis members placed at the National Junior Olympics Synchronized Swimming Championships this past weekend.

Tia Harding led the way as she finished second in the figure championships on Sunday, third in the solo competition on Saturday and she teamed with Alice Reese to place fourth in the duet championships also on Saturday.

Jerilyn Santoro was seventh in the solo competition and she teamed with Danielle Toncina to place sixth in the duet championships.

McEnroe Disposes Of Gerulaitis

TORONTO (UPI) — A tenacious monkey finally fell from John McEnroe's back and landed with bruising force on a somewhat diminished Vilas Gerulaitis.

For seven straight years McEnroe had been foiled in his bid to capture the Players International tennis championship. But Sunday, on his eighth try, the No. 1-ranked player in the world finally found the winning formula.

He dispatched Gerulaitis with humiliating authority in the championship match — 6-0, 6-3 — employing a style that made him look hungry and eager for the coming U.S. Open.

"I am glad after eight times coming here I have finally won," McEnroe said. "It was getting to be a mental thing. I didn't think I was ever going to win. I am glad that is off my back."

His last trip to the Players final was in 1979 when he was routed by Bjorn Borg. He has been a regular entry since 1977.

Tennis

The 25-year-old New Yorker is having a banner year. Just five weeks ago he captured the prestigious Wimbledon crown with a stunning straight-set victory over Jimmy Connors.

In this tournament, McEnroe displayed much of the same speed and accuracy. He lost just one set — to Connors in Saturday's semifinal. He has lost only one match in 59 this year and only nine sets — three to Ivan Lendl in the French Open.

"I have had the best year I could ask for so far," McEnroe said. "Winning the U.S. Open would be icing on the cake."

McEnroe needed less than an hour to defeat Gerulaitis, taking the first set in 18 minutes as he was putting together a string of nine straight games.

"I should have won that 10th game also. I had three break points," he said. "I was in control of the match right from the beginning. The key was not to let it slip and I didn't."

"He hit some good shots on my serve. It's just that he couldn't put a whole game together. I'd return the ball good and he wouldn't be ready for it."

Gerulaitis had been unhappy with his play in the tournament all week and had no reason to be pleased with his performance against McEnroe, a player he has not beaten on the tour in four years. McEnroe holds an 11-3 margin in career matches.

Gerulaitis said his serving arm was painful the morning before the final, but admitted it probably had little impact on the result.

"I started out so cold today, like I have been doing every other match this week," he said. "But against McEnroe you just can't do that. I probably used up all my luck in the four or five matches before this one."

"It was just one of those days. Unfortunately, it had to be the final."

Gerulaitis failed to return McEnroe's serve with any consistency in the first set and relinquished six points on double-faults, including three in the final game of the set.

He did not hold service until

John McEnroe broke a seven-year jinx by winning the Players International tennis crown over Vilas Gerulaitis.

the fourth game of the second set which went to deuce five times. After winning the game, Gerulaitis fell to his knees and bowed to the heavens in gratitude.

Like several other players in the tournament, McEnroe and Gerulaitis complained of the slow court surface and the heaviness of the balls.

"These balls are different; they are heavier than the ones we are used to," McEnroe said. "A lot of the players felt some soreness because you have to hit the ball harder."

Sullivan Wins Pocono

LONG POND, Pa. (UPI) — The Lola's are on the March. Danny Sullivan drove a Lola to his first CART oval victory Sunday at Pocono Raceway in a concerted effort by the British body manufacturer to end the March car's two-year domination of Indy-car racing.

Sullivan won a road race at Cleveland earlier this year and Mario Andretti has won four races in the Eric Broadley-designed chassis. Andretti's boss, Carl Haas, is the American distributor and the sudden success of the Lola has flooded his office with potential purchasers.

"I didn't know I could pass Rick and Bobby so easily," a sweat-streaked Sullivan added.

The 14-year-old righthander, however, ran out of gas in the sixth. He gave up two singles to open the inning but then retired the next two hitters on an infield out and a pop fly. His control deserted him at that point and two more walks forced in a run for a 9-3 ballgame.

One pitch later, I-Bao launched a long drive inside the left field foul pole for a grand slam to pull Taiwan within 9-7. Manager Letterio then summoned Harris and, after two walks, the cool righthander set down the final four hitters of the game.

"It was a game of many emotions," said Letterio. "We beat three stateide teams (Delaware, Michigan and California) to get to be championship game. To play Taiwan for the title was a game made in heaven."

And, a heavenly ending for Altamonte.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Israel To Close Major Crossing Into S. Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli authorities said they would close a major link between the Beirut area and southern Lebanon today in an apparent attempt to cut arms supplies to guerrillas fighting Israeli occupation troops.

The Israeli military, which controls access to the southern third of Lebanon, confirmed Sunday it would close the Bateer crossing on the Awau River for two days in order to build a new facility for better security checks.

Israeli troops have occupied southern Lebanon since June 1980 when they invaded the country in a drive against 8,000 Palestinian guerrillas who had been launching cross-border attacks on settlements in northern Israel.

Israel television said the ruling Likud bloc and the opposition Labor party agreed that any new coalition government would ensure security for northern Israeli settlements and pull the estimated 10,000 troops out of Lebanon.

Coal Strike May Widen

LONDON (UPI) — The militant National Union of Mineworkers, in the sixth month of a bitter coal strike, will ask unions to support a virtual general strike if the government penalizes workers under recent labor laws, union documents published today showed.

The union proposed the new tactic in an amendment to the agenda, published today, of the September convention of the Trades Union Congress, an umbrella group of British trade unions.

The amendment says the congress should call strikes involving all unions to support any worker fined, imprisoned or punished in any way under employment and labor laws enacted by the Conservative Party government of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

Earlier this month the union was fined $85,000 by the High Court for breaking an injunction issued under laws restricting picketing away from the workplace. Coal miners had attempted to block coal deliveries to a steel plant.

Youths Fire On Police

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Crowds of youths opened fire on a police patrol and hurled gasoline bombs and stones at officers in Belfast early Sunday, in the fourth night of violence in the riot-torn city, police said.

Fifteen people were arrested and two were injured.

Police said they fired plastic bullets at the rioters in "sporadic" outbreaks of fighting that began in Protestant and Catholic areas of the city just after midnight and lasted for about two hours.

The heaviest outbreaks were in the Protestant Shankhill Road area of West Belfast, scene last week of the worst violence by pro-government loyalists in more than a decade.

Suspicious Objects Found In Gulf

U.S. Divers Search For Mines

ABOARD THE USS SHREVEPORT (UPI) — U.S. Navy frogmen will dive to investigate three mine-like objects located by an American oceanographic ship scouring the Gulf of Suez for underwater explosives, a U.S. naval commander has said.

The divers were being summoned from U.S. Navy units in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, but could not say when they would begin diving operations from the USS Shreveport, an amphibious transport dock. Commodore Alvin S. Newman said Sunday.

A task force of American, French, British and Egyptian vessels was searching the Gulf of Suez and the Red Sea for mines of unknown origin that have damaged at least 18 ships, including three Soviet vessels, since July 9, according to Lloyd's of London.

Two Soviet mine sweepers steamed through the Suez Canal en route to the Red Sea early Sunday, possibly signaling the start of a separate Soviet sweep for explosives in the strategic waterway linking the canal and the Indian Ocean.

An official of the Suez Canal authority refused to disclose the destination of the Soviet vessels, identified only by the numbers 413 and 912. But other sources said they were probably heading for Aden, South Yemen where the Soviets have a naval base near Bab El-Mandab, the southern gateway to the Red Sea.

Egypt has accused Libya of laying the mines, but President Hosni Mubarak backed off on earlier assertions implicating Iran in the campaign to disrupt shipping in the Red Sea. Libya and Iran have both denied any involvement.

Four Sea Stallion mine sweeping helicopters aboard the Shreveport began skimming the central Gulf of Suez Saturday as part of the International mine-hunt codenamed "Operation Intense Look."

Three French mine sweepers also were heading toward the gulf to join the task force of 12 Egyptian vessels, four British mine sweepers, the Shreveport and the U.S. oceanographic ship USS Harkness.

Two other French mine sweepers and three U.S. Navy Sea Stallion helicopters were sweeping for mines in the port of Jeddah further south in the Red Sea.

An American naval officer said the object of the hunt was to determine the nature of the mines and their origin.

Newman, commander of U.S. operations, told reporters aboard the Shreveport that 12 objects were detected in the Gulf of Suez and all but three turned out to be coral heads, trash or flotsam.

"We located 12 mine-like objects and we put down divers six or eight times," Newman said. "Some were coral heads or trash or other objects that drifted away."

"Three are very deep down and we are awaiting for divers" from the U.S. Navy group in Jeddah, he said, adding he did not know when they would arrive.

"We have not found a thing yet," he said.

Officers on the Shreveport said the mine-like objects were detected by the USS Harkness which has been assisting the Egyptians in the gulf for three weeks.

The Egyptian navy is challenging suspect ships in the gulf and searching them, if necessary, Newman said.

Study Predicts Crisis In The Classroom

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — The nation's best educated and most experienced teachers are leaving the profession, and a Rand Corp. study says the exodus will create a crisis in the classroom.

Linda Darling-Hammond, a social scientist for the think tank, said in a report titled "Beyond the Commission Report: The Coming Crisis in Teaching" that the nation's teaching force is changing dramatically for the worse.

"The current highly educated and experienced staff is dwindling as older teachers retire and many younger teachers leave for other occupations," she said in the report released Sunday.

She said that entry-level teachers are "less academically qualified than those who are leaving," and there are not enough people entering the teaching profession.

Fewer than half of the newly hired teachers in 1981 in mathematics and science were certified or even eligible for certification in their subjects, and fewer than two-thirds of new teachers of English, social studies and other secondary subjects were qualified.

The report said there were fewer than 1,400 bachelor's degrees in the fields of math and science education granted in 1981. That is less than one mathematics or science teacher for every 10 school districts in the nation.

Demographic trends have provoked the imbalance, said Ms. Darling-Hammond. "After a decade of declining enrollments in elementary and secondary schools, a baby boomlet that began in the early 1980s will begin to cause enrollment increases starting in 1985."

At the same time, the college age population from which most potential teachers will be drawn, will continue to drop through the rest of the decade, she said.

Another factor is that many people — such as women and minorities — who were once restricted to teaching as a way of earning a living are now going into jobs with higher pay and better chances of promotions.

Teachers' salaries, which traditionally have been low, have declined 15 percent in real dollar terms over the past 10 years.

"The best teachers are leaving the system for better wages and working conditions," said David Lyon, the Rand executive in charge of the project.

"In the past it was always assumed that the teacher supply would be there," he said, "but the world has changed. We no longer have a captive group of women willing to go into teaching as they have in the past."

Lyon said state school systems, legislatures and school districts must recognize the problem and solve it.

"There's a management job there ... and we're just trying to draw attention to it," he said. "We cannot legislate improvements in education. We're going to have to have a high quality teaching force to make it happen," he said.

The report's title refers to a series of government-funded and foundation reports in recent years on the quality of American education.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Israel To Close Major Crossing Into S. Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli authorities said they would close a major link between the Beirut area and southern Lebanon today in an apparent attempt to cut arms supplies to guerrillas fighting Israeli occupation troops.

The Israeli military, which controls access to the southern third of Lebanon, confirmed Sunday it would close the Batek crossing on the Awali River for two days in order to build a new facility for better security checks.

Israeli troops have occupied southern Lebanon since June 1980 when they invaded the country in a drive against 8,000 Palestinian guerrillas who had been launching cross-border attacks on settlements in northern Israel.

Israel television said the ruling Likud bloc and the opposition Labor party agreed that any new coalition government would ensure security for northern Israeli settlements and pull the estimated 10,000 troops out of Lebanon.

Coal Strike May Widen

LONDON (UPI) — The militant National Union of Mineworkers, in the sixth month of a bitter coal strike, will ask unions to support a virtual general strike if the government penalizes workers under recent labor laws, union documents published today showed.

The union proposed the new tactic in an amendment to the agenda, published today, of the September convention of the Trades Union Congress, an umbrella group of British trade unions.

The amendment says the congress should call strikes involving all unions to support any worker fined, imprisoned or punished in any way under employment and labor laws enacted by the Conservative Party government of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

Earlier this month the union was fined $65,000 by the High Court for breaking an injunction issued under laws restricting picketing away from the workplace. Coal miners had attempted to block coal deliveries to a steel plant.

Youths Fire On Police

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Crowds of youths opened fire on a police patrol and hurled gasoline bombs and stones at officers in Belfast early Sunday, in the fourth night of violence in the riot-torn city, police said.

Fifteen people were arrested and two were injured. Police said they fired plastic bullets at the rioters in "sporadic" outbreaks of fighting that began in Protestant and Catholic areas of the city just after midnight and lasted for about two hours.

The heaviest outbreaks were in the Protestant Shankhill Road area of West Belfast, scene last week of the worst violence by pro-government loyalists in more than a decade.

Suspicious Objects Found In Gulf

U.S. Divers Search For Mines

ABOARD THE USS SHREVEPORT (UPI) — U.S. Navy frogmen will dive to investigate three mine-like objects located by an American oceanographic ship scouring the Gulf of Suez for underwater explosives, a U.S. naval commander has said.

The divers were being summoned from U.S. Navy units in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, but could not say when they would begin diving operations from the USS Shreveport, an amphibious transport dock, Commodore Alvin S. Newman said Sunday.

A task force of American, French, British and Egyptian vessels was searching the Gulf of Suez and the Red Sea for mines of unknown origin that have damaged at least 18 ships, including three Soviet vessels, since July 9, according to Lloyd's of London.

Two Soviet mine sweepers steamed through the Suez Canal en route to the Red Sea early Sunday, possibly signaling the start of a separate Soviet sweep for explosives in the strategic waterway linking the canal and the Indian Ocean.

An official of the Suez Canal authority refused to disclose the destination of the Soviet vessels, identified only by the numbers 413 and 912. But other sources said they were probably heading for Aden, South Yemen where the Soviets have a naval base near Bab El-Mandab, the southern gateway to the Red Sea.

Egypt has accused Libya of laying the mines, but President Hosni Mubarak backed off on earlier assertions implicating Iran in the campaign to disrupt shipping in the Red Sea. Libya and Iran have both denied any involvement.

Four Sea Stallion mine sweeping helicopters aboard the Shreveport began skimming the central Gulf of Suez Saturday as part of the International Mine-hunt codenamed "Operation Intense Look."

Three French mine sweepers also were heading toward the gulf to join the task force of 12 Egyptian vessels, four British mine sweepers, the Shreveport and the U.S. oceanographic ship USS Harkness.

Two other French mine sweepers and three U.S. Navy Sea Stallion helicopters were sweeping for mines in the port of Jeddah further south in the Red Sea.

An American naval officer said the object of the hunt was to determine the nature of the mines and their origin.

Newman, commander of the Shreveport that 12 objects were detected in the Gulf of Suez and all but three turned out to be coral heads, trash or flotsam.

"We located 12 mine-like objects and we put down divers six or eight times," Newman said. "Some were coral heads or trash or other objects that drifted away."

"Three are very deep down and we are waiting for divers" from the U.S. Navy group in Jeddah, he said, adding he did not know when they would arrive.

"We have not found a thing yet," he said. Officers on the Shreveport said the mine-like objects were detected by the USS Harkness which has been assisting the Egyptians in the gulf for three weeks.

The Egyptian navy is challenging suspect ships in the gulf and searching them, if necessary, Newman said.

Study Predicts Crisis In The Classroom

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — The nation's best educated and most experienced teachers are leaving the profession, and a Rand Corp. study says the exodus will create a crisis in the classroom.

Linda Darling-Hammond, a social scientist for the think tank, said in a report titled "Beyond the Commission Report: The Coming Crisis in Teaching" that the nation's teaching force is changing dramatically for the worse.

"The current highly educated and experienced staff is dwindling as older teachers retire and many younger teachers leave for other occupations," she said in the report released Sunday. She said that entry-level teachers are "less academically-qualified than those who are leaving," and there are not enough people entering the teaching profession.

Fewer than half of the newly hired teachers in 1981 in mathematics and science were certified or even eligible for certification in their subjects, and fewer than two-thirds of new teachers of English, social studies and other secondary subjects were qualified.

The report said there were fewer than 1,400 bachelor's degrees in the fields of math and science education granted in 1981. That is less than one mathematics or science teacher for every 10 school districts in the nation.

Demographic trends have provoked the imbalance, said Ms. Darling-Hammond. "After a decade of declining enrollments in elementary and secondary schools, a baby boomlet that began in the early 1980s will begin to cause enrollment increases starting in 1985."

At the same time, the college age population from which most potential teachers will be drawn, will continue to drop through the rest of the decade, she said.

Another factor is that many people — such as women and minorities — who were once restricted to teaching as a way of earning a living are now going into jobs with higher pay and better chances of promotions.

Teachers' salaries, which traditionally have been low, have declined 15 percent in real dollar terms over the past 10 years.

"The best teachers are leaving the system for better wages and working conditions," said David Lyon, the Rand executive in charge of the project.

"In the past it was always assumed that the teacher supply would be there," he said, "but the world has changed. We no longer have a captive group of women willing to go into teaching as they have in the past."

Lyon said state school systems, legislatures and school districts must recognize the problem and solve it.

"There's a management job there ... and we're just trying to draw attention to it," he said. "We cannot legislate improvements in education. We're going to have to have a high quality teaching force to make it happen," he said.

The report's title refers to a series of government-funded and foundation reports in recent years on the quality of American education.

Not All Exercises Increase Muscle Size

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm an 18-year-old male, 5 feet 9, and weigh 138 pounds. My forearms are small, and I think this is because of my eating habits. I hardly ever eat "junk food" and I eat plenty of meat. However, I don't eat a wide variety of vegetables. I doubt that my problem is caused by not exercising my arms enough. I usually eat two meals a day, not three. What do you suggest?

DEAR READER — You may exercise your arms a great deal, but it may not be the kind of exercise you need to build muscular arms. You can work a muscle over and over and it may not increase in size. A good example is the long-distance runner. He has strong leg muscles that have a lot of endurance, but they are just large enough and strong enough to lift the weight of his body repeatedly in his running workouts.

It is not how often you work a muscle so much as it is how much you load the muscle. It is better to do 10 near-maximal contractions than 1,000 weak contractions if you want to increase the size of a muscle. The stronger the contraction or the greater weight it can lift, the bigger the muscle gets.

I doubt that your eating habits are causing you to have small forearms. Since you eat plenty of meat, you should be getting all the protein you need to build muscles. The other point is you need to get enough calories to support your energy requirements. You can get those from fat, carbohydrates or even excess protein.

Unless you are especially careful to eat very lean meats, you probably get quite a bit of fat because of the meat in your diet. I do not favor a high-fat diet, even for muscular development.

Vegetables are usually low-calorie, foods and most of them are not high in protein, so eat your vegetables, but do so for the essential vitamins and minerals they contain.

You need to understand the principles of muscle development so I am sending you The Health Letter 5-4, Weight Training for Energy and Weight Control.

If you are in school, get your physical-education teacher to help you with a proper exercise program. If not, try one of the health-club facilities that offer machines and weights to help build muscle size.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1351, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Oswald and James Jacoby

When your hotel room is on fire, don't panic. But don't inhale the smoke either. The double by West and the redouble by North were both intemperate actions. The double alerted declarer that he needed to handle the trump suit carefully. The redouble may have earned North the title of "macho man," but should never have paid any dividends, whatever the stakes. However, West was in a burning hotel, and I'll leave it to you to decide: did he panic or did he simply inhale smoke?

The opening lead went to dummy's 10 of diamonds, East's queen and South's ace. South played a heart toward the jack and West won the queen. West played 10 of clubs to dummy's jack, East's deuce, and South's seven. South led a low club from dummy to his king and led another heart toward the jack.

West won the king and cashed the ace of hearts. He exited with a third round of clubs, won by dummy's ace. Declarer now led a spade to his ace, cashed the 10 of hearts, and played his last heart. Defender West had no choice except to throw the king of spades or unguard the diamond suit.

If he wants to set the contract, West must not play his last high heart so quickly. He should go ahead and play a third club before playing the heart ace. He should then exit with a diamond to eliminate declarer's communication for the squeeze.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY

AUGUST 21, 1984
Dare to be a dreamer this coming year. Dreams can become desires, desires can become ambitions and ambitions can become realities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) By nature you're a person with a flair for the dramatics. Today this trait will be in evidence and you'll use it to better your lot in life. Major changes are in store for Leos in the coming year. Send for your year-ahead predictions today. Mail #1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Somehow, you know better than most that one's ship comes in over calm seas. You won't let anyone or anything ruffle your waters.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This may be one of those days where it's not wise to lay all of your cards on the table. Be friendly and affable, but hold back your aces.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you could be equally as successful using the same methods that always seemed to work for a companion of yours. Give them a try.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A positive imagination can produce remarkable results today. Regardless of the circumstances, envision a successful outcome and proceed accordingly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may now become involved in a joint venture with a person who is in harmony with your ideas. It's someone with whom you've associated previously.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do not discount your mate's solution for a problem today. His or her way may be more difficult, but it could provide the best answer.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Set the type of objectives today that benefit others as well as yourself. When you sweep forward, you'll carry those you like along on your coattails.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Someone you meet socially today may inspire you to think seriously about an innovative career idea you've been mulling over in your head.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Although you'll view things objectively and be an easygoing person today, you'll get serious and resolute when the occasion calls for it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll balance your day out beautifully with just the right amount of attention to your work and time for fun and games with your pals.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You mix easily and well with your co-workers today, yet you won't waste time with unproductive chitchat. You'll keep all in perspective.

Unclear Corporate Standards Blamed For Women's Plight

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Women are rejecting the business world because they feel vague corporate standards on pregnancy force them to choose between their careers and having children, a university study says.

Daniel J. Brass, assistant professor of organizational behavior at Pennsylvania State University, studied more than 150 women with master's degrees in business administration from Midwest universities.

The survey found that of respondents with children, 59 percent returned to work within one year after giving birth and 75 percent returned to work within two years.

Despite those figures, many companies will pass over women for promotions out of fear the women will leave to have children and not come back, Brass said Thursday.

"Although most executives will not formally state their concern, (they fear) the female will get pregnant and leave. . . I think it is a consideration at some point."

Some respondents believed they were discriminated against because of the possibility of children, he said.

"I think married women are discriminated against in my company because management is afraid that these women will

'...married women are discriminated against... because management is afraid they will get pregnant and decide not to come back to work once a child is born...'

get pregnant and decide not to come back to work once a child is born," one woman wrote. "I think they lump all married women into a 'may possibly get pregnant' pot."

Most women thought they had to choose between advancing their career and having children. "A lot of them phrased it as an either-or situation," Brass said.

More complete guidelines would "help the female executive avoid this either-or consideration, career or children," Brass said.

Millions Face Starvation In Drought-Stricken Ethiopia, U.N. Says

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — More than 7 million people face starvation in Ethiopia because of 11 years with almost no rain, a U.N. report says.

The report by UNICEF, the U.N. children's fund, said 93 percent of the children in the parched southern Sidamo region of Ethiopia on the Kenyan border are suffering from malnutrition with little hope of recovery.

UNICEF said the drought has spread from the northern provinces of Tigre and Eritrea to Sidamo and Gemu Goffa in the south during the past five years. Eight of the country's 13 regions are considered drought disaster areas.

About 7.2 million people face starvation because of the drought.

Parts of Wallo and Gonder in the north have received almost no rain for 11 years and 34 of the area's 51 rivers have gone dry.

Ethiopia relies almost entirely on international aid to feed its people. Despite the drought and famine, the country has the largest army in black Africa with an estimated 250,000 soldiers. The country spends an estimated 46 percent of its national budget on the military.

Earlier this month, the U.S. government announced it was sending Ethiopia an additional 5,000 metric tons of food, making this year's allotment to the Marxist country a record 43,000 metric tons.

"This will not be the end of the requests, nor of our responses to the request," said Jay Morris, a government food aid spokesman in Washington.

In the report released Monday, UNICEF said government and international relief efforts have been hampered by bad roads, guerrilla insurgency and the general remoteness of some areas.

The report said only about 1 million of the 7.2 million drought victims are within easy reach of relief workers.

"Many of the drought victims live in places so remote they simply cannot be reached," the report said. "Last year, the United Nations Disaster relief Organization estimated that only 1 million people were accessible."

Airlifts and helicopter drops have been ruled out because of the enormous expense.

The report said UNICEF has spent $2 million in the past 18 months for emergency relief. The bulk of the agency's $42.5 million five-year program is intended for "long-term development," the report said.

UNICEF said the drought in the south — especially in the Sidamo region, once considered the country's bread basket — has been harsh.

Surveys have shown 93 percent of the children in parts of the region are considered malnourished. Measles and other diseases are rampant.

A Young Girl Discovers Color

Curing The Sightless In Remote Africa

By Brendan Boyle
MATSAPA, Swaziland (UPI) — Regina Mkhwanazi lifted the hem of her blue school dress to a sleeve-like patch over her right eye and peered through the holes at its fading floral pattern.

Her vision was hazy at best, but the private moment in which the shy, slender 11-year-old began to discover color was the start of a new life she could not have begun to imagine just 48 hours earlier.

Regina and her exuberant 5-year-old brother, Mfanuskile, were blinded at birth by cataracts inherited from their blind mother.

Oblivious of their potential to see, they lived in a shadowless world of light and dark until a January cyclone swept away their valley home of thatched mud huts and sent them in search of shelter to the St. Joseph's Mission for the handicapped at Manzini.

A British volunteer, Dr. Brendon Moriarty, found them battling with the rudiments of braille in a round hut classroom when he made an unannounced visit to examine the school's 20 blind children.

The next day, Regina and Mfanuskile gained a measure of vision in a 30-minute operation aboard a converted American DC-8 airliner.

Run by the private, New York-based Project Orbis foundation, the immaculate airborne hospital was using Matsapa Airport as its base for a three-week exchange-of-skills program involving eye surgeons from Swaziland, Botswana, Zimbabwe, Malawi and South Africa.

"We are here to teach and to learn," said Oliver Foot, the British executive director recruited to raise the $4 million a year needed to finance the oldest airworthy DC-8 on its mission against worldwide blindness affecting at least 42 million people.

Foot currently is trying to seal a tentative Mobil Oil offer to permanently fuel the plane donated by an American airline 2 1/2 years ago and help carry on a program that has reached 2,000 doctors and, through them, at least 300,000 patients.

"Our surgeons, some of the world's top ophthalmologists, volunteer their time to demonstrate new skills to resident doctors who can use that knowledge to save the sight of thousands," he said.

The plane's single resident surgeon, Dr. Simon Holland, said ill-equipped Third World doctors, like a South American who invented a technique with an ordinary injection needle to replace a $2,000 piece of equipment, frequently develop ingenious methods.

"Our job is to ensure that invaluable knowledge like that is made available to doctors battling in remote isolation half a world away," Holland said.

Canadian Garth Taylor, who closed his Cornwall, Ontario, practice for a month with Project Orbis, joined Moriarty in the plane's tiny theatre to operate on Regina and Mfanuskile. As they worked, visiting physicians videotaped lecture in an adjoining "classroom."

Doctors wearing headset intercoms discussed procedures with them as they watched Taylor insert a needle into tiny Mfanuskile's right eye and flush the clouded lens away in a gush of sterile water.

Under the powerful microscope, Regina's chemically dilated pupil revealed a rare lens obstruction of crystallized calcium particles.

Doctors followed in silence as Moriarty cut through her cornea and cautiously lifted it away with a microscopic instrument enlarged on the video monitor.

Afterward, the visiting doctors gained "hands-on" experience as they operated under the guidance of Holland and his volunteer team.

The children reacted cautiously to the sensation of sight when the bandages were removed at the Mbabane Hospital 24 hours later.

With a perforated eye patch to soften the impact of his new sense, Mfanuskile unconsciously dodged obstacles he earlier would have had to feel, but he did not comment on the change.

After the blast of surgeons' lights that was her first view, Regina waited until she was alone and unobserved on a hospital bench before she examined the colors on her dress.

But by the time they had second operations four days later to remove cataracts from their left eyes, Regina and Mfanuskile were growing confident in their new ability to see.

Bursting out of her shyness,

Regina led blind mission friends around the plane, delightfully describing the forms and colors she could see even without the glasses that will complete her recovery.

Moreland, Cey Fireworks Keep Cubs Ahead In East

CHICAGO (UPI) — If Keith Moreland and Ron Cey continue to light up Wrigley Field the way they have lately, Cubs fans won't have to worry about night baseball being played in Chicago during the World Series.

Cey and Moreland continued their torrid hitting Monday, driving in three runs each to lift the team to a 6-1 victory over the Houston Astros. They have driven in 23 runs each in the team's last 20 games. The Cubs have won 13 of those games, including the last three after four straight losses, and lead the New York Mets by four games in the NL East.

The Astros had a nine-game winning streak stopped.

Cey capped Chicago's scoring by blasting a three-run homer in the third, his 21st of the season and third in three games. The veteran third baseman had been complaining of sore wrists, but Cey has put the pain out of his mind and is now inflicting some on opposing pitchers.

"I've really been bothered with bad wrists, so much, in fact, that I was worrying in the middle of the pitch," said the 36-year-old Cey, who now has 78 RBI.

Braves 4, Pirates 1

At Pittsburgh, Brad Komminsk doubled in one run and Alex Trevino singled in two more with two out in the top of the 10th to lift the Braves. Gene Garber, 2-2, pitched two innings of relief to send the Pirates to their fourth straight loss. Gene Garber, 2-2, took the loss. Doug Frobel hit his 10th home run for the Pirates.

Cardinals 9, Reds 7

At Cincinnati, pitcher Dave LaPoint drove in three runs, Terry Pendleton had three hits and Darrell Porter homered to lead a 15-hit Cardinals attack and push St. Louis a game over .500. Jeff Lahti, 4-2, the fourth St. Louis pitcher, got the victory. Jay Tibbs, 2-1, was the loser. Cesar Cedeno and Dave Parker homered for the Reds.

Padres 3, Mets 1

At San Diego, Alan Wiggins hit his third home run of the season to spark the Padres, who ended a three-game losing streak and kept San Diego nine games ahead of Atlanta in the NL West. The second-place Mets dropped four games behind Chicago in the NL East. Eric Show, 13-7, got the win and Sid Fernandez, 4-2, was the loser.

Expos 3, Dodgers 1

At Los Angeles, Dan Driessen singled in a pair of runs and Montreal capitalized on three wild pitches for its sixth straight victory. Hill Gullickson, 9-7, won his third straight while Orel Hershiser fell to 8-6. Pedro Guerrero belted his 11th home run for the Dodgers.

Phillies 6, Giants 4

At San Francisco, Al Oliver — traded by the Giants earlier in the day — ripped a two-run double to highlight a five-run second and lead the Phillies over his former team. John Denny, 6-3, was the winner and Al Holland recorded his 27th save. Bob Brenly hit his 14th home run for San Francisco.

Morris Wins 16th, Tigers Pound Oakland, 14-1

DETROIT (UPI) — Jack Morris' AL-leading 16th victory contained about as much suspense as the Republican Convention.

Detroit pounded two Oakland pitchers and backup shortstop Mark Wagner, used as a mop-up man during the last two innings, for 20 hits, the Tigers' highest total in five years, to rout the A's 14-1 Monday night in Detroit. The Tigers led 6-1 after three innings and 11-1 after five as Morris breezed to the win.

Morris was 10-1 at the end of May but has gone only 6-7 since then. He has been struggling and blew a 5-0 lead last week while trying for his 16th win.

"He's won 16 games," said Tigers Manager Sparky Anderson. "Wins — that's the bottom line, and he's still won more games than anybody in the league."

"He threw all right," said catcher Lance Parrish, who along with Chet Lemon hit two-run homers in the third inning to break the game open. "He's had good stuff the past few times out, but his problem has mainly been one of location."

After the Tigers ripped Curt Young and Chuck Rainey to take their 14-1 lead after seven innings, A's Manager Jackie Moore called on Wagner. Wagner gave up two hits, walked one and struck out one in his 1-2-3 innings and he was the only Oakland pitcher who didn't allow a run.

Orioles 5, Mariners 4

At Baltimore, Mike Young hit two home runs and Joe Nolan had an RBI triple to help the Orioles to their fourth straight win. Young led off the first and third innings with opposite-field homers. Nolan's triple in the seventh scored pinch-runner Todd Cruz to make the score 5-1.

Royals 8, Red Sox 5

At Boston, Willie Wilson went 3-for-5, singled and scored twice in the first two innings to lead the Royals. Kansas City took a 2-0 lead in the first. Wilson lined the game's first pitch for a single and scored easily on a hit-and-run double by Pat Sheridan.

Yankees 8, Angels 4

At New York, Joe Cowley scattered nine hits and struck out 13, helping the Yankees hand the Angels their sixth straight loss. The Yankees supported Cowley, 5-1, with 10 hits, including two triples and three doubles. Everyone in the Yankees' starting lineup had at least one hit with the exception of shortstop Bobby Meacham.

White Sox 7, Rangers 5

At Arlington, Texas, Greg Walker hit a three-run homer and Julio Cruz ripped three hits, including two run-scoring doubles, to lead the White Sox. Rich Doison, 13-10, earned only his second victory in eight decisions since the All-Star break, pitching seven innings. Walker gave Chicago a 4-1 lead in the third with his 17th homer.

Medina's 4 RBI Lifts Fairbanks Over Texas In NBC Tournament

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — First baseman Louis Medina drove in four runs to lift Fairbanks (Alaska) past College Station (Texas) 11-7 Monday and advance to the quarterfinals of the National Baseball Congress tournament.

In other games in the double-elimination tournament, Hutchinson (Kan.) is pitted against Grand Rapids (Mich.) and Anchorage (Alaska) is paired with Ventura (Calif.).

Fairbanks ran its tournament record to 4-1, while College Station finished at 3-2 and a tie for seventh-place in the 32-team field.

The Goldpanners, runner-up in 1983 to Grand Rapids (Mich.), had a tough time with College Station, which was making its first NBC appearance.

Medina went 3-for-4 with a single, double and home run, and left fielder Jeff Wetherby added four hits and three RBI.

Fairbanks put the game away in the seventh inning when Medina, right fielder Tom Forrester and designated hitter Page Odle hit consecutive home runs.

Gastineau Faces Assault Rap

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jury selection began Monday in the trial of Jets defensive end Mark Gastineau and quarterback Ken O'Brien, who face charges they beat three men in a Manhattan discotheque.

John Benson, 21, of Manhattan, and two other unidentified complainants filed a charge of simple assault against the athletes. If convicted of the misdemeanor Gastineau, 27, and O'Brien, 23, face up to a year in prison, a spokeswoman for Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau said.

Court officials said testimony in Manhattan Criminal Court will begin Tuesday and the trial is expected to last two or three days.

The incident occurred last September when the 6-foot, 6-inch, 270-pound Gastineau, a flamboyant defensive end for the Jets, and substitute quarterback O'Brien allegedly attacked Benson and the two others in Studio 54.

Shortly after the charges were filed, Gastineau, who has filmed a television commercial with his mother, went before a news conference and "swore" to his mother that he did not attack the club's patrons.

UCF-BCC Game Time Changed

ORLANDO, (UPI) — The University of Central Florida and Bethune-Cookman College have changed the time for their Sept. 1 season opener, school officials said Saturday.

The game at Orlando Stadium was originally scheduled for a 7:30 p.m. EDT kickoff. It has been rescheduled for 1 p.m., UCF Athletic Director Bill Peterson said.

"We're making the change in kickoff time to accommodate local fans," he said. "The time change will allow them to come to our game and also see the Miami-Florida game which will be played in Tampa that night."

Rogers Holds Off Porter In Late Models

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — Holding off hard charging LeRoy Porter lap after lap for the whole race, David Rogers drove the Wayne Denach Budweiser Firebird to victory in the 25-lap late model feature on Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway.

This time, the flying pair, which usually pulls away from the rest of the field, was closely followed by Bobby Newton and fastest qualifier Bruce Lawrence who started sixth on the grid in the Airboats of Naples Firebird.

Successful veteran driver/owner Steve Burgess of Wisconsin, who just took delivery of a brand new BEMCO late model at the DeLand facility, will be here all week, practicing and setting the car up for this coming Saturday, when he will try to put an end to the season-long Porter/Rogers domination of the high-banked half-mile of pavement.

Young Stan Eads, driving the Humphrey and Watts Gold and

Auto Racing

Silver Exchange Firebird, dominated the thundercar division, as he turned fast time, won the fast heat and led every lap of the feature.

Former street stock State Champ Lance Smith, who had been trying to win for nearly a year in the Hunt's Used Cars/Wayne Denach Bud Light Camaro, scored his second feature win in a row, beating Joey Warmack, Junior Simmons, Jerry Roushey and Joe Strehle.

"These races are won in the corners," Smith said. "And I want to give a lot of credit to Lee Faulk of RaceCo for setting up the Bud Light machine, and make it handle like it was on rails."

Bobby Sears of Orlando, driving a Pinto formerly steered by Stan Eads, won the 25-lap Mid-Season four-cylinder Chamionship in wire to wire fashion.

Getting Caught Lifesaver For 'Thief'

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman who shoplifted a 78-cent box of candy brought back memories.

When I was a young girl, I helped another girl steal a 10-cent ring from a 5-and-10-cent store. (She "accidentally" knocked the ring to the floor, and I picked it up and slipped it to her, and she put it in her purse.)

I slept over at her house that night. We had a fight, and I told her if she didn't what up and let me go to sleep, I would tell her mother about the ring she stole. Her mother heard us, came into the room and said "What ring?"

My friend had to tell her mother the truth, so the next day her mother and my mother marched the two of us to the store, made us confess to the clerk and return the ring. Abby, that was the worst moment of my life, but it was one of the best lessons I have ever learned.

It happened 64 years ago, and from that day on I was never tempted to steal a thing.
NAMELESS IN LANCASTER, PA.

DEAR NAMELESS: Your friend's mother was wise. An ounce of humiliation is worth a pound of punishment.

DEAR ABBY: My older sisters had an argument with our parents because she didn't want them to look at her high school annual. She told them she wasn't ashamed of what her friends had written, but it was private. Our parents said that as long as they were paying for the annual, they had a right to look at it. My sister solved the problem my giving our parents the price of the annual.

I have a little money saved from birthday and Christmas gifts, and I intend to do the same things when it comes to buying an annual.

Howard Johnson Acquires Swanky Hotel Chain

By Steven W. Byrre
UPI Business Writer

QUINCY, Mass. (UPI) — Howard Johnson, known for its orange-roofed roadside restaurants and motor lodges, is expanding in a new direction with a mid-price hotel chain bearing a swanky name.

Howard Johnson recently agreed to acquire the Chicago O'Hare Airport Roadway Inn, planning to make it the seventh property to bear the Plaza-Hotel name of the group. It will be known as the O'Hare Plaza-Hotel.

Howard Johnson hopes there will be 90 or more Plaza-Hotels within five years. Few will be owned by the company. It will contract to manage hotels owned by others or franchise the name, as it does with most of its motor lodges.

The company formed the hotel division at the beginning of 1983 and started looking for existing properties that could be renovated, like the Chicago airport hotel, or areas where one could be built. It also looks for investors to become the owners of those properties.

Howard Johnson currently manages four Plaza-Hotel properties and two others are being prepared. The Washington Plaza-Hotel and another in New York City were the first to open last spring.

"The company's strength is in the mid-priced market. The decision was made to stick to that market and expand," said Manuel M. Ferris, who was recruited from the Sheraton Corp. to run the new hotel group and now heads all accommodations.

Ferris, who had run Sheraton's North American operations, points to cities such as Seattle, Boston, Dallas and Houston as areas where the market has been swamped by luxury hotel developments in the last six years.

"Most cities have had enormous growth in the luxury market. The same growth has been taking place in the budget end. The mid-price market grew much less," Ferris said.

Howard Johnson doesn't say how much they expect from Plaza-Hotels. But Ferris said the company's 50-50 split between lodging and restaurant revenues probably will be maintained.

The company has nearly 500 lodges and hotels, of which it owns about one fourth. Its restaurant revenues come from the places most commonly thought of as HoJos, Ground Round establishments and another group called Bumperhoops.

Ferris is in the process of identifying buildings that would fit the Plaza-Hotel mold, and getting investors together. It is expected few new hotels will be built.

A few Plaza-Hotels will be in suburban settings, but so far they are located in New York, Washington, Minneapolis and Baltimore — looking mainly to attract the business traveler.

"I think building a new (mid-priced) hotel in a major city market is out of the question, though there are exceptions to that," Ferris said.

"The combination of land, taxes, construction and other costs just drives the price up so much you can't make a profit with a mid-priced hotel," he said.

Many of the hotels that will become known as Plaza-Hotels will need work. The latest acquisition, the 254-room hotel in Chicago, will undergo a $2.5 million renovation before it opens.

Costs to acquire or build will average $45,000 to $65,000 per room, Howard Johnson said.

Ferris is out looking for that kind of money from investors, who either want to buy into a specific property or are interested in the concept.

Although Howard Johnson isn't interested in owning many hotels, Ferris said it may buy a property to hold while in search of an investor, or take a percentage of another if it's needed to make a deal work.

Ferris said the group may place hotels in other countries. Johnson motor lodges stray no farther than Canada and Puerto Rico.

Canadian Drought Shrivels Crops, Parches Profits

By Robert Lee

EDMONTON (UPI) — What Canadian agriculture officials call the worst drought since the Dirty Thirties has created a bleak scenario this summer over the southern prairies from western Alberta to Brandon, Manitoba.

Shrivelled barley crops have been cut for hay and fed to cattle. As pasture land became scorched and creeks dried up, cattle were locked up in their pens.

For grain farmers, the drought is a $2 billion disaster. For ranchers, it means a year without profits and the need for some to drastically reduce their herds.

The afflicted region, some 88 million acres, extends from the foothills of Alberta's Rocky Mountains to the southwest corner of Manitoba, and reaches as much as 200 miles north of the U.S. border.

Alberta and Saskatchewan officials have asked Canadian Prime Minister John Turner to provide federal government help for stricken farmers because the drought constituted a "serious economic setback to western Canada and the national economy."

Recent figures compiled by the United Grain Growers predict total crop production on the prairies to fall nearly 8 million tons to 34 million tons this year.

The crop situation becomes more serious with each month, according to Dwayne Couldwell, grain market analyst with the Alberta government. "We're way down from last year, and nobody's saving last year was magic."

Although Couldwell earlier this year predicted wheat production in the prairies at 26 million tons, he recently revised the forecast to less than 19 million.

At about $112 U.S. a ton, Couldwell said, farmers lost some $750 million in wheat production and $150 million in barley production in July alone.

Russ and Sylvia Frazier display a 14 karat gold watch at their shop.

'All That Glitters' Fixed Or Sold At Russ' Pawn Watch And Jewelry Repair

To observe Russ Frazier repairing a watch or a piece of jewelry is to watch a craftsman applying 20 years of experience into every detail of his work. Russ, the owner of Russ' Pawn Watch and Jewelry Repair, carefully and painstakingly puts his best into every piece of jewelry. Like most master craftsmen, he takes pride in being able to return a cherished piece of jewelry to its owner, repaired at a fair price.

Russ, along with his wife Sylvia, recently moved their shop to Sanford from Longwood and stand ready to apply their skills to your jewelry needs. He has lived in Sanford 15 years and knows how to help you.

Besides Russ's expertise, they have all the equipment necessary for watch repair. And they do repair work on Rolex and Accutron watches.

Russ also custom makes jewelry to order and restores antique jewelry.

In addition to repair work, Russ sells jewelry. Currently, he has a collection of 18 karat chains and bracelets that he is selling at 14 karat prices.

"We get a good buy and pass it on to our customers," said Mrs. Frazier.

They are also having a sale on Leonard crystal glassware.

If you need a piece of jewelry appraised bring it by Russ' Pawn Watch and Jewelry Repair and have it done free of charge. Russ and Sylvia also buy gold and silver items, as well as diamonds and guns.

The shop is located at 2107 S. French Ave. It is open Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturday 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. You may call them at 323-1327.

So whatever your jewelry need, bring it by Russ' place and let him fix it for you.

Peyronie's Has No Known Cause; Surgery May Help

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — Two years ago I developed Peyronie's disease. My sex drive is as good as ever, but this is causing some problems. I am 34. My organ curves upwards at the end and causes trouble holding an erection. The psychological problem is the worst.

The doctor says there isn't much that can be done. He put me on vitamin E, 400 IU twice a day, to try to stabilize the condition. It doesn't seem to be getting either better or worse. Will there be any change? Is there a new treatment?

DEAR READER — Before I started writing this column, I considered this to be a rare problem. I have been surprised to find it is one of the more frequent complaints that people write to me about. I suspect that, in the past, a lot of men endured this problem in silence.

In Peyronie's disease, an area of fibrosis, and perhaps low-grade inflammation, develops in the penis' tough elastic shaft. This is called a plaque; no one really knows what causes it. It has no elasticity. As a result, when the rest of the shaft expands, this area does not, causing the bending and deformity that some describe as the "bent nail" syndrome.

Vitamin E has been recommended for this condition, but there is little evidence that it helps. Sometimes the condition improves spontaneously.

I have discussed this problem in The Health Letter 17-4, Male Reproductive Functions.

You may wish to consult a urologist. In some instances injections of steroid hormones, such as corticosteroids, helps. These are not male hormones. Surgery is sometimes indicated, but you would need a careful examination to decide what would be best for you.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you tell me something about heart catheterization? I may have to have this done.

DEAR READER — The simplest form is to take a hollow tube (catheter) and pass it through a large vein, usually in the arm for an adult, to the heart. The veins get larger and larger as it approaches the heart until it passes into the right upper chamber, the right atrium.

The catheter can be passed, through the valve that separates the atrium from the lower chamber, the right ventricle. Then it can be passed out the pulmonary artery to the lungs, where you have to stop. The

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Just as a chameleon's color is affected by its environment, the value of your high cards is affected by developments in the bidding. South had a fair hand, just about enough to invite a game after partner's opening bid. Because East had overcalled with two hearts, South upgraded his K-J to the equivalent of A-K. South jumped right to three no-trump, a bold shot which he had to vindicate with careful play.

East took the ace of hearts and returned the 10, won by declarer's jack. Declarer led the jack of spades, West covered with the queen, and dummy's ace won the trick. South returned to his hand with a high diamond and led another spade, inserting the eight when West played low. This finesse guaranteed the contract. If East had the spade nine to win the trick, dummy's remaining spades would be winners. When East showed out, the spade eight became declarer's game-going trick.

What does this deal teach us? First, be aggressive when the bidding tells you that your high cards are well positioned. Second, when you have reached a contract that may not be arrived at by many others, look for ways to guard against bad suit splits that may cause you to go set.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY AUGUST 23, 1984

Strong material desires will be awakened in you this coming year. You'll want a better way of life and, through hard work and ingenuity, you'll bring it into being.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may enjoy material advantages today through situations arranged for you by others. These will be from persons to whom you've been kind. Want to find out to whom you are best suited romantically? Send for your Matchmaker set by mailing $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Practical measures can be taken at this time to bring something for which you've been hoping into being. Dreams and doing mix well today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your possibilities for personal gain look good today but in order to reap your rewards, some obstacles must be circumvented. You'll know how.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In the final analysis, the ideas and suggestions you have to offer today are likely to be superior to your peers. Let your thoughts be known.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) New vitality will be breathed into a venture about which you've been dubious. Don't give up now — victory is in sight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your words and actions today will inspire others to ally themselves to your cause. You might forget what you way or do, but they won't.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Conditions are rather unusual and interesting today in that you may now succeed easily in a situation where you previously experienced failure.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

You could even surprise yourself today as to how well you'll respond to challenging developments. Don't duck out if things get sticky.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll find the way to do something for someone you love that this person has long been desiring, even though bringing it about won't be simple.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't be surprised if you command the attention of almost everyone you encounter today. You seem to say all the right things to put them at ease.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Pulling off "tough" feats on the job seems to come easy to you today, but it will be due to your sound reasoning and willingness to work for your goals.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If something difficult needs to be said, this is the day for you to speak up. You have the ability to express yourself in a masterly fashion.
