State officials visit area to stress war on drugs

ORLANDO - State and national officials say a lot more needs to be done if the war on drugs is to be won.

Governor Bob Martinez and U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum, chairman of the Republican Anti-Drug Task Force, spoke to community leaders this morning for the official kick-off to Red Ribbon Week

"We need to be able to say 'no' to drugs in an educated fashion." McCollum said to the

the Omit International Hotel in downtown Orlando

Most in attendance were dressed in red. All wore red ribbons, provided by the Florida involoved Parents for Drug Free Youth, The ribbons were inscribed with the theme of the week: "My Choice, Drug Free,"

McCollum said he favors a law, similar to the one passed two years ago in New Jersey, that allows a judge to revoke the drivers licenses of anyone convicted of possessing drugs.

McCollum said the war on drugs cannot be won until the community is willing to place strong sanctions on drug users. "Having a business person convicted of drug use an putting his name in the paper will discourage other penalties besides jail."

Saying that Florida has been doing a great deal to reduce the flow of drugs into the United States. Martinez added that the war on drugs would not he won until the users are punished as well as the sellers.

"If we do not go after the users, the market will not reduce itself," he said.

Noting that the state added an additional 18,000 leds to prison facilities last year, the governor said there should be alternatives to fail sentences that were incentives not to take drugs. The money spent expanding prisons, he said. could be better spent, for example, building schools.

ORLANDO - Red Ribbon Week, a nationwide effort to keep young people aware of the dangers of drug abuse, began today with a breakfast with area politicians, Gov. Bob Martinez and Rep. Bill McCollum.

The theme of the week's activities, "My Choice, Drug Free," will be driven home to students through a variety of activities this week. Seminole County students will participate in parades around campus, talks with elementary school students about how to say no to drugs, talks with middle school. students about self esteem and positive self image, and speaking engagements by high school students on how they are living drug free lives.

said Roger Beathard, district coordinator of health education. He added that most schools are planning multiple activities.

"It's not that we don't teach drug awareness the whole year," Beathard added. "This is a nationwide celebration of making the choice to be drug free and we are emphasizing the things we teach them all year."

Red Ribbon Week celebrations have been confined to one week because it is much easter to have some sort of activity each day and to plan and mobilize the community. Florida Informed Parents for Drug Free Youth say they plan to use the remaining 51 weeks of the year to follow up on parent and community involvement.

"There isn't any way to keep the intensity of Red Ribbon Week going all year," Beathard said. "But we raise their awareness of the problem now and make sure that we do Cince Events, Page 8A

Radioactive gauge stolen

FERN PARK - A thief who stole a radioactive soil density tester gauge from a truck at the jai-alai fronton on U.S. Highway 17-92, Fern Park, is probably in little or no danger if they don't tamper with the gauge.

The gauge was stolen at about 2:30 p.m. Saturday. A spokesman for Michael Sims and Associates, Inc., of Orlando, owner of the gauge. said the radioactive pellet in a rod inside the gauge might emit less than the amount of radiation of a chest X-ray. The spokesman said more concern is over the loss of the $5,000 piece of equipment than the potential for radiation exposure from the gauge scaled in a lead container.

The loss has been reported to the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services and to Seminole County sheriff's deputies.

Gorbachev beats Bush, Martinez in poli

TALLAHASSEE - Floridians gave better marks to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev than they did to President Bush, Gov. Bob Martinez or either of Florida's senators in a newspaper poll published Sunday.

Sixty percent surveyed by Florida International University's Institute for Public Opinion research for the Miami Herald and The Florida Times-Union gave Gorbachev an A or B for his handling of the Soviet Union.

Bush got those marks from 58 percent of the respondents. He was followed by Sen. Bob Graham with 51 percent. Martines was next with 35 percent and Sen. Connie Mack was last with 33 percent.

There was some good news for Martinez in the survey. His grades were up from one year ago, when only 27 percent gave him an A or B.

Stephen Baker, a professor of political science at Jacksonville University, said Floridians apparently were impressed by glasnost and perestrolks, the new openness and economic restructuring in the Soviet Union. He also noted that Gorbachev has higher approval ratings in Western Europe than Bush or former President Reagan.

HALLANDALE - Police have opened an internal investigation into the arrest of an 82-year-old woman who was handcuffed, strip-searched and jailed after she allegedly poked a police officer in the chin, officials said Sunday.

Irms Poliak, a Fort Lauderdale grandmother, was booked into the Broward County Jail May 9 on charges of battery on a law enforcement officer and resisting arrest without violence.

But formal charges were never filed against the woman because Hallandale police did not give the case to the state attorney's office in time. The case was dropped May 26, said Dave Case, a spokesman for the state attorney's office.

But now, six months later, authorities are looking into the incident and Pollak's attorney mays he is upset that it took so long.

"The conduct I am concerned about is what incidents led to having to arrest an 82-year-old woman, and how did (the officer) conduct himself," said Poliak's lawyer, Norman Kent. "What would make an 82-year-old woman act like she was fighting for her life?"

Police records indicate Poliak left a restaurant after having lunch with and friend and was headed to her car when officer Michael Antinick stopped her and said she was a suspect in a hit-and-run accident.

Antinick said that when he asked her for identification, Pollak "became hostile" and "intentionally poked" him in the chin. Pollak denied that she poked the officer.

FBI scrambles for new agents; half of force planning to retire

United Press International

MIAMI - Recruitment is a top priority at the FBI as the agency braces to lose half of its most experienced agents to retirement in the next five years, with one-third of those leaving the South Florida area.

The loss of its best trained personnel comes just as the nation's top domestic law enforcement agency is being called upon to lead the war on drugs, and to keep closer tabs on the banking industry in the wake of the financial collapse of the savings and loan industry.

"Without question the need to recruit top people is greater than ever," said Mark Marson, who is in charge of recruitment in Miami. "It's the loss of expertise that can only be picked up with CHILDREN CONTRACTOR

About 350 South Florida agents are expected to opt for retirement just as President Bush launches his assault on illegal drug traffic, leaving a critical

A retirement package that makes it financially beneficial to leave before the mandatory retirement age of 55 is blamed for most of the departures.

'From a financial standpoint, it is a hardship to stay because the retirement is so good," said Assistant Broward State Attorney John Hanlon, who retired two years ago with 60 percent of his pay after surviving one of the deadliest FBI shoot-outs in agency history.

Hanlon was one of five agents injured in a gun battle with two bank robbery suspects in 1966 in south Miami. Two agents were killed in the bloody exchange. Gordon McNeill, another officer wounded in the incident, is still with the agency as an FBI recruiter.

"The bottom line is that, after 50, you are working for half pay." he said.

Catastrophic care was bad medicine

The catastrophic-care catastrophe illustrates the difficulty of trying o forge government health-insurance progams in an era of tight federal budget constratints. Even though the catastrophic plan had been in effect only a year, the House voted to repeal it by a huge 360-66 margin.

The Senate wisely decided to save a crucial part of the plan that would help the elderly with the huge cost of lengthy hospital stays. But like the House, the Senate abolished the ill-conceived and unpopular financial formula that was supposed to generate money for catastrophic care.

Under the plan, the indigent elderly paid nothing extra. Middle- and upper-income senior citizens, on the other hand, had to pay a surtax of up to $8000 a year. They protested, perhaps with good reason.

Even so, Congress may abolish the surcharge, but it can't vote away the health-care problems that spawned the catastrophic-care program.

The real issue is who will pay. For some of those upset over the surtax, a combination of Medicare benefits, personal income and privately purchased insurance may suffice. But a society cannot forget about those who can't afford private health insurance. Repeal of the catastrophic-care program should not mean that those who need government assistance the most — the elderly poor, for instance — must go without hospitalisation, nursing home care or basic medical treat-

Horace Greeley's World Series

I'm not as worried about California sliding into the sea one day as I am about the terrifying prospect of this country's geodetic tilt. The implications for our survival as a great civilization are awesome.

Obviously, you haven't been paying much attention in the last few years, or you would have noticed. The American landscape has been aloping gradually in the direction of the point on the equinox where the sun sets. The West.

Until the last two decades, anything of educational, political and cultural authority was housed in the East: the nation's capital, the nation's largest city, the nation's two founding cities, the television networks, the best-edited newspapers, the most informative magazines, the most distinguished universities, the most prolific scholars and the most proficient athletic

The West was a second-class area. But the tilt westward hol has accelerated with a vengeance. Look, for example, at the World Series: a incoolf between two western teams for two straight years. In 1968, the showdown was between the Los Angeles Dodgers and the Oskiand Athletics. And to pile Oses on Pelion. the two 1969 teams, the San Francisco Giants and the Oskiand Athletics, represent one California metropolitan area. The minute the Giants' Will Clark recorded the final out in the National League Championship Series, the 1989 World Series was being dubbed the "Double-

BART Series," in honor of the late beloved baseball commissioner, Bart Giamatti, and in recognition of the most efficient mode of transportation between the two cities, Bay Ares Rapid Transit (BART).

Up until this year, "subway series" have been the exclusive province of the East. Between 1949 and 1956, an incredible six subway series took place in New York, with the New York Yankees and the then-Brooklyn Dodgers facing off in all but one of them - 1951, when the then-New York Glants crashed the party. Those years were the heyday for basebali in the East. Along with baseball's geodetic tilt, the West is mounting other serious challenges. Between 1977 and 1989, six California teams have won the Super Bowl. And a couple of California universities have even established a legitimate claim to academic pre-eminence.

Horace Greeley and John Babaone Lane Soule offered good advice, but they didn't go far enough. They should have urged, "Co to California, young man. and grow up with the country."

But if any World Series has ever provided a dramatic contrast in the cities of its contending teams, it is the one between San Francisco and Oakland.

San Francisco is easily one of the nation's most charismatic cities, a cultural Elysium, while Oskiand is a banal, industrial dimensur. forever plagued by Gertrude Stein's diamiasive rap, "There's no there, there." She's right. There ion't. But in recent days, (before the earthquake) the eyes of the nation's baseball lovers and front-page story writers have feasted as much on Oakland as San Francisco. Baseball can transcend almost anything.

"Our survey shows that 96.6 percent of Americans would be willing for their friends and neighbors to pay more taxes for a clean environment, world peace and an improved criminal justice system."

ROBERT WALTERS Cities sprawl in wide open space

SOUTHGLENN, Colo. - Only a decade ago. this Denver suburb's name was nowhere to be found on many maps of the region. That's because it was a thinly inhabited community whose few residents lived on the open range.

whose few residents lived on the open range. Today, Southgienn is one of the dozens of booming suburbs that ring Denver. Real estate developers built thousands of homes during the 1980s. Shopping centers are springing up at major intersections to serve those who don't want to travel 15 miles or more to shop in downtown Denver. That pattern is duplicated elsewhere in the Denver area in Lakewood and Littleton, in Arvada and Aurora - as an increasing proportion of Colorado's popula-tion Becomes con-centrated along the Front Range of the Rocky Mountains. foreover, the same trend is apparent throughout the West.

Lawmakers also should reconsider how to finance government health insurance in a more equitable way. Social programs abould be underwritten by a broad base of taxpayers, rather than being heaped on the aboulders of one group.

The political anget over the catastrophic-care program is merely a symptom of a larger social iii: health costs spiraling out of control and a government too debt-ridden to pay for them.

Perhaps there will be no pain-free cure for the health-care crisis in this country, but as the catastrophic-care debacle demonstrated, a piece-meal approach is a poor way to go. Congress needs to grapple with com-prehensive solutions to a national health-care crisis threatening young and old.

ELLEN GOODMAN Women's voices must be heard

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. - Maybe this is the best way to think about it: When two adults move way to think about R: When two soulds move in together in mid-life, the common wisdom says that it's best not to move into his place or her place, but to find theirs. In politics however, said Ruth Mandel, the head of the Eagleton Institute, "women are moving into his place, uninvited and unwaced."

er who nodded with familiar amusemnt at this analogy were seasoned women at this analogy were seasoned women politicans from across the coutry gathered recently at Harvard's Kennedy School for a conference on leadership. All of these women know what it feels like to move into his place — the city hall, the state legislature, the Con-gress. All fo them have struggled to feel comfortable there, to fit into one room, to redecorate another more to their taste.

Bo, as is often the case when women get together, the talk was not just of strategies for success but of values, not just 'how to' move up but "why to" and "whether to" and "is it worth it to." There were schoes of converse-tions heard all the time now among business women and professional women, those who are stranging to get into the system while questioning it, these who want to be accepted as one of the boys and want to change the way the boys operate, those who don't know if they can do all of this at the same time.

The women at the conference included, still, a large number of "firsts." and "onlies." women at the cutting edge of change. They held high the recent evidence of how elected women can make a difference: It was the women in Congress who had stood up days before, one alter another, preasing their colleagues to resours Medicaid financing of abortions for victims of rape and incest. It was women inglaisters in Florida who had led the fight to debest their governor's attempt to limit abortions.

But there was also the palable sense the women are not moving abased as fast in politics as in other professions. There was the deep concern that it is harder for political women to "make it" and "change it."

The most moving description of the dialogue carried animate the heads of women who live carried onionide the bands of women who live in the motitutions built for and by men. came from the highest ranking women at the confer-ence. In a speech rich is depth and emotional honesty. Gov. Madeletine Kunin of Vermont, who has been successful by every common measure, talked as a woman and governor, a women governer, about mean and governor, a dual-value system. She spoke to the conflicts abe fears may inhibit women from moving into and up politics.

"We can't expect the few women in plitical life to change the values and the rules of the game alone, although that is sometimes precisely the expecta-tion. If you haven't changed the world, what's the point of your being there?"

Living with these contradictions is uncomfortablefor any woman in a "man's place." "That is what is hard." she told her colleagues. "Recon-ciling one's internal self with the demands of the political system. which is based on male tradi-tions and is still laregely male defined."

Kunin fears that these contradictions may be the largest hurdle for women advancing in the political life. "It is not lack of polling data or campaign contributions whichkeeps many women from ascending higher on the political ladder. It is fear and loathing for the political system itself."

Perhaps this same "fear and loathing" holds women back at the edge of real breakthrough success inother institutions. "Fear and loathing" of the "system" that leads to thecorner office of the CEO.

The governor countered her melancholy and excription of what women's place with a excription of what women can accomplish in olitical life and how much they are needed: Power "Women's voices must be heard as we debate, plan and decide the future of our states, nation and world." But her eloquence about the inner conflicts resonates at this moment in social change.

This is what women are learning. After the first flush of excitement, after they've made the commitment and moved in. It takes a long time for a house, or a House or even a governor's mansion to become a home. because it conflicts with the popular perception of the West as the most wide-open and sparsely settled of all of the nation's rein urban areas, compared with 86.0 of all Northeasterners. The Westrends report points out that in five. Western states, more than half of the total population lives in a single sprawling metro-politan area or urban corridor. In addition, demographic patterns in California — heavily populated and highly urbanised — skew all region-wide statistics. Almost 37.7 million people live in California — more than in all of the region's 13 other states combined — and 96.7 percent of them are found in metropolitan areas. Throughout the early and mid-1980s, the West had the highest birth and in-migration rates of all regions. As a result, its 15.1 percent growth rate between 1980 and 1987 was the highest in the country (substantially above the 11.3 percent recorded in the second-place flouth) and more than twice the nationwide rate of 7.4 percent. Moreover, the Census Bureau projects that the West's total population will increase during the 1990s by another 18 percent — a rate almost double the predicted national average during the next decade. Accelerated population growth invariably but they are always offset by the need to provide housing, transportation, educational medical and offset facilities and services to new residents. House fire kills four

CHARLESTON, S.C. - A house fire in downtown Charleston killed four people and injured four others early Monday, authorities said.

Officials in Charleston, still cleaning up from the devastation of Hurricane Hugo, said the blaze started about 1:30 a.m. EDT in the frame house, possibly from a faulty heating system.

The four died from burns and smoke inhalation and the four who were injured were treated at a nearby hospital and released, the officials said.

There were no immediate identifications.

Train wreck under Investigation

UPPER SANDUSKY. Ohio - Transportation officials are investigating the cause of a collision between an Amtrak passenger train and a CSX freight train that injured four people.

Investigators removed recording devices from the Amtrak passenger train Sunday and officials ordered drug tests for the engineers.

Three Amtrak crew members and an elderly female passenger were treated for injuries after the slow-moving Amtrak train struck the 12th car of the CSX train early Sunday. None of the 227 passengers and crew aboard the CSX train was hurt, officials said.

Prime Minister Miklos Nemeth said Sunday Hungary's procla-mation of a republic, Europe's first under a democratic constitution since Spain's in 1931, can be "fulfilled without bloodshed."

Parliament last week cleared the way for Hungary's emergence as a parliamentary democracy with a system more closely resembling Western multi-party democracies than communist one-party systems.

"Last week closed down an old period and opened a new one in our history." Nemeth said Sunday night on the Hungarian television news program "The Week." "Our struggle can be fulfulled without bloodshed, not like 33 years ago."

The house is still piped for gaslights, Glenn Domen said. Lacy said she plans to hook up a couple of the fixtures "just for the ambiance."

Glenn Domen said he stripped paint from the staircase and removed all carpeting from the Martines and his wife, Mary Jane, also a former teacher, are co-chairmen of the Red Ribbon efforts across the state.

"We are proud to be co-chairmen," Martines said. "There is no more important fight than the war on drugs."

"There's a change taking place in our schools," Martines, a former teacher, said. "When I left the classroom to become mayor of Tampa in 1979, I kept going into the classrooms twice a month to teach. Back then if you mentioned drugs, the stu-dents were cynical. They'd say to me, What do you know about drugs.' They'd point out that adults used alcohol. Today they are willing to talk about drugs." A chorus of children from Stenstom Elementary School in Oviedo entertained the crowd with song as they enjoyed a continental breakfast and then sang a song entitled "My Choice" which was written in celebration of Red Ribbon Week by the schools music teacher Deborah Abadi.

The extrication exercises were placed under a 20 minute time limit so contestants were placed under speed as well as accuracy constraints.

The competition was part of a larger symposium in which teams learn new extrication techniques and ways to instruct others in their craft.

"These guys are instructors at Seminole Community College." Miller said, "so they are better able to teach."

McLlwain lifts Jets over Oilers

WINNIPEG, Manitoba - Dave MeLlwain scored the tying goal at 10:48 of the third period and set up the winner by Tomas Steen at 13:34 Sunday night to pace the Winnipeg Jets to a 5-4 triumph over the Edmonton Oilers.

On the tying goal, McLiwain took a pass from Brian McReynolds just inside the Otlers blueline and beat goaltender Bill Ranford.

Steen scored the winning goal from a scramble in front of Ranford when the Winnipeg center charged in for McLiwain's rebound.

The Offers had taken a 4-3 lead on back-toback third-period goals by Glenn Anderson and Gcoff Smith to erase a 3-1 Winnipeg lead. After managing only 11 shots on goal against the Boston Bruins Friday night, the Oilers were outshot 17-5 in the first period by the Jets.

Mark Messier, who also had two assists in the game, put the Oilers ahead 1-0 just 43 seconds into the game, slipping the puck between the legs of Jets goaltender Tom Draper.

WASHINGTON - Quarterback Mark Rypten said he saw new enthusiasm from his Washington Redskins teammates stemming from a private, players-only meeting last week at a warehouse near the team's training facility.

The Redskins needed all the extra enthusiasm they could muster Sunday in a 32-28 victory over the Tampa-Bay Buccaneers, Rypten, who has helped the Redskins become the NFL's No. 1 offense, threw two touchdown passes to Gary Clark and Chip Lohmiller kicked three field goals. Washington still barely survived a fourthquarter rally engineered by Tampa Bay's Vinny Testaverde.

The Redskins, who took a 29-7 lead into the fourth quarter, held Tampa Bay to just one yard rushing on 10 carries for the game, but surrendered three Testaverde touchdown passes in the fourth quarter.

"We came out of that meeting knowing that we have to stick together," said Rypien, whose team rebounded from a devastating 20-17 loss to the New York Giants last week. "The bottom line is we need to play with emotion and have more fun. You saw it today. We had guys running around looking like they were enjoying themselves."

"I think the meeting was good," said Redskars Coach Joe Gibbs, who was not at the meeting. "It shows they care."

'Stoyanovich kicked it through there when we had to have it," Coach Don Shula said. "We felt if we got good field position the offense would be able to move it downfield with the two time outs. Dan made some big throws and the receivers made some big catches."

Marino threw to Freddie Banks for 24 yards, and to Mark Clayton for 20 and 14 yards on the five-play drive that began on the Dolphin 31 with 53 seconds left.

"They were playing off the ball quite a bit because they thought we wouldn't go deep, so we just took the intermediate stuff," Clayton said.

"Marino is very tough with two minutes to go." Green Bay linebacker Tim Harris said. "I thought we put a lot of pressure on him even though I didn't have any sacks."

The field goal upstaged a frantie Green Bay comeback in the fourth quarter. The Packers trailed 20-6 going into the final six minutes of the game, but scored on a 22-yard pass from Don Majkowski to Sterling Sharpe with 5:54 left in the game and again on a Majkowski-Sharpe hookup with 53 seconds left.

SAN FRANCISCO - Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent, after talks with San Francisco Mayor Art Agnos, said Sunday he has rescheduled Game 3 of the earthquake-rayaged World Series for Friday.

More and more fans around a team. A prime example is how Central Florida fans have taken to the Orlando Magic. Without a regular season game played, they can do no wrong in the eyes of their already many faithful. But on a level closer to home, communities will come together communities will come together over a high school team in a way that makes politicians jealous. And this is particularly true if the team happens to play one of the big three sports of football, basketball or baseball. On Friday night, for example, Lake Howell hosted Seminole in a feetball context that example.

a football contest that eventually decided the Seminole Athletic Conference champion. Normally, that would be enough to attract a fair amount of attention, but the fact that both teams are ranked among the state's top 10 in their respective classes made the contest that much more intriguing to local fans. This is one of the real positive aspects athletics can have socially. People who live in the same town or city may not have much in common, but give them a high school team to get fired up about and suddenly everyone has something to talk about other than taxes, crime or politics.

At Seminole High School, which has always enjoyed a particularly fond and close relationship between its athletic teams and the city of Sanford, students, parents and fans are getting excited about the Tribe's chances at advancing to the Class 4A state playoffs this year. On Friday, they filled their side of Lake Howell's stadium to overflowing.

And you can also see the snowball starting to gain momentum at Lake Howell. Now 7-0, the Silver Hawks seem to have really captured the atten-tion and imagination of not only the school, but the surrounding neighborhoods. The seating on the home side of Lake Howell's stadium is almost twice that of the visitors and it was filled

You'll generally find that in Nou'll generally find that in high school athletics, there's a solid serve of faces when solid stiered every game a school plays, regardless of the wot-loss re-cord. Among these you'll find family members of the players, significant others of the players, has who support the school in particular sport.

But when a team starts winnng, the interest spreads. The hint of making the playoffs will get the fans lining up at the ticket window. At Lake Howell on Friday, it was reported that they started selling tickets at the stadium a full hour and a half before kickoff. Half an 'hour before the game began, the stands were full.

Happily, this enthusiasm will spill over into areas unconnected with the particular sport. Stu-dents and/or adults who meet while cheering for their mutual favorite team form a bond. One more stranger becomes, if not a friend, at least a friendly face.

Anyone whose had the opportunity to attend a school with a successful athletic team can tell you how contagious the enthusiasm is. And those who aren't immediately involved in the excitement become curious and, if they succumb to the temptation to come out and see what this is all about, they become a part of the circle.

The greater the momentum becomes of this winning band wagon, the more people want to jump on. Now it's not just the school or surrounding community. It's been noticed that people around the county have taken to following the exploits of both Lake Howell and Seminole.

Of course, like anything else, there is the potential for all this positive energy to rush past the borders of common sense and create a problem. The fans on the losing end of a score aren't particularly thrilled to here the other side celebrating at their expense. So the excitement of your team winning must be tempered so it doesn't come errors as mocking the losers. Btill, it's great to see the excitement grow and see more and more people participating. It helps cut across the regionalism and pulls the county community a little closer together. And anything that does that can't be every activity and fane of that all bad. DEAR READER: Septicemia is bacterial infection of the bloodstream. Formerly called "blood poisoning." septicemia is extremely serious because bloodstream infections often spread to the brain, heart, lungs and other vital organs where they can cause dangerous abscesses. Septicemia can be the consequence of massive bacterial invasion, such as occurs from contaminated intravenous needles, or extensive injury, such as a severe fall; it often accompanies pneumonia and kidney infections. Sometimes, no obvious cause can be

Symptoms include high fever. chills, nausca, vomiting, rash, weakness and prostration.

The diagnosis is established by blood cultures: Bacteria are identified in (and grown from) the patient's blood. Once the bacteria have been identified. they are tested against various types of antibiotics. Then the doctor can judge which antibiotic would be the most effective. Patients with septicemia are treated with intravenous antibiotics for days or weeks.

You may not have received enough antibiotics during your initial treatment in 1977. The condition is usually curable. providing adequate amounts of antibiotic are administered. See a doctor to determine if further antibiotic treatment would be

But in this deal the cards are right if declarer plays for what is needed to bring the contract home. For starters, declarer wins the king of diamonds in dummy and must refuse to cash a second ding. .

Declar draw trumps, and the 3-3 club division will make the fourth club in dummy a winner. That fourth club, plus the second high diamond, will take care of de-West is clever enough to hold up the ace of clubs, allowing the 10-spot to win the trick? South draws trumps and continues with the king of clubs and another club, which West is forced to win with the ace. A diamond lead from West would provide immediate access to dummy. West might try a low heart, but declarer has no choice but to play dummy's queen and hope. Declarer's bold play rewarded his partner's bad bid-
