Foreign Trade

Deficit Solution

The notion that expanded East-West trade would include the Soviet Union to assume a less-threatening role in world affairs was once part of the mythology of Soviet-American détente.

Nevertheless, American corporations are still vitally interested in the profits to be made from sales to the Soviet Union. The problem in all this is that the Soviets covet primarily the advanced technology their own economy has yet to produce.

The Soviets are generally required to promise that technology purchased from U.S. companies will not be diverted to military use. Experience teaches that Moscow's word on this is no more reliable than, for example, its promises to observe the human rights provisions of the Helsinki agreement.

In 1972, the Commerce Department approved the sale of highly sophisticated precision grinding machines used in the production of miniature ball bearings. There is good reason to believe that this technology helped the Soviets develop multiple warhead systems for intercontinental ballistic missiles aimed at the United States.

Some people — non-Soviets, of course — may think the former the best place for the latter. But otherwise, a connection is not obvious. There is one, though. It is the silicon chip, a development of space technology that is about to revolutionize what is in the view of some people —

Which brings us to the Carter administration's bill amending and renewing the Export Administration Act, the law that regulates the sale of American technology to foreign nations.

As proposed by the administration, the bill would have weakened the already inadequate safeguards against technology transfers that endanger American security.

We hope the House retains these safeguards when it takes up floor debate on the bill. Tighter restrictions on technology transfers will, of course, limit the profit potential of East-West trade.

VIEWPOINT Somoza Blames Carter

By DON GRAYF
Currently stopping off in Paraguay in his search for a politically congenial place of exile, former Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza says he has no doubts as to why he is now a has-been.

Jimmy Carter was responsible for his downfall. Which just goes to show that contrary to popular political opinion there is something good to be said about the Carter performance these days.

Pop John Paul II will be stopping off in Ireland for only three days enroute to the United States this fall, but the Irish are going all out to make them memorable.

Events will include an open-air mass in a Dublin park that will be filled out with a 100-foot-high steel cross and an acre of specially woven white carpet.

The cost of these and other elaborate preparations will be estimated at $4.4 million, which the clergy hopes to raise in a special collection at masses.

What do space and bagpipes have in common? Some people — non-Soviets, of course — may think the former the best place for the latter.

A wire report discloses that one George Smith, an innovative piping firm from Mall in the Inner Hebrides, has had the idea to produce a new model of pipes dispensing with the traditional bag and lung-challenging blowing and — for the first time in the 1,600 years that loch and glen have echoed to the sound of the pipes — making possible volume control.

Somebody like quite a technological as well as musical achievement. Not that that's likely to much impress a people who practically invented the industrial revolution — James Watt, developer of the practical steam engine, being one of their own.

A Glasgow firm is gearing up to produce a thousand of the electronic pipes a year with a thriving market anticipated not only at home but in the United States, Canada, South Africa, Australia, Pakistan and other points around the globe where the class have established outposts.

Once mass production is under way, the price of pipe is expected to drop from its current $1,000 or more to something like $300.

Somebody like quite a technological as well as musical achievement. Not that that's likely to much impress a people who practically invented the industrial revolution — James Watt, developer of the practical steam engine, being one of their own.

WASHINGTON WORLD One Term...And Out

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Because the 22nd Amendment limits presidents to two terms in office, we may have come to think of that as the normal tenure of a chief executive.

Starting with George Washington, only 10 of the 38 men who have held the office have completed two full terms. Only three of the 15 presidents of the 20th Century — Woodrow Wilson, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Dwight D. Eisenhower — have finished a second term.

It can be argued that the change in this century is a fluke; that FDR's three terms plus and the murder of John F. Kennedy in his first term distorted the long range trend. Argue away — even if you count those who won but did not finish.

All three 20th Century presidents who completed two or more terms were involved in three of the four major wars this century has fought during the last 80 years — Wilson with World War I, FDR with World War II and the with World War II and the Korean conflict.

Some might say that if it takes a war to keep a president in office, perhaps we are better off with one termers in the White House. What might be more to the point, especially in the current situation, is the appearance that every modern president who has made it through two terms has the help of an external threat to the nation.

JACK ANDERSON

Utah Man Is Fighting 'Red' Stigma

WASHINGTON — Paul McCarty is an unlikely security risk. He was hardly a threat to the nation while growing up on an Iowa farm.

A second informant, who the FBI considers "was not formally acquainted with McCarty and could furnish no additional information concerning him," claimed that in 1969 McCarty was a member of the International Workers Order — an officially listed communist front in California.

Another informant with apparent CIA ties also charged that he had been acquainted with McCarty when the latter was working for the State Department in Washington, D.C. McCarty was a member of the International Workers Order — an officially listed communist front in California.

It took two days of trial and four hours of deliberation for the jury to determine Mills was the triggerman who fired that fatal shot from a .410 gauge shotgun. He could not even give out an estimated cost of Mills' trial or the average cost of any trial.

The charges range from attempted first-degree murder to false imprisonment and allegedly took place on three separate occasions prior to the Wright slaying. Although no one knows what his trial costs are, you could speculate they are more than you or I probably make in a year.

VIEWPOINT Just Be Prepared For Customs

By WILLIAM GEIFE
If you're a tourist on a charter flight direct from Mexico City to Memphis don't try to bring back a bottle of tequila.

Same thing's true if you try to haul a bottle of cognac from Paris to Atlanta, or a jug of Irish whiskey from Dublin to Boston.

That doesn't mean that if you go through Customs in Miami, you can't bring your tequila back to Memphis. No one will stop you once you've cleared Customs.

Charles Warren and Michael N. Ingrano Jr. are less concerned about those bozar numbers than about your thinking before you leave the country about what you'll bring back.

It is possible to compare Carter's situation that of the 19th Century presidents between 1838 and 1890.

These were tough, new problems for the nation and they chewed up presidents one after the other until the Civil War brought Americans in the remaining states of the union together behind Lincoln, the first president since Jackson to win a second term.

Some things you ought to know before leaving the country: — Since Jan. 1, 1978, GSP has been in effect. That stands for Generalized System of Preferences and it means you can bring about 2,100 items from 149 developing nations home without paying any customs duty.

Sanford Museum Panel May Be Formed

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

WILL be a nine-member executive committee be named to handle the day-to-day financial and business affairs of the Sanford Memorial Library and Museum?

The museum, open to the public, houses the memorabilia of the city's founder, Gen. Henry Shelton Sanford. The 23-member board of trustees would remain the library and museum's policymaking group and would continue meeting on a quarterly basis.

Checks for the organization will be issued by the city, and records of the organization will be kept by the city, Stenstrom said. At the next general meeting after approval by the board of trustees, the time of which is yet to be announced, formal approval of the concept is expected to be given, Stenstrom said.

Eight members of the executive committee would be named by the board of trustees while the city commission would appoint one of its members as the ninth person on the committee. After approval by the board of trustees, the plan will be returned to the city commission for ratification, he said.

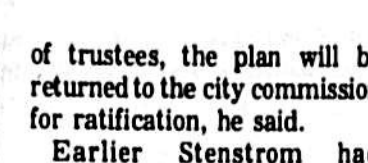

Earlier, Stenstrom had recommended that the board of trustees be abolished in favor of the smaller executive committee because of the difficulty in setting a convenient time for the larger body to meet.

In other business, the commission this week: — Accepted a check for $25,000 from Blue Cross-Blue Shield. The check returned to the city's unspent reserves, money paid to the firm but not used for medical claims.

Received a written report from the city manager showing the following information about two parcels of land the city is considering for purchase for the regional sewer plant expansion: a 4.1-acre parcel assessed for tax purposes at $11,000 but has an asking price of $65,000, an offer from the city to purchase for $45,000 and has been appraised at $48,300; an 8.02-acre parcel assessed for tax purposes at $44,800 but has an asking price of $25,000, an offer by the city to purchase at $15,800, and is appraised at $120,840.

Instructed Knowles to have the city staff complete information on salary schedules used for various positions in cities similar in size to Sanford, in private industry, and by Seminole County. After the information is gathered, the city commission will consider whether it should appoint a review board composed of community business leaders to make a recommendation based on the information for action to the commission.

Approved payment of $158.48 to the City Attorney C. Vernon Mize Jr. for miscellaneous costs incurred on behalf of the city for the first six months of the year.

Ask Dick
Kleiner

Fla. House
A Fantasy?

By DICK KLEINER

DEAR DICK: While my family and I were touring through the historical part of St. Augustine, Fla., we saw a house that looked exactly like the house on "Fantasy Island." The resemblance was astonishing. And then we saw the mailbox read "The O'Rourke Residence." Since the main character's name in the show is Mr. O'Rourke, we wondered if there is any connection. GLENDY GILLASPY, Gadsden, Ala.

No, none. Actually, I talked to the folks at "Fantasy Island" and told them about your discovery, and they all agreed the coincidence was so strong that it was "creepy." There is one small detail that weakens it, however — Ricardo Montalban plays a character named Roarke, not O'Rourke. Still it is on the weird side. For the record, the house on "Fantasy Island" is really in the Arboretum in Arcadia, Calif., and has since been duplicated on the studio back lot.

DEAR DICK: I would like you to settle a friendly wager. Is the person who plays "Julie Farr, M.D." the same person who is on the camera commercials with James Garner? DAVID SCHAUFEL, Vancouver, B.C., Can.

No, two different ladies. Susan Sullivan was Dr. Farr and Mariette Hartley is Mrs. Camera.

DEAR DICK: Please clear up the confusion over the Westmore make-up family. How are Wally, Perce, Ben and Martin Westmore related? MAUREEN BRUSH, Kalamazoo, Mich.

I can understand your confusion. California almost has as many Westmore make-up people as it has grapefruit. Wally and Perce are brothers. As far as I can learn, there is no Ben or Martin in the clan. But there were brothers Bud and Frank, and nephews Mont Jr., Marvin and Robert and James and on and on. If you're really interested, Frank Westmore and Marial Davidson wrote a book, "The Westmores of Hollywood," about the family.

DEAR DICK: I recently saw the movie, "Alles," and was impressed by the actress who played Ripley. Could you please tell me her name and some information about her. JENNIFER L. NEWTON, Joplin, Mo.

That's Signoury Weaver, a tall (5 feet 10 1/2 inch) beauty who made her film debut in "Alone" after some years of New York stage work. She is the daughter of Sylvester (Pat) Weaver, one-time head of NBC. I think she has a big future in film.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me the title of the theme song of the "Charlie Brown" specials? And where could I get a record of it. CHERYL MARKS, Waukegan, Ill.

The only title is just "The Theme of the Charlie Brown Specials." It was composed, conducted and performed by Ed Bogas. And you won't be able to get a recording of it because it has not been recorded.

DEAR DICK: My husband and I would like you to settle the question: Are Purley Granger and Stewart Granger brothers? Also, does Jimmy Stewart have a brother who is also an actor? If so, who is it? MRS. CAROL DUSTMAN, Farming, Mich.

No, the Grangers are unrelated. And no, again — Jimmy Stewart is an only child.

DEAR DICK: I was thinking about taking guitar lessons, so my Dad asked this man he works with about it. And he said I should take piano lessons first, so I could get the rhythm. Is that so? VICKIE, Orem, Utah.

Since the only instrument I play is the electric drill, I asked a few experts. There was complete disagreement. Some said you don't need a piano primer before you learn the guitar, others said if you are truly interested in music, you should study the piano first. I think it all depends on how serious you are about music — If all you want to do is strum a little and pluck a little and sing a little, just take guitar lessons, but if you think you might want to make a career in music, the piano is a good, basic instrument to know first.

Couple launches boat for Wednesday evening sail

One complaint voiced by some avid sailors concerns the small number of weekends available for sailing. With only 52 in the year to start with, many others are ruined by bad weather, repairs that must be done around the house and lawns that need cutting.

To help with this problem Strictly Sail at the marina in Sanford has sponsored a Wednesday evening sail. For the past three years, a loosely knit group of sailors have launched their boats after work and enjoyed an evening's sail.

It's almost like a weekend in the middle of the week," said its instigator and Strictly Sail manager Sharon Hallman.

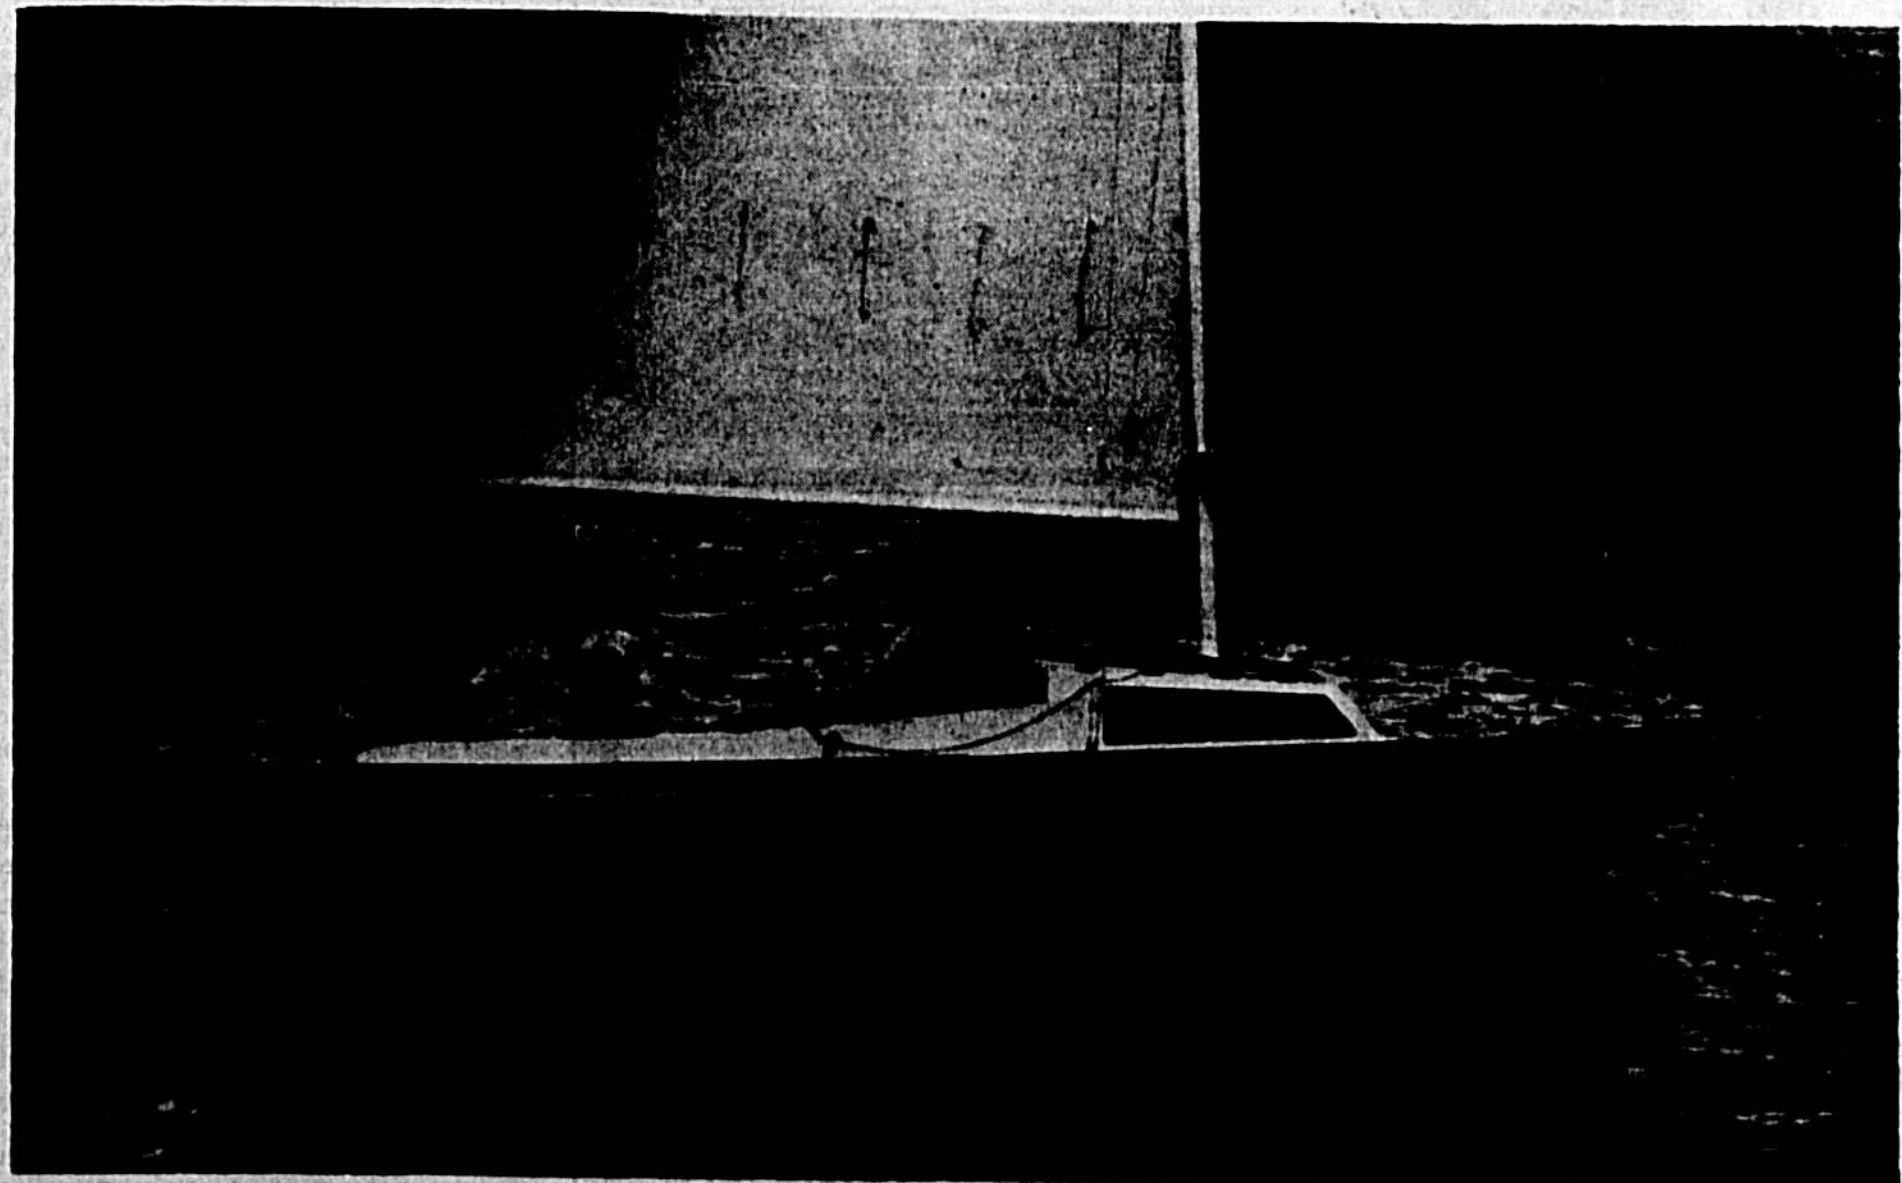

"We usually bring a bunch of beer and go out and have a good time," she said.

Up to 20 boats generally participate, Mrs. Hallman said. Some carry single skippers while others have the entire family serving as the crew.

Mrs. Hallman said sailing is perfect for those days you would rather forget. "When you get here and get out in the boats, you say you're really glad to be here. It breaks the monotony."

A prize is offered for the sailor who shows up the most, during the season from April to the end of September. It is not a regatta with formal racing, but the Hallmans will sometimes add a little interest to the evening by leaving first with the beer in their boat. Then the others have to "chase Sharon for the beer."

Author Becomes Actor

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — When Shane Stevens sold the movie rights to his book "By Reason Of Insanity" to Columbia, part of the deal was that he would have a role in the movie.

That is probably the only time that has happened, that an author wanted to act in the movie version of his own novel. And Columbia might have been reluctant, except for two things — first, they were so eager to get the movie rights they would have probably agreed to give Stevens the popcorn concession and, second, Shane Stevens is an interesting-looking man.

He looks like he could be an actor, with a face that is about halfway between Steve McQueen and Humphrey Bogart. That is not a bad neighborhood for a face to be. "By Reason Of Insanity" is a book about a madman — a crazed killer of women — and it tells how he got to his present state of mania (he thinks he is Caryl Chessman's son, for one thing), how he escapes from the institution where he has grown up (since he shoved his mother in an oven), how relationship with a girl. He says he and his lady had been very close until he let her read the book, and that was the end. He tried to explain that all that she had read had come out of the right hemisphere of his brain.

"That's the part of my brain that dreamed up the story killings," he said. "I told her that the left hemisphere of my brain, where reality lives, had been untouched. It didn't matter to her."

Curiously, his next girl friend read some pages of what may be his next book, a book devoid of violence, and objected to its mildness. He says she left him, because she had wanted more of the "By Reason Of Insanity" kind of violence.

"It doesn't matter," Stevens says. "There's always another girl. In fact, I've already found her." He is a New Yorker, the son of a French-born burgo captain and his wife, who has many ethnic strains in her, even Montenegrin. Stevens says his mother claimed to be a descendent of Attila the Hun, and he wonders if maybe the combination of French blood — romantic — and Hun blood — brutal — has made him what he is today.

He had a tough childhood in Hell's Kitchen. He won't go into details, but hints at all sorts of difficulties. He was rescued by a Columbia University writing program that gave him an education.

He has written the screenplay for "By Reason Of Insanity," too. That was another part of the sale to Columbia. And he also gets a percentage of the take. Between one thing and another — the movie sale, the paper back sale, the original deal — he will make well over a half-million on it.

"I love capitalism," Stevens says. "Only in America could a kid from Hell's Kitchen in New York make this kind of money."

But even if he should click as an actor — he doubts it will happen, because he is sure they'll just give him a small part — he will never turn his back on his first love, writing novels.

No Ideological Yoke On Baez

By TODD R. EASTHAM
PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — It was more than 20 years ago that a young folk singer and poet with a haunting soprano made her debut at the Newport Folk Festival. Joan Baez was 18. Ten years later, at the height of the counter-culture phenomenon, Miss Baez played Woodstock. She emerged as one of the most articulate and controversial voices of a generation transfixed between the horrors of the Vietnam War and an exhilaration with its own growing social and political power.

Joan Baez, for many, typified the "new left." Today, she is in a role which some past allies and supporters of the left view with dismay — as a champion of Vietnam's "boat people."

Many former supporters, including outspoken actress Jane Fonda, declare that Miss Baez has all but sold out to the right. Even the Soviet Union chimed in during August, scolding her for her latest stand criticizing alleged human rights violations by Vietnam. "What brought her to the ranks of the renegades?" asked the Russian journal Sovetskaya Kultura. "What happened to the limas when she stood in the front lines of demonstrators protesting the shameful U.S. aggression in Vietnam?"

Miss Baez contends her position is fundamentally unchanged and only appears changing in the light of changing times. "I was warned by the left that I would be used by the right," she said recently before a concert audience in Stanford University's Frost Amphitheater — prior to the Soviet criticism. "But I say 'what's the difference? I've been used by the right for the last 20 years.' I cannot be hampered by an ideological yoke."

Miss Baez declines at this point in her career to ally herself any more strongly with the political left than with the right. "I'd like to create a new wing that is neither right nor left, but pro-people," she explained to the Stanford crowd, and was answered with a thunderclap of applause.

Although she refuses to ride an ideological bandwagon, she is adamant about one thing: her belief that there are between 10,000 and 200,000 political

Satire Condemned

NEW YORK (UPI) — The film "Life of Brian" is about Brian, a reluctant messiah born on Christmas night, who insists his disciples think for themselves and "save the alone."
 But the Catholic archdiocese of New York is urging everyone to leave "Life of Brian" alone.
 The archdiocese Tuesday condemned the film of the group Monty Python as "blasphemy." Two days ago, three rabbinical organizations called the film a "crime against religion."
 "The picture holds the person of Christ up to comic ridicule and is, for Christians, an act of blasphemy," Monsignor Eugene Clark said in a statement.
 "It is now the obligation of religious persons and all persons of cultivation who respect religion to recognize contemptuous anti-religious sentiment of this sort and separate themselves from it personally as a matter of principle," he added.
 Warner Brothers, which is distributing the film, said, "It was never our intention to offend anyone's beliefs and we certainly regret having done so."

REO Gains Recognition

By ROBERT PATTERSON
 REO Speedwagon may not have lived out all the Nine Lives their album title declares, but they do seem to have their claws in the American rock public.
 "It's our tenth anniversary," says REO's wiry and energetic singer Kevin Cadogan, "but we're not celebrating it ourselves. In fact," he jokes, "we're kind of lamenting it together."
 Hardly. After at least as many albums as years, REO finally started selling platinum on their last two records, though as their seriously under-rated lead guitarist Gary Richrath points out: "It's only the last four we own up to. We've actually been together four years."
 "Yeah," chimes in Kevin. "One year eight years ago, and now the last three."
 If this all sounds suspiciously like double-teaming, one must remember that Cronin and Richrath are as strong a duo as Hope and Crosby, and, at times, almost as funny.
 But their music is nothing to laugh at. Month upon month of touring as well as recording several albums has not only been hard work, stresses a major difference in their current work.
 "When we were making our first record," he says, "we hadn't even seen a 15-track recorder before. So here we are in the middle of the mixdown, and the producer splits, leaving us to finish the job."
 Today producing their albums has become a source of pride for Cronin and Richrath, and their control seems to come up with quality — and, if we don't watch out, a few quirts.

 "We do Chuck Berry's 'Rock and Roll Music' on the album, and we wanted to use an introduction to it at the start of side two," says Kevin. "Our dream was getting Steve Martin to do it, and of course our manager assured us it was no problem. And of course we didn't get him."
 "We wanted to have this voice saying, 'Well, side one of the album is real good rock 'n' roll, and really proves these guys can rock. But they've never had a bit of single, and... disco's the big thing, maybe we should make side two of the album disco."
 "And then bam!" says Gary. "Rock 'n' roll music!"

'Better Than Store-Bought' Foods

By STEPHANIE ZVIRIN
American Library Assn.
Have you ever made pretzels or marshmallows at home, produced your own cherry liqueur or turned milk, lemon juice and vinegar into ricotta cheese?
If the answer is no, you're not alone. Most contemporary cooks depend on their grocer's well-stocked shelves.

But many are beginning to question whether they're paying too high a price — literally AND figuratively — for convenience foods; foods invariably shot through with chemicals to lengthen shelf life, alter color, and change texture.

Practical cooks Helen Witty and Elizabeth Colchie do not pretend that the controlled conditions and advanced techniques of commercial food processing can be duplicated in the small kitchen, but they do argue that a number of store-bought items can be made free of additives, more

BETTER THAN STORE-BOUGHT by Helen Witty and Elizabeth Colchie (Harper & Row, 325 pages, $12.95)
JEAN ANDERSON'S PROCESSOR COOKING by Jean Anderson (Morrow, 444 pages, $14.95)
FARM JOURNAL'S CHOICE CHOCOLATE RECIPES by Elise W. Manning (Doubleday, 224 pages, $8.95)

flavorfully, and often more cheaply right at home. Their instructions are explicit and easy to follow. Don't expect taste or texture duplicates of store-boughts though. The authors warn that consumers have grown so accustomed to overprocessed, highly adulterated foods that recognizing the real thing — cream cheese without vegetable gum thickeners or mint jelly with that ghostly green hue — may take some getting used to.

As Witty and Colchie advise, grinding ingredients for homemade sausage and blending sweet creamy butter is far easier with the help of a food processor — the newest, perhaps the greatest, cook's helper to come along since the microwave. After three years of experimenting with different processor models and techniques, Jean Anderson, author of the popular, "Doubleday Cookbook," has produced a book that explains why the processor is fast becoming standard equipment.

In readable, straightforward terms, referring often to her own experiences with processors, Anderson summarizes machine basics, explaining generally what they can and cannot do, and follows up with an excellent assortment of over 250 recipes she has designed and adapted especially for processors. Quick reference sections define techniques and list over 80 common foods and appropriate methods of processing them.

Especially valuable for those who want to adapt favorite recipes to the processor without waste is a handy
table of approximate food yields. At a glance, cooks can tell that two cups whole peanuts will process down to one cup peanut butter and one-half pound of cheddar will produce about two shredded cups.
Anderson's recipes test the capabilities, from slicing

Apocalypse An American Classic

NEW RELEASE
APOCALYPSE NOW (R) — Martin Sheen, Marlon Brando, Robert Duval. (Drama) This is Francis Coppola's long-awaited and very expensive epic — and worth the wait and the cost. It is a study of the madness of war, and Coppola has created a procession of insane images of Vietnam and that terrible war to make his point. It is long and flawed, but must be rated an American classic.
GRADE: A-plus

SUNBEURN (PG) — Farrah Fawcett, Charles Grodin, Art Carney. (Comedy-Detective) Obviously designed as a showcase for Farrah, nobody paid much attention to story, acting, direction or editing in this sorry film. It's about an insurance detective and the lady he hires to make like his wife, and all the alleged jokes are about at that level. It makes "Charlie's Angels" look good.

GRADE: C-minus

GENERAL RELEASE
AMERICATHON (PG) — John Ritter, Harvey Korman, Fred Willard. (Farce) It's 20 years in the future and the country is broke. A 30-day telethon is expected to put the of USA back on its feet. This is a case of stretching a funny-seeming idea too thin. As the film sinks ever more into plodding or offensive gags, the audience grows more restless. Tries to be another "Groove Tube" and fails.
Skip it. GRADE: D
