The New WAYNE D. OVERHOLSER Thriller

THE LONE DEPUTY

CHAPTER 13

"I'M MOVING out of the country when I get the evidence I need," Price began, addressing Cole Weston.

"To hell with the evidence!" Weston said angrily. "Tonight you understand?"

"No, I don't," Price said, "and you don't either. Now there's something else we'd better talk about. I've heard how you took care of the case on Elk River. It happened before my time, but I've heard it so often it must be true. You were shot. Two were lynched. Cabins burned. That's the law, 'loc'. If you hadn't done it, the rest of the country would be on the Yellow Cat now. They'd be on Elk River where they could make a living because they wouldn't have to follow the law."

Weston's temper was close to the boiling point. "Regan, are you accusing me . . . ?"

"Of course I'm accusing you. Who else would do it? I'll arrest you as soon as I need you. You know I find out that you've broken the law."

"Maybe you've never heard my side of it," Weston said. "I'll explain it once and only once. I'm the man who opened up this country. I came here not long after the Union Pacific was built across southern Wyoming. I drove in a herd of cattle with a handful of men, and me and my wife started buying land in a section of old-fashioned land. We ran the risk of being murdered just like Mooters was. We fought battles and we hung some of 'em. We depended on ourselves because we had no law. Everything I came here to do was to get from Rawlins. Have you got enough sense to understand what I'm telling you?"

"Is that all?" Price asked.

"No, it ain't!" Weston shouted. "What you got through your thick head that I'm not asking for anything I don't deserve? You say it justice for men like Cronin and them settlers on the Yellow Cat to come in now when it's safe because I made it safe and steal your stock? You call it justice to let 'em stay when you know that they're staying in an invitation for every other lazy man in the country to move in here?"

"Sometimes it's a little hard to know what justice is," Price conceded, "but you're wrong on one point. You are asking for more than you deserve. The land up the Yellow Cat and down Elk River is public domain, and people have a right to claim it and farm it. But if you drive them off that land, then you're outside the law and I'll arrest you. As far as Cronin and the men, if you occurred, I've told you and I'll keep on telling you that I'll arrest any

She shut the door and led him to the lowest on the other side of the room. She sat down and pulled him to the seat beside her. "Maybe I can understand. I'll try, Price. It's part of a wife's job to understand, and all I really want to do is to be a good wife."

He sensed that at this moment she was a woman, serious and competent, and not the willful and peevish girl she sometimes seemed to be. He said, "You've been wanting to get married for a month, but I've been putting you off. It wasn't just that you didn't have a house to live in. It was more than that. You see, Ralph Carow knew that trouble was shaping up over here. That's why he sent me to Saddle Rock. I shouldn't have asked you to marry me until it was settled."

"And now you're trying to say we can't get married until it's settled?"

"That's it," he said. "I'm in a pinch because I'm alone. Both sides hate me. If I could shut my eyes, or run, I'd be all right, but I can't do either. So it looks like my plan's going to get cleaned. If we get married tomorrow, you might be a widow on Monday."

"Price, you fool," she whispered. "I know that all the time. If we waited until this trouble was over, there'd just be more. Why we never got married is that was our reason for waiting."

He had been a fool, he thought. She understood far more than he had guessed, and he should have talked to her about it. Still, there was this gap between him and Barry Madden, a gap that had widened until now he saw no way to bridge it.

"But your dad . . ." he began.

"Price, it's not your marriage, not Daddy. If it has to be a choice between you, then it's you. He knows that. She chewed on her lower lip a moment, her eyes searching his face, then she added, "About your running away or closing your eyes. If you could do either one, I wouldn't love you. Maybe I will be a widow on Monday, but I'd rather have one day as your wife than never be your wife at all."

He got up and drew her to her feet. He saw that her lips were trembling, that her eyes were shining in a way he had never seen them shine before. A girl-wife at times, perhaps, but a woman-wife when it counted.

"I love you, Laura," he said. "You set the wedding day. Maybe it'll have to be a hotel room for a few days, but we'll make out."

But while wedding plans are being made a renegade is declaring his hate every demon out there, and I came here to fight 'em!" Continue the story here tomorrow.

Longwood News

By Sibly Gram

The Golling Granthams, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Alden E. Grantham, are again entering the PenWac Golf Tournament to be held at Dubadroad Country Club, Orlando, June 15 and 16. Entrants in the tournament met at the driving range to pose for photographs yesterday.

The Grantham boys is the only team of four brothers entered in the tournament. They are Scipio, in the 4-8 year old division; David and Bobby, in the 12 year division and Tom, in the 15-18 year division.

The Executive Board for Lyman P.T.A. held its last meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. Ruth Farina, Church Street, Longwood, Monday night. Called to order by Mrs. Garland Shaw, reports from trustees were received. Committees chairman were sincerely thanked for the effort each had made to make the current year one of the most successful in P.T.A. history at Lyman School.

The only business brought up to be discussed from the floor at the final P.T.A. meeting of Lyman School, Tuesday night, was appointment of a chairman for each committee in Lyman School, to push in every possible way for the passage of the bond issue, if and when it is again brought before the freeholders for a vote.

A social hour was enjoyed following adjournment of the board meeting during which coffee and cake were served.

Freddie and Richard Grant played ball exceptionally well in the Little League game between Longwood and Maitland Wednesday. There was a reason, though. Their great grandfather was among the cheering fans that afternoon. Longwood Braves battled the Maitland Giants to a close win, the final score 4 to 3 in favor of the Braves. This was the first Little League game ever witnessed by Mr. A. D. Varnum, great grandfather of the Grant boys. Mr. Varnum is 86-years-old. He traveled alone by bus from his home at Oxford, Fla. to visit his daughter, Mrs. M. L. McDaniel, and his granddaughter, Mrs. J. R. Grant and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Cook and daughter, Ida, and son Marvin Jr. spent Mothers Day at New Smyrna Beach. Accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Lowery Pauling, and sons, Kenneth, John and friend James, a bountiful picnic dinner was spread. The group enjoyed swimming in the afternoon.

The John Farina home was the setting for a family "cook out" Sunday when Mrs. C. A. Farina had all except two of her children together for this Mother's Day gathering.

PLYMOUTH SAVES YOU MONEY ON GAS...

MOBILGAS ECONOMY RUN VICTORY PROVES IT!

New "Fuel-Saver" Choke that helped clinch title to standard equipment on all Plymouth V-8s

Found for pound, Plymouth uses less gasoline than either of the "other two" cars in the low-price "3"! This was proved beyond doubt when a 1938 Plymouth V-8 was officially declared winner of the low-price car competition in the 1938 Mobilgas Economy Run. Plymouth's competitors also entered cars with 6-cylinder engines (supposedly more economical) but Plymouth beat every car in its class—V-8s and 6s alike!

This title-winning Plymouth is exactly the same Belvedere V-8 with TorqueFlite Automatic Transmission that you can buy right off your Plymouth dealer's floor.

These tests prove that every Plymouth has built-in economy features not found in the "other two". For instance—one of the most important factors in Plymouth's smashing win is the new "Fuel-Saver" Choke that you get at no extra cost on all Plymouth V-8s. This ingenious device employs a triple-stage vacuum piston and a new thermostatic element to reduce the amount of fuel you use in warming up the engine. So it can save you even more on short-distance drives—the kind most people make.

Among the many other savings Plymouth gives you is the $140 you save on standard-equipment Torque-Aire Ride. The "other two" charge up to that much extra for their best suspension systems.

So if you are dollar-conscious, better hustle over and talk terms and trade with your Plymouth dealer. He wants your business, and he'll go all out to get it!

Real Hipster Pilots 'Jocko's Rocket Ship'

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)— I don't know how it is in your town, but in my town at five o'clock every weekday, this rocket ship whooshes cloudward on the TV screen and then this voice says something like:

"Greetings, salutations, oop-poppa-do and how do you do. This is Jocko on the scene with the record machine. It's the hottest show on the vee-dee-oh . . . ho . . . yeah . . . and great cooga-mooga!"

The voice belongs to Jocko Henderson, a kind of combination Gertrude Stein, carnival Barker and hipster who pilots a local WANTA-TV teen-age hop show called "Jocko's Rocket Ship." It is, by turns, weird, amusing, incomprehensible, hypnotic and as Jocko might put it, luke-a-poo, whatever that means.

Teen-age record hops are booming right now. At last count there were about 50 of them bouncing around on local TV stations. From what I gather, their formats are pretty much of a piece—deejays announce, records spin, teen-agers dance. Occasionally, a guest artist lip-synchs to a record.

Class by itself
However, "Jocko's Rocket Ship" is in a class by itself. It is I would say, a kind of avant garde rock 'n' roll hop, if our brain can grasp such a thing. Mine can't—quite.

On Jocko's show on the vee-dee-oh, there are no "boys" and "girls"—Jocko instead addresses them all as "daddy-o's" and "mommy-o's." The matter is, to me, often indecipherable, but I find it vastly engaging.

Great cooga-mooga-stooga-hooga. Jocko is apt to say, "Grab the horn and turn 'em on . . . hey . . . yeah . . . ho . . . what about that, daddy-o and mommy-o. Let's go, Jeannie, with the polka dot bikini. Cool it, hab-o, cool it. How about that . . . ho . . . yeah . . . greatcooga-mooga!"

Jocko, a Negro, has a following of teen-age buffs that are both colored and white. Recently, according to Jocko's statement on a show, they flooded the station with so much mail that he received a new two-year contract.

Like Jocko, his fans are very, very hip.

The mommy-o's frequently show up in Ivy League back-belted chino skirts, what looks like suede tennis shoes and blouses—a blouse that billows over the skirt. Chemises also are very big. The big thing in hair-dos among the mommy-o's seems to be braided pony tails. The daddy-o's are fiercely Ivy League with dark rim cut suits, button-down collars and ties of shy patterns.

Like their clothes, their dancing also is very hip. Most of the time, the couples just seem to stand about four feet away from each other, leaving their own little patterns on a few square feet of floor. Frequently, you can't tell who is dancing with whom. In fact, often the mommy-o's and daddy-o's get so engrossed in their individual steps that they float half a floor away from each other while other dancers shuffle in-between.

Arms Prove Fascinating
What fascinates me most is the languid use the dancers make of their arms. There is one pose in which the arms are held out like a surgeon who has just washed them and is waiting for a towel.

Here is another in which the hands move like a tired snake which has swallowed a right angle. And there is a third favorite in which the arms are slowly crossed back and forth like a lazy umpire yelling "Safe."

And, of course, while all this is going on, there is Jocko, beaming down from his stand and barking: "OOO-poppa-do. That's my man Weston Brown putting it down. What's a real pretty bootenite. Aw right, ho, ho. How about that!"

And finally signing off with "Your ace from outer space says luke-a-poo, all through. Gator, gator, gotta get . . ."

So do I, Jocko. And luke-a-poo to you!

Brewer: "Era Of The Goof-Off, The Age Of The Half Done Job"

The president of one of the nation's largest advertising agencies struck out yesterday at the United States' economic stability. He pointedly said this country is going through "the great era of the goof-off, the age of the half-done job."

Charles Brewer, president of Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborne, a company known throughout the country in advertising circles as BBDO, eloquently stated his statement with "The land from coast to coast has been enjoying a stampede away from responsibility."

Probably as a stimulant to salesmen in every industry, Brewer was speaking to the National Sales Executive convention being held in Washington, D. C.

There was hardly a group of people in the United States left out of his hard hitting statement when he claimed that the United States "is populated with laundry men who won't iron shirts, with waiters who won't serve, with carpenters who will come around someday maybe, with executives whose mind is on the golf course, with teachers who demand a single salary schedule so that achievement cannot be rewarded, and with students who take cinch courses."

Such statements tend to make people sit up and take notice. And when those who disagree with Brewer begin to write and storm about the pointed remarks, the avenue of what he claims to be "only a part of our national pattern of always willing to settle for something less than the best" is opened.

Sometimes we have to agree that lessons such as the one pointed out by Charles Brewer are necessary so that the pattern of "soft living" or what Brewer called "the mediocrity" can be changed and an era of human salesmanship be developed.

Individual Responsibility!

Freedom under representative government will last so long as the majority of the American people retain their sense of individual responsibility.

The current so-called "recession" makes it perfectly clear that the only effective break on the tendency of government to seek ever-greater control over the individual citizen's income and personal affairs will be refusal of the "benefitees" to swallow the political bait. Schemes for federal programs offering easy money shift control over local affairs to distant bureaucratic hands and increase taxes.

It is encouraging to note that some communities are beginning to look the tax-increasing gaff horse squarely in the mouth.

As an anti-recession move, legislation is being sponsored which would make available $2 billion at about 8 per cent interest for loans to states, counties, cities and schools to finance local public works projects. When Dallas, Texas, was asked by one of the Senators sponsoring the bill to submit a list of proposed city projects needing financing and their estimated cost, City Officials refused. They pointed out that when Dallas needed money for new projects it could obtain it more cheaply by selling its own bonds than by accepting it from

Too Late To Classify

By Russell Kay
There was a time, not so long ago, when Florida had a bad name among visiting motorists because of vicious speed traps operated in some of our communities. Sheriffs and constables, more concerned with fees than actual law violations, pointed on unsuspecting motorists, arrested them for traveling 10 miles in a 15 mile zone or running a stop light in towns using the old two light system that turned suddenly from green to red with no intermediate warning signal.

A Citizens Advisory Committee was set up to study the problem and local civic and Business groups got behind the movement to put a stop to such practices. Law enforcement officials who were getting rich on the fee system and short-sighted communities profiting from fines and forfeitures put up a stiff battle. It took eight years to bring the reform desired and now Florida's treatment of visiting motorists has improved to the extent that other states are studying our methods and applying them in solving their own problems.

It is an interesting story and O. K. Armstrong tells it in detail in the June issue of the Sanford Digest, now on the newsstands. His article is entitled "Florida's Fight on Traffic Traps" and I'm sure every Floridian would find it interesting reading. Armstrong tells how the AAA, the Tampa Motor Club and various civic groups throughout the state joined in gathering a mass of information so convincing that when the case was presented to Acting Governor Charles E. Johns he took immediate action and ordered sheriffs to eliminate speed traps or be stripped of their authority over motorists.

Korean, World War II Dead To Be Honored At Service May 30

By LOUIS CARROLL
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP)—World War II and Korean war dead will be honored at a service in the U. S. Capitol on May 30. The service will be held at 11 a. m. E. D. T. Wednesday, May 30.

The cadets will be transferred to identical hearse and escorted to the rotunda of the Capitol, where they will lie in state on black-draped catafalques until the morning of Memorial Day, Friday, May 31.

The funeral procession will leave the Capitol at 1 p. m. E. D. T. Friday, moving down Constitution Avenue, past the Washington Monument and the Lincoln memorial bridge to Arlington Cemetery. At funeral home, it will take the procession an hour and a quarter to reach Arlington.

Marching units of all the armed forces, the service academies and veterans organizations will lead the procession. A special honor guard composed of the chiefs and vice chiefs of all the services will follow. The cadets will be borne on two horse-drawn artillery caissons, side by side.

Lang List of Dignitaries
Vice President Richard M. Nixon will ride in a black car immediately behind the caissons. Behind him will come limousines bearing members of the cabinet, justices of the Supreme Court, leaders of Congress and the diplomatic corps, governors of states and territories, the Medal of Honor winners from all the armed forces.

Narrowed To Two
The choice of the World War II unknown has been narrowed down to two caissons—one from the European battlefields and one from the Pacific.

The final selection will be made next Monday, May 28, during a ceremony aboard the guided missile cruiser U. S. S. Canberra, standing at sea off the Virginia Capes. Medal of Honor winner, Hospitalman First Class William H. Charette of Ludington, Mich., will choose one of the identical caissons for burial at Arlington. The other will be buried immediately at sea with naval honors.

The caissons containing the World War II unknown and the Korean unknown then will be transferred to the destroyer U. S. S. Bandy, which will bring them up the Potomac River to Washington.

Foreign News Commentary

By CHARLES E. MCGANN
United Press Staff Correspondent
Soviet Russia has taken a big new step in its program of intervention in Middle Eastern affairs. Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev has promised President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic all the help he needs in trying to make himself the dominant leader of the entire Arab world from the Red Sea to the Atlantic Ocean.

Khrushchev and Soviet President Klement Y. Voroshilov have accepted an invitation by Nasser to visit Egypt at a date to be named. Nasser, in turn, has announced his acceptance of Russia's foreign policy including immediate occupation of nuclear weapons tests, opposition to U. S. military bases in foreign countries and admission of Communist China to the United Nations.

These developments came about during Nasser's visit to Russia, which ended last week.

Reactions in Lebanon
— Since then, Russia has started making threats that the United States had better get out of the Middle East and let the Russians take over. He said that the Lebanese state and its independence but also for the state of peace in the Middle East," by statement said.

Thirty-Seven Threes
Pravda, official organ of the Russian Communist Party, has said that the Soviet Union "could not remain indifferent if the United States used the Eisenhower Doctrine to intervene in Lebanon. Soviet public opinion cannot ignore the plans for new imperialist adventures in the Near and Middle East, in direct proximity to the Soviet Union's southern borders," Tass said.

These developments seem to indicate that, whatever the chance of any improvement in relations with the United States, Nasser has tied himself closely politically as well as economically to Russia.

Letters To The Editor

AN OPEN LETTER TO ALL TRAFFIC LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS:

For sometime it has been very apparent that many children between the ages of 14 and 16 who have provisional licenses are driving cars unaccompanied by a fully licensed driver. This makes it very difficult for parents who are insisting that their children comply with the driving regulations of Florida.

The boy who comes home to his parents with stories of school states who are driving family cars (or their own) whenever they chance is not easily pleased with the argument that because other children break the law is no reason for his doing it.

This is not something new. It has been going on for years, as all conscientious mothers and fathers of Standard can testify. A few parents (with substantial fines) could straighten out this unfair and dangerous situation, and make it much easier for parents who are doing their best to bring up their children with respect for the law.

Forrestal To Put On Demonstration For Governors

Today the State Governors attending the Governor's Conference in Miami will have an opportunity to witness the power of the New Air Navy.

The USS Forrestal which will be conducting training exercises off Miami will demonstrate the striking power of the nuclear attack which can be launched from her deck against any target in the world. At launch time the Forrestal will send off her nuclear bombers and fighters to attack a simulated target at high and low levels and at supersonic speeds.

The start of the demonstration will be the hard hitting A-1H Skywarrior flown by the locally based 43rd Tactical Fighter Wing. After the simulated attack the aircraft will return to the Forrestal and remain at sea conducting other training exercises.

It is hard to believe that the Seminole County School board has completely rejected re-registration for the school bond issue. This surely spells defeat for the bond which might have partially relieved the bursting buildings.

Legal double talk about the advisability of a re-registration seems to demonstrate a lack of courage on the part of the advisors. Should the legality of such a re-registration be in doubt, I believe it is up to our attorneys to explain the reasons why to the public. It seems odd, also, that special registration is illegal only in

Industrialists Will Gather In Miami For All-Day Confab

MIAMI — The Florida State Chamber of Commerce expects to bring together several hundred Florida industrialists at Miami on May 21, for an all day conference designed to explore ways of quickening the state's industrialization, and to find solutions for some of the industrialists' taxation, safety, personnel and other perplexities.

The call has been sounded by R. B. Roberts, vice president of the Florida Power and Light Company, who is chairman of the organization's industrial division. Otis Dunan, a Miami brick manufacturer, who is chairman of the division's committee on existing industry, and D. P. Caldwell, utility executive, who is chairman of the division's new industry committee will preside over panel discussions.

According to Harold Cole, state chamber executive vice president: "Florida's industrialization hasn't slowed down. Nearly 500 new plants began operating in this state in 1957, and it now looks as though 1958 will attract more. The State Chamber is concerned with both the old and new, through the maintenance of a good business climate; that's been our function for 48 years."

The forthcoming Miami conference of industrialists promises to be the largest ever held. We are meeting at the express invitation of the Miami-Dade Chamber and industrialists will come from all parts of the state."

Whiffs Of Maytime Posies

MIAMI — Short whiffs of Maytime posies: What's the news from say Bohemia? Well, in that area of Communist Czechoslovakia there is a town named Chrudim, and in that town there is a factory, and in that factory there is (or maybe was) a worker named J. Votava, who had a complaint.

Worker Votava, according to the Prague newspaper Rude Pravo, wanted to complain about working conditions. The factory management replied that "Votava should produce a health certificate by a psychiatrist before the complaint could be investigated."

Nearly everybody, nowadays, is sick, sick, sick. One of the most delightfully learned and humble men I've ever interviewed is Will Durant, who for years has been engaged on writing the story of civilization at the rate of one volume every five years.

His obvious impatience with impostors intruding in the broad sweep of history shows in the way he kisses off one figure in his latest volume, "The Reformation." Thus: "One astrologer of this period is still popular. Nostradamus was, in French, Michel de Notre Dame. He professed to be a physician and an astronomer, and was accepted as semi-official astrologer by Catherine de Medici; she built an observatory for him in Les Halles. In 1564 he predicted a life of 90 years for Charles IX, who died 10 years later at the age of 24. "At his own death (1568) he left a book of prophecies so wisely ambiguous that some line or another could be applied to almost any event in later history."

In our modern civilization, where the smallest olive you can buy from the shelf is labeled "giant" on the can, and where in New York at least an apartment consisting of a living room with some niches around it for cooking and bathing is labeled "2 1/2 rooms." It is not surprising to find advertised a row of 10 books with nothing in them.

They are merely cut out of poster board to look like books. You put them on a shelf and let your guests be bowled over by the crazy titles on the covers. Such as: "Brain Surgery Self Taught," "Tom Swift and His Electrical Grandmother," and "So You Want To Build a Swamp." What we need now is an imitation TV set, for decoration.

Governors Scolded For Lack Of Action

MIAMI BEACH (UP)—Gov. Harold W. Handley of Indiana scolded his fellow governors today for reverting to "talk rather than action" in trying to reclaim state powers from the federal government. His complaint was directed at one resolution adopted by the 80th annual governors' conference at its wrap-up session Wednesday. The resolution dealt with the project set up a year ago at President Eisenhower's request. A committee of governors worked with the administration to develop a program for the federal government to turn over some of its functions to the states. The first recommendation called for increased state responsibility for such programs as disability relief, career clearance, vocational education and pollution control.

Handley Disappointed The conference approved of the project but suggested that proposals for vocational education and pollution control be softened. Handley said he was much disappointed and that the conference should have gone along the way with its committee. "After one year's consideration and study of this joint com-

6-Year-Old Darts Into Path Of Car; Injuries Minor

A six year old boy narrowly escaped being crushed to death yesterday afternoon when he darted from between two parked automobiles and into the path of an oncoming car. The accident occurred on East First Street about 20 feet west of Magnolia Ave. shortly after 8 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Denis Lamb, 6-year-old grandson of Mrs. Irene Stafford, 408 French Ave., had walked from Southside school and during a heavy rain attempted to cross First St. when struck by the automobile traveling east. Donald N. Drach, 35, of 88 Community Drive in DeBary, told a Sanford Herald reporter yesterday "I'm thankful that I was driving slow."

Bracken paid tribute to the year's graduating seniors as he praised them for being "high spirited and active—accomplishing a lot."

Unidentified Fly Striking Cattle In This Area

A strange fly which strikes at cattle has been found in this area. Earl Higginbotham, owner of the "Billy H" ranch near Lake Monroe, caught about 25 of the green and yellow flies to determine what they are and how they can be attacked. Higginbotham said this morning that these flies are "more detrimental and seem to affect cattle more than the large horsefly." Strange thing about these flies, said Higginbotham, is that they strike just before dark and will attack the cattle all over their bodies. "They are blood suckers," he said, "and are so thick they can't be beat off."

Kiwians Go Around The World With Organ Music

Members of the Sanford Kiwanis Club were entertained yesterday, at their noon luncheon meeting, with a program called "Around The World With Music." Glenn Nelson, Hammond Chord organist, played musical selections from countries around the world in a program narrated by Paul Heinoh. Demonstrating the versatility of the chord organ, Nelson adapted songs of various countries to instruments most well known from that area. There were musical imitations of trumpets, violins, banjos, huge theatre organs, and even the bagpipe of Scotland. As musical numbers denoting various areas of the world were played, Kiwanians responded enthusiastically, but none so great as when Nelson played "Way Down South In Dixie." The organist received a standing ovation. The musician and narrator were representatives of Cooper and Gregory Music Co. Bill Grankow was program chairman for the meeting.

Living Costs Hit New High In April

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Labor Department reported today that record-high food prices pushed living costs to a new all-time peak in April. The department said substantial price increases for fruits, vegetables, meats, poultry and fish sent the index up two-tenths of a per cent last month. The April index rose to 123.5 of average 1947-48 prices. This was 2.3 per cent higher than a year ago. There was some good news for housewives, however. Labor Clague, commissioner of labor statistics, said the big increases are over and over—all living costs were "peaking out." Some Prices Decline The department said some foods—bananas, green beans, tomatoes and onions—declined sharply in May. Clague said prices may creep up farther during the summer but that August is the most logical month for a drop.

The government's cost-of-living index has gone up in 18 of the past 20 months. It was unchanged in the other two months. It last showed a decline in August 1956. About 500,000 workers will get wage increases as a result of pay-scalation clauses in labor contracts. About 250,000 workers in farm implements, auto and auto parts firms will receive two cents an hour. Another 100,000 will get boosts of three cents an hour. Clague said some prices declined in April. New car prices fell seven-tenths of a per cent. Gasoline prices dropped more than 1 per cent to the lowest level in 18 months.

Went, Electricity Up Food prices were 5.9 per cent above the level a year ago. Rents, gas and electricity and house furnishings pushed up housing costs. Higher interest rates on GI mortgages made some ownership more expensive despite a decline in fuel prices. Higher doctor fees, hospital rates and prescription prices sent medical care up .3 per cent. The bureau reported that buying power of the average factory worker's earnings declined 4 per cent over the year. The drop was attributed to a shorter work week and higher prices. The average take-home pay earnings after federal taxes—for a factory worker with three dependents—was $13.67 in March. This was about a half dollar lower than the preceding month. Some reduction is usual at this time of the year.

Airman Commended For Saving Pilot, Jet

On May 1, 1958, Robert E. Stone, Airman, U. S. Navy, went on his first flight in a two-seated jet aircraft. The pilot took off from the U. S. Naval Air Station at Sanford and climbed to 25,000 feet. At this point the pilot lost consciousness from lack of oxygen and allowed the jet to enter a steep dive. Even though Stone had never before flown any aircraft, he successfully recovered from this dive and controlled the aircraft for 15 minutes before the pilot regained consciousness. The pilot safely landed the jet a few minutes later. Airman Stone, whose home is Columbia, Pa., has been a member of Fleet Aircraft Service Squadron Fifty One for the past two years. "His shipmates are proud of Stone's timely action and unselfish decision to stay with the aircraft in order to save the pilot's life," it was reported today. The airman was awarded a commendation for devotion to duty in preventing the certain death of a Naval Aviator and the destruction of a Naval aircraft, by Commander H. A. Pahl, Commanding Officer of Fleet Aircraft Squadron 51.

HELP WANTED According to a recent survey, U. S. mental hospitals need twice as many doctors; three times as many social workers; four times as many psychologists and five times as many nurses.

Unfaithful Wife Hits Husband's Car; Mate Killed

HIDDEGTON, N. J. (UP)—A teenage wife was speeding home to dress for a date with an older man when her car smashed into one driven by her husband, killing him and injuring her, police said Wednesday. Mrs. Vera Wright, 19, told state police from a hospital bed she and her husband Lester, 19, had quarreled over who was to drive the family car home minutes before the fatal "one-in-a-million" collision. She said the argument took place at a gas station owned by Walter Robinson, 56, whom she had been dating constantly for the past year with her husband's knowledge. Mrs. Wright said her husband drove away and she borrowed Robinson's car to follow him home, where she planned to dress for a 9 p. m. date with Robinson. Police said the two cars, traveling in different routes, collided at an intersection 16 miles away. Wright died instantly. His wife, who was going about 65 miles an hour, was thrown through the windshield and seriously injured.

Labor Law Enables Youths To Work, Go To School

TALLAHASSEE—A total of 209 Seminole County children under 18 obtained work permits in 1957, reports James T. Vocelle, State Industrial Commission chairman. Statewide, 33,051 youth work permits were issued, a gain of 3,215 over 1956. Of the total, 78% were issued to youth in school and 22% to those not attending school. In Seminole County permits were issued to 794 boys and 75 girls. The work permits are issued in each county by the superintendent of public instruction. All children under 18 who work must have work permits except those in domestic service, farm work, and street trades. Vocelle stressed the importance of schooling. "Every year more employers are demanding a high school education as one of the qualifications for a job," Vocelle said. "For that reason we try in every way to encourage young people to complete high school." He said the Child Labor Law is designed so that youths who do work while in school can do so without detracting from their studies or endangering their health. Vocelle said, "This law was not intended to deprive youth of job opportunities for valuable work experience or income need. In fact, the Industrial Commission urges employers to consider young peo-

Plane Crashes Into Sea During Show For Governors

MIAMI (UP)—A flaming jet plane crashed into the sea Wednesday as the nation's governors looked on from the giant aircraft carrier Forrestal during a demonstration on their behalf. But the pilot parachuted into the ocean and was returned uninjured to the ship by a rescue helicopter. The observers saw a long plume of flame begin pouring from the F117 Tiger's tail immediately after it was catapulted from the carrier's flight deck. The pilot, Lt. (jg) Lane Hubbard, 35, of Agary, W. Va., tried unsuccessfully to extinguish the fire and pulled his ejection handle. He parachuted into the ocean from about 2,500 feet and the Navy fighter plunged into the water astern of the ship. Only seven of the nation's governors, who wound up the 80th annual governors' conference at Miami Beach Wednesday, came to the carrier to watch the demonstration. The straining jet continued banking east and striding
