Heart attack claims Marcos

Deposed Philippines president Ferdinand Marcos died early Thursday of cardiac arrest at a Honolulu hospital at the age of 73.

Marcos' wife, Imelda, faces charges of looting the island nation of billions of dollars prior to fleeing the country and seeking asylum in the United States.

The deposed former leader faced the same legal problems as his wife but was never healthy enough to appear in court to answer the charges.

Man shot in back, hospitalized

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Gary Argo, 39, of Altamonte Springs, is in critical condition after being shot in the back by a gunman at about 1:00 p.m. today during an apparent robbery attempt in north Altamonte Springs.

Seminole County sheriff's investigators said they believed the two men who fired shotgun and revolver blasts at Argo's car on Magnolia at Brookwood Avenues were targeting suspected drug buyers and sellers for robbery. Investigators said today they have no evidence to link Argo or the passenger in his car, Jacques W. Draham, 34, of Altamonte Springs, to narcotics.

Odom drops assault charge

LONGWOOD — Former City Commissioner Carol Odom's husband has dropped an aggravated assault charge against his wife, Assistant State Attorney Bob Fisher said Wednesday.

The charge was dropped on Sept. 6, according to Fisher.

Odom was arrested last month at her Land Avenue residence when police responded to a domestic disturbance and found Odom holding a kitchen knife. Her husband and two daughters were standing a few feet away from her.

According to police reports, she admitted having threatened to kill her husband, James E., because he wouldn't talk to her.

Fisher said in a letter dated Aug. 30, James Odom wrote: "We are together at our home at this time and do not wish to press any charges."

Airport, EPA seek truce

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Sanford Airport Authority took steps today to settle a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency bill for $250,000 for the clean-up of radioactive materials at Sanford Regional Airport in 1987.

The authority authorized attorney Bill Hutchison to negotiate a settlement of up to $125,000. If the EPA rejects the offer, he said, the authority will have to make a higher offer at its next meeting Oct. 10.

Attorneys for the EPA and the airport authority both said yesterday they are hopeful for a fair and quick settlement, although EPA attorney

Frank Ney said yesterday he has recommended to the Justice Department that the airport authority, the city of Sanford and the former tenant of the building be named as defendants in a legal suit.

Hutchison warned authority members, "Even the $250,000 doesn't justify three or four years of litigation. (The federal government) has unlimited resources; you don't."

EPA billed the airport authority $250,000 in May for removal of the radioactive carbon 14 and at least 1,000 other chemicals from Building 137 in the airport industrial park, Ney said. Interest will accumulate on the bill from the date issued, he said.

Local SAT scores continue to climb

By VICKI DeGOMMEN

SANFORD — The school board learned last night that Seminole County Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores increased an average of seven points over last year's scores. That increase marks the second year in a row scores have gone up.

Additionally, the average Seminole County scores were consistently higher than averages from other Florida counties.

"I think that says we've done a better job of promoting college as an option to our students," David Winger, the district's coordinator of testing, said. "We have also done a better job of teaching them in test-taking skills."

In the 1987-1988 school year the average SAT score in Seminole County was 913. Last year the number increased to 920.

Statewide, the average score decreased three points during that same period from 890 to 887. Nationally, the average decreased a point from 904 to 903.

Seminole County students showed a greater increase in the mathematical portion (five points) of the test than the verbal (two points).

Historically, county students have performed much higher in math than on the verbal portion. "We've had our ups and downs over the years," Winger said, "but we've had an increase over the last two years."

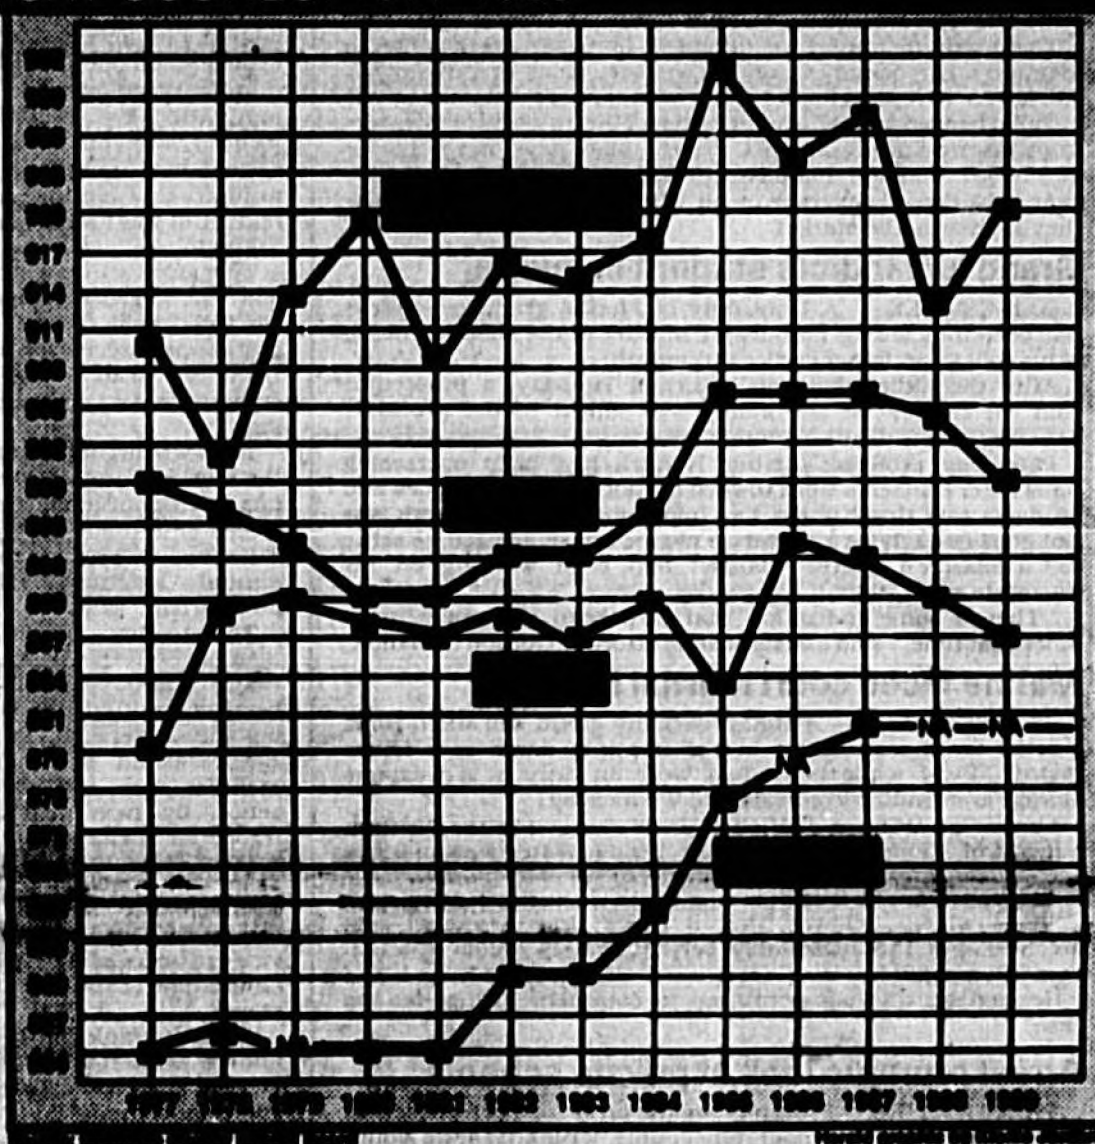

Winger said he was "encouraged, but cautious" over the latest results. While Seminole County results were up, the number of students taking the test had also increased by five percent the last two years and more than 10 percent in the last decade.

In the three year period from 1977 through 1979, the average SAT score was 907 with less than 48 percent of the graduating class participating. This past year, 58 percent of the senior class took the SAT and scored an average of 920.

County gets $522,057 in settlement

By VICKI DeGOMMEN

SANFORD — During yesterday's school board meeting, the Seminole County school district received a check for $522,057.06 from the state attorney general's office. That money is the bulk of the $505,000 Seminole County is to receive from the seven milk distributors who were named in a lawsuit brought last year by the attorney general's office.

An additional check for the remainder of the amount will be presented to the school district next spring.

The lawsuit, which was settled out of court, alleged seven milk distributors participated in a bid-rigging scheme of school milk prices.

Actual damages sustained by the Seminole County school lunch program as a result of the alleged price fixing were assessed at $168,676. The remainder of the money represents triple the damages which is being paid voluntarily by the distributors.

The entire settlement check will be returned to the school food service program to help offset the expected increases in student milk and lunch program prices in the future. The U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Florida Department of Education had required that only the $168,676 which represented the actual

Bus routing procedures to change

By VICKI DeGOMMEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — In response to protests and complaints by county school bus drivers, Richard Wells, director of facilities and transportation, has initiated a restructuring of the routing procedures implemented by the transportation department this year.

Earlier this month drivers set up pickets outside both the school district headquarters on Mellonville Avenue in Sanford and the transportation department's main facility in Longwood. They protested what they claimed was a lack of competent management in the transportation department.

Drivers complained of poorly organized routes and the lack of adequate assistance on buses which transported handicapped children and other students with special needs.

Wells said he has met with groups of bus drivers to discuss their complaints.

Wells also said Benny Arnold, director of the district transportation department, has met with Don Ricci, director of exceptional student education. According to Wells, the two have been able to iron out some of the problems which existed concerning the transportation of physically and mentally handicapped students. The two will continue to meet on a monthly basis in order to keep

Homeowners may drop Sanlando appeal

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Homeowners who filed an appeal against the expansion of the Sanlando Utilities wastewater treatment plant say they will drop their complaint after Sanlando Utilities officials have agreed to increase monitoring of the treated sewage dumped into a creek leading to the Wekiva River.

"Everything has been very agreeable," said Jerry Ewing, chairman of the Sweetwater Creek Task Force. "I think we'll see an improvement."

Ewing said the task force has until Oct. 2 to seek an extension for the discussions, but said he didn't think the additional time would be needed. He said he is waiting for signed commitments from Sanlando, expected in a few days. If the petition is withdrawn, the permit could be issued within a month, state officials have said.

In March, Sanlando Utilities, which operates a 2.5 million gallon-per-day (GPD) sewage treatment plant in Wekiva Hunt Club, applied to the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation (DER) to increase the plant's discharge by 400,000 GPD. On May 12, two months later, DER issued a notice it intended to issue the permit.

The Wekiva Hunt Club Community Association Inc. and the Sweetwater Oaks Homeowners Association Inc., both served by the treatment plant, filed a petition 10 days later seeking a state hearing before the permit was issued.

Ginger Bowman, past president of the Sweetwater homeowner's group, said Sweetwater Creek that receives the treatment plant's discharge had become polluted by the high levels of nutrients from the plant.

Bowman said the homeowner's association was forced to pay several thousand dollars to clear unsightly aquatic growth from Cove Lake, a manmade widening of Sweetwater Creek.

After the petition was filed, homeowners gathered into the task force and met with officials from Sanlando and DER to discuss their concerns.

Ewing said as a result of the meetings, Sanlando will take over treatment of Cove Lake and will recreate a wetland area

Homeowners still angry over 'double tax'

By SANDRA BOUGHANNE
Herald staff writer

LONWOOD — Residents of Hidden Oaks Estates subdivision are still seeking a refund they demanded last month from the city.

At a recent meeting, residents once again appeared to ask for the $19,800 they say they were unfairly taxed to pay for a recreation site which they never received.

The problem started in 1986 when the developer of the subdivision, Centex Homes of Florida Inc., Orlando, and Longwood struck a deal to pay for an independent drainage system to maintain the level of West Lake.

The developer had proposed a neighborhood park which was inadequate in size. As a result, the city imposed a $200 recreational "impact fee" per lot on Centex. The fee was included in the cost of a home at Hidden Oaks. For 99 lots, the amount collected by the city was $19,800, and the developer was given $15,000 credit toward the drainage system leaving a balance of $4,800 in city coffers.

Three months later the city charged Centex an additional $250 per lot when the standard recreational impact fees went into effect.

The residents call this "double taxation" and they say they want to be refunded the $19,800, or at least the remaining $4,800, to drop up an approximate 175-acre site with a dock which Centex contributed for the recreational area.

However, city officials disagree over to whom the money really belongs. They say that money should go toward public recreational development and that the $200 impact fee is "standard" in most municipalities when a developer does not have adequate recreational facilities.

Proposed I-4 Interchange draws fire

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioner Jennifer Kelley is objecting to the state's federally-funded plans to build an interchange at Interstate 4 and County Road 46-A.

"It's too close to the expressway," Kelley said from Marco Island Wednesday. "If they want to build it there, maybe the expressway interchange should be moved to Rinehart Road or Grantline Road or something."

Kelley first raised the objections Sept. 19 during a county commission review of a road priority letter for officials at the Florida Department of Transportation (DOT). Commissioners said the letter was sent annually to DOT to encourage them to pay for road projects they considered most important. The top ranked project was the interchange in the adopted letter.

Commission chairman Sandra Glenn said the project was yanked at the top because it was a project guaranteed for completion because Congress had funded the project, not the state. She said the county routinely placed it at the top of its annual priority list to serve as a reminder to DOT officials the county hadn't forgotten about the project.

Congress appropriated up to $11.8 million for the interchange in the 1987 Federal Aid Highway Act. They paid for the project to see if a state plan to shorten the design and construction process can one day allow roads to be built quicker. The appropriation required a 20 percent match from the state.

Louis Reia, DOT project manager for the interchange, said Heathrow developer Geno Paulucci has tentatively agreed to donate enough of his land to allow the state to meet the 20 percent requirement without spending any money on the project.

Reia was not certain if additional land would be needed from Paulucci in addition to the amount required to meet the state's match. Reia said if more land was needed, those costs would be paid from the federal appropriation. A total of 48 acres will be needed from the interchange, Reia said.

Reia said Paulucci is in the process of acquiring the land from about a dozen landowners went of I-4 to consolidate and speed the right of way acquisition process. If there are no errors, Reia said the interchange could be built by the end of 1992.

Continued from Page 1A (TICO). "Sanford is my home...I'm very satisfied here. But I've got to play the cards that are dealt me and that's all I can do at this point," LaZenby said. Earlier this month Titusville-Cocoa Beach Airport Authority (TICO) offered LaZenby a $72,200 salary package to manage Space Center Executive, Merritt Island and Arthur Dunn Airport Airports. LaZenby has a $5,000 a month contract as interim manager for TICO, where he has worked once a week since July.

The TICO offer is an increase over LaZenby's current salary of $62,000 a year at Sanford Regional Airport. Authority member Joe Dennison said after LaZenby's announcement the authority should do what it can to keep the airport director.

EPA

Continued from Page 1A But, authority attorney Bill Hutchison said yesterday, "The bill came as quite a shock to us." He said he was led to believe the cleanup - which the authority chose as an alternative to cleanup by a private company estimated at $28,000 - was a grant, not a service the authority would be billed for. "If you take funds from one federal agency (Federal Aviation Administration contributions to the airport's operating budget) and give it to another federal agency, then what are you accomplishing?" Hutchison said. Hutchison said today the authority "didn't do as much documentation as we should have." A 1986 letter from EPA citing empowering legislation allowing the agency to collect for services "acred us a little," he said, "but we weren't suspicious." Ney said the EPA has never used Superfund money as grants for hazardous and radioactive waste cleanup. "It was just a misunderstanding on their part," he said. "When the bill first came, I had visions of $300 toilet seats and $600 hammers," Hutchison said. But, he said, he just recently learned about the EPA's removal of 1,000 additional hazardous materials, and believes that accounts for a fair amount of the bill. Mack LaZenby, airport aviation director, said the bill includes receipts from EPA travel, motel

"Mack has some very unique qualifications... We helped pay for some of those qualifications. I don't want to lose him," Dennison said. LaZenby is a registered professional engineer, a pilot and an honor graduate of Embry-Riddle University's airport management masters program. LaZenby refused authority member Shirley Schille's request to wait 60 days before making a decision on the offer. "I have agonized over it long enough and I am letting you know I am leaning in that direction," he said. LaZenby left the conference room while the authority discussed increasing his salary. During discussion, assistant airport manager Steve Cooke said he found in a survey he conducted six months ago that airport managers of comparably-sized airports make between $60,000 and $80,000.

A.K. Shoemaker, authority chairperson, spoke with LaZenby privately about negotiating a salary increase, then reported back to the authority that LaZenby agreed to negotiate. "Mack's very pleased to hear what we are doing," Shoemaker said. Last year LaZenby replaced J.S. Red Cleveland, who had been director since the federal government turned the airport over to the city in 1969. LaZenby has been with the authority for 10 years. TICO member Bobbie Gandolfin said yesterday, "Our board is extremely willing to work with Mr. LaZenby and to work with Sanford to...allow them the same help Sanford has given us." Jim Mizell, TICO chairperson, said yesterday he had been negotiating a contract with LaZenby, but "it isn't 100 percent completed yet."

Buses

Continued from Page 1A abcast of the changes which might be needed, Wells said. Robert Starke, a retired route manager, has been hired as a consultant by the transportation department to oversee the bus routes which carry exceptional education students. The bus drivers had also complained that some non-English speaking students have been left off the bus routes. The transportation department has solved the problem by reworking routes and increasing the number of buses in use. The increased number of buses in use has made it necessary for the department to bring surplus buses, which are more than 10 years old, back to use as backups for the main fleet. Wells said the older buses are being inspected by district mechanics and the Florida Highway Patrol to ensure their safety. The investigation of the transportation will continue.

Scores

Continued from Page 5A along Sweetwater Creek. Sanlando will also increase the time and locations where water quality testing in Sweetwater Creek will occur. Vivian Garfein, DER attorney, said the agency can require Sanlando to immediately correct any problems if tests show the plant is discharging more pollution than the permit allows. Garfein said the permit will be issued for two years, instead of the usual five years, to allow closer DER supervision of the plant. Garfein and Ewing said they were pleased with the cooperation in all sides. Ewing said through the permit requirements, water quality in Sweetwater Creek will now be tested below, at and above the treatment plant discharge point into the creek.

Misfired shell kills three

Continued from Page 1A United Press International FORT SILL, Okla. - Military officials said today it may be several days before they can determine why an artillery shell went off course and exploded at an Army rifle training range, killing three soldiers and injuring 23 others. Fort Sill officials said the accident occurred about 5 p.m. CDT Wednesday at a rifle training range on the west side of the southwestern Oklahoma Army base near Lawton. Base spokesman Daran Neal said 22 of the injured remained hospitalized Thursday, including two in critical condition and four listed as serious. Officials initially reported at least 26 injured, but later said the correct count was 23. Names of the dead and injured were being withheld until relatives could be notified. Neal said two investigation teams, including one being brought in from Fort Rucker, Ala., will search for details about the accident and its cause. "We may not know anything more today," Neal said. The injured were taken by ambulance and helicopter to Reynolds Army Community Hospital. Army Spec. 4 Rudolph Elliott, who works in the hospital emergency room, said survivors of the blast told him they were on infantry training maneuvers when the shell exploded.

"(The victims) said they were standing in formation and someone yelled, 'Incoming!' and bodies were everywhere," Elliott said. "All (the survivor) remembers is a big blast, and everybody was laid out everywhere." Army officials said the accident occurred while soldiers in another unit were firing practice rounds from a howitzer, a short cannon. At least one round apparently went off course and landed 2,000 to 3,000 feet outside its designated impact area.

At the recommendation of food service director Eldon Chambers the board approved a measure that calls for the entire amount to be placed in a special trust fund and be invested "at the most favorable rate available" and that the interest earned be applied annually to the food service departments operating budget. It is estimated that, at current investment rates, the money will yield approximately $50,000 annually in interest. "That would certainly help us keep milk and lunch prices down," Neiswender said.

country poll and ranked third in the county.

Miki is happy to have strong competition from runners in this area as she believes they will help make her a stronger runner.

"I'm glad there is good competition here," Palumbo said. "If I were running out in front, I don't think I'd improve as much as I can with people in front and around me."

Hammontree has found both Palumbo to be extremely competitive and has taken joy in having both of them around. The only problem they have created is trying to harness that desire to be the best.

"I'm trying to keep their heads up with their desire," Hammontree said. "I don't want them to burn out. They both are so competitive and have so much desire. It's hard to tame them and keep them from wearing themselves down."

Sheryl, a senior, convinced her younger sister to come out and join the team after Hammontree had asked about Miki. Sheryl was among the state's best last season before a hip injury put her out for most of the season.

"I'm ecstatic about having Miki on the team and the way she's running," Sheryl said. "I'm very proud of her success. She's a very positive front runner."

Hammontree feels it is Miki's intelligence that separates her from the other runners he's had in the past.

"She's very unique," Hammontree said. "She's smart, she trains smart and runs smart. She does all she can to avoid injuries and knows what she wants. She has a goal, and that's to be the best she can possibly be."

"She's real fun to work with," he added. "She's emotional but won't dwell on past performances. She goes out each meet to do the best that she can."

freestyles while Cotter was first in both the 50 and 100 freestyle races.

Lake Howell's only other individual win in the girls' meet came from Jodi Maternowski, who took first in the 100 butterfly.

"We usually do have depth in the girls," said Lake Howell coach Dwayne Picou. "Our times weren't that surprising. They're about what I expected."

Mary Jo Connell was the only double-winner for Lake Mary, swimming to first place finishes in both the 200 individual medley and the 100 backstroke. Connell also swam on Lake Mary's victorious 200 medley relay team with Kris Kozlowski, Campion and Helen Paget-Wilkes. Lake Mary's Vanessa Rogers also won the diving competition.

As close as the girls' competition was, the boys' competition was as lopsided, the Rams taking a convincing 112-56 win over the Silver Hawks.

The highlight of the meet — for the Rams, at any rate — was watching seniors Marc Russell and Chris Snively, as well as junior Brad Bridgewater, each qualify for the district meet in two more individual events. All three have now qualified for the district meet in six of the eight individual events.

"They have two more to go," said Brown. "It's just a game we're playing to keep them on their toes so they don't get bored before the conference meet."

Jeff Strange also grabbed an individual win for the Rams, taking first in the 200 freestyle. Lake Mary won both relays, Bridgewater, Russell, Cambridge and Snively taking first in the 200 medley relay while Lee Calvert, Brian Dost, Strange and Matt Worling came in first in the 400 freestyle.

Lake Howell's lone individual win in the boys' meet came from John Paulovich, who took first in the diving competition with a score of 198.85 points.

Diet, medicine aid in regulating blood-fats

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 79-year-old husband has a high triglyceride level and, at 82, I have a high cholesterol level. We like cheese and nuts and wonder if this contributes to our problem. Is there a medication we can take to lower our levels?

more information. I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Eating Right for a Healthy Heart." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

(C)1989 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

DEAR READER: Although you and your husband have separate problems, they may be related. Cholesterol and triglycerides are the two major fats in the bloodstream. High cholesterol is associated with arteriosclerotic heart disease; the role of high triglycerides is less clear.

Cholesterol is primarily a component of animal fat and dairy products. Therefore, people on low-cholesterol diets must reduce or eliminate foods rich in the fat: luncheon meats, whole milk, cheese, butter, ice cream, bacon and non-lean cuts of red meat. The small amounts of cholesterol present in other foods—such as shellfish—are not particularly important. Therefore, you should avoid cheese—or, at least, use modest amounts of low-fat cheese.

Your husband's problem is less simple. High triglycerides are often present in diabetics, in people who consume alcohol and in obese patients. High levels may also reflect too much fat in the diet. Some medicines, such as diuretics and cortisone, cause an increase in triglycerides. Therefore, a doctor should determine if there is a secondary cause of your husband's triglyceride problem. In any case, he should be placed on a low-fat diet.

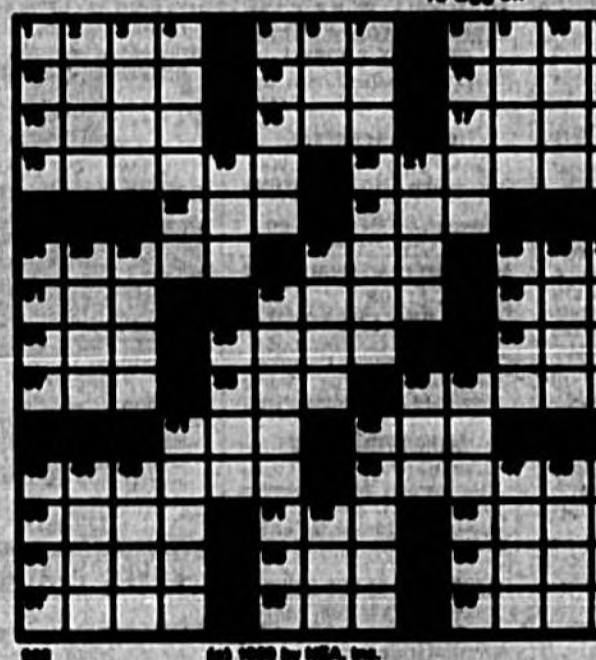

Several medicines lower blood-fats: some affect only cholesterol, some affect triglycerides, and others reduce both substances. Whether you and your husband should be taking such medicines is a decision best made by your doctor. Both of you could benefit from cutting animal fat and other saturated fats from your diet where possible. To give you

By James Jacoby
In today's deal, correct counting by declarer enabled him to play his side-out to maximum advantage. West led the king of spades and then switched to a trump. Declarer won dummy's king of hearts and led a club back to the jack. West took the queen and played a second heart. Another club was played from dummy. West won the ace and played a club to East's 10, ruffed by declarer. South cashed the queen of hearts, discarding a spade from dummy, and then played a low diamond to dummy's jack. When that won the trick, he ruffed another club as East discarded a spade. What should declarer know about West's hand? First, that West had A-K of spades, king of diamonds and A-Q of clubs. Second, it is almost certain that West started with five spades. With only four spades and four clubs, and 16 or 17 high-card points, he would surely have opened one no-trump. If West began with five spades, four clubs and only two hearts, how many diamonds was he dealt? Right, two. And that means the king of diamonds will be played next, regardless of which diamond South leads. So South played a low diamond to the king and ace, and the Q-10 of diamonds took the rest of the tricks. Had declarer carelessly led either his queen or his 10 of diamonds, East would have eventually taken the setting trick with his diamond nine.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

Two important, but unrelated interests are likely to dominate a lot of your attention in the year ahead. In order to gain full advantage from both, it's best to treat them separately.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today you might be a trifle too insistent upon having others do your bidding. Don't press too hard to have your way. Make your presentation, but graciously back off if you're outvoted. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Avoid reading derogatory meanings into what others say to you today. If you do, you might end up with wounded feelings over something where no malice was intended.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's best to be a bit cynical today about proposals brought to you by people you don't know too well, especially if your instincts tell you they might be talking about pie in the sky.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If possible, try to avoid competitive situations today. However, if you should get involved in something challenging, don't make winning so important that you might lower your standards.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Some strong views you hold could be offensive to your audience today. If you notice that what you say antagonizes your listeners, back off and change the subject.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try not to make material requests of others today, even from people who owe you past favors. Bite the bullet and do the best you can with the resources available.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful today you don't get involved in the middle of a dispute between business associates. If you're forced to take a side, the other party will consider you a villain.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Owing to your expansive mood, you might be inclined to make an impulsive promise to someone today that you'll not be able to fulfill. Don't take the order if you can't deliver the goods.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Have fun and enjoy yourself today, but be mindful of overextending yourself budgetwise or overindulging yourself physically. You could go awry in both departments.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Do not be in too big a hurry today to wrap up an important arrangement, because, in your haste, you might not get as good a deal as you could get if you are patient.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 21) When socializing with friends today, don't try to monopolize the conversation with subjects in which you alone are interested. Give everyone a chance to participate.

VIRGO (Aug. 22-Sept. 21) Don't try to impress your companions today by being too lavish with your resources. If you're extravagant now, you might experience needs later.
