The lights of Christmas shine in children's eyes As they uncover each well-kept surprise. And we remember, as we share their joy, That Jesus too was once a little boy.

He must have laughed and shouted at His play Just as the youngest ones will do today. And surely Mary watched with pride and love . . . Thinking of shepherds, and a star above.

This day is blessed by children's bappy voices. The bells ring out; the Christian world rejaices. With all the gladness grateful bearts can bring, We colebrate the birthday of a King.

Penny was too stern, too poised, too serious for childhood. "This is Penny," the nurse explained to the man. "She is little lady." She was, the nurse said, the perfect patient who had become accustomed to the routine of hospitals. I seemed logical for her to be there at Christmas time. The man thought it must be terrible for a child who had been in hospitals so much that she did not find them strange. The other children cried, the surse said, but Penny was brave and dignified and not even afraid of needles.
