One dead, three injured in crash

LONGWOOD — A head-on collision on US Highway 17-92 in Longwood on Sunday morning left one driver dead and three others injured.

According to Longwood Police, the accident occurred at about 2:33 a.m. when Robert Montgomery of Auburndale drove northbound in the southbound lanes of 17-92 and struck a southbound Pontiac Bonneville driven by Dillon Given of Orlando.

Montgomery, 34, was pronounced dead at the scene, police said.

Given, 19, was also injured in the accident. He was taken to Orlando Regional Medical Center where he was listed in fair condition this morning.

A passenger in Given's car, identified as Michael Dix, 27, was also taken to ORMC where he is listed in good condition. Donna Bessette, 19, was another passenger in Given's car. She was treated and released at South Seminole Hospital, police said.

Police said Bessette was the only one wearing her seatbelt at the time of the accident.

It has not been determined if alcohol played a part in the accident.

Police said that the southbound lane of 17-92 between Wildmere and Dog Track Road was closed for approximately three hours on Sunday morning as a result of the accident.

Truck, driver take a dip in lake

SANFORD — Steven Randall Lovett took an unexpected dip in Lake Monroe on Sunday morning and lost his truck in the process.

According to Sanford Police Lovett, who lives in DeLand had been visiting some friends in Sanford and was returning home at about 12:30 a.m. Sunday when he tried to stop at the corner of Palmetto Avenue and Seminole Boulevard. His brakes failed and he skidded through the intersection, over the sidewalk and several shrubs and into Lake Monroe, police said.

Police said Lovett, 40, was able to escape the vehicle through an open window.

They said he was not injured, though he was a little shaken by the incident.

He was given a citation for reckless driving.

The vehicle, a 1979, Chevrolet pickup truck, was recovered from the lake, but was probably not drivable.

Voter registration offered

LONGWOOD — A voter registration opportunity will be available this evening at Lyman High School, 865 County Road 427, from 6:30 p.m. until 8:30 p.m.

One ticket hits jackpot

TALLAHASSEE — One Florida Lotto ticket, sold last week in Panama City Beach, gives whoever owns it sole claim to a jackpot estimated at $7 million.

The game ended late Saturday with the drawing of the six numbers — 12-22-31-43-44-49 — printed only on the Panhandle ticket.

There are 162 tickets with five of the numbers, and they are worth $1,859 each. There are 9,876 four-of-six tickets, worth $73 each, and 190,610 three-of-six tickets worth $5 each.

The grand prize for this week's Lotto game is estimated at $7 million.

Jackpot estimates are based on projected ticket sales, long-term interest rates, funds from any rollovers and a 20-year payout to one winner.

Duany plan debate

'Old Sanford' regulations aired tonight

Andres Duany discussed his concept for revitalization of Sanford's residential historic district during a visit in early 1992.

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The proposed master plan and urban regulations for "Old Sanford" will be brought before the Sanford City Commission tonight. No action is expected beyond the discussion stage.

The plans were prepared by Andres Duany during 1991, to provide architectural guidelines and standards for the development of the historic residential district of the city. They were submitted in early 1992.

Since that time, the plans have been studied and fine-tuned by several groups. The Historic Preservation Board approved the plans on April 2 of last year. The Sanford Historic Trust has now finished its study and has requested to be placed on the agenda for today's workshop meeting of the commission.

To be presented is a draft of revisions to the city's Land Development Regulations, which incorporate changes suggested by Duany.

Although touted as basically a revitalization concept for the residential area, Duany also approached needs in the downtown area and along the lakefront of Lake Monroe.

Contained in Duany's plans are recommendations for building placement, easements, parking, building use and heights.

The report is divided into separate proposals for a number of areas including: Downtown

Shopfront; Waterfront Arcade; Neighborhood Shopfront; various types of houses; apartments; and industrial lofts.

For architectural regulations, he has suggested specific codes for building walls, building elements, roofs, windows and door.

In its present form, the master plan and urban regulations now suggests certain commissions and boards be responsible for insuring that the codes are followed.

A number of procedural changes and listing of responsibilities are being proposed.

Under the provisions, a person wishing to make architectural changes or other modifications to a building, including changing the color, would have to obtain a Certificate of Appropriateness from the Historic Preservation Board.

Changes in building types or land uses would have to go before a public hearing by the city's Planning and Zoning Commission.

Planning and Zoning would also be required to review site plans for nonresidential and multiple family dwellings as well as signs for such uses, but for the Old Sanford Residential area, the Historic Preservation Board would also have to review the plans and make recommendations to P&Z prior to its discussions on any part of the plan.

Several recommendations originally made by Duany have already been undertaken. The

Hearing set; county taxes drop, other fees increase

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County will hold the first of two public hearings this month on their proposed tax-and-spend plan for the year beginning Oct. 1.

Seminole County commissioners tentatively set the 1993-1994 countywide tax rate at $5.39 per $1,000 of taxable property, rejecting County Manager Ron Rabun's proposed $5.42, the same rate charged last year. Unincorporated county taxes will decrease from Rabun's proposed $2.86 rate to $2.82.

When combined with increases to garbage fees and gas taxes, many property owners will pay about $12 more in county taxes during the next year.

The hearing will be held Tuesday in the County Services Building, beginning at 7 p.m. The final hearing and budget adoption will be held Sept. 28.

The $5.39 and $2.82 rates represent the "roll back" amounts — the figures which generate the same amount of total tax revenue to the county as last year, along with added taxes from new construction. Each dollar of property tax generates nearly $9.8 million for the county.

The current spending plan stands at $276.3 million, about $2 million higher than the $274.2 million

SANFORD — One of the new items in the proposed $276.3 million county budget is a $25,000 feasibility study for a convention center in Seminole County.

The study, financed with tourist taxes, will establish whether the county could attract smaller conventions of 1,500 people or less, said county tourism director Jack Wert. The county can now accommodate about 500 conventioners at the

FPC to close plant in Enterprise

Power facility employs 50; will be phased out by early 1994

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

ENTERPRISE — Florida Power Corporation has announced it will close the Turner Power Plant, on DeBary Road in Enterprise, on the north shore of Lake Monroe. The plant has 50 employees.

"It's just more cost efficient to close the Turner plant at this time."

-Bill Turner

District Manager Bill Warren said the plant will be closed out in three phases, with the final closure set for Jan. 24.

"It's just more cost efficient to close the Turner plant at this time," Warren said. "It used to be the real work-horse plant of FPC, but with all of the changes in the electrical industry, it has only been used as a peaking unit, to provide additional electricity during certain periods when the demand is high."

Board begins second phase of hearings

TAMPA — The Marine Board of Investigation is set to begin the second phase of a hearing probing the Aug. 10 shipping accident in Tampa Bay that resulted in nearly 400,000 gallons of oil being spilled.

The five-member board reconvenes today its hearing into the collision between two barges and a freighter.

The second phase of the hearing will focus on the testimony of expert witnesses and may include further questioning of the captains involved in the collision. The first phase, which took 11 days, concentrated on crew members' scenarios.

"Round one helped to tell us what happened, round two helps us fill in the 'hows' of it all," said Cmdr. Richard Bennis of the U.S. Coast Guard.

The spill left dozens of birds covered with the gooey oil and also fouled about 10 miles of sandy white Pinellas County beaches, which took until Labor Day weekend to clean.

Bucs coach invites Wilson to a game

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Tampa Bay Buccaneers coach Sam Wyche may not have any wins under his belt so far this season, but he keeps his word.

When Wyche visited Christopher Wilson in a Florida hospital after the 32-year-old stock brokerage clerk was burned in an alleged racial attack, he made a promise.

If the Buc's were ever in the New York area and Wilson wanted to see a pro football game, all he had to do was give the coach a call.

Wilson, of New York, did just that earlier this week, and spent Sunday afternoon pacing the sidelines and visiting the Buc's locker room at Giants Stadium as Wyche's guest during Tampa Bay's game with the New York Giants.

Debbies duel over granola trademarks

NICEVILLE — Little Debbie is being accused of acting more like a big bully by picking a fight with a Niceville couple over the name of their gourmet granola business.

Little Debbie is the trademark for snack cakes made by McKee Foods Corp. of Collegedale, Tenn., which also has plants in Gentry, Ark., and Stuarts Draft, Va.

McKee has asked a federal panel to revoke Debbie and Skip Singleton's trademark for Debbie's Famous Granola. Mrs. Singleton has been making the cereal commercially for three years in a quaint country cottage outside this Florida Panhandle town.

"If I change my name now, I'm out of business," Mrs. Singleton said. "Because we are a small company, that's all we have."

Nine reported missing after sailboat flips

MIAMI — The U.S. Coast Guard saved 37 Haitians who were aboard a sailboat which capsized in rough seas off Haiti's northern coast during a nighttime rescue operation, but nine Haitians were missing.

The 35-foot Jacques Immaculee was foundering in four- to six-foot seas when first spotted at about 10:30 p.m. Saturday about 12 miles northwest of Haiti's Ile de la Tortue, said Chief Petty Officer Joe Dye, a spokesman at Coast Guard district headquarters in Miami.

"The vessel's sails were ripped and partially separated from its mast and the boat's rudder was broken," said Dye. "As the cutter approached, people on board waved their arms signaling for help."

He said the Coast Guard later learned that the boat, en route to Haiti, had been disabled and adrift for more than two days.

The U.S. Navy launched two small rescue boats, one carrying a U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service interpreter, Dye said. The boat crews passed life jackets to the people aboard the sailboat while a Coast Guard boarding officer and the INS agent went aboard to assist.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Investors profit from tank cleanup

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Since lawmakers turned the cleanup of 15,000 sites with underground fuel tanks over to private enterprise, state employees who helped create the program have moved to the private sector to cash in, a newspaper reported.

International investors, contractors, oil companies and state regulators-turned-consultants are reaping big profits from the taxpayer-paid, $100 million-a-year cleanup, the St. Petersburg Times reported Sunday.

And after helping write the law, big oil companies are receiving large reimbursements for cleanups. Amoco got $19.4 million; Chevron, $10.9 million; Exxon, $4.8 million; Mobil, $13.6 million and Texaco, $12.6 million, the newspaper said.

The cleanup has become so lucrative it

In a general sense do I think all the funding entities are scamming? No, I don't think so. I think there's every opportunity for all kinds of scamming to occur.

—Charles Williams

has attracted investors from Canada and Japan and throughout the United States. That got the attention of state Treasurer Tom Gallagher.

A friend told him about a Florida investment opportunity so profitable the state might consider putting its own money in it. To his astonishment, Gallagher learned the bonanza was the state's own program: a taxpayer paid deal allowing 15 percent markups, plus interest.

Gallagher told the governor and Cabinet officers the program "may be structured in a manner that could foster profiteering and self-dealing."

Charles Williams, administrator of the Petroleum Cleanup Reimbursement Program, said he is aware of the potential for schemes to defraud the state.

"In a general sense do I think all the funding entities are scamming? No, I don't think so," Williams said. But he added, "I think there's every opportunity for all kinds of scamming to occur."

The program is financed by a wholesale gas tax that costs motorists about 2 cents a gallon.

The DER is now known as the Department of Environmental Protection.

Surgeon accused of reusing implants

By Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG — Plastic surgeon Daniel Callahan, who ceased practice last fall, has blamed subsequent accusations of dangerous procedures on disgruntled former employees including one he said he fired.

Some of Callahan's patients received breast-enlargement implants removed from other women, including one set from a topless dancer who carried the AIDS virus, four former employees told the St. Petersburg Times for a story Sunday.

"THIS NEVER HAPPENED," Callahan wrote in a statement released by his attorney. He said he knowingly removed implants from only one HIV-infected patient, and "they were sterilized before disposal."

The former employees also said Callahan reused items marked "single use only," such as disposable syringes and suture needles.

Callahan one of the former employees making the accusations had been fired for illegal drug abuse and another was trying to "bribe" the story to a tabloid television show.

"The allegations you detail are filled with falsehood, error and misrepresentation of the truth," he said.

Callahan closed his practice amid accusations he sexually harassed employees.

Way Back When

The Herald's "Way Back When" columnist, Julian Stenstrom, says you have to be a real old "old timer" to recognize this couple. They are Forbes Conger Welsh and Edythe Neal Welsh, parents of two of Sanford history's well-known people. One was Clarence G. Welsh, a Sanford tire shop owner for several decades. The other is Zillah Welsh who taught school at Southside Primary for 50 years. Both touched the lives of a lot of Sanford folks.

Forbes Welsh and his wife Edythe came to Sanford in 1918. He was a native of Terre Haute, Ind. Forbes was a photographer and operated a studio in Room 201 of the old Welsh building on First Street in downtown Sanford next to what is now the old post office building. The couple resided in a home still standing and occupied at the southwest corner of Eleventh Street and Laurel Avenue.

Florida Lotto accused of targeting poor neighborhoods

By Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE — The hottest gambling spot in town has no slot machines, race horses or blackjack tables. Instead, it has bread, milk — and the most active lottery machine in Duval County.

The Avenue B Super Market, a neighborhood grocery in one of the lowest-income areas of the city, has sold nearly $4.4 million in lottery tickets since the lottery began in 1988, according to the results of a Florida Times-Union computer study of lottery data published Sunday.

The market is only one of many such outlets in low-income areas of Jacksonville, and it's what lottery experts and gambling counselors say shows the state lottery takes advantage of the poor.

"People in poverty don't see a legitimate way out of their poverty, so the state comes along and says here is a way out, buy lottery tickets," said Patrick Anderson, a lottery opponent and chairman of the department of sociology and criminology at Florida Southern College in Lakeland.

"The state says you don't have to go to school, work hard or get a job. You just play the lottery and get rich," Anderson said.

But state lottery officials disagree. "We're not targeting any group," said Marcia Mann, secretary of the Florida Lottery. "No one makes anyone play."

Spokesman Ed George said wealthier neighborhoods have stricter zoning requirements that restrict commercial areas, keeping down the number of outlets.

He also said when the Florida Legislature legalized the lottery — now a $2 billion-a-year industry and one of the state's biggest — they told the Florida Lottery to target minority-owned small businesses when authorizing lottery outlets in order to give them a chance to make more money.

Between Jan. 1, 1988 and July 31 of this year, the Florida Lottery authorized a much higher concentration of sales outlets in low-income areas of the city than in wealthier neighborhoods, the computer study shows.

In neighborhoods where the average household income is less than $30,000 a year, the study found there were an average of 175 households per lottery outlet. That concentration is more than twice as high as in areas where households earn $40,000 or more. In those areas, there are an average of 399 households per outlet.

In low-income areas like the one around the Avenue B market, where the average household income is just $19,000 a year, the study indicates households on average spend twice as much money on the lottery as wealthier households. Households with incomes less than $30,000 spent an average of $483 a year on lottery tickets since 1988, compared with $218 a year for households making $40,000 or more a year.

"The lottery is preying on poor people, period," said William N. Thompson, lottery expert and professor of public administration at the University of Las Vegas. "The state is in it for the bucks, not for compassionate reasons. They put lotteries in the faces of poor people and take from their pocketbooks."

POLICE NEWS

Wife arrested for domestic violence

Linda Crews May, 43, 363 Winchester Place, Longwood, was charged with domestic violence battery by Seminole County sheriff's officers on Friday.

Officers said when they responded to a domestic disturbance call, May's husband told them that she had hit him in the face with her hand. They said there were scratches on his face.

Deputies said they were both "slightly intoxicated."

They said she admitted to hitting her husband.

She was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $2,500 bond.

Man drives after cops say no

John Edward MacFarlane, 34, 2293 S. Grandview Ave., Sanford, was charged with driving with a suspended driver license and with possession of a suspended license by Sanford Police on Saturday morning.

Police said he had been told not to drive his 1993 Dodge pick up truck by police, but that he was seen doing so despite the warning.

Police said they had been aware recently that MacFarlane had sold tools out of his truck in order to buy crack cocaine.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $100 bond.

Too! theft alleged

Thomas Lee Maner, 38, 1811 W. 18th St., Sanford, was charged with resisting arrest without violence by Sanford Police on Saturday.

Police said that they had asked Maner to come into the parking lot at a 13th Street grocery store and talk to them.

Police said they had seen him remove a tool box from the back of a 1993 Dodge pick up and walk into a housing area to the west.

Officers approached the truck and found John E. MacFarlane sleeping in the cab of the truck. They woke him up and he confirmed that a tool box was missing from the truck.

While police attempted to talk to Maner, several other people told them that they had seen MacFarlane trade the tools for crack cocaine.

Since Maner would not cooperate, he was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $500 bond.

Man batters girl, threatens mom

William Devon Howard, 39, 71 Seminole Gardens, Sanford, was charged with battery and assault by Sanford Police on Friday.

Police said that he struck a 12-year old girl in the jaw and on the back and, at the same time, he threatened "to do bodily harm to her mother Martha Anderson by saying he was going to kill her."

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $500 bond.

Warrant arrests

Michael David Meeks, 24, 2520 Sanford Ave., Sanford, was charged with failure to appear in court on charges of driving with a suspended license. He was also charged with several traffic violations.

Judith Carol Delawder, 43, 180 Wilbur Ave., Lake Mary, was charged with violating the terms of her probation. She was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held without bond.

Corbin Elliot Fletcher, 22, 126 Ingram Cir., Longwood, was charged with failure to appear in court on aggravated battery charges. He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $8,000 bond.

Police: Officer fatally shoots handcuffed man choking officer

By Associated Press

CRYSTAL RIVER — A police officer early Sunday fatally shot a handcuffed man who authorities say was choking another officer he pinned to the ground and threatened to kill.

Jerome Bunch, 28, had been double-handcuffed after his arrest on an aggravated battery charge. He was shot in the head shortly after midnight outside a nightclub by Crystal River police officer Joe Manfredi, 34, according to Citrus County sheriff's officials who are investigating.

Witness Norman Lockley told the Citrus County Chronicle for Monday's editions that he heard Manfredi say, "I've got to do it. I've got to get him off her," before he heard the shot.

Bunch had gotten on top of Crystal River police officer Kat Liotta, 27, during a scuffle and put the handcuff chains around her neck, investigators said.

When police officers were unable to pull the 6-foot-1 Bunch off of Liotta, who is 5-2, they struck him in the head with flashlights, sheriff's officials said.

Police reported several incidents of rock-throwing late Sunday afternoon near the lounge where the shooting occurred, said Citrus County sheriff's spokesman Ken Culbertson.

At 9:15 p.m. EDT, Mayor Curtis Rich imposed a nighttime curfew on the city of 4,000.

Manfredi and Liotta are white; Bunch was black.

Bunch had gotten into a scuffle with Liotta as police tried to put leg restraints on him. He had been removed from a patrol car after he began kicking at its windows, investigators said.

Lockley told the Chronicle that Bunch threatened to "squeeze" Liotta unless the other officers backed off. He said Liotta was trying to persuade fellow officers that she could handle the situation, saying, "I got him."

"Officer Manfredi came up, put his knee in Jerome's back, pulled out his gun and stuck the gun to the back of his head," Lockley said.

"We walked up and begged the officer not to shoot him," Lockley said. "Kat (Liotta) was still saying 'back off' to the other officers."

Manfredi has been put on desk duty during the investigation of the shooting, Culbertson said.

Bunch had been arrested after he got into a fight with his sister in the nightclub and struck her in the face, Culbertson said.

Two die in shootout

By Associated Press

DEERFIELD BEACH — Two men died in a shootout early Sunday at an upscale home after the resident said the pair, one who owed him money, pulled guns.

Sean Michael Tuohy, 23, and Robert Albert Sanders, 50, a Coral Springs restaurateur, died in the exchange of gunfire shortly after 1 a.m. at the home of John A. DiGiorgio, Broward County sheriff's officials said.

DiGiorgio, who told detectives one of the men owed him money, was uninjured. His house guest, Matthew A. Nocerino, 38, was treated and released for a minor gunshot wound to the leg, police said.

A third man who accompanied Tuohy and Sanders to DiGiorgio's house was still being sought late Sunday by police, who would not release his name.

At least a half-dozen shots were fired. Sheriff's spokesman Ott Cefkin said it wasn't clear if DiGiorgio or Nocerino fired at the men.

"At this point, it's self-defense," said Cefkin, who added police were continuing to investigate and no charges had been filed.

Tuohy of Tamarac had been sentenced to five years in prison in July 1992. He had pleaded guilty to a conspiracy-robbery count involving a sting in which he tried to sell undercover officers a half kilogram of cocaine but apparently intended to keep the drug and the money, police said.

Shoveling out an agreement

Representatives of Lake Brantley High and the City of Altamonte Springs broke ground on the Lake Brantley Athletic and Aquatic Complex last Friday. The complex, a joint effort between the school district and the city will be used by the school and the public. On hand for the ceremony were, from left to right, Jim Sprinkle, president of the Lake Brantley Booster Club; Darvin Boothe, principal; school board member Nancy Warren; Mayor Dudley Bales of Altamonte Springs; Charlie Brinkley, president of Southern Bank; Altamonte Springs Commissioner Eddie Rose; Jim Grodin of the Lake Brantley Booster Club and Altamonte Springs Commissioner Russ Hauck.

Inmates deaths from AIDS up Nationwide, Florida prisons rank third in AIDS deaths

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON — More than half of the prison inmates nationwide who died from AIDS in 1991 were in New York and New Jersey, where widespread drug abuse has caused much of the spread of the disease, a government study said.

Two-thirds of the inmate deaths in New York and New Jersey prisons that year were from AIDS, said the study issued Sunday by the Justice Department's Bureau of Justice Statistics.

The AIDS deaths among inmates in both states appears to reflect widespread intravenous injection of drugs among males in New York City and neighboring cities, said Dr. Mervyn Silverman, president of the American Foundation for AIDS Research.

AIDS cases resulting from intravenous drug use are much more prevalent in the Northeast than elsewhere in the country, Silverman said.

Nationally, 24 percent of AIDS cases have been attributed to intravenous drug use, Silverman said. But in the last couple of years, more than 50 percent of new AIDS cases diagnosed in New York City are linked to intravenous drug injection, he said.

"In the Northeast, especially in cities like New York, and probably some in New Jersey, AIDS has become the highest cause of death in men" ages 25 to 40.

The Justice Department study compiled data on inmate deaths in state prisons nationwide.

In 1991, 210 of the 318 inmate deaths in New York state were the result of AIDS, the study said. Of inmate AIDS victims, 199 were men and 11 were women, the study found.

In New Jersey that year, 66 of the 96 inmate deaths were attributed to AIDS. All the AIDS victims were male.

Florida ranked third with 59 AIDS deaths among inmates, followed by 38 in California, 19 in Pennsylvania, 18 in Texas, 14 in both North Carolina and Maryland, 13 in Georgia, 12 in South Carolina, 11 in Connecticut, 10 in Illinois and eight in Massachusetts.

Michigan prison authorities did not report whether inmates died of AIDS-related causes, the study said.

The study found that 528 of the 1,863 inmate deaths in 1991 nationwide were due to AIDS. All but 15 of the AIDS victims were men.

That figure is more than double the 254 AIDS-caused deaths recorded in the nation's federal, state and local prisons and jails from November 1985 through September 1988, according to a 1987 Justice Department study.

The highest rate of AIDS infection was found among state and federal prisoners in the Northeast, where 8.1 percent of all inmates housed in the region either had the disease or were infected with the HIV virus.

Nationwide, 2.2 percent of 792,000 state and federal prisoners were infected with the AIDS virus or had the disease. Only 0.2 percent of this group had the disease.

In the South, 1.5 percent of inmates were infected with AIDS, followed by a rate of .7 percent infection rate in both the West and the Midwest, the report said.

New York had the highest infection rate: 13.8 percent, followed by 5.4 percent in Connecticut, 5.3 percent in Massachusetts and 4 percent in New Jersey, 3.5 percent in Rhode Island and 3.4 percent in Georgia, the study found.

CITY OF LAKE MARY, FLORIDA NOTICE OF LAND USE CHANGE CITY COMMISSION PUBLIC HEARING September 23, 1993 - 7:00 P. M.

The City of Lake Mary's City Commission will hold a Public Hearing on Thursday, September 23, 1993, at 7:00 P. M. to consider a request from Centex Homes of Florida for change in land use from Light Industrial to Low/Medium Density Residential and Commercial in the property shown in the map below. The Public Hearing will be held in the City Commission Chambers, 100 N. Country Club Road, Lake Mary.

Interested parties may appear and be heard regarding the proposed change and/or written comments may be filed with the City Clerk at 100 N. Country Club Road, Lake Mary. Copies of the amendment may be inspected at the City Planner's office, Monday through Friday, 8:00 A. M. to 5:00 P. M.

The property is approximately 47.5 acres and is situated at the southernmost end of the City at the southwest corner of Lake Emma Road and Emma Oaks Trail and further described as:

The SW 1/4 of the SW 1/4, LESS the East 63.00 feet thereof; AND ALSO the South 410.00 feet of the NW 1/4 of the SW 1/4, LESS the East 63.00 feet thereof; all being in Section 19, Township 20 South, Range 30 East, Seminole County, Florida.

The purpose of this hearing is to receive input from the public and to consider the recommendation of the Local Planning Agency on the adoption of an amendment to the Comprehensive Plan.

NOTE: PERSONS ARE ADVISED THAT A TAPED RECORD OF THIS MEETING IS MADE BY THE CITY FOR ITS CONVENIENCE. THE RECORD MAY NOT CONSTITUTE AN ADEQUATE RECORD FOR THE PURPOSES OF APPEAL FROM A DECISION MADE BY THE CITY. ANY PERSON WISHING TO ENSURE THAT AN ADEQUATE RECORD OF THE PROCEEDINGS IS MAINTAINED FOR APPELLATE PURPOSES IS ADVISED TO MAKE THE NECESSARY ARRANGEMENTS AT HIS OR HER OWN EXPENSE.

PERSONS WITH DISABILITIES NEEDING ASSISTANCE TO PARTICIPATE IN ANY OF THESE PROCEEDINGS SHOULD CONTACT THE CITY ADA COORDINATOR AT LEAST 48 HOURS IN ADVANCE OF THE MEETING AT (407) 324-3024.

Take advantage, save energy

Anyone who remembers the frustration of trying to roast their 1989 Christmas Day dinner during the day's power blackouts and brownouts will appreciate a new energy-saving program offered by Florida Power and Light Co. For the discounted price of $25, the cost of an evening at the movies, FPL will inspect your household heating and air conditioning ductwork for leaks.

Duct leaks may not seem like much of a problem, but a recent Florida Solar Energy Center survey determined that some 70 percent of the state's homes are wasting energy through loss of treated air. For those unsuspecting homeowners, that means up to 12 percent of their monthly bill is being spent on wasted energy. If leaks are found, FPL will even help pay for the repairs. The cost to repair even the most severe leaks can be made up in about two years from electric bill savings, FPL says.

Florida is a growing state. Many folks from the northeast and midwest want to move here to enjoy the moderate winters while looking to air conditioning to ease the tropical summers. As a result, the demand — and costs — for more power will only increase. Let's not waste what we have. Put money back in your pocket and help the rest of us by reducing unnecessary energy use. Take advantage of this program by calling 1-800-DIAL-FPL (1-800-342-5375), Ext. 58 and ask for the duct system test.

Public board member's decisions contradictory

Recently I had an experience at the Sanford Planning Zoning Commission that was truly disheartening. My wife and I attended the meeting to ask the board to deny a request for a six-foot chain link fence in the front yard of a home in our neighborhood which is located in the historic district. We feel that the fence is not compatible with the traditional character of development in the historic district and will contribute to the erosion of that character.

With the exception of two forward-thinking members who opposed the fence, the board approved the request citing the property owners' safety concerns as the sole reason for their action.

This action was in direct conflict with previous board decisions where such fences have been denied based on their degrading appearance.

One member of the board, Mr. Leon Brooks, was especially contradictory in his vote for the fence. He emphasized that his decision was based on the security needs of the property owners. Yet only last month, Mr. Brooks spoke strongly against a similar fence at a commercial property on Sanford Avenue. He said he was tired of people using security as an excuse for putting up high fences. Such inconsistencies are not proper for someone who has accepted the important responsibility of serving Sanford's citizens as a board member.

After the meeting, Mr. Brooks publicly berated and yelled at this citizen for expressing his views to the board. Such behavior from a public board member is demeaning to the many good citizens who serve on city boards in a professional manner. Mr. Brooks should be embarrassed and should resign from his position.

A black lawyer defends the Klan

In 1989, Justice John Marlar, speaking for the Supreme Court in NAACP vs. Alabama, ruled that the state of Alabama had no right to demand the membership list of the NAACP. "It is hardly a novel perception that compelled disclosure of affiliation with groups engaged in advocacy may ... expose these members to economic reprisal, loss of employment and threat of physical coercion."

In 1983, the Texas Human Rights Commission has brought suit to get the names of any members of the Texas Knights of the Klan who lived in the town of Vidor — or who may have been there — between last Sept. 1 and Dec. 15. There have been attempts, by court order, to integrate a previously all-white public housing unit in Vidor. The Texas Human Rights Commission wants to find out if the subsequent threats and other forms of intimidation against black residents were the work of the Klan.

The American Civil Liberties Union of Texas is defending Michael Lowe — grand dragon of the Klan — who has pledged to go to jail rather than give up the names of those members. ("These people could lose their jobs or businesses.")

A volunteer attorney from Galveston, Anthony Griffin, is handling the case for the ACLU. He is an experienced constitutional litigator and has won some notable First Amendment and voting rights cases. Griffin is also general counsel for the Texas NAACP. According to the Houston Chronicle, the black lawyer told the grand dragon that this case "wasn't about race. It wasn't about whether I like him or he liked me. It's about the basic principle of his right to speak and organize."

In August, at a meeting of the NAACP state board in Galveston County, most of those present agreed with Raymond Scott, a Baptist minister and head of the Fort Arthur NAACP: "You can't represent the NAACP and the Klan at the same time."

One of those present told me there were "more than a few ugly moments." Anthony Griffin said to the assembly that so far as he was concerned, the issue was not debatable. Those critical of his stand should remember that the leading Supreme Court case on this question had been won by the NAACP. If the NAACP were now to advocate that the state does have a right to take those membership lists, he said, that decision could one day haunt them. (And indeed, Texas had tried to get NAACP membership lists in the 1970s.)

Answering demands that he apologize for defending the Klan, Griffin said he would not. As for the calls that he resign, he would not do that either. If the forced choice came between attacking with his First Amendment principles or leaving the NAACP, he would leave.

In the minority, one of Griffin's defenders, Oscar Woods, president of the Dickinson-Bay Area NAACP chapter, told the Houston Chronicle that he certainly did remember that Supreme Court decision and had no problem with Anthony Griffin taking this case. "It's a constitutional issue," Woods said, "not the NAACP vs. the Klan."

Also supporting the beleaguered Griffin was the Galveston County Observer News, an African-American monthly newspaper.

"It's about the basic principle of his right to speak and organize."

Is NAFTA good for Americans?

The North American Free Trade Agreement is:

1) The best job-creating engine for the United States since World War II.
 2) A one-way ticket to economic ruin for Americans and environmental degradation for North America.

3) Bill Clinton's biggest political headache, tougher even than the looming struggle to pass his health-care package.

As of early September, the only obviously correct answer is (3). As for the other two, they are at the heart of the debate about NAFTA. Initiated by President Bush and the leaders of Mexico and Canada a year ago, and now fully supported by President Clinton, it would phase in the total elimination of tariff and other trade barriers between the three countries over a 15-year period. As envisioned, the North American free trade zone would link 360 million people in the world's largest and most powerful open market.

Opponents and supporters alike resort to oversimplifications — and dubious conclusions, like the first two choices above. Ross Perot speaks of the "loud sucking sound" of lost jobs. Pat Buchanan has weighed in against the "leveraged buyout of American liberty." The No. 2 and No. 3 ranking Democrats in the House are thus far adamantly opposed to the agreement as a sellout of American interests.

On the other side, the administration holds out the vista of hundreds of thousands of new jobs thanks to vastly increased exports to Mexico. Major American corporations and business groups such as the Chamber of Commerce are lobbying on NAFTA's behalf. Despite Buchanan, a majority of House and Senate Republicans seem likely to vote yes.

Like some 250 million other Americans, I won't be voting on the issue in Congress, and like most Americans, I've been worried about what I hear and unsure about whom to trust. After long reflection, however, I've come down as a supporter. Most of the alleged drawbacks of the agreement have existed and would exist without it, from American plants relocating to Mexico to environmental ruin associated with the industrial zones along the Mexican side of the border. Approving NAFTA, on the other hand, would provide obvious economic benefits to broad sectors of the American economy while actually reducing the incentives for plant relocation to the south. Thanks to the side agreements recently negotiated with Mexico and Canada, some rudimentary tools for dealing with environmental and labor practice abuses are also provided, and they can be built upon.

The U.S.-Canadian free trade agreement approved several years ago has already demonstrated the validity of the idea. While various economic interests in each country have been hurt by tariff-free competition from more efficient producers in the other, the overall effect has been one of win-win.

But that was an agreement between two nations with similar economies and standards of living. Mexico is a developing country whose average wages are roughly one-seventh those of the United States. Once there were no trade barriers between the two nations, it would seem only logical for American firms to stream southward, since Mexico's low-wage industrial workers have proved teachable and highly productive.

This is an instance when common sense and reality diverge. Under current conditions, Mexican duties are roughly two to three times higher on American exports than American duties are on Mexican exports. Under NAFTA, there would eventually be no tariff barriers. Consequently, NAFTA would substantially reduce the economic incentives to relocate in order to tap the Mexican market.

Furthermore, it is simply wrong to say that in the new international economic order, industries are eternally on the move in an insatiable quest for ever-lower labor costs. If that were true, all of Germany would be a disindustrialized wasteland, since the average hourly cost of an industrial worker there is 70 percent higher than in supposedly high-wage America. (Japan's is roughly 25 percent higher than ours.) Worker productivity, easy access to raw materials, transportation networks and numerous other factors are as important to decision-making about plant location as wage levels. Otherwise, all of the world's heavy industry would have been in sub-Saharan Africa long ago, paying 50 cents an hour.

Anyway, economic growth need not be a zero-sum game, in which someone else's success equals our failure. A strengthened Mexican economy is a net plus for the United States. Mexico is already our second largest market for industrial exports and third largest market overall, behind only Canada and Japan. Truly open economic borders, including greater industrialization in Mexico, would improve that picture. Our heavy machinery and other capital goods would be central to Mexican industrial growth, as they already are. Whatever jobs are lost over the 15-year phase-in of NAFTA would be more than matched by new jobs in our export industries.

Opponents and supporters alike resort to dubious conclusions.

Informants often travel a two-way street

WASHINGTON — Emad Ali Salem became a national celebrity earlier this summer when he was named as the government informant who helped the FBI crack one of the most serious bombing plots in U.S. history.

Posing as an Arab magazine photographer, Salem provided key evidence to the feds against the men who now stand accused of bombing the World Trade Center and those plotting to bomb several other major New York City landmarks.

Unfortunately, snitches like Salem are rare in the netherworld of government informants. For authorities, recruiting informants usually means granting special breaks to rogues and felons. Most are criminal suspects who agree to turn evidence on others in order to avoid prosecution themselves.

Often these suspects end up on the government payroll. A 1992 study by House Government Operations Committee chairman, John Conyers, D-Mich., found that the government shelled out nearly $30 million to snitches in 1990 and 1991. "It's a necessary evil," says David Smith, former chief of the Justice Department's asset forfeiture program.

The biggest problem is keeping informants straight. Many return to their criminal ways after they go on the government payroll, creating an embarrassing nightmare for the officials who free them. "These guys have to be supervised very carefully, because it's quite common for them to start playing both sides of the fence," says Smith.

We've detailed cases of informants who milked the government for far more than they gave back in information. In a time when law enforcement budgets are squeezed, here is a laundry list of where some of this money wound up:

— In Miami, the government paid Ramon A. Navarro more than $170,000 to give evidence against deposed Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega. But, while working as a government informant, Navarro had a habit of robbing and even abducting innocent residents of Miami. Navarro was given immunity from prosecution twice. In the end, he died before he could testify against Noriega, meaning that taxpayers shelled out another $5,000 for his funeral.

— Rodney N. Matthews stands accused of bringing in 26 tons of cocaine behind the backs of his government handlers, at the same time they were paying him $200,000 to testify on other criminals.

As some informants wind up living at the government's expense, innocent bystanders often get caught in the crossfire. The results sometimes prove devastating:

— Don Carlson is a corporate executive in San Diego who survived three gunshot wounds last summer after federal agents stormed his home. The agents were acting on a false tip from a government informant. Though Carlson was completely innocent, he will have to cope the rest of his life with permanent damage to his leg, shoulder and arm. The informant has since been indicted, and Carlson is suing the government for $20 million.

— William G. Corrigan, a computer executive in Chicago, fired an employee in 1989 who he believed was secretly giving proprietary data to a competitor. When he tried to track bank records to assess the damage, he found they were under government seal. His requests for data from the FBI and the Secret Service were also denied on the grounds that it could expose an undercover source.

Snitches like Salem are rare in the netherworld of government informants.

Illegal abortion major cause of death in developing world

By MARK LUBKOWITZ
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — As many as 200,000 women die each year from unsafe, illegal abortions, mostly in the developing world, a population research group said Sunday.

"Of the estimated 50 million induced abortions worldwide each year, more than one-third are illegal and nearly half appear to take place outside any health system," concluded a report by Population Action International.

The report contends that limits on voluntary access to safe, affordable abortion are a key cause of abortion-related death and injury.

abortion, said the report. After the ban was lifted the number of maternal deaths fell by half.

Though early induced abortion, properly performed, is very safe, "Unsafe abortion is a major cause of maternal death worldwide and has a devastating public health impact," said the report. "Expanding Access to Safe Abortion."

"Estimates of abortion-related deaths are imprecise, but range from less than 100,000 to as many as 200,000 deaths each year," it said.

The report said that even with contraceptive methods widely available, at least one out of five women would face an unplanned pregnancy.

Santi Conly, co-author of the report, called on donor nations like the United States who ban support for abortion from health and family planning aid to change their policy.

"For women to have complete control of their reproductive lives, abortion is a necessary backup to contraception," she said.

The report places countries in five categories based on the legal status of abortion:

- Countries that permit early abortion on request including the United States, Russia and China which contain 40 percent of the world's population.
- Countries that permit abortion on broad social, economic and medical grounds including Great Britain, India and Japan with 21 percent of the population.
- Countries which permit abortion for risks to the woman's health, fetal defects or rape including Germany, Israel and Egypt with 18 percent of the population.
- Countries which permit abortion for rape or incest or to save the life of the woman including Brazil and Mexico with 8 percent of the population.
- Countries which permit abortions only to save the woman's life including Ireland, the Philippines, Iran and Nigeria with 18 percent of the population.

The group said that Romania under former dictator Nicolai Ceausescu — who imposed a ban on abortion and contraceptives to increase the national birth rate — did not experience a higher birth rate. But there was a doubling of deaths of childbearing mothers, with 87 percent attributed to illegal

"What does it mean to show respect to someone?" he booms. "Don't laugh at someone," says the first child he points at. "Don't mock folk," says the next.

While fellow counselor Mia Coleman scribbles the responses hastily on the board, McQueen listens to the students, encourages their responses, directs behavior to help the students respect others and themselves.

The Alpha class is a movable program put together by the Grove. Each year it goes to a different school and counselors and teachers attempt to teach self-esteem and mutual respect to fourth and fifth grade students who have been determined to be at risk of dropping out of school.

"We want to give these students some success in school," said Barbara Farlow, who directs the program. "Some of these students have never experienced any successes in school."

In the words of some of the students enrolled in this year's program, Alpha teaches the students to "be all that you can be," to "get along with others," and to "be smarter by working harder...and having some fun, too."

Farlow said some of the students in the program have already been to 20 or 30 schools as their parents move about the country looking for work. Others, she said, come from a dysfunctional family environment and others, while they don't have identifiable learning disabilities, they have problems in the classroom.

"It is our main goal to give these students the tools they need to return to their regular classrooms and to be successful," Farlow said. "We want to promote healthy, constructive behaviors by involving them (the students) and his parents in the program."

Students come together for a cooperative discussion group once a day, but spend the rest of the day learning their regular academic subjects. Toward the end of the 160 day program, the students are mainstreamed back into their own classes.

While they are involved in Alpha the students have more opportunity for individualized instruction of 18 to 20 students.

"We hope they are better able to learn with the stronger behavioral skills and with a stronger sense of self-esteem," Farlow said.

Next year the Alpha program will move on to another school. Farlow said she hopes that someday, Seminole County will be able to afford a second Alpha team so that students at two schools could be helped each year.

"But that doesn't look likely any time soon," she said.

Center

Orlando North Hilton and Towers and smaller groups at two conference centers and other hotels, Wert said.

A convention center has been one of the main interests of the Tourist Development Council since the tax was first considered in 1988. The other interest was a sports facility. A $2.8 million soccer training facility was completed this year at Lake Sylvan Park west of Sanford in an effort to attract amateur teams and events to the county.

Although the U.S. Soccer Federation has agreed to use the soccer facility tax-free for the next 10 years, the state and federal government say the deal violates a park acquisition grant agreement. The county is appealing the decision.

Wert said now that the sports facility goal has been met, the tourist council now wants to turn its focus on attracting more business people to stay a while in the county. While the study would determine the best area of the county for such a facility,

Closing

Warren said with the doubling of size of the FPC DeBary plant last year, the Turner Plant will no longer be needed, even for the peaking time periods.

Warren will continue in his position, operating from the DeBary plant.

In all, FPC employs approximately 1,000 people in the Central Florida area, and 5,800 statewide.

The closure will not effect any other area FPC facilities including the business office at 301 N. Myrtle Avenue which will continue operations.

"What will happen to the actual building and property at the Turner site in Enterprise hasn't been determined yet," Warren said. "That will be up to the main corporate office."

The Turner plant is one of two to be closed completely. The other, with 45 employees, is near Oldsmar in west Florida.

According to FPC spokesman Will Rodgers, "The two steam power plants have a total of 109 years' service. Together, they had provided a maximum 288 megawatts of power in a total system which exceeds 7,000 megawatts."

In addition, an unspecified number of workers will be laid off at the Crystal River energy complex in Citrus County, and several employees are to be let go at the FPC main office in St. Petersburg.

As a result of these changes, between 175 and 200 employees will be eliminated between now and January 24.

The employee reduction and closing of the two plants will reduce the overall work force by approximately 20 percent.

Rodgers said the changes "are intended to offset escalating business costs and thus minimize the need for price increases. Actions in other areas of the company, geared toward improving efficiency and competitiveness are anticipated in the coming weeks and months."

Budget

commissioners arrived at in July after trimming and adding to Rabun's original $275.8 million spending plan.

Principal budget analyst Dennis Joyner explained the increase was due to transfers of unspent 1992-1993 dollars into the budget, and in some cases, transferring the money between funds, which serves to increase the bottom line.

Chief among the transfers from this year are $507,153 from the penny transportation sales tax. A transfer of $533,000 from a gas tax fund to a neighborhood improvement fund served to increase the combined total of the two funds by over $1 million.

Joyner said the total budget by Oct. 1 will increase by $70 million or more after all of the unspent money appropriated last year and before is "carried forward" to the next budget year.

Although Rabun had proposed a same-rate tax for property owners, he had proposed increases to gas taxes, garbage fees and unincorporated utility taxes, commissioners approved only the penny gas tax and garbage dumping fee increase.

The bottom line is unincorporated homeowners with $100,000 homes, taking their $25,000 homestead exemptions, will pay the county $1.11 more each month. Residents with increased property values will pay more. Property Appraiser Bill Suber estimates about a third of all residences in the county saw an increase. Overall, the gross taxable value of property in the county increased from nearly $10 billion to $10.3 billion, a 3 percent increase. Of that increase, 2 percent was from new construction and only one percent was from reappraisals of existing properties.

Why more people are swapping that 30-year mortgage for a 15-year note

By JOHN D. McCLAIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Like millions of other Americans, Larry Murray recently refinanced the mortgage on his home. But instead of reducing his monthly payment, Murray now pays $150 more a month, though he cut the length of his loan in half.

He traded in his 30-year mortgage for a 15-year note.

Just seven years after they were introduced, 15-year fixed-rate mortgages are now the second-most-popular loans that Americans use to buy homes or refinance their mortgages.

"A lot of people choose them so they can plan on retirement, for the time their kids begin college, or for other expenses they expect to see in that time frame as opposed to 30 years," said Donna Callejon, senior vice president for single-family marketing at the Federal National Mortgage Association.

That was Murray's thinking. "I've got four kids," said the president of a real estate title insurance company, college," he said. "I thought that in 15 years, I've got to put them through college."

Murray paid off the 30-year, 6.5 percent adjustable-rate mortgage on his home in suburban Fairfax County, Va., and took out a 15-year mortgage at 7.5 percent.

Since Murray refinanced, rates for 15-year mortgages have dropped to about 6.5 percent as of last week and he's thinking of refinancing again.

Fifteen-year mortgages now represent more than a third of the overall home loan market as Americans seek to reduce interest payments, build home equity faster and pay off their debts before incurring new ones.

Callejon said the 30-year, fixed-rate mortgage is still the most popular type of home loan, a little more than half of the market. The balance includes 5- and 10-year loans and various other combinations including adjustable-rates like Murray had and so-called balloon mortgages.

Not only are people are taking out 15-year mortgages to buy their homes, many are using them to refinance current mortgages like Murray did. In a refinancing, the homeowner pays off an old mortgage by borrowing a new mortgage.

But not all will find themselves with higher monthly payments like Murray did.

Forbes names Oprah as nation's richest entertainer

By DAVID E. KALISH
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — Talk isn't cheap for Oprah Winfrey. In fact, it's earned her the title as the nation's richest entertainer.

Not far behind her is movie director Steven Spielberg, who made dinosaur-sized piles of cash with "Jurassic Park," according to this year's list of the top 40 entertainment moneymakers in Forbes magazine.

Winfrey owns the talk show she hosts and produces, as well as the Chicago studio where it's filmed. "Oprah Winfrey" generates over $170 million in revenue. Her total take in 1992 and 1993: $98 million.

Forbes considers two years worth of income to smooth out big earnings swings.

Spielberg clinched the No. 2 spot by pulling in $72 million in the last two years, thanks in large part to "Jurassic Park" box office sales that could reach $600 million in 1993. With a videocassette release upcoming, Forbes says, Spielberg could top the list next year.

Slipping to No. 3 with $66 million from last year's top spot was Bill Cosby, dragged down by his TV flop "You Bet Your Life," based on the Groucho Marx classic.

Musicians soared to the top of the charts. Guns N' Roses rocketed to No. 4 from last year's No. 10 with $53 million, pop singer Prince rose to fifth from 12th spot with $49 million and rock group U2 rose to No. 8 from No. 16 with $47 million.

Michael Jackson was No. 12, raking in $42 million and Madonna was No. 15 with $37 million. British guitarist Eric Clapton joined at No. 16 on the huge success of his career's best-selling album, "Unplugged." His two-year total: $33 million.

Michael Crichton, a newcomer at No. 34, raked in $24 million over two years for the best-selling novel "Jurassic Park." John Graham, a former trial lawyer who wrote four courtroom thrillers, joined at No. 31 with a two-year take of $25 million.

Macaulay Culkin proved that success knows no age. The 13-year-old star of the "Home Alone" movies made an adult-sized $23 million these past two years, easily becoming the list's youngest member.

Dropping off the list this year were the Rolling Stones, Johnny Carson, Arsenio Hall and Frank Sinatra. But Forbes says the Stones could be back, with a possible $100 million deal in the works for an upcoming tour.

One delivery down, one to go

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — A network of springs nudged a $363 million communications satellite into space as Discovery's five-man crew accomplished one of the chief jobs of its 10-day mission.

The Advanced Communications Technology Satellite was bounced from the shuttle cargo bay hours after launch Sunday, then propelled by a rocket from Discovery's 184-mile altitude to a 22,300-mile-high orbit less than an hour later.

The 3-ton satellite, called ACTS, is designed to transmit data 20 times faster than present craft and could one day shrink the size of satellite dishes on Earth to 1 1/2 feet in diameter, project managers said.

With one space delivery down, Discovery's astronauts had one to go.

Astronaut Daniel Bursch reached into the cargo bay this morning with the shuttle's 60-foot robot arm and grabbed hold of a reusable German platform carrying a star-scanning ultraviolet telescope.

"Good job," said Mission Control's Jay Apt, who watched video images beamed down from the shuttle. "We had a beautiful view the whole time."

The telescope, along with spectrographs mounted on the 1,500-pound pallet, was to be hoisted out of the shuttle and released today after tests by astronauts and ground controllers.

The satellite will trail Discovery by 40 miles for about a week before Bursch reels it in for the trip home.

The $70 million German-financed project is designed to study celestial objects, including white dwarfs and supernovas, in an attempt to understand the life cycle of stars.

After nearly two months of delays related to equipment problems, payload concerns, even a meteor shower, Discovery roared into orbit on time without a hitch early Sunday.

"Hey Houston, I gotta tell ya, you've never seen five happier guys up here," commander

Frank Culbertson Jr. told Mission Control shortly after reaching orbit. "It's been a long time coming."

Two engine pump sensors failed on the way up, but that posed no problem since identical sensors worked fine, said launch director Bob Sieck. If one of those sensors had failed prior to launch, however, it would have meant another aborted launch. A broken fuel-flow sensor caused an engine shutdown three seconds before liftoff last month.

The ACTS satellite was deployed one orbit later than planned because of a temporary drop in communications from the ground to Discovery that was caused by interference from the payload radio system.

ACTS project manager Richard Gerney later said the satellite appeared to be working properly.

"It looks like a very good mission at this point," Gerney said.

Communication companies, broadcasting organizations, universities, hospitals and the government plan 73 experiments with the satellite over the next two years.

Astronauts James Newman and Carl Walz are to conduct a six-hour spacewalk on Thursday to test tools, including a power socket wrench, needed for the Hubble Space Telescope repair mission in December.

Researchers say elderly underrepresented on TV

By JAMES HANMAN
Associated Press Writer

DAYTON, Ohio — American television continues to be overpopulated with young people, two university researchers said.

A study of 1,446 fictional TV characters turned up only 35 — about 2 percent — who were at least 65 years old, although that group accounts for 12.5 percent of the U.S. population.

The study was conducted by James Robinson and Thomas Skill, both associate professors of communication at the University of Dayton.

"Researchers in the mid-70s said that the situation should change as America grays, and that hasn't happened," Robinson said Friday.

The researchers studied 100 episodes from fictional series aired during October and November 1990.

They found that 14 percent of the characters were between the ages of 50 and 64, 69 percent were between 20 and 49, and 16 percent were 19 or younger.

"Symbolically, it says that old people don't have much importance," said Skill, 38. "On television, kids don't have grandparents and the world is not populated by people over the age of 50."

Part of the problem is that TV shows — especially action shows — often rely on stereotypical characters, Robinson said.

Of the 231 characters in leading roles the researchers identified, only three actors playing them — Andy Griffith, Angela Lansbury and Estelle Getty — were at least 65.

'Perry Mason' star Burr dies at 76

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

Raymond Burr, the portly actor who became a TV icon as a crime-solving lawyer in the long-running "Perry Mason" series, died at his Northern California ranch. He was 76.

Burr died at home Sunday night in the Sonoma County community of Dry Creek, Calif. Burr's friend Charles Macaulay said Burr's physician, Paul Margulio, gave the cause of death as metastatic cancer of the liver.

In mid-August, Burr completed location work in Denver for his last Perry Mason TV film, "The Case of the Killer Kiss," reporting to the set at 4 a.m. despite his illness.

Burr, who had a busy film career before "Perry Mason," also starred as the crusty, wheelchair-using San Francisco detective in the NBC series "Ironside," which ran from 1967 to 1975. Toward the end of his life, his illness forced him to use a wheelchair for real.

"Perry Mason" became television's most successful lawyer series, appearing weekly on CBS for nine seasons from 1957 to 1966. The formula was always the same. Aided by investigator Paul Drake (William Hopper) and secretary Della Street (Barbara Hale), Mason ferreted out the truth and foiled prosecutor Hamilton Burger (William Talman) at trial's end, often with a dramatic courtroom confession from the real culprit.

Burr returned to the TV courtroom in 1985 for a two-hour movie "Perry Mason." It was the highest rated TV movie that year, prompting periodic returns each season. In all, he made 26 of the Perry Mason films.

The Canadian-born Burr arrived in Hollywood in 1946 after World War II service and he made his film debut in "San Quentin." He worked steadily, often as the villain because of his formidable presence and sad, threatening eyes.

Among his memorable roles: as the prosecutor of Montgomery Clift in "A Place in the Sun"; the stalker of Natalie Wood in "A Cry in the Night"; the murderer James Stewart sees from his apartment in "Rear Window."

His other films include: "Ruthless," "The Adventures of Don Juan," "Key to the City," "Meet Danny Wilson," "Tarzan and the She-Devil," "You're Never Too Young," "Tomorrow Never Comes."

Burr appeared in the first "Godzilla" movie, playing an American reporter in scenes inserted into the Japanese original for the U.S. release. He missed the chance for a nest egg: "I tried desperately to get a piece of the action, but they wouldn't give it to me. But I did get paid for one day's work — more than anyone else was ever paid."

Israel, PLO ready to sign accord at White House

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Enemies without mercy for a generation, Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization stood ready today to seal a historic accord promising self-government for Palestinians and the hope of a broader peace between Jews and Arabs.

"It's good for the whole world," Secretary of State Warren Christopher said today, shortly before the invitation-only signing ceremony that was bringing together the unlikely partners in peace: Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and PLO leader Yasser Arafat.

"I believe it's a new reality," Rabin said today as he made the rounds of the morning television programs. He said the accords would rise or fall on Arafat's ability to "prevent the use of terror" in areas that will move under PLO control with the signing of the accords.

The White House was ready: from the 3,000 folding chairs set up to accommodate a glittering guest list to the specially constructed stage and the 124-year-old table where Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres and PLO official Mahmoud Abbas were signing the accords.

President Clinton was the hopeful host, pledging the United States would assist in implementing the agreements, and expressing optimism that Jordan, Lebanon and Syria also would negotiate successfully with Israel.

Already there was reason for some optimism. Israeli and Jordanian officials met at the State Department on Sunday working over final details of a document that could serve as the framework for a peace treaty between them. Peres said an announcement was possible on Tuesday.

On the eve of their signing ceremony, Arafat and Rabin underscored the enormity of their agreement and the gulf that divides them still. Arafat said in an Associated Press interview that he hoped the agreement would "build a future for the generations to come."

Told that Arafat also predicted to reporters that the accords would lead to a Palestinian state with Jerusalem as the capital, Rabin replied gruffly: "He can forget about it."

Rabin arrived in Washington only a few hours before the elaborately scripted signing ceremony was to begin on the South Lawn of the White House.

Arafat, beaming, flew into Andrews Air Force base at mid-afternoon Sunday, and met with Assistant Secretary of State Edward Djerejian in his first-ever high-level diplomatic contact with an American official.

The Palestinian flag, green, white and black with a red triangle, flew outside Arafat's downtown Washington hotel. Inside, the man who swore death to Israel for three decades met with former President Carter, the man who presided over the treaty signing that brought Israel and Egypt together in the late 1970s.

first in Jericho on the West Bank and in Gaza, and later in the rest of the West Bank territory that Israel won in a 1967 war. The PLO, regarded for years by Israel and the United States as a terrorist organization, has renounced its commitment to the destruction of Israel.

Not everyone was happy to see old enemies together. Palestinian militants opposed to the agreement launched a series of attacks in Gaza City on Sunday and four Israelis were killed.

The guest list for the PLO-Israeli signing ran to 2,500 or 3,000, and included not only Carter, but former President George Bush, Russian Foreign Minister Kozyrev of Russia, diplomats from a dozen or so countries, the Cabinet, leaders of Congress, the Supreme Court and more.

White House officials laid out the documents to be signed on a 124-year-old table used when Carter presided over signing of the 1979 Camp David accords.

Whether this agreement would produce a photograph as moving as the three-way handshake that linked Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin was another question.

Neither Rabin nor Arafat was expected to do the signing — that was left to aides.

Asked in advance whether he would shake the PLO leader's hand, Rabin said, "If it will be needed."

Asked the same question, Arafat said, "Why not?"

Matches will begin at 7 p.m. The registration fee is $10 for Oviedo residents, $15 for non-residents. For details, contact Cory Clarke at 359-0360.

Sanford co-ed volleyball

SANFORD — Two co-ed volleyball leagues — a recreational league and a power league — will be offered by the Sanford Recreation Department. The registration fee is $75 per team. All non-Sanford resident players will have to pay the $10 individual non-resident fee or $15 family non-resident fee before participating. Registration deadline is Friday, September 17. All rosters (which carry a maximum limit of 10 players) must be turned in at the Downtown Recreation Center, lower level of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue by Sept. 17. The recreational co-ed league will play on Monday's and will begin on Sept. 27, while the co-ed power league will play on Wednesday's starting Sept. 29. For more information, call 330-5697.

AROUND THE NATION

Dodgers nip Marlins

LOS ANGELES — Pedro Astacio got his first shutout with a five-hitter and Cory Snyder drove in the only run with a sixth-inning single as Los Angeles edged Florida 1-0. Astacio (12-9) went the distance for the first time since Sept. 29 of last season. The right hander yielded fewer than three earned runs for the eighth time in nine starts, and has a 1.08 ERA in his last six. He struck out six and walked two as he won for the fourth time in five decisions. Rookie Pat Rapp (3-5) blanked the Dodgers on four hits over the first six innings before allowing a two-out walk to Dave Hansen, a single by rookie Billy Ashley, and Snyder's run scoring hit to center. Rapp, coming off his first complete game in the majors, struck out three and walked three.

Bethune athletes honored

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Bethune Cookman's Kelvin Daniels, who had 155 yards rushing and two touchdowns plus pass receptions for 52 yards, was named co-offensive player of the week in the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference. While Daniels led Bethune Cookman to a 41-17 victory over Morgan State, the other co-offensive player, Frankie Sanders of South Carolina State, rushed for 151 yards in a 21-17 loss to Florida A&M. Cameron Pitts of Bethune Cookman was named rookie of the week. He returned a kickoff 85 yards to set up a score, caught one pass and rushed for 28 yards against Morgan State.

Knoxville leads series

HOOVER, Ala. — Brandon Wilson drove in three runs to help pace the Birmingham Barons to a 3-1 victory over the Knoxville Smokies and a 1-0 lead in the Southern League championship best-of-5 series Sunday night. The Smokies got their four runs in the ninth inning when, with two outs, Howard Battle hit a two-run single.

Florida pulls off miracle

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Kentucky came up with a school-record seven interceptions, but in the end it couldn't stop No. 9 Florida's passing game. Danny Wuerffel connected on a 28-yard scoring strike with three seconds left to lift Florida to a 24-20 victory in the Southeastern Conference opener Saturday night. Kentucky (1-1) appeared on the verge of an upset when Willie Cannon picked off Wuerffel's pass at the Florida 20 with 3:03 to go. Five plays and 1:40 later, Juha Leonoff kicked a 25-yard field goal to give Kentucky a 20-17 lead. But Florida (2-0) still had time. Harrison Houston returned the kickoff to the 42. Wuerffel, a reserve, then completed three of five passes, the last a 12-yarder to Eric Rhee to the Kentucky 28 with 17 seconds left. After Florida took its final timeout, Wuerffel threw two incomplete passes before connecting with Doering in full stride at the goal line.

Successful weekend

Surprising Lions make it to West Orange finals

From Staff Reports

WINTER GARDEN — Last year, the Oviedo Lions went into the West Orange Times Classic girls volleyball tournament at West Orange High School with high hopes, only to suffer a less-than-satisfying outing.

This year, the Lions went in with less lofty aspirations and won their way into the finals, where they lost to Middleburg, 16-14, 15-9.

Last year, I thought we'd do better, but didn't even make it out of pool play," said Oviedo coach Anita Carlson. "This year, I wasn't sure how we'd do. But the first match we played (against Dr. Phillips) was the toughest match of the weekend and they came through."

On Friday, Oviedo opened its pool play with a 12-15, 15-12 win over Dr. Phillips. The Lions followed that with a 15-2, 15-8 whipping of Cavehead South Lake.

The Lions completed the sweep through their pool with a 15-8, 15-12 win over Merritt Island on Saturday morning. Oviedo advanced to beat Palm Bay 15-4, 15-2 in the quarterfinals and West Orange 15-6, 16-14 in the semifinals.

Oviedo junior Lisa Liljenquist was named to the first team of the All-Tournament team while junior teammate Stephanie Noiseux was a second team selection.

By comparison, the Lake Mary Rams probably went into the tournament expecting to accomplish more than they did, suffering a pair of disappointing losses that began and ended the tournament for them.

On Friday night, the Rams dropped a 4-15, 15-13, 16-14 decision to Oak Ridge in a rematch of last year's 3A Region V championship match (which was won by Lake Mary).

"I have to blame that loss on me," said Lake Mary coach Cindy Henry. "After we won the game so handily, I thought I could do some things and look at some other people. But we didn't recover from it."

The Rams did come back to beat Evans 15-11, 15-0 and Satellite Beach 15-11, 15-5 to advance out of pool play. In the quarterfinals, Lake Mary ran into eventual champion Middleburg, losing 15-11, 4-15, 15-11.

"We played them tough," said Henry. "We had an 8-2 lead in the third game, but we couldn't hang on to it."

Lake Howell and Seminole also participated in the tournament but couldn't advance out of pool play.

The Lake Howell Silver Hawks dropped a 15-11, 15-13 decision to West Orange Friday. On Saturday, Lake Howell beat New Smyrna Beach 15-8, 15-7 and lost to Palm Bay 15-8, 15-3. Seminole lost all three of its matches, falling to Winter Park (15-1, 15-9), Miami Herald (15-3, 15-9) and Middleburg (15-6, 15-3).

All four county schools will be back in action on Tuesday, when they open Seminole Athletic Conference play. Seminole hosts Lake Mary while Oviedo visits Lake Howell.

OCS Rams salvage weekend

From Staff Reports

LALLABHASSEE — Jakob Hardick kept the weekend from being a total loss for the Orangewood Christian School boys soccer team.

Hardick scored on an assist from John Morley with 15:08 left to play to give the OCS Rams a 2-1 win over Tallahassee Maclay Saturday afternoon that capped a three-game road trip for Orangewood.

Playing at Maclay High School, the Rams lost to Georgia state champion Atlanta Padua High School 4-1 on Friday night. Hardick scored the Rams' only goal on an assist by Kris Miller.

On Saturday morning, Orangewood lost 2-1 to J.E. Walker High School from Marietta. Gai Scott Armstrong scored for the Rams. Hardick had the assist.

Against Maclay, David Brunner gave the Rams a 1-0 when he scored on a pass from Ker Unzuhi at 24:52 of the first half. Maclay (2-3) equaled five minutes later.

The Ram junior varsity won both of its games, beating Maclay 5-1 and 1-0. John Morley had three goals and an assist. David Green also scored three goals. Chas Smith and Drew Fleming each netted one goal.

Orangewood (3-2) will host DeBona Trinity Christian Tuesday.

Lake Brantley sophomore Jonas Jackel (No. 20, above) thrusts a fist in the air to celebrate Jeff Butler's 68-yard touchdown run on the first play of the second half that gave the Patriots a 14-6 lead over Lake Mary. The Rams never recovered as Brantley went on to win 31-6.

'Hounds run strong at L. Mary

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — Who got those dogs in here?

The Lyman Greyhounds gave a strong showing Saturday morning in the 13th annual Lake Mary Invitational cross-country meet, posting a pair of impressive wins.

In the varsity girls race, Kandi Bresnick finished second to Bishop Moore's Christy Miller to lead the Greyhounds to a overwhelming team victory, outscoring second place Trussville-Astronaut 38-128.

Lyman sophomore Rob Evans won the varsity boys race in 13 minutes, 57 seconds, finishing two seconds ahead of runner-up Toby Ayers of Lake Mary (15:59).

Trailing Lyman and Astronaut in the girls' standings were Lake Brantley (1:39), Rockledge (1:51) and Boone (1:78). Host Lake Mary was seventh (1:96). Lake Howell came in eighth (1:99) and Oviedo was 13th (3:34).

Led by Bresnick (who covered the two-mile course in 12:38), all seven Lyman runners finished in the top 25. Kelly Hudson was fourth (12:45), Loretta Keith came in seventh (12:49), Mandy Alford placed 10th (13:02) and Linda Davis took 15th (13:35) to complete the Greyhounds' scoring. Danielle Garrett finished 19th (13:53) and Melissa Hippert was 22nd (14:06) for Lyman.

Doing the scoring for Lake Brantley were Ashley Nassir (12th, 13:14), Katie Koepke (17th, 13:48), Erin Kenny (30th, 14:12), Lindsay Haynes (37th, 14:27) and Chrissy Yusefzadeh (42nd, 14:36).

Sampras waltzes to U.S. Open win

By STEVE WILSTEIN
AP Tennis Writer

NEW YORK — Pete Sampras faced only two dangers in the U.S. Open final, popping the strings on all his rackets or getting hit by a wild shot from Cedric Pioline. Other than that, Sampras had little trouble beating Pioline 6-4, 6-4, 6-3 to follow up his Wimbledon championship with a second U.S. Open title and punctuate his ascendancy again to No. 1.

From Sampras' first serve, a 127 mph screamer that landed a bit long but evoked knowing laughter from the crowd, there never was a doubt that Sampras would take home the $535,000 winner's check.

Only something strange was going to derail him, like running out of rackets. One after another, Sampras' ratty racket strings snapped from his booming serves and topspin shots, sending him to the sideline with a couple of rackets to be restringed quickly.

Pioline meanwhile, scattered balls all over the stadium. He knocked one return in the first set 25 rows into the stands. Then in the second set, Pioline hit a serve to the left temple of a fan in the second row. That happened to be a former World Cup goalie for Yugoslavia, who knows what it's like to get hit.

"This was much stronger, as fast as I ever got hit in my head," said Slobodan Damijano. "I had just complained how he plays soft. It was a bullet. I saw it, but I just have time to turn a little bit."

When Pioline wasn't abusing the balls and spectators, he played well enough not to embarrass himself but not enough to threaten Sampras. Pioline played almost flawlessly in beating Jim Courier in the fourth round, but Courier hit many more errors than Sampras.

The speed of Sampras' serves on 12 aces and many more service winners, the power of his deep forehands and backhands, the quickness and sharpness of his net game were all too much for Pioline.

Tampa's Pete Sampras (shown here playing in a tournament at Heathrow several years ago) showed why he is the world's No. 1 player as he won his second U.S. Open title Sunday with an easy 6-4, 6-4, 6-3 victory over Cedric Pioline in the Men's singles final at Flushing Meadows.

Giants do not overlook Bucs

By TOM CAVANAH AP Sports Writer

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. - Dan Reeves warned the New York Giants about looking past the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Simms threw a touchdown pass and set up a short TD run by Hampton with his longest pass in three years as the Giants jumped on the Bucs early en route to a 23-7 victory Sunday in Reeves' regular-season coaching debut for the home team at Giants Stadium.

David Treadwell added three field goals as the Giants (2-0) spoiled Craig Erickson's first start at quarterback.

Erickson actually played well for Tampa Bay, which has lost at least 10 games each of the last 10 seasons.

Trailing 20-7, the second-year quarterback from Miami moved Tampa Bay from Miami to the New York 1. On fourth-and-goal, Reggie Cobb was stopped inches short after linebacker Michael Brooks knifed into the backfield and tripped him.

It was par for the Bucs, who gained 45 yards on 19 carries. While Simms didn't have great numbers (12-for-26 for 204 yards), he hit the big passes and was lucky when he had to be.

The first big pass covered 31 yards to Ed McCaffrey and ignited a seven-play, 82-yard march that gave the Giants a 7-0 lead.

Marino outshone in own back yard

By STEVEN WINE AP Sports Writer

MIAMI - Boomer Eason continued his comeback, and this time Dan Marino failed to produce one.

Eason threw for two touchdowns, scored another and topped 300 yards passing for the second consecutive week to lead the New York Jets past the Miami Dolphins 24-14 Sunday.

Both teams are 1-1. Eason's 20-yard touchdown pass to Pat Chaffey with 4:44 left gave New York a cushion and averted any of Marino's magic.

Chaffey capped a 73-yard drive with his touchdown reception, a catch out of the backfield and over the middle on third-and-7.

The Dolphins' quarterback has rallied Miami from behind to win in the fourth quarter 25 times, including in the season opener a week ago at Indianapolis.

The Dolphins' hopes ended when Leonard Marshall recovered Marino's fumble at the Jets' 30-yard line with two minutes remaining.

New York's Karl Wilson recovered a fumble by Miami receiver, Mark Ingram at the Jets' 27 yard line in the fourth quarter.

The 32-year-old Eason, who lost his starting job last season with the Cincinnati Bengals, completed 22 of 33 passes for 323 yards. He had his first 300-yard game since 1991 in the Jets' opener.

Marino threw touchdown passes of 57 yards to Keith Jackson and 25 yards to Ingram. Jackson and linebacker John Offerdahl, two of Miami's best players, set out the second half with injuries.

Offerdahl hurt his left shoulder in the first period, and Jackson pulled his right hamstring in the second quarter. Their status for Miami's next game Sept. 26 at Buffalo was not immediately known.

As usual, Miami brought out the best in the Jets. Four of New York's 13 victories in the past three seasons have come against the Dolphins.

The Jets limited Miami to 27 yards rushing in 15 carries. Eason completed a long pass to set up each of New York's first three scores. His 46-yard pass to Terance Mathis on a flea-flicker led to Cary Blanchard's 39-yard field goal for a 17-14 lead in the third period.

Rob Moore caught bombs of 36 and 51 yards against cornerback J.B. Brown to set up the Jets' first two touchdowns. They came on Eason's 4-yard run with a third-and-goal quarterback draw, and Eason's 3-yard pass to rookie Fred Baxter. Moore made six catches for 124 yards - his second consecutive 100-yard game.

Fall gardening season is near

September is the start of the fall gardening season and there's plenty to do in our gardens at this time of year. Some of the gardening chores to consider are general clean-up of the grounds, seedbed preparation, planting a vegetable garden and annual flowers and planting hardy shrubs and trees. Also keep watching for disease and insects on lawns and ornamentals since they are likely to be present as long as the warm weather lasts.

If you are planning a fall flower garden start by preparing a good planting bed. Locate the plot in an area that receives full sun at least half of the day, and stay away from large trees. Tree roots compete for fertilizer and water, make planting difficult and the roots of these trees can be damaged by digging.

Hardy annuals that can survive cold weather include alyssum, blue salvia, dianthus, pansies, snapdragons and verbena. The selection seems unlimited so visit your favorite garden center to see what is available and start planning your garden. Fall is a great time to add flowering perennials to your garden and to divide those already in place. Perennials have the advantage of being a permanent part of the landscape and usually require less maintenance than annuals once established — require less water and fertilizer and most are bothered by few pests.

Other fall garden tasks that can be done now involve poinsettias. Poinsettias should have received their last pinching by now. Poinsettias start to set their flower buds around Oct. 10. They could also benefit from a light fertilization, but stop when the bracts begin to show color.

GARDENING
TRICIA THOMAS

Hibiscus and hydrangeas are probably beginning to look leggy. Trim and shape them by cutting them back by one third, in other words, if a plant is three feet tall, remove approximately one foot of growth. Pruning now gives them time to grow and harden off for the colder weather ahead.

Roses should be sprayed for black spot and aphids if they are present. Weak canes can be removed. A fall application of fertilizer is recommended. Additional roses can be planted in November and December so think about new varieties for your garden.

Fall is the time to plant bulbs for spring flowering. Easter lilies will bloom for Easter if planted now. Daylilies can be planted, too, or divide those already in your garden to start new beds or share with neighbors. Amaryllis can be raised and replanted so the tops protrude above the soil. They prefer alkaline soils, so be sure to check the Ph.

Strawberries are planted in September for berries in December and January. Purchase plants at local garden centers and select varieties for central Florida like Florida 90, Tioga, Sequoia or Florida belle. Strawberries prefer an organic soil, so add compost or other humus before planting.

Chrysanthemums will produce larger blooms if some of the flower buds are pinched off now. Keep a watchful eye out for mildew, mites and blackspot and spray or dust if needed.

Cool weather vegetables like broccoli, cauliflower, cabbage and lettuce go in the ground in fall. Plants are available at local garden centers, if you did not start yours from seed. Prepare the garden soil well before planting and incorporate fertilizer several weeks before planting.

Now is a good time to replenish the mulch in shrub and flower beds as well as tree rings. You can use renewable or by-product mulches such as oak leaves, grass clippings, pine needles, pine bark or melaleuca chips.

It doesn't take long to realize once we start surveying our gardens, that there are enough garden chores to fill up most of our weekends. Don't put off garden chores because they seem to only add up, which will mean more to do next month! Work a little each week so that more time will be available to enjoy the garden as the weather begins to cool.

Remember the Fall Plant Fair will be held Saturday, Oct. 2 from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. at the Cooperative Extension Services Ag. Center located cross the street from Flea World. Special guest speakers will be there to talk about gardening. Perennials, vines and many other plants will be available for sale. Informative displays for native plants, herbs, perennials and much more will be located in the auditorium. For more information about the Plant Fair, call the Ag. Center at 323-2500, ext. 5550 or 5558.

Retrieving book on saints takes more than prayer

DEAR ABBY: I was asked by a co-worker if I had a certain book with information on saints for a study she was doing on the subject. I said yes, and she asked if she could borrow it. I delivered the book to her, and after she had had it for about a month, I said if she was through with it, I would like to have it returned. Without her giving me a yes or no, more time elapsed and still no book, so I asked her again.

She said: "Promise you won't get upset, but remember when my car was stolen? Well, your book was in the trunk of my car."

I asked her to please check the car, and the garage where her car had been serviced following its return. I heard nothing from her, so I asked her again. She said she "forgot" to look.

Abby, to replace this out-of-print book would cost $140. I told her this and she said, "Oh, the $140 would be no problem."

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Meanwhile, not a word has been mentioned about it, and now I have the feeling that she has no intention of paying for a replacement. She happens to be a very religious person who never misses church. What can I do? My late husband left me this book. I am so mad at myself!

DISGUSTED WITH BIBLE PEOPLE IN N.J.
DEAR DISGUSTED: Not all "Bible people" practice what they read in the Bible, and your friend may be one of them. Tell her why the book is so important to you, and offer to go with her to the garage where the car was returned to help her make the inquiry. If the book is not located, advise her that you are initiating a book search to obtain a replacement copy — and you plan to send her the bill.

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago, one of your readers wrote that she thought she had received a recycled wedding gift. Perhaps instead of getting a secondhand gift, she received a secondhand gift box. Nearly all of us save extra-special gift boxes for later use.

JEANNETTE WHITWORTH, COMMERCE, TEXAS
DEAR JEANNETTE: I suspect almost everyone does save extra-special gift boxes. However, the reader had said that the gift cards that she found inside the packages indicated that the contents had been given to two of her guests who had been married four years previously.

NOTICE OF ACTION BEFORE THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
IN RE: The Teacher's Certificate of:
Timothy Roberts
13105 Shalworth Drive
Sanford, Florida 32773
Notice is hereby given to Timothy Roberts, Respondent, of the prosecution of an Administrative Complaint seeking the revocation or suspension of his teacher's certificate.
If Respondent, Timothy Roberts wishes to schedule an informal conference under the provisions of Section 126.60(4) with all requirements for the retention of the certificate, he should contact Jerry W. Whitmore, Professional Practices Services Section, Florida Education Center, Suite 352, Tallahassee, Florida 32399, (904) 495-5441.
If such a conference is not requested, this notice shall constitute service of the Administrative Complaint which shall be filed with the Education Practices Commission.
Failure to file a response to the complaint with the Education Practices Commission, Florida Education Center, Suite 301, Tallahassee, Florida 32399, (904) 495-5447, by October 4, 1993 shall constitute failure to respond in default. The complaint will then be considered by the Education Practices Commission for final action to impose disciplinary sanctions, including revocation or suspension of the certificate of Sections 126.67, 126.68, 201.251, 201.262, and 201.263, Florida Statutes. PLEASE BE GOVERNED ACCORDINGLY.

See a doctor about unusual symptoms

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've had sores in my mouth for about five months, went through a period when my stool was bright green and my glands were swollen and sore. I'm concerned because of a strong history of cancer in my family. Do I have something to worry about?

DEAR READER: Sores in the mouth can reflect infection with bacteria, viruses or yeasts. Ordinarily, these clear up in a few days. Persisting sores, however, may indicate an immune deficiency and should be investigated with appropriate tests, such as blood analyses for diabetes, leukemia and so forth.

Unusual stool color is commonly the consequence of something in the diet. Kale and spinach will cause discoloration. So will some medications, notably iron pills. Internal bleeding does not cause green stools; rather, they resemble tar in color and consistency.

Swollen lymph glands frequently appear in response to infection, although - as you know - various cancers can also cause the glands to enlarge. Your symptoms may indicate a health problem. Therefore, I encourage you to pay your family physician a visit for the purposes of examination and testing.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Viruses and Cancer." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My problem is acute perspiration. Even at the onset of minimal tasks, it's heavy sweat. Is there a cure or preventive? I'm at my wits' end.

DEAR READER: An elderly gentleman once told me: "Horses sweat, men perspire and women glow." This quaint aphorism offers little solace to those people who have a problem with excess perspiration.

To a degree, this tendency appears to be inherited - and, of course, is related to activity and environment. However, patients with hyperthyroidism (an over-active thyroid gland) sweat (maybe glow) excessively; pronounced perspiration also accompanies infection and anemia.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
It has been said countless times that the quickest way to a divorce is for a couple to play bridge together. However, it has always seemed to me that if a couple can handle the pressures of the game, they should do very well. They can spend far longer than other pairs discussing their bidding and card-play methods, resulting in fewer misunderstandings.

As if to prove my point, from Belgium come Valerie and Guy Polet. They have been successful partners in bridge and matrimony for over 10 years. Of course, it doesn't hurt their results when Valerie handles the cards the way she did in today's deal. It occurred during the Mixed Teams at the Generali Common Market Championships, held in Portugal last May. Guy, North, didn't hold back with his leap to four hearts. The contract appears to depend on one black-suit finesse working. That will happen, the textbooks tell us, about three-quarters of the time. But here they are both losing. West cashed her two top diamonds before exiting with the heart king. The significance of this wasn't wasted on Valerie. It looked as if West had both black-suit kings. Valerie drew trumps and led a club to her ace. If West had retained her king, another club would have endangered her. West could then lead either a spade into declarer's A-Q tenace or a diamond, conceding a ruff-and-discard. In trying to avoid this ignominy, West unblocked her club king under South's ace. Perhaps East had jack-third of clubs. But not today. Valerie cashied her clubs and conceded a spade trick at the end.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Sept. 14, 1993

You could have some marvelous opportunities in the year ahead to improve your financial lot in life. Lady Luck will be an intricate factor in helping you put various deals together.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Good things you do for others today have a way of coming back to you in greater proportion, although the persons you help might not be the same ones who'll help you. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your greatest asset today is your ability to elevate the hopes and expectations of friends with whom you'll be involved. You could have a very big affect on two in particular.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

Cupid tends to favor you today in your romantic involvements, especially where competition is concerned. Don't get up tight if you see another trying to poach on your territory.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Putting the one you love on a pedestal will help your romance today, not hinder it. It's important you let others know how you feel about your special someone.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might be luckier than usual today in advancing a personal interest where a member of the opposite sex is in a position to help you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're in an interesting cycle where bonds will be considerably strengthened between you and three persons you already like. Each relationship will grow significantly.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A joint venture in which you may become involved today has strong probabilities for success. Each party can contribute something the other lacks.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In order to make this a gratifying day, you have to spend some quality time with your special someone. Avoid situations that include a third party.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try to find activities today that allow you to express your artistic and creative urges. You can be extremely productive when working on labors of love.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone you've recently met and to whom you're attracted appears to be equally as interested in you. In order to facilitate this relationship, make the first move.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your greatest joy today will be the joy of giving. Don't repress your generous impulses when they urge you to share something you cherish with the one you love.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In the business world today your most helpful encounters are likely to involve members of the opposite gender. Try to work with them when possible.
