There was no Board of Adjustment meeting scheduled for September as of Aug. 31.

In cases of Sanford City Commission meetings, should sufficient items be presented for commission discussion, workshop meetings may be scheduled during the late afternoon hours on the dates of the regular meetings. These are held in the City Manager's Conference Room on the second floor of the city hall.

The Sanford City Hall is located at 300 N. Park Avenue in Sanford.

Show goes to the dogs

LONGWOOD — The Longwood Parks and Recreation Department is sponsoring a fun dog show Saturday, Sept. 11 at the Ed Myers Recreational Building.

The contests, which begin at 10 a.m., will include dogs with the shortest tail, longest tail, biggest and smallest animal, best trick, most obedient, best costume, owner/pet look-alike and best of show.

The competition is open to all dogs accompanied by their "best friend." Dogs must have proof of current shots.

The entry fee is $1 or a can of dog food. The money and food will be donated to the Humane Society of Seminole County.

Along with the contests, there will be Adopt-a-Pet through the Humane Society, optional pet tattooing for identification, agility course demonstration and Longwood Police Department K-9 demonstration.

Recreation coordinator Sandy Lomax requests all dog owners bring water bowls for their pets. The water will be provided.

The Ed Myers building is located at Wilma and Warren Avenues, Longwood.

Briton new Scrabble champion

NEW YORK — Wet was the word that clinched the World Scrabble Championship on Monday for a 26-year-old television producer from Leeds, England.

Mark Nyman's victory did not come easy. He battled Canadian Joel Wapnick from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. during five grueling games.

Down two games to none, the producer for Yorkshire Television's "Countdown" program rallied in the last three with words such as "velures" for 91 points, and "quint" for 53.

Paying for cable TV

Starting Wednesday, some prices rise, some fall

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Cable TV households will have to wait until receiving their next bill to determine if their rates will be going up or down. The changes will be determined by the level of service.

Effective tomorrow, changes written into law last year by Congress will affect the way CableVision of Central Florida, (CV), and all other cable TV users throughout the nation will pay for monthly cable services.

The new federal regulations will make cable television cheaper for most viewers. But not for everyone. As many as a third of the nation's 58 million cable customers will pay more.

TCI of Central Florida, formerly known as Storer, serves 17,500 homes in the Lake Mary, Altamonte Springs and Seminole County areas. TCI general manager Jeff Walker commented,

"About half of our customers will see their rates go down, but half will have them going up somewhat."

CableVision, which serves the Sanford area, will see rates for basic service decreasing from 1992 rates. Preferred service rates will decrease in about half of the 66 areas served by the company.

SANFORD — Dede Schaffner, director of the Dividends volunteer program for the Seminole County school district, has been recognized by a local women's group for her selfless service to the community and for being a powerful role model to young women.

Schaffner has been named one of four area winners of the 1993 Summit Award, presented annually by the Central Florida Women's Resource Center, an Orlando-based organization that identifies women's needs in the community and then develops ways to meet those needs through collaborative efforts.

"The Women's Resource Center created the Summit Awards to recognize area women who serve as positive role models to the women of our community," said Lynda Graham Mays, president of the center. "These women are our County will appeal ruling over private use

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners gave unanimous approval Monday to appealing a decision by the Florida Department of Environmental Protection preventing the U.S. Soccer Federation from using the county's $2.8 million facility built for them at Sylvan Lake Park.

County Attorney Bob McMillan said he is considering whether to appeal the decision to the Fifth District Court of Appeals in Daytona Beach or follow the FDEP administrative process. The 5th DCA appeal might be less costly, he said.

Vomit cleanup prompts lawsuit

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A Longwood woman jailed two years ago on a drunken driving charge has sued Seminole County Sheriff Don Eslinger alleging a jail guard made her clean up vomit and perform other janitorial tasks.

Sharon R. Decker claims her right to due process guaranteed under the 14th Amendment was violated during her overnight stay at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. She had not been convicted of any crime at the time of the incident and the DUI charge she was booked on was later reduced to a reckless driving charge.

Initially stopped by police for traveling 49 mph in a 35 mph zone, field sobriety tests were conducted after an odor of an alcoholic beverage was detected on Decker's breath, according to her arrest report.

At about 6 a.m., five hours after she was arrested on Lake Mary Boulevard for DUI on August 27, 1991 and booked into jail, Decker claims she was awakened by a "Jane Doe" black correctional officer

"with a large frame and afro straight up hair with the tips colored orange."

Further, Decker claims the correctional officer threw a pair of rubber gloves at her and said, "put those gloves on, you've got a mess to clean up out here." Decker says she was made to clean up vomit from an inmate in restraints and also to See Cleanup, Page 5A

County kills utility tax; hikes gas, garbage fees

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners killed a proposed hike to the unincorporated utility tax, but increased garbage dumping fees and the county gas tax.

The meeting had been delayed since last Tuesday because commissioner Bob Sturm was hospitalized due to lung disease. Sturm wasn't present Monday because he was returned to the hospital Saturday. Sturm's wife Trudy Sturm said this morning her husband is recovering at Florida Hospital-Altamonte.

But without Sturm's vote, commissioners joined unanimously to increase the county gasoline tax by a penny to raise $775,000 next year and about $1.2 million in subsequent years for mass transit. County officials estimate the tax will cost drivers about $1 per month.

Commissioners killed the proposed 88 percent increase in the utility tax, proposed for drainage studies and repairs, saying they weren't ready to commit to a dedicated revenue for their budding stormwater program. The program is expected to cost more than $100 million during the next 20 years.

Pitfall for new interchange may be width of road

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Although property owners at the intersection of Interstate 4 and County Road 46-A are nearing agreement to donate land for a new interchange, state road officials are concerned a new pitfall may emerge.

Officials from The Florida Department of Transportation are concerned they may have to widen I-4 from Lake Mary Boulevard to the proposed new interchange to meet federal highway requirements. The state is in the planning stages of widening I-4 between State Road 434 and Lake Mary Boulevard, but has no plans to widen the highway north of there pending the outcome of a new interstate study.

The federal government required the state to widen a portion of Interstate 95 north of Daytona in approving a new interchange at 11th Street.

Congressman John Mica and Senator Connie Mack have pledged support for the interchange and their assistance should the widen- See Road, Page 5A

Man convicted of killing tourist

MIAMI — A Miami man was convicted of fatally shooting a Canadian woman vacationing in South Florida 2½ years ago. A jury took just 30 minutes Monday to find Willie Silas, 30, guilty in the shooting of Gemma Lapointe, 56, of Dorval, Quebec, during a robbery attempt on March 27, 1991. Silas could face the death penalty.

Prosecutor Rose Marie Antonacci-Pollock said it was the first murder conviction of a tourist killer in recent years, which has seen an upsurge of violence against vacationers to the Sunshine State.

Lapointe was a passenger in a vehicle driven by her husband, Leo. Silas and his friend, Gary Ponder, had just robbed a woman of her purse, but it contained only $30, said assistant state attorney Joshua Weintraub.

"They figured it wasn't enough, and they hit the streets again," he said. "And when they saw a Quebec tag a few minutes later, they had their next target: a Canadian tourist."

Silas and Ponder blocked the Lapointes' car with their vehicle, jumped out and tried to rob the couple. Leo Lapointe then tried to back up the car and Silas fired a .38 caliber once at the car's passenger side windshield, hitting Gemma Lapointe in the forehead.

Warner can serve probation in Florida

CINCINNATI — The businessman imprisoned after the 1985 collapse of his Home State Savings Bank may serve his five-year probation in Florida but still might have to pay $12.2 million to Ohio.

Marvin Warner, who was convicted in 1987 of Ohio securities violations and unauthorized transfers of Home State's money, spent two years and four months in prison.

The thrift's failure forced the temporary closing of every privately insured savings and loan in Ohio.

Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge Fred Cartolano ruled Monday that Warner can serve his probation under terms of an interstate agreement. Warner, who was released from prison Aug. 20, owns a horse farm near Ocala, Fla.

State Prosecutor Lawrence Kane Jr. did not object to the ruling. Warner, a former millionaire and ambassador to Switzerland under President Carter, had no comment after the hearing.

Company fined $1 million

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Lawyers for both the government and a bankrupt defense contractor were satisfied with a plea agreement that resulted in a $1 million fine on the company for padding military contracts.

U.S. District Judge Thomas McAvoy imposed the fine against Bicoastal Corp. on Monday after an attorney entered a guilty plea on its behalf to a single misdemeanor count of mail fraud.

In exchange, McAvoy agreed to dismiss 24 felony counts against the Tampa, Fla.-based company, which is currently liquidating its assets under Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection.

"The court feels that because of the corporation's financial condition, it has no choice but to accept the plea," McAvoy said.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Thousands owed on bad checks

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — One place you wouldn't want to send a hot check is the Department of Revenue, but people do — last year, to the tune of $34 million. That's a total of 15,085 bad checks.

"The one feeling out there is if you write a check to the Department of Revenue, and you know you don't have the money, you're still not trying to defraud the state. You're not trying to hide the liability," said Tracy Barnes, the department's acting bureau chief of collections.

The state does a decent job of collecting on bad checks, according to state records reviewed by the St. Petersburg Times for a story today. In 1992, the Revenue Department collected on 11,983 bad checks, or 79 percent.

That left $4.2 million uncollected. Some cases were involved in bankruptcy proceedings, some were sent to collection agencies and others led to tax warrants filed in court. In those cases, it's unlikely the department will get taxpayers' money. And revenue officials don't want to appear overzealous.

"We have a history of being seen as too strong on the little old lady who inadvertently sent in a worthless check," said Larry Fuchs, the department's executive director. "There has to be a certain amount of balance here."

Sometimes, big tax bills never get paid. In August 1990, the Revenue Department filed a tax warrant against Nelson Bulck of Bay County, owned by County Commissioner Mike Nelson, contending the business owned $55,000 in state sales taxes.

By March of 1991, Nelson Bulck had filed for bankruptcy and owed nearly $77,400 because of penalties and interest. Records show the department got two bad checks, one for $9,645 and another for $23,780.

When the bankruptcy case was closed, the Revenue Department never got a dime, even though it's a felony to write a bad check of more than $150 to the agency.

Nelson's attorney, Edward Hutchinson, said he is trying to negotiate a settlement for taxes owed to the federal government. It doesn't appear a criminal case was ever pursued, although revenue records are private.

It's impossible with a limited staff to pursue every case, said Tom Steckler, deputy chief of the department's investigations section.

"We don't have the ability to work every case," he said.

Merkle punches motorist

By Associated Press

LARGO — Robert Merkle, former U.S. attorney and Republican Senate candidate, said he punched a motorist because he feared for his family's safety.

The motorist, George Michael Gusler, said Merkle's the one to be feared.

"This is a guy who was an officer of the courts, sworn to uphold the law, and he went way outside the boundary," said Gusler, 45.

Merkle, then chief federal prosecutor for Florida's middle district, won the 1988 conviction of cocaine kingpin Carlos Lehder Rivas. He lost a bid for the GOP nomination for the U.S. Senate later that year and is now in private practice.

Gusler works for Home Shopping Network in Clearwater. No charges have been filed in the Friday night altercation.

Tearful exit only latest setback for prosecution in burning case

By JAMES MARTINEZ
Associated Press Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — With no physical evidence tying two whites to the burning of a black tourist and a key witness who admitted he would lie to the jury, prosecutors now must deal with their top litigator quitting in tears during the trial.

Len Register, a veteran prosecutor who led the state's questioning of witnesses and spent eight months preparing the case, resigned Monday after a long-running feud with his boss. In whose hands the trial was left.

"My ability to present a case I have lived with for the last eight months had been undermined to the point of being ineffective," Register told the St. Petersburg Times for a story today. State Attorney Harry Lee Coe III, a 61 year-old former judge who has not personally prosecuted a case in 22 years, said the case would not be affected by Register's exit.

"This hasn't changed anything one iota," he said. "I've read all the depositions and I've been advised throughout the course of this entire proceeding, I'm up on everything."

Register walked out of the Palm Beach County Court-house with tears in his eyes during a recess after his questions to witnesses were repeatedly interrupted by whispered suggestions from co-counsel Coe. The last incident came when Coe rose to make an objection to a question Register had asked. As he left his hotel, Register told reporters he had spoken with victim Christopher Wilson and assured him he would encourage a federal prosecution of the defendants if the verdict in the state trial is "inappropriate."

Tensions between Register and Coe had been building for months and came to a head last week when the defense brought up that Coe gave the key witness in the case a plea deal the day after he offered the witnesses attorney a job — Register's job. Coe acknowledged making the offer — which was declined — and denied there was any impropriety.

Register said last week he would resign at the end of the case. His departure Monday effectively ended his employment.

Student smoking debate

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — University students don't have to fear that police, armed with new regulations, will come knocking on their doors looking for evidence of smoking, a state lawyer said.

The issue of student privacy is just one of the points that has left opponents of the proposed rules fuming. Others include the status of malls as public places where smoking is limited and the demands on airports to notify travelers of smoking and non-smoking areas.

Critics have filed an administrative challenge to the proposed rules, written to implement changes to Florida's Clean Indoor Air Act.

But that action is independent of the internal review by the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services of the regulations. That internal HRS review was the subject of Monday's hearing.

"We will not deputize folks to come into your living room to determine whether or not you've got residue there — unless that residue comes from something more significant," he said, prompting some laughter.

Privacy, however, can be a two-edged sword when it comes to smoking.

Clean Indoor Air Act

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's Clean Indoor Air Act includes the following sections:

386.202 Legislative Intent — The purpose of this part is to protect the public health, comfort and environment by creating areas in public places and at public meetings that are reasonably free from tobacco smoke by providing a uniform statewide maximum code. This part shall not be interpreted to require the designation of smoking areas. However it is the intent of the Legislature to discourage the designation of any area within a government building as a smoking area.

386.204 Prohibition — A person may not smoke in a public place or at a public meeting except in designated smoking areas. These prohibitions do not apply in cases in which an entire room or hall is used for a private function and seating arrangements are under the control of the sponsor of the function and not of the proprietor or person in charge of the room or hall.

386.208 Penalties — Any person who violates a 386.204 commits a noncriminal violation as provided for in s. 775.08(3), punishable by a fine of not more than $100 for the first violation and not more than $500 for each subsequent violation. Jurisdiction shall be with the appropriate county court.

Offenses reported to the sheriff

• A tan 10-foot boat was reportedly stolen from a dock, on Dublin Drive at the Crossings near Lake Mary. The sheriff's report indicates the theft may have taken place between Monday and Thursday of this past week. The boat was valued at $500.

• A woman reported her purse had been stolen from her shopping cart while she was in a grocery store on Lake Mary Boulevard Thursday. Deputies said the purse contained a reported $369 in currency and a number of checks and ID papers.

• A brown and purple 1989 Mercury was reportedly stolen Friday from the 300 block of Shadow Bay in Longwood. The license number of the vehicle was listed as GEX-87E.

• A 1986 Suzuki motorcycle was reportedly stolen from a porch during the weekend, in the 700 block of Creekwater Terrace, at Pebblecreek Apartments. The orange and blue motorcycle was valued at $795. No license number was listed.

• Plastic sheeting, valued at $60, was reportedly stolen Sunday from a structure under construction, in the 400 block of Vihlen Road in Ravenna Park.

Vehicular burglary

Sanford police arrested Howard L. Armstrong, 29, 1320 William Avenue, Sanford, early Wednesday morning. A witness reported seeing Armstrong burglarizing a Southern Bell vehicle parked in the 900 block of S. French Avenue. Armstrong was charged with burglary.

Drug arrest

Sheriff's deputies arrested Leroy Norman Cole, 37, 2281 Water Street, Sanford, on Saturday. Deputies said they stopped Cole's vehicle near Midway and Broadway avenues, when a computer check revealed his license had been suspended. A search of his person and vehicle revealed 10 bags of what the deputy described as a "green leafy substance," which proved to be cannabis, and four packs of what was proven to be crack cocaine. Cole was charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to distribute, and driving with a suspended/revoked license.

Two nabbed in stolen vehicle

Sanford police arrested James W. Griffin, 47, 266 Live Oak Blvd., Sanford, and Arinzzechukwu C. Ekwunwu, 18, or Orlando, at 27th Street and Myrtle Avenue on Sunday. Police said the license number of the vehicle was listed as having been taken from a car rental company and not returned. According to the arrest report, Ekwunwu was driving the vehicle which had been leased by Griffin, who was a passenger in the car. Each was charged with grand theft auto.

Traffic stop arrest

Lake Mary police arrested Alfonso Long Frazier, 37, of Orlando, on Lake Mary Blvd. Sunday. Police said they stopped the vehicle when they noticed an apparently altered license tag. Frazier was charged with being a habitual traffic violator, attached tag not assigned, and having an altered license tag.

Two charged with violence

Sheriff's deputies arrested a couple Sunday at their residence following what officers said was a dispute which arose as the result of a party. David William Tricker, 44, and Jeanette A. Tricker, 40, both of 555 Estates Place, Longwood, were charged with battery, domestic violence.

Offenses reported to Sanford police

• Electronic equipment and jewelry with an undetermined value, were reportedly stolen Friday from a residence in the 1600 block of W. 14th Street in Sanford.

• In excess of $1,510 of equipment was reportedly stolen in the burglary of a business in the 300 block of N. French Ave. on Saturday.

• $80 in property was said to have been taken in a restaurant burglary in the 2400 block of S. Park Ave. on Saturday.

• An amplifier and radar detector valued at $1,000 was reportedly stolen in the burglary of a pickup truck Sunday in the 1200 block of Stonebrook Drive.

• A woman reported being accosted by a female in a parking lot in the 3000 block of S. Orlando Drive Friday, as she was loading purchases into her vehicle. She said the woman got into her car and removed $220 from her purse.

Rape allegations

Florida State suspends second fraternity after party

By CURT ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — A second Florida State University fraternity has been suspended after a 19-year-old student said she was raped during a drunken party.

No suspects have been arrested in the attack on a Tallahassee Community College student at Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity Saturday night, said university police Lt. Jack Handley.

"We're attempting to identify suspects now. We think we'll be able to do so with fingerprints and photo lineups," Handley said.

The Sigma Phi Epsilon suspension follows that of Pi Kappa Alpha after a 1988 gang rape of an 18-year-old student. The Pi Kappa Alpha suspension could have ended this year, but was continued by the university until at least 1996 because of the outcry by women's groups opposed to reinstatement.

According to a university news release, up to 1,000 people attended a party at Sigma Phi Epsilon Saturday night, including the community college student. The victim was given alcohol and, on her way to a bathroom, was taken by a male to the house's basement.

Another male was waiting there in a small, darkened room. The victim was hit in the face and both males forced her onto a table, where she was raped twice, according to the news release.

Handley said it is not yet clear whether the attackers were fraternity members.

The latest rape was reported Sunday evening. Monday, university officials told the fraternity to cease all operations immediately, including rush activities, chapter meetings, parties and elections.

"I have determined that your chapter's actions pose an unacceptable risk of danger to the health, safety or welfare of the university community," Sherrill W. Ragans, associate vice president for student affairs, wrote to Sigma Phi Epsilon President Geoffrey Cotter.

The chapter can appeal the suspension, but Cotter said Monday no decisions had been made. A national fraternity official from headquarters in Richmond, Va., was planning to meet with the chapter Monday night to discuss what to do.

"We'd like to talk with this man before we release any information," he said.

The suspension is indefinite until the fraternity requests a hearing on the matter. If no appeal is made, the suspension would continue until the resolution of any possible court case.

In the 1988 case, two members of the Pi Kappa Alpha chapter at Florida State and a visiting fraternity member from Auburn University were charged with sexually assaulting a student at the fraternity house. One member of that fraternity was sentenced to a year in jail, and the other two were put on probation.

Teen's dad reportedly threatened Jackson

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN

LOS ANGELES — Police searched a Las Vegas hotel suite used by Michael Jackson, while a TV station broadcast tape-recorded threats against the singer purportedly made by the father of a boy Jackson allegedly molested.

Jackson canceled a Singapore concert Monday because he reportedly was too ill to perform. He was back in seclusion today, while outside his hotel window, young fans kept vigil in the rain.

It was the third show Jackson postponed since launching the latest leg of his "Dangerous" tour last week, at the same time Los Angeles police revealed the entertainer was under investigation for allegedly molesting a 13-year-old boy. Jackson denied any wrongdoing in a statement released last week.

KCBS-TV on Monday broadcast excerpts of a recording of a telephone conversation in which the boy's father purportedly made a threat involving Jackson and the boy's mother. The parents recently were involved in a custody dispute over the boy.

"Certain things are going to have to come out and those two are not going to have any defense against me whatsoever," the father purportedly told the boy's stepfather in July before the complaints were filed that prompted the investigation. "It's going to be a massacre if I don't get what I want."

Chicago researchers document atrocities for war crimes trials

By LINDSEY TANNER
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO — In a cramped room that used to house a video arcade, researchers pore over reports of men in the former Yugoslavia forced to sodomize each other, have sex with their sons and watch their daughters raped.

The researchers have the gruesome task of documenting atrocities for the first international war crimes trials since World War II, a job that for many means 15 hour days, seven days a week.

So far they've come up with a list of thousands of killings, rapes, torture and mutilation involving women and men, young and old — and the reports keep coming.

"It's really hard to imagine that they're happening in this day and age," Mark Bennett, a staff attorney, said Monday. "Sometimes I read this stuff and I think it's happening in the Middle Ages."

Colleague Carson Wetzel sat in the makeshift office at DePaul University, starting at a list taped to the wall of 393 detention centers in the war-torn Balkans. He's haunted by many of the reports. In one prison, he said, "seven pairs of fathers and sons were forced to have oral sex with each other and then were shot."

At least 200,000 people are dead or missing in the 17-month war and about 2 million have been forced from their homes. It began after Muslims and Croats voted to secede from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia.

Although the Serbs have been portrayed as the main aggressors, many victims of atrocities have been Serbian, and perpetrators also have included Muslims and Croatsians, Bennett said.

The U.N. General Assembly is expected to pick 11 jurists to serve at the trials, scheduled to start within a month in the Netherlands.

But privately, diplomats say they expect few of those guilty of ethnic cleansing or other war crimes will be brought to justice. Serb, Muslim and Croat leaders probably will demand some immunity before signing a peace treaty, diplomats say, and the sovereign states created in the partition are not likely to surrender leaders and military commanders for trial outside their borders.

DePaul law professor Cherif Bassiouni was named to a five-member U.N. commission to investigate the war crimes.

An international law expert and the only American on the commission, Bassiouni is overseeing the project and has compiled a staff of about 25 lawyers and students, mostly volunteers. He also received $400,000 in equipment and staff support from DePaul, a Catholic university.

The group receives written reports of atrocities, many unverified, from foreign governments and various human rights groups. Bassiouni, who was born in Egypt, also has traveled to the former Yugoslavia to talk with victims.

Staffers log information in computers and compile periodic reports that are sent to the U.N. commission in Geneva. The files eventually will be given to prosecutors for the war crimes trials.

Three reports totaling nearly 800 pages — on rape, mass graves and concentration camps — were sent last week, Bennett said.

The Security Council later will select a lead prosecutor from names presented by Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali. Bassiouni is considered to be a candidate.

Since the project began in January, Bennett, 29, hasn't seen much of his wife, who's expecting their first child and hates that he's rarely home.

"We're all kind of sacrificing our personal lives for this," Bennett said. "I tell her at least we have a home to come home to."

For Bennett the long hours of emotionally draining work are worth it.

"If we just turn a blind eye to it, which is what the world leaders are doing now, it's just going to happen again and again," he said.

People prepared for hurricane

With hurricane Emily giving Central Floridians cause for concern, people did well. Preparations were perhaps done on a larger scale than ever before.

There were several reasons for what was accomplished during the past four days. Of major consideration was the fear of mass destruction caused by Hurricane Andrew in South Florida last year.

The weather bureau and news media provided citizens with improved mapping and reporting procedures. Seldom have the people been better informed.

Several months ago, Seminole County, in conjunction with area law enforcement, police and fire departments, and utility companies, held a training exercise. It helped in establishing ways to handle emergency situations ranging from massive flooding, to the need for port-a-johns.

Most of the advance preparations however, can be attributed to individual home and business owners. Building supply stores were swamped with people seeking plywood with which to board up windows and doors. Tape for windows and batteries for radios and flashlights sold in vast numbers, as did bottled water.

Now that the threat from Emily is gone, there may be many people who are wondering where to store plywood and other items. While it may be a concern, the fact that the items are now on hand can prove invaluable. They may well be needed should another hurricane threat arise in the three remaining months of the season.

There are some preparations which still need improving. The Central Florida Red Cross had suggested there were not enough volunteers to man the 25 to 30 shelters which would be needed in an extreme emergency.

Some residents ignored the threat, and showed no signs of even initial preparation.

The majority however, who took individual action toward planning and preparation needs to be recognized. People who refused to be complacent and took steps toward protecting their lives and property, can pat themselves on the back. Even though the threat has ended, they did what was best under the circumstances and have reason to be proud.

More on Tiger's Eye

What is it with the Seminole County commissioners? They are trying to force Tiger's Eye Productions to relocate their school. Why?

Commissioner Larry Furlong congratulated David McMillan, president of Tiger's Eye Productions, in 1990 for his facility located at 5789 Oak Hollow Lane, Oviedo, Florida. He stated that "this location was a perfect place for his wildlife preservation school and endangered animal compound."

Tiger's Eye Productions, a non-profit organization, teaches students hands-on experience with a wide variety of exotic animals. They are fully insured and licensed by state and federal agencies. Their students and graduate staff volunteer their time and effort presenting programs throughout Central Florida about the values of our world's environment and wildlife preservation. This education reaches from the pre-school to the college student; the disabled and the learning impaired; our senior citizens; church and special groups; and interested people at the malls and flea markets, telling them about the damage that has been done to our planet and how they can help in the future. The more they know about their earth, their resources and their animals, the better chance they have of preserving "all life!"

Thousands of Florida children and adults have seen and touched our state animal, the Florida panther. Due to habitat destruction, road kill and water contamination, we now have but a few of these beautiful creatures left in the wild. Protect what is yours, the animals of the world, while they are still alive and able to share their beauty and their magnificence. Animals can learn from conditioning, why not man? Why do these animals have to be wiped off the face of the earth due to greed, ignorance, indifference and neglect?

Maybe this whole issue is not about the relocation of the school, its educational responsibilities to our children of the future, our environment, or our wildlife. But rather, is there an ulterior motive mixed up in all of this? ...land use!

Big Labor is making a comeback

Remember the bad old days when, say, the local garbage workers' union would walk off the job? Or the local teachers' union would orchestrate a "sick out"? Or the local bus drivers' union would stage a wildcat strike?

You'd have a mountain of refuse piled up in your back yard awaiting the garbageman's return. You'd have to find someone to look after your kids while they enjoyed their unscheduled vacation. You'd have to catch a taxi or bum a ride to work.

During the past decade, such public annoyances became increasingly rare. In 1980, there were 187 work stoppages throughout the country involving 1,000 or more workers. A staggering 20.8 million work days were spent idle. By 1990, the number of strikes had fallen to 44 with only 6.5 million days of idleness.

The defanging of the labor unions may be traced back to that fateful August of 12 years ago when 13,000 members of PATCO, the air traffic controllers union, staged an unlawful strike and defiantly ignored a back-to-work order.

Like the garbage workers, the teachers and the bus drivers, the air traffic controllers figured that by striking off the job and inconveniencing the public, they would eventually force their employer -- in this case the federal government -- to accede to their labor demands.

But the PATCO strikers' ultimate boss, President Ronald Reagan, threw them a curve. He fired them. Then he replaced them.

Employers have had the right to hire permanent replacement workers since the Supreme Court so ruled in 1938. But while employers often reminded union negotiators of this right during collective bargaining, not until Reagan followed through did unions start to take this threat seriously.

With unionized workers much less inclined to risk their jobs through strike actions, the 1980s were a period of relative calm on the labor front. And while union bosses lament their loss of power during the past decade, rank-and-file workers did rather well.

Industrial productivity, as measured by output per hour, improved by more than 40 percent between 1980 and 1990. Over the same span, the average weekly earnings of industrialized workers increased by more than 50 percent. The 1980s were good times for the average American worker.

Now get ready for a return to the bad old days. Garbage piles. AWOL teachers. Idle buses. Bill Clinton has a debt to organized labor, which spent millions of dollars (in union members' dues) to put their man in the Oval Office. He's paying it back big time.

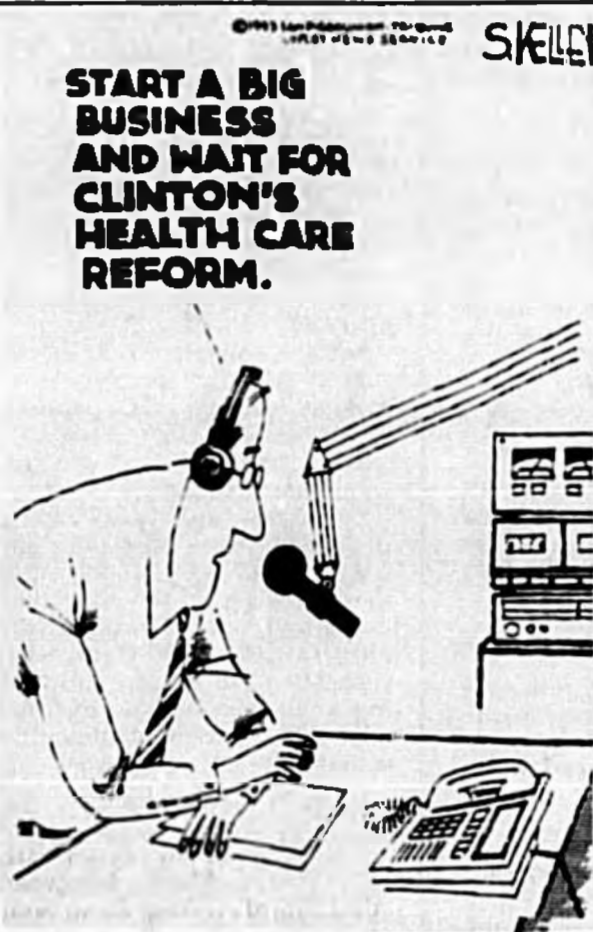

Clinton barely had learned his way around the West Wing before he made his first installment to Big Labor, rescinding two executive orders signed by his Republican predecessor.

By making Big Labor's agenda his own, President Clinton has all but assured that there will more, not less, labor strife while he is in the White House.

Maybe the unions are nostalgic for the days when strikes were commonplace, but the American public surely is not.

By 1990, the number of strikes had fallen to 44 with only 6.5 million days of idleness.

Toxins contaminate food chain

In July, wildlife biologists made some discoveries along the Great Lakes shoreline in Michigan that would normally delight them: four just-hatched baby eaglets. But these young birds are different. Each is deformed. Three have crossed bills. One's claws are curled and shortened like clubfootedness.

There is no proof why this happened, but chemical pollution of the near-shore waters with compounds like dioxin (TCDD) is the likely cause.

"The probability is fairly high that one or more of the deformities in these four eaglets is caused by contamination," says Dave Best, a U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service biologist stationed at East Lansing, Mich. In recent years, Best says, 10 deformed eaglets have been found close-by the lakes' shorelines, but never four at one time. The legs on one eaglet discovered last year were not positioned on its body where they are supposed to be. Best recalls, so that "the bird couldn't really even stand up."

But if the eaglets hadn't even left the nest, how could contaminants in the water be responsible for deformities apparent at their birth?

The answer to that question is providing chilling insights into how some environmental toxins act on living tissue.

The mechanism scientists are discovering is this: Some toxins, particularly bioaccumulators like dioxin that persist in the body, work their way up the food chain from water, to fish, to adult eagles that prey in near-shore waters. The adult is the one exposed to the contaminant. The damage caused by the contaminant shows up in the offspring.

This occurs because these compounds disrupt the endocrine system, the powerful hormonal signals that, among other things, tell cells in developing embryos how to multiply. The suspicion with the eaglets is that their deformities were caused by embryonic exposure to one of these endocrine-disrupting contaminants.

Eagles aren't the only victims. In the late 1960s, wildlife biologists working on the Channel Islands off the California coast noticed something unusual. Western gull nests contained five to six eggs, instead of the normal three. When they looked closer, they found that pairs of females were nesting together. This unusual behavior for gulls had no parallel in what was known about the birds. The explanation was ultimately traced to likely alterations in normal sexual behavior triggered by exposure to the now highly restricted compound DDT.

"Herring gulls nesting in the Great Lakes, particularly Lakes Ontario and Michigan" have shown high incidences of "female-female pairing," according to published research by Glen A. Fox of the Canadian Wildlife Service. In cases where eggs are tended by females pairs, the offspring were often found dead, retarded or deformed.

Wildlife biologist Best says, "I've also found deformities associated with other Great Lakes bird species. We've got deformities for Caspian terns, common terns, Lee Forster's terns, the great blue heron, the double-breasted cormorant, the herring gull and now the bald eagle."

A few research studies indicate males can be demasculinized because of exposure to endocrine disruptors. In these instances, according to the research, the feminization of male birds may result in their not reproducing and excluding themselves from the rest of the flock.

In a few other instances, some females of a marine snail species have developed male sexual organs. Again, endocrine disruptors are the suspected cause, in this case the compound tributyltin (TBT).

Along the Fenholloway River and Eleven Mile Creek in North Florida, scientists have found female fish developing male mutations. The suspect, again dioxin.

These kinds of aberrations are not widespread, but even in isolated instances they justify concern not only for wildlife, but ultimately for humans. We eat the same fish, after all, that the eagles prey upon.

Some researchers believe that the increase since the 1950s in the rates of male prostate and female breast cancer are linked to endocrine disruptors.

Further, says Dr. Theo Colborn of the World Wildlife Fund, "the endocrine system governs the way the brain and the immune systems develop."

She is among a small but growing group of scientists who say that laws protecting public health from environmental toxins should be strengthened to include protections against the further proliferation of endocrine-disrupting compounds.

But these young birds are different. Each is deformed.

Employment trend needs attention

My friend the CPA-turned-public defender said she changed to criminal law for its excitement, but still does a little accounting whenever she needs the reassurance of the "perfect world" of sane, immutable numbers. Since I've always looked at economics as the science of applying those immutable laws to the history of human behavior, I'm puzzled at how easily economists can look at the same numbers and facts and come up with such disparate predictions of what they expect to happen.

However, lately the economists have been pretty consistent. They don't see much in the President's economic plan that will add to the jobs tally, and especially not in the short run. Bad news. According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, not even the official 6.8 percent unemployment rate reflects the sorry state of work in the United States:

Many workers are so discouraged they've already quit looking, and 6.3 million workers are employed at part-time jobs that pay small wages and offer no benefits. Many of them -- at least 33 to 35 percent of recent college graduates, according to employment research experts -- are working at jobs for which they are highly overqualified. They're wearing out their own cars delivering pizzas, washing tables or working at automated car washes, often for minimum wage, with no benefits.

This time last year I wrote about trying to talk a young family member into choosing a less expensive college than she chose, cavalierly signing away on the dotted lines of her college-loan papers a huge chunk of whatever she may eventually earn. The ensuing year has made me even more fearful for her future, as I've talked with many more college graduates employed as baseline members of that much-heralded "service industry" some economists assured us would replace jobs lost to technology and foreign competition.

Recent interviews with two college-placement counselors didn't lessen my fears. The counselors supplied me with loads of information about which careers were hot now, and why so many careers chosen by the underemployed young people I know are dead ends. I asked the counselors if they believed students at their colleges had been supplied with sufficient information to help them make wise career-planning decisions.

"Well, at every orientation I emphasize that our doors are always open, and we encourage them to come," one told me, and the other agreed. Do many students seek them out for advice about their career paths? Rarely, the counselors said.

The National Service Program will do nothing but get a lot of kids into a more creative kind of debt unless it's coupled with sound advice and government action to prevent part-time servitude from being so attractive to companies.

First, we should be a lot less eager to issue student loans for unwise career ventures.

Second, we should promote a national consciousness-raising acknowledging that the part-time hiring scourge is not necessary for businesses to survive. It is merely a way for them to get their work done without paying benefits, and it is creating a discouraged generation of workers unable to build the most modest foundation of security.

Third, we should give struggling businesses tax breaks and incentives to hire full-time employees.

And last, we should make it decidedly unattractive tax-wise for any business to make a healthy profit on the backs of part-time, uninsured employees.

Make it decidedly unattractive for any business to make a healthy profit on the backs of part-time, uninsured employees.

Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission agenda

By NICK PFEIPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission has a longer-than-normal agenda for Thursday night's regular meeting. As of Aug. 27, the following items were listed on the agenda:

- Public Hearing — Request for conditional use for property located at 422 Palmetto Avenue, Single Family Dwelling residential zoning district, for purpose of a parking lot.
- Public Hearing — Request for conditional use for property at 2990 S. Sanford Avenue, Restricted Commercial Zoning district for purpose of alcoholic beverage sales, Class 5, with restaurant.
- Public Hearing — Request for conditional use for property at 2484 S. Sanford Avenue, Restricted Commercial Zoning district for purpose of alcoholic beverage sales, Class 1, non-conforming structure.
- Public Hearing — Request for dimensional variance for property at 956 Upsala Road.

Restricted Industrial Zoning district for the purpose of a garage addition.

- Public Hearing — Request for conditional use for property at 3763 S. Orlando Drive, General Commercial Zoning District, for automobile and truck accessory sales and installation.
- Review — Proposed change to Seminole Properties DRI Development Order.
- Consideration — Request for an extension of the approval of site plan, regarding seven parking spaces for Temporary Living Center, 519 Palmetto Avenue.
- Consideration — Request for exemption to allow six foot chain link fence in front yard, 1104 Magnolia Avenue.
- Other business from floor or Commission members.
- Reports from Staff.

The meeting will be held beginning at 7 p.m., in the commission chambers of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue, Sanford.

Economic growth stronger

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The U.S. economy grew at a modest 1.8 percent annual rate in the April-June quarter, slightly better than the government's initial estimate last month.

Second-quarter growth in the gross domestic product — the sum of all goods and services produced in U.S. borders — still was far below what economists anticipated at the start of the year. But it was a bit stronger than the seasonally and inflation-adjusted 1.6 percent growth rate first reported by the government.

With today's report, the Commerce Department also revised its figures going back to the start of 1990. The growth pace in the first quarter of this year was an anemic 0.8 percent, only little changed from the previous estimate of 0.7 percent.

However, revisions for the 1990-91 recession and the recovery in 1992 were dramatic. The growth rate in the fourth quarter of last year, for instance, now is shown as 5.7 percent, up from 4.7 percent.

The department now says the economy grew at a 2.4 percent annual rate from the end of the recession in the second quarter of 1991 through June of this year. Previously, the department had put the growth rate for the period at 2 percent.

ing requirement be imposed.

The county has been working with property owners at the intersection and the state to build a new interchange to feed development in the vicinity. Congress agreed in 1987 to put up $11.1 million for the project to show how quickly a road project can be built, but included no money for land.

Property owners couldn't agree to donate the land. Everette Huskey, interchange supporter and developer, lost title to his land in the southeast quadrant to a group of banks in foreclosure.

At a meeting of county and state officials and landowners Monday, Hugh Harling, an engineer representing Bank of Central Florida, said his client is substantially supportive of donating land for the interchange and will speak with the other banks holding interest in the former Huskey land.

"We're substantially in agreement as long we have assurances everything will happen the way they say it will," Harling said.

Other landowners, including Arvida Corp. and Heathrow Land and Development, have agreed to donate land for the project.

Cable

operators will be allowed to charge only the actual cost of providing a remote control. In Pouca City, Okla., for example, people pay Post-Newsweek Cable $3 a month to use a remote control; on Wednesday, the price drops to 48 cents a month.

Lake Mary users of TCI will pay 26 cents per month for remote control units, with $1.33 charged per month for converters.

CableVision's Rozler said his company's subscribers have been paying a monthly fee for remote controls, but will now be able to purchase their existing controls for a one time charge of $3.

New CableVision remotes will also be available for a purchase price of $14.95.

People who have turned their homes into electronic castles also should benefit. Cable companies must provide cable to additional TVs in the same home at the actual cost to the company — which mean many will do it for free after installation.

"There will be no monthly fees for additional outlets within a household," Rozler commented, "although an installation fee for adding these outlets will continue."

At many cable companies across the nation, the complicated shakeup in rates will be accompanied by other changes, such as itemized billings, altered channel lineups and revamped cable packages.

"Almost everybody is going to see a change," said Briana Gowing, spokeswoman for the Federal Communications Commission. The changes come as the FCC begins enforcing the 1992 Cable Act, intended to make cable rates more fair.

Who wins and who loses? It depends on which of the 11,000 cable operations a customer subscribes to — and what services that customer uses.

The FCC estimates that two-thirds to three-fourths of subscribers will see their monthly bill drop an average of 10 percent, for an estimated nationwide savings of more than $1 billion.

In most cases — but not all — cable customers with the most gadgets and TVs will get the biggest windfall; subscribers who get the minimum packages are more likely to receive higher bills.

The FCC says only about 6 percent of all subscribers receive minimal service, and the law doesn't require the cable companies to raise those rates.

Small-time cable buyers face increases because in the past, some companies subsidized lower prices for service by charging more for the equipment, such as remote controls. They can't do that anymore.

The new rules are specific about how much companies can charge for basic cable service — local stations and educational, government and public-access cable channels.

The formulas for figuring those rates are based on the number of subscribers; there is no single, nationwide charge for basic cable.

Additional channels, such as CNN and the Weather Channel, though not as strictly regulated, must be reasonably priced.

Premium channels, such as HBO and Showtime, are not regulated by the law.

One reason cable companies may have raised their rates now: Future rate increases will be limited by the FCC. After Wednesday, rate increases generally should not exceed inflation plus a few other costs beyond the operator's control, the FCC says.

Cable subscribers may also notice new channels in their lineup and find old ones missing. That's because of a new rule that cable operators must reserve one-third of the channels for local stations, which may cause them to drop more popular cable channels.

unsung heroines who have broken barriers or made lifelong commitments to the betterment of Central Florida.

Twenty-one years ago, Mays said, Schaffner founded the Dividends program with 17 volunteers working in three district schools. The program matches volunteers in the community with skills needed in area schools. A Dividend volunteer, for example, may help tutor a student to improve his or her skills.

Under Schaffner's supervision, the program has grown to 9,000 volunteers in all 46 schools in the district.

The Women's Resource Center called Schaffner "Seminole County's strongest education advocate."

The center lauded Schaffner for years of service on countless committees, as well as serving on the board of directors of the National Association of Partners in Education.

She is also a national consultant to other school systems regarding community involvement in public education.

Schaffner has won many other awards, including the Service to Mankind award, the Greater Seminole Chamber of Commerce's Public Servant of the Year award, Seminole Community College's Community Service award and the Sara B. Davis National Leadership award.

The last four years, Dividends has been recognized by the National Association of Partners in Education as one of the top volunteer programs in the nation. Schaffner and her husband Bill also co-founded the Seminole Community College Foundation. Through their efforts the foundation has raised more than $100,000 annually for the college.

The other winners of the Summit Award were: Dr. Rebecca L. Moroos, a Winter Park oncologist; Barbara C. Roper, an Orlando entrepreneur and civic leader; and Virginia E. Stuart, the manager of the Women's Center at Valencia Community College.

The award will be presented during a banquet scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 23 at 6 p.m. at the Disney World Yacht and Beach Club Convention Center.

Tickets are $50 per person or $750 for a corporate table of ten.

violated department policies and state administrative codes as well.

Inmates sometimes volunteer for jobs at the jail to earn gain time on their stay or to occupy their time, but they are not forced to work, according to deputy jail director Capt. Greg Futch.

Decker is seeking over $15,000 in damages for the mental anguish, humiliation and severe emotional distress she suffered as a result of the incident.

Seminole County Sheriff's Office spokesman George Prochel said Decker's suit has been referred to the Sheriff's Association counsel in Tallahassee, as are all civil suits filed against the sheriff.

officials "anxiously" await the outcome of the controversy. The USSF was planning to move into facility offices later this year under a 10-year contract with the county.

"We're anxious to see what happens next," said Bill Nuttall, USSF general manager. "We've not heard from them (the county)."

Friday, county officials learned the state and National Park Service ruled their contract with the USSF and World Cup USA violated the public-use requirement of a federal grant program which financed Sylvan Lake Park. The county received a total of $452,313 in federal parks grants in 1974 and 1981 from the state to buy and develop the park west of Interstate 4.

The grant conditions require the park to remain open to the public and not "converted" to private use. The grant requires the county to notify the state prior to any development at the park. The county failed to do so until the members Friends of Sylvan Lake Homeowner's Association alerted the FDEP and NPS. The Friends group is suing the county over the facility.

A 10-year county contract with the USSF and World Cup USA grants the sports groups first choice to use the facilities. County Manager Ron Rabun said Monday although USSF and World Cup teams may reserve the facilities, public access to the park was enhanced by extending hours and the additional soccer fields and new racquetball courts.

But the state's assessment concluded such improvements, financed with the county's tourist tax, would not have been made without the designation as a national training center for USSF and World Cup teams. The benefit of increased facilities was cancelled by the USSF reservation privileges, so no net public benefit was achieved, the DEP assessment concluded.

The state, joined by the NPS, determined the USSF and World Cup contract converted portions of the park to private use and ordered the contract broken.

Rabun said Monday he was concerned if the county complied, USSF would sue for breach of an agreement. Nuttall had no comment in response to the concern.

commissioners followed the suggestion of Commissioner Larry Furlong and took the money from their $5.6 million reserve fund to $2.8 million. The reserve fund, often tapped for unforeseen expenses, is the county's emergency fund and is used for hurricane disaster recovery.

Commissioners divided, then finally relented to increase the garbage dumping fee from $31 per ton to $36. The increase, which will add from 38 cents to 42 cents to county customers' monthly bills will help the county pay for added federal and state environmental protection requirements. Furlong opposed the increase because it includes a finance payment for Sanlando Park, which he proposed to be paid from the reserve fund.

'Fugitive' keeps rolling while new films bomb

By JOHN HORN
AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES — There's nothing elusive about "The Fugitive." The Harrison Ford thriller continued to attract throngs of moviegoers over the weekend, winning the box office sweepstakes for the fourth week.

Weekend earnings of $14.5 million put the film on track to pass Tom Cruise's "The Firm" as the summer's second most popular film, behind "Jurassic Park."

Four new films — and one week-old title — all flopped miserably, with none cracking the Top 10. The critically acclaimed "Searching for Bobby Fischer" sputtered with weak receipts.

The struggling MGM studio will struggle some more. Its "Son of the Pink Panther," starring Roberto Benigni, earned a measly $1.13 million in its premiere, good only for 16th place.

Equally bleak returns greeted new releases from 20th Century Fox, Disney, Paramount and TriStar. Fox's martial arts film "Only the Strong" netted a weak $1.3 million for 14th and Disney's crime comedy "Father Hood" starring Patrick Swayze brought in a little less than $1.3 million for 15th.

Paramount's country music tale "The Thing Called Love" grossed a sour $433,000 and didn't even make it into the Top 20. "Wilder Napalm," a TriStar release starring Debra Winger and Dennis Quaid premiered a week ago. It moved from three to 35 locations but could manage no better than $37,000.

"The Fugitive" has earned $111 million since its release and is riding a wave of positive word of mouth. "The Firm," on the other hand, has made $146.9 million. But it has been in theaters for nine weeks.

No film is likely to pass "Jurassic Park" for a while. It has made $311.1 million so far.

In second behind "The Fugitive" was the new Stephen King thriller, "Needful Things," which made $5.2 million. The action film "Hard Target" was third with $5 million and Mel Gibson directing himself in "Man Without a Face" made $4 million in fourth.

"The Secret Garden," an adaptation of a classic children's book, was fifth with $3.4 million and "Jurassic Park" made $2.9 million for sixth. "Rising Sun," based on a Michael Crichton novel, collected $2.8 million for seventh and "In the Line of Fire" with Clint Eastwood was eighth with $2.6 million.

"Free Willy" drew $2.3 million for ninth and "Sleepless in Seattle" was 10th with $2.1 million. "Searching for Bobby Fischer" threatened to fall out of the Top 20 in just its third week of release. It made a pallid $744,000.

Here are the weekend's top 20 films, according to Exhibitor Relations. Estimated ticket sales are from Friday through Sunday, with distributor, weekend gross, number of North American theater locations, average per location, total gross and number of weeks in release.

Figures are based on actual receipts and projections. Actual figures were not available.

1. "The Fugitive," Warner Bros., $14.5 million, 2,425 locations, $5,981 per location, $111.2 million, four weeks.
2. "Needful Things," Columbia, $5.2 million, 1,963 locations, $2,650 per location, $5.2 million, one week.
3. "Hard Target," Universal, $5 million, 1,995 locations, $2,520 per location, $18.5 million, two weeks.
4. "The Man Without a Face," Warner Bros., $4 million, 865 locations, $4,655 per location, $5.2 million, two weeks.
5. "The Secret Garden," Warner Bros., $3.4 million, 1,332 locations, $2,517 per location, $18.2 million, three weeks.
6. "Jurassic Park," Universal, $2.9 million, 1,469 locations, $1,990 per location, $311.1 million, 12 weeks.
7. "Rising Sun," 20th Century Fox, $2.8 million, 1,424 locations, $1,973 per location, $52.7 million, five weeks.
8. "In the Line of Fire," Columbia, $2.6 million, 1,472 locations, $1,773 per location, $93.7 million, eight weeks.
9. "Free Willy," Warner Bros., $2.3 million, 1,505 locations, $1,504 per location, $63 million, seven weeks.
10. "Sleepless in Seattle," TriStar, $2.1 million, 1,283 locations, $1,600 per location, $109.2 million, 10 weeks.
11. "The Firm," Paramount, $1.9 million, 1,028 locations, $1,864 per location, $146.9 million, nine weeks.
12. "Heart and Souls," Universal, $1.6 million, 1,234 locations, $1,325 per location, $12.5 million, three weeks.
13. "Manhattan Murder Mystery," TriStar, $1.5 million, 273 locations, $5,431 per location, $4.5 million, two weeks.
14. "Only the Strong," 20th Century Fox, $1.3 million, 668 locations, $1,926 per location, $1.3 million, one week.
15. "Father Hood," Disney, $1.3 million, 643 locations, $2,001 per location, $1.3 million, one week.
16. "Son of the Pink Panther," MGM, $1.13 million, 983 locations, $1,149 per location, $1.13 million, one week.
17. "Robin Hood: Men in Tights," 20th Century Fox, $1.12 million, 936 locations, $1,201 per location, $30.8 million, five weeks.
18. "Rookie of the Year," 20th Century Fox, $894,000, 838 locations, $1,067 per location, $17.8 million, eight weeks.
19. "Jason Goes to Hell: The Final Friday," New Line, $821,000, 813 locations, $1,010 per location, $13.6 million, three weeks.
20. "Searching for Bobby Fischer," Paramount, $743,000, 219 locations, $3,396 per location, $4.2 million, three weeks.

Americans know their country by their writers

By NITA LELYVELD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The craggy New England of Robert Frost, William Faulkner's sultry, backwoods South, the wide open Western spaces of Zane Grey — writers have always helped Americans define the land in which they live.

To illustrate that idea, the Library of Congress has pulled together a rich mixture of photographs, manuscripts, maps and first editions that takes visitors on a trip across America's literary landscape.

The original idea was to showcase the library's collection of literary maps, which point out where writers lived and worked. But the library has started with something small and added treasure after treasure from its vast holdings.

Take the orange-cardboard-covered spiral notebook that contains the first draft, in pencil, of Truman Capote's "In Cold Blood."

"The village of Holcomb," he writes in teeny-tiny, immaculate script, "stands on the high wheat plains of western Kansas, a lonesome area other Kansans call 'out there.'"

In red ink, Walt Whitman traces the paths of his journeys across the Great Lakes on a map, and describes his travels in a letter to a friend.

Another map shows the fictional world of Yoknapatawpha County, the setting for novels like "The Hamlet" and "Absalom! Absalom!" It was drawn in pen and ink by the author of those novels, William Faulkner.

On lined paper, Zane Grey matter-of-factly outlines one of his many Western novels: "U.P. Railroads." He charts out a list of "Themes," including "daring adventures — hazardous trips — great conflicts."

In cases throughout the exhibit are first editions of American classics, including Mark Twain's "Roughing It," Richard Wright's "Black Boy," and "Walden" by Henry David Thoreau.

"I had never been away from home and that word 'travel' had a seductive charm for me," Twain wrote in "Roughing It." "I dreamed all night about deserts, and silver bars."

In the words of writers like Twain — displayed throughout the exhibit — there is a sense of excitement and adventure, a sense that the country is still ripe for discovery.

Jack Kerouac in "On the Road," "all that raw land that rolls in one unbelievable bulge over to the West Coast, and all that road going, all the people dreaming in the immensity of it."

"In the United States," writes Gertrude Stein, "there is more place where nobody is than where anybody is. That is what makes America what it is."

Particular regions of the country come alive, too, in the words of many of the writers featured in "Language of the Land."

In neat script on yellow legal paper, William Styron describes the "tobacco factories with their ever present haze of acrid sweetish dust" in the fictional town of Port Warwick — based on Newport News, Va. — where his novel "Lie Down in Darkness" is set.

Sarah Orne Jewett writes of the rocky coast of Maine, where "all the weather-beaten houses ... face the sea apprehensively, like the women who live in them."

Of Arkansas, Maya Angelou writes: "The sulken earth is much too red for comfort."
True to its journeying theme, the exhibit will hit the road itself this month. A traveling version will crisscross the country through at least 1996.

"Language of the Land: Journeys Into Literary America" will remain at the Library of Congress through Jan. 17, 1994. A traveling version of the exhibit will go to the Currihan Exhibition Hall in Denver, Sept. 1 to Oct. 30, and the Susquehanna Art Museum in Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 14 to Jan. 8, 1994.

In 1994 and 1995, The exhibit will travel on to Bismarck, N.D., Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Minneapolis, Des Moines, Iowa, Hartford, Conn., Oklahoma City, Lansing, Mich., Frankfort, Ky., Richmond, Va., Salem, Ore., Topeka, Kan., Indianapolis, Seattle and Sacramento, Calif.

Different station, better time — but mostly, same Dave

By SCOTT WILLIAMS
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — Smiling, serene David Letterman unleashed a mellow, off-center comedy in the plush confines of the renovated Ed Sullivan Theater for a triumphant debut in his first CBS "Late Show" — and a GREAT hair day.

"Remember that woman who kept breaking into my home?" an unusually well-coiled Letterman asked the studio audience that greeted him Monday afternoon with a standing ovation. "Now she's doing it an hour earlier."

On June 25 he quit his 11½-year gig as host of NBC's "Late Night" to take the 11:35 p.m. time slot he coveted at NBC, but lost to his friend Jay Leno, successor to Johnny Carson as "Tonight" host last year.

In California, Leno joshed with his "Tonight" audience about the budding ratings war: "I just want to say I think the Nielsen families are the smartest, nicest, best-looking families."

NBC, though, was not amused by Letterman's departure. Last month it hinted legal action might be in the offing should its "intellectual property" — oh, say, comedy gags begun on "Late Night" — appear on CBS.

Another NBC friend made a "Late Show" walk-on. "Nightly News" anchor Tom Brokaw shook hands with Letterman, voiced his disappointment, seized two cue cards and headed offstage. "Those last two jokes," Brokaw deadpanned, "are the intellectual property of NBC."

Letterman, left alone onstage, turned to the audience. "Who'd ever have thought you'd hear the words 'intellectual property' and 'NBC' in the same sentence?"

Monday's show was instantly recognizable as "Late Night" kin.

Actor Calvert DeForest, who opened the first "Late Night" show as showbiz lawyer Larry "Bud" Melman, opened Monday's premiere with the stentorian declaration, "This is CBS!"

First winds felt on shore as storm gets stronger

By ESTES THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

HATTERAS, N.C. — Winds from Hurricane Emily brushed over North Carolina's barrier islands today as warnings to batten down the hatches were extended up the East Coast.

With Emily and its 100 mph winds expected to turn northward, forecasters this morning added the coasts of Virginia, Maryland and southern Delaware to the hurricane warning that already covered the top half of North Carolina.

Thousands of people — mostly vacationers — left the low-lying Outer Banks island chain to get out of Emily's way. Others stayed put, waiting to see exactly where the zig-zagging storm would blow ashore.

"It's like playing checkers," said Troy Lapetina, emergency services coordinator for Norfolk, Va. "We wait for the storm to make a move, and then we make ours."

In Ocean City, Md., officials were to meet this morning to decide whether to evacuate the estimated 125,000 people staying at the Atlantic resort.

Wind began to pick up over the Outer Banks late Monday, reaching about 20 mph. It was expected to reach tropical storm force by midday and hurricane force by tonight, when the eye was expected to make landfall.

Fears mounted that Emily would grow stronger as it moved over the warm Gulf Stream, where hurricanes Hugo and Andrew became giants.

Radio announcers used apocalyptic terms in issuing a steady barrage of warnings. Tie down shovels and other yard equipment, one said, to keep them from becoming "missiles of destruction."

Some 70,000 of the 100,000 people in Dare County, which includes most of the Outer Banks, moved inland Monday, according to Ray Sturza, a county emergency management spokesman. The rest prepared to stick it out.

"I ain't gonna leave," said Billy Beasley, 51, a lifelong Outer Banks resident and owner of seafood restaurant in Col-ington. "I'm going to do the best I can."

At 5 a.m., Emily's center was about 155 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras, near latitude 33.2 degrees north and longitude 74.5 degrees west.

Emily was moving west-northwest at near 9 mph and was expected to turn northward today, the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla., said.

Rainfall totals of 4 to 8 inches are possible along the path of the hurricane.

If it turns northward before or shortly after hitting the Outer Banks, Emily would head back out to sea and would be expected to stay offshore, said forecaster Tony Zaleski.

Aspin plan calls for leaner U.S. military forces, nimble abroad

By ROBERT BURNS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon's new blueprint for a post-Cold War future foresees a U.S. military that is leaner but nimble enough to apply firepower anywhere around the globe.

President Clinton received a detailed briefing on the new plan Monday by Defense Secretary Les Aspin and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Aspin was expected to publicly release the document Wednesday and discuss aspects of it in a policy speech Thursday at Georgetown University, officials said.

Among Aspin's specific recommendations to Clinton:

—Keep 12 aircraft carriers, including one to train Navy aviators. That is two fewer carriers than had been planned during the Bush administration but two more than Aspin once was considering.

—Cut the total number of Navy ships to about 320 from the 450 that Bush had said was the minimum necessary.

—Reduce the number of active Army divisions to 10 from 14, two fewer than Bush planned, and cut the active and reserve Air Force wings from 28 to 20.

—Go ahead with development of the Air Force F-22 stealth fighter but buy fewer than the Bush administration planned, and go ahead with the E and F models of the Navy's F/A-18 strike plane that can be launched from aircraft carriers.

—Two aircraft now in the conceptual stage — the Air Force's "multi-role fighter" and the Navy's AF-X medium-range bomber — would be canceled or deferred.

—Stop the shrinkage of the Marine Corps at about 174,000 men and women. The Bush administration had set a target of 159,000, compared with the current level of about 180,000.

The plan is the result of what Aspin calls his "bottom up review," a comprehensive study of the forces needed to meet what Aspin considers the four main threats to American national security in the wake of the demise of the Soviet Union.

Those dangers are the spread of nuclear arms, regional military crises, the failure of democratic reform in the former Soviet Union, and U.S. economic decline. Gone is the threat of global nuclear war that preoccupied defense planners for decades.

"It is a response to the new world," said a senior Pentagon official familiar with the plan. The official discussed it on condition he not be identified.

Many details of the plan have been reported but much remains unknown, including the cost. The Washington Post reported this month that Aspin's proposed defense restructuring would cost about $20 billion more than the $1.2 trillion Clinton has said he intends to spend on defense over the coming five years.

Another senior Pentagon official said that while Aspin's plan makes many changes in the size and makeup of the U.S. armed forces, "I would not call it revolutionary."

Aspin referred to his blueprint in a speech last week to a Veterans of Foreign Wars convention.

"I have long felt that if we merely cut the Cold War forces from the top, we'd simply end up with a smaller Cold War force, but that's not what we need," he said. "We need a force that's right for the dangers that we face today and into the future."

Aspin said his plan was developed by examining all aspects of U.S. national security, including nuclear deterrence, international peacekeeping and anti-terrorism.

The strategic underpinnings of the plan were spelled out this month in the Pentagon's Joint Military Net Assessment, a document that argued that the United States will be increasingly asked to lead in shaping the post-Cold War world.

"Key elements in the U.S. efforts to deter aggression include active, robust security partnerships, overseas presence and timely power projection capabilities," the document said.

The Net Assessment, which is revised annually, also foreshadowed Aspin's decision to put a high priority on developing defenses against attack by short- and medium-range ballistic missiles, while de-emphasizing the threat of long-range missiles.

Daunting task: Feeding leaders of world religions

By DEBRA HALE
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO — With just five loaves and two fish, the Bible says, Jesus fed the multitude. The job isn't so easy for chefs at the Chicago hotel where thousands of religious leaders from throughout the world are converging.

From pork abstinence to water-washing stations and kosher utensils, a kitchen staff of 450 is working to meet the sometimes exacting dietary requirements for the Parliament of the World's Religions.

About 8,000 representatives of Protestantism, Hinduism, Judaism and other faiths are attending the nine-day conference, which ends Saturday.

"I imagine that I'm going to get some extremely unusual requests from religions I'm not familiar with," said Gene Anderson, director of the Palmer House Hilton Hotel's food and beverage operation.

Among the most difficult so far, he said, has been a request for Hall's beef, the only kind Muslims eat. Muslims believe a passage from the Koran must be recited before a cow is slaughtered, and its throat must be cut so the blood will drain out.

Rather than expect the hotel's staff to handle the kill, Anderson said, some conferees are bringing their own Hall's beef for his staff to cook.

And because so many religions object to pork, Anderson said, "We're not going to serve that at all."

The hotel also is changing buffet offerings in four of its five restaurants to add vegetarian items. The French Cajun restaurant's dinner buffet, for example, will include vegetarian veal, vegetarian hamburgers and hot dogs made from soy protein, and spaghetti with marinara sauce.

Many items also will be made without dairy products to accommodate the strictest vegetarians. And for Mormons, who object to caffeine, there'll be plenty of Postum, a caffeine-free beverage made from toasted grain.

Anderson also is working to be sure all kosher requirements are met for Orthodox and Conservative Jews.

That means a mashgiach, or rabbi who supervises preparation of such food, must be present to monitor anything prepared in the hotel's kosher kitchen, which is separate from its eight other kitchens.

To simplify things, the hotel has bought prepackaged kosher food that it can reheat.

LAKE MARY — The Seminole Soccer Club will hold a meeting for members and interested fans in the Lake Mary High School Media Center, 655 Longwood-Lake Mary Road, tomorrow (Wednesday) from 7:30 p.m. until 9:30 p.m.

The agenda will deal with the current status of Seminole Soccer Club, current status of Seminole Soccer League, report on FYSA hearing, FYSA Executive Committee ruling, current position and action by SSC/SSL Board, and Seminole Soccer Club plans.

AROUND THE STATE

Rodriguez signs with Mariners

MIAMI — Alex Rodriguez, the first overall pick in the June amateur draft, agreed to a three-year contract with the Seattle Mariners worth nearly $13 million. The 18-year-old shortstop received a $1 million signing bonus.

Miami talks to NCAA

CORAL GABLES — Miami formally notified the NCAA of allegations that six former players received money from agent Mel Levine in 1987. The allegations by Detroit Lions safety Bennie Blades were reported Saturday by the Sun Sentinel of Fort Lauderdale.

Blades said Levine paid the players with the understanding they would later sign contracts with him. He identified the others as Detroit receiver Brett Perriman, Dallas receiver Michael Irvin, Seattle receiver Brian Blades and former safeties Darrell Fullington and Selwyn Brown.

AROUND THE NATION

FSU strengthens grip

NEW YORK — Florida State strengthened its grip on No. 1. Fresno State broke into the Top 25 and Southern Cal dropped out of the AP poll.

Florida State received 47 first-place votes and 1,531 points after routing Kansas 42-0 in Saturday's Kickoff Classic. Defending champion Alabama, which opens Saturday against Tulane, was No. 2 with 11 first-place votes and 1,469 points. Michigan stayed No. 3 with two first-place votes and 1,415 points.

Southern Cal, which was No. 18, fell out after a 31-9 loss to North Carolina in the Pigskin Classic. Carolina moved up four spots to No. 16. Fresno State entered the poll at No. 25.

"Rocket" a Raider?

LOS ANGELES — Righthand "Rocket" Ismail and the Los Angeles Raiders reached an agreement in principle on a two-year contract, Ismail's attorney Bob Wolff said. The former Notre Dame star, who played the last two seasons for Toronto in the CFL, is expected to make about $3 million.

Rockies set record

DENVER — The Colorado Rockies drew 17,699 fans for their 6-1 loss to Montreal to set a single-season NL attendance record with a 62-game total of 3,617,863. Los Angeles set the previous record of 3,608,881 in 1982. Toronto set the major league record of 4,028,318 last year.

SAC girls hold court

Volleyball jamboree at Lake Brantley tonight

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Now it's the girls' turn.

Last Friday night the county's high school football teams got the fall sports season rolling with their jamboree at Oviedo High School.

Tonight the girls get to take center stage as Lake Brantley High School will host the 1993 Seminole Athletic Conference Girls' Volleyball Jamboree.

The event will get underway with warmups at 6 p.m. Cost to attend the night's action was not announced.

The jamboree will be divided into two three-team groups with each group holding a round robin schedule, with each of the six county schools playing two games each.

The schools making up Group One will be Lake Howell High School, Oviedo High School and defending conference and district champion Lake Mary High School.

In the first game, the Lake Howell Silver Hawks will face the Oviedo Lions at 6:20 p.m. The second game will have the Lions staying around to take on the Lake Mary Rams at 6:50 p.m. and the third and final game of Group One will have the Silver Hawks coming back to battle the Rams at 7:20 p.m.

At 7:50 p.m. Group Two, made up of Lyman High School, Seminole High School and host Lake Brantley High School will take the court for warmups.

In the opening game of Group two, the Seminole Fighting Seminole will challenge the Lyman Babe Ruth All-Stars at 8 p.m. In game two, the Lake Brantley Patriots will welcome the Noles at 8:20 p.m. and in the third game, the Patriots will tackle the Greyhounds at 8:50 p.m.

After spending the past two weeks working out the kinks and learning fundamentals, Seminole High School (above) and the five other county teams will play a "real" game tonight in the Seminole Athletic Conference Girls' Volleyball Jamboree at Lake Brantley High School.

Tribe gets votes in poll

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — Seminole High School was the only Seminole County team to be recognized by the Florida Sports Writers Association as the FSWA Pre-season Florida High School Football Poll was released Monday evening.

The Tribe were in the "also receiving votes" category after receiving 17 votes from a panel of 15 writers who vote for the poll. The point total would be good enough for 12th place in the Class 4A poll, if the rankings went that high.

Future SHS opponents Leesburg, four votes in Class 4A, and Gainesville-Eastside, ranked 10th in Class 3A, also were mentioned in the polls.

The high school football season kicks off this Friday night, with Seminole hosting Lyman; Lake Howell travelling to Winter Park; Oviedo hosting Stuart-Martin County; Lake Mary going to Orlando-Edgewater; and Lake Brantley visiting Winter Garden-West Orange.

Back in the spring of 1992 the quartet of Otis Raines, Robert Smith, Charley Lytle and Jeff Small (left to right, above) were coaching two of the three Sanford Youth Baseball League All-Star teams. Now they are the driving force behind the new Sanford fall baseball instructional program at Sanford Memorial Stadium.

SANFORD — When starting any new venture, two of the most important things you can do is delegate authority and surround yourself with good people.

That is exactly what Jeff Small has done as the organizer of the fall AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) baseball team and instructional program that he has started with the blessing and help of the Sanford Recreation Department.

"You can't put an undertaking of this size together by yourself," said Small, who was the manager of the Sanford Babe Ruth All-Stars this past spring. "I've gotten a lot of behind the scenes help from the Sanford Recreation Department and I can't thank them enough, but there is no way I could have done this without assistant coaches Charley Lytle, Otis Raines and Robert Smith."

Raines and Smith are the coaches of the Knights of Columbus Cardinals that have won three straight.

Showers takes advantage of Trentham's ills

By Bill Siebert
Special to the Herald

BARBERVILLE — David Showers was on a chase mission Friday night when leader Tuck Trentham of Orange City had to retire to the pits before the halfway mark in the 25-lap Pro Late Model feature event at Volusia County Speedway's Dirt Track.

Showers raced to the front when Trentham, last week's feature winner, took the hard right-hand turn into the outside pits and handed the St. Augustine pilot his third win of the season.

Showers was followed to the finish line by the quartet of Garry Flynn, Joe Grubb, Gary Swick and Ronnie Grubb.

"Tuck was running pretty good," Showers said from the VCS dirt track winner's circle. "I don't know if we could have caught him. We'll take the win."

In other divisions, Tiny Green of Palatka took the win in the Pro Stock Division after Shane Williams of Pierson refused a teardown during a post-race protest. Danny Bowman was the winner of the 19-car Mini Stocks. Chuck Bossinger of Jacksonville was victorious in the South Eastern Mini-Sprints Association's feature and Brian Sell of Orange City was winner in the Hobby Stocks.

For Bowman, it was a matter of survival to keep Mike Ponce and the rest of the Mini Stocks pack off his rear bumper.

Bowman led Mike Ponce, Jeff Matthews, Ronnie Ponce and Chris Vogel over the finish line.

"The track's really smooth," Bowman said after the race. "We changed some things after the hot laps and it came out just right."

The SEMA Mini Sprints ended up in a battle of three's as Bossinger, the yellow number three, and Dennis Misuraca of Jacksonville, in the black number three, battled down to the wire for a one-two finish, ahead of Gary Mincey, Nick Ramsey and Dana Sheffield.

Green, Dean Jarvis, Brian Bales and Johnny Westfall were running second through fourth behind Williams as the checkered flag fell on the Pro Stock field. But with Williams' subsequent forfeiture the foursome moved up the ladder one position each and allowed Charles Hall to join the top five finishers.

Sell looked at Friday night's success as the end of a long line of hard work and heartbreaks in getting the car ready for the Hobby Stock Division.

"I've had more trouble than you could imagine," Sell told trackside announcer Tom Tipton in a post-race interview. "We've been working a whole year getting this car together."

The Volusia County Speedway's dirt track, a 1/8-mile clay oval, opens to an exciting weekend of racing during the Labor Day Weekend, racing both Friday, Sept. 3 and Sunday, Sept. 5.

Scheduled for Friday is a full program of Pro Late Models, Pro Stocks, Mini Stocks and Hobby Stocks, while a special Sunday show will feature the Legend cars, Mini Stocks, Hobby Stocks and Pro Stocks giving the Pro Late Models a night off.

For more information about either dirt or asphalt racing at Volusia County Speedway contact the race office at (904) 255-2243 or (904) 985-4402.

DAVIE — The Miami Dolphins' decision to give the boot to Reggie Roby had as much to do with the punter's declining average as it did with his recent financial trouble, Coach Don Shula said.

Roby, 32, the Miami Dolphins punter for 10 years, filed personal bankruptcy last month, listing $488,000 in debts. He had been seeking free-agent status by using his financial woes as a way out of his five-year contract (two years remaining at a reported $445,000 per year).

Coastliners resume meeting

SANFORD — The first meeting of the 1993-94 Coastliners will be held at the Sanford Senior Center on Wednesday Sept. 1 at 10 a.m. All former members and employees of the former Atlantic Coastline Railroad are invited to attend. Meeting will be held the first Wednesday of each month through May 1994. Thereafter at the Sanford Civic Center, 401 E. Seminole Blvd.

Easter featured at 'Homecoming 93'

SANFORD — TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) #79, announces its "Homecoming 93" festivities to be held Aug. 31 at 7 p.m. featuring International King John Easter, as the motivational speaker. Easter, of Gainesville, is also the Florida State King. He lost 129 pounds in 11 1/2 months. The group meets at the First Christian Church, 1607 Sanford Ave. For more information, call Sally Sawczuk 323-1768.

Housing authority plans meeting

OVIEDO — The Seminole County Housing Authority Board will meet this evening at 7 p.m. at the Authority office, 662 Academy Place. The public is invited. Any questions, please call 365-3621.

September schedule for seniors

The Sanford Senior Center is open to all seniors age 50 and over each weekday from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The center continues to offer a full weekly schedule of activities and encourages everyone to stop in and pick up a September calendar, according to Chris Usry, Senior Center supervisor.

The following is a list of special events that will be happening during the month of September:

- There's a weekday happening that most of Sanford may be unaware of. If there are any women or men who are looking for some light exercise and some good fellowship, they should try out the Horse-shoe Club. Every Tuesday at 9 a.m., a great group of seniors come out to pitch horse-shoes.
- On Sept. 30, the AARP 55 Alive Driving course begins. The course will be held from 12:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. for two days. The cost of the class will be $8 and is open to anyone 55 years of age or older. Completion of the course will enable participants to receive lower auto insurance rates. Don't miss out, space is going fast.

• A Free Investment Seminar will be held at the center on Sept. 1. Michael Faughnan will be covering "Estate Planning." His talk will be very informative to those who are just curious or those who may already have begun planning. This seminar is open to anyone who is interested.

• On Sept. 14, free blood pressure screening is offered. This service will be offered every second Tuesday at 10 a.m. Please bring any record of your blood pressure to be completed. This service for seniors is being provided by the VIP Medical Center on French Avenue.

• Sept. 15 marks the beginning of another Senior Dance season. Every Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. seniors can enjoy the sounds of the big bands and shuffle their feet to the beat. The senior dances are held in the civic center and admission is $2.

• Hurricane Preparedness will be the topic of discussion on Sept. 23 by Ken Roberts, coordinator of emergency management for Seminole County. There will be some very important information for seniors.

• Beginning in October the Senior Center will be open on Tuesday evenings until 8 p.m. There will be a line dance class from 6-8 p.m. Also in the beginning stages is a Tai-Chi class for seniors in the evening. In addition to the classes, the building will also be open for billiards, darts or library use.

Please call the center to get more information on these exciting new events or to reserve space.

For information on any of the center's special events or weekly schedule, call 330-5699.

Dancers take competition by storm

Things are poppin' with Miriam & Valerie's School of Dance Arts "SODA POPS" (School of Dance Arts Performers on Parade). They have been parading their talents this summer to the judges of the national dance competition, Dance Caravan, Stars of Tomorrow.

The local dance group matched their song and dance abilities against other dancers from all over the United States and Canada. The SODA POPS won eight grand national awards, the closest competing studio won three.

Armed with plenty of talent and beautiful costumes for "25 acts" the dancers ranging in age from 7 to 17 took the highest awards possible. This is the third national competition in three years where the competition team has brought home the gold, according to teachers and directors Miriam Doktor and Valerie Weld.

While the 18 dancers representing Miriam & Valerie's School of Dance Arts only had to travel to the Dolphin Hotel at Disney World this year, Weld explained that all the big conventions are held in the Disney World area at least every other

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 24, have a four-year degree in criminal justice, have served three years in the U.S. Army with the military police, and am currently being hired as a Massachusetts state trooper. Police work is, and always will be, my heart's desire.

My problem: I am in love with (and engaged to) a wonderful woman from my college days. We went together all through college. She was a business administration major.

Abby, she has known for the last 3 1/2 years what I wanted to do with my life. Now, she refuses to marry me if I become a high risk involved in this line of work. I have worked very hard for nearly seven years toward this Could the crook in your elbow be sent to jail?

If so, what did he do?
How can you sharpen your shoulder blades.
I'll be darned if I know. do you?
Can you sit in the shade of the palm of your hand
And play on the drum of your ear?
Do the calves of our legs eat the corn on our toes
Then why does it grow on the ear?
DEAR SAMUEL B. THORPE SR.: That is a funny punny poem. Thanks for sending it. I don't know if Mr. Dunkle is still among the mortals, but thanks to any of his progeny who are presently among us.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is really more of question. Which way should a corsage be worn?
My mother says you wear flowers just like they grow — with the stems at the bottom

DEAR ABBY: I hope you won't think I'm an addle-minded old man who has gone soft in his old age. (I'll be 88 if I make it to mid-September.) I've enjoyed your column in the Lowell (Mass.) Sun, and know that you appreciate puns, so I am enclosing a poem for your enjoyment. I have kept this poem since I was a young man, and just came across it. There is no title, but it was written by William Dunkle of East Falmouth, Mass.

SAMUEL B. THORPE SR., TOWNSEND, MASS.
Where can a man buy a cap for his knee
Or a key to the lock of his hair
Should your eyes be called an academy
Because there are pupils there?
In the crown of your head, what jewels are found?
Who travels the bridge of your nose?
Could you use in shingling the roof of your mouth
The nails on the ends of your toes?

What helps ease postoperative swelling?

DEAR DR. GOTT: My mother recently finished a six-week course of radiation following surgery to remove some lymph nodes and a partial lumpectomy for breast cancer. Her arm has become swollen three times its normal size, has red streaks and she experiences pain on use. Her doctors have indicated the condition might last one to three years, or forever. Their only treatment is an Ace bandage-type sleeve. I've urged her to obtain a second opinion, but she is reluctant.

doubt that it will disappear in a couple of years. However, with the product I mentioned, it can be substantially lessened.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Breast Cancer and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long-self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR READER: Your mother has lymphedema, swelling caused by blockage - or, in her case, removal - of the lymph glands under her arm. Lymph nodes act as filters, in various parts of the body, to remove foreign or infected material before it can enter the system. When the glands are removed - as, for example, to get rid of any cancer cells that may have been trapped in them - the lymph fluid is prevented from draining out of the arm, so it accumulates in the tissues. Edema results.

Although it is not dangerous, this situation is uncomfortable. Patients can often be helped by using a pressure device on the affected arm. A tightly wrapped elastic bandage may give some relief, but most doctors prefer to use a Jobst sleeve, which fits over the arm and can be inflated with air. Ask your surgeon about this.

Your mother's affliction is somewhat unusual in that she has red streaks, too. I am concerned about this because the streaks may reflect infection that should be treated with antibiotics. Thus, I urge her to return to her primary care doctor for further examination, advice and treatment.

In my experience, un-complicated lymphedema that occurs after surgery/radiation for breast cancer is permanent; I

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Eight teams qualified for this year's world championships from the Generali European Championships, held last June in Menton, a small town on the French Riviera between Monaco and Italy.

Poland won the Open Series, surprising no one, and Sweden won the Women's, surprising everyone - including, perhaps, themselves. Poland is joined by Denmark, Norway and the Netherlands in the NEC Bermuda Bowl, France, Italy and Germany also qualified for the NEC Venice Cup.

One of Poland's best players, Piotr Gawrys, found a simple yet effective line on today's deal from the match against Great Britain.

The British North-South pair finished in five diamonds, which died when the spade finesse lost.

Three no-trump makes because West has no entry to his club winners, but that is tough to judge. And four hearts isn't such a bad spot. How would you have planned the play against the club-king lead?

Opening three clubs in the third position would be the choice of most players, especially at the prevailing vulnerability. But if the opponents buy the contract, which they rate to do, it is a revealing bid.

Gawrys won the first trick with the club ace and unblocked dummy's top hearts. Then Gawrys simply led a low spade from the dummy.

How could East defend? If he won with the king, eventually declarer's two diamond losers would disappear on dummy's A-J of spades. But when East ducked, South no longer had a spade loser. He lost one trick in each of the other suits.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
 Sept. 1, 1993

There's a chance you might be invited to participate in a very unique endeavor in the year ahead. It may be proposed by two friends with whom you were associated previously.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Strive to fulfill your social obligations today, especially if they are events where you have a chance of meeting new people. Fresh contacts could usher in exciting circumstances. Virgo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try to divest yourself of routine procedures today and experiment with new techniques, whether your task be a critical one at work or simply a household chore.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's important today you talk with people whose minds you respect, especially if you're toying with a new idea or concept. You might learn something of enormous value.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is a good day to go to that special shop you like so much which always has unique merchandise. There is a good chance you may find something you'll really like.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone you've been hoping would notice you, but thus far has failed to do so, might provide you with a pleasant surprise today when he/she singles you out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your chart indicates you could be rather ingenious at this time in devising ways to make or save money if you put your mind to it. Give it a serious try.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Although you're not apt to feel inclinations to exercise your leadership qualities today, your peers will still look to you for guidance if anything unexpected occurs.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Persons who are best equipped to help you achieve your goals today will be those who are willing to take a chance, provided they'll see something in it for them if you succeed.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not treat with indifference today unique information passed onto you by a reliable friend. What he/she has to say could be of considerable worth.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Something you've been wanting to change but have been unable to do so looks like it will be facilitated by another today. The reason is because it affects his/her interests as well.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The results from endeavors of an independent nature might not be too impressive today. Conversely, however, situations which require teamwork could be very substantial.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could be more adroit than usual in grasping the essence of complicated financial situations today. While associates are trying to define the problem, you may already have the solution. (C) 1993, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
