PRESIDENT HARDING DIED LAST NIGHT

CARRIERS ARE NOT FAIR WITH FLORIDA SHIPPERS SAYS COMMISSION CHAIRMAN

RAILROADS RATHER RESENT QUESTION ANY KIND REGULATION

ARE MISTAKEN

In Their Ideas and Willing to Abide They Say But Auctions Do Not Prove It

(By The Associated Press)

ORLANDO, Fla., Aug. 3.—There is every evidence that the carriers do not intend to treat fairly with the shippers, declared R. H. Burr, chairman of the state railroad commission, speaking here today before a meeting of citrus fruit growers and perishable freight shippers of Florida.

The meeting was called to consider increased refrigerator charges which the railroads have given notice they intend to put into effect August 10, and to consider ways and means to prevent action of the carriers in assessing the increases which will approximate 15 per cent, according to estimates by the commission.

The carriers "do not seem to realize that there is a mutual interest existing between the shippers and carriers," Mr. Burr asserted, and added that "the more tonnage the shipper produces for the carrier, the more the carrier wants to take from the shipper."

"The carrier, as a general rule, resent, and have always resented, the question of regulation, although they profess at certain times they have been mistaken in their ideas and are perfectly willing and glad to have the regulation, but their actions do not point to a confirmation of this announcement," the commission chairman continued.

Mr. Burr, in sketching the history of refrigeration charges applied to perishable shipments from the state, said that "in September, 1918, the railroad commission of Florida attacked the refrigerator charges applicable on Florida, perishables, and also the line haul charges."

Continuing, he declared:

"After an extensive hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission an order of that commission was issued which brought about a 20 per cent decrease in the ice factor contained in the refrigeration charges. This tariff went into effect giving the growers of Florida the benefit of same on the crop for the season 1921-22. Shortly after these rates went into effect the carriers again petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission to re-open the case, which was denied. Soon afterward the carriers again petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission and obtained permission to re-open the case."

"A great deal of testimony was taken which finally resulted in another decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission, which was rendered in November, 1922—their former order being modified by taking off 5 per cent of the reduction in the former order, so that the 1922-23 crop was moved at a reduction of 15 per cent of the former charges, which tariff is now in effect, and which the carriers by the present tariff filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, effective August 10th, seek to impose an increase on all the factors of refrigeration charges which amount to more than the refrigeration charges originally were."

The railroad commission has petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission for a suspension of the tariff carrying these charges, Mr. Burr stated. If the suspension is not granted it will be necessary, he said, for the state and the growers not only to meet the voluminous testimony which the carriers "without rebuttal of the carriers' testimony."

This will involve very expensive examinations and inspections of the methods employed by the carriers in

SOUTH MOURNS DEATH TODAY OF TRUE FRIEND

Spent Some Time in Florida After Election Before Taking Seat

(By The Associated Press)

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 3.—The south mourned today the death of her true friend in the passing of the President. Many recalled the four visits which Harding made this section after election of his presidency "pointing out also that he 'broke the solid south' in 1920 when Tennessee cast its electoral vote for him by a big majority. Harding spent some weeks in Florida between election and induction into office of president."

Sanford Truck Growers Hold Annual Meeting and Elect New Officers

The annual stockholders meeting of the Sanford Truck Growers, Inc., was held on Wednesday, August 1st, at 8 o'clock p. m. at the court house. There was quite a large attendance of stockholders and very much interest displayed.

The financial statement for the past year was read and showed that the Sanford Truck Growers are in better condition financially, than they have ever been heretofore.

The total number of cars handled by this organization during the past season was 1,060 cars. The association has made a nice gain in tonnage for next year, and with the same average yield per acre that prevailed during the last season, the organization will handle at least 1,200 cars next year.

The Sanford Truck Growers have been gaining tonnage consistently during the past three years and the membership is well satisfied. The following officers were elected to handle the business during the coming season: T. F. Adams, president; J. J. Bolly, vice-president; J. C. Hutchison, general manager; R. A. Cobb, sec'y-treas., with the following to serve as directors: Henry Nickel, W. E. Hand, John Ludwig, Peter Thurston, A. R. Merriwether, H. J. Lehman, George Herbst and J. B. Jones.

With this corps of officers the progress that has been illustrated, should be continued throughout the coming year.

SECRETARY DAVIS IS SHOCKED IN LONDON BY NEWS OF DEATH

(By The Associated Press) LONDON, Aug. 3.—The Associated Press telephoned James J. Davis, American secretary of labor, the news of President Harding's death immediately it was received here. The secretary was terribly shocked.

He thanked the Associated Press in a trembling voice for conveying the news to him, but his voice seemed too broken to say more.

Post Wheeler, the American charge d'affaires, was similarly informed. Likewise, he expressed great sorrow and surprise.

WARREN G. HARDING

NATION MOURNS PASSING OF ITS LEADER FROM COAST TO COAST AND TERRITORY BEYOND THE SEAS

Reports of Yesterday Were So Cheering That His Death Came as a Great Shock to Millions Who Were Anxious About President's Condition

END CAME SUDDENLY LAST NIGHT

Mrs. Harding Who Was Reading to Him at the Time of Stroke is Bearing Up Bravely Under the Awful Strain of Several Weeks

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—The nation today mourned the passing of its leader. The American people from coast to coast, from the Great Lakes to the Gulf and in territories beyond the seas bowed their heads in grief for President Harding was dead. In the early hours of last evening after a day which had brought renewed hope of recovery death came suddenly and struck down Warren G. Harding with a stroke of cerebral apoplexy. The end came instantaneously without even a second of warning at 7:30 o'clock. There was no time to summon additional physicians, no time to call members of the official family and no time for medical skill to exercise its knowledge. It was all over in the twinkling of an eye and it left the nation and world shocked and in grief.

Mrs. Harding, the constant companion of her distinguished husband, was faithful until the end. She was reading to him a few minutes before 7:30 when she noticed a shudder run through the frame of the man she had loved and encouraged in adversity and praised in success, and before she could arise from the chair President Harding had collapsed in bed and she rushed to the door calling for the physicians to come quickly. General Sawyer, chief of staff of physicians who has been attending the chief executive, was also in the room and two nurses present, did all they could but it availed nothing. The president fought and won a victory against disease but it appeared in more insidious form and he lost the battle. Great as was the shock to all who dwell under the American flag and to the peoples in many lands for President Harding by virtue of his office his kindly lovable personality had become a world figure, the great shock came to his wife reading by his side. But she did not collapse. "She was of course at first unable to realize that she had lost a husband who had made up all interest in her life for so many proud and happy years," said Sawyer later, "but there was no collapse, no hysterics, just a brave rally to face her sorrows and duties devolving upon her with this hour." Mrs. Harding was standing under the shock well early today but whether she could stand up under the grief that bore down upon her as the sad journey back to Washington is made, was another question. Those who know her best, say she will.

With the passing of Mr. Harding the office of president devolves upon Calvin Coolidge, vice-president of the United States, a man silent by nature, but demonstrated as strong in emergencies. He was notified of the death of Mr. Harding at his home in Plymouth, Vt.

The suddenness with which the end came was shown by the fact that only Mrs. Harding and the two nurses,

VICE PRESIDENT COOLIDGE IS PRESIDENT

Takes Office at 2:47 This Morning at Home

CALVIN COOLIDGE

MRS. CALVIN COOLIDGE

(By The Associated Press)

PLYMOUTH, Vermont, Aug. 3.—Vice President Calvin Coolidge became president of the United States at 2:47 o'clock this morning, Eastern standard time, when he took oath of office in the living room of his father's farm house in this little mountain village where he was born. Three hours earlier he had been notified of the death of President Harding and in brief statement had expressed his grief at the passing of his chief and friend, and his purpose of carrying out policies, "which he began for service of the American people." President Coolidge left Plymouth for Rutland on his way to Washington at 7:30 o'clock this morning.

Calvin Coolidge, although by profession a lawyer, entered the public service almost immediately upon leaving college.

First elected a member of the city council of Northampton, Mass., the city which had been his home since he became a voter, he progressed steadily upward through the offices of city solicitor, mayor, membership in the house of representatives and of the senate of Massachusetts, serving as president of the latter body, and then as lieutenant governor, until elected governor, and in 1920 vice-president of the United States.

In the more than twenty years he gave to these duties his time was almost exclusively devoted to the problems of public affairs. Only incidentally did he turn to the law, although he always maintained an office with an associate at Northampton.

He was born in the village of Plymouth, Vt., on July 4, 1872, of Puritan ancestors who came to this country and settled in Watertown, Mass., in 1630.

He left the farm in 1891 for Amherst College and graduated with honors in 1895. Immediately upon leaving college he went to Northampton to study law, and finally settled there.

It was Mr. Coolidge's common sense his insight into legislative tactics and

Sanford Kiwanis Sends Condolence to Mrs. Harding Today

The Sanford Kiwanis Club sent the following wire of condolence to Mrs. Harding this morning: "Sanford Kiwanis Club expresses its deepest sympathy in this, your hour of bereavement and the nation's sorrow.—Sanford Kiwanis Club."

President Harding was a member of the Marion, Ohio, Kiwanis Club and took a great interest in the work of the club wherever he happened to be located.

DEATH THROWS COMPLICATIONS INTO POLITICS

Demise of Harding Will Turn Republican Convention Upside Down

(By The Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Death throws new complications into the political situation within the Republican party which undoubtedly will have far-reaching reflections in the national convention next year. Probably will turn what many expected to be merely a ratification meeting into a contest for Republican presidential nomination with stalwart conservative Republican forces aligned on one side and forces represented by such leaders as Johnson, Borah, LaFollette on the other. Six months ago renomination of Harding without any substantial contest seemed assured.

HARDING'S SISTERS, IN WASHINGTON, WILL START FOR MARION

MARION, O., Aug. 3.—Miss Abigail Harding and Mrs. Carrie Votaw, sisters of the president, who have been traveling in the East, were located in Washington by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, son of Brigadier General Charles E. Sawyer, personal physician of the president. They wired that they would take the first train to Marion.

his mentality which first attracted to him the attention of political leaders. The late Senator W. Murray Crane, who was a resident of Coolidge's congressional district, was among the first to note these qualities, and he resolved to utilize the first opportunity to project Mr. Coolidge into the national political arena.

By hard work and steady progress Mr. Coolidge continued his rise until he could be considered for high state office, and then it was that Senator Crane and other leaders exerted their powers to have him nominated for the lieutenant governorship. He was elected in the first campaign won by the Republicans in Massachusetts for several years, due to the Progressive party split. Thereafter it was but logical for him to succeed to the governorship, an office which he held for two terms and which he left for the vice-presidency.

The dramatic events of the Boston police strike, in which the governor took a firm and unyielding stand for law and order, focused upon him in 1919 national attention and made of him almost overnight a national figure. For a while he was talked of prominently as a presidential possibility.

As vice-president he became a regular attendant at the president's cabinet meetings, a custom established for the first time in his case.

Mr. Coolidge married Miss Grace Goodhue, whom he first met in Northampton as a teacher, in 1905, and they have two sons.

BUT IT SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE TO IMPRESS THIS UPON LEGISLATIVE MIND

BURR DECLARES

During Course of His Address to Citrus and Vegetable Growers and Shippers

(By The Associated Press)

ORLANDO, Fla., Aug. 3.—The Florida railroad commission needs more legislation at the hands of the state legislature, but for several sessions "it has seemed impossible to impress this upon the legislative mind," the chairman of that commission, R. H. Burr, declared here today during the course of an address before a meeting of citrus fruit growers and perishable freight shippers of the state gathered here to protest against proposed increased refrigeration charges by the railroads.

Mr. Burr declared the commission was without sufficient funds to conduct rate cases as they should be conducted before the Interstate Commerce Commission, if the best results were to be obtained. He indicated, however, that there is a likelihood that his body will combine its protests and go before the federal rate-regulating commission with a protest not only against the refrigeration charges now proposed, but would also enter a protest against the present line haul rates throughout the state. The commission has been watching the income of the roads for some time with this step in view, he asserted.

Returning to the legislative angle, the chairman of the commission asserted that "the commission has been handicapped in all the rate legislation for years for the lack of sufficient appropriation to properly conduct a rate case." The present instance finds the commission more hopelessly without the necessary funds to do things which they know are absolutely necessary in the present situation.

"The legislature adopted the so-called budget plan for the various departments of the state government," Mr. Burr continued. "Prior to the convening of the legislature the budget commission, consisting of the Governor, Comptroller, and State Treasurer, sent out a questionnaire to the different departments of the government to make up an estimate of their needs for the ensuing two years. The railroad commissioners fully answered this questionnaire, and pointed out to the budget commission what was necessary for the commission to properly function in a way that would be satisfactory to the people of Florida, and for the greatest good. In the making up of that budget the commission did not apparently agree with the ideas of the railroad commission and while increasing slightly the salary of two employees, the appropriation remains practically as it has been for years."

The legislature met and selected its joint appropriation committee of the two houses was formed, he said, and they had hearings on the appropriations. "The commissioners tried at that time to impress upon the appropriation committee the necessity first for salaries for technical employees that would enable the commission to employ men capable of doing the things the commission has found necessary to do in the conduct of the office. Again the commission apparently failed to make an impression upon the joint appropriation committee. Therefore, the commission now finds itself with only a few thousand dollars available in a fight that conservatively estimated will cost $15,000."

"This leads me to say to the growers and business men of Florida," the speaker exclaimed, "that they have not heretofore paid enough attention to the selection of men to represent them in the legislature. They have cast their votes blindly and without

REPARATION NOTE REPLY HAS NOT BEEN RECEIVED PREMIER BALDWIN TALKS

(Continued from page 1) ing the grave problem of unemployment and Sir Clement Montague Barlow, minister of labor, outlining the various government plans for relief work, expressed apprehension that the coming winter would be no better than the last in the industrial field, despite the promise of an abundant harvest and that the ultimate hope depend upon the economic and industrial peace of Europe.

Thereupon, the former chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Robert S. Horne, exhorted the government to keep clearly in view the ultimate effect on unemployment of the particular policy it adopted. He proceeded to argue that both Germany and France were likely to be Britain's greatest trade competitors; they were both largely in Britain's debt and were making no efforts to pay those debts. He contended that if Germany escaped paying reparations she would become the most powerful country in Europe. Germany had not been idle, but had reconstructed the whole of her great industrial organization. It would be unwise to give her too long a moratorium, which would assist her to become Great Britain's competitor.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Great Britain and France stand even further apart in their attitude toward Germany than the British people and probably the world at large have understood. This seems to be the conclusion drawn from explanations of Prime Minister Baldwin, Lord Curzon, foreign secretary, gave the two houses of parliament today the position resulting from latest British attempt to lay foundations of united policy.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—If the British government demands publication of the documents recently exchanged between the allied governments on reparations the French government will agree to this request, it was announced, and will itself publish the French note as soon as it receives consent of other powers, notably Belgium.

Proof that the Community Club has become a notable factor in Geneva in the social part as well as civic, or deserves to be, was evidenced at a birthday party which was given at the hall Friday night. The entire community was well represented with a large crowd in attendance. The hall and twelve tables were tastefully decorated in greenery and pink flowers. Dr. Gorrie, Recognized Inventor Ice Machine, Statue in Hall of Fame

Another Stole His Formula But His Memory Is Kept Green.

CLARKESVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 2.—Dr. John Gorrie of Apalachicola, Fla., inventor of artificial ice, died broken hearted, while a Frenchman to whom he had imparted his secret, before he could interest financial circles sufficiently to back him to place his product on the market, was acclaimed the greatest benefactor of mankind when the manufacture of the cooling substance was finally perfected.

This story is related by Mrs. Carrie Floyd Stewart of Milton, Fla., a granddaughter of Dr. Gorrie, who is on a visit to relatives here.

Recognition of the great service rendered by Dr. Gorrie came sixty years after he had exhibited a block of the greatest of all blessings during hot weather at a banquet in his home town, by the erection of his statue in the Hall of Fame in Washington, his great granddaughter, Miss Mary Louise Stewart, unveiling it in 1914.

It required two years of experimental work by Dr. Gorrie to bring forth a sample of artificial ice, when during the yellow fever epidemic of 1852 it was in great demand.

He did not have sufficient means to market the product and went to New York in an attempt to interest capitalists. He obtained a patent, but met with little enthusiasm and returned to Florida.

While on board ship during his New York trip, Dr. Gorrie became acquainted with a Frenchman named Currie to whom he imparted his formula, and two years after the inventor's death the Frenchman was acclaimed the savior of mankind when he successfully placed the product on the market.

Friends of Dr. Gorrie investigated, only to find that the former patent had disappeared, and that the formula of Currie was almost identical with the Gorrie formula.

Friends of Dr. Gorrie in Florida were much disturbed, but took restitution in the fact that his name and likeness repose in records of fame in the nation's capital.

EIGHT HUNDRED GO THROUGH TO SUMMER CAMPS

About eight hundred Florida young men ranging in ages between 17 and 24, are now well on their respective ways to attend the civilian military training camps during the month of August at Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala., Fort Barrancas, Pensacola, and Camp Bragg, Fayetteville, N. C., a majority of them passed through Jacksonville, stopping off here before leaving for their respective camps.

Throughout Tuesday trains from various sections of Florida arrived bringing in detachments of the young fellows, some of whom had had previous experience in similar camps, while the majority have never had an opportunity for such training.

They were all likely looking specimens of handhood, some short and heavy set, others slender of stature but with plenty of chances to fill out. Others tall and rangy of build looked competent to take up the military duties right at the start like veterans.

Many arrived in the early afternoon and having relatives and friends in Jacksonville scattered about the city to visit them. The government had provided some with transportation while others paid their way and will be reimbursed upon arrival at camp. Practically every city and town of any size in Florida had representation among the boys.

For the next thirty days they will follow the lives of soldiers and in addition to military duties will be given opportunities to exhibit their athletic prowess in base ball, swimming, running, jumping and other outdoor sports. The experience will not cost the boys one penny, the government defraying all expenses, but there is no pay attached to the service.—Times-Union.

HIERS DEMANDS $5.00 AND LO! HE GETS $5,000 CASH

Funny Incident in Star's First Comedy, "Mr. Billings Spends His Dime"

How would you like to ask five dollars for information you had and have the buyers misunderstand and give you five thousand dollars?

That exceptional situation arises in "Mr. Billings Spends His Dime," a Paramount Walter Hiers first star picture, which comes to the Princess Theatre Friday and Saturday. Walker spends his last ten cent piece for a cigar. Inside the band of that cigar is a secret message from an insurrectionary gang in Santo Diner, a South American republic, to secret agents of the revolutionists in this country.

When the agents attempt to get the information from Hiers as to what was in the band, he agrees to sell it. "How much?" demands the secret agent quickly.

Astounded by the sudden request, Hiers is unable to talk. Instead, he merely holds up his two hands and signifies "ten," but he means "ten dollars."

"Too much," cries the other and indicates that he will compromise on five, to which Walker agrees.

Then the stranger pays Hiers five thousand dollars, and he hearily falls through the floor.

What he does with the five thousand makes a stor y as full of laughs and thrills and romance as can be imagined. Jacqueline Logan is featured as leading woman and heads an exceptionally capable supporting cast. The production is massive and beautiful, and ther e are many laughs as well as thrills in the development of the story. The Daily Herald, 15c per week.

SECOND STREET BETWEEN PARK AND OAK

UPSALLA AND GRAPEVILLE

Emil Magnuson, Alfred Ericson and Gus Malm motored to Orlando on Tuesday to see the latter's brother, Victor Malm.

Miss Margaret Ericson spent Sunday with friends at the beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Hirchi and family enjoyed the day, Sunday at Palm Springs.

Gardner Lundquist left on Wednesday to resume his old trade at Pensacola, having spent the time since Christmas at the home of his mother in Upsalla. We had all hoped to keep him with us.

Miss Eunice Tyner who recently returned from Gray, Georgia, has been working this week in the new Woolworth store and her sister, Florence also helped out for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Noah Fry, Mrs. Bengston of Windemere and her daughter, Mrs. Fisher and little daughter of Tampa were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Tyner.

Emil Magnuson took John A. Borell and Alfred Ericson and the children to Formosa to see Mrs. Borell on Sunday.

Mrs. Forrest West has been kindly playing at the Adventist tent meeting in Sanford. We are sorry to hear her daughter, Lila, lost a valuable wrist watch which she much prized, on Sunday evening.

Vollie Williams brought back his wife and children Tuesday from Coronado Beach where they have been for a couple of months, having had a good time but glad to get back home.

Friends of Mrs. L. B. Hodgins are pleased to hear that she was able to return home from the Fernald-Laughton hospital after two weeks of serious illness there with fever. Mrs. Barney Beck winfully looked after Alice and little L. B. during her absence.

August and Niel Swanson received the sad news on Wednesday of the death of their brother, Ben, of Denver, Colo. He leaves another brother, John, of Ottumwa, Iowa, and two sons to mourn their loss. He spent last winter here with his brothers in Florida.

Grandmother Hamilton also recently passed on. She spent one winter at the home of her son, Ed and wife in Grapeville.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. John Borell are thankful that his wife has safely went through a serious operation at the Formosa Sanitarium with Dr. Ozenbach, of Orlando in charge. She is getting along finely.

Her sister, Mrs. Adam Karr and daughter of DeLand have been here for a week the guests of her twin-sister, Mrs. Alfred Ericson and both have been to see her.

Mrs. Elmer Lundquist and children spent from Thursday until Saturday with the home folks, returning then to Coronado Beach where the little ones are having a fine time and improving in health.

We are rejoicing in the gift of a barrel of books and magazines from the Orange City library to the Upsalla Sunday school as a beginning of one for us. Vollie Williams kindly had them brought out to the church.

Albion Swanson came Saturday from Topeka Kan., to be with his wife who has been ill since they came two months ago. His parents have been caring for her and Dr. Puleston has been coming to see her. We hope she may be in better health soon and that they may be able to make their home among us.

Rev. J. S. Clark and wife will be with us again on Sunday for service and we hope also the daughter may come too and favor us with one of her beautiful songs which her mother accompanies so well.

The parents spent the day, Wednesday at the Ballinger home. They had a time with their little grandson's car but he is better now. They hope to keep the little one this winter with them as the daughter, Mrs. Podmore will also teach with her husband at Kilduff College and in the winter months is organist at the Congregation church at Winter Park.

Mrs. William Townsend and three children and her mother, Mrs. J. W. McElwinson motored from Arcadia on the 22nd, the mother returning home the next day, while the daughter and her family remained for a week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hilmer Lundquist.

Among the items sent in two weeks ago which evidently got lost: Mr. and Mrs. Clark Pierson and children of Paola have moved into the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Meador who have gone down again on the East Coast; Elinor Tyner accompanying her sister, Mrs. Mable Krell home to Arcadia. Mrs. Neese and children are visiting relatives at Punta Gorda and below Fort Myers to see her sister. Of the picnic at the lake in honor of the birthdays of Alfred Ericson, Carl Pierson and Melva Lundquist.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Floodine and son Willis, of Wauchula were guests of A. H. Lundquist and family from Saturday until Tuesday.

THE PERILS OF POOR HEALTH

A Forerunner of a General Breakdown That May Put You Out of the Running for Life.

Quickest Way to Get Well is Through New Treatment Containing Seventeen Ingredients That Renew Every Part of the Body.

If you feel sickly and good-for-nothing, have a sort of dizziness, dull headache, back pains, rheumatism, and are subject to indigestion or constipation, have no appetite and can't sleep, watch out! There is grave danger ahead!

Any remedy that will give temporary relief to pain and does you up for a time simply postpones the final spell and makes it worse when it comes. This is why a complete systemic treatment is necessary to regain good health.

This complete treatment is found only in a prescription known as Re-Cu-Ma, which contains seventeen well known and thoroughly tested medicines, skillfully compounded that each one performs its function on the various parts of the body perfectly and harmoniously.

This remarkable prescription thoroughly cleanses the colon of its accumulation of poisonous refuse, discharging it through the proper channel instead of allowing it to course through your veins and empty into your body. The colon, according to Prof. Metchnikoff of the Pasteur Institute, Paris, is the direct cause of all our aches and pains. In addition, Re-Cu-Ma starts the liver to work pleasantly and naturally without gripping or purging, purifies and strengthens the blood, thus building firm, healthy, rosy flesh that is free from pimples and other blemishes, relieves rheumatic and back pains, gives you a digestion that enables you to eat anything you like without fear of bad after effects and you sleep like a log. In a word, Re-Cu-Ma is a scientific prescription that revives, renews and regenerates your entire system so that you feel constantly full of pep and ambition.

Re-Cu-Ma is sold and recommended by the Union Pharmacy and other good drug stores, and if you don't feel a decided change in your condition, after taking according to directions, you get your money back.—Adv. 7-18-23

LARGE CROWD ATTENDED
DR. KING'S SERMON
SUNDAY NIGHT

Dr. King, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Sanford, delivered a sermon there Sunday evening, July 29th, that will very likely influence the lives of young people for years to come.

He dealt with the subject, "The Young Man Four-Square." "A young man," he stated, "is one of the determining factors in home, social and business life."

The text was taken from various chapters of Genesis, dealing with the life of Joseph—among them being Gen. 39: 2, 21.

Dr. King stated that a young man must possess three sterling qualities to make a success in life: (1) diligence, (2) trustworthiness, and (3) courage.

As a fitting example of a young man possessing these qualities, Dr. King gave the life of Joseph, who rose from a slave to a premier of Egypt, and who was diligent to his master, Potiphar, was trustworthy because Potiphar put him in charge of all his possessions, and courageous in the face of danger and opposition.

Dr. King particularly stressed the fact that the passage "And God was with him" (Joseph) was mentioned three times in the same chapter, and said that God would be with any young man who would determine to live right.

Dr. King stated that the bravest young man was "the man who, when called by God, would lay aside what he was doing and be ready for the task at once." As an example of "the young man at his best" he mentioned the scene of Joseph forgiving his sinful brothers.

This sermon was one of the most inspiring that has ever been delivered in the First Baptist church and the large crowd attending were pleasantly aware of the fact.

Next Sunday night Dr. King will speak on "The Young Woman who won the Admiration of the City," and from all indications this sermon will be as benfiting as the one delivered last Sunday.

TO PROTECT GAME FISH
LEESBURG MAY PROHIBIT
SALE OF SAME IN CITY

LEESBURG, Aug. 2.—Secretary Harry P. Leonard of the Leesburg Chamber of Commerce has petitioned the city commissioners to adopt an ordinance prohibiting the sale of game fish on the streets of the city in future. From time immemorial it has been the custom of the brunette disciples of Isaac Walton to pass their time, irrespective of the season, fishing the waters of Lakes Harris and Griffin and peddling their catch upon the streets of the city. At times, when business was dull, the delayed sales would harbor splendid possibilities for inflicting ptomaine poisoning on residents who might purchase the fish through such sources. Even in the yawning season, the fish were caught, precluded the possibility of propagation, and with two or three hundred fish a day taken from the waters, without replenishing, it would be merely a question of time till the finny tribe was entirely denuded. Not only will this action be taken municipally, but the chamber of commerce will make a similar suggestion to the organization in the state for like action until legislative relief may be obtained, and the fish protected during the proper season. Residents of Leesburg will materially aid the conservation of game fish in these waters by not patronizing those who are engaged in such industry.

Another angle of the situation might be cited through the fact that labor is scarce in dustrial lines of the city, and were a hundred or more now engaged in fishing to find that occupation non-remunerative, it might be possible they would take up other courses where their services are more needed, to secure a livelihood.

Cheer up, you bobbed haired girls; leap year next—and you can just shake your wavy mop at whoever you please and see him fall.—Times-Union.

OUR PRESIDENT IS DEAD.

Our president is dead. The news was flashed all over the world last night about eight o'clock or so as soon as the shock of the sudden death of President Warren G. Harding had worn off sufficiently for the attendants and his devoted wife to make known the fact that the president had breathed his last almost before they knew that he was passing away.

President Harding was not what one would call a brilliant man but as the history of his life says: "He brought to the Presidency an infinite patience and kindness in dealing with public questions and men which enabled him to handle the problems of government without the stress and worry that handicapped many of his predecessors."

And yet even though the late president may have appeared to take life easier than many other chief executives the first four years of his occupancy of the president's chair left their indelible stamp upon his features and he was aging rapidly under the strain that will weaken anyone but a superman in strength and mental poise.

Mr. Harding was not the first president to weaken and fall while shouldering the heavy burdens of state. So many other big hearted, sympathetic men have succumbed to the constant grind of officialdom, to that unseen danger that lurks around the corner from the White House and is ever at the elbow of the rulers of all countries.

It is even acknowledged by partisan politicians that the coming of Mr. Harding to the president's chair with an open mind and a desire for counsel and an intimate knowledge of the processes of government acquired in the Senate made him the type of man needed for the job at that time and the members of all parties were his friends and gave him credit for being fair and impartial at all times.

Not only was he looked upon as a peace-maker in international affairs but in the affairs of our own government and he was not infrequently called to adjust the differences of house and senate and the congress and the other branches of government.

Home loving, peace loving, loyal to his home town folks and to his native state Warren G. Harding was one of those characters that hold such a large place in the hearts of the people even though they may not take a prominent part in the affairs of the world. The late president had a warm friend in the printers and newspaper men of the country and his heart since early boyhood seemed to be wrapped up in the printing and newspaper business and he always took great pride in the fact that he could go into any newspaper office and make up the paper and put it to press.

He came of pioneer stock being born and raised on a farm in Ohio and going to country school and later attending the college close to his home where he received his early education and the best part of his education was learned in the printing office where he learned printing and measures and began his interest in the affairs of the nation and especially of his native state.

Always a warm advocate of the principles of the Republican party he tried to swing his home county to the ranks of the Republicans and his efforts in this respect brought him into public notice and he was eventually elected to the Senate and then to the presidency.

Rotarians of Asheville, N. C., have started a movement to raise $250,000 to advise western North Carolina resorts. The Rotarians have been joined by other civic clubs and it is proposed to raise $50,000 a year for five years. Advertising is the thing that brings the people these days and it matters not whether it is the merchant advertising to bring customers to his store or a city advertising to bring tourists.—Daytona Journal.

THE FIRST MILE.

It took Henry Ford twelve years to sell his first million cars. It took him only six months to sell his eighth million.

Here you have a clear-cut illustration of a principle that regulates success in nearly every field of endeavor. It is so universal a principle that it is almost natural law.

This is the principle: Getting started is nine-tenths of the battle for success. Once we are "on our feet"—definitely progressing toward our goal—our progress increasingly becomes easier.

Every self-made rich man, looking back over his career, knows that it is more difficult to accumulate the first $1,000 than any $10,000 that follows. Hence the expression, "Money breeds money."

The fastest locomotive has a lot of preliminary work, devoted to mechanical tests, inspection and getting up steam, during which period the locomotive doesn't travel at all. It stands still until ready to make its fast run to destination.

The championship prizefight lasts only a matter of minutes. But it is won or lost in the years of training beforehand.

It took the allied armies more than four years to develop the strength and momentum for the comparatively short campaign that knocked out Germany. At many times during those long years, and right up to within a few months of the German surrender, it looked as if the German preliminary work had been largely wasted. But it wasn't.

Once you get an army on the run, victory comes fast. So does success, after we get firmly on our feet.

After the seeds sprout in the garden, comes a period in which the outlook seems almost hopeless except to the experienced gardener. The fight against weeds and cut-worms and insects is a neck-and-neck contest. And then, almost overnight, the garden wins the fight. Thereafter it requires comparatively little care. The harvest is won or lost in the discouraging period early in the game.

Why, then, even allow ourselves to become discouraged, no matter what we are attempting or how great our setbacks?

Night is blackest just before the dawn. And the average career is bluest just before we win.

Most of us are nearer success than we realize. Success may even be right around the corner. Trouble is, the majority of people get discouraged and slow down their efforts at the critical moment when they are on the verge of "getting across."

The leaders of men are the ones who hang on in the crisis when the others lose heart and let go.—Tampa Times.

TAKE AN INTEREST IN CITY AFFAIRS.

There is much of interest in city affairs that the average man knows nothing about and he does not inform himself about them but usually takes the word of some one about it and this word passed from hand to hand is rather distorted when it reaches the citizen sitting on his porch resting from the day's labors.

What every citizen should do is to get the first hand information about the city's affairs. The present city commission wants the citizens to confer with them about the city business. Other cities are adopting this method and the Lakeland Star-Telegram says:

"Aside entirely from the details of figures and other information contained in the semi-annual report of the city commission, made through the city auditor and clerk and published in this newspaper today, comes the obligation of every good citizen to familiarize himself and herself with the city's financial standing. The modern better way of looking at a city's affairs is to consider those affairs in a personal way, much in the same manner as the stockholders in a corporation, be it mercantile, banking or whatever the nature, look for statements from their officers showing what the corporation is accomplishing or failing to accomplish. There is a getting away from the idea that the officials making such statements over their signatures, are doing so for the sole purpose of letting the shareholders know what wonderful things they really are. The correct idea is the business idea of a plain presentation of receipts and disbursements, a statement of assets and liabilities and such other data as will enable those interested to know about the standing of their enterprise. The strength and stability of a municipal corporation largely depends on the intelligent interest displayed by the people as a whole on the conduct of the affairs of that municipality. The greater that interest and the closer the co-operation, the better the government."

FROM OTHER SANCTUMS

YOUNG PEOPLE: WORK AND SPENDING.

Roger W. Babson, eminent statistician and observer, friend of Florida and a part-time resident in the state, in discussing "America's Greatest Need," in the Times-Union last Saturday, says that which all young and old, should read and "inwardly digest." He knows what he is talking about. He looks facts squarely in the face. He is not unlike the heroic physician who realizes that severe ills require drastic treatment. Hence it is, that with all his admission of optimism with reference to the business situation of this country, he places his finger, so to speak on a glaringly "sore spot" on the body politic; more particularly an affliction that has fallen on the "younger generation," the young men and the young women of the United States.

Mr. Babson studies not only purely business conditions and requirements but he delves into the "spiritual forces underlying business" and exposes to view that which in this instance, is generally known and recognized but that is not so generally admitted as a menace to prosperity in general and to the welfare of the individual. Mr. Babson asserts that "the attitude of the younger generation is distinctly harmful to the present situation," and sums up his reasons for saying so, as follows:

"I have offices in twenty-six large cities and correspondents in two hundred other cities. In every locality I find that the average man today is interested only in spending. People not only want to get rich quick but without working. People are buying recklessly without any thought about where the money is coming from with which to pay. Our young people seem to have the idea that dollar bills grow on trees and all they have to do is to pick them off. Almost no one wants to work. Very few want to produce. Earnest and industrious manual laborers, such as we had twenty-five years ago, are almost an unknown quantity. Everyone wants to ride in the car and no one wants to pull. Our percentage of producers is steadily decreasing and the percentage of middlemen is steadily increasing."

Here is the result of careful investigation, that is, or ought to be, a warning to be heeded generally, for as Mr. Babson says in the paragraph following that above quoted. "Such conditions cannot continue forever." Then he adds: "A dog may live on his tail for a while, but it cannot continue this process indefinitely. People may for a while get a living doing one another's washing, but after the clothes are worn out there will be no washing to do. A certain number of people can exist as middlemen. Middlemen are a necessity and serve a valuable economic function, but America's great need is producers, especially men and women filled with the desire to produce and with the joy of production. America's great need is a revival of the joy of work. America's great need is a revival of the desire to serve. America's great need is a revival of the habit of saving."

There is no call for comment on what Mr. Babson says, as here quoted, because it is so plainly stated and so easy of corroboration. But there is call for serious attention to what he says, and for application of the necessary remedy, which he says in his concluding paragraph, is "industry, service and thrift." Will the "younger generation" be wise and see their folly ere it is too late, and take the indicated course toward safety?—Times-Union.

BASEBALL PLAYER PRESENTED BALL TEAM ON HIS BIRTHDAY

TAMPA, Aug. 3.—A full fledged baseball club on your birthday. How would that appeal to you? That is what has just happened to one C. J. Roberts of this city. July 31st was his 24th year of existence, and his father, who owned the Tampa baseball club, presented it to him.

Previous to becoming owner of the club the young man occupied the central garden with considerable success. He now becomes owner, manager and player.

The Tampa baseball club is in class "C" and has been putting on some excellent exhibitions of the national pastime. The young owner believes that he will have a pennant contender in the field next season as he immediately took over the reins of the club and is preparing to put a real team on the field.

Mrs. Harding ran to the door and called for Lieutenant Commander Boone and for the other doctors to come quickly.

Only Doctors Sawyer and Boone, the chief and assistant physicians, were able to reach the room before the nation's leader passed away. They were powerless to do anything.

Brave in the face of the president's illness, Mrs. Harding remained brave in realization of his death and did not break down.

General John J. Pershing, accompanied by Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman, of San Francisco, and Supervisor Anglo Reed passed into the president's room at 8:35 p. m.

Members of the president's party said it was probable that the president's body would leave San Francisco Friday evening, but that it was impossible to make a definite announcement last night because of the absence of George B. Christian, Jr., the executive secretary. Neither were members of the party able to say whether the body would be taken to Marlon or to Washington, but will remain at the hotel here until removed directly to the train.

San Francisco with almost theatrical suddenness. Hotel officials, among the first to whom word of the tragic event was given, immediately had the great blue presidential flag with its gold seal of the United States hauled down and then raised again to half mast.

A minute or two later an assistant manager rushed into the rose bowl room, where a dinner dance was in progress, raised a hand and stopped the orchestra's playing. Announcement of the death of the chief executive followed and the dancers, their gay dress a sad contrast to their expressions of gravity, gathered into little groups, obtained their wraps and departed.

The news passed from lip to lip. Some guests, more curious than their fellows, gathered in groups at the ends of corridors leading to the presidential rooms and stared down the hallways at the scenes which shut off view of the suite where the twenty-ninth president of the United States lay, silent in death.

Cabinet officers, headed by Secretary Hoover, of the commerce department, hastened up and down the hall, hastening to express their condolence to Mrs. Harding and hurrying back for hasty conferences among themselves or with other government officials.

Lieutenant Commander Joel T. Boone, assistant physician to the president, hurried up from downstairs where a newspaper man had found him in response to Mrs. Harding's frantic appeals. Rumors began to fly about, each wider than its predecessor and all denied soon after by official bulletins which were issued as a dozen words tellings the news, or what had been rushed from the press too fast for more than a picture and the phrase, "Harding is dead," circulated like wild fire thru the downtown districts and even far out on the residential streets within a few minutes after the official bulletin announcing the death had been issued.

They brought a shock to crowds, who a few minutes before were sure that the city's distinguished guest was well on the way to recovery, had started out to spend the evening at theatres, dances or other amusements. Even before that reports of the death had spread far and the telephone switchboard at the hotel became jammed with outgoing official calls and incoming inquiries for information concerning the report.

National, state and party officials came hurrying to the hotel in numbers and gathered for conferences in eighth floor rooms or corridors near the presidential suite to discuss what should be or must be done. One or two secret service men who had been out for a few hours relaxation hurried back to aid in handling a situation made more difficult by its suddenness.

Everyone who came from the presidential suite was besieged by questioners, official, newspaper and merely curious. None could add much to the information already given out officially. Largely this was because the end came with such shocking suddenness that comparatively few of its details had been noted.

Several minutes of the president's last quarter hour alive were devoted, as had been much of his life, to childhood and its interests.

Two little girls came to the presidential suite just before 7 o'clock with flowers, seeking to present them to the president.

Mrs. Harding, who shares the president's lifelong love of children, graciously came from the sick room to speak a word to the two tots and accepted their gift. Returning to the president she took with her a few of the blossoms and these were in the room a few minutes later when he died.

Secretary Work sat with several of the other cabinet members in a room on the seventh floor immediately below that on which the presidential suite is located and arranged details. Colonel W. W. Sipple, district passenger agent of the Baltimore and Ohio railway and in charge of the train which carried the president on his ill-fated journey, and Paul Shoupe, vice-president of the Southern Pacific also met in conference.

Even after the president was dead the telegrams which have been coming ever since his illness, all expressing hopes for recovery or gratification that he had made such satisfactory progress, were continuing to flow in.

A minute or two after his death a messenger brought in a large bundle of them.

Several of the state and national figures who hurried to the presidential suite to express their sympathy and leave condolences later issued formal statements on the president's death.

Among those who did so was Representative Charles F. Curry, of California, who said: "President Harding was a patriotic American and a genuine Christian. His passing will be not only a national but an international calamity. We mourn his passing and pray

God that his successor will carry out his policies.

"For his family, we have the greatest sympathy and pray God that He will protect the republic in its hour of need."

Only an hour or two before death, President Harding was carrying on, though not in person, one of the activities to which he had looked forward as one of the most pleasant duties of his abandoned trip.

This was the presentation of the traveling Beauseant of the Knights Templar to the Hollywood, California, commandery.

In this action, the president was the representative of his own commandery. Marlon was to have determined the emblem of the California lodge of his fellow Knights as one step of its journey around the world, passing from commandery to commandery across the continents and oceans.

But his illness had intervened, and rather than that the presentation should not be made at the appointed time, he had sent his secretary, Geo. N. Christian, Jr., also a Knight Templar, to perform the duty.

Secretary Christian left for Los Angeles Wednesday afternoon and yesterday afternoon read the address the president prepared for the occasion to his fellow Knights Templar and delivered the Beauseant to their keeping.

Last night he was on his way back from Los Angeles at the time the president died and did not learn of that event for some time afterward, when urgent telegrams caught his train as it approached Central California on the run north.

The confusion which reigned for some little time immediately after news of the president's death became known died down as the capable hands of the president's advisers and associates took over the reins and the decisions that had to be made began to be considered.

Two hours after the end came, the corridors were quieter, the crowds had diminished to little knots, the groups of curious idlers in the corridor ends vanished.

Outside the hotel policemen prevented hundreds of persons from entering the building, only guests and newspapermen being admitted.

Warren G. Harding brought to the presidency an infinite patience and kindness in dealing with public questions and men, which enabled him to handle the problems of government without the stress and worry which had handicapped many of his predecessors.

Whatever else historians may say of him, there probably will be little dispute that few chief executives came to the office in peace time facing problems more complex in their nature or greater in number. All international affairs were unbalanced, as never before, with many principal settlements of the Great War still to be effected. At home the work of reconstruction had only just begun, with business depressed, agriculture prostrate and unemployment general.

How Mr. Harding managed up to the task before him must be left to the historian, but his friends said that coming to the presidency as he did with an open mind, a desire for counsel and an intimate knowledge of the processes of government acquired in his service in the Senate, he was the type of man needed for the job at such a time.

Preaching upon every occasion the doctrine of Americanism, he set his face resolutely against "entangling alliances." While thus adhering to what he was pleased to term the principles of the founding fathers, he nevertheless lent the moral assistance of the government in the efforts to build up the wounds of the world.

That influence was once declared by him to be not inconsiderable, and so America under his guidance had a part silent though it was in the main, in effecting the settlements of many vexing world questions. His chief contribution was the Washington arms conference at which the principal powers covenanted to limit the size of their navies and thus lift from tax weary people the burden of maintaining the race for naval supremacy.

Along with the proffer of counsel in effecting world settlements went an insistence that American rights be recognized.

In polished phrase, lit with a directness of expression that was not to be misconstrued, the world was given to understand from the very first of the Harding administration that the United States, freely respecting the rights of the other nations, asked for herself only that to which she was entitled in simple justice, and that she could accept nothing less.

While in his dealings with congress Mr. Harding preferred the role of counsellor rather than dictator, he speedily removed any doubt that his gift of patience denoted any lack of purpose once he charted a course. Thus he told congress that soldiers' bonus legislation either should carry the means of financing or be postponed and when the legislators put aside his advice he promptly vetoed the bill they sent him.

His tenacity of purpose was further exemplified in his continual pounding for economy in public expenditures and again in his insistence that congress pass the merchant marine act bill with a view to curtailing the continual drain which the operation of the war built commercial fleet had become upon the treasury. His greatest single effort in the field of domestic legislation was in behalf of this measure.

Not infrequently Mr. Harding was called upon to play the role of peace-maker in governmental affairs. He intervened in a dispute between congress and the treasury as to the form general tax revision was to take, and the program he approved was carried out in the main with a reduction of more than half a billion in the nation's tax burden.

Likewise, his counsel settled the long controversy between the house and senate on the question of American valuation in the tariff law. He proposed in its place a flexible tariff arrangement under which the tariff commission was given authority with his approval to increase or lower rates within prescribed limitations. Upon signing the bill the president declared it constituted the greatest tariff reform in American history.

Mr. Harding came of hardy pioneer stock. He was born at Blooming Grove, Morrow county, Ohio, November 2, 1865, the son of a country doctor, George T. Harding. Like most country boys he went to country schools between morning and night chores and later attended college at Iberia, O. He tried school teaching for a year, but having had a smell of printers' ink while sticking type for his college paper, the lure drew him into the newspaper field.

His family meantime had moved to Marion, in an adjoining county, where he obtained his first newspaper job, and where his life interests were centered thereafter. Mr. Harding's ambition was to become a publisher and it was realized at the age of 19 when he bid in the Marion Star at a sheriff's sale. The paper was purchased under a heavy mortgage and his friends have often said that the struggles and hardships which were his in making this paper a success had much to do in fashioning his character and developing a broad patience and tolerance which were his chief characteristics.

Whatever his other attainments, Mr. Harding's greatest pride was in his professional accomplishments and training as printer, editor and publisher. Nor did the interests and exacting duties of his high office serve to dull his delight in pottering about a composing room. On his first trip back home a ter his inauguration, he went to the Star office, pulled off his coat, rolled up his sleeves, borrowed a chew of tobacco and helped "make up" the paper. His luck charm was a printer's rule, carried always in a vest pocket.

As his ambition had carried him into the ranks of publishers, so his family took him into the realms of politics. From the first he was an ardent partisan, and his insistence upon wearing a "stove pipe" hat, the pledge of support of James G. Blaine, while a reporter on a Democratic newspaper, brought him a sharp reprimand from his chief, who held it to be inconsistent for a worker on a Democratic paper to so prominently display the symbol of his Republicanism.

The future president's ability as a stump speaker won him early recognition from his local party leaders. Marion county then was in the Democratic column and he undertook to switch it to the Republican party, but his first effort at office on his party ticket resulted in a defeat, though he commanded an unexpected vote.

Mr. Harding's first political office was that of Ohio state senator, to which he was elected at the age of 31. He served two terms and later was elected lieutenant governor of his state. In 1910 he sought the governorship, but was defeated. Four years later he was elected to the United States senate where he served six years, much of the time as a member of the important foreign relations committee. From this place he was elected to the presidency, the first senator to be elected chief executive.

Early in his years of political service he met William McKinley, to whom his close friends have most often likened him, and with whom he had in common a predominant passion for obliteration of class and sectional lines. A friendship sprang up between the two men. Mr. Harding also was close in later days to Theodore Roosevelt, Senators Foraker and Penrose and others high in his party councils.

The president was a life-long Baptist and was a trustee of his home church in Marion. He also had been a member of the Elk and Moose fraternities for years, and after his election as president he became a thirty-second degree Mason and a Shriner.

Golf was his favorite recreation but he also liked to fish, although his opportunities for that sport were limited after he came to the white house. He played hard and possessed the faculty of putting all his worries behind him during his recreation hours.

CARRIERS ARE NOT FAIR WITH FLORIDA SHIPPERS SAYS COMMISSION CHM.

The conduct of the refrigeration business, the commissioner pointed out. Not only would it be necessary to observe the method of icing at many Florida points, but to follow the method through all points into the Potomac yards, across the river from Washington, D. C., he said. It would be necessary also to study improvement in icing facilities at principal icing stations, he declared. Continuing the enumeration, Mr. Burr said it would be necessary:

"To assemble data showing the item of 'supervision' included in transportation charges. Also to follow a number of cars from initial points to ultimate destinations, to the end of ascertaining the amount of ice used in through-icing as a test for normal icing and to make inspection of the average amount of old ice in bunkers, of cars when offered for re-loading; to obtain data with reference to the switching item on Florida fruits and vegetables as compared with the switching item on general freight or merchandise, carriers having in the former cases, laid great stress upon the cost of this item, and also to assemble data as to the quantity and cost-of-ice factor in refrigeration charges from other territories to markets of the country."

A great many men capable of performing these services would be required to get up this information to be placed in testimony. Mr. Burr stated, and declared further that it is becoming "more costly from year to year to conduct such cases."

It is incumbent upon state authorities, or any individual or organization, Mr. Burr continued, who undertakes such cases "to present competent evidence before the Interstate Commerce Commission in order to have a hope that they may sustain their contentions." It no longer suffices, he said, to put witnesses on the stand to make the bare assertion that the rates are too high, without giving the reasons therefor.

Mr. Burr stated that the railroad commissioners have been closely observing the tonnage the carriers of the country have been called upon to move, and making note of the operating results. The business in 1922, he asserted, was more than the carriers were capable of handling, and the operating results were more than they ever had in their history, even at the high cost of labor and supplies and the fact that a coal strike existed.

"The year 1923 started off with a most unprecedented tonnage," he continued, "and the operating revenue results for the first five months showed that the railroads in the southern group have earned a great deal more than the guarantee under the Transportation act, as fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The carriers as a whole for the United States have exceeded to a lesser extent the guarantee."

"Therefore," he said, "the Railroad Commissioners of Florida have considered it advisable, if the commerce of the country keeps moving in its present proportion and the operating results maintained, that the time has about arrived when they attack the line haul rates of the carriers on Florida perishables. The commission, however, had expected to wait until later in the year, in order that they would have a longer period to observe the operating revenue from transportation, but since the carriers have initiated the movement to again increase the burden upon Florida's perishable products, and the commissioners having to undertake the fight with reference to this matter, have concluded to kill two birds with one stone, and while they are combatting the increased refrigerator charges proposed by carriers, it will be their purpose to file a petition with the Interstate Commerce Commission attacking the Florida rates as unjust and unreasonable and enter into an investigation and hearing looking to a reduction of all these rates.

The commissioner said the Florida commission was greatly surprised when the carriers filed the present tariff seeking an increase in refrigeration charges.

Why Are Some Storekeepers So Obstinate?

I am an old-fashioned buyer of the necessities for my household. I go to the store myself. To me this work is not irksome. In fact, I like it. I like to look at the shelves so full of cans and packages of so many colors. I like to do this for the same reason that I don't mind being in a crowd.

When in a crowd I look for familiar faces. When I see them I am delighted. When I am in a store I look for familiar goods and when I see them I buy. Those goods have become familiar to me through advertising and I have noticed that the grocery men who have the most of those familiar packages somehow or other seem to always go ahead.

I went into a store not of my own choosing but with a friend who, among other things, asked for a very well known article of food which is packed in a can, although she did not ask for any specific kind. I always buy—and instinctively I told her that was the kind she should ask for.

The dealer overheard me and said, "Madam, I never sell that article, I sell instead something very much better—my own brand."

Then he launched into a five-minute talk on why this article was better than the one I had named. But somehow my friend had been convinced by what I had suggested and she did not buy that can which the grocer offered.

And I thought as I walked out how stubborn and obstinate that man was. He had lost a sale, had probably taken his first step toward losing a customer, and had certainly lost a good deal of time, especially since some other people were standing around waiting to be waited on.

If that grocer had sold advertised goods he would certainly have had the brand I suggested and he would have made a sale; incidentally, he would have bid us good day cheerily and we would have been satisfied.

Familiar faces are wonderful. To me, in my capacity as a buyer for a fairly large household, familiar things on the shelves of the stores I visit are only a little less wonderful, for those familiar things help me in doing better and more economically the job which I must work at every day.

Those advertised articles which I buy and which I always buy I know have been submitted to the criticism of both competitor and consumer. This subjection to almost world-wide critical examination demonstrates to me that the manufacturer has supreme confidence in his goods. He cannot tell a falsehood about the things he makes, because there are too many in the world to find him out.

Constant advertising of any product proves that product has stood the test of scrutiny. Is it any wonder then why I, as one of several million women in my same position, prefer articles with which I am acquainted to products about which I have no knowledge and about which the manufacturer does not seem to have the courage to enlighten me?

Why Buick is "The Standard of Comparison"

It has been a fixed Buick policy always to anticipate motoring demands by developing new and advanced features of design and construction.

This has been one of the many factors contributing to Buick's great popularity—a popularity tangibly expressed in the fact that Buick is well on its way towards the manufacture of its two-millionth motor car.

Buick recognizes it as a distinct obligation to live up to the spirit and letter of its slogan "When Better Automobiles Are Built, Buick Will Build Them".

Give it a Good Home

To keep your car running smoothly and looking its best you should give it a good home. You can economize on rental by owning a garage and its convenience is also a great advantage.

Select your garage with these points in mind; it should be fireproof, reasonably low in first cost, attractive in appearance and easy to clean. Moreover, it should require little or no upkeep.

"Choosing the Garage" is the name of a booklet that you should read before deciding on the type you will build. We'll be glad to give you a free copy.

MILANE THEATRE OPENED LAST NIGHT TO 'RECORD' BREAKING HOUSE AND COULD NOT ACCOMMODATE ANY MORE But Same Picture Will Be Shown Tonight for the Benefit of Those Who Failed to Get Seats

One of the events of the season was the opening of the new Milane Theatre last night and the long string of people waiting outside to get tickets on each side of the entrance to the theater was something never before witnessed in this city. Long before the opening of the people were gathering for the occasion and while the theater will hold about 850 to seat them comfortably it was estimated that at least one thousand or more people were in the building last night when the show started. The beautiful asbestos curtain was first raised and then the beautiful velour curtains and then the screen flanked by woodland scenery brought forth round after round of applause as the big crowd seemed to realize that the first real big theater had opened in Sanford and one of the finest and most complete in the South.

The Reizenstein-Wagner Orchestra furnished music for the opening numbers and the regular Milane Orchestra composed of Brockholm and Witherington played the descriptive pieces during the showing of the big feature. The program was a big one and on account of its length only one show was given last night but it was one that was satisfying being the Pathe News, a good comedy and the big eleven reel feature "Enemies of Women" that made its first showing in the south at the new Milane here last night. The Herald will not attempt to describe all the beauties and the conveniences of the new Milane Theater as this will be given next week in a special edition for the theater showing the views of the building. But a word or two about the new theater is timely as Sanford wants the world to know that this city now has a real theater and one of which the city can well feel proud.

First the credit for the new theater is due the vision of Frank L. Miller and Edward Lane who organized the company that eventually put the big proposition over assisted by J. T. Miller and others. They never lost faith in the idea that Sanford needed and would support a real play house and their efforts have been crowned with success as the big crowd attested last night and the many expressions of satisfaction over the new theater from the many who attended the opening night.

Following are the officers of the Milane corporation:

F. L. Miller, president, E. F. Lane, vice president, C. L. Britt, secretary and treasurer. Directors, with the above, Edward Higgins, A. W. Lee, Jr., and Fred Walsma.

George Brockholm late of Tampa is the manager of the Milane and F. E. Farmer is the chief operator. Both of them have had years of experience in their particular line and will combine with the directors in making the Milane the most popular show house in this part of the state. The new Milane cost $80,000 to build and equip. The building is of hollow tile and brick faced with stucco. It contains a store room and rest room on the first floor and offices on the second floor. The building is fire proof in every respect and has a capacity in actual seats of 823. The stage is 52 feet wide, 28 feet deep and the proscenium is 30 feet. The theater can accommodate any show that comes to the state and the management has already contracted with Schubert and with Erlanger for five year contract for road shows and vaudeville will also be played during the season being on a good circuit with high class numbers.

The theater is one of the most comfortable that has ever been erected in the south having good comfortable seats upholstered in leather with ball bearing noiseless attachments. The house is ventilated by the typhoon system of ventilators having twin eight and twin six ventilators that take out the old air and pump in the new cool air every thirty seconds and last night the theater was so cool the people had to put on wraps.

Reduction in Prices at Princess Theatre

Effective tonight the prices at the Princess Theatre will be cut. Admission will be 10c and 20c. This is caused by the fact that Mr. Herndon has a large number of fine pictures ordered and paid for. The public is assured of some of the best pictures in the country for this rate of admission. Remember 10c and 20c.

Kissimmee Sees Value of Tilling its Trucking Land

KISSIMMEE, Aug. 2.—North Kissimmee has been a popular place for visitors the past week. Numerous people who are contemplating tilling their land and thus getting into the money making trucking business with the best method, have been watching the tilling crew at work on the eight acres being done for S. L. Luppfer and J. E. Luppfer.

The big rains of last week, which were the heaviest of the season, gave an excellent example of the way tilling benefits land. Mr. Steed says he went out to the tract the following morning after the rains had occurred in the afternoon, and in that portion where the tile had been laid the ground was dry and workable, while on the part not equipped the water stood in puddles. Persons going out in the late afternoon of the same day to observe the progress of the work, saw the land apparently dry and entirely dry enough to work, was still being drained by the tile that was already laid, steady streams running in to the drains from each of the laterals. Some twenty men are at work on these places and both will probably be finished next week.

Carson Farmer, who this year cleared and fenced five acres of his land near the stock yards, has decided to tile the five immediately. Holmes Prather is another convert to the tile drainage and contract has been let for tilling his land adjoining the Steed tract. Several other people now contemplating doing the same, and the prospects for this section's speedy approach to its possibilities in trucking are more than bright.

HINES TO CONFER WITH CITIZENS OF TUSKEGEE FRIDAY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Director Hines of the veterans bureau, expects to confer Friday with a committee representing the white citizens of Tuskegee, Ala., in an effort to reach an agreement on the proposal of the president to make the veterans hospital near there an army negro institution. The committee requested a conference early this week, but Director Hines was out of the city and postponed the meeting until Friday. The white residents of Tuskegee have urged that the hospital be under white control, and the director has rejected one plan submitted to him by the committee for such control. He suggested to the committee that it modify its proposals.

PALATIAL HOTEL, CLUB HOUSE AND GAME PRESERVE

TAMPA, Aug. 2.—S. I. T. Roberts, Birmingham and Tampa capitalist, and owner of the Tampa baseball club, yesterday announced the completion of plans for the erection of a $2,000,000 hotel midway between Bradenton and Manatee, on the old Adams estate, with a $100,000 club house and casino in a 42,000 acre game preserve, as an adjunct to the hotel.

The hotel is to contain 450 bed chambers, besides large and small dining and breakfast rooms, several rooms for shops on the main floor, billiard, club lounge and smoking rooms and other accommodations for multi-millionaire pleasure seekers.

A feature of the hotel is to be a campanile tower, 185 feet high, rising from the central section between the two wings. Atop the tower is to be an observation room with a big telescope mounted to show the entire country north, east and south and the gulf on the west. A huge searchlight is to be mounted on the top of the tower, an immense glassed-in dining room is to be another feature, this room fronting on a large court with ornamental fountain.

The club house and casino are to be located in a 42,000 acre tract owned by Mr. Roberts, eighteen miles up the Manatee river and connected with the hotel grounds by an automobile highway and by the river. The hotel is to occupy a tract of forty acres all to be magnificently landscaped and planted with tropical trees and shrubbery, and a yacht and boat basin is to be provided, on the Manatee river front, capable of sheltering a score or more of pleasure craft. The basin is to be dredged out surrounded by a seawall with an opening on the river while the grounds surrounding the basin, about twenty acres in addition to the main part of the grounds, will be converted into a tropical park or garden.

The Telephone Reflects Your Personality

Your telephone carries more than a voice—more than mere words to the person listening. It carries your personality, reflecting it as accurately as a real mirror reflects your physical appearance.

Every time you talk with a person on the telephone you leave an impression—favorable or unfavorable.

If you are careless in your delivery; if you talk in "don't-seem-to-care" monotonies; if you hang up the receiver like slamming a door, people are not likely to go out of their way to trade with you, or commend your methods of doing business.

It's just as easy to have people say, "I like to do business with that fellow," as "He doesn't get any more of my trade."

Study your telephone talk. The telephone mirror shows your personality by what you say and how it sounds.

DARK CLOUD HANGS OVER ALL EUROPE

Statement Prime Minister England Shows Divergence

(By The Associated Press)
LONDON, Aug. 3.—Seldom has Parliament separated for a long vacation under such ominous cloud of difficult relations with an allied power as it did today after grave statements by the prime minister, Stanley Baldwin, in the House of Commons, and the secretary of foreign affairs, Marquis Curzon, in the House of Lords, revealing an apparently unsurmountable divergence of views between England and France as to how to deal with the reparations question.

Although the ministerial statements revealed more than had been expected of the details of the negotiations with France and Belgium, showing, for instance, that England in her draft note to Germany plainly advised the German government to withdraw her decrees abetting passive resistance in the Ruhr, the statement leaves the country in ignorance of the British government's next step and, judging from Lord Curzon's speech, the ministers themselves are not yet definitely decided on this point.

The government clearly hopes that it may still be possible to bring pressure to bear on the French government through an appeal, by laying its case before a new tribunal, namely the civilized world.

It is indicated from Paris last night that M. Poincare has no objection to the publication of the French side of the case, so that within a short time public opinion will be put in possession of all the details of the recent negotiations. In the comment in political quarters last night, on the ministerial statements the worst feature of the position as revealed yesterday was considered to be that France in her reply did not deign even to refer to the draft note to Germany, and this was held to imply that under no circumstances could the French government be induced to consent to a joint reply to Germany as desired by the British government.

Before you buy any car, see the STUDEBAKER 1924 MODELS

Studebaker presents its complete line of 1924 models, announced a week ago, with the conviction that they will increase the prestige of the name Studebaker which, for 71 years, has stood for the best in transportation, quality and value of product.

Into these 1924 cars are built every proved feature in design that makes for the comfort, convenience and safety of passengers, and many refinements that further enhance the value of a line of cars already highly perfected.

It is common knowledge in the steel industry that Studebaker uses only the highest grades of the finest steels. And the same is true of the electrical equipment, instruments, bearings, batteries, upholstery, finishing paints, tires and accessories used in Studebaker cars.

It is equally well known that Studebaker, with $90,000,000 of actual net assets, including $45,000,000 of plant facilities, is unsurpassed in ability and resources to manufacture economically and give maximum intrinsic value for a given price.

Produced under these favorable conditions, the 1924 Studebakers are distinctly the finest cars and greatest values Studebaker ever offered.

These are not careless statements. They are facts that reflect the honesty and integrity of the manufacturer and its product just as they do the truth of Studebaker advertising.

The public has placed its confidence in Studebaker by accepting these facts, supported by the performance of Studebaker cars in owners' use. That's why Studebaker sales for the past six years have increased progressively each year and sales for the first six months of 1923 of 81,880 cars broke all six months' records.

Studebaker never cheapens quality to meet competition. The name Studebaker stands for satisfaction and service.
