PRAYE—All Thy Works, O Lord shall bless Thee. Thee, shall all thy saints adore.

THE SOUL TO THE BODY Death is his mercy was my liberator.

And I can quit the tyranny of you, Now I put skin across the sun's gold crater.

And do the sandy things I longed to do:

Walk on the colored clouds when evening comes.

Habit trees be wind to whisper Will in the lonely rain and beat her drum.

And city wild grass through an autumn sky.

Yet I am tortured with this jealousy.

Wishing you cold and staid and as dead.

You have put on for Death the red hood from one who hangs I at the gallows.

The King has been deposed.

It's ex-Chief Attorney DeCotter's turn.

Chief Justice of Florida, but he's not the man to be in the clean, clean air.

Sunlight And Cancer

It has frequently been pointed out that probably Florida's greatest asset is her sunlight. We boast that the sunshines upon this state every day in the year for years at a time.

So we were somewhat amazed to read in the New York Herald Tribune recently that the New York Academy of Medicine had issued a warning that excessive sunlight had been found to be one of the causes of cancer.

For this reason we were more than pleased to find today in the same New York paper a direct contradiction of the Academy of Medicine's pronouncement.

The danger in the use of ray lamps is entirely explained in my previous statement that anything which produces a severe burn which is left uncaused for may cause cancer.

Worrying

It is safe to say that worry is the greatest affliction with which the people of this nation are beset. And the strange part about it is that so few of us have anything to worry about.

The absolute futility of worrying is clearly shown in an editorial appearing in the Miami Riviera, the newspaper of Coral Gables. It has to do with the philosophy of a French poet and is as follows:

"Of two things, one is certain: Either you're mobilized or your not mobilized.

"If you're not mobilized, there is no need to worry. If you are mobilized, of two things one is certain: Either you're behind the lines or you're at the front.

"If you're behind the lines there is no need to worry; if you're at the front, of two things one is certain: Either you're resting in a safe place or you're exposed to danger.

"If you're resting in a safe place there is no need to worry; if you're exposed to danger, of two things one is certain: Either you're wounded or you're not wounded.

"If you're wounded, of two things one is certain: Either you're wounded seriously or you're wounded slightly.

"If you're wounded slightly there is no need to worry; if you're wounded seriously, of two things one is certain: Either you recover or you die.

"If you recover there is no need to worry; if you die you cannot worry."

Hathaway's Swan-Song To His Job

Believe me, if all these enduring good roads Which we gaze on so fondly today.

Were to crack by tomorrow and slump into sand, Like Martin-gifts, fleeting away.

Thou wouldst still be beloved, though by Doyle we must part. Let thy prerequisites pass as they will.

While around the dear payroll each wish of my heart Will entwine itself tearfully still.

THE GREAT CIRCLE

NEW YORK TIMES

What was the chief benefit of the World War? a European statesman was asked soon after the conflict had ended. "Wilson's thought," he said. To that thought mankind is ever reverting, and the celebration of the anniversary of his birth was pitched inevitably upon the outline theme of world peace.

When the presidential campaign of 1920 was finished, the proposal that the United States adhere to the League of Nations began to be publicly abandoned by politicians in both parties. The candidate of that year, James M. Cox, continued and continued to hold up the League standard, but care for Newton D. Dole and a handful of others he stands almost alone, and the League has been withdrawn from the minds of an American is the agent general of the reparations commission in Europe; Americans evolved the Dawes plan; and representatives, though unofficial, continue to participate in disarmament and reparations conferences held under the auspices of the League.

This Afternoon by JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II. Him mightier transports moves, and thrilled!

Commenting on the sale of the Brooklyn Eagle to Frank Gannett, owner of a chain of eastern newspapers, the New York World newspaper said the Brooklyn newspaper will remain an institution and not become a mere property.

This does not mean that methods and economies which have developed in general newspaper enterprises can be overlooked by a citizen-ship. But it does mean that the outmoded application of those methods without regard to each newspaper's special local situation and psychology may bring about a failure of theory at times in the face of fact.

And it probably means that in the long run the financial success of a paper is most assured if those who conduct it do not hold that financial success is one and only object. A newspaper is a public utility that even the post, through government, does not later control it. This being the case, the obligation upon newspaper owners to act in the public interest is greater than that upon owners of any other public utility.

Booth Tarkington, the most American novelist if not the greatest American novelist, is threatened with the loss of his copyright and has submitted to very painful treatments in the effort to save "Pain," he muses, "is a whip we all drives men to greater efforts and achievements." Mr. Tarkington has always believed that extreme comfort breeds torpor in work.

The birds fly south and they know best. So does the great drizzle "Los Angeles" and the rest of other human agencies of the air which are making Florida the mecca of aerial interest for all the western hemisphere now.

For fifty thousand dollars Florida has learned from Columbia University's educational surveys that the state needs more money for its schools. With more money we could have more surveys.

The Columbia University gentlemen recommend that Florida's state and county school systems be removed from politics and that officials be selected because of their "professional attainment and individual fitness." Schoolmen throughout the state who have been advising for years that county school superintendents be appointed, rather than elected will realize with a gleam that they have been giving away advice which, if properly dressed up and presented, might have been sold for a pretty sum indeed.

The school surveys, of course are absolutely right. Florida's schools need more money and less politics. But how to get the one and avoid the other are questions which stamp the most expert examiners (including, apparently, those from Columbia University.)

cause he felt that he had pledged his personal honor at Versailles, insisted upon the single method of the League of Nations. He believed to the end of his life that even if his obligations had permitted him to assent to the League, his partisan opponents would have prevented others impossible to accept. With these old quarrels only historians have business. Yet year after year the hope of mankind refuses to be stifled, and year after year there breathes through the very fiber of that hope the spirit of Wilson.

Many clashes have occurred sufficient to plunge the nations into strife. It is because of "Wilson's thought" and its firm root in the hearts of human beings that these provocations have been assuaged by statesmanship. Americans do well to celebrate his natal day.

TO THE RESCUE

Daytona Beach News-Journal

When certain parts of Florida were the victims of wind and sea, the people of the North and South hesitate to extend sympathy in concrete form to the stricken districts. They said it with good reason and medicine.

Now that the North is in a grip of a severe influenza epidemic, the extent of which is hard to realize in this sun-drenched Southland, Florida is taking advantage of its opportunity to return the compliment, at least to the limited extent to which she is able. She is saving grapefruit.

It used to be that one sent fruit to the bedridden as a variety of apples, flowers. It was regarded as a luxury, something to tickle the palate, something colorful to help decorate a sickroom.

So that the sending by the Florida Citrus Fruit Clearing House of twenty free carloads of citrus fruit to be distributed among poor influenza sufferers in the crowded districts of the large cities of the North, is no mere gesture. To some extent, it is the equivalent of sending quinine to the malarial jungles of the Amazon, or antitoxin to diphtheria sufferers.

That grapefruit juice, especially when taken with bicarbonate of soda, is a specific in cases of influenza was a theory first advanced by Dr. William Alexander MacKenzie.

PROPHET STATES HE CAN PREDICT CLIMATE CHANGE

Says He Can Forecast Catastrophes Like Tornadoes, Cyclones

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—(INS)—I can predict the weather with scientific certainty for twenty-two days, and I am able to forecast natural catastrophes like tornadoes, cyclones and cloud bursts for half a year in advance.

This sensational claim which, if substantiated, would revolutionize the world's weather service and save mankind untold lives and wealth, is advanced by Hermann Brix, 48, a Silesian engineer, in an interview with International News Service. Meteorologists are still unable to predict the weather even for twenty-four hours, with any degree of accuracy.

"The weather," says Brix, "is not made by some impish weather god intent on playing tricks on mankind, for there is no such god. Rather, the weather develops according to an inexorable natural law. This natural weather law I have discovered at last, and weather prediction is now merely a matter of easy mathematical calculation."

20 Years Research.

"It took me twenty years of hard research work to find this law," Brix added.

Despite the positiveness of Brix's claims and some remarkable results which he has been able to show them, German scientists and the German authorities remain skeptical, but the Weather Observatory invited Brix to work with him for a year in order to test out his theory, indicating that he believes there may be something to Brix's claim.

Brix, however, demands that the government put a special staff of assistants at his disposal and finance further experiments. Otherwise, he is ready to sell his discovery to the highest bidder.

"My discovery will mean such tremendous saving to all sorts of commercial enterprises—the American cotton growers, for instance—that I do not see why I should share in some of the profit as compensation for twenty years of labor," he says.

Exploits His Plan.

"I first compiled all the available material of three or four German weather stations for the last fifty years. From this I separated out decisive factors five observations, namely daily temperature at 7 a. m., daily maximum and minimum temperatures, precipitation of the atmosphere, and wind velocity.

"By studying and comparing these figures I discovered that there were certain intervals of recurrence, that is, that the weather ran more or less in cycles, but that the exact development depended on the relation between the above five factors.

"I found that it was possible to establish what I call 'weather constants' for twenty-two days. I added these twenty-two day constants for a period of 120 days and established what I call 'empirical constants'.

"These two sets of 'constants' form the basis of my calculation. All I need to predict the weather for twenty-two days in advance is to obtain the above five weather factors for the preceding twenty-two days.

Figures It Out.

"These I compare with my 'empirical constants' and by simple mathematical calculations which a child can learn I arrive at the exact forecast of the weather in the hours which furnished me, the date and the preceding twenty-two days.

"Assuming that my prediction for these twenty-two days is accurate, it is, therefore, likewise easy on the basis of the same natural and mathematical laws to predict the weather for the succeeding twenty-two days and so forth for half a year. Naturally the further ahead the weather is projected the less accurate it is likely to be in detail, but the general development, especially violent breaks in the weather, will show with absolute certainty.

Brix's secret in this procedure, and the one he would sell, is the mathematical system of calculation.

"By the way," he concluded, "my letter gives you a clue for it's impossible to be so bold and utter this

TRAIN KILLS FOUR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—(INS)—A woman and three children were killed and a fourth child injured when a train struck them on a crossing in Baltimore, Md., today.

The train, a passenger train, was carrying about 100 passengers. It was traveling at a speed of 40 miles an hour when it struck the group.

The woman, Mrs. Mary E. Smith, 45, was killed instantly. Her three children, a boy 10 years old and two girls 8 and 6 years old, were also killed.

The fourth child, a boy 4 years old, was injured and taken to a hospital.

The train was operated by the Baltimore and Annapolis Railroad. The crossing was unguarded.

DeCottes Released As City Attorney By New Commission

that by retaining "Mr. DeCottes in the Chase National Bank suit you have acted wisely." He added that he would be glad to see Mr. DeCottes as an attorney and one whose assistance was greatly needed to push the bank suit to a successful end.

Commissioner Speer expressed appreciation for Mr. DeCottes' pledge of support and said that "Mr. DeCottes has our goal with him."

In explaining his nomination of Mr. Wilson, Mr. Speer addressed the former City Attorney with the statement that the action was taken with "no personal animosity and not accompanied by any accusations."

Mr. Miller said he prepared his statement so that "if I am quoted I may be quoted correctly." Rising to "a point of personal privilege," Mr. Miller defended his stand in behalf of Mr. DeCottes and then defended the latter against attacks by "citizens and newspaper."

He denied Mr. DeCottes had received exorbitant fees, and said the Commission had investigated the matter and that the inquiry "just led to the fact that he had been paid $25,000."

He urged a new commission to be appointed to investigate the matter.

Mr. DeCottes, who was appointed City Attorney in 1927, had been in office for a period of five years. He had received more than $100,000, or $20,000 a year. A city audit, subsequently published to refute The Herald's charges, substantially verified The Herald's claim. Since the failure of the Seminole County Bank in August 1927, Mr. DeCottes has been paid by the City $25,101.48.

method of discouraging party workers has aroused in them the will to win.

This "caustic" expressed feeling, Roosevelt wrote, "can only be compared to that which followed the theft of the presidency in the case of Mr. Tudor Bix." He said the spread of unappealing and un-American methods of the most atrocious falsehoods, unfair and improper pressure brought to bear upon workers in special favored Republican industries, false claims for the prosperity of the country and kindred propaganda, cheated on my correspondents' feet, our party out of the present victory.

"It is not mere enthusiasm which is clearly expressed in these letters; it is a deep sense of a grievance and resentment at the methods employed against your candidate in the last campaign which has carried our party from top to bottom.

"The conviction of Abraham Lincoln that you cannot fool all of the people all of the time, was expressed directly or by inference in practically every letter I have received as well as the firm belief that the intelligent spreading of the truth in regard to the principles and aims of the Democratic party during the next four years will make victory possible for us in 1932.

"One of the structural faults of our national Democratic organization in the past, which has retarded from our previous practice of laying the national committee carefully away in cotton wool after each election, to be taken out and started off just before the next presidential election, has been the lack of any central clearing house for exchange of ideas among the leaders, great and small, of our party.

He declared the party was not worrying about the $1,500,000 deficit of the last presidential campaign. He said this debt would be cancelled if every Democrat would contribute "only a few cents."

Wright, Landis Mentioned For New Judgeship

that in view of the effort in his behalf that he has at least sanctioned the movement.

Friends of Judge Wright say he would accept the appointment if tendered him by President Coolidge. The Sanford judge has been presiding over the local circuit for nearly four years and was recently renominated for that honor without opposition.

The federal judgeship is a lifetime position and carries with it an annual salary of $10,000. It is regarded as a distinct honor given in recognition of outstanding legal ability. In agreeing to appoint a Democrat to one of the places, Mr. Coolidge is following the precedent set by President Harding, who named Judge Nathan P. Bryan, a Florida and Democrat, to a judgeship in New Orleans.

That the appointments will be announced soon is the assurance given a Florida delegation recently visiting Mr. Coolidge last week. The Senate has already voted in favor of the new judgeship and the House is expected to pass the measure in the next few days. The President told the Florida delegation composed of John B. Sutton of Tampa, Giles Patterson and Robert H. Anderson of Jacksonville, that he would make the appointments immediately thereafter.
