Jeno F. Paulucci
...building a 'world class community'.

Billion-Dollar Village Toured

More than 1,500 political, business and social leaders of Central Florida took advantage of invitations to preview the past two days and today the 1,200-acre Heathrow, a planned $1 billion development by Paulucci Enterprises off Lake Mary Boulevard near Interstate-4.

Billed by entrepreneur Jeno F. Paulucci as a "world class community," the guests toured via double decker buses the rolling acreage dotted by 25 lakes where 10,000 persons are expected to live when development is completed.

Villas and condominiums at the property are planned at sales prices ranging from $200,000 to $1 million with executive homes in the $250,000 to $500,000 price range and executive estates ranging from $500,000 to $10 million.

Paulucci said Heathrow will be a catalyst for development in the area and that he and Mrs. Paulucci may make their permanent home in a penthouse at the condominiums when they are built. The Paulucci family has homes in Sanford and Duluth, Minn.

Paulucci, known for founding the Chun King oriental food empire, later sold to the Reynolds Tobacco Co., and for founding the Jeno's frozen Italian food company, and his family began purchasing the property where Heathrow is to be built some 17 years ago.

At the entrance to the development is a one-acre pool with seven 20-foot-high jet geyser fountains.

The English style gatehouse where security systems are planned for monitoring each home to protect against fire, unauthorized entry and medical emergencies is approached by a quadruple laned, divided driveway containing 250,000 hand-laid bricks.

The $1 million preview center, under construction, is to feature a preview hall and sales and administrative offices. The center is also to house a communications center designed to incorporate pay-per-view programming, computerized business information and as services are available, computer banking, shopping and information retrieval will be offered, said sales staff members of Huskey Realty which is marketing the development.

Laser Seeks Fingerprints On Murder Victim

In a first-time attempt by the Volusia Sheriff's department, the body of an 82-year-old woman found murdered in DeBary Monday was examined by laser light for latent fingerprints.

Results of the laser probe are not yet known, a sheriff's department spokesman said.

Tuesday, the body of Ethel E. Johnson, 48 Community Drive, was flown to Tallahassee to the Florida Department of Law Enforcement crime lab for the examination. Sheriff's Capt. Ed Carroll said he was not sure of the results and would not comment further. The woman's autopsy was completed Wednesday.

Johnson's body was found in a woods off the south end of Shell Road at 11:30 a.m. Monday by a sheriff's deputy. She had been shot once in the "upper body."

Carroll said Miss Johnson had been murdered and that the homicide appeared to have been motivated by robbery. He added that no other assault took place. He declined to say specifically where she had been shot or how much money may have been taken from her.

According to Carroll, a composite sketch of her alleged killer will be released late today or early Friday. He said the sheriff's department has received several leads from the community and had eight investigators working on the case.

To date, the sheriff's department has determined Miss Johnson was driving her gold-colored 1973 Ford Maverick along Shell Road Friday probably between 4 and 5:15 p.m. when her car ran off the road, hitting some small trees and causing minor damage. What then occurred is not known but Miss Johnson's body was dragged from the car into the woods. After the car was discovered Sunday night, K-9 dogs were brought to the scene but failed to locate the woman. Monday, a deputy found Miss Johnson. Initially, the sheriff's department said there were no visible signs of injury on her body.

The caliber of the bullet used to kill Miss Johnson has not been determined.

According to reports, Miss Johnson was a retired principal and had lived in DeBary for more than 25 years.

SEEDCO 'Viable Business'

Dispute With Feds Hasn't Cost Grant

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole Economic Employment Development Corp. (SEEDCO) is still in the running for a state grant of $100,000 and a federal attorney denies published reports that he has declared the Sanford-based agency is improperly using federal funds to match the grant.

But the federal government does have a loan default case pending against SEEDCO. SEEDCO President Horace Orr denied any impropriety in handling government loans and said the federal government is just "scared that later on when the loans are due we won't have the money to pay them off."

Orr said SEEDCO, with $14 million in assets, will have no problem paying them off. He said the whole thing involves a game being played by the Reagan administration.

An official of the Florida Department of Community Affairs said Wednesday he will announce late today whether SEEDCO will be given the state grant of $100,000 it is seeking and has received for the past two years. The funds are used for administration of the agency, formed in 1971 to assist minorities and others in developing businesses.

Spencer Lott, a U.S. Department of Health and Human Services attorney representing the federal government in a default action against SEEDCO concerning $2.6 million in loans, denied published reports that SEEDCO has handled the loan money improperly. He added that he has no knowledge about whether SEEDCO is using money due the federal government as matching money for the state grant.

"It's a complex issue," Lott said. "We are in litigation with SEEDCO and had declared the loan in default. But we are also in negotiations with SEEDCO and do not wish to prejudice the case."

"There are a lot of issues as to whether the funds are properly used or not. And since the default was declared there are a lot of legal issues," Lott said.

At the same time, Dick Studebaker of the state Department of Community Affairs said matching funds by SEEDCO are only a small part of the grant requirement and many other items are considered on a point system before an award is made.

'Reagan's trying to kill all these programs...'

Orr said two federal loans are at issue and both were used for the specific purposes intended. He insisted payments on both are current.

The first loan for $600,000 was to develop a housing project. The corporation to develop scaplanes and the second of $2 million was to be used to help Dade County provide housing for South Florida migrants.

"The specific purpose of the $2 million loan was to lend the money to Dade County. We couldn't do anything else with it," Orr said.

"The loan was approved by the HHS director and the Justice Department. We were called by Washington and asked to do it. If SEEDCO had loaned the money to someone else, the federal government would have had a case against us," Orr said.

"With all the headache and trouble, I'm thinking about giving the money back to them," he said.

At issue, Orr said, is SEEDCO's benefiting because it borrowed the money at one rate of interest from the federal government and loaned the money to Dade County at a higher rate of interest.

"And we won't give the federal government the spread (profit). We are paying the federal government according to the terms of the note we have and that's all they are entitled to," Orr said.

"The bottom line is that the federal government is scared that later on when the loans are due we won't be able to pay them off. We have enough money in assets to pay off those loans any time," Orr said.

Of the pending DCA $100,000 administrative grant, Orr said SEEDCO has gotten identical grants the past two years.

"SEEDCO will have $125,000

income we will use to match the state grant. Probably we will have more. Some will come from Dade County, but it will be the portion of interest money SEEDCO has coming."

Lott said the Rural Development Loan Fund of the Department of Health and Human Services declared the $2.6 million in loans in default in January, 1982, because SEEDCO was in arrears in its payments.

"After we issued the default letter, SEEDCO filed suit preventing us from executing the judgment. To this day we are discussing settlement. There were problems with payments and some possible violations of the regulations controlling the program," Lott said. "I don't wish to prejudice those negotiations."

"Reagan's trying to kill all these programs," Orr said. "Yes, we sued Health and Human Services to join them from executing a default judgment against SEEDCO. Our payments are current," Orr said.

"Some 22 groups — 5 black, 3 Chicano and 14 basically Caucasian — borrowed money from the federal government at the same time. When Reagan came into office audits were called on the eight minority groups and a report was written and circulated. We had no chance to respond," Orr said, adding after the false report continues to be circulated long enough, people start believing it.

Changes In Store For 10th Golden Age Games TODAY

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

A 6-mile marathon, a triathlon and a long distance swim may be a part of the 10th Annual Golden Age Games to be held Nov. 5-10 in Sanford.

These were among the additions and changes to this year's competitive events for senior citizens 55 and older mentioned by Games Chairman Jim Jernigan at the first executive committee meeting of the new year.

Jack Horner, Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce president told the Games Executive Committee today, "Let's go all out to make it the greatest one we've ever had."

In celebration of the 10th anniversary two events were suggested in conjunction with the Games, but not in competition for medals. They are a sailing regatta on Lake Monroe on the Sunday prior to the start of the Games and a canoe trip from Katie's Wekiva River Landing to the St. Johns River with a cookout afterwards for participants.

The marathon will be a street race sponsored by Central Florida Regional Hospital and will start from the city hall following the opening ceremonies. The triathlon as proposed would include the marathon, a long distance swim on Lake Monroe, and a 5-mile bicycle race.

Bowling, horseshoes and table tennis will now have winners in age categories and there will be a 75 and up class in the Decathlon. There will be singles and doubles competition in dominoes this year.

Larry Castle, tennis coach at Seminole Community College, will be in charge of the tennis tournament this year. Emma Spencer, who had been in charge of the event since the beginning of the Games in Sanford, will remain on the committee in an advisory capacity.

The Rev. Paul Murphy, pastor of First Baptist Church, Sanford, will represent the Sanford Ministerial association as chairman of the table tennis event and will serve as chaplain of the Games, replacing the Rev. Leo King, who has retired. Roger and Jackie Quick of BowlAmerica will be in charge of the bowling tournament.

Jernigan announced that although the J.C. Penney store in Sanford Plaza no longer sells bicycles, the manager has agreed to order and assemble enough for the bicycle races as had been done in the past by the store.

Because of the large number of persons participating in bridge, the Sanford Woman's Club has dropped its sponsorship of the canasta competition, formerly held at its clubhouse in conjunction with the bridge tournament. Canasta is being taken over by the AARP (American Association of Retired Persons) and will be held at the Sanford Civic Center.

The shuffleboard tournament, which has been held entirely on Saturday, will begin on Friday this year because the large number of entries makes it difficult to complete the play in one day. Entries will close at 5 p.m. on Thursday before the tournament.

Gene Keltner, executive director of the Central Florida Chapter of the American Red Cross and a member of the U.S. Olympic Swimming Committee, suggested a mile swim in Lake Monroe for long distance swimmers.

"I was at a meeting of the Long Distance Swimmers Association in Colorado Springs last weekend and the masters people are interested in coming here to compete if we have a long distance swim," Keltner said.

In line with making this a very special year for the Games, Jernigan said he has asked Martha Yancey, chairman of the variety-talent show, to put together an entertaining variety show leaving blocks of time for the talent competition.

Jernigan told the event sponsors that any rule changes in the various events must be submitted within 10 days as he is getting ready to send the rule book to press. Changes in the schedule and entry forms must be made by the next meeting to be held on March 7.

Horner told the group that General Foods/ Post Cereals is "extremely satisfied" with the operation of the Golden Age Games and will sponsor them again this year.

Williams Fought For Post

It was incorrectly reported in Wednesday's Evening Herald that Seminole County School Board member Roland Williams, following appointment by Gov. Reubin Askew in 1978, ran unopposed for the school board in 1980. Actually, Williams served from May to November, 1978, under appointment, then ran successfully in 1978 for the post, opposed by John Carlson of Longwood. He was also opposed in 1980 when he successfully ran against Bill Spegele of Casselberry. Williams' appointment was to fill a vacancy created when Davie Sims of Altamonte Springs resigned. Williams' name will appear on the ballot in the March 13 presidential preference primary as a delegate alternate chosen by and pledged to Askew. The Herald regrets the error.

NATION IN BRIEF

18 Die In Rash Of Home, Hotel Fires

United Press International

Ten children were among the 18 people killed today and Wednesday in seven fires in houses and a New York City hotel, authorities said.

Two people — one a 7-year-old — died today in Elizabeth, N.J. in a fire that spread to three homes. Three other people were missing and many residents had to leap from windows in 16-degree weather.

The cause of the blaze was not immediately determined.

Washington, D.C. firefighters Wednesday fought a similar blaze in three row houses that killed three adults and four children. Authorities said 15 were injured, but many residents jumped to safety.

One relative of the victims said the house where the fire started was undergoing electrical work. Another said the family used space heaters.

The blaze, 11 blocks from the U.S. Capitol, was Washington's worst fire since a 1976 nursing home blaze killed 10 people.

Seven persons died in two separate fires in New York homes, Wednesday. A fire in a Times Square hotel killed the occupant, and a 39-year-old Bethel, Conn. woman died when she failed to follow her husband and young son out an upstairs window of their burning home.

Ever Considered Suicide?

SEATTLE (UPI) — Nearly 42 percent of 2,000 people who answered a University of Washington questionnaire said they had seriously considered suicide at some time.

The study, conducted in shopping malls and street fairs throughout the Seattle metropolitan area, also showed 10 percent or 12 percent of the random sampling of subjects said they had attempted suicide at least once.

The study also revealed 20 percent to 30 percent of the 2,000 people questioned were actually serious enough about suicide to "gather the means," including accumulating pills, guns and razor blades.

University psychologist Dr. Kirk Strosahl cited the rising divorce rate, increases in the number of single parents, a mobile populace, transient friendships and alcohol abuse as contributing factors in the higher suicide rate.

Reception For Veteran Educator In Civic Center

A reception honoring Mary Joyce Bateman, 33-year veteran Seminole County educator who is retiring, will be held Friday from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Sanford Civic Center.

The reception, sponsored by students, parents, educators and business people, will be highlighted with a special program at 6 p.m.

Mrs. Bateman taught English and was a guidance counselor at Seminole High School and at Milwee and Teague middle schools before becoming coordinator of career education for the entire county system in 1974.

Democrats Preparing Deficit-Cutting Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional Democratic leaders are drafting a plan to offer to President Reagan that would shrink budget deficits by $200 billion, partly by attacking two of his favorite items — defense and tax cuts.

House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas revealed the Democratic preparations Wednesday just hours after Reagan sent Congress his $926 billion 1985 budget that projects $180 billion deficits in each of the next three years.

The Reagan budget — hailed by Republicans and denounced by Democrats — contains no major tax increases or spending cuts to reduce the red ink.

The administration did not reject the Democratic counteroffer out of hand. "It all depends upon what items they have," Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said on NBC's Today show. "If their items are acceptable to us, certainly."

Wright, Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd and Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii — the Democrats on a bipartisan deficit-reduction task force created at Regan's suggestion — will be ready to meet for the first time with Regan's aides next week, possibly to offer their proposal then, Wright said.

The plan will include some reductions in Regan's increased military spending and a reversal of some of his tax cuts, the Democratic leader said.

Regan asked for a 13 percent "real" increase, after adjustment for inflation, in military spending that would make it the largest defense budget since World War II, surpassing even the peak of the Korean or Vietnam wars if measured in constant dollars. Without accounting for inflation, it is an 18 percent hike.

Likely to come under attack by the Democrats is a part of Regan's three-year 25 percent tax cut plan adopted in 1981, called indexing.

Due to begin next year, indexing would prevent taxpayers from being bumped into higher tax brackets through inflation. The provision would deprive the government of billions of dollars of tax revenue at a time it is trying to deal with massive red ink.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., predicted the federal deficit for 1985 will be closer to $250 billion and "could easily top $300 billion."

"The administration's economic forecasters have been monumentally wrong," Proxmire said, noting they predicted a $27 billion deficit in 1982 that turned out to be $110 billion and a $92 billion deficit last year that actually was $195 billion.

National Debt To Double In '86

By Denis G. Galino

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's spending blueprint to Congress for fiscal 1985 abandons hope for a balanced budget through the end of a second White House term and ignores next year's expensive debut of tax indexing.

Instead, the enormous budget numbers, bound in soothing blue covers, show the national debt reaching $2 trillion in 1986 — double the red ink on government books as recently as Reagan's first year in office, 1981.

Taxpayers now pay interest on $1.4 trillion in

Budget includes education cuts, Star Wars weaponry.

stories on page 3A; economic report

accumulated federal borrowing but the total debt will grow to $1.828 trillion in fiscal 1985, which begins Oct. 1, the budget documents estimate.

Of the $976 billion in spending recommended for fiscal 1985, one dollar in five — $180 billion — will be borrowed money.

That is, if the initial borrowing estimates do not turn out to be far too low, as has happened every year of the Reagan administration.

The budget document says interest alone on the national debt will cost $165 billion in fiscal 1985.

It projects interest rates shrinking by nearly half late in the decade. But at today's rates for government borrowing the cost of the interest alone on a $2 trillion national debt would be more than $200 billion a year.

Even in 1989, federal spending and income are projected to remain seriously out of balance.

But where the Congressional Budget Office sees annual deficits climbing toward $300 billion at the end of the decade Reagan sees them falling toward $100 billion.

In a marked departure from proposed budgets earlier

In his administration, Reagan this time asked for no major spending cuts.

Defense spending goes up by 13 percent. Health and welfare spending climbs 7.1 percent.

And Reagan maintained his strong opposition to any substantial increases in government income.

"To those who say we must raise taxes, I say wait," Reagan told Congress.

In fact, the only tax increases proposed are relatively minor changes in the law that could raise $7.9 billion.

Notable by its absence in the budget message was any mention of 1985's precedent-shattering debut of tax indexing that Treasury Department revenue analysts said is equivalent to a tax cut of $47 billion over the next three years.

Tax indexing was approved by Congress in 1981 before the recession ruined the administration's optimistic hopes for a balanced budget this year.

Indexing will slow down the expansion of tax brackets to the rate of inflation, eliminating "bracket creep" as well as automatic increases in government spending power taken for granted for decades.

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan told Congress one year ago that to repeal tax indexing "would result in a massive $273.2 billion tax increase between 1983 and 1988."

But administration speech writers lately have been very careful not to provoke a congressional attempt to repeal indexing by pointing out how much it costs the government. In the latest budget documents, a few lines are devoted to passing references to indexing.

The fiscal 1985 federal deficit, at $180 billion, shows virtually no change in 1986 and 1987 in the president's budget proposal.

Then it heads down to $123 billion by 1989 at about the same slope the Congressional Budget Office sees it increasing to nearly $300 billion by the end of the decade.

DUI Suspect Couldn't Leave Bad Enough Alone

A Casselberry woman arrested for drunk driving found herself in even more trouble when the officer transporting her to jail discovered that she had allegedly slipped two resin-filled pipes and a small bag of marijuana out of the Winter Springs police station and hid the contraband in her pants.

Winter Springs officer James McClure reported arresting the woman for driving under the influence after he saw her car weaving on State Road 419 at State Road 434 at 12:30 a.m. Wednesday. During the arrest, McClure seized the pipes and the bag of pot, then transported the suspect and contraband to the Winter Springs police station, his report said. Later, as he took the suspect to his patrol car for the trip to the county jail, he reported seeing the items in the woman's pants and took her back into the police station and charged her with removing confiscated property from the police department.

McClure did not indicate on his report how the woman retrieved the items after he had initially taken them from her, police spokesman Brenda Sonafelt said. The report also did not indicate why the woman was not charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. McClure could not be reached for comment.

Maree G. Brown, 33, of 1393 La Paloma Drive, was arrested at 2:48 a.m. Wednesday on the removal of confiscated property charge. She posted $5,500 bond and was released from jail Wednesday. She is scheduled to appear in court Feb. 9 on the DUI charge and her hearing on the second charge is scheduled for Feb. 17.

BURGLARIES

Theodore J. Zacker, 40, of Winter Haven, reported that someone broke into an apartment under construction at 390 Wekiva Springs Road, Longwood, and took a dishwasher worth $300 from the kitchen between Jan. 21 and Monday, a sheriff's report said.

A thief who entered the home of Laura Blakely, 27, of 3044 N. Orleans Way, Apopka, between 6:20 a.m. and 11:30 p.m. Monday took a ring and a necklace with diamonds valued at $980, a sheriff's report said.

Someone cut open the top of a convertible owned by Gloria Capozzi, 23, of 368 Spanish Trace Apartments, Altamonte Springs, and took a camera and lens valued at $270. The theft occurred while the car was parked in the lot of the apartment complex between 11 p.m. Sunday and 3:45 p.m. Monday, a sheriff's report said.

A thief cut the padlock on the front door of a construction company office at 1800 Longwood-Lake Mary Road, Longwood, and took welding equipment and batteries, which belonged to Richard F. Brown, 57, of 257 Spartan Drive, Maitland, and Freed Lee Good, 58, of 106 Orange Drive, Sanford. The break-in occurred Sunday or Monday, a sheriff's report said.

Stereo speakers, a garage door opener, cassette tapes and other items valued at $167 were taken from the car of Ricky Aponte, 16, of 828 Dunbar Terrace, Casselberry, while his car was parked at Albertson's on State Road 434, Longwood. The theft occurred between 6 and 11:30 p.m. Saturday, a sheriff's report said.

The pair were arrested at 2:58 a.m. Sunday by an Altamonte Springs policeman who had been watching the pair as they sat in a car parked at the Hotline Club, 803 State Road 436, Altamonte Springs. The officer approached the car after watching the suspects for about 20 minutes, and he reported that the pair had what later was tested and shown to be cocaine on a folder between them.

One man had a razor blade and an additional vial of cocaine and a small spoon were found when the men were removed from the car, a police report said.

Thomas C. Farrington, 29, of Geneva, and Bruce Allen Mills, 26, of Jacksonville, were both released from jail Sunday. They are scheduled to appear in court on Feb. 17.

BREAK-IN

A thief entered the home of James Arthur McGauvran, 42, of 1019 W. Lake Brantley Road, Altamonte Springs, between 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Monday and took cassette tapes, a television and a pearl necklace with a total value of $432. A screen to a bedroom window had been removed and was lying on the ground, but sheriff's deputies said that the window was closed and dust on the ledge had not been disturbed.

A LITTLE POT

An Altamonte Springs man arrested on a possession of marijuana charge posted $500 bond and was released from the Seminole County jail.

The man was stopped for allegedly speeding on North Street at Marker Street, Altamonte Springs, at 3:48 p.m. Saturday.

When the officer asked to see his vehicle registration, he spotted a plastic bag in the car's glove compartment which contained what tests showed to be marijuana.

Victor B. Johnson, 21, of 610 Plumb Lane, is scheduled to appear in court on Feb. 10.

Drunk Drivers Sentenced In County Court

The following persons have been either convicted or pleaded guilty in Seminole County Court to driving under the influence or having an unlawful blood alcohol level. Most of them, as first-time offenders, have had their driver's license suspended for six months and have been ordered to pay a $250 fine, and to perform 50 hours of community service. In cases where a different sentence has been given, the actual sentences are reported:

—Steven A. Rothlisberger, 26, of 1305 Elliot Ave., Sanford, arrested Aug. 12. Charges of an unlawful blood alcohol level and willful and wanton reckless driving were not prosecuted. A charge of driving at an unlawful speed (85) was dismissed. Probation was extended to one year.

—Steve M. Ward, 26, of Hollywood, Fla., arrested Sept. 4. A charge of failing to carry a driver's license was not prosecuted and a charge of driving on the wrong side of the road dismissed.

—Karl Howard Williamson, of 200 Sweet Gum Way, Longwood, arrested Aug. 13 on State Road 434, Longwood. A charge of unlawful blood alcohol level was not prosecuted and a charge of careless driving dismissed. Probation was extended to one year.

—Richard C. Colvin, 30, of Spanish Trace Apartments, Wymore Road, Altamonte Springs, arrested Oct. 14 following an accident on Interstate 4. A charge of carrying no driver's license was not prosecuted and a charge of careless driving dismissed.

—Julio Albert Belalcázar, 23, of Orlando, arrested Oct. 15 on Whopping Loop in Altamonte Springs after police received a report of a drunk driver in the area. His driver's license was suspended for five years, a $500 fine was levied, probation was set at nine months, and he was sentenced to 90 days in the county jail to be spent on weekends. He is to arrive at the jail sober.

The following people have had a charge of driving under the influence or refusing to take a sobriety test amended to the lesser charge of willful and wanton reckless driving:

—Dana Lynn Dunn, 22, of 1321 Queen Elaine Drive, Casselberry, arrested Nov. 24. A charge of unlawful blood alcohol level was not prosecuted and a charge of careless driving dismissed. She was fined $250.

—Susan Frost Heckler, 24, of 614 Sandpiper Lane, Casselberry, arrested July 26 on State Road 434 at Springs Avenue in Longwood. A charge of unlawful blood alcohol level was not prosecuted. She received a $300 fine.

—Frederick W. Olson, 38, of Orlando, arrested Aug. 13. He was fined $250.

IN BRIEF

Defense Claims Political Pressure In Overtown Trial

MIAMI (UPI) — The defense is using a key state witness to try to show that a racial riot and political pressure from Miami's top authorities combined to put policeman Luis Alvarez on trial for fatally shooting a black man.

Veteran detective John Buher has been on the stand two days — the first witness in the trial that began Jan. 18 — and was called back today for more cross examination by defense attorney Roy Black.

The Cuban-born Alvarez, 24, is being tried for manslaughter in the killing of Nevell Johnson Jr., a 20-year-old courier, inside an Overtown video game arcade on Dec. 28, 1982.

Black's questions to Buhrmaster Wednesday also emphasized that the on-scene police investigation was cut short and hampered by a mob of up to 300 that was rioting in the streets outside the ghetto arcade where the shooting occurred.

Frat Suspended For Rape

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — A University of Florida fraternity has been suspended from activity for one year because six members allegedly gang raped a freshman coed who wanted to be their "little sister."

The suspension will be appealed by the accused members of the Pi Lambda Phi fraternity.

In a written statement forwarded to the fraternity, Dean for Student Services James Scott said the group would not be allowed to participate in recruiting new members or social, intramural or service activities. He said the group would lose its campus charter if any violations of the penalty occurred within one calendar year.

The girl told police that the frat brothers told her she would have to have sex with them in order to join the group's sister organization.

The frat members maintained the coed was a willing participant and used rape as an excuse to tell her parents because she contracted herpes during the incident.

Officials said no charges against the frat brothers were filed by the state attorney's office because the coed did not have a medical examination after the incident and there was not enough evidence of a sexual assault to prosecute.

Shuttle Ready For Launch

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The shuttle Challenger was loaded with oxygen and hydrogen for its generators today and everything was "go" for its launch Friday morning on a mission that will pave the way for a satellite repair flight in April.

Shuttle pilots Vance Brand and Robert "Hoot" Gibson got in some final landing practice at dawn by flying jets to simulate the shuttle's steep descent to the 3-mile-long Kennedy Space Center runway on which Challenger will return Feb. 11.

The five crewmen will board Challenger at 5:45 a.m. Friday. Six rats will go aboard tonight in an unusual experiment to see if the lack of gravity in orbit will relieve symptoms of arthritis.

NASA considers the mission critical to the flight in two months in which another shuttle crew will go up to capture and repair an orbiting solar observatory. Two spacewalkers on this flight will fly up to 100 yards away from the ship without lifelines to rehearse the repair operation.

Court Overload

Lawmakers Told Additional District Judges Needed

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Florida Supreme Court says the crunch of cases that almost overwhelmed it a few years ago has reappeared — this time at the district court level.

The high court warned the Legislature last week that the caseloads in the five district courts of appeal are "excessive" and the situation can only grow worse unless additional judgeships are created.

The justices blamed the increasing caseloads chiefly on the state's booming population growth.

In its annual certification of judicial manpower needs, the high court said at least six district court judgeships are needed this year.

The court also requested 14 new judgeships at the circuit court level and 13 at the county court level.

Last year, the Legislature refused to fund the 27 judgeships the high court said were needed at that time.

The Appellate Structure Commission in 1979 adopted a standard of no more than 250 primary cases assigned for a single judge at any one time.

"All of the district courts presently exceed this standard," the high court said. "In order to ensure the integrity of the appellate process, this excessive caseload should be reduced, as soon as practical, to the standard recommended by the Appellate Structure Commission."

In comparison with the intermediate level appellate courts in the nation's 10 most populous states in 1982, the Florida district courts had the second highest number of appeals filed, the third highest ratio of filings per judge and the greatest number of published opinions, the high court said.

The justices said two more judgeships are needed in the 2nd DCA in Tampa, two in the 4th DCA in West Palm Beach and one each in the 3rd DCA in Miami and the 5th DCA in Daytona Beach.

The district courts took on more importance when voters approved a constitutional amendment in 1980 clearing the way for the Supreme Court to restrict the type of cases it would consider.

The district courts then became the courts of last resort for most types of appeals.

The 1980 amendment was inspired by a Supreme Court caseload the justices said was staggering with decisions being issued at the rate of more than 200 a month.

While housing starts have boomed, prices haven't. The average price of a new house remained $91,000 in December.

Housing Sales Up; Prices Stable

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sales of new homes soared 28.5 percent in December — the biggest monthly increase in more than two decades, the government said.

The rush to buy did not drive up prices, and the average price of a new house remained $91,000, the same as in November, the government said.

The December improvement helped make 1983 the best year since 1979, with 625,000 units sold — 51.7 percent more than in recession-tarnished 1982.

The housing industry already knew it enjoyed a good year, but analysts had not expected December to be the best month, economist Michael Sumichrast said.

"It is a surprise month at that level," Sumichrast said, speaking for the National Association of Home Builders. "January is probably going to be strong as well."

On the strength of December's sales performance, the association immediately raised its forecast for 1984 housing starts to 1.8 million units, 100,000 better than 1983.

"As long as interest rates remain at current levels, we could have the best spring since the boom years of 1977 and 1978," said Tucson, Ariz. developer Pete Herder, this year's president of the home builders association.

Housing starts are the first step in construction and are the best measure of the rate at which the industry gobbles up steel, glass, bricks, appliances and other supplies from the rest of the economy.

The South, with half of all new houses sold last year, did the most to boost December sales, reporting a record one-month jump of 66.1 percent.

The North Central region, where cold weather discouraged house shopping, was down 39.1 percent. Northeastern states showed a moderate 8.5 percent gain, and Western states were virtually unchanged.

The jump in home sales "reflects a great sense of optimism among Americans," Herder said. "Housing consumers are more confident about their own jobs as well as the general state of the economy."

The average price of a new house throughout 1983 was $89,400, 6.6 percent more than 1982's average of $83,900, the department said.

Mortgage rates ended 1983 about where they began, with conventional loans running at about 13.5 percent.

"As much as anything, it tells you that the price of money is not inhibiting the selling of houses," said economist William Dunkelberg of the National Federation of Independent Business.

The Commerce Department said

Tuesday the government's index of leading economic indicators climbed 0.6 percent in December, but only four of 11 indicators pointed to an improving economy in the weeks ahead.

"I don't think we have any indication here that the business expansion is fizzling," said Robert Ortner, the Commerce Department's chief economist. "In fact, I think the greater risk would be if the economy did not slow down."

A runaway economy, he noted, would mean renewed high inflation.

On Capitol Hill, U.S. Trade Representative William Brock said an overvalued dollar, propped up largely by high U.S. budget deficits, is the biggest single cause of the nation's trade problems.

Brock said Congress should not yield to "quick-fix" proposals, such as import quotas, because it would only make the problem worse in the long run.

Brock said protectionist measures would remove the incentive international competition provides for American business to become more efficient and adjust to changing conditions.

The U.S. merchandise trade deficit with the world reached $69 billion last year, and Brock joined other administration officials in saying it may reach $100 billion by the end of 1984.

Military Studying 'Star Wars' Defense System

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department for the first time has earmarked money for the "potentially feasible" creation of a defensive shield to protect the United States from a nuclear attack, possibly with the use of Star Wars-like beam weapons.

The Pentagon set aside $1.777 billion for fiscal 1985 for the research and development of technologies and weapons capable of destroying Soviet missiles from the time they leave their launch sites to the re-entry of their nuclear warheads on their way to targets in the United States.

The expense of the radical program was underscored by the rapid escalation of its cost, with the Pentagon planning to more than double spending on the project in fiscal 1986. The budget shows proposed spending of $3.789 billion for that year, which begins Oct. 1, 1985.

Before it had a name, the Pentagon committed $991 million in various research projects to the program this fiscal year, which began Oct. 1. But it waited until the publication of Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's annual report to Congress Wednesday before identifying the projects connected with it under one heading.

Formally titled the Strategic Defense Initiative, President Reagan announced the program in March as a means of ending "the threat of nuclear ballistic missiles" by the turn of the century with weapons that could defeat any attack launched against the United States.

Unlike systems that defend one potential target, the initiative is designed to build weapons that could engage and destroy incoming ballistic missiles and their deadly warheads along their trajectories from launch to near-impact. In effect, it would create a missile shield over the United States.

Quickly dubbed the "Star Wars" initiative because of its probable reliance on the type of beam weapons that appeared so prevalently in science-fiction movies, critics have denounced the program because it could lead to development of a treaty breaking existing anti-ballistic missile or a space-based weapons pacts.

The 1972 ABM Treaty limits the United States and the Soviet Union to two ABM sites — one near their capitals, the second to protect an intercontinental ballistic missile launch site. They must not be capable of providing a nationwide ABM defense.

The United States dismantled its Safeguard ABM site in North Dakota shortly after the treaty was signed. The Soviets have one ABM site near Moscow and another in the central Soviet Union.

Poll: Americans Say They Need More Exercise

LAKE BUENA VISTA (UPI) — Many Americans feel that, although they are not getting enough exercise, they are in pretty good shape anyway.

In a survey for the Epcot Poll, four out of five participants or 82 percent, believe they need more exercise — generally a lot more.

But when the same group of 5,500 people were asked their perception of their physical condition, 72 percent claimed to be average for their age or above.

The age of the participants had little effect on the responses until the age of 65. Those 65 and over felt they were doing better in both areas.

Women, however, generally indicated they were in worse shape and needed more exercise than did men.

Only 11 percent overall felt they exercised properly.

In Reagan's Budget

Federal Student Aid Faces 10% Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal student aid based on need would be cut by about 10 percent under President Reagan's proposed fiscal 1985 budget, a coalition of education groups say.

The Action Committee for Higher Education said the budget, which Reagan presented to Congress Wednesday, does not provide more money for National Direct Student Loans but increases funding for work-study programs by $330 million.

The committee, using the higher education portion of Reagan's budget, showed that need-based student aid would fall about $326 million — from $3.98 billion to $3.65 billion.

Reagan sought a similar cut last year, but Congress instead increased funding by about $500 million. A spokesman for the education committee said the group would seek an increase of about the same size this year.

"We are hopeful Congress will reject Reagan's proposal and provide some selected increases," said Charles Saunders, a vice president of the American Council on Education, a member of the committee.

Need-based student aid includes Pell Grants, federally funded college work-study programs, National Direct Student Loans and the Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants.

Saunders said that since 1980, federal funding of need-based student aid, after allowing for inflation, has dropped by about 21 percent.

About 5 million of the nation's 12 million college students receive federal aid. The proposed cuts would eliminate about 797,000 graduate and undergraduate financial awards. Many students receive more than one award.

The education coalition said there would be no new funding for:

—Supplemental grants, now funded at $375 million. The program provides grants for needy students selected by their schools.

—National Direct Student Loans, now funded at $161 million in federal contributions. The program provides students with low-interest loans, with the government putting up 90 percent of the money.

—State Student Incentive Grants, now funded at $76 million. The program encourages the creation of state scholarship programs for needy students by providing funds that states match.

—Graduate Student Fellowships, now funded at $14 million.

Other areas of the proposed budget include:

—Pell Grants, the basic federal student-grant program, would be funded at the current level of $2.6 billion, while federal funding of college work-study programs would be increased from $550 million to $850 million. Students in work-study programs would be required to contribute at least $500 toward their educations before qualifying for grants.

—Guaranteed Student Loans would be revised to require a test determining whether the applicant needs the assistance. Currently, only applicants with family incomes of more than $30,000 are given such a test.

—Proposed for elimination: The Cooperative Education Program, now funded at $14 million, which permits students to get work experience while attending college, and the foreign-language area studies programs, now funded at $31 million, which encourage international studies.

Olympic Traffic No Hassle For Rich

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The rich who plan to attend the Summer Olympics and want to skip some of the competition — like marathon traffic jams, fighting for parking and wrestling with road maps — have created a brisk market for commercial helicopters.

A survey of rental and charter aircraft firms throughout Southern California shows that choppers are at a premium — with the price to match. Some companies said they have been booked solid for months. Others plan to bring helicopters in from surrounding states to fill the demand from July 28 through Aug. 12.

Federal Aviation Administration officials are drafting special rules to govern the influx of private choppers, although officials concede they are not quite certain what to expect.

"We're trying now to get a handle on it and how to prepare," said FAA spokeswoman Barbara Abels.

Peter J. McKernan, president of Jetcopters Inc., said the suburban Van Nuys firm began taking orders 14 months ago and had no problem signing up business for the two-week duration of the Games, even with rates of $450-an-hour for a four-passenger helicopter and $600-an-hour for a six-seat craft.

One attraction is the time helicopters can save.

Twenty-three Olympic events will be spread over an area exceeding Los Angeles County's 4,000 square miles. Some will be 200 miles apart.

"The freeways are going to be a mess," says Doug Morgan, a pilot at Santa Ana's Blackbird Helicopters, echoing the fears of residents, visitors and Olympic planners alike.

A trip from Beverly Hills to the downtown Los Angeles Coliseum, the main site for much of the competition and at least a half hour drive in light traffic, takes four minutes by helicopter.

Another draw, McKernan believes, is the cachet.

"For the very wealthy, for wealthy corporations having guests, it's not only the quickest way to get there, there's also the prestige," he says.

Mike Dressman, general manager of HeliTac Aviation Inc. in Los Angeles, said a good chunk of the business he has booked has come from Southern California banks, concerned about millions of dollars in bank drafts and clearing-house securities being tied up in traffic.

Some department stores have discussed the possibility of transporting daily receipts via helicopter. Dressman said, adding his company "may have to go out of the area to try and get some more" crafts.

An FAA plan to restrict air traffic, including helicopters, during the Games met sharp criticism at a December hearing.

Aviation officials called the rules — which would impose a mandatory reservation system at six Southern California airports and Las Vegas and limit charter operations — unnecessary and overly restrictive.

The system would also apply to private and unscheduled aircraft arrivals at the seven fields, with such flights required to obtain FAA clearance at least two hours before they take off.

Charter companies, anticipating restrictions on how close helicopters will be allowed at competition site, are arranging ground transportation from landing areas nearby.

The FAA's final rules are expected to be issued this month.

Dog Catchers Arrested For Selling Dogs

CHICAGO (UPI) — Undercover agents have discovered more than a quarter of the city's dog catchers stole pets and pedigreed pooches to sell on the black market.

Investigators said they hope a "paper trail" of evidence will help their reunite families with their missing pets, but they fear some animals may have been sold to laboratories for research and may never be found.

Ten animal control workers and four others were arrested on charges of stealing the dogs, which ranged from pedigreed show dogs to family pets. The 10 employees — more than one-fourth of the department's 37 workers — were suspended.

James Maurer, director of the city's Office of Municipal Investigation, said the 14 were arrested in a "sting" operation that capped more than four months of undercover investigation.

The workers are suspected of picking up dogs after citizen complaints, then selling the animals to private kennels or individuals instead of taking them to the city pound, Maurer said.

Some of the dogs were strays, but others were wearing identification tags when they were sold, mayoral aide Michael Holewinski indicated.

Valuable watch dogs or pedigreed show dogs were stolen from yards and then sold, Maurer said. One was sold for $800 on the black market, Holewinski said.

Maurer said citizens have complained for several years they believed animal control workers had either taken their dogs from their yards or made off with pets which had run away.

"It seemed to be a city-wide phenomenon," he said.

Maurer said kennel records were seized Tuesday, in hopes of tracking down other dogs lost before the investigation began.

"We're going to start the paper trail investigation," he said.

In the investigation, he said, undercover police officers tried to buy dogs from the animal pound. Undercover agents also bought dogs, then reported them as strays, so they would be picked up by city workers.

Maurer said about 100 dogs were sold after being picked up or taken outright.

Although no public money was taken, he said, people who lost their dogs had little chance of ever seeing again.

$300 A Day Rents Rolls

DETROIT (UPI) — Want to rent a Rolls-Royce or Ferrari on your next California business trip? If you can afford $300 a day — and have $5,000 in credit — there's a firm that can supply the car.

7-11 Rent-a-Car Inc. of Newport Beach, Calif., offers the ultimate in auto rentals. Its $3 million fleet of cars includes nameplates like BMW, Mercedes-Benz, Porsche, Lamborghini and Maserati.

They can be rented by the day, week or month. The driver who cannot bear to give the car back can buy it from owners Hugh Hutson and Steve Sutherland.

But 7-11 — no relation to the convenience store chain — offers no $69-a-week subcompact specials like more conventional rental agencies.

The typical 7-11 car — the Mercedes 500SL — rents for $90 a day and 50 cents a mile.

To Market, To Market ...

As a result of a consumer lawsuit, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has had to reopen its hearing on how far the Lemon Administrative Committee can go in restricting the number of fresh lemons its farmer-members can sell.

The Sunkist cooperative, which dominates the committee, is livid.

But the rehearing should be welcomed by everyone else as an opportunity for the Reagan administration to make good on the reforms its own agriculture and finance experts have proposed — and the White House has repeatedly blocked at Sunkist's behest — in the operation of this and other agricultural marketing committees.

Since the depression, the government has not only permitted farmers to join together to ensure the orderly marketing of a particular crop: It has enforced the resulting "marketing orders" — rules the farmers set for themselves — by collecting fines or imposing jail terms on marketing order violators.

Originally this arrangement was necessary to ensure farmers the clout they needed to deal with the vagaries of weather, transportation and middlemen.

And in the case of the three dozen marketing orders that still exist today and limit themselves to things like ensuring uniform grading standards and imposing quality controls, the arrangement is still worth maintaining.

But the marketing orders can no longer be justified when they cross the threshold from imposing quality controls to imposing sales quotas on their members, which keep perfectly good produce off the market simply in order to drive prices higher.

If that is what the lemon committee is doing — which the new hearing should determine — it ought to be stopped.

Farmers today have enough other ways to protect themselves that they no longer need such extraordinary powers. Indeed, the greater danger today is that such industry price-fixing will be harmful not only to consumers, but to the industry itself.

Artificially high prices can drive farmers to overproduce a crop, misusing resources that could more economically be put into other crops or industries.

The quotas may also, according to a 1981 USDA study, create more market instability than they prevent, by making it impossible for farmers to take advantage of futures market hedges and the other free-market mechanisms that now exist to control price fluctuations.

The quotas, moreover, produce such absurd spectacles as the California lemon grower who last year had to import lemons from Chile, because he was not allowed to market all of his own crop, and the California orange grower who, two years before, was prevented from giving his "surplus" oranges to a poor people's food coop.

It is the USDA's job to see that marketing orders don't cross this threshold, a task the White House prevented the department from performing in its last review of the lemon committee's quotas.

Hopefully, this time the USDA will be able to fully consider the economic impact of the lemon quotas and to order whatever modifications are necessary to bring them into conformity with the department's own modest reform proposals.

All the USDA has proposed is to make market-order sales quotas more flexible and, where they are indefensible, to phase them out. It should be allowed to proceed.

The NFL paid Leman and three Orlando residents who own '55 and '56 Chevys $50 each to drive to Tampa so their classic cars could help create a 1950s atmosphere at a tent party for corporate brass, Sports Illustrated executives and celebrities such as Jimmy The Greek.

Leman's $6,000 metallic red car, which is heavy on the chrome and boasts a red crushed velvet interior, attracted extra attention, because Washington Red Skins' fans appreciated the car's color which matches that team's red and yellow colors. The 1,500 dignitaries who had been flown into Orlando and taken to Tampa in 14 chartered buses for the party and the game flocked to Leman's car to pose for pictures with Tampa Bucs cheerleaders and team mascots, who were dressed in character costumes.

The '50 theme prevailed at the party. The front of the tent was disguised as a drive-in restaurant, where the cars were parked. The guests feasted on cheeseburgers and ice cream from giant stands beneath the circus tent. And more contemporary fare of hot and cold snacks and a giant 2-foot-by-3-foot roast beef were gobbled up by the guests.

When the game between the Raiders and the Red Skins started at 4:30 p.m. the Lemans turned down free tickets, because they wanted to get back to Sanford without having to fight post-game traffic.

Leman's classic car, which he and his wife began to restore about a year ago, will be on display, along with other vintage cars from the 20s through the 60s, at Florida Festival, Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The show is free to the public. And the public will decide which of the car owners will take home a best of show trophy, Leman said.

Leman enjoys his Chevy and also owns a '55 Chevy truck. "They bring back memories for me and allow other people to bring back memories. It's a nice clean family hobby," Leman said.

United States, Canada

Canada is the perennially neglected country in U.S. foreign policy planning. Americans take Canada for granted. If they think of it at all, it is in terms of the world's largest undefended frontier.

A new year is a good time to rethink the American relationship with Canada.

Certainly, there are problems in the U.S. relationship with Canada. It is a mistake for Americans to take Canada for granted as a friend and ally.

If Americans don't realize that there are problems, there is ample recognition of them on the northern side of the border.

Canadians are very mindful of the difference in size, power, and influence. They feel under the shadow of their giant neighbor to the south.

Under the circumstances, it is hard to be a Canadian.

Canada is profoundly affected by everything that happens in and to the United States. Americans are hardly aware at all that Canada was harshly affected by the U.S. recession of 1980-1982.

The Canadian recovery has been much slower.

To be sure, the Canadian government, under Prime Minister Trudeau, has been responsible for much of the economic trouble experienced by the Canadian people.

In the 1970s, Mr. Trudeau determined to crack down on U.S. investment in Canada. This policy damaged economic opportunities for Canadians. He also engaged in a politically unwise policy of granting foreign aid to Cuba and other countries in the Soviet orbit.

American investment in Canada always will be a sensitive matter, but U.S. financial resources are necessary for Canadian economic development.

However, Canadians can now take into account the fact that their investors have put tremendous sums into commercial development in the United States.

This means that investment is a two-way street.

The two peoples — Canadians and Americans — are different, though the differences sometimes are hard to define exactly. They share Anglo-Saxon political traditions, but have different political traditions. They should be able to coexist and cooperate in a good spirit, keeping their political institutions separate by accepting a very large degree of continental economic integration.

Progress in U.S.-Canadian relations would be more rapid if the American people devoted more attention to Canadian attitudes about the United States.

For this to happen, the American news media must report more extensively on Canadian affairs.

Advisers Split Over Recovery Strategy

WASHINGTON — Two things will happen today (Feb. 2). The famous groundhog will pop out of his hole in Punxsutawney, Pa., and the President's Council of Economic Advisers will release its annual report in Washington, D.C.

I won't predict whether the groundhog will see his shadow or not, but I can tell you there'll be enough sunshine emanating from the economic report to dazzle every groundhog in the country.

The council's chairman, Martin Feldstein, will predict continued economic growth, declining unemployment and a low rate of inflation. Last year, when Feldstein wrongly forecast a historically weak recovery from the recession, some of his fellow economists labeled him Dr. Gloom. This year, they'll be calling him Mr. Sunshine.

But behind the rosy report, the president's top advisers are bitterly divided over economic policy. Most Americans will shrug off this high-level

JEFFREY HART

The 'No Stuff': Glenn

With the whole world — supposedly — watching, Senator John Glenn on TV in Hanover, New Hampshire, committed a supreme political indecency.

Glenn is not only running as a celebrity, he is running as the representative of the Old Virtues, the Midwestern straight guy of the "Right Stuff" book and movie.

And there he was, in broad daylight, coming out against indexing the tax code to take account of inflation.

You don't have to know any more.

What inflation does to your tax situation, of course, is push you into a higher tax bracket without any increase in your real earning power. Because of the inflation factor, you pay more dollars into the federal treasury. And because you do, your own purchasing power in real terms declines.

Of course, this is tremendously convenient for liberal politicians. They can increase federal spending, and raise the money to pay for it through the "informal" tax of inflation. In other words, they are raising taxes without the embarrassment of officially voting for tax increases.

Poor John Glenn. Right out there in the open, explaining how he would cut the federal deficit, he came out against indexing.

Now, of course, a federal spender is against indexing. And for inflation.

As the rate of inflation goes up, everyone falls into higher tax brackets and pays a steeper "progressive" income tax. And with the stolen tax dollars, Glenn and his friends can fund the programs that reward their political backers. The old, naive "tax and spend" has become "inflate and spend."

The best definition of inflation I have ever heard was articulated in three words by President Calvin Coolidge, who is experiencing a modest elevation of historical reputation, and who had a considerable gift for epigram. "Inflation," said Coolidge, "is repudiation."

Coolidge, the honest Vermont, meant that through inflation the government was repudiating the value of the currency in your pocket. Senator Glenn wants to carry such repudiation one step further and steal more of your money by pushing you up into steeper-tax brackets.

So much for his Main street, Midwestern virtues. He should name Jesse James or Willie Sutton his vice-presidential running mate.

Back in 1970, when Richard Nixon was worrying about a projected challenge in 1972 from then Senator Edmund Muskie, his advisors urged him to distinguish between the actual Edmund Muskie and "the idea of Edmund Muskie."

In media theory, Muskie was "Lincolnesque," an honest New Englander from the state of Maine whose craggy visage would compare favorably with the perceived Nixon plastic man.

Well, the actual Muskie crashed in New Hampshire and then in Florida. There just was not much substance to him, an organization Democrat when no one wanted an organization man.

The actual John Glenn, similarly, is turning out to be quite different from the idea of John Glenn as projected several months ago. This is no national-hero Eisenhower-style candidate who will roll over the opposition.

The actual John Glenn is a fairly boring fellow of no visible ability to put together a national organization. He has nothing much to say. On some issues, such as a federal homosexual rights law — he's opposed — he stands a bit centerward of Mondale. But on all the other liberal issues he goes through routine genuflections.

Trying to push my way through the crowded Hanover Inn lobby the morning before the eight-candidate debate, I found myself buffeted by green-tagged reporters, overweight TV cameramen, hard-looking females (every candidate has a female campaign manager, it sometimes seems) and fast-moving young Secret Servicemen with walkie-talkies.

And there was John Glenn. The great moon face, the tiny hooded eyes.

And after his debate performance, I knew that my old primitive historical intuition was still true.

WASHINGTON WORLD

Reagan Says He's Not Unfair

By Helen Thomas
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Presidential candidate Ronald Reagan is riding high in the polls, and he is enjoying the privileges of incumbency as he starts down the campaign trail.

But he feels he has been maligned by opponents on two fronts that he views as political hurdles — the so-called "fairness" issue that he is not concerned about the poor and the disadvantaged, and the image that he is "trigger happy." Right now he is bent on clearing up what he calls "misconceptions" of his views.

He did not help the situation much when he said in an ABC "Good Morning America" interview that even in the best of times people sleeping on outdoor grates in the big cities are homeless "by choice."

He was responding to a question regarding charges that he favors the rich and his policies are causing misery to the less fortunate.

He told interviewer David Hartman, "Sure, when someone is down on his luck and is having hard times and they'd like to have someone to blame, they have heard a steady drumbeat (that he is unfair). Now, they've been told over and over again that because we're trying to hold down government spending that somehow we're taking it out on their hides."

In response to a similar question in Newsweek Magazine, Reagan cited "some misperceptions that have been carefully crafted by a certain amount of demagoguery on the part of opponents of what we've been trying to do here; issues that would have been uncaring for certain groups of our citizenry — and they're not true at all. And they probably have been the most frustrating thing that I personally have felt."

He summed up his feelings by saying he believes the fairness issue has been "very unfair."

Reagan came into office with a lot of baggage concerning his views on welfare and equity. In the '60s he opposed nearly every "Great Society" proposal, which became law under Lyndon Johnson, including voting rights, civil rights, Medicare, and minimum wage. He also suggested in 1964 that Social Security might be put on a voluntary basis.

During his first year as president he made social programs his target for cutting big government, aiming at disability payments, school loans, school lunches and other entitlement programs. Such programs, he said, should be only for the "truly needy."

In that respect he has halted the growth of these programs. The cuts added a burden to the big cities with their population growths and the recent deep recession, which is not over in some industries.

In his current budget, Reagan also proposes some lesser-than-expected cuts in food assistance and medicare. But again he is not asking for funding for legal services for the poor, an assistance that he appears bound and determined to wipe out. It is the target of activist conservatives in the country.

He was told by Republican lawmakers, according to House GOP leader Bob Michel, that big cuts in social programs during an election year would be politically unwise.

disagreement as nothing more than a philosophical pillow fight. But unfortunately, the president's decision on which advice to follow will affect the pocketbook of every businessman, wage earner, pensioner and taxpayer in the nation.

The split among top economists is deep and unbridgeable. As one insider described it to me, it would be only a slight exaggeration to say that the differences in economic policy within the administration are as fundamental as if the CIA and the Pentagon disagreed over whether the Soviet Union existed.

Basically, the most critical problem Feldstein sees for the economy is continued $200 billion budget deficits, which he wants to reduce by a combination of spending cuts and tax increases. This will assure the durability of the economic recovery, he feels.

But other senior economists disagree. They believe the Federal Reserve Board's tight-money policy, in force since last summer, is not only choking off the recovery but is sowing the seeds for another recession by the end of the year. They believe that a slow, steady growth in the money supply is the best way to achieve a healthy economy and avoid the unsettling postwar cycle of boom and bust.

These monetarists were the only economists who correctly forecast both the severity of the last recession and the strength of last year's recovery.

What particularly infuriates them is that the Feldstein report will give gold stars to the Fed and its chairman, Paul Volcker. The Fed's erratic manipulation of the money supply last year resulted in a confidential Cabinet-level report critical of the agency.

"We are really concerned," one administration official told my associate Michael Binstein, "and we are conveying that to the Fed. What happens in the next month or two will determine whether it will be the death knell for the recovery or whether the Fed will bring us back from the brink of disaster."

Feldstein's critics are also bitter at his tendency to ignore divergent views in preparing the economic report. "The hidden agenda of every chapter is to sell the Feldstein line, which is that high deficits raise interest rates, and therefore you have to raise taxes."

In an election year, Feldstein is unlikely to get the budget cuts and tax increases he feels are necessary. He would be likely, therefore, to insist on heaving to the Fed's tight-money policy. Then neither Feldstein's nor the monetarists' suggestions would be followed, and the public would wind up with the worst of both economic theories.

If there is indeed a recession this year, one official pointed out, both sides will howl "I told you so" — and use the disaster as a vindication of their theory.

So the economists' argument will probably continue ad infinitum, with the American people caught in the middle.

It's Tougher For Today's Heroes... And For Hero Worshipers

For the past few years, one of the most common phrases I've heard has come from the mouths of those far older and wiser than I is, "We just don't have the heroes like we did when I was young."

Now that I'm old enough, I've pondered that statement. I believe they're right — and I believe they're wrong.

Yesterday's heroes came from limited areas. Decorated war veterans made excellent heroes. They made such good heroes because there were such good villains years back. Germans, Russians and Orientals were constantly messing with the Americans. If you protect your country from those kinds, you could qualify for hero status.

Today, we don't clearly know who the villains are so it's hard for our heroes to protect us from them.

Another good source for heroes was, of course, the sports world. Who didn't love "the Babe," "the Galloping Ghost (Red Grange)," Jack Dempsey, Lou Gehrig, or Joe Louis. They were heroes all right and every young kid wanted to grow up to be like one or all of those great legends.

It was easier to be a hero in those days because we, the general public, asked very little of them. It was a tonic for us that their armor was kept sterling clean by the press and later the electronic media.

People back in the 30's, 40's, and 50's needed to look forward to an afternoon game, or a Saturday night fight. Once they sat in front of the radio, television or in the ball park, they could say hello to their old friends in uniforms.

We ask a lot more of our heroes today than in past years. And with the print and electronic media the way it is today, it's harder for them to keep their armor a bright sterling.

Stories about drugs, and contract disputes are as common in the newspapers and on television as the scores of last night's games.

But it's not fair to today's heroes. A lot more of our athletes would be hero status, and not just because of their high salaries, if their private lives were kept private.

Not many people knew back then what a nobody person the great Babe Ruth was. The press loved the Babe for his fun-loving approach to the game and protected him and overlooked his less-than-wholesome side. News of his escapades came to light long after he ended his glorious career.

Even so, today's people seem too sophisticated to actually have a hero; or for that matter even to look up to somebody. They pay the mortgage on their hero every month and look up to their hero sitting in the driveway. We used to look for an escape in a Babe Ruth home run or in a Joe Louis right cross. Now, no one is good enough to hit a home run or deliver a knockout blow except ourselves.

Lou Stefano
Herald Sports Writer

Maybe it's a lack of trust. Just over 10 years ago, our own president let us down. We've read of congressmen and generals not measuring up to the standards of the past. And our athletes of today "seem" to not be what they were in years gone by.

In spite of the past few hundred words I've written, I believe that there are heroes today. We just have to accept them as they are and not ask them to be someone that we ourselves cannot be.

I'm happy to say that I have a hero, a couple in fact. I'm even happier to say that I've talked to one of them recently and have a chance to meet him this weekend.

I grew up loving sports and fantasizing about being a professional athlete. In the spring, I wanted to be a professional baseball player. Autumn brought on my desire to play pro football and winter drew my attention to a professional basketball fantasy.

The dream never materialized. But it did for someone else that I knew about. And his reality satisfied my dream.

I first saw Tim Raines play baseball in my junior year of high school. I sat on the bench across the field and marveled at his talent. In later years, I would fib to listeners that there were scouts at my baseball games. The only problem was that they came to scout Tim and not me.

When Tim signed with the Expos, I was thrilled and felt closer to being filled of my fantasy. I watched his rise through the minor leagues and bragged to my colleagues at work about this guy I "played against in high school" who just recently played before 50,000 people in Denver's Mile High Stadium.

I also remember Tim's first time on NBC's game of the week, which was my favorite sports TV show. I babbled to my mom about this guy I "played against in high school" as Joe Garigiola mentioned Tim's name as a late-inning pinch runner against the New York Mets in early October 1980.

When he played in the All-Star game, and also in the playoffs, I was with him on that field, even though I was watching on television. I even felt financially secure when he signed his new contract a couple years back even though my savings account was no richer.

When Tim had his problems with drugs, I was hurt, mad and disappointed. He had something that every guy wanted — and he almost lost it. But it made me realize that he was human. It took me about two months to get over it. I agonized with him. But I respect him because of what he went through and overcame.

There is a part of me and a lot of others that is satisfied and rests easier because of what Tim Raines has done and will do as years go by.

It takes a big man to be a hero and a big man to have one. We both fit the bill.

Some heroes conquer countries, some become presidents, and still others walk in space. My hero made my dream come true.

Rams Find Way Past Cohen For 3-0 Victory

By Lou Stefano
Herald Sports Writer

Lake Mary head soccer coach Larry McCorkle said the Ram soccer team didn't play well Wednesday night against Seminole at Lake Mary High School. "I talked to the guys (before the game) and I thought they were ready, but it's obvious they weren't. It wasn't a very good performance."

Seminole head coach Howard Hawkins, on the contrary, was pleased with his team's performance. "They're (the Seminoles) steadily improving," said Hawkins. "We took Lake Mary out of their passing game and that was our goal. We forced them to play kick and run pretty much."

Can you tell from these quotes who won the game? It was Lake Mary with a less than impressive 3-0 victory.

The game was really a match of the Lake Mary offense versus the Seminole defense, which means all 10 Lake Mary attackers against Seminole goalie Rob Cohen.

The Seminole game plan was to mark Lake Mary man-to-man and bunch up in front of the Seminole goal. The strategy worked for the first 37:35 of the game as the Tribe continually frustrated the Rams and kept them from scoring.

Finally after what had to be the 15th Lake Mary throw in from near the Seminole goal, Ram left winger Aisushi Ichihara was left unmarked and as the defense went right, the ball came left and he pounded a shot past the diving Cohen.

By contrast, Lake Mary had 26

shots on goal many of which were taken in point blank range on Cohen. In the first half, Ram attacker Marcus Siebmann had Cohen one-on-one three times and each time Siebmann blasted a shot that the senior goalie was able to get some part of his body on. By game's end, Cohen had "Spalding" engraved on the various parts of his body which he used to block shots.

Lake Mary might have won the game, but Cohen outplayed the Ram attackers. For the evening, Lake Mary had a phenomenal 46 shots on goal and only scored three goals.

Siebmann finally scored on Cohen with 18:42 left in the game, on a breakaway to close out the scoring.

DAYTONA BEACH — In a crucial Five Star Conference game, Seabreeze, 15-1, had to go into a double-overtime, sudden-death shootout to trip the Lake Brantley Patriots, 2-1, at Welch Memorial Stadium.

The win keeps the Sandcrabs, 7-0, on top of the Five Star while the Patriots are 6-1. Brantley narrowly missed a chance to win the game in regulation when standout Mo Moghaddam's shot rolled in just after the final buzzer from six feet away.

Graceful Linny Leads Raider Rout

Former Boone Standout Keys 4-Minute Blitz To Trip Central Florida

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Every once in a great while there's an athlete which lives up to his name. Lynn Swann was as graceful as his winged namesake on the football field, making breathtaking, finger-tip catches while gliding into the end zone.

Years ago, the Baltimore Colts had a linebacker named Steve Stonebreaker. You can imagine what he liked to do opposing ball carriers.

Seminole Community College's basketball team has one of those gifted athletes this year. His name is Linny Grace. He's just a freshman, but the 6-3 swingman has the court presence and elegance to more than justify his last name.

He showed off his style in Wednesday night's second half against Central Florida Community College. SCC had charged to a 33-22 halftime lead but was showing signs of going into its usual second-half lethargy until Grace set the pace.

It took just four minutes.

● Taking taking advantage of a CFCC turnover, Grace scored on a breakaway for a 35-22 lead...

● Thirty seconds later, Grace tossed in a short jumper from the wing for a 37-24 lead...

● SCC goes full-court man-to-man defensively and Grace picked the ball away from his man and whipped a super pass to Delvin Everett for a basket and a 41-24 lead...

● After two CFCC free throws, Grace turned in his most graceful act. He broke down the baseline away from his man, took a perfect job pass from Mike Tolbert and dropped it in for two points and a 43-26 lead...

● Later, he added a slam dunk to cap his excellent evening.

The Central Florida momentum has been crushed and Grace and the Raiders rolled to a 76-62 victory before 702 fans at the SCC Health Center in Mid-Florida Conference basketball.

J.C. Basketball

CFCC did cut the margin to eight points with 8:15 to play, but Luis Phelps tossed in a jumper. Payton hustled a great pass to super sub Artis Jackson for a basket and Tolbert added another one to put the game out of reach.

Grace led all the SCC attack with 13 points while Everett added 11 and Phelps had 10. Jimmy Payton handed out five assists and Tolbert doled out four. Payton had four steals and Everett added three.

"We just ran a little more and got open," was how the modest freshman described the Raiders' four-minute spurt. "We're getting better at keeping the lead. We're running through the offense more and running time off the clock."

Time is of an essence to the Raiders. They are 5-2 in the Mid-Florida and 17-9 overall. Fourteen games make up the season. Wednesday's game didn't count in the conference standings because Central Florida, 11-15, is ineligible for giving out too many scholarships. The Raiders have a big game Saturday at Daytona Beach against the Scots, who are trying to hang in the conference race, although they lost 41-40 at Lake City Wednesday. Both clubs are 4-3.

Florida Junior, 7-1 after Wednesday's win over Santa Fe, holds a 1 1/2 game lead. FJC erased a 37-33 halftime lead at Gainesville to post an 83-77 victory over the Saints behind 28 points from Rod Kittles.

Benny Gabbard, CFCC's outgoing coach, likes what he sees in Florida Junior, but he isn't ready to concede anything. "FJC has the best collection of talent," he said. "But, I don't know if they have the best team."

Gabbard's Patriots hung a two-point loss on SCC earlier this year at Ocala. But he sees a different Raider team now. "They're getting better play out of their big men," said the big Samoan. "Bill (Payne) has done a

Lady Seminoles Battle DeLand In Pivotal Game

The Seminole's girls basketball team can just about clinch the Five Star Conference title tonight, but the Lady Seminoles must beat a tough DeLand team at DeLand. The game starts at 7:45 p.m. since DeLand doesn't have a junior varsity team.

The Lady Tribe stands at 19-4 overall and 13-1 in the conference while DeLand, ranked seventh in the 4A prep poll, is 18-4 overall and 12-2 in the conference. The last time the two teams met, Seminole came away easy victors as Maxine Campbell did a fine defensive job on high-scoring Bridgette Gordon.

In other Five Star Conference action tonight, Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks, 16-8 overall and 9-5 in the conference, travel to Lake Brantley to face the upset-minded Lady Patriots.

In an Orange Belt Conference matchup, Oviedo's Lady Lions host Leesburg. Oviedo is riding the hot shooting hand of Stephanie Nelson, who scored 21 points in a win over Bishop Moore and 23 in a loss to Lake Mary.

Another key Five Star matchup is set for Friday as Lake Mary's Lady Rams travel to Milwee Middle School to take on Lyman's Lady Greyhounds, both teams are 8-6 in the conference. Lake Mary can pretty much sew up fourth place in the conference with a victory.

Revolving Owners Change USFL Image For 2nd Season

Rozier averaged about 8 yards per carry.

Mike Rozier, Nebraska's Heisman Trophy running back, is an example of the USFL's changing philosophy. Rozier will make a million dollars from the Pittsburgh Maulers in his rookie season.

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the USFL opened its first season, it strived to popularize spring football and vowed to cultivate its own stars rather than challenge the NFL for high-salaried players.

One year later, the new league has signed a crop of NFL stars, gone to court over several players and has set up a committee to look into moving its season to the fall.

The new philosophies are primarily due to the league's changing owners, almost as frequently as it changes players. Only seven of the 12 original owners are still around. Add six expansion teams, and the seven owners are a minority in the league they helped found.

But while newcomers like Donald Trump, Jerry Argovitz, Ed DeBartolo Sr. and James Holtzman advocate challenging the NFL for veterans as well as draft choices, some of the original owners maintain their conservative approach.

Things haven't changed as far as I'm concerned," Tampa Bay Bandits owner John Bassett said. "Philosophically I don't approve. I didn't get into this thing to get into a war with the NFL."

But the secret of running any business is being in tune with your market. Maybe if I was in New York, I'd do the same thing as Donald Trump.

The Bandits proved a franchise doesn't have to overspend to succeed. After starting last season with no high-priced players, Tampa Bay finished 11-7 and led the USFL in attendance, averaging just under 40,000.

The other extreme was the Chicago Blitz, who had coach George Allen and the most "name" players in the league. The Blitz was a disappointment at the gate and owner Dr. Ted Diethrich moved the franchise to Arizona after the season.

Diethrich doesn't advocate a war between the leagues, either. "I don't believe it's a war. We're competing for a few key players at the skill positions. It's more of a battle than a war," Diethrich said. "I don't think we can compete head-to-head. They have the television dollars we don't have."

The other franchises with their original owners are Birmingham, Denver, Philadelphia, Michigan and Oakland.

Despite USFL owners playing down their conflict with the NFL, salaries have skyrocketed at the greatest rate in pro football history. NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle calls inflated salaries caused by the USFL the major problem facing his league, and many in the USFL aren't too happy about the situation, either.

New Orleans Breakers coach Dick Coury has blasted teams like New Jersey, Philadelphia, Michigan and Arizona for going overboard with their budgets. Philadelphia President Carl Peterson singled out New Jersey owner Trump for overpaying.

Executives throughout the USFL are warning that salaries must eventually decrease.

"I'm afraid," Birmingham President Jerry Sklar said. "Some of the salaries are out of line and I don't believe it."

"I don't think there can be a continued escalation," Diethrich said. "At some point, you have to have a stabilization of salary."

Some of the free-spending owners feel outbidding the NFL for players will lead to parity on the field, paving the way for the USFL's move to the fall. Trump and Houston Gamblers owner Argovitz see it as a three-step process, similar to that of the old American Football League.

First the USFL moves to a fall schedule, its champion meets the Super Bowl winner in a world championship game and then the leagues merge.

Oakland owner Ted Taube doesn't advocate merger, but suggests a common draft or shared television rights to squelch the bidding wars.

A committee consisting of Bassett, Trump, New Orleans owner Joseph Canzaro, Los Angeles General Manager Don Klosterman and Pittsburgh General Manager Paul Marth is currently studying the fall move.

Among the items to be studied are stadium availability, attendance patterns and — most importantly — a TV deal.

"I hope the study lasts about 15 minutes," Bassett said. "I don't look forward to playing in the fall. I shouldn't say no right off the top of my head, but I'd have to be convinced. I'm not in their camp at this point."

Despite their differences on some key matters, the original owners aren't disenfranchised with the league. The reaction to the inaugural season was upbeat. All involved with the USFL were satisfied with overall television ratings and attendance. The owners are optimistic for 1984, partly because of solid expansion franchises and new ownership that should help in the three major markets — New York, Los Angeles (J. William Oldenburg) and Chicago (Hoffman).

"We built a solid base last year," Diethrich said. "We did better than I anticipated. ABC's TV ratings were better than they expected, we had excellent attendance in some areas and the quality of play was better considering the players we had."

'Aggressive' BoHannon Leads Hawks By Wymore

Lake Howell bounced back from a tough loss to Seminole a night earlier to defeat Wymore Tech, 84-45, Wednesday night at Lake Howell High School. The win upped the Silver Hawks record to 3-16.

The Hawks were led by junior forward Crockett Bohannon who scored 22 points on the evening. "Bohannon has become more aggressive with his inside game as of late and it's showing in the box scores," said coach Greg Robinson. Against Seminole, Bohannon scored 12 points in the second half. It's also the second game in a row that he has led the Hawks in scoring.

Bohannon's scoring took the defensive pressure of the Hawks regular scoring leader Efrim Brooks. Brooks added 19 points against Wymore.

Lake Howell travels to Lake Brantley Friday night to take on the Patriots in a Five Star Conference game.

LAKE HOWELL (84) — Bohannon 22, Woodridge 12, Arlt 2, Anderson 4, Brooks 19, Beasley 10, Evans 9, Gammons 4, Jenne 2. Totals 34 12 19 84.

WYMORE TECH (45) — Johnson 6, Spark 6, Manuel 10, Mobley 8, Alexander 3, Laurey 12, Burks 0, Orr 0. Totals 20 5 19 45. Total fouls — Lake Howell 18, Wymore 15. Technicals — none. Fouled out — none.

Burgess, Junto Win MVPs

The Seminole High swimming team held its annual awards banquet Monday night and the following awards were presented by coach Donalyn Knight and assistant coach Laura Kerben.

The most valuable swimmer awards went to Stacy Junto and Chuck Burgess.

The most improved swimmer awards went to Shawna Cole and Mike Horner.

Letters went to Shawna Cole, Kristy Keeling, Tracey Reed, Junto, Chris Sparrow, Jennifer Cowley, Lisa Cooper, Patti Elmore, Horner, Mike Butt, Stuart Thornton, Brian Sparrow, Chris Megill, Andy Ellmore, Gerald Collazo and managers Cindy Barnes, Connie LaRosa, Chris Higgins, Jill Bedenbaugh, Lisa Meyers and Chuck Hayes.

Receiving bars were Tim Dycus, Burgess, John DuBois, Dana Ray, Alisori McCall, Suzy Porter and Liz Prior.

Ripken Gets Big Bucks

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Baltimore Orioles Wednesday announced they have signed shortstop Cal Ripken to a four-year contract extending through the 1987 season.

Terms of the agreement were not released, but Ripken reportedly will earn close to $1 million a year — making the 23-year-old superstar the youngest player in baseball at this salary level.

Ripken was the American League's Rookie of the Year in 1982 and its Most Valuable Player last season.

Mays Stuns Stemmler — Tribe Upsets Creek

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

PORT ORANGE — Even before the match with Spruce Creek's Hawks started, it seemed Wednesday night would be another long one for Seminole High's wrestling team. The bus the team took to the game ran out of gas on 1:95 just before the Port Orange turn off.

"Things improved after that," said Seminole coach Roger Beathard.

The Tribe showed no signs of repeating the performance of the bus Wednesday as it went in and immediately took charge of the match en route to a 40-36 victory over the Hawks.

"With all the forfeits we give away, I figure a team would have to give us back some before we would win," Beathard said. "But, the kids went out from the first whistle and were aggressive. They were definitely at their best tonight."

It was the second victory of the season for the Tribe, which forfeited four matches, giving Spruce Creek 24 points. The Hawks only managed 12 more points as Seminole won seven of the remaining nine matches.

Sheraton Mays got the Tribe off to a good start as he came through with a clutch effort, winning a superior decision, 17-3, against Spruce Creek's Doug Stemmler at the 102-pound weight class. Stemmler was the district champion last season and is the Five Star Conference runner-up this season.

"That was a real pick-me-up for us," Beathard said. "He (Stemmler) is Spruce Creek's best wrestler."

After a forfeit at the 109-pound class, Seminole's Doug Atkinson came up with a key victory, 22-6, over Spruce Creek's Brian Douglas at 116.

Prep Wrestling

"I thought we had a good chance after Mays and Atkinson won," Beathard said.

Seminole then forfeited the next three matches to give Spruce Creek a 24-10 lead. Tony Brown then came up with his 21st straight victory as he used a cradle to pin Wesley Louis in 1:42 in the 142-pound class.

Spruce Creek won the match at 149 to take a 30-16 lead, but Seminole came back and won the next four matches to take a 40-30 lead to clinch the victory.

Troy Turner got the string started as he won by default at 159. Turner had taken an 11-1 lead, then got his opponent in a hammer lock and turned him over on an already injured shoulder. Turner improved his record to 19-2 for the season.

David Debose made it two in a row for the Tribe as he pinned Steven Rawls with a grapevine in 5:16 at the 171-pound class. Another clutch performance for Seminole was turned in at the 189-pound class by Duwayne Hall. Hall, who had just been moved up from junior varsity after winning the Seminole County JV title at 189, used a half nelson to pin Spruce Creek's John Monroe in 1:53.

Hall's victory gave Seminole a 34-30 lead and James "Cheese" Morgan came through with a pin at 223 to sew up the victory for the Tribe. Morgan pinned Paul Isenbarger in 1:02.

Rams Hammer Patriots

In other wrestling action Wednesday, Lake Mary's Rams ran their record to 12-0 for the season with a 53-9 rout of Lake Brantley's Patriots at Lake Brantley High School.

Lake Mary won 11 of the 13 matches Wednesday with Bill Black and Joe Waresak the only Patriots to come out on top. Black won by default at 130 pounds while Waresak outlasted Brent Blakely, 7-4, at 159.

The Rams go for their 13th straight victory Saturday as they host a tri-match with Winter Park and Lake Howell.

Lake Mary's junior varsity also came out on top Wednesday, upending the JV Patriots, 46-30.

good job with them. They're more consistent rebounding-wise. Last time, we dominated them on the boards in the second half — that won it for us."

The statistics confirm what Gabbard is saying. SCC grabbed 38 boards to the Patriots 23. Luis Phelps led the way with eight while Bernard Merthie snatched seven and Tolbert grabbed six.

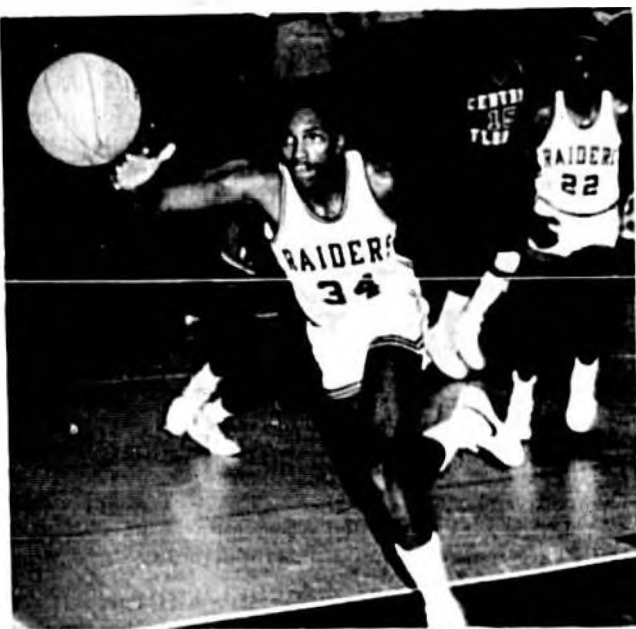

Despite the big rebound margin and 57 percent shooting (34-51) from the field, Payne wasn't satisfied with the performance. "We looked like we were sleepwalking out there," he said. "I don't know if it was because the game didn't count or what. We had too many turnovers (24) and we shot poorly from the foul line (14 of 27 for 52 percent) again."

"But that's coach (Terry) Woods' fault," Payne laughed. "He coaches the offense and free throws."

Grace had some offers from Jacksonville, Tampa and Flagler, but the fluid freshman didn't think he was ready for major-college ball after a brilliant senior season when he helped Orlando Boone to the 4A state championship.

Grace was used to a slower tempo at Boone, but said adapting to SCC's faster game hasn't been a problem. "I used to play a lot of street ball," he said. "So it didn't make much difference how we play."

Payne and Grace, who is averaging 12.2 points and 4.4 assists per outing, both believe his ballhandling must improve in the next two years before he goes to big time. "He's going to play guard at a major college," said Payne. "Ballhandling is what he's got to work on. He's still making the transition from high school forward to

Gators Strike Again, Bite No. 14 LSU, 78-60

United Press International

If the game was so funny, how come LSU wasn't laughing?

"It was Looney Tunes out there tonight," LSU coach Dale Brown said Wednesday night after Darryl Gresham scored 20 points in leading the Florida Gators to a 78-60 upset of the 14th-ranked Tigers.

"Balls bouncing off guys' heads, missing slam dunks," continued Brown. "I don't know where our biorhythms were tonight. The game was a joke. I can't believe how badly we played."

The Tigers, led by Jerry Reynolds' 16 points, fought an uphill battle from the opening tap as the Gators grabbed an 8-0 lead to gain momentum early.

LSU, which shot 38 percent in the first half and 37 percent for the game, made a modest comeback to stay within 35-27 at the half.

Florida dominated the boards in the first half 27-12. Ronnie Williams pulled down 10 rebounds in the first half, 16 on the game.

Derrick Taylor, who sat out most of the first half in foul trouble, moved LSU to within 37-31 early in the second half, but the Tigers could get no closer.

"In my fondest fantasies I never envisioned we would win in the manner we did," Gator coach Norm Sloan said.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 1 North Carolina drubbed Clemson 97-75, No. 14 Purdue topped Northwestern 52-44 and No. 19 Louisville beat Tulane 62-56.

Kittens Scratch Past Blue Bandits In 3 OTs; Radzak, Kelley Honored

The most exciting game of the year took place this past weekend in the girls division of the Inter-County Basketball Association as the South Seminole Kittens scratched their way to a triple-overtime win over the Jackson Heights Blue Bandits.

The game saw-sawed back and forth until moments to go in the third overtime period when South Seminole's Tamara Lewis scored the go-ahead lay-up for a 33-31 win.

The Blue Bandits jumped out to a 6-1 first quarter lead. They led 12-9 at the half. Lewis took charge in the third period scoring ten of her game high 17 to give the Kittens a 21-16 lead. The regulation game ended at 24 all.

Monica Wilson's follow-up of a missed foul shot gave the Bandits another tie at 27 as time ran out in the first overtime. Eva "Cool" Miranda sank two free throws after time expired in the second overtime to keep South Seminole alive.

Miranda scored six, Shannon Freeman four and Shari Siegrist three for the Kittens, following Lewis' 17. Vonya Hamilton led Jackson Heights with 10. Wilson had eight, Bridget Jennerre added seven and Betsy "the Bomber" Hughes had six.

In other girls action, the Tuskawilla Warriors won their first of the season with a 37-30 victory over Walsie Ward Girls Club of Pine Hills. Kelley Grider pumped in a big 18 to lead the way.

The Blue Bandits came back to defeat Trinity Lutheran, 32-14. Betsy Hughes led with seven. Suzanne Hughes had six, Hamilton six, Lisa Taube four, Jennerre four and Loan Le three. Laura Jones led Trinity with 10.

In JV boys play, the battle for second place was fought between the South Seminole Tomcats and the Eastmonte (Milwee) Greyhounds. They both had 4-1 records and the Tomcats prevailed, 42-24. Willie Daunic was the top gun with 13. Brad Bolton scored 10, Danny Rubin eight and J.J. Miller six. Mike VWhittington and Jarvis Watkins led Milwee with seven each. Steve Jerry added four.

A JV thriller took place between the Jackson Heights 76ers and the Eatonville Lakers — the lead kept changing back and forth until the very end when Jackson Heights hung on for a 42-41 win. Charlie Knotts threw in 21 and Tyrone Hird 13 for the 76ers. Andrea Johnson had 11, Alton King 10 and Vaughn McCall seven for Eatonville.

The Jackson Heights Bruins won their third, rolling over the Westmont Warriors. Danny Phillips led the way with 16. Chad Duncan and Charles Warner scored eight each. David Niren and Robbie Slavik six apiece. David Eagle led Westmonte with four.

Inter-County Basketball

In Varsity boys (8th grade) action, the South Seminole Bobcats increased their lead to two games in the National Division as they won a pair, 42-40 over the Westmonte Patriots and 37-32 over their closest pursuers, the Jackson Heights Knights.

Against Westmonte, the Top Cats were Eric Wright and Phil Clarke with 10 each and 26 rebounds between them. Add Rick Wright's 11 boards, the Bobcats controlled both ends of the court. Garth Bolton added eight points, Brian Dill seven, Corey Prom, the Burger King ICBA Player of the Week the previous week, led the Pats with 15. Clay Thompson, Henry Kellom and Matt Lamb all added six each. Garth Bolton topped the scorers against the Heights Knights with 11. Eric Wright had 10 again and 15 rebounds. Dill, Daunic and J.J. Miller all scored four. Lorenzo Lingard was the Knight with the golden touch as he tallied 14.

In the American division, the Eastmonte (Milwee) Greyhounds beat previously unbeaten Winter Park to tie it for first place. Craig Radzak was the hot hand with 23 and lots of boards as the Heunds rolled to a 54-35 win. Monte Stevens and Kenny Day added eight each. George Watkins five. Terry Dixon led Winter Park with 15. Frank Freeman had 11 and Ed Simmons eight.

Winter Park knocked off Westmonte, 48-41 as Charlie Herman scored 24. Dixon had 12, Freeman seven. Prom led the Patriots with 18.

In other Varsity games, the Tuskawilla Warriors beat the Jackson Heights Angelo's, 61-44. Aaron Gammons and Alan Greene led the way with 18 and 17 points. Alonzo Robinson had 11. Gary Peterson eight. Greene pulled down a whopping 20 rebounds and Robinson added nine. John Pettit led Angelos with 13. Ron Veres and Steve Kandell had eight each.

The Eatonville Lakers rolled to a 96-42 win over the Jackson Heights Lions. Darryl Gallagher led 12 different scorers with 21. Darren Lawrence had 16. Larry Hayes 12. Shawn Beauford 11. Damon Taylor, Robert Johnson and Jeff Matthews all seven apiece. Joe Long topped Jackson Heights with 13. John Dowdle had 10. Andy Devine eight.

Burger King ICBA Players of the Week for week four are Craig Radzak of the Eastmonte Varsity Greyhounds — 23 points against Winter Park; and Kelley Grider of Tuskawilla girls for 18 points in their first win.

Export Of Radioactive Steel Table Legs Blocked

JUAREZ, Mexico (UPI) — The exportation of restaurant table parts into the United States was blocked by Mexican Nuclear Safety Commission inspectors and U.S. Customs officials because of radiation from Cobalt 60.

The table parts were manufactured at a Juarez foundry where traces of the radioactive isotope were found. The foundry is located next to a junkyard where radioactive materials were discarded, then sent as scrap metal to a foundry in Chihuahua City, officials said.

Nuclear Safety Commission Investigators Wednesday said the radiation came from part of a cancer treatment machine, which contained a capsule of Cobalt 60. The machine was stolen last year and sold to the junkyard, officials said.

Scrap metal from the junkyard was sold to Acevedo de Chihuahua, the foundry in Chihuahua City, and eventually made its way in the form of steel reinforcement rods to firms in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California and Colorado.

At least four people who came in contact with the radioactive material are being treated for radiation at a Juarez hospital, officials said.

Feldstein Issues Warning About Deficit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's top economist, having failed to sway administration policy toward tax increases, has little of Reagan's optimism about the future of the economy, an annual report to Congress showed today.

Publication of the document, The Annual Report of the Council of Economic Advisers, appeared to extinguish lingering support within the administration for tax increases kept alive by council chairman Martin Feldstein.

Wall Street analysts, anxious about the possibility of higher interest rates, could find ample confirmation within the report of their fears that Washington is not about to face up to deficits in 1984.

In his brief preamble, President Reagan spells it out. "The unwillingness of Congress to accept the proposals that I offered (in 1983) has made it clear to me that we must wait until after this year's election to enact spending reductions coupled with tax simplification that will eventually eliminate our budget deficit."

Through last year, Feldstein had said as much, but expressed fear that 1985 would be too late for deficit reduction to save the economy from another downturn later this decade.

The report warns in strong terms of the danger of continued federal deficits. "The administration's economic projections imply that the budget deficit will remain roughly $200 billion a year — or about 5 percent of GNP — for the rest of the decade unless there is legislative action to reduce spending or raise revenue," the report said.

But the report also says that, at least in 1984, the federal red ink appears to be doing more good than harm. "The direct fiscal stimulus of the large 1984 deficit will do more to raise demand in 1984 than the increased real interest rates that result from the 1984 deficit will do to depress demand," the report said.

Mothers March

March of Dimes volunteers, from left, Denise Jones, Dorothy Carter and Frances Hirst, turn in collections from Monday's Mother's March against birth defects to Sharon Russi, Empire of America Savings & Loan assistant branch manager, Sanford. More than 750 local volunteers canvassed their neighborhoods for donations.

While tallies are incomplete, Harold Sheffer, executive director of the Central Florida chapter of the March of Dimes, said over $50,000 has been raised so far in the Seminole-Orange-Osceola counties area. Approximately $20,000 has been collected in Seminole County, over $5,000 of that coming from the Sanford area, Sheffer said.

Social Studies Fair Set Saturday At LMHS

Outstanding students from the Seminole County public school system will participate in a social studies fair entitled "Family and Community in History" from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday at Lake Mary High School.

Entries from each school in the county will be in the categories of current events, extemporaneous essays, speeches, debates, dramatic or musical presentations, media presentations and projects.

The purpose of the fair is to make social studies come alive for students and encourage them to use their knowledge to come up with imaginative projects based on their research. School Superintendent Robert Hughes said.

The Social Studies Council and the Seminole County School Board, in cooperation with the Florida Historical Society and the Historic Preservation Board, are sponsoring the fair for students. Saturday's fair will be one of six to be held in Florida this year.

The winning projects from each local school will be entered in the county-wide fair where winners will be selected and awarded prizes Saturday. The winners' names, along with the names of their teachers, will be published in the Florida Historical Quarterly.

Seminole Students To View Magna Carta

Groups of Seminole County sixth graders will visit the Orange County Historic Museum on Feb. 8, 14 and 15 to view the "Lincoln exemplar" — copy of the Magna Carta — one of the world's historic documents.

Historians consider the Magna Carta the foundation of the legal system in the United States.

In addition to the display, the students will view a film about the development and significance of the Magna Carta and will see a play tracing the major events surrounding the freedom-giving document.

The Lincoln exemplar is considered the best of the four original copies of the Magna Carta in existence.

Hills, is co-signer on the deed to the house.

To keep from selling the house, Mrs. Ising has filed a civil suit demanding $100,000 in punitive damages and more than $12,000 in compensatory damages and has filed motions asking the sale of the house be stopped.

Mrs. Ising said in her suit that the ruling to sell her home was issued by Saffi only because he has a long-term dislike for her from her appearances in his courtroom for two divorces and the sentencing of one of her children to reform school.

When Saffi, according to Mrs. Ising, would not view new evidence Jan. 17 as to why the house should not be sold, she filed her suit.

Today, with fewer than 12 supporters carrying placards around her, Mrs. Ising answered questions regarding her suit and her previous divorce.

According to testimony in her divorce from Marsh, Mrs. Ising stated she had Marsh co-sign the deed because she did not want her previous husband, Konrad Ising, from getting the house and the custody of the children should she die. But Mrs. Ising said at her first courthouse protest and in her complaint that she had Marsh's name put on the deed because he beat her.

Today she said she did not mention the alleged beating in divorce court because she was frightened of Marsh.

In the court testimony, however, Mrs. Ising said she had Marsh's name placed on the deed because "I trusted him," and she felt that in the event of a divorce that the property would be transferred back to her. The transfer of the deed was declared a gift by Saffi, and the Florida Supreme Court on September 2, 1982 agreed with his decision and the divorce decree.

Further, Marsh testified during the divorce that he made up to $20,000 worth of improvements in the house and that he gave Mrs. Ising $5,000 to hold for him, the combined total of which was the amount of the divorce decree.

In her complaint against Saffi, Mrs. Ising states Saffi would not view new evidence she had produced to support her claim that the house sale should not transpire.

According to courthouse files, the motion Mrs. Ising filed was not the usual motion to consider new evidence and the motion that was entered said there were attachments when there were none.

Court records also show that Mrs. Ising asked Marsh to live with her and that they lived in a domestic situation extending longer than and prior to the three months they were married.

Mrs. Ising in one letter included among her divorce papers said Marsh is a lot like his son, "kind, gentle, considerate and generous."

Marsh, who has said through his attorney that the house is worth $200,000, has offered to settle out of court for $60,000.

A hearing on the suit and stay is scheduled Feb. 7, according to Mrs. Ising's nephew, Sean Davis.

Fear Of Fat Can Lead To Serious Condition

DEAR ABBY: I am a young woman who, like many other women, became obsessed with the fear of getting fat. It started while I was in college. I would eat (and drink) whatever I wanted, then induce vomiting. I also used laxatives to excess. I became addicted to this kind of weight control for four years. Everyone remarked on my "beautiful" pencil-slim figure, but nobody knew how I maintained it.

When my menstrual periods stopped, I became frightened and saw a doctor. That's when I found out I was suffering from anorexia and bulimia.

God help me, I never realized the damage I was doing to myself. And because I am sure there are many others who read your column and are doing the same thing, I hope you will print this:

People who try to lose weight and stay slim by doing what I did run the risk of heart failure, kidney failure and liver damage, and they increase the chance of developing tumors (both benign and malignant). Other complications include possible rupture of the stomach or esophagus, loss of dental enamel and chronic ear and sinus infections.

Aside from the physical damage, there is the psychological. My binging and purging were done secretly because I was ashamed of myself, so my self-esteem suffered, too. Thoughts of suicide crossed my mind. Thanks to a fine physician and a year of therapy at an eating disorder clinic, I survived.

DEAR LUCKY: Thank you for sharing some timely and valuable information with my readers. Those interested in learning more about this eating disorder may write to: ANAD, P.O. Box 271, Highland Park, Ill. 60035. It's a non-profit organization, so please include a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope for its material.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me why a woman says she's been shopping when she hasn't bought anything?

WILBUR

DEAR WILBUR: For the same reason a man says he's been fishing when he hasn't caught anything.

DEAR ABBY: I am in my 40s. My father died a few years ago and my mother married a man I absolutely adore.

I do not regard him as my stepfather because I was already grown when he married my mother, so I introduce him as my mother's husband. When I introduce him in this manner, I always feel that I might be giving him the impression that I don't consider him family.

What is the correct way of introducing him?

FEELING AWKWARD

DEAR FEELING: Introduce him as your step-father because that is what he is regardless of how old you were when he married your mother. However, since you absolutely adore him, quit guessing and ask him how he wants to be introduced.

'Fashion Fitness, Then And Now'

A fashion show/brunch titled "Fashion Fitness, Then And Now" will be held at Loch Haven Art Center on Mills Avenue, Orlando, on Saturday, Feb. 11, at 11 a.m.

The presentation will feature active and spectator sportswear as well as reproductions of sports apparel worn in the year 400.

Admission proceeds go to Beta House, an organization which provides young pregnant or single parenting women with housing, counseling and schooling.

For further information call 841-2223.

This is the only collection of its kind in the country showing a retrospective on women's sportswear through the years, according to Peggy Peoples, chairman of the fashion show.

First In Arts And Crafts

There's more to an Arts Festival than pretty paintings and unique crafts. When the Arts Department of the Woman's Club of Sanford presented its Annual Arts Festival, adding to the colorful displays were two demonstrations, "Cooking With Art" by cookbook author Elizabeth Paulucci Helfrich, and "Taking the Snap Out of Snapshots" by Sanford City Manager Warren E. "Pete" Knowles. The Herald published photos of several first place winners on Jan. 29. Among the other first place winners are, from left, Mabel Plety, Holiday Decorations; Florence Korgan, Embroidery; Melba Cooper holding Bill Gielows entry in Crewel; and Domarious Varn, quilting.

GARDEN CIRCLES

CENTRAL CIRCLE

The January meeting of Central Circle of Sanford Garden Club was held at the clubhouse with Mrs. Jackie Partain and Mrs. Mary Muhs as co-hostesses.

Mrs. Blanton Owen of Magnolia Circle, was guest speaker. Mrs. Owen demonstrated the care and pressing of flowers and leaves and the art of creating designs. She had many colorful and interesting designs to display.

Central Circle will have a table at the Village Flea Market on Feb. 4, as their ways and means project.

JACARANDA CIRCLE

The January meeting of Jacaranda Circle of the Garden Club of Sanford was held at the clubhouse. After a business meeting including discussion on a membership drive, February and March luncheons were discussed.

Refreshments were served during the fellowship hour.

ADK Airs Writing Family History

Members of Alpha Nu Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa were treated to a mini-workshop on "Writing Your Family History Creatively" at their January meeting.

The workshop was conducted by Charlotte Geyer, Seminole County consultant-coordinator for Secondary English and Reading. Mrs. Geyer, a member of ADK, is also a member of the Winter Park chapter of Penwomen of America and is co-author of a state adopted writing and reading program.

Mrs. Geyer presented suggestions for planning a family history. It needn't necessarily be chronological, she noted. Start with some point in your life — a particular year, experience or event either personal or national. Next, recall happenings in your life that occurred before, after or during this period of time.

Each event recalled will trigger other events and before long a highly entertaining as well as informative family history will evolve, she said. This anecdotal form of family history holds much more interest for posterity than the customary chronological one, according to Mrs. Geyer. (She stressed the importance of leaving some record of your life for your children and grandchildren.)

Too often family pictures have nothing to identify them for the generations that follow. She urged members to note on the backs of family pictures or on separate pieces of paper the time, place, and occasion of the picture. Don't put pictures in albums and desk drawers until this has been done.

Mrs. Geyer distributed many handouts she had prepared to facilitate the actual starting of the family history. Her final plea was, "Don't wait until it is too late! Start now!"

The meeting was held at the home of Beth Whigham with Sue Burton and Karen Coleman as co-hostesses. Following the workshop delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Members present were: Leah Benner (president) Marcella Brandeberry, Geneva Cochran, Mary Dunn, Elizabeth Gallant, Mary Groome, Rebecca Holmes, Sandra Jennings, Mary Grace Kosky, Hazel Madden, Kate Nash, Alice Perry, Roberta Richards, Blanche Rucker, Belle Rumbley, Elaine Van Lue, Barbara Vincent, Bette Waterhouse, Elois Wilkins, Lorraine Whiting and the hostesses.

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY FEBRUARY 3, 1984
You will gain several valuable allies this year who are both idealistic and loyal. The efforts exerted by these persons will contribute to your material well-being.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could be in for a pleasant surprise today when material rewards come your way, even though you might feel you did nothing to earn them. Look ahead into 1984 by sending for your Aquarian's Astro-Graph predictions. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You could be exceptionally lucky today where prominent matters are concerned, especially if they are tied into your hopes and dreams.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Wishful thinking is not a frivolous endeavor for you today. Once your imagination is triggered, you'll devise ways to turn fantasies into realities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today your sphere of influence is apt to be greater than you realize. You'll be coming through loud and clear to people you might think aren't listening.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A problem pertaining to your work or duties that has been vexing you can be resolved today. Your instincts will help you ferret out the solution.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Involve yourself in activities today that challenge your imagination and permit you to work with your hands as well as your mind.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't be hesitant to use far-out ideas today to improve or beautify your surroundings. Let your inventiveness and aesthetic instincts prevail.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're very adroit today at directing others and helping them sort out their affairs, without their realizing you're pulling the strings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Little things become significant careerwise today. Pay attention to every detail. Later you'll appreciate the importance of doing so.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Appoint yourself the social director for your group's entertainment today. Everyone will enjoy the activities you arrange.

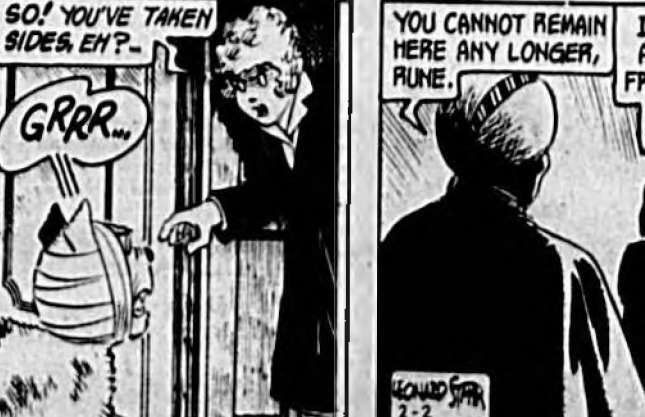

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There is a possibility that you might receive something of value today through a relative or a close family contact. Attach yourself to kith and kin.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Promoting a cause in which you truly believe or teaching something of value to another will afford you the greatest sense of gratification today.

Anxiety Can Cause Medical Ailments

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm a 31-year-old man in good health. But three months ago I started having heart palpitations, shortness of breath, tingling sensations in my head and extremities, cold hands and feet, dizziness and sour tastes in my mouth. I had dental and physical examinations and blood tests, all of which were negative. I was diagnosed as having anxiety problems. I also had occasional diarrhea and indigestion, but these symptoms gradually subsided. During the same period, two other people had similar symptoms and also were diagnosed as having anxiety. I find this diagnosis difficult to believe. Could these symptoms be caused by a virus?

DEAR READER - Viruses and other illnesses can affect the entire body, causing symptoms in multiple organ systems, such as you described. However, it's unlikely you would have heart palpitations as well as indigestion and shortness of breath if you had a virus infection. All your symptoms suggest an anxiety reaction. You may not realize that anxiety is very common. Almost everyone at one time or another has some degree of anxiety. Anxiety also is associated with an overproduction of adrenaline, which produces a lot of the symptoms you described. Adrenaline can be a factor in heart palpitations. Your shortness of breath actually may have been hyperventilation, which also occurs in anxious individuals. If you were experiencing anxiety, the cause evidently is gone. Perhaps you were experiencing new stress at that time and have learned to cope with it, or it has become less threatening. In addition to situational stresses that can cause anxiety, there can be deeper psychological factors. I'm sending you The Health Letter 19-8. That Anxious Feeling, to give you a better understanding of what anxiety is all about. It's important for people who have anxiety reactions to make some important adjustments in their lifestyle. These include avoiding caffeine and cigarettes and getting a reasonable amount of exercise. If you know the reason for the stress and resulting anxiety, either try to solve the problem or eliminate it from your life pattern.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

problem. South got to three no-trump. West opened the 10 of clubs. East played the jack and continued with the queen. South won the second club and led a diamond to dummy's ace. The ordinary player or even ordinary expert would probably run the diamonds and would wind up one in the suit, but Darvas had a better idea: He read East for just one diamond and carefully threw East in with a club. East cashed his good clubs. South chucked a heart and a spade while he let two diamonds go from dummy. Note that if South had cashed just one extra diamond, dummy would have been squeezed out of a heart or spade.

Lace, as we know it, developed in Italy in the 1400s. It grew out of open or cutwork in embroidery. It was a mark of prosperity.
