PAL director resigns

SANFORD — After less than five months on the job, Police Athletic League director Jerry Lisle has resigned, citing philosophical differences and personal and professional reasons. Lisle declined to comment Thursday.

Sheriff Don Eslinger said this morning Lisle was a "super guy," but said Lisle was unused to routine office procedures and deadlines.

Lisle, 55, of Lake Mary was hired in January to run PAL, created by Sheriff Don Eslinger to provide alternatives to crime for troubled youth. Previously, Lisle was active in youth sports activities in Altamonte Springs and owns a sports product marketing company, Profile Sports Inc.

Lisle resigned April 29, listing May 3 as his last work day. Eslinger's initials appear on Lisle's resignation letter in his personnel file, with the note "Not eligible for rehire."

Maj. Steve Harriett said Thursday PAL will continue with Lt. Matt Stewart serving as director.

Wal-Mart helps Boys Town

SANFORD — The Sanford Wal-Mart store will be making a special donation to Father Flanagan's Boys Town, Central Florida chapter, as part of a special Mother's Day event. The amount of the contributions will be based on a percentage of store sales made between 8 a.m. and 11 a.m. this Saturday, May 8.

In honor of mothers and children around the world, we are pleased to provide this support for Boys Town," said Mel Tomlin, store manager. "This is part of our continuing commitment to our community," Tomlin added.

The charity was selected for the donation by the Wal-Mart store associates/employees.

'Whale-of-a-Sale'

SANFORD — Shoppers will have an opportunity to harpoon bargains Saturday at the "Whale-of-a-Sale" conducted at the Sanford Civic Center. Admission is free to the sale to benefit local non-profit organizations. All of the sale proceeds will be donated to the participating charities.

Bargain hunters may purchase crabs, attic treasures, clothing, garage sale type items, antiques and furniture at the sale from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. The civic center is located at 401 E. Seminole Blvd.

Verdict: Guilty of bilking elderly

SANFORD — A former Longwood business man was sentenced to 12 years in prison and 25 years probation for bilking several elderly people out of $1 million.

Seminole Circuit Judge Alan Dickey sentenced Dominic Esposito, 36, who owned Diversified Capital Sales and Marketing, Inc. In 1992, Esposito was charged with 21 counts of racketeering, grand theft and securities violations.

Esposito hosted a money marketing show on an Orlando Christian radio station. He advertised for investors seeking a high return on their investment. Early investors were paid from money coming in from people joining the program. The scheme operated as long as enough new investors signed up.

A home Esposito bought in Heathrow with investors' money is being sold in bankruptcy court and the proceeds will go to help repay investors.

Cemetery cleanup planned

SANFORD — Local citizens will hold another cleanup day at Page Jackson Cemetery Saturday from 8 a.m. until noon.

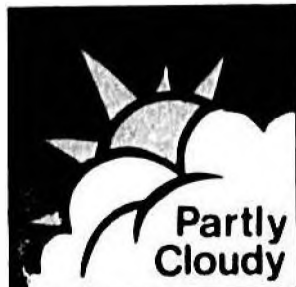

Organizer Sandra Gaines said the community support has been overwhelming during the past several weekends the effort has been underway and about a quarter of the large trees and brush has been removed. Gaines said when the large brush has been removed, mowing, trimming and hedging will return the vandalized cemetery to a top-notch state.

Gangs moving in?

Juvenile judge: They're here; Sheriff: Not really

Editor's note: This is the first in a series focusing on juvenile crime in Seminole County. Part 2 will be published Sunday.

SANFORD — Youth gangs are operating in Central Florida and Seminole County is not exempt from them although much of the activity is concentrated in the southern part of the county. The definition of a gang seems to be a stumbling block in determining if they are operating here or not.

Steve Shapiro, gang liaison officer for the county, is also a member of the Gang Task Force in Orange County. Although there is a group of black youth who hang out together and associate in criminal activities in Sanford, they may not meet the definition of a gang, which has a strong leader, initiation rites, sometimes dress the same in like colors, with graffiti drawn on personal items matching graffiti in their neighborhoods.

"It bothers me that some police don't want to acknowledge the existence of gangs," Shapiro said.

Seminole County Sheriff Don Eslinger said when most people talk about gangs they think of the Bloods or Crips in large cities, which are very organized with strong leaders and initiations.

"I'm not going to be an alarmist," Eslinger said. He acknowledged loose knit groups in the county. See Gangs, Page 5A

More passenger train runs

Interstate-4 traffic may be eased via Amtrak

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Increased passenger rail service to Tampa has been suggested as a way to lower traffic on Interstate 4. A Department of Transportation official says increased service plus completion of the beltway could help alleviate traffic on I-4 including the area near Sanford.

Orange and Hillsborough County officials have called for a study on the impact of increasing Amtrak passenger train service between Orlando and Tampa.

Steve Roman, spokesman for the DOT, indicated the proposal was already under consideration. "While I must admit much of the traffic on I-4 involves people going to and from their work and to the attractions, I believe there is sufficient travel between the two major cities to warrant serious consideration."

Lake Mary AARP, city commission compromise

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary chapter of AARP confronted the City Commission last night. Neither side got their way.

AARP had requested free use of the Community Center for May and June meetings. They have been holding meetings in the old City Hall and said they had outgrown the facility.

On a three to two vote, the commission will allow the AARP free use of the building for May, but pay full price, an estimated $85 to $100 in fees for the June meeting.

"At our last meeting we had 110 people," said AARP leader Delores Lash. "We all had to cram into the old City Hall, and our chapter has just become too large to continue meeting there."

Larry Lucas, also an AARP leader, had explained the Lake Mary chapter was one of the fastest growing in the state, with 147 paid members and 70 additional outstanding members. See Seniors, Page 5A

More patrols figured in Eslinger's budget

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Increased neighborhood patrols is a key element in Sheriff Don Eslinger's $29.2 million budget proposal for the 1993-1994 fiscal year, beginning Oct. 1.

Eslinger wants to hire 24 more deputies during the next three years to place officers in more communities.

Two deputies are currently assigned to Midway and one is assigned to Goldsboro and Lockhart's subdivision. Eslinger wants to assign one patrolman to the Sunland Estates and Bedford Road areas near Sanford, two deputies to The Crossings near Lake Mary and one in Rolling Hills near Longwood.

"It's not so much a program as it is a philosophy," said Eslinger. "The whole idea is to develop this partnership with the community to solve problems rather than treat symptoms."

The sheriff is seeking a 11.3 percent spending increase over last year's $26.2 million budget. Eslinger calls the plan "fiscally conservative."

"It's fiscally conservative while progressively planning for the future," he said.

This year, the county expects to spend a total of $29 million for law enforcement and the jail. The sheriff does not directly pay life and health insurance for his 540 employees and some jail maintenance expenses. With the proposed $29.2 million spending plan for the next fiscal year, those additional expenses would increase the total county law enforcement spending package to $32.4 million, almost a 12 percent increase over last year's total spending. See Budget, Page 2A

Full service schools, health care, focus of public event

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Sanford community has been invited to take advantage of free health care and informational fair at the Crooms School of Choice on Saturday morning, May 8.

Sponsored by the Seminole County school's Full Service School's program and Therapeutic Community Enrichment Program (TCEP), the event will begin with a one mile walk from the intersection of Lake Avenue and 13th Street and ending at Crooms.

"We want to walk through the community to talk to people along the way and invite them to see what we have to offer," Helen Morris, the director of the Full Service Program at Seminole High School, said.

Morris said the Full Service School program is designed to bring medical and mental health services, social and welfare programs and educational assistance programs to the people in the community.

"Many times the people have no way to get to the programs that they need," she said. "So, we bring the programs to a centralized location at the school or to the community like this."

The Full Service Program at Seminole High School will eventually include a health clinic staffed by Seminole County Health Department doctors and nurses and counselors from the Seminole County Community Mental Health Center and the Grove.

Currently, they are offering self-esteem building courses for young men and various other educational tutoring programs.

"We believe we have a strong program that helps the whole community," Morris said.

Saturday's program will include representatives from Sanford and Seminole County. See Event, Page 5A

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Navy vet opposes court ruling on flag

GULF BREEZE — A Navy veteran who opposes a court settlement that would let public school students abstain from the Pledge of Allegiance is trying to raise money to pay $250 in damages and buy American flag bumper stickers.

"The flag is a symbol of national pride," Jim Flowers said Wednesday.

Christa Polley, a former Gulf Breeze High School student, and her mother challenged a state law that requires students to get written permission from parents to abstain from saying the pledge and to stand for it even if they do obtain such consent.

A lawsuit they filed with help from the American Civil Liberties Union alleged those requirements and the Santa Rosa County School Board's policy of punishing students who fail to comply violated the First Amendment right of free speech.

As part of a settlement filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Pensacola, the school board agreed to change its policy and pay Ms. Polley $250 for distress she suffered when threatened with punishment.

The agreement also asks that a judge declare unconstitutional the provisions of law requiring parental consent and that students stand.

Mayor tries to polish Pensacola's image

PENSACOLA — Mayor Jerry Maygarden will be trying to polish Pensacola's image, tarnished by abortion violence, while activists on both sides of the issue plan demonstrations.

City hall issued a news release that the mayor will be available Saturday for interviews in a press room.

On Saturday The National Organization for Women is sponsoring a march and rally in the memory of Dr. David Gunn.

At the same time, abortion opponents plan to hold a prayer meeting outside a second abortion clinic, the Ladies Center, across town from where the NOW rally will be held.

The NOW rally will be held across the street from city hall outside the M.C. Blanchard Judicial Building where abortion protester Michael F. Griffin is scheduled to go on trial June 21 for Gunn's murder.

"By talking with the out-of-town media, I hope to show the public outside Pensacola that we offer more than demonstrations and that we are a strong, vibrant community," Maygarden said.

Whites charged with crime against black

TAMPA — Two white men have been charged with a hate crime against a black teen-ager after trying to put a noose around his neck and intimidating him with a burning cross, officials said.

John Stansbury, 27, and Jason Allen, 20, both of Tampa, were charged with a single count each of battery-hate crime. They were released Thursday from the Hillsborough County Jail.

The charges stem from an April 23 incident at an automobile dealership where both suspects worked as painters, sheriff's spokesman Jack Espinosa said.

Deputies said the suspects held the 16-year-old and tried to place a noose around his neck. Then they tried to scare him with a burning wooden cross made from paint sticks, deputies said.

Gay rights battle

Supreme Court hears oral arguments in Tampa

By JACKIE HALLIFAX
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The fate of gay rights in Tampa could be decided by the state Supreme Court, which has been asked to rule on elections law six months after voters repealed an anti-discrimination ordinance.

Local officials are arguing that 462 of the signatures on the petition that put the issue on the ballot were invalid because they came from a list of people who had not voted in two years.

The city voted last fall to throw out an ordinance banning discrimination based on sexual orientation in housing, employment and public accommodations. The margin was 58-42 percent.

A trial court and the 2nd District Court of Appeal already have ruled that the names should be counted as registered voters for referendum petition purposes.

Florida's high court heard oral arguments Thursday and will rule sometime in the future.

If the voters in question are disqualified by the high court, that means the organizers of the repeal referendum fell short of getting 10 percent of the city's voters on the petition needed to put an issue on the ballot.

"It's about the technical provision in the election law, but if the court were to reverse the referendum would have to be thrown out as not having been successfully initiated," Hillsborough County Attorney Emeline Acton said after arguments. "And if the referendum is thrown out, the city gay rights law would be reinstated."

Don Cowell, an attorney for Take Back Tampa, the referendum's sponsor, said he thought the Supreme Court would agree with the lower courts.

"I think we're all a little bit amazed that now that the people of this city have voted and stated in a strong way what their opinion is ... that the government officials are being so persistent in attempting to get their will overturned," he told reporters.

Even if the Supreme Court does invalidate the signatures, a proposed constitutional amendment banning local laws banning gay rights will serve as a safeguard, according to David Caton, vice chairman of Take Back Tampa.

"That's part of the reason why we're circulating the petition to stop gay activism in the state to begin with," he said.

Caton also serves as president of the Florida chapter of the American Family Association, which is organizing the drive to amend the state constitution.

Controller sleeps as planes land

By Associated Press

MIAMI (AP) — The lone air controller at Palm Beach International Airport fell asleep in the tower while apparently armed with a gun, forcing a jetliner to land without guidance, authorities said Thursday.

Delta Air Lines Flight 198 from Sacramento, Calif., with stops in Dallas and Fort Lauderdale, landed safely with 42 passengers aboard during the April 29 incident, officials said.

Three private planes reported they were also unable to contact the tower from 12:59 a.m. to 1:37 a.m. that morning, Federal Aviation Administration regional spokeswoman Anne Eldridge said in Atlanta.

When police eventually forced their way into the tower, they found air traffic controller Rodney Tatum, 36, shoeless and apparently just waking up, reported Palm Beach Sheriff's Sgt. Bruce Barkdoll.

"Rodney Tatum said that he had fallen asleep," Barkdoll wrote. "We saw several Gmm magazines and 9mm cartridges on the table top. There was a hard object underneath a white towel that we believed was a handgun."

A nearby kit indicated he may have been cleaning the pistol, Barkdoll added.

Eldridge said Thursday it is against federal regulations to have a weapon in the control tower.

She also said FAA rules prohibited her from saying what Tatum told his supervisors until an investigation is completed, which could take several weeks.

Eldridge said it is not unusual for one controller to be in the tower at some airports during slow morning hours. Tatum was on the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift in which the airport averaged 20 operations, she said.

Meanwhile, the controller remains on the job.

"He is still working at the tower, and as far as I know, he is working the same schedule," Eldridge said. But she noted tower personnel often rotate shifts.

Budget

Nearly 40 percent of last year's general operating expense fund spending was for countywide law enforcement.

The sheriff wants $28 million to continue the current level of operations. The majority of the increase, $1.7 million, is for salaries and other personnel expenses. Among the included "base level" spending is:

- 11 additional school crossing guards to serve three new south-county schools;
- $504,800 to replace 37 vehicles, eight less than replaced this year; and
- $227,000 to begin replacement of the Sheriff's Office computer.

Also included in the base budget request is permanent funding for Eslinger's attorney, Dan Broderson, who primarily seeks property forfeitures. Eslinger intended to pay Broderson's $61,200 salary from $500,000 in property forfeitures, but recent Supreme Court decisions have eliminated much of the potential for collecting the money.

In his program enhancements, Eslinger wants:

- four additional non-sworn additional field service officers to relieve higher-paid sworn deputies from routine report-taking;
- two additional City-County Investigative Bureau agents;
- three traffic deputies, including one assigned to patrol for drunken drivers;
- two investigators; and
- seven corrections officers.

Eslinger reports the six FSOs hired last year freed deputies from routine responses 7,289 times in 1992, freeing 5,000 hours for the deputies to perform more critical duties. Eslinger says the two CCIB agents are needed because the cities have not assigned additional officers to the cross-jurisdictional task force since 1989, although tasks of the force have continued to increase.

4-year-old with 5 transplants chooses Disney over celebrity

By Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Billy Ray Cyrus or Mickey Mouse? What's a girl to do?

It was an easy choice for Charlie Fourstar, a 4-year-old girl who received five transplant organs in November: Go for the mouse.

Charlie, who lives on the Fort Peck Indian Reservation in Montana, plans to go to Disney World in Orlando on Monday on a trip arranged by Make-A-Wish Foundation of Western Pennsylvania.

Charlie received a liver, stomach, small intestine, large intestine and pancreas in a 16-hour operation in November.

She initially told Make-A-Wish she wanted to meet the country music star. She listened to his songs — especially "Achy Breaky Heart" — repeatedly during her hospital stay, and Cyrus sent her a video message and a gift.

The meeting fell through because Cyrus was unable to make it to Pittsburgh and Charlie was too sick to travel to see him, said Make-A-Wish spokeswoman Ann Fisher.

Charlie was discharged from Presbyterian University Hospital on April 2. Now that she's able to travel, she wants to go to Disney World.

"Charlie just changed her mind, which every woman is allowed to do," Ms. Fisher said. "She's absolutely in love with Mickey Mouse."

She hasn't forgotten about Cyrus altogether, though.

"She plans to marry him someday," said Charlie's mother, Liz.

Charlie was born with short gut syndrome, which left her small intestine unable to absorb adequate nutrition. The syndrome damaged her stomach and years of intravenous feeding damaged her liver.

Large intestines and pancreases typically are transplanted along with stomachs.

Part of Charlie's recovery will be learning to eat. She sips soda and nibbles on a variety of foods, including french fries and lasagna. A blended food solution is pumped into her intestines daily.

Charlie, who will turn 5 on May 18, likes to play with Barbie dolls and sit on a tricycle, her mother said.

Police

Burglary arrest

Frank Espanosa, 18, of Casselberry, was arrested Tuesday by sheriff's deputies in connection with the theft of a black case containing a video camera with an estimated value of $800, on May 3. Deputies said Espanosa was recognized by a school employee, and his picture found in the school's yearbook. They said the assistant principal phoned him and told him to return the item. When Espanosa returned to the school Tuesday, deputies arrested him and charged him with grand theft.

Schoolyard man

Sanford police arrested Anthony Jerome Miller, 20, 2621 Greenway Avenue, Sanford, at Lakeview Middle School on Tuesday. Police said Miller reportedly ran onto the physical education field while approximately 60 students and a teacher were holding a PE class. They said Miller was verbally abusive and refused to leave when asked to do so. Miller was arrested and charged with trespassing on school grounds, and disturbing a school function.

Drug arrest

Officers of the City/County Investigative Bureau stopped a car owned by Steven Williams, 25, 4220 Highway 17-92, in Fern Park Tuesday. Officers said they suspected he may have been involved in a drug case. They reported seeing three packets and $80 in cash thrown from the car before it was stopped. The items in the packets later tested positive to be cocaine. Williams was charged with possession of cocaine.

Additional charges with warrant

Longwood police arrested James W. Jackson, 25, with no local address, at a bar on Savage Court Tuesday. Police said they attempted to locate a wanted person, and asked Jackson for his identity. They said Jackson gave them some false information regarding his date of birth. Jackson was arrested for obstruction of justice by resisting without violence. He was wanted on a warrant for failure to appear in court.

Burglary arrest made

Sanford police arrested Michael Jerome Jackson, 26, 1312 W. 13th Place Tuesday, in connection with a residential burglary on Cedar Avenue on April 21. Police said an estimated $300 in items were taken. Jackson was charged with burglary and theft.

Contraband charge

An Apopka trustee at the Seminole County jail was arrested on a contraband charge Wednesday afternoon after a corrections officer reported finding 27 cigarettes in his clothing. Scheduled for release May 18, the trustee may spend up to five years in a state prison if convicted.

William Donna Mullins, 48, was arrested on a charge of introduction of contraband into a corrections facility following a pat-down search as he re-entered the facility at the end of his workday. Arrest reports state the cigarettes were discovered after a strip search.

The contraband charge carries a maximum five-year prison term. Mullins was about to complete a jail term for habitual traffic offenses, said Lt. Russ Hatzel. Cigarettes and smoking have not been allowed in the facility since April 1 when Seminole County commissioners banned smoking in all county facilities. Hatzel said even prior to the ban, inmates could not bring cigarettes into the facility because jailers would not be able to control drugs or other materials secreted inside the cigarettes.

Domestic violence

Bobbie Ann Hendricks, 24, 2015 S. Sanford Ave., Sanford, was arrested Wednesday night on a domestic violence battery charge. Hendricks' husband reported she threw a beer can at him, striking him in the groin.

Prostitution charged

Demil Collins, 24, 702 W. Third St., Sanford, was arrested Wednesday on a prostitution charge. Two Sanford police Special Investigations Unit agents reported meeting Collins at the corner of First Street and Jessamine Avenue, where she offered to perform a sexual act for $10 each.

Disorderly conduct

David Alan Catron, 36, 1424 Rosecliff Apartments, Sanford, was arrested on disorderly conduct and resisting arrest charges early Thursday morning. Sanford police report Catron was banging on the door to his apartment and yelling for his wife to let him in shortly after midnight. Police report when they approached him, he ran away.

The following wanted persons have been taken into custody:
 ● Michael Joseph Donovan, 29, 105 Clover Lane, Longwood, turned himself in to deputies at the Seminole County jail Wednesday. Donovan was wanted on a charge of aggravated stalking threat.

Conditions for postal workers are volatile

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Stress, low status and a feeling that managers don't care can make workers so angry they sometimes take up guns and start shooting, crime and stress experts say.

This is a particularly volatile mix at post offices, they say, as was demonstrated Thursday when two disgruntled postal workers went on deadly rampages in Dearborn, Mich., and Dana Point, Calif.

James Fox, dean of the college of criminal justice at Northeastern University in Boston, said there have been several workplace shootings this year in addition to those at post offices. But with three-quarters of a million postal workers nationwide, "statistically, they will have more."

"Let's first keep in mind that there is a growing prevalence of disgruntled employees who are literally firing back at employers around the country," Fox said in an interview. "It's sort of 'look whose doing the firing now.'"

He described the typical workplace killer: "A middle-aged white man... This is a group of people who grew up in era of unprecedented prosperity, thinking a good job was a birthright. They perceive the workplace today as being taken over by blacks, Hispanics, women and immigrants."

This, says Fox, is "a guy who tends to have experienced a series of disappointments. It generally takes more than one event to get to the point when you are that angry."

These killings start out as an act of revenge against the manager or other person who "wronged" the individual, said Fox. But in some cases they want to strike out at the entire company — by shooting innocent workers, not just the boss.

Fox also noted the presence of many former servicemen in the postal service, people who like uniforms, have some feeling of authority and are comfortable with firearms.

Tom Fahey of the American Postal Workers Union says the postal service's problem is "a deadly combination of highly stressful work environment and paramilitary management style, which pushes people to the brink and beyond."

Postmaster General Marvin Runyon said last year that he wanted to eliminate the quasi-military management system of the postal service.

Who would use increased rail service?

Officials want to increase rail passenger service between Orlando and Tampa. Orange and Hillsborough county commissioners are suggesting no less than twelve trips per day rather than the present two.

They believe the increase will help alleviate the vehicular traffic using Interstate-4. We question this.

The DOT has conducted destination studies on the highway, to determine where motorists have come from, and where they are going. When these studies are analyzed, we believe the suggestion for increased train service will prove to be weak.

The largest traffic on I-4 is in the morning and afternoon rush hours. The majority of people are not driving across the state. They are going to and from work.

Others are heading to theme parks and tourist attractions within a half hour's drive from Orlando, or 90 minutes from Tampa. Although train stops will be made at various points, most people still prefer to drive their own vehicles. They want to carry extra clothing, video cameras, suitcases, and other items which would be difficult to manage in a train, and awkward to handle while touring the sights.

Most of the cost for this project will be in the hands of Amtrak. A spokesman has already indicated it would require the purchase of more trains, construction of sidings, improving signals and other needs.

Much of this will also require the spending of money by counties and cities in connection with right-of-way purchases for siding areas, and roadway work which would be required near expanded tracks.

Statistics show about 220,000 passengers got on and off the trains, with their two daily runs, during 1992. Analyzing that however, leads to approximately 300 persons per trip, per day.

Perhaps an additional two trips would be helpful in transporting people between the two points. We do not believe the DOT and Amtrak can cost-justify a dozen trips a day.

Orange and Hillsborough County commissioners are suggesting a pie-in-the-sky approach that would waste taxpayers' dollars for many years ahead of the need.

We urge DOT to use its own studies to determine if the expanded rail transportation would indeed reduce traffic flow on the interstate.

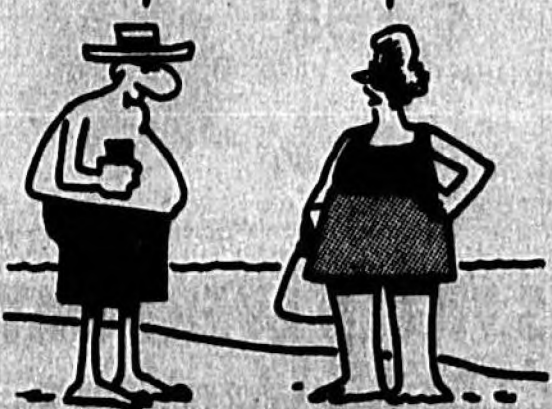

Rapid rail between Tampa, Orlando and Miami is already being discussed by the federal as well as state governments. The project however may be five to ten years away. Spending large amounts of money now is not the way to proceed.

100 days vs. 43 gridlock gremlins

The poetic parallel was too good to resist — a comparison of Clinton's first 100 days, battling Senate Republicans from without and Leon Panetta from within to "The Charge of the Light Brigade."

"Into the jaws of filibuster
Into the mouth of defeat
Rode the president ...
GOP to the right of him
Panetta to the left of him
The media in front of him
Volley'd and thundered.
Stubbornly defending a minor bill
Fighting as if 'twas Bunker Hill
Clinton had blundered."

Franklin D. Roosevelt was just as stubborn. But his "first 100 days" succeeded in establishing a legislative benchmark by which all future presidencies — Democratic and Republican — would be measured.

The parallels between the presidencies of Roosevelt and Clinton are many.

Like Roosevelt, Clinton was swept into office with a powerful mandate — a Democratic president with a Democratic House and a Democratic Senate.

Like Roosevelt, Clinton faced a Republican-caused economic crisis.

But unlike Clinton, Roosevelt did not have to ride into the valley of legislative defeat, hogtied on one side by a group of GOP gridlock gremlins and sandbagged on the other side by a high-level agency head.

If Clinton's grin in your face but stab you in your back budget director, Leon Panetta, is a loyal member of the team, then Bob Dole should be invited to deliver the keynote address at the 1993 Democratic National Convention.

Panetta unapologetically sabotages the president's agenda, and it's "candor." Attorney General Janet Reno stands courageously against a murderous religious fanatic in an attempt to resolve a crisis not of her making, and critics begin muttering sotto voce about her "resignation."

But that's only a small part of the cruel paradox of Bill Clinton's first 100 days. First of all, this youthful, idealistic president did raise democracy to a new representative high by appointing the most interracial, and mixed-gender Cabinet in American history.

The 13th Democratic president did keep faith with his political heritage by getting the Family Leave Act passed and lifting the restriction against any federally funded clinic mentioning abortion.

The youthful Rhodes scholar did stamp his economic imprimatur on his swiftly passed budget and his $500 billion deficit-reduction program.

Clinton did attempt to establish a new national morality of compassion by pushing the military to lift its ban on gays.

Clinton did negotiate the beginning of a new foreign policy with his support of Boris Yeltsin and offer of $1.6 billion in aid.

And he did dare to propose for the first time in presidential history that a comprehensive national health-care plan be enacted.

The parallels between the presidencies of Roosevelt and Clinton are many.

Poverty thriving in rural Appalachia

SNEEDVILLE, Tenn. — A charming cove of mountains nestles this high-altitude community, the only place in Hancock County that qualifies as a town. The sparsely populated county of 6,700 is pushed up north onto the border of Virginia, and out of the minds of most Tennesseans.

Bucolic is a fitting word to describe a town that, until recently, had a banner across Main St. no one had bothered to take down: "First Annual Trash Bash and Fun Fest, September 5."

Depression may be another fitting word for a town whose economic lifeblood is the Hancock County Jail.

With no real industry to speak of besides this jail — whose inmates are imported — keeping it afloat, Hancock County is a portrait of abject poverty in rural America.

Thirty percent of its citizens are on food stamps; 50 percent of the children are living in poverty. It's a county that President Clinton's recently defeated economic stimulus package wouldn't have touched.

The Appalachian Regional Commission, which includes 399 counties from New York to Mississippi in its region, lists 90 of these counties as distressed.

This means unemployment rates of 11 percent or higher, at least one-fifth of the county living at or below the poverty rate and a per capita income only half the national average. Some 2.5 million Americans are living in these 90 distressed Appalachian counties. Hancock County is the eighth poorest.

Interviews with a cross section of county residents evinces a common belief that the federal government does little of lasting value to help them, other than food stamps and welfare, which perpetuate a cycle and culture of dependence.

So sparsely populated is this county that keeping Hancock High School open is a struggle. Next door to the high school is a sprawling jail yard with cyclone fencing topped by razor wire coils — but it's the only reason the high school was able to open at all during the last school year. Since 1988 the Hancock County Jail housed an average of 85 inmates from Washington, D.C. — and got $45 a day for each of them.

Local officials suggest it may have been one of the most secure jails in America. "There (are two) that escaped one time a couple years ago, but they tried to get back to the jail," Sheriff Tony Seal told our associate Dale Van Atta. "They were working their way back to the jail (when they were caught.) They were scared to death. Everybody they saw was white and, of course, had a gun, you know. They were scared they couldn't find their way out of the mountains, so they were working their way back to the jail when we caught them."

Devastating news for the county came earlier this year when the city government of Washington, D.C., failed to renew the contract and pulled its inmates out in buses. It was as if Ford or General Motors had packed up and moved out of Detroit. Now the county is scrambling desperately for revenue, dickering with the state government to house state prisoners for $32 a day instead of the $25 per day it previously offered.

But this is asking for a lot in a county that has an emergency need for one doctor to service them. The Hancock County Hospital closed for lack of funds and medical staff last fall. If a resident is seriously injured, he or she has to be driven in a private car along more than 30 miles of winding mountain road to a hospital in Morristown or Rogersville.

Hancock County is a portrait of abject poverty in rural America.

Presidency off to shaky start

WASHINGTON — Candidate Bill Clinton promised that, if elected, his administration would begin with an unprecedented "explosive 100-day action period." As they might say in the current vernacular: "Not!"

Everyone knows it is unfair to judge an administration by what it is able to accomplish in a little over three months. As that old political hand Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill remarked the other day: "Government works best that works slowest."

But Bill Clinton has only Bill Clinton to blame for raising expectations. In an interview with The New York Times after the California primary, Clinton ticked off a list of things he thought he could get done in his first 100 days: "(an) economic reform package, which includes incentives for private investment, increased public investment and education initiatives. Then I want to try to pass the health-care package with rigorous health-care cost controls and a basic package of affordable health care for all Americans."

By any objective measure, the new administration's accomplishments are paltry, while some of its deficiencies are glaring. One hundred days into its life, hundreds of the administration's key positions remain unfilled; its principal legislative initiative is dead; its relationship with Capitol Hill is in tatters; and the president's approval rating is the lowest ever recorded for a new president so soon after taking office.

Trying to put the best face possible on the situation, the White House has issued a glossy 38-page brochure listing its initial accomplishments. In the foreign policy area there is the $1.5 billion Russian-aid package. On the domestic front is the fact that Congress has approved the $1.5 trillion first budget resolution earlier than ever before, and the passage of the Family Leave Act.

But those "accomplishments" are largely illusory. The Russian money is not "new" money, but had actually been in the pipeline before George Bush left for Texas. The same is true of family leave. It originally passed Congress last year, but was vetoed by Bush.

As for the budget resolution, it is simply a general statement of targets. The real work comes in passing specific appropriations bills. That process is set to start in June, but many on Capitol Hill believe it is going to be so contentious that it might not actually begin until August and may not be done before the new fiscal year starts on Oct. 1.

The budget resolution was passed with no Republican votes, and already some Democrats have come out against key expenditures. Given the way Senate Republicans walked all over the White House on the jobs bill, the same could easily happen on the budget.

This is what is starting to worry many Democrats here: not what the administration has or has not accomplished so far, but that the largely inexperienced White House staff is setting the president up for even greater problems in the future.

"This administration is starting to remind me more and more of the Carter administration," says one senior staffer working for the House Democratic leadership. "It has no discipline, no focus."

It seems unable to set priorities. It wants everything, and wants it now. It is going in a dozen directions at once — campaign reform, welfare reform, national service, budget initiatives, tax changes, gay rights, women in combat, health care — with no coordination and no thought on how one thing might impact on another.

For instance, the House Ways and Means Committee is writing a new tax bill that will include many of the new taxes and increases that the administration wants. As things now stand, Hillary Rodham Clinton's health-care task force is set to unveil its proposals only a few days after the new tax bill will be completed.

"If the health-care package contains a funding mechanism," says a Ways and Means Committee source, "the tax bill will likely come unraveled." "Funding mechanism" is bureaucraticese for a new tax.

There is considerable pressure being applied to the White House from Capitol Hill to delay the introduction of any specific health-care reform package until after the budget "reconciliation" process is completed, lest they become entangled and the budget ends up being held hostage to health care.

Meanwhile, there is considerable counterpressure being applied to the White House by various groups that helped elect the president. They are all demanding that their agendas be placed first.

"Bill Clinton appears to be the type who enjoys policy debate in the abstract a lot more than making tough choices," says a top-level Capitol Hill staffer who has been involved in a number of White House strategy sessions in recent weeks. "But he needs to make a few choices, to set priorities and to start really fighting for his program or else he will become another Jimmy Carter."

He needs to make a few choices, to set priorities and to start really fighting.

Seniors

Commissioner David Meador was the first to comment about the request. "We have previously turned down other groups who want free use of the Community Center," he said. "I don't want to have to decide which group is better. The AARP is certainly a deserving organization, but I honestly cannot speak in favor of granting this two-month free use."

"We have other problems with the old City Hall," Lash responded. "In the first place, there is a room capacity of 75, and that makes us over the code when we gather. There is also only one restroom in the building for close to 100 senior citizens, and hardly enough parking for nearby businesses, much less our group."

Commissioner George Duryea observed, "We don't charge for using the old City Hall because we consider it a people's building. Would we be discriminating against other groups if we allowed an occasional free use of the community building?"

Acting City Attorney Clay Simmons answered, "You can't pick which groups can or cannot use the facility. If you make it available to one, you would have to do it for all."

Commissioner Gary Brender suggested, "Businesses do this, why can't we? This is Senior Citizen month, so why can't we offer the seniors a discount for use of the building?"

"You could do it," Simmons said, "but it could be fraught with peril."

Speaking for the Lake Mary Seniors, vice president Margaret Wealey said, "We will be holding a party soon. If we want to use the Community Center would you grant us an exemption as well?"

Mayor Lowry Rockett said he was concerned that any move to allow the AARP free use of the building for the two months would set a precedent. "I also suggest the city staff review the fees we charge for the buildings so the commission may reexamine them at a future meeting."

Brender made the final motion. "In keeping with Senior Citizens' month," he said, "I move that we grant the AARP free use of the facility for May, but charge the full fee for the June meeting."

Discussion between members of the commission, Lash, Lucas and other AARP members continued for approximately 20 minutes.

When the final vote was taken, Commissioners Duryea and Jore supported the move. Mayor Rockett and Commissioner Meador were against it.

Gangs

sometimes commit criminal acts but the groups are not formed for that purpose.

"The whole idea behind the gang suppression unit is to prevent this type of activity," Esslinger commented. "We haven't found any indications of gang initiations."

The sheriff said he hopes to focus on the preventing or solving the underlying problems which might prompt gang activity by adding a third officer to the DARE program and activating the PAL (Police Athletic League) program.

Circuit Court Judge Leonard Wood, who has presided over juvenile cases during his four and a half years on the bench, acknowledges gang activity exists in Seminole County.

"I think I have been in a rare position for the last 4 1/2 years to be aware of what's happening in this community with youth better than any other one person."

When told some police agencies deny there is organized gang activity in Seminole County, Judge Wood responded, "They don't know what they're talking about."

"There's all kinds of organized gang activity. There are certain enlightened people in law enforcement in this county who are well aware of it and are doing their best to combat the problem. You've got organized Hispanic gangs. You've got organized black gangs. You've got organized Skinhead gangs. You've got organized Arian Nations groups. And some of these groups are being organized by criminal elements from outside the geographical area of Central Florida."

When asked if he meant out of state, Wood replied, "Oh, yes."

"This is not a problem that is isolated by any means to Seminole County. It is all over Central Florida. It's all over other large metropolitan areas of Florida."

He added that Seminole County is changing rapidly with the influx of people from out-of-state and other countries.

"Many (new residents) of whom are bringing a culture with them where the youth feel they have to carry guns and they will use them," Wood said. "This is a much more serious problem and will continue to become a more serious problem in future years than Seminole County has ever been faced with in the past."

Shapiro said some youth who relocated in Central Florida from Miami after Hurricane Andrew have started new gangs. In addition, individuals who were or wanted to be gang members from Los Angeles and Chicago are moving here and organizing gangs.

"The problem has been created," Wood said, "because through mass advertising and image creation caused by Disney World and all the other attractions of Central Florida, people around the world and from other parts of this country think this is some great paradise to relocate in and live."

"You'd be amazed how many young juvenile offenders, criminal offenders I see, upon court inquiry, I find out they come here to relocate from other countries, without either parent living with them. They have been sent here to live with relatives and they don't have proper adult supervision. Many times, new families locating here, only the mother is with them. The father stayed in another country to continue working. The mother is working two or sometimes three jobs and does not have the ability to provide supervision for the youth."

Homan, a resident of Lake Mary, works in the DeLand DOT office, and is a regular I-4 user who has a first-hand knowledge of the traffic problems. He is presently in a Tallahassee DOT conference, discussing various traffic matters. "We will be considering President Clinton's suggestion for the triangle high-speed rail route from Tampa to Orlando and Miami," he said. "If we go into that, no doubt the route between Tampa and Orlando would have first consideration."

"But that's high speed rail," he said. "What they are looking into now is regular passenger service."

The plan being suggested by the two counties is to increase the current run of two daily Amtrak trains between the two cities to about a dozen. Amtrak likes the idea, but someone will have to pay the tab.

Nick Scirianni, Florida's assistant secretary for public transportation, said he would study the idea. But he said he would support the plan only if the study shows good potential ridership between the two cities.

"What I have a problem with doing is putting a service out there that the numbers show isn't going to be successful," he said.

Amtrak "would love to do more business in Florida," said spokesman Howard Robertson. But he said it might be costly and take five or six years.

Increased service would require buying more trains, building sidings so trains can pass on a single track and improving signals, he said. And the railway lines are owned by CSX railroad, which would increase its charges to Amtrak to run more passenger trains.

Thirteen million drivers jammed Interstate-4 last year. "Anything we can do to reduce the traffic is worth serious consideration," Homan said. "For example, we expect when the beltway is finally completed and in operation to I-4 near Sanford, it would reduce the I-4 traffic by no less than 15 percent."

Homan said the percent might seem low. "But when we are talking about this large a flow of vehicles, we are really looking at a large reduction in numbers."

Proponents of the high-speed train believe it could take 2 million vehicles off the road, reducing pollution and increasing safety.

But a 190 mph, billion-dollar supertrain could be two decades in the future. So some are looking for a cheaper, more realistic solution now.

Chairman Ed Turandok of the Hillsborough County Commission said the high-tech trains eventually will be needed but Central Floridians want a solution before that.

He has asked the DOT to study how much it would cost to improve Amtrak service and how many people would use trains.

On Tuesday, the Orange County Commission voted unanimously to join the request.

Commissioner Bill Donegan said Amtrak could use new higher-speed equipment that would make Tampa-to-Orlando trips faster than driving or flying.

"What we want to know is, can we do it, how much would it cost, and when can we do it," Donegan said.

The current railroad service takes about two hours and the fare is $17 one way and $24 round trip. About 220,000 passengers got on and off the trains in Tampa and Orlando last year.

Thank God

There is no aromatic essence quite like that powdered, musky scent of an infant held close to its mother's breast. There is no emotion comparable to that of a new mother as she marvels at miniature perfection, and is entranced by shining, innocent eyes, sideways grins and tiny toes. If there is imperfection, her love is constant still, for this is her child.

To quote the contemporary writer Earl Riney, "The mother love is like God's love; He loves us not [necessarily] because we are lovable, but because it is His nature to love, and because we are His children."

Mothers never cease to be mothers, but babies do grow up... and confused. A warm bottle is no longer the answer. God is the answer. Thank God for mothers. Mothers, thank God.

St. Clare opens new facility

A long wait is over for St. Clare Catholic Community in Deltona.

"For more than three years, members have improvised in the celebration of Mass and other services and programs in a number of locations," according to Father Timothy Kandel, pastor. "All of these events are now taking place in Clare Hall."

The ground was broken in March of 1992 for Clare Hall. Masses were recently held marking the opening of the 10,667 square foot multi-purpose facility.

Clare Hall provides seating for 475 persons for liturgies and it has space for the parish office staff and meeting rooms for education and other ministries of the community.

The community's first liturgy was celebrated Feb. 4, 1990, at a clearing made by the original parishioners at the Day Road site.

St. Clare has grown from its original registration of 155 families to more than 455 families today.

Make a joyful noise unto the Lord

Church bells chimed throughout the community at noon Thursday to signify the Annual National Day of Prayer celebration. Bill Fox of First Presbyterian Church, Sanford, weighted the chair of the church's bell to announce the occasion. Congregations nationwide gathered at their places of worship to pray for the cessation of racial unrest, rioting and to pray for the victims of earthquakes, hurricanes and other disasters that have wreaked havoc on the nation.

Ordination of Southern Baptist women up

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Although current Southern Baptist leadership doesn't like it, swiftly swelling numbers of women have been ordained in that largest Protestant denomination.

The upsurge in women ministers has come even as the denomination and its officers have stiffened their front against such ordinations.

"Sometimes, opposition strengthens positions," said sociologist Sarah Frances Anders of Louisiana College in Pineville, La.

Under Baptist policy, local congregations do the ordaining and are autonomous, free to make their own decisions about it. They've increasingly conferred clergy status on women despite upper-level objections.

Ms. Anders, who keeps tabs on the phenomenon, said the growth rate of women ministers has been faster than in any other major denomination, most of which now authorize women's ordination.

There now are about 900 Southern Baptist women clergy, compared with 75 in 1978. That's when a campaign started that has put biblical fundamentalists in control of the denomination.

"Women are not seeking ordination simply to be defiant," said Amanda Hiley of Louisville, Ky., administrator of Southern Baptist Women in Ministry.

"They pay a heavy price for ordination, the personal ridicule they have to put up with," she added in an interview. "They have to be very serious about their call to the ministry in this environment to accept ordination."

"It wouldn't work if the goal was just to be defiant."

However, she said there was some "backlash" to a resolution adopted by the denomination's 1984 convention, saying Scripture "excludes women from pastoral leadership."

This rule, the convention said, is to "preserve a submission that God requires because man was first in creation and woman was first in the Edenic fall," blaming women for initiating original sin in the Garden of Eden.

Women are "not to assume the role of authority over men lest confusion reign in the local church," the convention said. Since then, the number of ordinations by local congregations has tripled.

"It was a watershed," Ms. Hiley said. "It influenced local churches to choose where they stood, either accepting it or not. It generated a radical increase in the rate of ordinations."

A new survey indicates that 80 percent of women clergy have advanced graduate degrees, far surpassing the average educational level of male Southern Baptist pastors, for whom no educational requirements are set.

Comparatively, ordained women "are very, very highly prepared, educated and skilled," Ms. Hiley said. "But they don't get the same opportunities in job

Taste of Lake Mary a delight to all senses

By SARABECCA ROSIER
Herald Correspondent

LAKE MARY — Earlier this week Timacuan Golf and Country Club was the site of the fourth annual lip-smacking, belt-loosening, delectable Taste of Lake Mary.

Many of the 1,300 followers of the Taste said they were pleasantly surprised by some changes this year. To eliminate crowded lines, the Taste team — Diane Parker, executive director; John Siegel and Ginger Black, events chairman arranged a different set up for the participating restaurants. Employing a new tent area and using the upstairs, downstairs and patio areas, the grounds were also used for setting up taste areas and the entire event was spread out. People strolled and stopped for tasty morsels without having to wait long in any line.

"The crowds are so much more dispersed this year and the food was easier to get at," guest Marjorie Dale said.

Mary Scuito said she had to "twist Al's (her husband) arm to come this year because of the former crowds, but now we are both so pleasantly surprised at the layout and the easy accessibility to the table, that we are both looking forward to attending again next year."

Many former patrons could be heard discussing the "ease of getting around," "the lack of overcrowded lines," "the ability to leisurely walk around," "the uncrowded feeling."

About the same amount of people attended this year as last year, but the magic was in the new arrangement.

Restaurants participating were: Amigos, Austek Cakes, Black-Eyed Pea, Boston Lobster Feast, Carvel, Chili's, Christo's, Doro's Restaurant, El Amandro, Ethnic Eatery, Fat Tuesdays, Galleria, Gingerbread Catering, Kenny Rogers Roasters, Olive Garden, Orient IV, Others Restaurant, Outback Steakhouse, Red, Hot & Blue, Ruth's Chris Steak House, Timacuan Golf & Country Club, Two Chefs Catering, Goodings, RC Bottling Company, Bob Evans. There were complimentary soda bars and cash — beer/wine bars. On the upper level, entertainment was

The Sperting family, Michael, Andrea and children Mark and Adam.

Shaq is Rookie of Year

ORLANDO — Orlando Magic center Shaquille O'Neal took in stride the honor of being named NBA Rookie of the Year.

"I was just doing what I was supposed to do," O'Neal said Thursday. "At 7-1, 303, you're supposed to go out there, dunk, rebound and battle. I was just doing my job."

O'Neal received 96 of a possible 98 votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters who regularly cover the NBA — three from each league city and 17 representing the national media.

Center Alonzo Mourning of the Charlotte Hornets received the other two votes.

O'Neal averaged 23.4 points, 13.9 rebounds and 3.53 blocked shots per game and shot .562 from the field, leading all rookies in each of those categories. He was second in the league in rebounding and shot blocking, fourth in shooting percentage and eighth in scoring.

Tribe boys qualify 11 in seven events, two relays

From Staff Reports

TITUSVILLE — Almost everything went according to plan for the Seminole High School boys' track team in the 3A-Region II meet Thursday at Titusville Astronaut High School.

Seminole qualified eight individuals in seven events for the Class 3A state meet next Friday in Gainesville as well as both relays on the way to winning the team title with 85 points, well ahead of runner-up Astronaut (45).

The Seminole girls also won the regional title, but no individual results were reported.

The only glitch in the evening was Andre Scott's hamstring, which he injured on his long jump-winning effort of 23 feet, 5 inches. Scott took it easy in the triple jump, his primary event, and still won with a leap of 48 feet, 9 inches, but did not run in the 4 x 110-yard relay as planned.

"We'll have to see how bad it is," said Seminole coach Ken Brauman. "It's not the same 410 relay without Andre, but we don't think he'll be able to run it at the state meet next week."

Bernard Sparrow won both the discus with a throw of 163 feet, 2 inches, and the shot put with an effort of 59 feet, 9 inches. Gerard Shine qualified for the state meet in the shot put, finishing third at 47 feet, 10 inches.

Cory Wilson won the 100 meter dash in 10.6 seconds while Brent Deese finished first in the 220-yard dash with a time of 22.3 seconds. The pair joined with Ansel Davis and Derek Swain to win the 4 x 110-yard relay in 42.6 seconds.

Deese, Terrance Jones, Gary Rowe, and Kamili

Hitchmon combined to win the 4 x 440-yard relay in 3:22.4. Rowe and Hitchmon also finished second and third, respectively, in the 440-yard dash at 50.2 seconds and 50.3 seconds.

Bryant Moore was second in the 220-yard dash in 22.5 seconds.

"It's pretty much everybody we thought would qualify," said Brauman. "We thought Tyrone Williams might qualify in the triple jump and that Bryant was on the bubble in the 220-yard dash, but Bryant qualified and Tyrone didn't, so it's kind of a tradeoff."

Williams did contribute to the Tribe victory, finishing fifth in the triple jump with a leap of 44 feet, 10 inches. Shine also placed sixth in the discus with a throw of 133 feet. Terrance Jones came in fifth in 330-yard intermediate hurdles.

Brantley gets most from little

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Writer

ORLANDO — Sometimes things just go your way.

Top-seeded Lake Brantley took advantage of three infield hits and a scoring eye, double to score five runs in the third inning, then got excellent relief pitching to hold off Lyman 4-1 in the semifinals of the Class 4A District 9 Tournament at the University of Central Florida Baseball Complex Thursday night.

The Patriots (2-0) will play Spruce Creek (2-1) in the 8 p.m. final at UCF tonight. Spruce Creek advanced with a 7-3 victory over Lake Mary on Thursday.

Matt Wood led off the third with a single to left and went to second on a bunt single by Wes Iler. After Joey Harmer laid down a sacrifice bunt, Jason Jailer dribbled one off the plate down the third base line for a single to load the bases.

Lake Brantley scored a run on the play, however, as Lyman threw to second and got Iler in a run down. During the play, Wood raced for home ahead of the throw and Iler and Jailer ended up on second and third. Iler walked to load the bases, and Mike Lyons was brought in to pitch for the Braves.

Randy Stegall hit a high hopper off the plate and beat the throw to first, scoring Iler, and Frank Harmer hit a potential double play ball that took a bad hop off the Lyman second baseman's chest, scoring Jailer. Brent Watzcho was walked off to load the bases and Eddie Doyle hit a ball right over the first base bag to score Butler and Stegall.

"We'll take all of those hits off the plate," said Lake Brantley head coach Mike Smith. "This time of year, you take what you can get. I've heard there have been a couple of upsets already (No. 1 state-ranked Sarasota and No. 4 ranked Coconut Creek)."

Seminole gains 3A-5 title game

From Staff Reports

LEESBURG — It's rematch time.

For the second consecutive year, Seminole High School and Leesburg will meet in the title game of the Class 3A District 5 baseball tournament.

The two rivals advanced to the finals with victories on Pat Thomas Field at Venetian Gardens Thursday night. The defending champion Tribe got a big night from Scott Ferguson to knock off New Smyrna Beach 8-3 before Leesburg held off upset-minded Cypress Creek 4-2.

The championship game is set for a 7 p.m. start at Pat Thomas Field tonight.

Robbie Morgan tossed a four hitter, struck out six and walked only one as he improved his personal record to 8-3 for Seminole, which won its 22nd game of the season against just eight losses.

Offensively, the Tribe got off to a quick start, scoring a pair of runs in the first inning. But they wouldn't score again until the fourth inning.

Seminole scored a run in the fourth to lead 3-0, but Dan Stutzman ruined the shutout bid with a solo home run for the Barracudas in the top of the fifth inning. The Tribe scored a pair of runs in the bottom of the fifth and New Smyrna scored two in the top of the sixth. Seminole then put the game out of reach with three in the bottom of the sixth.

Ferguson carried the big bat for the Tribe, going 2-for-3 with a triple, a double, two RBI, and two runs scored. Leadoff hitter David Eckstein scored twice while Matt Diemer was 2-for-2 with two runs and an RBI.

Also contributing offensively for Seminole were Phillip King (triple), Cory Goehce (single, run, RBI), Matt Freeman and Jeremy Chumal (one single and one RBI each) and John Lagering (single, run).

Lake Mary falls short against Creek

From Staff Reports

ORLANDO — Untimely errors and a lack of timely hitting spelled the end of the Lake Mary High School baseball season Thursday night at the University of Central Florida baseball complex.

Playing in the semifinals of the 4A-District 9 tournament, the Rams squandered a bases-loaded, no-out situation in the top of the seventh inning in a 7-5 loss to the Spruce Creek Hawks.

Lake Mary, seeded No. 3 in the nine-team draw, ends its season 20-8. Spruce Creek, seeded No. 2, improves to 21-8 heading into this evening's 8 p.m. championship game against top-seeded Lake Brantley.

Lake Mary took a 2-0 lead in the top of the first. Mike Werner walked before Jason Rasmussen doubled to right. Scott Johnston then singled to score Werner and Bryan Schumaker hit a sacrifice fly to score Rasmussen.

The lead was short-lived as the Hawks chased Lake Mary starting pitcher Ben Rovito (6-2) with four runs in one-third of an inning.

After Keith Mastro singled and Tim Branz walked to lead off the home half of the first inning, David Sipos reached on an error to load the bases. Jared Mathis then singled to left to score Mastro.

On a pick-off attempt at first base, Rovito threw the ball away, allowing Branz and Sipos to score and Mathis to go to third. David Lynch followed with a sacrifice fly to score Mathis.

After giving up a walk to Tom Kuempel, Rovito was lifted in favor of Mike Carr.

Carr pitched 5 1/3 innings, allowing three runs (one earned) on two hits in the bottom of the third.

Mathis led off the third with a single. Lynch then hit a ball that was kicked by the shortstop, allowing Mathis to go to third and Lynch to take second. Kuempel then drove both home with a double, taking third on the throw to the plate. Kuempel later scored on a ground ball to third.

Lake Mary got a run back in the fourth inning when Jim Razurri, who reached on a fielder's choice, scored on a two-out single by Werner.

In the fifth, the Rams closed to 7-4 when Johnston led off with a single, moved to second on Schumaker's single, took third on a fielder's choice and scored when the second baseman threw the ball away.

The Rams made it 7-5 in the sixth when Werner reached on a two-out error, stole second, and scored on Raasmussen's single.

Lake Mary loaded the bases in the seventh when Schumaker and Dan Storey led off with consecutive singles and Chad Kesler reached on an error. But Mathis struck out the next two Lake Mary hitters on called third strikes and got the game-ending out on a pop up to the shortstop.

Raasmussen led the Lake Mary attack with a double, single, one run, and an RBI. Werner chipped in with two singles, two runs, one RBI, and three stolen bases. Johnston added two singles, one run, one RBI, and a stolen base. Schumaker contributed two singles and one RBI.

After being held to only one hit through four innings, the Greyhounds got to a tiring Sean Goldstein (5-0) in the fifth. After a strike out, four consecutive walks scored T.J. Dixon and Chris Tibbitts was brought in to pitch. Kevin Stuckey lined a shot into the right-center field gap for a double to score Mike Krupa and Chad Siemer.

Chad Beland was intentionally passed to load the bases, but Tibbitts bore down to get a strike out and a weak grounder to first to end the threat.

Lyman threatened again in the sixth inning as a walk and a single by Dixon chased Tibbitts. Mitch Schardt came on to get a strike out, but Siemer singled to right to score Kyle Gaines and Dixon went to third. But Schardt avoided further damage by getting a strike out and a pop up to the mound.

Brett Black struck out all three men he faced in the seventh inning to close out the game and earn his third save of the season.

Lyons was also impressive in relief, allowing only one run on two hits over the final three and 3 1/2 innings.

"It was a different game after Lyons came in and Goldstein ran out of gas," said Smith. "Lyons just shut the door on us. But we got good relief pitching from Tibbitts and Schardt and excellent relief from Black."

Doing the damage for Lake Brantley were Jallett and Wood (both 2-for-3, one run), Doyle (double, two RBI), Stegall (single, run, RBI), Frank Harmer (single, RBI), Iller (single, run) and Butler (run).

Providing the offense for Lyman (14-15) were Stuckey (double, two RBI), Siemer (single, run, RBI), Dixon (single, run), Jason Shipley (single), Ted Koller (RBI) and Gaines and Krupa (one run each).

Stress and personality type

Author considers Type B personality a natural gift

The ability to cope with stress has a lot to do with our chemistry. The Type A personality has been well documented. Studies of heart attack victims — mostly men — have found a high correlation with people who are driving themselves toward achievement on the job. These people tend to be extremely focused on the task at hand, dedicated, single-minded, and almost obsessively devoted to success.

The Type B personality is much less self-conscious, likes to relax and is less strongly affected by failure or setbacks. Type B people tend to not over-schedule themselves and it is easier for them to give and receive affection and compliments.

Dr. Georgia Wilkin-Lanoff, the author of "The Male Stress Syndrome and the Female Stress Syndrome," considers a Type B personality "a gift" some people are born with. If you are not born with this personality, she advises you to "Make your physical and mental health a priority. Take care of yourself the way you would like to be taken care of. Don't let yourself become a martyr." Get to know yourself as you really are. Describe yourself. Make a list, adding one item each day. If you say you are competitive, for example, try to notice what situation triggers your competitiveness and ask yourself whether these reactions are useful. Modify my behaviors that are not useful.

Also, "Re-examine your sense of time urgency. If you have 'hurry sickness' and feel your rushing around has become counterproductive, determine why it is true. Practice being a Type B." Do one thing at a time. Walk and eat more slowly. Listen to yourself. Do you talk too fast? Finish other people's sentences? This behavior can be corrected. Look at yourself in the mirror. Do you look stressed, annoyed or fatigued? Practice smiling or laughing. Think of something pleasant or funny that happened.

Sit back and think about your values, your beliefs and your ideas about what's important in life.

Also, "Control stress. Don't let it control you. A number of studies have found out what kind of people cope well with stress and others who are not effective stress managers. From this research, these tips emerge:

- Look at your expectations and ask if they are realistic.
- Identify the problems you face.
- Brainstorm a number of solutions for each problem.
- Evaluate what would work and what wouldn't work about each solution and choose one solution.
- Work to get some balance in your life.
- Do some things just for fun.

This all sounds real easy and I know from personal experience that it is not. However, it is worth your health and well-being to keep this advice in mind!

Teen-ager sick of adults using scare tactics

DEAR MARY: I'm so sick of adults trying to scare kids to death, telling us what will happen if we do something to have a little fun. I'm 14 years old and I feel like I'm smart enough to figure a way to get out of a sticky situation if things get out of hand. In the meantime, I like a little excitement now and then and I don't care what people who are so old and out of touch they wouldn't know how to have fun if it fell on them. I have to say

AT LEAST I'M HONEST

DEAR LEAST: Risk taking is an essential part of healthy living. The problem for kids is determining acceptable risks and avoiding unacceptable ones. One of the best ways to do that is to surround yourself with people who seem to be having fun and enjoying themselves, while still living healthy, lawful lives.

No kid has ever said to himself, "When I grow up I want to be homeless and hungry, standing on the side of the road, holding a sign telling passersby that I will work for food."

People in jail or prison never planned to be there. In almost every case, the choices and decisions that prompted these consequences were made because the people involved thought what they were doing would be fun, exciting or would get them high. The reality is that what starts out as fun can get out of hand and lead to loss of freedom or worse, loss of life.

Part of both the joy and the burden of growing up is that we become responsible for our choices and their consequences. It's important that you get smart to the reality that if you insist on taking unacceptable risks, you'd better be prepared to accept the consequences, which will undoubtedly be equally unacceptable.

Popular father is never visited in nursing home

DEAR ABBY: Five months ago, we placed my father in a very nice nursing home. My father, who was greatly loved by his nieces, nephews, brothers and sisters-in-law, as well as many, many friends, has not had one visit from any of these people. Can it be that we are supposed to "invite" them to visit him? They all know he's there.

When I visit my father, I stop in to say "hello" to other elderly folks on his floor. They are so grateful for company. I have trouble getting away.

Abby, the plight of our elderly who are living out their lives feeling unwanted, unloved and abandoned just breaks my heart. Please tell your readers who have someone in a nursing facility to visit them as often as possible. It takes time and energy, but the rewards for them — as well as for you — will be gratifying.

SAD IN STUDIO CITY

DEAR ABBY: Your letter is well worth space in this column. By all means, issue an invitation to friends and relatives that a visit would be welcomed — also, cards, letters and telephone calls. I hope your letter motivates the many well-intentioned procrastinators to visit family members and friends — soon. It's later than you think.

DEAR ABBY: After reading about how Mrs. Dow's name was constantly mispronounced, I was reminded of my own situation. I came to Canada from Holland in 1954 as an adult. I had to learn English. The words with "ow" were a headache to figure out how to pronounce. Examples:

1. The words power mower: what would we get if mower were pronounced like power sounds?

2. When introduced at a meeting, a person takes a bow; but a gift looks pretty when decorated with a bow.

3. We know: the wind does blow, you can go with the flow, or lay low.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Tired? Just go slow. A baby will grow. When happy, you glow. Someone conceited will grow. A car stuck in the snow needs a tow.

A person who's angry needs things to throw. Another name for a movie is a show.

There are many more, but enough for this row.

4. A farmer uses a plow, milks a cow, perhaps owns a sow.

How they sound like the name Dow.

Wow!!! I had better stop now!

Old-fashioned diet eliminates sugar

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was shocked at your answer to address the abuse of diet pills. You suggested a weight-reduction diet with no sugar or starches. This would eliminate all fruits, vegetables, breads, pasta, grains and cereals... actually leaving only meat and meat byproducts. I think the real answer is to lower fat and increase starches or carbohydrates... that would be the opposite of your suggestion. Can you comment further?

DEAR READER: Whoa! My diet is easy because it's simple -- and it works. Avoid foods made with sugar (table sugar, corn syrup and the like) or flour (pasta, bread and baked goods). That leaves you meat, fish, poultry, salads, vegetables, and fresh fruits -- in moderation; in other words, a high-protein, high-fiber, low-carbohydrate diet.

By avoiding starches, you'll cut down concomitantly on fats.

DEAR DR. GOTT: How often must high blood pressure be monitored?

DEAR READER: It depends on how high your pressure is, the level of control, your general health, and the medicine you are taking.

Mild hypertension (in the 160/90 range) in an otherwise healthy adult could be monitored yearly. On the other hand, blood pressure that is difficult to control in an elderly person with known heart strain should be checked every couple of months.

In my practice, once the hypertension is controlled (and the patient is having no difficulty with the medicine), I check the blood pressure about four times a year, then reduce to three. I try to monitor my stable hypertensives twice a year.

If a patient comes in for an unrelated problem, however, I'll record the blood pressure anyway just to be on the safe side.

I've also had success with patients who monitor their blood pressures at home. You should heed your own doctor's directions with respect to follow-up visits.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

In "Hamlet," Shakespeare recommends repenting what is past so as to avoid what is to come. The snag, it seems to me, is that you will never know what future you have avoided.

In certain bridge hands, though, you can foresee the future. And with careful planning you can divert apparent defeat into actual success.

In today's deal, West leads the spade two. How would you plan the play?

South, not being an exponent of the negative double, plunged straight into three no-trump. West led his lowest spade. (It is correct to lead low from three low cards in partner's suit when you have not supported. If you have supported, you are known to have length, so you should lead your highest from a low tripleton.)

Declarer immediately played three rounds of diamonds; East returned a spade. Declarer crossed to dummy with a club and cashed his diamonds. But when he led a heart, East shot in with the ace and took three spade tricks to defeat the game.

"Why didn't you count your tricks?" asked North. "You have six top tricks. The diamonds can provide at best two more. You have to collect a heart trick."

"But if I lead a heart to the king, I still go down. They weren't 3-3, you know."

"Yes, I know," replied North. "But from the bidding you expect East to hold the heart ace. At trick two, cross to dummy and lead a low heart. If East ducks, win with the queen and concede a diamond. If East wins with the ace, you have nine tricks: two spades, three hearts, two diamonds and two clubs."

Watch out for the avoidance play.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
 May 8, 1993

Materially speaking, the year ahead could be a much better one for you than the past 12 months have been. Gain is indicated, but it might not come about in the ways you think.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have luck working for you today if you adhere to the standards you believe to be correct and proper. Hold to these even under very trying circumstances. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Taurus' Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An idea you've been toying with appears to have real potential, and it looks like it can be expanded into something worthwhile. Sound it out today on someone you trust.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There is justification for feeling lucky today in your commercial affairs. In fact, something you've recently done that was successful can be duplicated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Others might be only lukewarm to the suggestions you voice today concerning a mutual enterprise. However, they could become very supportive if you demonstrate by example.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You might be lucky today through things that others do for you. Leave the door open for people who want to help you; you could be pleasantly surprised.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're still in an excellent position for reaping substantial rewards from ventures or endeavors you personally direct or manage. Focus on this area.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Timing is your most valuable ally today in helping you to achieve two important objectives. Be patient, and don't make your moves until you sense it's the right time to go.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A close friend might be instrumental today in helping you get something you've wanted. Once you know how it's done, it will be easy to repeat.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you are materially motivated today, this will enhance your chances for fulfilling your ambitious intentions. You have to really want whatever you are going after.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Partnership arrangements for non-commercial purposes can work out remarkably well for you today. Alliances established to make a profit could be non-productive.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Sometimes people have to take a chance in order to better their position where business is concerned. A well-planned calculated risk might work out.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Someone you recently met who is very enterprising and bold might begin to play a more significant role in your life from this day on. It could start with the pursuit of a mutual interest. (C)1993, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
