

Pantages Had Plane Waiting To Fly Him To Mexico, Is Charge

Prosecuting Attorney Makes Sensational Disclosure About Convicted Showman

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 1.—(INS)—Alexander Pantages, convicted of an attack upon 17-year-old Eunice Pringle, was accused today by Prosecutor Burton Fitts of having chartered an airplane to rush him out of the country into Mexican territory.

Pantages was scheduled to appear today before Superior Judge Fricks for sentencing to San Quentin penitentiary for a term of one to 60 years. "We know that Alexander Pantages had an airplane ready and waiting in San Diego to take him across the border out of the United States and beyond our reach. That is why he was placed under guard from the moment the jury took his case last week," was the sensational charge made by Fitts.

In making the charge, Fitts declared it would be the main reason for his opposition to any attempt to free the millionaire showman on bail pending appeal for a new trial.

"Pantages will stay in the county jail if I have anything to say, after what my investigators discovered," the district attorney declared.

C. W. Smith Reveals Details Of Wreck In Which Sons Died

Hoke Smith 23, of Clinton, N. C., and Perry Smith 28, of Ft. Valley, Ga., sons of C. W. Smith, resident of this city for the past 10 years and jeweler on North Park Avenue, were killed in an automobile wreck which occurred 1 1/2 miles south of Griffin, Ga., Tuesday. It was learned today from Mr. Smith who was just returned from Ft. Valley, Ga.

According to Mr. Smith, the two boys and a friend, who was a cripple, were driving from Ft. Valley to North Carolina. They were driving up a hill at a high rate of speed when the driver attempted to pass another car which immediately increased its speed. Another car came upon the scene from the opposite direction. Young Smith, trying to miss both vehicles, drove his car off the road into a telephone post, knocking it down. The car then hit an oak tree with such force that it threw all occupants to the ground. The cripple's friend, whose name was not given, was thrown clear of the wreckage, but the two Smith boys were badly hurt. They were rushed to a hospital in Griffin, where they died within a few hours.

Besides the father, the deceased are survived by their mother, Mrs. C. W. Smith and a brother, Launney, also of Ft. Valley, Georgia.

TARIFF ISSUE IS BOILING POT OF CONTENTION

Strange Political Mix-up Exists As Result Of Hoover's Demand For Enactment Soon

By George H. Tolmes International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(INS)—Not in many years of blue tarring, alliance making, and factional coalescing in Congress has Washington witnessed such a strange political mix-up as existed in the Senate today over President Hoover's demand that the tariff bill be enacted within two weeks.

The regular, Republicans are split, the Democrats are split, and the coalition of Democrats and insurgent Republicans, which has demonstrated its ability to control at every step in this tariff-making, has been rent asunder by Mr. Hoover's sudden intervention in the tariff war.

Such Republican high-protection stalwarts as Senator Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, and Smoot (R) of Utah, are at odds on whether the tariff bill should be abandoned as an inconvertible child, or an attempt made to nurse it to enactment under conditions wholly unacceptable to the industrial East.

Such consistent dissenters as Senators Borah (R) of Idaho, Johnson (R) of California, and Norris (R) of Nebraska, differ on Mr. Hoover's demand, the Idahoan insisting that it can be met, and the Californian professing to disbelieve that the President could have made such an "inconvertible" request.

MACDONALD RETURNS HOME ANXIOUS TO WIDEN SCOPE OF PEACE EFFORTS

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Nov. 1.—(INS)—Happy in the conviction that his mission to the United States had proven successful, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald returned to England today anxious to widen the scope of his efforts for world peace.

Because of his desire to return to London as soon as possible to attend the sessions of the recently convened Parliament there, the prime minister boarded a special train for the capital at 8:45 A. M., exactly a half an hour after leaving the gantry of the liner Duchess of York.

He was accorded a tremendous popular reception as he waded from the pier to the train with his daughter, Isabel on his arm. A huge throng had gathered hours before when the liner dove into the harbor, to greet the famous "apostle of peace."

Instead of a lengthy civic reception, an informal welcome, restricted to officials and representatives of the press, was held aboard the liner between the time it docked at 7:15 A. M. and the premier left it an hour later.

Sanford Resident Thirty Years Ago Sees Numerous Changes In City Since Then

Sanford was a thriving little city of 3500 people more than 30 years ago, but there were no large celery farms, railroads, paved streets, picture shows, or radio here according to a gentleman stopping temporarily at the Hotel Montezuma who many years ago knew Sanford as his home.

R. Derby, former resident of this city now residing in Buckner, Missouri, today revealed in an interview with a Herald reporter, some interesting facts concerning the past of this city, called the Sanford Land Grant at that early time.

Mr. Derby stated that he came here as a boy from Pennsylvania with his parents, during the period of his boyhood he attended school at the little school house, which is now known as the East Side Primary, the only place of learning in the community at that time.

The scenes of his boyhood are changed considerably, the pioneer settlement now there were no railroads here then. The nearest one was at Palatka Transportation was carried on by way of the St. John's River, on which there were two steamship lines, one the Clyde Line and the other the Derby Line.

Mr. Clarke, further stated in his letter, that he hoped all radio dealers would cooperate in any way possible so that every town would be able to hear the game returns.

Mr. Derby stated that he came here as a boy from Pennsylvania with his parents, during the period of his boyhood he attended school at the little school house, which is now known as the East Side Primary, the only place of learning in the community at that time.

LOBBY QUIZ GETS GOING TO SNAPPY TAKEOFF TODAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(INS)—The Senate's investigation into lobbying activities in the Capitol got off to a snappy start today when Senator Cawley (D) of Arkansas, the chairman, introduced some private correspondence he passed between prospective lobbyists, and which proved embarrassing to at least one lobbyist, Arnold, Washington representative of the Southern Tarriff Association.

Prisoner Refuses To Divulge Person Who Had Placed Order

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(INS)—Senators may find it as prohibitive enforcement and problem their drudgery to the high dome of the Capitol, but another lobbyist was in the hot seat today. He was discovered making inquiries in the Senate office building, while all senators have their offices and a later search of his apartment by the revealed 284 copies of very "passable" waxes, "Carstairs," "Perfection Society," "Ogden White," "Metcalf," and "Metcalf White."

The prisoner proved so obstinate in the police, that the Senate office building, for that matter, George L. Cassidy was the man given.

Several years ago he achieved something like national prominence by depicting a brief case on the marble floor of the same building. The brief case broke and started to leak and Cassidy, then known as "the man in the green hat," also broke and ran. He was later arrested.

Possibility Of Former Cabinet Member Serving Time Is Slight As Health Is Poor

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(INS)—Albert R. Fall, ex-secretary of the interior, was sentenced today to a year in prison and fined $100,000 for accepting from E. L. Doherty $100,000 after he had leased the California oil baron the Elk Hills naval reserve. The jury that tried the ex-cabinet officer said it was a bribe.

The prison sentence, however, was somewhat of the synthetic variety. Justice William Hitz announced from the bench that if Fall were compelled to go to prison at the time he would have suspended that part of it.

Known as "Fall's" attorneys are planning to appeal the sentence to the supreme court, which automatically acts as a stay, and in view of Fall's pitiable physical condition, the court decided to take on the prison sentence, even though it probably never will be served.

Fall will stand in the record against him, however, for all time—the first person "sentenced" ever pronounced upon a cabinet officer for commission of a felony.

The fine was on a one-third of the amount which the court could have assessed. The judge specified that the fine would have been three times the amount of the bribe, had the court assessed the amount of the bribe, $100,000.

Justice Hitz, in passing judgment, called attention to the fact that the maximum penalty provided in the statute is three years in prison and a fine three times the amount of the bribe. He said: "If this case had some other outcome, my sentence would require the maximum penalty. It is not, however, what I am for, and what the jury recommended, and the fact the jury recommended a fine three times the amount of the bribe, I am going to impose. Mr. Fall is one year in prison and fine $100,000."

Army-Navy Breach Widened Following Reconciliation Move

Efforts To Bring Together Two Service Teams Have Failed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—(INS)—The Army and the Navy have not yet found a common ground on the olive branch—apparently found it bitter to the taste. Thus the football breach between the two services opened two years ago widened perceptibly today. The situation is now such that it will take some real diplomatic work to get them together—if ever.

Efforts of the highest officials of the government to bring together the football teams of the two academies, have resulted in complete failure.

Statements from the secretary of war, secretary of the navy, Major General W. R. Smith, superintendent of West Point, all disclosed that the accident which occurred last year to the contents of the Navy broke the football relations with the Army. At that time the Navy refused to play Army unless it followed Navy's lead in adopting the three-year eligibility rule of collegiate football. Army staunchly maintained no such rules were necessary for service institutions, and refused to change its football rules.

And that stand, taken so determinedly two years ago, was less firmly adhered to in the statement of General Smith before he left for the West last week after unsuccessful conferences with Rear Admiral S. S. Robinson, superintendent of the Naval Academy. Another statement, issued by Secretary of War Good, supported Smith in opposition to Navy's assertions the Army should give in to demand for adoption of the collegiate football rule.

General Smith contended the football personnel of the two academies was so equal as to eliminate the necessity of any eligibility rules. "There is no reason why every cadet in his studies should not be permitted to participate in varsity athletics if his ability warrants," Smith said in explaining his refusal to adopt eligibility rules. "West Point has never had the question of eligibility raised by any college or university other than the Naval Academy," he went on. "And the Naval Academy should be the last one to raise such a question, knowing that the standards maintained at the Military Academy are as high as those at the Naval Academy. Eligibility rules were conceived by colleges because of suspicion and distrust toward present trust. Army trust in Navy and vice versa, but that Navy is a district of Army in insisting upon unnecessary eligibility rules."

The statement of Secretary of War Good was substantially similar to that of Smith. It set forth the three proposals made by Navy that Army adopt the three-year rule, that it adopt a four-year rule, and, finally, that two games be played under one set of rules and two under the present Army rules. He expressed the hope that

SEVERAL SHIFTS ARE EXPECTED IN ROLLINS LINE-UP

Effort Will Be Made To Strengthen Team For Chattanooga

WINTER PARK, Fla., Oct. 31.—As a result of the disappointing play of the Rollins Tars in their game with the University of Miami last Saturday, camp followers are looking for several shifts in the line-up before the team takes on Chattanooga University at Chattanooga next Saturday.

Most of the criticism of weaknesses to the Miami game was directed against the work of the forward wall. Time and again the Tar line crumpled up and throughout the game the secondary defense was forced to carry the brunt of the responsibility of swinging down the ball carrier. It is certain that Coach Jack McDowell will spend much of the time this week in an effort to bolster up the Tar line, and it is quite probable that one or two of the regulars will be benched. Some hope is being held that Rusty Moody, who has been on the shelf for several weeks, may be in shape to play against the Chattanooga eleven and judging from the present outlook his presence will be sorely needed.

Several of the backfield players were used up badly in the Miami game, and there was some doubt as to whether Rashid and Thrig, in particular, will be in shape to play again this season. Rashid, who has been bothered with an injured shoulder all season, took another battering Saturday and will probably have to rest for two weeks or more. Large injured his right knee again and according to reports from the Tar camp will be unable to play this season. With Rashid and Thrig apparently out, McDowell will probably use Ken Wallace, of last year's freshman team, at one of the halves. Wallace, who reported for competition last week, kind of the ball well and may be developed into a capable substitute.

TO DELIVER TALK

A. A. Turner, district Agent of the Florida A. & M. College in Tallahassee, will be at Sanford on Nov. 2 to deliver a talk to the Seminole Farmers' Cooperative Association at the Crosses Academy. It was announced today by C. B. McCarthy, president of the Farmers' association. He further announced that the public is cordially invited to attend.

In the future progress towards re-summation of relations between the two schools would be made.

"I told Admiral Robinson we would play the Naval Academy on the same terms we play every other college," Smith said in answer to all proposals. "I refuse to compromise a principle."

Famed Orchestra To Feature Milane Film Beginning On Friday

A famous orchestra of the West Coast, Earl Bartlett's Los Angeles Hiltone Orchestra, has a prominent part in the night club sequences of Douglas MacLean's stirring picture, "Divorce Made Easy," which comes to the Milane Theatre for two days beginning on Friday.

The Bartlett band features "So Sweet" theme song of the production, which was written by Sterling Sherwin, author of "Melancholy Mama." The song is played as a dance number and is also sung by Bartlett's trio and by Marie Prevost, feminine lead in the film.

"Divorce Made Easy" is one of the greatest smash hit pictures of the notable MacLean career. Written and edited in the familiar parlor-bedroom and bath manner but with a multitude of refreshing new parts, it received immediate acclaim from critics who previewed it on the West Coast. It was produced by Al Christie, impresario of cinema buffoonery.

Headed by Marie Prevost in support of MacLean are Johnny Arthur, Bud Farley, Frances Lee, and Jack Duffy. It is one of the most eagerly in support of MacLean for a Paramount release. Every member is a veteran of farce comedy and all are admirably fitted for the new requirements of the audible screen.

Speaking Confidentially

It is difficult for many people to understand why newspapermen will deliberately allow themselves to be placed in a position of such a delicate nature...

With such a statement there cannot possibly be any disagreement. It certainly is the duty of every honest citizen to aid the government in apprehending and punishing criminals.

For this reason, the other way, the newspaperman's duty, regardless of jail sentences for contempt of court, is to observe confidences with unflinching zeal.

It is the reporter's duty, and his duty only, to learn what is going on in the world, to know the news and to print it in so far as that is compatible with decency and honesty.

This matter of confidences is an old one between the courts and the press, and it is to be hoped that the Washington case may result in some logical solution to the problem.

Why Cigarette Companies Advertise

The Herald has frequently suggested to local merchants that "it pays to advertise". One of the best proofs we have that this is a fact comes from such sources as great national organizations...

That it does pay these national advertisers there can be little question. Henry Ford was frank enough to admit that his new car, in spite of its perfections, would have been a failure had it not been for the voluminous, nationwide advertising which he gave it.

"Am gratified to advise you that the directors of the American Tobacco Company, because of the enormous sales growth of Lucky Strike cigarettes, today voted an extra cash dividend of two dollars on each share of common stock.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

By Robert Barry

"Young Bob" LaFollette—of Wisconsin gives signs, day in and day out, in thought and in speech, that he is going to win laurels in his own right, not merely as the son of his father, "Fighting Bob."

It is not so much that "Young Bob" is carrying forward the principles, the determination and the decency of his father. He is exemplifying the family trait of being thorough about anything he undertakes.

A casual glance at the LaFollette speech on the chemical schedules in the pending Tariff Bill gives a fine slant on the LaFollette family. It represented thoroughness, a digging for facts, an impulse to get at the bottom of things no matter what physical effort might be entailed.

The story Senator LaFollette told in his speech against the Hawley-Smoot chemical schedules was one of the most readable and understandable tariff speeches ever brought to my attention.

"Young Bob" reduced the issue of unpronounceable names of acids to understanding to a new boy in City Hall Park or a couple of farmers meeting at a cross roads in Wisconsin. He did it so unobtrusively and so modestly he discomfited the Old Guard Republicans into a fine lather of excitement and subsequent defeat.

Senator LaFollette appears to have recovered entirely from the physical disabilities which deprived Washington of his fine mind for many months. In him the vestiges of real liberalism in the Republican must repose when the gallant George W. Norris of Nebraska passes from the Senate picture.

Winston Churchill, British Tory politician and former Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Baldwin Cabinet, almost made a serious case of Southern hospitality a few days ago.

Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic floor leader in the Senate, gave a luncheon for the British leader at the Capitol. It was on the day that the selection of Senator Robinson and Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania had been announced as the Senatorial members of the American delegation to the London Conference on Naval Armaments in January.

Mr. Churchill evidently had heard so much at the British Embassy to the effect that Senator Reed might prove the American bell-ringer at the London discussions he appeared, incompetent to get the same of Reed out of his mind. At any rate, here is what happened.

Senator Robinson and Vice President Curtis, Republican leader or "Jim" Watson and the Republican and Democratic membership of the Committee on Foreign Relations in to eat and to meet Mr. Churchill, the "Jim" Watson of British politics. It was a nice luncheon. Churchill was genuinely appreciative. He wished to say so. He began by thanking "Senator Reed" for the courtesy which had been extended him, and he ended by thanking "Senator Reed" for the unexampled opportunity thus afforded him to meet the distinguished membership of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

It was frightfully embarrassing to every one present, especially Senator Reed, and the host, Senator Robinson, his good sense to smile about the whole thing. As soon as Churchill learned of his faux pas he hastened to render profuse apologies to Senator Robinson.

Senator Arthur Robinson of Indiana, walking from a session of the Senate's lobby inquiry committee, of which he is a member, remarked:

"It is not so much what we are able to adduce in testimony about this Bingham-Eyanston incident. The implications to be drawn from what we have been able to get are terrible. It is the sort of thing which is likely to shake the confidence of people in government."

Applying Senator Robinson's rule, the significance is appreciated or implied in the testimony of E. Kent Hubbard, President of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, that when Senator Bingham of Connecticut wished to meet him in Hartford to close the deal whereby the association would have a "competent" man in the Senator's office during the tariff proceedings, the Senator specified that the meeting be arranged through "J. Henry."

COLLEGE PRESIDENT—Well, coach, how's everything going with your football team?

HEAD COACH—Kind of punk, chief. Our best ground gainer and kicker, Gribbons, is out for the season with a sprained ankle.

PRESIDENT—Better not let the puny get wise to that. It might affect the advance sale for our game with Siwash.

COACH—The sporting editors will explain Gribbons' absence from practice sessions on account of his sister's wedding.

PRESIDENT—Who are you going to replace Gribbons with next Saturday?

COACH—Well, I'm drafting Snooker from Bohunk Prep School and I instructed our Middle Western scout to buy up a few small college halfbacks.

PRESIDENT—What'll we have to pay 'em?

COACH—A first class halfback will cost about $800 a game.

PRESIDENT—Dear, dear! They're expensive, aren't they? We'll have to take the payroll money from the library and chapel fund.

COACH—I got a letter here from Ginsburg, the Bronco Institute star. He'll jump his contract there and play on our varsity team, he says, for $10,000 net.

PRESIDENT—(Why not snap him up? We've got to win our Siwash game, you know. I've got a bet down for 2,000 snackers.

COACH—Well, Ginsburg wants to preserve his amateur standing and he wants his $10,000 on the fly.

PRESIDENT—You mean he doesn't want it in a pay envelope like the rest of the boys?

COACH—That's it exactly.

PRESIDENT—Well, why not use our C-59 method of slipping him the dough?

COACH—What's the C-59 run-around? I forget.

PRESIDENT—Have him wait on table in the dining commons and we guarantee him $150 a meal in tips.

COACH—He don't want to wait on table.

PRESIDENT—Then try method P-28. Award him the $5,000 Giddy Prize for Latin translations.

COACH—But, this guy can't read English, let alone Latin.

PRESIDENT—What's that got to do with it? He can understand football signals, can't he? I'll railroad him the prize at the next Board of Overseers' meeting. Wire him it's all O. K.

COACH—The prize is only $5,000. Where do we raise the other five grand?

PRESIDENT—We'll give him the soft drink concession at the stadium. Letting him peddle needle beer and gin in pints and half pints, he can clean up 5,000 bucks in two Saturday afternoons.

COACH—All right, then. I'll wire him to come on.

PRESIDENT—Say, coach, we got a raw deal in the officiating last week.

COACH—I know it, Prexy. It was tough.

PRESIDENT—Well, what's the matter with getting some references, umpires and head lineups on the payroll? I can swing it on the budget.

COACH—Good idea. But if we just buy up a referee and umpire we won't need the field judge and

...only for their family use, it was during Mr. Derby's absence from this section that the celery industry began to prosper.
Speaking of residential section he stated that the plot now called Mayfair, then known as Melonville, was owned by a Russian count. Mr. Derby declared, however, that he knew much about this section. Tenth street was considered good hunting grounds, as few houses were seen—further south than Sixth Street. He recalls several houses now located on Magnolia Avenue as being in existence then.
The city had a great fire, which destroyed every building in the business district with the exception of the one now known as the Seminoles Bank building, the pioneer building. But it didn't take the business long to rebuild, for it was not long after this terrible setback that Sanford looked more prosperous than ever.
Then the big freeze, which nearly ruined Florida, came. The population of the city dropped to half of its usual number. These last few boom days of Florida are nothing compared with the hardships endured then. Mr. Derby pointed out. During that time the fruit industry was the principal source of capital, and when it was totally wiped out, there was nothing left to fill its place.
Mr. and Mrs. Derby left this section 30 years ago, it was further leaped, for Missouri, where they made their home. This is their first visit to this city within the past 15 years. During the used dry—is a new convenience in cooking . . . .

Rich cow's milk to begin with, KLIM is powdered for your convenience. Only the water is removed. Restore the water and you have rich fluid milk again—instantly! But for cooking—you needn't even trouble to reliquefy KLIM. Spoon it from the can—dry.

You can use it this new way in any of your own recipes. For each cup of milk called for, use four tablespoons of KLIM—mix it in with your other dry ingredients and then add water equal to the amount of milk called for in the recipe.

No risk of spoiled milk—with KLIM on hand. It keeps fresh indefinitely.

The KLIM recipe below makes a savory white sauce.

 (Spell it backwards)

Try this recipe with KLIM

White Sauce for vegetables
 (1 CUP OF WHITE SAUCE)

1/2 cup flour 1/2 cup salt 1 cup water
 2 tbsp. KLIM 1/2 cup pepper 1/2 cup butter
 In the top of a double boiler thoroughly mix a cup of flour, a cup of water and stir smooth. Place over direct flame, stirred low, and stir constantly until mixture thickens. Then place top of double boiler into bottom part (in which the water is boiling) and cook ten minutes, stirring occasionally. This last ten minutes cooking removes all flour taste. Remove from fire and stir in the top of butter.
