Divided Seminole Looms On Horizon

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — The Senate reapportionment committee voted 8-6 today to send a new congressional redistricting plan to the Senate floor. Its first attempt was rejected Wednesday. The new compromise by Sen. Ken Myers (D-Miami) creates new districts out of Volusia, Brevard and Indian River counties; 12 southern Gulf area counties from Sarasota south; and in north Dade County.

Meanwhile, three separate plans to reapportion the state's legislative seats have been adopted by the House legislative reapportionment committee.

The legislature must reapportion both congressional and legislative seats this year based on the 1970 census.

The new Senate congressional plan, in addition to creating the three new districts, makes some drastic changes in existing ones.

It turns Ocala Democrat Rep. William Chappell's district into a 13-county superdistrict cutting a diagonal swath across the state from northern Pinellas north and east to southern Duval.

It splits Plant City and southern Hillsborough County away from the district held by Rep. Sam Gibbons, a Tampa Democrat, while adding to the district parts of northern Pinellas County, including sections of Clearwater.

It turns the present Orange County — Brevard area district into a district encompassing Orange, Osceola and parts of Lake and Seminole counties.

Sen. William Gunter, D-Orlando, said he could "live with" the plan since it preserved Orange County. An earlier plan-in-addition to one being considered by the House—partitioned it into several districts.

Chuluota's Fourth St. Partially Barricaded

By LIZA BAKER

CHULUOTA — E. H. McAlexander, of Seminole Petroleum Company, Sanford, has posted barricades on East Fourth Street, approaching SR 419, closing off approximately 100 feet of the paved thoroughfare. He said this section is privately-owned property and he plans to construct a service station.

McAlexander stated he has the street open for people to get to church, that he has the community at heart and will do everything to cooperate. He also stated that it is not a public street. When asked, what if a motorist should crash into the barricade coming off of 419, he answered, "he has reflecting signs on the barricades."

He stated the old railroad bed, which runs behind his property and angles out to 419, is to be converted into a street by the county.

County Engineer William Bush said the old railroad bed is a legitimate right-of-way and the county already has surveyed it and will begin to clear it soon but, he stated, it will not be paved. When asked, "Not for the present," he said he doubts if it ever will be paved.

County Road Supt. J. C. Lavender said the county has 100 feet of right-of-way on the old railroad bed and is in the process of making a street. The right-of-way runs between Northside Baptist Church and Chuluota Community Church.

OK Purchase Of Land, Buses Board On Spending Spree

By HILLSCOTT

The School Board went on a spending spree Wednesday and voted to "shell out" an estimated $300,000 for South Seminole property and an additional $75,000 to buy 10 school buses in disregard of the recommendations of the administration to purchase six conveyances.

Walter Teague, school finance officer, cautioned the board that it would spend $2 million more than it takes in and warned that the board's contingency account is being depleted rapidly.

But, the words of Teague fell in deaf ears as the board, acting at the insistence of Dr. Stuart Culpepper and Ray Slaton, voted to spend school funds even if it is necessary to borrow funds to aid in the purchase of 60 acres of land.

On a motion by Culpepper, the board voted to authorize the land purchase for future school sites after Robert Poole, Eastbrook PTA president, brought proposals for five parcels of land in the South Seminole area, which he said could be purchased at prices ranging from $5,000 to $6,000 an acre.

Slaton seconded Culpepper's motion to authorize the land purchase and Culpepper advised the board to use whatever method is needed to acquire funds to buy the property.

This brought on a remark from Teague, who advised, "You're using up your contingency account."

In reply, Culpepper laughed and commented, "One day we will have to live within our budget."

In a second swift action, the board on a motion by Slaton and seconded by Culpepper, voted unanimously to spend $75,000 to buy 10 school buses.

High Carlton, supervisor of services, advised he had requested only six buses but Slaton and Culpepper insisted on purchasing vehicles and the motion passed.

Teague, by then was in a state of confusion and cautioned, "We had $425,000 in contingency before tonight's actions."

"You are spending $2 million more than we will take in," he added.

Carlton Bentley, Lyman High Principal, asked if the lack of funds to carry over to next year will mean a cut in programs and the answer from Teague was yes.

Utility Co. Purchase Approved

By MARION BETHEA

ALTA MONTE SPRINGS — Mayor Lawrence Swofford has been authorized by City Council to negotiate for the purchase and acquisition of Spring Valley utility plant at a figure approximating $100,000.

Further, the mayor is to present recommendations next week for modification of out-of-town rates for both sewer and water to be applied to the existing rates.

City Engineer Harold Radcliffe told council that the plant has a projected revenue of $45,000, with a $10,000 surplus each year.

Radcliffe estimated the plant will be paid in less than five years. It was stated that a proposal was made to the city by the plant owner citing a cost of $125,000 which includes four acres of land and rental stables which are leasing for $1,800 yearly.

Radcliffe said that with other proposed pipe connections there would be a total investment to the city of approximately $150,000. It is Radcliffe's contention that the acquisition of the plant is "financially attractive."

Mayor Swofford concurred, noting that the city can operate it at considerably less cost than the present operators since they will not need all of the personnel at the plant.

Although a dissenting opinion was registered by Councilman Helen Keyser, council tentatively approved preliminary plans for San Sebastian Units three and four, which are located west of the Wekiva River.

Mrs. Keyser contended that there was already too much traffic generated on SR 434 without compounding it in further development of the area.

Mayor Swofford agreed, but went on to say that there is objection upon her part to further apartments, others object to too many homes and that there are necessary with the population increase to this area. Mayor Swofford elucidated that the development will not have a street frontage on SR 434.

Grocery Prices Zoom; Lead Overall Cost Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The biggest jump in grocery prices in 14 years last month triggered the sharpest rise in overall living costs since before President Nixon imposed economic controls, the government reported today.

The Consumer Price Index, measuring typical family living costs, rose five-tenths of one per cent in February, the largest increase in nine months, the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

Grocery prices, which include a number of items that are not subject to federal price controls, soared 1.3 per cent for the greatest one-month increase since March of 1958, the report said.

The report followed the resignation of three AFL-CIO members of Nixon's Pay Board, who charged the government was rigidly holding down wages while letting prices continue to climb.

The bureau also reported that average weekly earnings of some 45 million rank-and-file workers rose 35 cents a week to $130.27, but that purchasing power declined 24 cents because of the rise in consumer prices.

The February boost pushed the price index up to 123.4 per cent of its 1967 average. This means it cost $12.38 last month for every $10 worth of typical family purchases five years ago.

The February increase was the greatest since a six-tenths of one per cent rise last June, two months before Nixon imposed a 90-day wage-price freeze which was then followed by Phase 2 controls.

The bureau said that, so far in 1972, prices had been held to an annual rate of 1.7 per cent during the rigid three-month freeze that preceded the looser Phase 2 controls.

Prices hikes in February included two-tenths of one per cent for housing, four-tenths each for clothing and medical care and one-tenth of one per cent for recreation.

Transportation costs declined six-tenths of one per cent, the report said.

A steep rise in meat prices, it said, accounted for about 70 per cent of the big rise in food prices.

Fresh fruits and vegetables also rose considerably. Dairy products rose instead of declining as usual in February.

Everyone soliciting five or more members hips totaling $50 or more is eligible to receive the prizes with the exception of the scholarship, which is for high school students only.

To aid in its efforts to relocate the Sanford Zoo, which is being closed by the City Commission, the Zoological Society is conducting a 90-day membership drive with a goal of 5,000 members.

Membership has quadrupled in the past three weeks and is now just short of 300 members. It is expected to reach 1,000 by April. A fund raising drive to solicit donations will follow the membership drive.

Support is being sought in surrounding counties as well as Seminole, and their residents also will benefit from the new improved zoo.

Public School Construction Needs

Ways and means to raise $2.65 million for school construction in Seminole County are coming to the point of decision for the members of the county public school board.

This is focusing attention on the administrative performance of Superintendent John Angel and those he has placed in positions of responsibility.

It is also creating at a time when the educational process in all the public schools in this state is getting under the microscope of those whose belief that this basic issue of improvement can no longer be evaded.

Suggestions that a millage election be held before July 1st to authorize an additional four mills to be levied and thus provide almost enough to satisfy the projected needs raise almost more questions than they answer.

Probably the one which the property owners would be the ones to shoulder such a boost in millage would most likely ask is whether or not those who could vote would include those who would not have to pay the increase as they pay no such tax at all. The answer is: "Yes."

But the underlying question which this proposal evokes is broader, deeper and most important. This is whether or not the proposal to take this route, raise this vast sum and expend it as usual, is not a continuance of a practice which has not proved efficient.

Swanky Swizzle

A wealthy resident of Monte Carlo, Monaco, and his wife recently visited New York. Entering the lobby of their hotel at 3 a.m. they were met by a well-dressed man with a gun. The gunman relieved the wife of jewelry worth more than $75,000. Included in the loot was a diamond and ruby-studded swizzle stick worth about $500. Bill Blinns' TV Movie "Brian's Song"

By DON FRIEDMAN, Copy News Service

HOLLYWOOD — When the time for Emmy awards rolls around, one of the shows high in the running will undoubtedly be that extraordinary TV movie "Brian's Song." This was the dramatized retelling of a real-life drama, the friendship of two football players, Gale Sayers and the late Brian Piccolo.

"But after 'Brian's Song' I got letters from people I hadn't heard from in years. And it wasn't the usual 'Dear Hollywood writer, buy us a drink when we get out to the coast' kind of mail. People were moved, affected, by 'Brian's Song' and they wanted to share their feelings. It was very gratifying."

Nixon In West German Politics

By RAY McHUGH, Chief, Washington Bureau, Copy News Service

WASHINGTON — A reluctant President Nixon is being pulled closer and closer to the mushrooming West German political crisis over Chancellor Willy Brandt's "sozialpolitik."

The struggle in the Bonn Parliament alongside the cold and misty Rhine is a classic one. It involves not only the future course of West relations with the Communist East, but also deep threads of German nationalism that stretch back a century to Bismarck and beyond into the gray shadows of Central European history.

Turning Wood Waste Into Fertilizer

STRATFORD, N.H. — Old MacDonald has a farm. And he uses it to develop a use for New England's mountains of lumber mill waste.

Piccolo, Brian's widow, wrote to say she loved the picture, we all felt a good sense of accomplishment. "Women, incidentally, seemed to have an even greater feeling for the story than men," said Blinns, with some understatement. "I think it has a shot at developing into a series, which would be nice."

U.S. May Ease Moscow Trade

By RAY CROMLEY, WASHINGTON (NEA)

Within the next few months, President Nixon may ease restrictions on the export of high technology machinery and equipment to the Soviet Union.

At the same time, the President is expected to take positive steps aimed at easing the hurdles facing Russian exports to this country.

It is known that Nixon's Soviet specialists have told him these steps would not present serious dangers to the United States so long as American shipments to Russia do not contribute directly to advanced military systems.

These Moscow watchers argue that the Russian system — except for its high-priority military-industrial complex — is inherently so bogged down in bureaucratic supervision that an easing of U.S. restrictions and a step-up in Russian imports of advanced industrial equipment will not enable the Soviet Union to significantly narrow the industrial-economic gap with this country.

The Soviet Union already is buying machinery and equipment in western Europe and Japan to the limit of its ability to pay. It is straining to purchase the imported goods it needs. To buy appreciably more in the United States or anywhere else would put a severe strain on Moscow's gold reserves.

Russia will find it extremely difficult to expand its sales to the United States, even under more favorable terms. For the Soviet Union produces little Americans want. The quality and prices they insist on.

Russia has a future export potential, on paper, of huge dimensions. She has underdeveloped petroleum, gas, lumber and mineral resources waiting for the input of foreign capital. These are products U.S. companies would buy in quantities if development is forthcoming and the price is right.

The problem is not the Soviet objection to profits. The Russians are known to be amenable to a formula, worked out in discussions with Japanese businessmen, by which Americans own and operate the mines in production — gas, petroleum, lumber and minerals.

The difficulties apparently are of a different nature but what they are is not clear.

Japanese businessmen with access to major amounts of investment capital, industrial know-how and the skilled technicians required, have been negotiating in quite friendly fashion with the Russians for several years.

The Japanese have what the Russians lack — the Japanese badly need the products that would result from the joint ventures they are discussing. Through some success has been achieved, in the main, the talks go on, and round and round.

No doors are closed but few are opened completely. It seems to be taking forever and a day to work out an agreement.

If the Japanese experience is any criterion, U.S. private investment in any sizable amount, if allowed, is likely to be a long time coming.

Will the Church Heed Indian Plea?

By REV. DAVID POLING

In early February, Vine Deloria Jr., a Standing Rock Sioux and author of "Custer Died for Our Sins," addressed an open letter to the heads of the Christian churches in America. Distributed by the Forum for Contemporary History, it has been published in the Los Angeles Times and other papers. It deserves an extensive audience and careful consideration.

At the start of his letter to the churches, Vine Deloria Jr. suggests that the pastors may be surprised to receive this petition that reads so heavily in political affairs. The Christian Democrat opposition calls the treaties a "myth." Brandt has surrendered the German dream of reunification, they charge, and has received only empty concessions. The pacts, they claim, would jeopardize West Germany's role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and possibly within the European Economic Community, or Common Market.

A West German spokesman for Brandt replies that the treaties "are in the interests of the German people and indispensable for the future of the entire West."

Brandt is asking the Parliament or Bundestag to ratify the treaties he negotiated in 1970. The pacts, in essence, recognize Soviet hegemony over all of Eastern Europe, surrender all German claims to territory east of the Oder-Neisse River line (including old Junker and Prussian territories), grant de facto recognition of the sovereignty of business, providing work to 12 full-time employees and 25 part-time helpers in this area hard hit by worn-out farms, idle sawmills and lack of new industry. The product is sawdust from New Hampshire and Pennsylvania. MacDon-ald is now developing a larger and potentially more valuable use for bark and other waste from lumber mills. When the state of New Hampshire passed that the town of Stratford must dump its sewage wastes into the headwaters of the Connecticut River, the townspeople were flabbergasted. Thanks to his enthusiasm, the federal Environmental Protection Agency advanced $30,000 for bigger tanks and other equipment. Another $10,000 came from the New England Regional Commission.

Letter to the Editor

'Orange' Is Favored

Editor, Herald:

I attended the March 14 meeting of the Legislative and National Affairs Committee of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce. As a citizen of both Sanford and Seminole County, as well as a city commissioner of Sanford, I applied the Chamber's effort to both Sanford and Seminole County with more identity in the Florida Legislature.

However, I cannot agree with any plan that would result in Seminole joining with some county other than Orange.

In 1964 Seminole and Lake Counties were joined together for legislative purposes and given a delegation of three. One member of the three-man delegation had to come from Seminole, one from Lake, and the other could come from either county. However, this situation was so short-lived nobody ever determined if it would have much in common.

Side from State Road 46 running east to Brevard and west to Lake, and I-4 and U.S. 17-82 running north into Volusia, Seminole has very little in common with these counties. But with Orange we are linked with not only transportation but also with shopping, entertainment, commerce, sports, tourism, industry, services, etc.

Consequently, I would suggest that the Chamber's legislative committee approach the current Orange-Seminole delegation with a provision that no less than three or perhaps four of 11-man delegation must be registered voters from Seminole County even though all would run at large.

One doesn't have to be too old to remember when Seminole and Brevard were linked together into a single senatorial district. For years the district's senator because of a population advantage carried from the Seminole County even though all would run at large.

Before the Chamber's legislative committee jumps to a conclusion I feel it should give the utmost possible consideration to what would be best for Sanford and the entire county. I suggest that one possible answer for the committee would be to seek to remain linked with Orange but ask the Legislature to give Seminole its own identity by making it mandatory that a specific number of legislators be from Seminole.

Editor, Herald: I would like to know just what the school board is trying to prove. They expel a child from school after three suspensions, regardless of what the child has done. It can be large or small, they do it.

I think this is wrong. I talked with Mr. Redding and he agrees that there is room for change and they should be changed. What this rule does is turn a child loose for a year. You know that in many homes both parents work, the child is left to do many things, such as getting out with the wrong people, and then we have a criminal on our hands.

I hope that the layovers will do something about this. Here in a sense they are aiding and abetting the delinquency of a minor. I talked with Mr. Braxton, and he told me that the school board would stand pat on this rule, that it would take a law suit to even make them change.

If the school board knows that elections are coming up soon and they will have to answer to the taxpayer for the dope peddlers, etc., and make the school be a school of learning. They should have security there at all times, for I know there is threats on a child every day. Can a child learn under these conditions? I think not.

In one instance, the school has expelled one child and his family, by assuming that he did something that he did not do. Because if it was true, where is the evidence? I think not. I am asking my son out of this school for I will not have anyone slander him. It does not take a law suit to change the board's mind. It takes the people. After all they are there because the people put them there and they can be changed.

What are the limits of the responsibilities of the communications media? The Roman, Juvenal, said, "Who guards the guardians?" The First Amendment guarantees freedom of the press. Therefore, it would seem that this would make it the obligations and duty of the press to be the eyes and ears of the people to apply the word of reproof to

I think this is wrong. I talked with Mr. Redding and he agrees that there is room for change and they should be changed. What this rule does is turn a child loose for a year. You know that in many homes both parents work, the child is left to do many things, such as getting out with the wrong people, and then we have a criminal on our hands.

I hope that the layovers will do something about this. Here in a sense they are aiding and abetting the delinquency of a minor. I talked with Mr. Braxton, and he told me that the school board would stand pat on this rule, that it would take a law suit to even make them change.

If the school board knows that elections are coming up soon and they will have to answer to the taxpayer for the dope peddlers, etc., and make the school be a school of learning. They should have security there at all times, for I know there is threats on a child every day. Can a child learn under these conditions? I think not.

In one instance, the school has expelled one child and his family, by assuming that he did something that he did not do. Because if it was true, where is the evidence? I think not. I am asking my son out of this school for I will not have anyone slander him. It does not take a law suit to change the board's mind. It takes the people. After all they are there because the people put them there and they can be changed.

the men of understanding and to apply the scourge of the editorial lash a hundred times to the backs of fools we have mistakenly placed in positions of power.

Also for self-preservation it would seem the press would do this for there is no freedom of the press in that Orwellian nightmare of Big Brother 1984 nor yet in that barren desert of slavery which is the end result of the Utopian dream of imperialisat Marxism.

It is the free press afflicted with that dread disease, Diddiphobia (the morbid dread of making fateful decisions).

Death Penalty Meted to Rapist

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Roy Carroll Paulk was sentenced to die by electrocution in the stabbing death of Diana de la Paz, a 22-year-old Hillsborough County school secretary after a jury found him guilty Wednesday of first degree murder without a recommendation of mercy.

The seven-man, five-woman circuit court jury deliberated 90 minutes before finding 29-year-old Paulk guilty, as charged. Without a recommendation for mercy, the death penalty is mandatory.

The defense called no witnesses in the three-day trial which was moved here under change of venue as a result of pretrial publicity in the Tampa area.

Paulk was accused of abducting the dark-haired secretary from a busy Tampa shopping center April 29th, mutilating her with knife wounds, then burying the body in a shallow, sandy grave in a secluded dumping ground near the University of South Florida.

Paulk was extradited from Louisiana where he is under life sentence in the murder of a Shreveport banker last May, shortly after the de la Paz girl's disappearance.

Under the extradition agreement with Louisiana authorities Paulk will remain in Raiford State Prison on the more serious offense until Gov. Reubin Askew's moratorium on capital punishment is decided. The governor has declared a stay of executions until 1973 in anticipation that the U.S. Supreme Court will rule in the matter in the interim.

Warren brought Powell's will before the court, stating it specifically directed that his body be taken by Darlene Expose and be cremated with the ashes strewn over the island of South Bimini.

Her attorney, Herbert Warren Jr. of Miami, told the court, "Miss Expose does not claim to be the legal wife of Adam Clayton Powell in the eyes of the law."

Yvette Diago Powell, a Puerto Rican divorcee, who became Adam Clayton Powell in the Miami March 7.

Darlene Expose, who accompanied the 63-year-old Powell from Bimini and claimed to be his wife, told the court through her attorney she would drop her claim to marriage if given the right to dispose of Powell's remains. They already have you numbered (Social Security).

Internal Revenue Launches Income Tax Crackdown

The Internal Revenue Service in the Southeast has declared war on unscrupulous tax return preparers who prepare fraudulent federal income tax returns for taxpayers, and some of their clients are finding themselves in heavy debt to the U.S. Treasury, according to A. J. O'Donnell Jr., IRS district director for Florida.

The IRS reported in a press conference a few weeks ago that the number of cases of fraudulent tax return preparers had taken a sharp increase during the first 45 days of 1972, and an energetic program was announced to investigate the business practices of tax return preparers.

Newsmen were told by O'Donnell that "the vast majority of the tax practitioners operate legitimate and ethical businesses, and this program is concerned primarily with those preparers who knowingly cheat their customers and the federal government."

Special Agents of the Intelligence Division of IRS have so far conducted thorough investigations of over 700 return preparers in the 106 states of the Southeast during the last three weeks.

O'Donnell said, "The results of the investigations have been obvious. The news media is regularly reporting our arrests of dishonest return preparers. The crooks know the heat is on. Some have attempted to move, but they're finding out they can't get away."

During recent years, the IRS seven-state Southeastern region (comprising the states of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee) were annually involved in about five or six prosecutions of tax return preparers who had violated federal laws. But this year the arrests and grand jury indictments in just one day exceeded all of last year's prosecutions.

On March 8, a federal grand jury in South Carolina indicted a woman on 13 counts of submitting false and fraudulent documents to the IRS and five counts of preparing false returns for others; a man was indicted on 21 counts of preparing false returns for others; and a man and a woman were each indicted on 17 counts of preparing false returns for others.

"Unscrupulous return preparers alter the number of dependents or deductions to illegally decrease the tax liability on a federal tax return," O'Donnell said. "Often they steal all or part of the illegal refunds from their clients, and their customers are faced with prospects of having to pay the government large lump sums for back taxes, plus fraud penalties, and interest."

The first of hundreds of taxpayers, who were clients of return preparers recently arrested or indicted, are being called into IRS offices in the Southeast for audits. Revenue Agents are determining the correct tax liability that should have been paid by each taxpayer. Revenue Officers are then being instructed to promptly collect the back taxes, penalties, and interest.

O'Donnell said, "We urge every taxpayer to carefully select his tax advisor, and avoid anyone who is thought to be a charlatan. Never, never sign a blank tax return, and be certain that only accurate information appears on the return."

The filing by a taxpayer of a false and fraudulent return is a felony, and it can result in as much as five years in prison and a $10,000 fine, or both, for each year in which a fraudulent return is filed.

Congress, Legislature Redistricting Studied

By TOM RAUM Associated Press Writer TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Senate was to take another stab today at congressional redistricting with a compromise plan aimed at ending an apparent deadlock. The House Legislative Reapportionment Committee Wednesday night accepted plans for a 120-member House divided into a combination of single and multi-member districts, three-member and six-member districts. It will study all three plans, in addition to drafting a combination of three and six-member districts, and is expected to approve one of them next week.

Sen. Ken Myers, D-Miami, pieced together a proposed compromise redistricting plan which he said would break the Senate logjam that arose Wednesday when the first proposal was returned to committee.

Myers' proposal would create new districts of north Dade; southern Gulf counties from Sarasota south; and Volusia, Brevard and Indian River counties. It was to be first voted on by the Reapportionment Committee prior to today's session. A plan originally sponsored by the committee that would have put two of the three new districts in central Florida was turned down by the Senate in a parliamentary move which kept it from being heard on Wednesday.

Main objections to the first plan were that it would have turned the district now held by Democrat Rep. James Haley, of Sarasota into a Republican district by removing from it Democratic Polk County, and did not provide a separate district for Volusia and Brevard counties.

While the original plan appeared to protect all incumbents except Haley, the new compromise appears to protect all except Rep. William Chappell, an Ocala Democrat.

Chappell's district would lose Volusia County under the proposal and pick up several Republican counties, including northern Pinellas and Pasco.

But Myers said he thought the compromise might be "the only one that can fly. I'm proposing it in order to break what is an obvious deadlock in the Senate."

Senators were also considered a proposal that would take airplanes assigned to the governor and six cabinet members and place them in a common state aircraft pool.

The effect is that core areas in St. Petersburg, Tampa and Jacksonville are denied one representative each," Hodes said.

Public School Construction Needs

Ways and means to raise $2.65 million for school construction in Seminole County are coming to the point of decision for the members of the county public school board.

This is focusing attention on the administrative performance of Superintendent John Angel and those he has placed in positions of responsibility.

It is also cresting at a time when the educational process in all the public schools in this state is getting under the microscope of those who believe that this basic issue of improvement can no longer be evaded.

Suggestions that a millage election be held before July 1st to authorize an additional four mills to be levied and thus provide almost enough to satisfy the projected needs raise almost more questions than they answer.

Probably the one which the property owners would be the ones to shoulder such a boost in millage would most likely ask is whether or not those who could vote would include those who would not have to pay the increase as they pay no such tax at all. The answer is: "Yes."

But the underlying question which this proposal evokes is broader, deeper and most important. This is whether or not the proposal to take this route, raise this vast sum and expend it (as usual), is not a continuation of a practice which has not proved efficient.

Swanky Swizzle

A wealthy resident of Monte Carlo, Monaco, and his wife recently visited New York. Entering the lobby of their hotel at 3 a.m. they were met by a well-dressed man with a gun. The gunman relieved the wife of her jewelry worth more than $75,000. Included in the loot was a diamond and ruby-stuffed swizzle stick worth about $500. A swizzle stick, to most people, means a plastic gadget worth perhaps two cents used to stir alcoholic beverages. When F. Bill Blinns' TV Movie "Brian's Song"

By DON FREEMAN

Piccolo, Brian's widow, wrote to say she loved the picture, we all felt a good sense of accomplishment. "Women, incidentally, seemed to have an even greater feeling for the story than men, that extraordinary TV movie 'Brian's Song.' This was the dramatized retelling of a real-life drama, the friendship of two football players, Gale Sayers and the late Brian Piccolo.

Bill Blinns, who wrote the script, was saying that its impact, several months later, is still being felt. "I'm still getting fan mail," said Blinns. "Fan mail? For a writer? It is unheard of. Oh, I used to get fan mail, but that was in the days of writing scripts for 'Here Come the Brides' but all they ever said was, 'Can you get me Bobby Sherman's picture — autographed!'"

"But after 'Brian's Song' I got letters from people I hadn't heard from in years. And it wasn't the usual, 'Dear Hollywood writer, buy us a drink when we get out to the coast' kind of mail. People were moved, affected, by 'Brian's Song' and they wanted to share their feelings. It was very gratifying.

"Without making this sound self-important, I was moved, myself, when I first read Gale Sayers' book," Blinns said. "There are only eight pages in the book devoted to Brian Piccolo. What we learn, in those eight pages, is that a very nice young guy died. But what really mattered is the friendship of these two men.

"In adapting the story for TV, all of us — producer, director, actors — felt an unstated responsibility to do our very best, not to twist what these people went through. When Joy barrage which will be set off when the issue of schools becomes one of political ambitions as well.

This, of course has already taken a feeble start while the larger political drives of politicians on the national and state levels dominate the news.

For the taxpayer in Seminole County, however, this issue of school administration is vital. Those who seek re-election or who aspire to positions of power as superintendent or school board members need to trot out qualifications and records.

For this is a pocketbook issue which reaches into the pockets of every property owner in the county.

HOLLYWOOD — When the time for Emmy awards rolls around, one of the shows high on the list is whether or not the proposal to take this route, raise this vast sum and expend it (as usual), is not a continuation of a practice which has not proved efficient.

moved on to another writing project, this one a TV "Movie of the Week" called "The Rookies." "It's much better than the average police show," said Blinns, with some understatement. "I think it has a shot at developing into a series, which would be nice."

With Darren McGavin, Paul Burke and Cameron Mitchell starring, the 90-minute film dwells on a group of recruits on a large city police force. The producer is Aaron Spelling.

"The idea here," said Blinns, "is that the police are now trying to get their people from a more varied group — guys from out of the Peace Corps.

Japanese businessmen with access to major amounts of investment capital, industrial know-how and skilled technicians required, have been negotiating in quite friendly fashion with the Russians for several years.

The Japanese have needed the Russians to import the goods they badly need. The products that would result from the joint ventures they're discussing. Though some success has been achieved, in the main, the talks go on and on, round and round.

No doors are closed but few are opened completely. It seems to be taking forever and a day to work out arrangements.

If the Japanese experience is any criterion, U.S. private investment in any sizable amount, if allowed, is likely to be a long time coming.

At the start of his letter to the churches, Vine Deloria Jr. suggests that the pastors may be surprised to receive this petition that rests so heavily in political affairs: the civil rights of the American Indian. Yet a quick survey of American history reveals the close partnership between Christianity and the discovery of the New World.

Whether it be Columbus with cross and flag or Puritans with Bible and maps, the Christian origins of western civilization are clear and operative. And that is the heart of Mr. Deloria's plea:

"Thinking themselves justified by the God they worshiped, the nations of Europe proceeded to subdue both the lands and the peoples of the western continents. They came to regard their actions as the inevitable result of the foreordained plan of God for the future history of the world. The colonists established a government in which the major doctrine of state proclaimed the right of every man to choose his own religion, to pick his own nation, to have rights to his own property, his home, his job, and his time to be determined by himself."

Deloria notes that at first this philosophy seemed possible to the Indian nations. America was a vast empire—people and nations could get along if there was respect for each other's laws and customs. But the arrangement turned sour and when the west was won, somebody lost:

"In the years that followed, another doctrine arose from the minds of Christian men. Manifest destiny... It was God's will, we were told—indeed, the people of America were told—that Christian civilization should extend from sea to shining sea as it were. Everything non-Christian and lacking the customs and attributes of Christian civilization was to be pushed from the inevitable path of progress."

And behind the push was a bullet. And just behind that, a Bible. With all the wrongs, mistakes, disasters of the past and present, why does the Indian make a new plea to the churches for justice?

The decisive vote is scheduled for early May. If Brandt wins, the way is open for quick ratification of the 1971 Berlin agreement and Moscow would undoubtedly seize on the Nixon visit to renew pressure for a 1973 European Security Conference to write a formal end to World War II.

Should Brandt lose, West Germany may not recognize Soviet hegemony over all of Eastern Europe, surrender all German claims to territory east of the Oder-Neisse River line (including old Junker and Prussian birthrights), grant de facto recognition to the sovereignty of puppet East Germany, and give the Soviets at least an inferred voice in West German internal affairs, should a "fascist" or "revanchist" government come to power in Bonn.

In return, Brandt is promised normalized relations with the East and expanded commerce. His Christian Democrat opposition calls the treaties a "sellout." Brandt has surrendered the German dream of reunification, they charge, and has received only empty concessions. The pacts, they claim, would jeopardize West Germany's role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and possibly within the European Economic Community, or Common Market.

A West German spokesman for Brandt replies that the treaties "are in the interests of the German people and indispensable for the detente policy of the entire West."

U.S. May Ease Moscow Trade

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Restrictions on the export of high technology machinery and equipment to the Soviet Union.

At the same time, the President is expected to take positive steps aimed at easing the hurdles facing Russian exports to this country.

It is known that Nixon's Soviet specialists have told him these steps would not present serious dangers to the United States so long as prices advanced military systems, do not contribute directly to advanced military systems.

These Moscow watchers argue that the Russian system — except for its high-priority military-industrial complex — is inherently so bogged down in bureaucratic supervision, that an easing of U.S. restrictions and a step-up in Russian imports of advanced industrial equipment will not enable the Soviet Union to significantly narrow the industrial-economic gap with this country.

The Soviet Union already is buying machinery and equipment in west Europe and Japan to the limit of its ability to pay. It is straining to purchase the imported goods its people require. To buy appreciably more in the United States or anywhere else would put a severe strain on Moscow's gold reserves.

Russia will find it extremely difficult to expand its sales to the United States, even under more favorable terms. For the Soviet Union produces little Americans want at the quality and price levels of the imports. Russia has a future export potential, on paper, of huge dimensions. She has underdeveloped petroleum, gas, lumber, and mineral resources aching for the input of foreign capital. These are products U.S. companies would like to export in quantities if development is forthcoming and the price is right.

The problem is not the Soviet objection to profits. The Russians are known to be amenable to a formula, worked out in discussions with Japanese businessmen, by which American could take out the U.S. share in products — gas, petroleum, lumber and minerals.

The difficulties apparently are of a different nature but what they are is not clear. Japanese businessmen with access to major amounts of investment capital, industrial know-how and skilled technicians required, have been negotiating in quite friendly fashion with the Russians for several years.

The Japanese have needed the Russians to import the goods they badly need. The products that would result from the joint ventures they're discussing. Though some success has been achieved, in the main, the talks go on and on, round and round.

Will the Church Heed Indian Plea?

By REV. DAVID POLING

In early February, Vine Deloria Jr., a Standing Rock Sioux and author ("Custer Died for Our Sins"), addressed an open letter to the heads of the Christian churches in America. Distributed by the Forum for Contemporary History, it has been published in the Los Angeles "Times" and other papers. It deserves an extensive audience and careful consideration.

At the start of his letter to the churches, Vine Deloria Jr. suggests that the pastors may be surprised to receive this petition that rests so heavily in political affairs: the civil rights of the American Indian. Yet a quick survey of American history reveals the close partnership between Christianity and the discovery of the New World.

Pilions Interested County Parks Revived

Representatives of the tract of land being sought by the county parks committee reported to County Commissioner Al Davis they are amenable to reopening negotiations with the County Commission concerning the sale price of the property.

Davis informed the board the county participation project being conducted by the County Commissioners he had received a bill for $10,200 from a woman who claimed she was injured by a rock thrown at a county tower.

Commissioner Chairman Greg Drummond said that "Now that we know this operation is hazardous, I suggest it be investigated and corrected."

Clark cites an interesting sex difference between women vs. men. It also reveals the strategy used in the "office grasshoppers" or thermostats?

"Dr. Crane," he began, "in my profession we have noticed an interesting sex difference between women vs. men."

"Why should women do so much more complaining about room temperature than men do?"

"Our psychology labs have shown that we human beings can make very fine distinctions in temperature by our skin."

"So it is now a standard practice in our field to install two thermostats."

"The other is a 'phony' which we place where all the women can see it."

County Probing Claim

He said the board would like to adopt a resolution on control of this problem. Langley said there is nothing on the books against this practice.

Drummond asked that the county parks committee investigate and report to the board.

The House Detective:

Hotel 'Dicks' Find Their Jobs A Demanding One

"I've never had to bust down a room door," said the hotel detective. "That sort of stuff happens only on TV."
A big, broad-shouldered man, he looked capable of it if necessary. He has been five years one of the large Los Angeles hotels as house detective — or "security officer," which is the term preferred today.

individual who has no right to be there, he must be careful not to make any false move or unwarranted accusation that might involve the hotel in a lawsuit.
Particularly delicate is the case where a male occupant is entering in his room a female who is not registered.

The security officer actually seldom deals with guests. He is required to make himself as unobtrusive as possible. When his presence is required, he usually is sent into action by one of several assistant managers who are the ones who field most complaints.

They must know in detail all the laws pertaining to hotels and be able to cooperate with police, fire and other local departments. As well as having an alert mind, they must be even-tempered, able to act at all times with tact and discretion.

NEW YORK (AP) — At this time last year the question was why business spending wasn't picking up, even though consumers were giving tentative signs that they were willing to expand their spending plans.

Babies' Clothing Differ With Size

If you're been shopping for baby clothes lately you've probably noticed that there is an irregularity in the labeling of sizes. For example, 1 year is a sleeper labeled 6 to 9 months that is the same size as another labeled 2 years.

How Can He Be Ignored? Consumer Has The 'Top Hand'

By JOHN CUNNINGHAM AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Everyone is concerned about the consumer today because the consumer has his hand in everything—and he, quite literally, forcing institutions to conform to his wishes. How can he be ignored?

The complaint areas contained only 15 per cent or 3,400 contacts, "such a small percentage of people who have our products, or use our services, that it is almost unmeasurable on a percentage basis."

Approximately 200 educators from the Orlando area are expected to attend JCPenney's 1972 program for local and state home economics educators on Thursday, March 30, at the Langford Hotel.

Subject of the program is a new educational process called value clarification, according to C. M. Carley, manager of the JCPenney store, Winter Park.

The program is being presented by JCPenney field home economists in major cities around the country. It focuses on value clarification strategies that are particularly applicable to the teaching of home economics. As part of the presentation, new teaching materials developed by JCPenney's educational and consumer relations department are previewed. Included are multi-media teaching units, buying guides and other materials dealing with value clarification techniques and other subjects of interest to educators in the field of home economics.

The program will be presented by Miss Linda Lou Lucht, a native of Donovan, Ill. Miss Lucht earned her bachelor's degree in home economics education at the University of Delaware where she also supervised student teachers, and was a visiting instructor at the University of Western Ontario in Canada. Her professional affiliations include the American Home Economics Association, The American Vocational Association, Kappa Omicron Phi and Phi Upsilon Omicron.

Research on Art THE WORLD OF ART By Robert Payne. Doubleday & Co. $12.50.

When so many specialists appear to be using the various arts in a socially self-disciplined, firm, even masochistic way, it is a pleasure to find an author who expresses unashamedly the malaise he experiences so frequently in recounting the history of the world's great pictorial and plastic creations.

Robert Payne, half-English, half-French — is one of the most prominent contemporary writers. For versatility, he has produced quite informative biographies of Lenin, Stalin, and, most recently, Karl Marx. He has written with understanding about Troy, Albert Schweitzer, and China.

All this does not imply superficiality; he researches everything he touches. In his latest, "The World Of Art," he has attempted nothing less than telling the story of the main chapters in the history of art and being able to visit the locales of these creations when necessary for deeper understanding — the caves of France and Spain to see the artistic bequest of prehistoric man as well as India's famous caves of Elephanta and Ajanta with their massive wall paintings. Of course, he has studied the great Gothic structures and the treasures of Renaissance art.

Naturally, not being an artist himself, Payne may be criticized by some as expressing primarily his own preferences or prejudices. But he strives heroically to get inside the minds of the artists and impart something of the joy, frustration and triumph he believes they felt on the steep road to achievement. He divides the main epochs in art from Pre-Raphaelite to the times of Picasso and Henry Moore.

True, he makes some claims which, while we might not be able to disprove them, certainly could not be established beyond the proceeds. For instance, that the conventional picture of Jesus stems from the bearded statues of the Greek god Zeus, while those of Buddha go back to the conventional pictures of Jesus from the Egyptian Pharaohs, particularly Ramses II. Nor is it unquestionable Leonardo da Vinci painted another portrait of Mona Lisa — in the nude.

But for the layman who would like to understand great art better, this is the book. Ronald C. Hood

Deplores 'Instant' Success

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service
HOLLYWOOD — Paul Henreid, star of stage and screen, actor, director and producer, and romantic idol of the 1940s, relates the current sad state of the movie industry to instant coffee.

"We are going through a time," Henreid said the other day as he toyed with a cup of freeze-dried java, "when everything has to be instant. We have instant coffee, instant tea and instant love."

"Now, if you want a car, you don't save for it before you buy it. You buy it at once and pay for it later. If you want to take a trip around the world, you do the same."

"This philosophy has taken over the motion picture industry. We have the writer who writes the material in a matter of days, the director who suddenly makes him the only writer in the world. Hollywood becomes convinced that there is just one director, just one star. Without that one, nobody can make a picture anymore."

Henreid, a native of Austria, has the courtly charm of a Viennese aristocrat, but he doesn't let tact interfere with honesty when he talks about the film industry, a business he loves.

Naming a name, he cited director Robert Altman as an example of instant "genius."

Records Beatles Producer Finds Group

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newfeatures Writer
George Martin, who produced all the Beatles records, has a new act. Two Englishmen instead of four. Brian Parrish, 24, and Paul Gurvitz, 27. Their first album, "Parrish and Gurvitz," has just been released on RCA.

Martin says, "While the Beatles existed, they had my first loyalty. We would spend up to five months on one album and you never knew what one was going to do. One of them might decide to do one song one day, and he expected me to be available. Under those conditions you don't devote yourself to anybody else."

Why not start your own band, he says? "I'm not looking for anybody else, though I might sign one more act. My main purpose is to get these two known around the world. I've been insistent that the sound at their concerts be as good as the record. There has to be a certain quality to the sound of their recordings. I don't want to be a producer who records a recording and then says, 'Well, that's the way it was.'"

Just how much does a producer mean to a recording? Martin says, "It varies considerably. I suppose I'm responsible for the elevation of the status of the producer, which I deplore. Some people think he's more important than the artist, which I think is nonsense. In the old days, you'd find an artist, encourage him, select his material and organize the music that went with it. If it was Tom Jones, you'd do the arrangements. It was Simon and Garfunkel, you'd make sure the music was going to be good coming from them. Your job was to take them into a studio and make sure the engineer was doing his job, make sure the final record was a good one."

"I couldn't cope with half a dozen groups. Today it takes an awful lot of time to make an album — between four to six weeks and that is working hard every day. It costs a lot of money, too. You can manage to spend $20,000 and you can't expect to get it back in under 18 months or two years, or you

CAMERA Angles

Photography is a major key to understanding that vast engine to most Americans — Red China.

In the past few months, a door suddenly partially opened in the Great Wall after 20 years of being firmly closed. Television and still cameras poked their lenses through that door and did it very much. It was an extra person to deal with. At recording sessions she was always there. She didn't say much at first, but she was disruptive. She had a bed moved into the studio when she was ill. That was the way John wanted it.

Paul with Linda was almost exactly the same, it was almost like self-defense.

"We never had any rows. I guess they're all living their own lives and I'm living mine. I never did join in their social scene. If I had, I probably wouldn't have lasted long as a did. There was 14 years difference in our ages and they were famous then and they were surrounded with sycophants and I never would be that with them. I think they'll go on living as they are. They've set the pattern for the future. Ringo is the non-musical producer member of the group. He has a flair for designing things. He's got an obsession about stainless steel. He's gone into partitions and color slides which will run through May 13. It was conceived and edited by Margaret Weiss, photography writer for Saturday Review.

"Behind The Great Wall" at the Metropolitan Museum of Art features the work of eight photographers in more than 200 photos and a documentary film. It was put together by Cornell Capa of the International Fund for Concerned Photographers and remains on view through April 11.

Hall of the Hallmark exhibit features rare photos taken in China in the early 1900s by two visiting residents, an Austrian musician and an ambassador's daughter. Mrs. Audrey Topping, in 1971.

Baroness Giovanna Greiner-Catani, wife of the Imperial Chinese court in Peking in 1907, started to take pictures with her Kodak Brownie. The photos were a pictorial supplement included in letters to her mother and children.

Her privileged position enabled her to picture the formidable Empress Dowager and members of her court, the legation compound, traditional ceremonies and costumes, photos, now of archival importance. But when the Baroness chided away 45 years ago, she was only sharing her impressions of court life and the Chinese scene with her family.

BETTY CANARY Mother 'Escapes' but Not Really

By BETTY CANARY You can always tell when a young mother has escaped. You may not know why she's been "inside" for so long. It may be because she's had children taking turns with the hat and the stream of "Stop that!" "Give back that baby" but until she's two months old. It could be she has had to choose between repairing the refrigerator and hiring a cleaner. The point is, they've been driving down the street, in a department store and, especially, when she's having lunch out for the first time in months. She is the woman smoothing bedspreads in the furniture department. The girl who rearranges two shelves in giftware while muttering, "I don't know how these kids reach this stuff!" She's the one who whips out a tissue and wipes your child's nose. The one who doesn't watch the man giving the sewing machine demonstration—because she's too busy picking pins and ravelings off the floor. One needs to wonder at the woman who is driving along talking to herself. She has forgotten she's alone and kept up a steady stream of "Stop that!" "Give back that baby" and "The last time I'm telling you, it is the Last time." Men are constantly amazed when wives come home exhausted from shopping trips. And their poor wives tell them they're because they don't know what they've been doing. "I can't understand it," they say in puzzled tones, realizing they've put in four hours of re-winding yard goods, resewing tables in china departments, adjusting lampshades and dusting pictures. I couldn't understand it for a long time. And then one day I caught myself saying sternly to a man at a lunch counter, "Eat those crusts! Don't you want to have curly hair!" Dear Abby: This letter in your column about the woman who had a sign in her living room saying "Thank you for Not Smoking" might have surprised some folks, but not me. I believe in putting up signs. In fact, I have a big poster with red letters on my front door which says: "For all who wish to pass thru this door: 1. No smoking inside. It makes me sick. 2. If you bring your kids, either take care of them yourself or leave them outside. 3. I am not a bank, so don't ask to borrow any money. 4. I am not a grocer, so don't ask to borrow any groceries. 5. I am not in the hotel business, so don't ask me to put you up over night. 6. Don't bring me your problems. I've got my own. [Signed] THE ESTABLISHMENT" Abby, I am 28 and have a husband and four kids and they come first. Since I have had this poster on my front door, lots of folks have said I was nuts, but I don't care. POLLY'S POINTERS

Care of Septic Tank By POLLY CRAMER DEAR POLLY—My answer is for Mrs. J. C. D. who has moved into a house with a septic tank so would like some suggestions as to its proper care. I suggest that you obtain a blueprint of the exact location and size of the tank, how deep it is buried, etc. Of course, if they installed this themselves they will know all of this. I believe the most important thing is to have the septic tank pumped out every couple of years to prevent any backup. The time depends on the size of the family and the tank. Also, once the tank is pumped out nothing need be added to it to start the reactivating process. Save your money and forget all those useless gimmicks. Following these simple things we have never had any trouble with ours with a family of five using it for 13 years.—MRS. A.

stopping only to wait for the March hare and the Hatter to find discards. The March Hare had no problems. His first discard was the eight of spades. Then he shed all his clubs and hearts and then a second spade. The Hatter's first four discards were painful but forced. He had to throw two high hearts, a low club and a low spade. His fifth discard was even more painful because he had been caught in a progressive squeeze. He discarded the ace of hearts whereupon Alice coughed her back and squeezed the Hatter once more. He wound up taking no tricks at all.

Anyway, things have become a little more interesting. The March Hare had no reason to disturb the double and as for the Hatter his only problem was whether or not to double. Alice played her ace of diamonds. The Hatter showed up with two cards in the suit Alice had no worries. She ran off her eight tricks.

Physical Therapy Presents Healthy Career Potential

By ERNIE HOOD In reply to Susan M. Wappinger Falls, N.Y., and others who have inquired, physical therapists can look forward to excellent employment opportunities for the next 10 years. The demand for qualified workers is likely to exceed the supply. There are about 14,000 physical therapists at this writing, and nearly two-thirds of them are women. About four-fifths work in general hospitals. A license is required to practice physical therapy in any state. In the District of Columbia, and to obtain a license an applicant must have a degree in physical therapy from a school of physical therapy and must pass a state board examination. In the other two states (Texas and Missouri), employers require a degree or certificate from an approved school of physical therapy. If you would like information on an attractive career field, write to SO YOU WANT TO BE IN CARE of the Newspaper Careerists' Association, 410, 230 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017.

Girl Scouts Look To 60th Birthday

By MARILYN GORDON

The Girl Scouts are celebrating their 60th birthday this year. Mrs. Jane Emmons, executive director of Citrus Council of Girl Scouts, in a personal interview to The Herald emphasized the growth of the program.

"The scouting program has changed as the times have changed but we have retained our values. We have helped girls to explore their potentials. You might say we were the first women's lib group.

"More than ever today girls are involved in the planning of the program. There have been so many innovations in recent years. They have even agreed to the uniform. Senior Scouts and adults have a stylish pants suit."

Registration in Seminole County has grown from 1,388 as of January, '71 to 1,886 girls in January, '72. This is an increase of 36 per cent.

"The tremendous growth we are experiencing though is not limited to Seminole County," she added.

"Our greatest problems seem to be in areas where girls are on a double session in school. We have 10 to 12 troops that are meeting three times a week. Half of the troop will meet one day, half the other day and once a week the entire troop will meet. This places an added burden on leadership," Mrs. Emmons revealed.

"The quality of our leadership always has been the highest possible, but we are attracting more concerned young women today. They seem to be looking beyond their school and home to the community and recognizing the potential of girl power.

"We provide many opportunities for leaders to grow and develop their potential with different kinds of training.

"Of course we are hampered by the shortage of funds. We would like to free the United Fund to help those who are unable to be self-supporting. Scouting now has available sustaining memberships and more information can be given anyone interested if they will contact the council office.

"Changing school patterns influence the kind of service scouting provides. We expect greater co-educational activities at all levels," she stated.

DO-IT-YOURSELF

In a Scrape to Remove Paint?

By MR. FIX
It isn't painting that is so terribly arduous, it's the preparation. Yet proper preparation is a must if the paint job is going to be successful.

Removal of old paint that is blistering, peeling, cracking, flaking or chalking must be done before applying new paint. Failure to do so will cause the new paint to peel very soon.

Depending pretty much on the condition of the old paint and the amount that has to be removed, you can rid yourself of the old surface in one of several ways—scraping, sanding, burning or a chemical.

Scraping isn't the most efficient way but it is generally used where there isn't too much bad paint to remove. A stiff, wide-blade putty knife can be used for taking off loose paint, for lifting layers of paint that are peeling.

Scraping is a good method where the amount of work is small and where you are removing paint as you go along with the new painting.

A more efficient scraper is the hook type mounted on a wooden handle. Pull this over the surface to take off old paint. Either way, it is still hard work.

Sanding is a little more efficient when done by hand and a whole lot more efficient when done by some kind of mechanical sander. Use coarse sandpaper.

If the area is large, use sanding discs mounted on an electric drill. Work carefully to avoid marks from cutting and gouging.

Belt sanders are better but not very practical for house siding since they are heavy. Orbital sanders leave a good finish but are slow. Sanders such as these are better on horizontal rather than vertical surfaces.

Burning is a fast way to get rid of old paint, the method used by professionals on large jobs such as doing an entire house. But it is potentially dangerous.

Special attachments on blowtorches spread a flame so that it is no longer a pinpoint, which makes it more efficient and a trifle less hazardous. But you have to keep the torch moving.

Electric burners heat the surface and while not as dangerous as the open flame, must still be used with care. Do have the advantage of not having a flame that will go out in a breeze.

Chemical removers are expensive, dangerous in some instances, and efficient. It is not likely that you would do the house siding with chemical paint remover but such removers are perfect for furniture refinishing and other small jobs. They are ideal if you are applying a clear finish since there will be no marks from scraping.
