VOTE FOR
JOHN N. C. STOCKTON
For
United States Senator

CHAS. L. POLK

CANDIDATE FOR
Superintendent Public Instruction

I earnestly ask your attention for a few minutes in presenting myself to you as a candidate for Superintendent of Public Instruction of Seminole County.

Regarding my qualifications allow me to say that I have had a number of years of training in some of our best schools, five years of which time I worked my way entirely, earning every dollar as I went. I am perhaps not better educated by working my way, but I believe I appreciate a good education more and have a deeper heart interest in other boys and girls who may have a struggle in getting their education.

In asking for your support for this office, I do so fully realizing its responsibilities and opportunities, for I believe if one devotes himself to a thorough, careful study of the needs and conditions and keeps in touch with educational affairs in our state and other states, there is no limit to the time and effort that may be devoted to this work.

First, last and all the time the best interests of the schools should be the one great principle that should absorb all others in the purpose of your superintendent.

This is the service we are paying for and have a right to expect of those in our employ.

On the other hand, if this office is only used as a political stepping-stone, and our Superintendent only does what the law requires in visiting schools and the routine work of the office, he loses the greater opportunity, and Seminole County will be paying $1500 per year for a small service.

With malice toward none and charity for all, I earnestly solicit your votes with the promise that I will devote my entire time and effort to the work if I am honored with the office.

CHARLES L. POLK

DON'T LISTEN TO A LOT OF BOSH ABOUT WHAT BATES IS ALLEGED TO HAVE SAID ABOUT NOT WANTING THIS KIND OF VOTE OR THAT SORT OF VOTE. NO ONE HAS BRANDED BATES AS A FOOL. HE WANTS ALL THE VOTES HE CAN HONESTLY SECURE AND HAS BEEN ASKING FOR ALL KINDS OF VOTES SINCE LAST JANUARY WHEN HE DECIDED TO MAKE THE RACE FOR ASSESSOR. A VOTE FOR BATES MEANS A CONTINUATION OF PROGRESSIVE BUSINESS METHODS IN THE ASSESSOR'S OFFICE.

I Have Not Traded My Authority to Assess Property For Votes

BATES STATEMENT

BATES OFFERS HIMSELF FOR THE OFFICE OF COUNTY ASSESSOR WHOLLY ON HIS ABILITY TO HANDLE THE AFFAIRS OF THE OFFICE. BATES KNOWS THAT ABILITY TO DO THE WORK AND ABILITY TO KNOW THAT HIS HELPERS ARE DOING THEIR WORK PROPERLY IS WHAT IS NEEDED. BATES HAS BOTH OF THESE KINDS OF ABILITY. THIS IS WHAT YOU WANT IN AN OFFICIAL IF YOU CARE TO HAVE THAT OFFICIAL RENDER THE MAXIMUM OF SERVICE. VOTE FOR BATES TO RETAIN THE PLACE. HE IS THE MAN FOR IT.

The assessed valuation of Seminole County for the year 1913 amounted to $2,250,000. This gave the county approximately $68,000 in revenue. There was paid out for the establishment of the various county departments such as equipping the offices of the officials, purchasing and equipping a jail and furnishing the road camp, close to $25,000, and $43,000 to conduct the affairs of the county for the current year.

As your Assessor of Taxes I have thus far added to the 1914 rolls the sum of $750,000 and believe this amount will have reached one million dollars before the books are closed which will give the county an assessed value of $3,250,000.

This should give the county close to $87,000 in net revenue for the coming year on the same millage basis.

The state has already signified its intention of reducing to the extent of one mill the state millage and you can readily see that the commissioners of Seminole County have a good leeway in making a substantial reduction in the county millage, as the income on the 1913 basis will be almost double that of last year.

I have played no favorites in making this assessment and discovering these additional values. I have handled the work in a thorough manner and propose to continue on the same basis. I have not traded my authority to assess property for votes.

I believe those citizens of the county who have been paying the maximum on their property will appreciate the work I am doing in their behalf and it should eventuate in a large reduction of their tax charge for 1914.

This being the case and you knowing that I am attending to the business of your Assessor's office in an intelligent manner it seems to me that it means self protection to you when you vote to retain me in the office for the remainder of this term.

Again soliciting the vote of every citizen in the county and again pledging myself to you that I shall conduct your Tax Assessor's office in a manner that will lend dignity and honor to the county, as well as to each citizen in the county, I ask you to give me your support at the polls and away from the polls until the matter of deciding who is to be your next Assessor is settled.

BATES DESIRES ANY ONE TO PRESENT A LOGIC REASON AS TO WHY BATES SHOULD NOT BE ELECTED TAX ASSESSOR. HIS WORK CANNOT BE CONDEMNED. IT WILL NOT BE READY FOR PRESENTATION TO THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS UNTIL THE AUGUST MEETING. HENCE ALL THIS TALK ABOUT MAKING A CHANGE IN THE MOST IMPORTANT OFFICE IN THE COUNTY JUST BECAUSE ANOTHER PERSON WANTS IT IS A MISTAKE. BATES IS DOING THE RIGHT THING. PUT HIM IN FOR THE REMAINDER OF THE TERM.

T. K. BATES

ASSESSOR OF TAXES
Seminole County, Florida

WHAT IS THE USE IN MAKING A CHANGE IN THE ASSESSOR'S OFFICE UNLESS IT BE KNOWN THAT THE CHANGE WILL MAKE AN IMPROVEMENT IN THE CONDUCT OF THE OFFICE? YOU WANT YOUR ASSESSOR'S OFFICE HANDLED PROPERLY AND BATES IS GIVING YOU THAT KIND OF SERVICE. YOU KNOW BATES IS HANDLING THE WORK IN A CREDITABLE MANNER BOTH TO YOU, THE COUNTY AND HIMSELF. HENCE IT IS UP TO YOU AS A MAN OF GOOD JUDGMENT TO PLACE HIM BACK IN OFFICE AND LET HIM PROVE HIS WORTH TO YOU.

Commencement Day At Sanford High School

Class of Twenty-One Bright Pupils Go Forth Into The World Well Equipped For The Battle of Life. Many Visitors to the City Amazed at Large School and Perfect System

The graduating exercises of the High School were held in the auditorium on Friday evening. When twenty-one of Sanford's finest young people, having completed the course required by the school board were presented diplomas. Long before the appointed time the auditorium was filled to standing room with friends and relatives and interested people, as commencement night is always the culminating event of the week around which gathers a mingled feeling of joy and regret.

A splendid orchestra discoursed lovely music while the audience waited for the exercises to begin. The stage was beautiful, with decorations that were very simple but very artistic. Huge bamboo branches adorned the back of the stage. Smilar twined gracefully at the front. Potted palms at either side and the handsome pieces of statuary belonging to the school, completed the decorations that made indeed a lovely scene. At the appointed time, as the orchestra played an inspiring march the graduating class, the center of all attraction entered the building. First came Randall Chase of the Junior class at Herald. Immediately following were the teachers, Prof. N. J. Perkins, Miss Clara Guild, Miss Alice Tetherly, Miss Lillian Gibson, Miss Charlotte Katz and Prof. J. Rowland Perkins. Next came the local and county school boards, Messrs. Walker, Whitner, Phillips, Foster and Dickson Supt. of Public Instruction of Seminole County D. L. Thrasher, and of Orange County Rev. J. F. McKinnon; and the distinguished guest of the evening, Dr. A. P. Montague, president of Columbia College, Lake City, Fla.

After they had assembled on the stage and taken their places, Rev. J. F. McKinnon, invoked divine blessing very impressively. The first number was a splendid story of "A Celery Stalk." This was given by Miss Renie Murrell, and a more interesting topic for Sanford could not be discussed. The story started with the tiny seeds from the foreign lands from which they are brought, and charmingly portrayed in its many steps to maturity, till it is the much read about Sanford Celery, ready for shipment.

"The Motor Age," another subject of much modern interest was cleverly handled in a paper given by Benjamin F. Whitner, Jr. His subject was timely and his paper showed much research and thought that was a credit to the bright young student.

The Glee Club, which is composed of a charming group of High School girls sang two pretty choruses "The Moon Hangs Low in a Purple Sky" and "Song at Sunrise." Miss Mary Gatchel was next heard in a selection from Hiawatha that was greatly enjoyed by every one present. The lovely young speaker gave the touching selection with beautiful expression.

Miss Katherine C. Waldron's humorous essay, "Simon Says Columbus Day." She proved that "Simon" was a dictator of styles, fashions and fancies, and when Simon sets the pace the world at large will meekly follow. This was a unique paper and had very many original ideas.

At this time Supt. D. L. Thrasher arose and after a few preliminary remarks spoke with much feeling of the departure of Prof. Perkins, and expressed the universal regret of the people in his covering his connection with the schools after a most successful and batonous administration of ten years. This brought forth a round of applause as might have been expected on account of the popularity of the retiring principal. Mr. Thrasher then in a few remarks introduced the speaker of the evening, Dr. A. P. Montague of Lake City, Fla. Many graduation addresses had been given, but it is very doubtful if one has ever been given before any class that exceeded in merit the grand effort of Dr. Montague to the class of 1914.

His address was a masterful effort and a mingling of old wisdom, religion and patriotism, accompanied by the best advice that could possibly be offered to any body of young people. The ripe experiences of this noted educator made it possible for him to frame his address in just the right words that would make the best impression and not one sentence was lost in its effect. Sanford people are to be congratulated on having secured Dr. Montague for the evening. He also referred to Sanford's loss in the departure of Prof. Perkins, one of the best educators in the Southland.

Prof. Wildman then came on the stage and briefly stated that he had a pleasant and important duty to perform in presenting the medals that had been awarded in the declamation contest that was held in the afternoon. The class in expression conducted by Miss Green had done good work and it was deemed wise by the school board to award two medals. A silver one, for the best declamation of a grammar school student, and a gold medal to the successful high school contestant. Prof. Wildman then presented to Rosamond Radford of the grammar school the silver medal, and Miss Gladys Morris of class of 1916 the gold medal. Both young ladies were applauded on honors bestowed on them.

Prof. Perkins then addressed the audience expressing appreciation for kind words that had been spoken of him, and best wishes for the future of the school, also stating that he was in no ways prepared for a farewell address, he knew and loved the people too well to attempt anything of the kind.

In his own kindly manner and spirit he spoke a few words to the graduates, after which he presented the diplomas. At the conclusion the graduates repaired to the library where they received their friends. They were showered with congratulations and every good wish, besides many handsome presents, making in all an event in their lives that will never be forgotten.

Those receiving diplomas were Helen Adelaide Rowland, Earl B. Paxton, Evelyn Barbara Berner, Nina Mae Brown, Winnie Brown, Lucrea Winifred Chappell, Alice Bryan GoRee, Linda Evans Connelly, Adelaide Elizabeth Higgins, Clara Goertz, Mary Elizabeth Gatchel, Ethel Mae Moughton, Renie Elizabeth Murrell, Marian Packard, Viola Padgett, Catharine Gorton Waldron, Claire Henrietta Walker, John Franklin Coates, E. Howard Gilbert, George McLaughlin, and Benjamin Franklin Whitner, Jr.

Junior Class Reception

One of the most brilliant social functions given in Sanford during the year is always the annual reception given at the High School by the Junior Class complimentary to the Graduating Class, and the reception given by the juniors on Thursday evening in honor of the seniors of 1914 was no exception to the rule. The beautiful building was illuminated from top to basement, and the interior decorated with exquisite taste. In the decorations the predominating color scheme was green and gold, the Senior class colors, in compliment to them, and the Junior colors of black and gold were also in evidence.

The prevailing colors lent themselves prettily to the decorations, as yellow flowers and green foliage were used in large quantities. In the halls and in reception and refreshment rooms were green vines gracefully twined, intermingled with gorgeous yellow chrysanthemums and Southern yucca. Potted palms and ferns also added to the beauty of the scene. As the guests arrived they were met by a committee of Juniors, lovely young ladies prettily gowned in white, who showed the guests to the cloak rooms, after which they were escorted to the reception room, where the honor guests stood in line and received their friends. First in line were Prof. and Mrs. N. J. Perkins. Next was Miss Annie Whitner, president of the Junior class, and next the seven members of the Senior class. They wore the regulation caps and gowns and were indeed a happy, interesting group of young people.

After being presented and congratulating the graduates the guests then repaired to the auditorium, where a rare treat was in store for them. Miss Lucille Aspinwall sang a number of beautiful selections, and was accompanied by her sister, Miss Frances Aspinwall. Miss Aspinwall has been heard in Sanford on many occasions and her beautiful voice is very popular. The singer was at her best on Thursday evening and every number was one of especial beauty. The singer was encored again and again and each time responded with an appropriate number.

The guests were then invited to go to the refreshment rooms on the third floor, where an elegant ice cream and cake course was served at small tables. Miss Clara Guild and Miss Alice Tetherly assisted the Juniors in looking after the comfort of their guests, and nothing was left undone that was necessary to make the beautiful affair that it was. Every one who had the honor to be present, thoroughly enjoyed the evening and the Juniors and able assistants were voted royal entertainers.

Eighth Grade Graduates

The graduating exercises of the Grammar School were held in the High School auditorium at ten o'clock Wednesday morning, and were witnessed by a large audience of admiring relatives and friends of the boys and girls who were completing the Grammar School course. It was a large and handsome class of girls and boys and won merited applause as they marched into the auditorium preceded by the principal, Prof. Perkins and teachers of the eighth grade, Miss Floria Walker and Miss Katz. After being seated on the rostrum, making a very interesting group of bright young ladies, Hon. C. R. Walker of the school board invoked divine blessing.

The first number of the program was a pretty chorus, "Swing Song," sung by the school. The first essay was read by Ercel Little and he handled his subject, "Man's Struggle for Food" in a very interesting and thoughtful manner. Tom Merideth came next with a splendidly prepared paper on the "Two Leading Agricultural Products." Miss Ruth Waldron played a lovely piano solo, entitled "Sounds from the South" by Fritz Spindler. Her rendition of the number was very pretty. Watson Alexander came next on the program and his subject was "Tom's Race," a sketch that was cleverly given. "The Application of Science to Agriculture" was Clifford Walker's very interesting and instructive subject, and was handled in a way that showed thought. Next number was a piano duet entitled "Military March" played beautifully by two beautiful young girls of the class, Fern Ward and Virginia Brady. Mary Gardner had a big subject "Men Influential in Improving Agriculture" but she proved herself equal to it. Rosamond Radford gave a humorous reading "The Freckled Face Girl," that was one of the best numbers on the program. The class sang a pretty chorus called "Summer," after which Rev. F. P. Strong addressed the graduates. His address was a good one, filled with excellent advice and every good wish which was much appreciated. After this, Prof. Perkins made his farewell talk to the Grammar School graduates, congratulating them on having completed the eighth grade and urging them to push on to higher attainments. The diplomas were then presented to the following:

Class Day

The beautiful class day exercises of the graduating class were given on the campus on Thursday afternoon at 5:30. A large crowd of friends and relatives assembled on the north side of the school building at the entrance on the lawn at the appointed time. In most respects the exercises on these memorable class days are the most interesting of the whole week. More of the real nature of the class and the individual characteristics are displayed than at any other time. There is always a mixture of the sadness and mirth when the class comes together for a class day program. There is sadness on account of the nearness of parting ways and a feeling of joyousness because of having finished a work of years and attained the coveted goal, graduation day.

The program began when Miss Adelaide Higgins played a beautiful march and the undergraduates marched out of the school building and assembled around the steps which were the rostrum for the occasion. They made a pretty picture and were roundly applauded. The girls wore white dresses and hadges of their class colors. The boys also wore the class colors and looked equally as nice as they took their places on the right of the steps.

The Seniors came next and stood in a group on the steps. They wore the regulation High School Yegalla, grey caps and gowns and a more attractive intelligent lot of young people could scarcely be found anywhere.

After a song by the whole school J. Franklin Coates read a passage from the Hebrew Scriptures. George Weinrebilin clearly and distinctly gave a brief history of the Peace Movement that was very interesting. A pretty chorus was sung by the classes. A charming poem, "My Fatherland," given by Ethel Moughton, in her charming style. A thoughtful, well prepared paper on "Some Famous Workers of Peace and some Sayings of Famous Men" was read by Miss Winnie Irene Brown.

"Friendship of Nations" was the subject of a well prepared and splendidly given paper by Miss Linda Connelly. This was followed by a chorus by the school. The crowning event as usual on such days was the president's address. Miss Helen Rowland, president of the class of 1914 wore the honors with grace and dignity and her closing remarks to her teachers and classmates were beautiful and well chosen. On behalf of her classmates, Miss Rowland presented to the school a very handsome statue of Apollo Belvedere, god of light and love. The statue was unveiled as the presentation was made. On behalf of the school board Mr. C. R. Walker accepted the splendid gift from the class and expressed all kinds of good wishes for their future welfare and happiness. With Prophetic Utterances, as class prophet, Miss Claire Walker kept the audience amused and entertained for some time. When in the Land of Nod she had heard with much interest some prophetic utterances of the future life of people and when the names of her beloved classmates were called she listened and on this happy occasion revealed what she had heard as to their futures: If the class prophet is anywhere near right in her predictions for the future of her classmates they have cause to congratulate themselves for the future seems very bright indeed. Some will reach the halls of fame and all will attain some degree of success and usefulness. Here's wishing that the class prophet has not made any mistake, at least in telling of the good things in store for the class of 1914.

The class song was a gem and sung with enthusiasm. The closing song was "Swing Spangled Banner."

Grammar School Reception

On Wednesday afternoon the friends and patrons of the Grammar School were entertained at a most pleasing reception, when they were invited to inspect the work of the various grades. As they arrived they were met by Misses May Thrasher, Fern Ward and others of this school, and served with refreshing punch and cake, after which they visited the rooms of the various grades. The teachers received in their respective rooms and showed the visitors the exhibit of school work that adorned the walls.

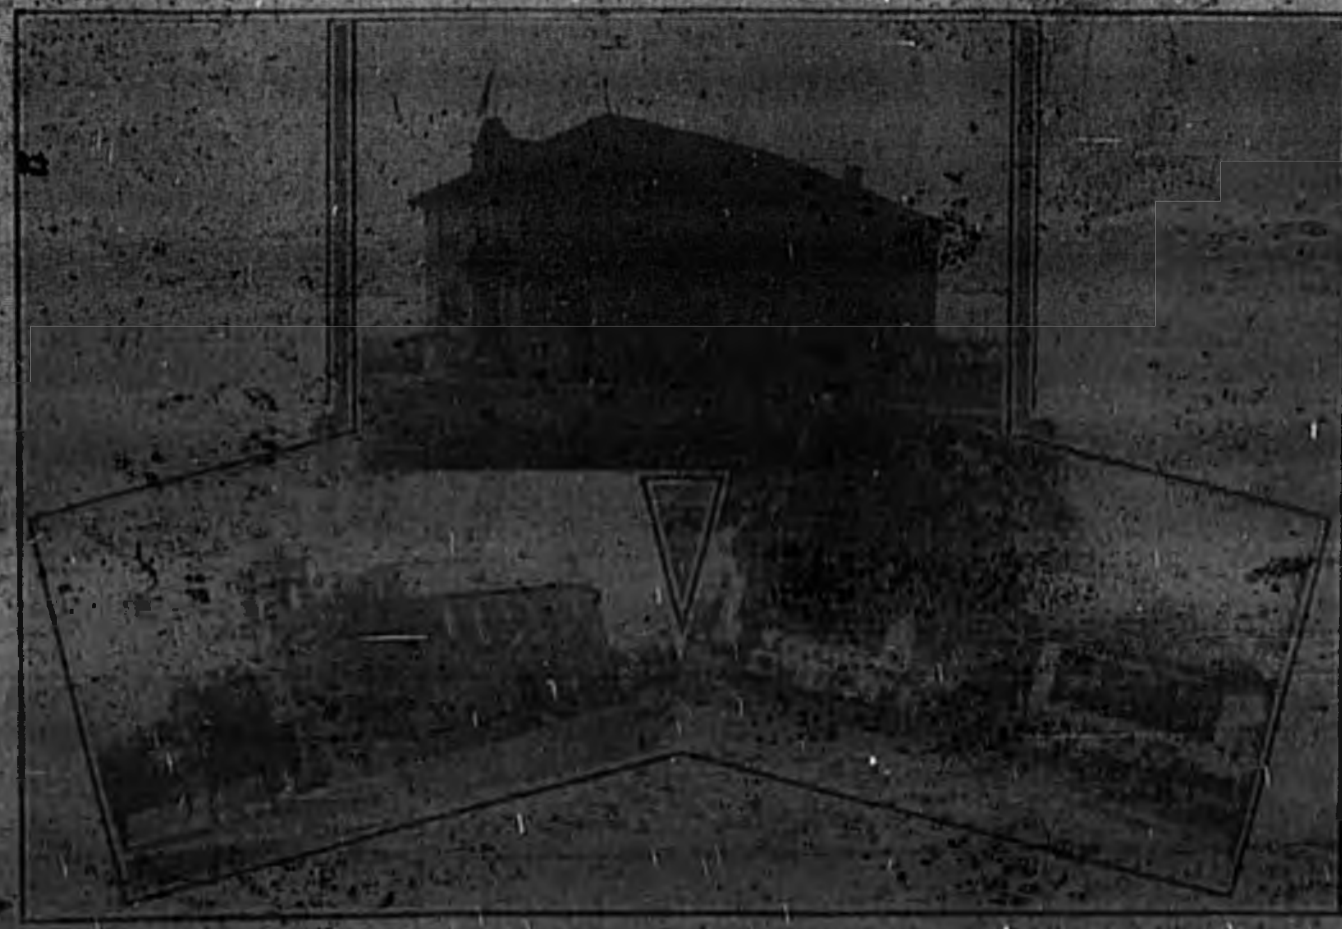

Every room was beautifully decorated with a profusion of lovely flowers and the display of every line of school work in the several grades most interesting and creditable. All the work was good and showed a thoroughness and neatness that was very gratifying in both the teachers and patrons.

Primary School Exhibit

On Thursday afternoon the teachers and little folks of the Primary Department were at home to their many friends and gladly received them as they had just completed a most successful year and had some very interesting proof of it. The rapid advancement of the tiny tots of the first and second grades is almost marvellous. Starting as they do, not knowing a letter, in most cases and after completing the first eight months, writing a legible hand reading and spelling and doing number work in a way that is indeed a wonder.

The walls were prettily decorated with borders of daisies, butterflies, wild roses, nursery rhymes and undornesth are the exhibits of all school work.

Lovely little booklets on which was written the perfect spelling of a month were noticed. Picture stories were written in clear large letters by first grade tots. Calendars were made for the twelve months, each a story within itself and appropos of the season. Writing is also one of the things taught and in the second grades some pretty samples were shown. Certainly school work is made so festive for the little folks and each year it seems some new ideas are incorporated in the work, and advancement is wonderful. In the primary grade Miss Lillie Farnsworth and Miss Peaches Leffler received the friends of the school and in the second grades Mrs. E. W. D. Dunn and Miss Edith Stewart presided over their respective rooms. The decorations were very pretty, a profusion of flowers and in the primary rooms a very artistic paper rope portiere hung between the rooms. This was the work of the children. Miss Plant and Miss Belle Smith served punch during the afternoon.

Medal Declaration Contest

Friday afternoon was taken up with the Medal Declaration Contest by the expression pupils. This is a new commencement feature. For some time past our schools have endeavored to stimulate interest in declamation, debate and expression. Therefore the Sanford School Board offered two medals to be contested for in the way shown Friday afternoon.

Quite a large crowd was present to hear the excellent efforts of the pupils. The contest was divided into two parts, one for Grammar school pupils and one for High School pupils. Competent judges, whose names have been withheld were present to decide upon the winners.

The contest was close and well fought. All the participants did well, and no one knew, until the decision was rendered Friday night who would be the winners.

Those from the Grammar School were Misses Rosamond Radford, Serita Lake and Annie Vaughn. The first named was later declared the winner of the silver medal, for the best in expression from the Grammar School.

The High School contestants were Misses Ruth Kanner, Annie Cameron, Mary Gatchel and Gladys Morris. The last named was declared winner of the gold medal for the best pupil in expression from the High School.

The medals were presented Friday night by Mr. Wildman. Miss Morris and Miss Radford are to be congratulated upon their merited success. Miss Green, who has conducted the class in expression is also to be commended upon the good work she has done.

OVIDO BAND ALL RIGHT

Young Musicians Perform Like Veterans Under Fire

The Ovido Band has been the main attraction at several concerts and picnics lately. The members of the band have also given much pleasure by serenading before the residences and business places of their friends.

This band has been in existence only about ten months and yet they play surprisingly like professionals and naturally the citizens are proud of them.

At the Chuluqta picnic, May 21, the full band gave a concert and it was received with hearty applause, and was congratulated by many of the leading citizens of Seminole and Orange counties. J. M. Stumson, leader and conductor deserves great credit, as it is through his faithful perseverance and teaching that the members have been able to progress so rapidly.

The Ovido Band was organized by Mr. Kely last August and it soon had the necessary number of members. They now have a full equipment of new instruments and a membership that is enthusiastic and earnest in their work.

Woodland Park Notes

Last Thursday some pupils of the Sanford Grammar School had leased the park for a real good time and they certainly had what they came for. They were chaperoned by Miss Mell Whitner and another lady. There were about thirty-five boys and girls, all as frisky as young colts. Dinner is usually the main feature of a picnic but at Woodland Park they have to be forced out of the pool to eat dinner. After consuming several tons of eatables they were not allowed to go in the pool for some time for fear of breaking the cement bottom. They also enjoyed the other amusements, the coaster car being in operation very much, owing to the generosity of two boys who invited every body to ride at their expense. The launch Mamie brought expense. The launch Mamie brought those who came by water.

Friday the Monroe school had their annual picnic at Woodland Park. The grown people dropped their work that day and joined the children and the way some of those older people frisked around was a caution. They had their spread out on the ground after the old time picnic fashion and put in a jolly day. A good many took a swim in the pool and the various amusements were continually in use. Monroe is a strong community, made up of many nationalities and is considered one of the main trucking sections. They enjoyed their picnic at the park very much. The weather was perfect and everything went off very orderly.

Sunday was a very busy day at Woodland Park. Six boats came, two of them from Beresford, bringing DeLand parties. A bunch is expected to come regularly from there in future.

The curative properties of the Woodland Park pool have been exploited before but Jim Harris lost a swollen ankle caused by a kick from a mule was entirely reduced one day by a few hours in that pool. Don't forget the title "Captain" when you address Hoolihan hereafter. Preparations going on every day for the big "Eagle" fish fry and picnic for Thursday.

Political Meeting

The county candidates are desirous of having a meeting in this city before the campaign is over, and Chairman Whitner of the County Executive Committee has designated next Saturday night, May 30th for this important event. All the county candidates are requested to be on hand and address the people. This will be the last meeting of the campaign and it will be a great meeting. As all parties concerned are friends and neighbors and residents of the same county it will be a friendly oratorical contest and there will be plenty of fun in the meeting. Remember the date is next Saturday night and the first guns will be fired at eight o'clock.

Attention, Ladies

All members of the Woman's Club are earnestly requested to attend the meeting of the Welfare Department Wednesday afternoon, May 28, at 3 o'clock in the club-rooms.

The business men of Sanford and members of the school board desire to enlist the interest and assistance of the women of Sanford in the securing of a chautauqua for next year, a matter of vital importance to every resident. This matter will come before the department for consideration and will be presented in detail at this meeting. A full attendance of all club members and every interested woman of Sanford will be appreciated.

American Composition And Music

BY FANNIE STEMBRIDGE MUNSON

Delivered to Literature Department of Woman's Club, Sanford, Fla., April 22, 1914

Our music of the earlier and Colonial Period is but the story of psalms. From the Revolution to the end of the Civil War marks the period of war songs, patriotic adaptations, plantation songs, in addition to some very fine hymn tunes, sacred anthems and, later, secular music.

John Knowles Paine, born in 1839, has been called the "Nestor" of American composers. He was the first to hold a chair of music in this country at Harvard University in 1862. Prof. Paine's Mass in D Flat appeared in Berlin in 1867. But earlier than this John Howard Payne had won European fame with his dramatic operas "Clari, The Maid of Milan" which contained the now world famous "Home, Sweet Home." Our classic, and hence real music history, however, dates from the larger form compositions of the first mentioned Paine. Prof. John Knowles mentioned Paine—Prof. John Knowles of Harvard fame—and this establishes the fact of our short music life which covers a period of but little over fifty years.

Truly pathetic was the struggle of the early American composer (for recognition). His numbers first appeared on programs as occasional scores, unprinted, unannounced, unknown.

During a series of concerts given at Steinway Hall, New York, in 1884, one concert was devoted exclusively to the works of American composers. This was our first strictly American concert program. From the date of this Steinway recital, the American composer has gained in appreciation at home and abroad. Today, from the good to the best, amateur or professional concert program, there is always included the American group, printed, or too well known to need announcement.

Musical progress in the United States of America has been through slow stages and hard struggles. While Europe, through centuries of inherited appreciation attained to her highest pinnacles in composition and music, young America had to struggle with civic problems, political organizations, Felling forests, building homes, fighting Indians kept the early settlers busy. Then there was the long battle against the narrower musical inheritances and prejudices of the Puritans and Quakers. Yet our record sets every foreigner a-mirvelling. "How completely we have taught up to Europe" (Sternberg), and in some instances, as in Strauss, outran her.

That we may not have a strictly national music as yet is easily accounted for by the shortness of our history. We are hardly yet a nation, but the "melting pot" of all nations, instead of a certain peculiar type.

American composition is then but something over half a century old; and too young to have made its positive impression on history while we have many writers who thoroughly enjoy international reputation.

Twenty years ago it was not easy to sell our productions abroad. Today, foreign music houses are persistently publishing our music works. Within the past year G. Schirmer, a music publishing firm in New York City has established in Europe a music house for the exclusive sale of American compositions. These facts give notable and deserved encouragement to the home writer, who shows, not only thorough musical training and broad musical hearing, but remarkable inventive talent (Sternberg); in fact, everything that entitles him to a high degree in the music world.

Now, may we not discuss a few of the usual thrills of American music and composition? First, because first, "Ragtime." Yes, this is an American production, but it is not a representative music, nor has it anything in common with our best, nor is it even allowed in our national bands. Ragtime, we know, receives its name from its ragged or syncopated time accent on the half or weak beat. One authority calls this ragged or syncopated time through the "coon song" and negro, of the original African home, where it is said, he first learned from a little bird of the oriole family, which sings in syncopated rhythm. If this be true, then where did Beethoven get his ragged or syncopated time? We cannot object to rag time because it has no melody. It certainly has a strong, vigorous, swinging melody. According to the structural analysis of a composition, it is not built on classical plan. But how much of good, popular and generally accepted music is not built on a strictly classical plan! Music should have a language of its own—beautiful and intellectual, to appeal to the soul and mind. Ragtime has not. Music should express an emotion pure and lofty. Ragtime does not. Then, it seems, we object, not so much for what it is, as for what it is not. Like the story of the servant girl who went to her mistress and said, "I am homesick; I must leave you."

"Why," said the mistress, "don't you like your room?"
"Yes, ma'am."
"Don't you like your food; don't you get enough to eat?"
"Yes, ma'am."
"Am I not kind to you?"
"Yes, ma'am."
"Then what makes you homesick?"
"It is not where I be, but where I have been that makes me homesick."
"So, not for what it is, but what it is not."

Of course, no one will understand me to say Beethoven wrote ragtime. He merely wrote ragged or syncopated time; he never degenerated to rag. Beethoven had ever a lofty ideal to express in whatever rhythm he clothed it. It is the persistent raggedness of rag that makes it so wearisome and commonplace. Besides, it has positively nothing to say, nothing.

"America is foreign taught!"
Up to within the past few years this was almost wholly true. First came the French refugees from their revolution. These were our earliest teachers. Then came the Italian, the Pole, the German. What of other nations? England? Christendom was young when England was old in contrapuntal effects. But Handel went over from Germany and taught England things about music and composition she had never dreamed of. Handel said, "England taught me much, too." Where did Handel learn? From Italy. Germany rose to her promiinence on the shoulders of Italy. Italy was once the primary teacher for the world. Italy learned from France. France stepped from her toddling clothes by the hands of the Netherlands. The Netherlands back to the Welsh, and down the centuries to Iceland. Yes, America, like all young nations has been foreign taught. Today America says "Wake up! Take notice! I shall teach the world!" And she cites Marie Rappold, Mrs. H. A. Beach and others, who are of international fame, and are entirely home taught. (Mrs. Beach is self taught.)

"But," says some one, "your instructors are still foreign." This is far from wholly true. But what of other nations? I presume in England you find more of the home-instructor than in most countries, because England is too conservative. In France and Italy, you are just as apt to find the foreign as the home teacher. Germany's greatest instructor, the one most sought for the past thirty years, is Leschetzky, a Pole. We know the story of Mrs. McDowell, who, when she went abroad to study, was flattered when she found she was studying with an American. She married her teacher, Edward McDowell. Ethelbert Nevin was more famed abroad than here. A leading theory and harmony instructor in Germany to day is American born.

"The American teacher is growing stronger and stronger abroad every year; the American pupil is crossing the Atlantic less and less every year. Yes, you find the foreign teacher in all other countries, and holding sway as well as in America."
"But America has not a national music and how can she have a national music without a folk song? All national music is built on folk song."
Some years ago, Ovorak wrote into his New World Symphonies negro melodies, and he said, "These shall be the American folk song." But alas! With few and minor exceptions we look in vain for the negro melodies in the works of our master writers.

Edward McDowell wrote his "Indian Suite." Then it was said, "These are more stately," which they are, "than the negro melodies, and because of their sturdiness and force should be the American folk song." But these have really made less impression on our music than have the negro song. True, we could adopt the folk song of the Indian and red race, or of the negro and African race, as the Hungarians did the "Gypsy songs" for their national music. But why should we?

There are those who believe we are now in the dawn of our nationalism, and this nationalism is, and shall be, made of the music elements of all nations. "This unified quality, not like any one element." Now, how much more characteristic of our mixed nation would this be; and truly gives us a unique individuality.
Surely, we must be in the dawn of our nationalism. Who can deny great originality and national inventiveness to such innovators as Sally, Park, Loomis, Ethelbert Nevin, Edward McDowell, who up to his death had been called by some and by foreigners, the greatest living composer in America. McDowell would be just as national without his Indian Suite. We must add the most original productions of some of our present day writers are still in manuscript; have never been published. If Germany was great before she knew it, and Bach was dead one hundred years and his family died paupers, before his life was worth anything, may we not give our Edward Bach for later ages to set on this an ideal glory and national aim!

Now in postlude. To quote in part, and after Hughes:
"In the ninth century, Iceland was the music center of the world. Students journeyed there from all Europe as to an artistic Mecca." Iceland has long since lost her musical crown. The Welsh and Celtic music have again in turn yielded claim to "this" or "that." Robert Schumann, Richard Wagner, Brahms, written out and has nothing new to offer Russia-rings into her strong and growing harmonies, a hopeless discord.

May we not prophesy that in the coming century, the musical supremacy and inspiration of the world will rest here over seas and in America!"

Hear Stockton
Hon. J. W. C. Stockton will address the voters of Seminole county in Sanford on Friday night, May 29th and everybody is invited to come out and hear the people's friend tell of his plans and the issues of the day. The band will play and the evening will be well spent and you will have a chance to learn something of your future senator.

OUR SCHOOLS

Although The Herald has already written much about the Sanford schools we cannot refrain from again mentioning the fact that in this city is the finest system of public schools in the entire southland.

Coupled with the regular courses are the athletic department where the pupils get muscle and healthy sport to keep pace with their busy brain and the music, art and oratorical and expression departments under capable instructors are placing our pupils nearly upon the high plane of the collegians.

A mere article in this paper cannot do the subject justice. A visit to the schools will give one a much better idea of the magnificent scope and work accomplished by the schools and the teachers and the year just closed in which the class numbered twenty-one demonstrators that in Sanford High School the scholars take an interest that carries them through the four hard years of study to a successful finish.

Many a young girl or boy has left a school in the midst of a term on account of a teacher who failed to recognize the best manner in which to reach that certain boy or girl and hold their attention and love and respect.

HOPE FOR THE FUTURE The grammar, intermediate, primary and kindergarten departments of the public schools in Miami closed today for the long vacation.

all have something to show for the eight months attendance. According to custom, The Metropolis should use this space for congratulating the children who have been promoted.

We have said "lessons in the way of meeting disappointments and the way of profiting by failures," but how many of these children who did not make the next grade, and who are perhaps struggling with the bitterness of an imagined ill treatment, are going to be shown the way to meet it?

Isn't it possible that many of the boys and girls who do not "pass" are laying the blame on innocent home folks? Perhaps they are imagining that the late breakfasts which caused them to be late to school so many mornings had something to do with their low standing.

How excellent it would be if next year the Miami schools have three class rooms, one in the primary, another in the intermediate, and another in the grammar departments whose work it would be to take care of all these children who failed to pass and by individual attention to their needs fit them for the exact grade in which they could do the best work?

In charge of these special rooms be the best teachers obtainable should be placed and that children should be taught to know that to be a pupil in one of them is not a mark of failure but a mark of appreciation of their special aptitude.

SHIFTLESS A lady called to tell the editor of a Kansas paper her opinion of the press, and her visit was acknowledged in the following paragraph: "Mrs. Thomas Fowler, who called at the Globe office today to declare that newspapers are shiftless and never get anything right, should tuck up her underskirt. It drags and looks sloppy."

We thank Brother Holly of the Sanford Herald for a highly appreciated notice of our determination to return to Kentucky, but as we will not go for a month yet, we may accept that invitation to come to Sanford and have our life prolonged.

In another part of this issue is Claude L'Engle's answer to the Jacksonville Metropolis regarding the changing of a telegram that seems to be the controversy between Dixie and the Metropolis at present. The people in this section are not concerned about the telegram or letters.

The Marion County edition of the Tampa Tribune is out and as usual with the Tribune is a work of art. It is composed of many cuts and descriptive matter and is placed before the people in the proper light.

A class of twenty-one bright boys and girls graduated at the Sanford High School last Friday night. A record for Florida and the south and one that the Herald is especially proud of as it represents the good work being done in our schools.

THE SWEET SIXTEEN There were five girls and sixteen boys in the 1914 graduating class of the Sanford High School.

There are schools that are high, And schools that are higher, And schools that are learned and wise, But the Sweet Sixteen Of the Sanford High School Are the ladies that win the prize.

There were boys in the class, And boys in the school, And boys on the playground each day, But the Sweet Sixteen Of the Sanford High School They carried the prize away.

There are girls on the farm, And girls in the town, And girls wherever you go; But the Sweet Sixteen Of the Sanford High School Are the brightest girls that we know.

There are girls that are pretty With powder and puff, And girls with a sweet winning smile; But the Sweet Sixteen Of the Sanford High School Have every one beat by a mile.

There are girls in the north, And girls in the south, And girls far over the sea; But the Sweet Sixteen Of the Sanford High School Are the sweetest girls that be.

There are girls in the east, And girls in the west, And girls wherever you roam; But the Sweet Sixteen Of the Sanford High School Are the sweetest girls in the home.

So here's to the girls, And here's to the boys, And here's to the rest of the crew; But the Sweet Sixteen Of the Sanford High School Are the best and sweetest and true.

Col. Thrasher as Host Commencement week in Sanford was enlivened by many social events in which the people of this city and the visitors took part and the city has been hostess to the many who were here attending the commencement at the schools.

The rooms were beautifully decorated with the lovely pink and white oleander and graceful palms, as the guests arrived they were cordially received by the genial host, looking handsome in his conventional evening tux. The evening was spent playing the popular game of auction, several rounds of the game being greatly enjoyed.

SHIPPING BY PARCEL POST

FLORIDA GROWERS CAN USE PARCEL POST AND TURN DOWN EXPRESS AND RAILROAD COMPANIES

Sanford growers can ship fruits and vegetables by parcel post and let the express companies and railroads go to Guinea for some other seaport. Read below what a Florida farmer is doing at Tropic and next season get busy on this matter and ship Sanford vegetables to all parts of the south and then some. The article is copied from the New York World:

Tropic was a mighty small dot on the map in the orange belt of Florida until the parcel post came along and lettered its name in red ink.

The products, consisting principally of citrus fruits, were at the mercy of the transportation companies until the parcel post law pointed the way out of its difficulties. Its orchards were producing wealth that might be classed as "untold" if only the fruit could be sent to market, but the railroads were unreasonable and the express companies were prohibitive in their tariffs. The fruit was allowed to rot on the ground because the markets were closed to them and things were mighty black for the people of Tropic until, providentially, the parcel post came to their rescue.

Representative Claude L. Engle, who represents the people of the First District of Florida in Congress, tells the story while sitting in his home in Chevy Chase. Mr. Engle incidentally spends his summers in Florida boosting the parcel post and his winters in Washington fighting rheumatism.

Mr. Engle doesn't take the credit for the metamorphosis of Tropic for his own, but gives it to Geo. F. Ensey, a Tropic fruit grower. When the express companies were charging a dollar a box to haul a box of oranges to the northern markets and the railroads asserted they had no freight car for fruit, Mr. Ensey, with a copy of the parcel post law in his hand, began to "figure." Then he wrote to all dealers within a radius of 500 miles, offering them oranges in small lots at prices considerably below the wholesale price established by the commission houses. The retailers read Mr. Ensey's letters and smiled dubiously. The plan, they thought, was hardly feasible, but if Ensey wanted to mail them oranges and he wanted less than they were already paying and he was able to make deliveries in good order and he wanted no money in advance well, they thought they might try it.

Ensey's orders at first were small. He packed his oranges into crates of not more than eleven pounds and he sent out good oranges. The fruit growers were willing to trust Ensey for their money and Ensey was willing to trust the "out-of-town" dealers, so he got the plan under way.

It wasn't very long before Ensey began getting repeat orders accompanied by checks for the last shipment. In a little while the postmaster at Tropic began to complain of overwork because of Ensey's parcel post shipments, but Ensey wasn't through.

The orange season drew to a close and Ensey began to branch out in business. He tried tomatoes and the results were as good, if not better, than those obtained from the orange mail order scheme. Ensey found that he would pack his tomatoes in small boxes, stick on some stamps and reap a profit.

know, the Postmaster General had boosted the weight limit to fifty pounds and Ensey found that small packages were no longer necessary. Today Ensey is handling, direct to retailers in all parts of the southern states, about all the beans, pineapples, tomatoes, oranges and cucumbers that Tropic can grow. Uncle Sam is finding his business at Tropic heavier each month. The fruit growers have stopped fussing with the express companies and the railroads are leaving it to Ensey. And the retailers who buy from Ensey are finding that Ensey can undersell the commission men. Ensey is getting rich.

RIVERVIEW, Jacksonville's Most Famous Suburb
Lots $10.00 Down, $5.00 Per Month

Right recently Riverview has taken on the most wonderful growth ever known in any suburb to Jacksonville. 50 homes now built and many new ones just started since operations opened up on the 50 thousand dollar Hotel Venice and the digging of the big canal by the big steam dredges. The motor car line, the 8 grade grammar school all goes to increase values.

All Prices Will Soon Advance Again
Anyone desiring a good sound investment will do well to take on a few of these lots.
No lots sold to colored people.

CURBSTONE GLEANINGS

BUDGET OF OPINION "JUST BETWEEN YOU AND ME."

EVEN THE GATE POST NOT IN IT

A CHIEF IS AMONG YE TAKING NOTES AND SAITH, "HE'LL PRENT 'EM"---SO SAYS SAUNTERER.

When a very pretty woman crosses her silk stockinged ankle and disposes of the superfluous drapery so that the best possible view can be given to all interested, take a look, says Barbara Lee in the Philadelphia North American. The ankle is probably very well turned, and the quality of the stocking quite superior, but—

She is just clever enough to try to keep your attention off the fluffy brain, or the lack of it, and the general lack of poise and all characteristics worth while.

If you are interested in the course of flirtation, watch any collection of chickens in the street. Choose a group that has a crement of undergrown men, or overgrown boys, and watch the wriggling, giggling, utter foolishness of the girls as they coquette with the males and play the game with crass ignorance as to the fine points. The main thing that is done is a flattering of the men and a longing gaze, though heaven knows what for, at the admirers; the voice has a loving tone and there is a willingness to accept any guff that the young gentleman hands the young ladies.

But—

This is the way to have a fuss made over you. This is the way to make a noise like popularity. This is the surest way to have great satisfaction, if you are a feather-brained female, in the fact that all other females are envying you.

Do you know a shallow minded woman who tries to cover up her ignorance with a sweet smile? When you mention the biggest event of the day, she looks wise and says nothing. She has never done one thing to add to the little mind that her childhood's experience left her, yet she gets there just the same. Well, take a look at her and solve for yourself the problem of how to make a bluff on nothing. It is a good lesson in life. For this little empty bluffer seems to make a fairly good hit with the men. They think her so sweet, they admire her reticence; they live to answer her questions and to instruct her in their superior, masculine way. But—

If you value all that is really worth a thought in life don't use her methods. Your womanhood is too good to sacrifice in this manner.

When you walk along the street look at the extremists that are legion. There will always be the woman who has the highest possible wing at the front of her hat. Another will have the largest question mark on her cheek in the latest style of hair dressing; still another will have the greatest bustle effect, and behind her will come one who has applied white and red powder with a trowel. Have a look. Then strike for the golden mean that always sounds the note of refinement.

It will be pretty near the time for excursions to the seashore. If you value your soul and the standards of American womanhood, have a look at the groups in bathing costumes behaving with disgusting freedom on the beach. Watch the young girls screaming in childish glee from the heights of the shoulders of husky young men. Have a look at couples lying around in positions that would not be permitted in any other place. See them kissing, hugging, snuggling out in the public gaze with experienced postures. Their mothers and fathers are near—

But it is bathing hour and "young folks will be young folks." May your gaze be profitable in the training of your own son or daughter.

Are you envious of the woman who has her French maid and a jewel casket that is full to overflowing? Have another look. It is not in French maids and emeralds that happiness can be rated. All the money in the world is really very little if there be no peace, joy, love. If you are emphasizing the material things in life, which today are and tomorrow are not, have another look at the true woman beneath the silk gown and the well-waxed hair that money has bought for her. Above all, be not too foolish at judging her a fortunate being. She may wish to change places with you.

You are wondering what in the world Angelina sees in the man to whom she is engaged. You cannot understand how she can pass an hour in his company, not to mention a life-time. Have a look at your own husband. Maybe she thinks the same of him.

Perhaps you live in comfort, and many times a day it is possible to see green hedges, blue skies and gant homes. Just for a change of heart, walk down into the poor sections of the town. See how people "must" live because they cannot get up enough strength to leave squalor and poverty and a despairing fight against insuperable odds. Whatever your misfortune, you will have something more serious to think about. Have a look, but—

Don't stop there. Do something your little way to help things toward a better condition.

At the restaurant table, if you are fortunate enough to be eating in peaceful comfort, look at the large percentage of women who are drinking of beverages that are decidedly hard on their constitutions. If you can see the French knots into which the ladies twist their faces when overcoming a martini cocktail or a highball, you will marvel at the strength of mind that permits them to drink that which is not relished. But it is sporty, so have a look at the sports. And then look the other way.

After all, this looking around is a very profitable business.

Fred L. Boul, war correspondent for a number of newspaper has written a story from Vera Cruz that is worthy of being lifted bodily and transplanted in the editorial columns.

It is an unusual story for a war correspondent to write. Not at all the kind of a story one expects a war correspondent to send back home. But read it yourself. We offer no introduction and append no comment.

"The roughest thing in Mexico is a jeopardized American dollar. You can hear his cries any evening on the Plaza de la Cathedral.

"What," the American business man who has fled from Mexico wants to know, "are we leading in Vera Cruz, for?" When are our troops going to march on the capital?"

"The American business man left Mexico City hurriedly. He left a business worth, say, $100,000. For all he knows the federals have burned his store and looted his safe.

"He wants to know if there are any such things in the world as property. It is a duty of this United States government to protect American business interests abroad.

"What is your business in Mexico City, worth?" he was asked.

"One hundred thousand dollars," he said and groaned.

"And you want the American troops to go to Mexico City and save it?"

"I certainly do. I'm an American citizen."

"How long have you lived in Mexico?"

"Twenty-five years."

"Pay attention in the United States?"

"Certainly not. My property is all in Mexico."

"Ever go home to vote?"

"No."

"Then you, who don't care enough about your country to live there sometimes or do vote or pay taxes, want American soldiers sent to Mexico City to save your property?"

"But don't you see that I am not alone in Mexico? There are hundreds—yes, thousands—of Americans in business in Mexico City."

"Exactly," spoke up one of the newspaper men. "The census of 1910 gave 15,000 Americans in Mexico and a total population of 16,000,000."

"Of the 15,000 Americans, we'll say 5,000 are men working for the big mining and oil companies for wages and small salaries. That leaves 10,000 of the big fellows. And you want 90,000,000 people to come to the rescue of 10,000?"

"Well, if you don't do something soon it will be impossible to do business in Mexico."

"Therefore we must teach the Mexicans a lesson. If we were to march on Mexico City, how many Americans do you suppose would die?"

"I don't want any of them to die," the American business man protested.

"But they will die. A lot of them will die. Let's say that one man would die for every $10,000 worth of property owned by Americans. Ten would die for yours. I had to leave the capital in a hurry too. I left behind a piano, a dress suit and some other things. I demand that my property rights be protected. MAYBE A SOLDIER WILL DIE FOR MY PIANO AND DRESS SUIT, ALSO."

"The man who will die for my piano joined the army from patriotic motives. So did the 10 who will die for yours. They are better Americans than you, because they stay at home and vote and pay taxes. They are producers and some day, they will be with the are not no—husbands and fathers of children.

"But, doggone it, haven't I any rights at all in Mexico?"

"Not one. You knew Mexico was turbulent when you came in. You took a gambler's chance, because there was a prospect of big profits. You've lost. That's all—you've lost."

"Then all the little jeopardized American dollars CLAMORED TWICE AS LOUDLY AS BEFORE

"But the army at Vera Cruz sheds few tears with the weeping American dollars!"

POSTOFFICE BUILDINGS MAY BE QUARTERED

APPROPRIATIONS TO BE CUT BY POSTMASTER GENERAL BURLESON

SANFORD BUILDING WOULD SUFFER ALSO

ON PLAN OF RETRENCHMENT FLORIDA BILLS WOULD BE CUT IN HALF

Washington, May 29.—In a report to Congress Postmaster General Burleson in effect charges Congress with extravagance in making appropriations for a number of post-office buildings in Florida. He declares that the amounts appropriated are beyond the needs of the service. He submits the following recommendations:

"That a public building for post-office purposes only be not authorized for any place unless the rental paid for government offices is as much as $1,000 per annum and then only when either the gross postoffice receipts amount to as much as $15,000 or the population to as much as five thousand."

"That public buildings, not exceeding twenty thousand square feet in area, to be used exclusively or in part for postoffice purposes, be divided into classes designated by letters of the alphabet; that the size of such buildings be determined on the basis of two hundred square feet of building area for each of the estimated number of persons to be employed in the postoffice ten years hence, and that the limit of cost for such buildings be fixed in accordance with the following standards, allowing not more than 75 per cent additional to cover the cost of United States court accommodations: Class A, area required 4000 square feet or less, limit of cost $15,000; Class B, area required 4500 square feet, limit of cost $27,500; Class C, area required 5000 square feet, limit of cost $30,000; Class D, area required 5500 square feet, limit of cost $35,000; Class E, area required 6,000 square feet, limit of cost, $40,000; Class F, area required 6,500 square feet, limit of cost $45,000; Class G, area required 7,000 square feet, limit of cost $50,000; Class H, area required 7,500 square feet, limit of cost $55,000; Class I, area required 8,000 square feet, limit of cost $60,000; Class J, area required 9,000 square feet, limit $70,000; Class K, area required 10,000 square feet, limit of cost $80,000; Class L, area required 11,000 square feet, limit of cost $90,000; Class M, area required 12,000 square feet, limit of cost $100,000."

"That standard plans of several types be prepared for each class of buildings, and one of the type plans of its class can be used in the construction of every public building except those that must be treated as special projects."

"That an amount equal to 20 per cent of the amount authorized for a government building be fixed as the maximum cost of a site therefor."

"That a limit sum appropriation of $10,000,000 be made annually for public building work, to be expended in accordance with the plan herein recommended."

The postmaster general sets forth what the appropriations are for several Florida cities and what they would be under his plan as follows: Live Oak—Appropriated, $50,000; cost under Burleson plan, $25,000. Panama—Appropriated, $60,000; cost under Burleson plan, $24,000. St. Petersburg—Appropriated, $80,000; cost under Burleson plan, $46,000. Bartow—Appropriated, $55,000; cost under Burleson plan, $30,000. Deland—Appropriated, $65,000; cost under Burleson plan, $30,000. Orlando—Appropriated, $55,000; cost under Burleson plan, $30,000. Apalachicola—Appropriated, $75,000; cost under Burleson plan, $30,000. Lakeland—Appropriated, $75,000; cost under Burleson plan, $30,000. Seaside—Appropriated, $70,000; cost under Burleson plan, $30,000.

Legal Holiday

Saturday, May 30th is a legal holiday and the postoffice will be closed. General delivery will be open from 8:30 to 9:30 a. m. and one hour in afternoon after 8:30 has been distributed.

CHAS. F. HASKINS, Postmaster.
