Japanese Firefighters
This past Thursday and Friday, the Altamonte Springs Fire Department hosted two firefighters from Tokyo, Japan, touring the country looking at accredited fire department operations. The Altamonte Springs department was internationally accredited last year, and is one of only a handful of such departments in the nation. The Japanese toured and studied command operations, public education endeavors, fire loss prevention and building codes. The Tokyo Fire Department is one of the largest in the world with over 250 stations and over 18,000 firefighters.

Competition
Oviedo High School Seniors Jacob Weisbrod and Karl Wesson won first place in the Central Florida Auto Dealers contest held January 9, at Seminole Community College. They are now headed to the national competition in New York City in March.

The students took a written test and the high scores qualified them to take a hands-on exam where they were tested on all the systems of a car. Two students also placed third in the contest, Seniors Josh Nicholl and Ben Odosky. Weisbrod and Wesson won $1,000 scholarships, while Nicholl and Odosky won $500 scholarships.

City analyzes costs for new lights

By Joe DeSantis
Staff Writer

SANFORD — Representatives from the Sanford Historic Trusts have received final cost estimates for a street light initiative in the city's Historic District. Now they await the next step in establishing a Special Taxing District to finance the possible installation of more than 140 historically replicated gas street lights.

Roughly plotted, the Historic District

Historic district home owners would foot the bill for 142 gas street lights runs from 3rd Street to 13th Street north and south, and from French Avenue to Sanford Avenue east and west.

About 570 homes would be affected by the Special Taxing District if the measure is approved. The plan would add 142 four-mantel gas street lights on 12 foot fiberglass stanchions. The lights would include a photo cell that would trigger illumination on at dusk and off at dawn.

Each homeowner would be assessed

$7.88 per month for a 10-year period to pay for installation, maintenance and cost of gas fuel. That cost could fluctuate depending on market conditions for natural gas over the next decade.

The 142 gas street lights would be placed at mid-block on each of the District's tree named avenues north and south and at mid-block of each numbered street running east and west to compliment the existing 65 electric street

The Double R Private School in Geneva celebrated the 100th day of school with a colorful balloon release. Some 130 students, age 2 through grade 8 participated in the activity. The event was coordinated by math and science teacher, Janet Shogren. According to Shogren, the balloons and strings are biodegradable and environmentally safe. "This is the second year for our balloon release," Shogren said. Each balloon has the name of a student attached to it along with the name of the school. The school hopes that whoever finds a balloon will contact the school. See Page 10A for more pictures.

Two cops injured in grocery robbery

Shoplifting steaks turns into attempted murder charges

From Staff Reports

On Monday, Jan. 29, Longwood police officer James Burkshire was working a special detail at the Albertson's grocery store, located at 200 South U.S. Highway 17-92.

At approximately 6:20 p.m., Burkshire observed two black males concealing a large quantity of meat products on their person and exit the grocery store without paying for the items. Burkshire, along with two other Longwood police officers, attempted to stop the two suspects as they exited the Albertson's grocery store with the shoplifted items.

One suspect, Anthony Williams, 43, of Altamonte Springs, did not resist arrest and was taken into custody. However, the other suspect, David Tyrone Gaymon, 46, of Sanford, resisted arrest and entered a vehicle, which had been parked outside of the grocery store.

'Mother Hicks' returns to Sanford theater

By Michelle Jerin
Managing Editor

SANFORD — Mother Hicks is returning to downtown Helen Stairs Theatre will present "Mother Hicks" this weekend. It is the second time Director Alton Lathrop has led a cast of local actors in the Depression Era story about a young girl trying to find the truth of her identity.

"It's a play that will appeal to both children and adults," Lathrop said. "Most everyone can relate to the moral issues presented in the story."

The tale takes place in a small, desolate town in the 1930s, Lathrop said. A young orphan, called Girl, goes through life wandering from home to home trying to find out about her past.

During her journey, she befriends Tuc, a deaf mute, and Mother Hicks, a woman who is believed to be a witch.

"Mother Hicks really isn't a witch, she just likes animals and nature," Lathrop said. "But, when disaster strikes, like the Great Depression, people need to point fingers at someone."

Girl, who has no name because no one ever named her, ends up staying with Mother Hicks. The older woman promis-

SEMINOLE SUMMARY

A GLANCE AROUND OUR COUNTY

A story of a boy and his lemonade

Here's an old story: A woman saw a young boy selling lemonade in front of his house. Being thirsty, the woman stopped and asked the boy, "how much?" The boy responded, "$10 a glass."

"Why are you charging so much?," she asked, "You won't have many people buying your lemonade at that price." To which the boy answered, "No but this way if I only sell 10 glasses I'll make $100, which is easier than selling 100 glasses at $1 each."

Nick Pfeiff

Well, I guess the boy had something there. It would certainly have cut down traffic to his lemonade stand, and he wouldn't have had to work as hard. You may not have heard this one before, but I bet the folks at our tourist attractions and other events have. Everyone is jacking prices up to where fewer and fewer people can afford them. The major attractions, southwest of Orlando, even the Daytona International Speedway, have increased admission prices in the past week.

Like the little boy assumed, if fewer people show up and pay more money, he will still have as much income, and less crowds. Just a few years ago, before the prices got out of reach for many, we used to visit the attractions often, just like the tourists. Why not? They are enjoyable and excellent entertainment for everyone in the family. When relatives visited from up north, many of us even paid for their admission to an attraction, a concert, live theater performance, or what have you. Now, we can hardly afford to pay for ourselves.

Yet look at the stocks. Without exception, every one of these businesses which have been increasing admission costs, have been showing higher and higher profits.

I fully realize times have changed, and the cost of everything has gone up. In my childhood, my father used to take me to the movies and for 10 cents admission each, we would see two features, a cartoon, newsreel and a serial (Gene Autry, Tom Mix, Buck Rogers). We didn't see a half dozen trailers for upcoming movies or several dozen commercials. Just entertainment. Occasionally, our 10 cent ticket would be in a drawing for a grand prize.

Now, we pay $5 to $10 to go the movies, and get trailers, promos, commercials, and one movie. We also spend a small fortune on snacks such as popcorn or beverages.

But fewer people are going to the movies since the advent of television — especially cable or satellite TV with all the movie channels. So, they charge more for fewer folks — and they're just like the little boy we discussed in the beginning. Many times, people are just refusing to pay high prices, and we see more and more theaters closing.

We have reached the point where attendance at functions which cost great deals of money, will not see packed houses. They may make more per person, but should not boast that they are trying to serve the people. In my opinion, serving the people with entertainment should be strictly that — entertainment — not emptying their purses and wallets.

As you may have imagined, I wouldn't buy any of that kid's lemonade, either.

For your convenience

Denise Tate, collection service coordinator for the Seminole County Library System, and Margie Johnson, youth services coordinator, demonstrate the new self-serve check-out machine. The device allows library patrons to check out books at their convenience for quicker service. Currently, the main branch in Casselberry is the only facility with the machine, but Tate and Johnson said every branch in the county should have one by spring.

Mind game technology

Have you ever noticed that some people really feel a need to show you how successful they are? Especially if they sense that you may be falling behind in that area. I know a guy like that. He's always talking about his new boat or showing up in a fancy new car or planning an exotic vacation somewhere for himself and the first cheerleader who answers the ad. These people are always hard to avoid and impossible to ignore. And since physical assault is frowned on and can sometimes backfire, I've come up with a cutting edge high-tech way to get back at these pompous blowhards.

Red Green

Let's say this guy buys a $10,000 top-of-the-line garden tractor with a double bagger and a hydraulic blade. In privacy, you go on the Internet and get all the information you can on that particular make and model. Find the chat group for it and ask if anybody has had any problems with theirs. Forward all the responses to Mr. Smarty pants. If you're not getting enough bad news, try starting an anonymous rumor on the Web site bulletin board. Something like "I find my tractor impossible to start, and it leaks oil and gas. It's also top-heavy and often tips over in the wind. I'm worried about my dog. Has anybody else had problems?"

You'll be amazed at how people will suddenly find things wrong with their tractor. It's like listing side effects on a medicine bottle. Forward all those messages on to your pal. Then for the crowning touch, after six months of product sabotage through rumor and innuendo, look up the make and model on e-bay and see how much the price has dropped. Don't just forward that message to your buddy. Print it off and slip it into a sympathy card.

Stop Thinking Of Yourself As Human

Looking at old pictures of yourself can be very depressing. The trim body, the clear eyes, even the complexion are all gone now. The only smooth skin you have left is where your hair used to be.

The problem comes from your perception of aging as a linear process. At one point many years ago, you were at the peak of your abilities, and you've been depreciating ever since. That's because you think of yourself as a human being.

Instead, I suggest you think of yourself as a reverse insect. You start out as a beautiful butterfly, flying high and doing all the things that beautiful butterflies do, and then you evolve into another form. Tell people you're not an old worn-out butterfly, you're a brand-new caterpillar. It would be foolish to continue trying to be a butterfly. Your job now is to be a great caterpillar. And that bulge around your middle is just the remains of your cocoon.

The Effective Use Of Guns

There's a lot of controversy about people owning guns, and I don't really want to get into that, but I do feel there's an advantage to making thieves think you have a gun in your home. Even if you don't. Here are a few things you can do to make the bad guys think they should move on to a neighbor's house:

- Hang a car engine from a tree in your front yard.
- Have a welcome mat that says "God Bless the NRA."
- Have an empty holster dangling from the doorknob.
- Have a few powder burns around the peephole.
- Sprinkle the sidewalk with empty shell casings.
- Have a small headstone on your front lawn that says "For Sparky, with regret."

Be Prepared

When fund-raising groups like the United Way take it upon themselves to be society's moral barometer, they should be prepared to weather the firestorm — and see a drop in contributions

It appears the Heart of Florida United Way (HFUW) is going to make peace with the Boy Scouts of America. That's encouraging because both are worthy organizations that provide needed services to the community. What bothers us is the fact this controversy began in the first place.

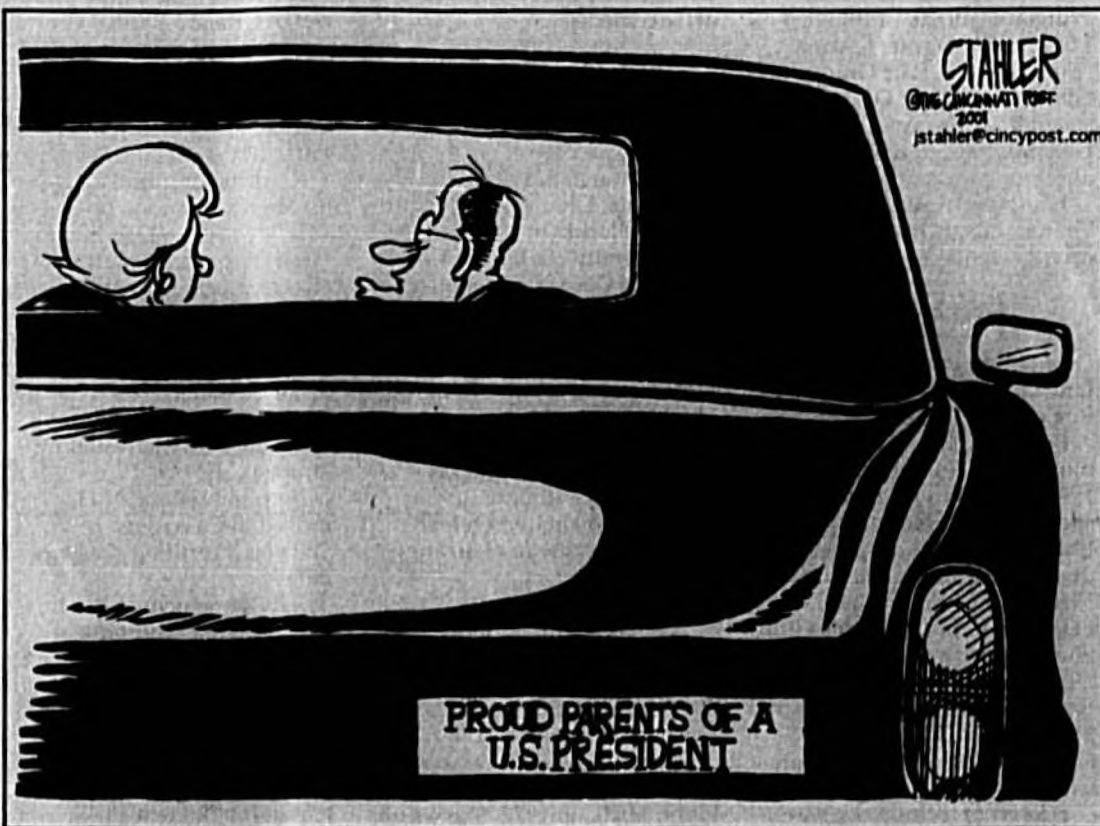

The HFUW decided last summer that every organization which came under the United Way's funding umbrella would have to adopt a nondiscriminatory policy that measured up to HFUW's standards. Though HFUW claims the new policy was not aimed at any one group, the timing — coming shortly after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled the Boy Scouts can ban homosexuals from serving in a leadership capacity — seems suspicious. It was as if the board of directors decided the Supreme Court's decision needed a little tweaking.

The Heart of Florida United Way should stick to its original mission of fundraising and get out of the business of dictating policy to others. One wonders why the HFUW would divert time and energy from its mission to engage in a morality battle, especially when other United Way organizations around the country see this as a non-issue. Of the 1,400 United Way agencies across the country, only 10 of them — less than 1 percent — have adopted a similar policy, and just a handful of others are even considering it. The overwhelming majority of United Ways have no conflict with the Boy Scouts and understand the United Way should not place morality demands on the Boy Scouts of America or any other organization that receives funding.

Now of course, there are thousands of charities and organizations that would love to receive funding, but the United Way can not serve them all. HFUW has to choose which organizations are United Way agencies. Could the board choose not to fund the Boy Scouts? Certainly, but the rub is HFUW needs the Boy Scouts more than the Scouts need HFUW. The Boy Scouts are one of the charter members of United Way, and the organization helped provide credibility when the United Way was searching for contributions during those early years. Both organizations can survive without each other, but as evidenced by concerns raised by major donors, HFUW will take a much bigger hit in the wallet if the two groups part ways.

Furthermore, the public shouldn't buy HFUW's PR spin on this either. Local United Way officials claim numerous requests from Disney employees prompted them to initiate the change in policy. Baloney. How many rank-and-file Disney employees making $8 an hour are concerned about any of United Way's policies? Very few. Instead, we suspect this was a gesture on HFUW's part to stay in the good graces of The Mouse's upper management, the driving force that makes Disney one of HFUW's largest contributors. Disney and HFUW have no business dictating what policies the Boy Scouts should follow; and for that matter, it's not the Scouts' place — or the Southern Baptists — to expect their morality be incorporated into the Mouse's business plan.

The bottom line is this: When a fundraising organization shifts its mission from raising money to passing judgment, it risks alienating those it most relies on for support. HFUW can claim to be taking the moral high ground on this issue, but the fact of the matter is HFUW will bow to the will of the wallet, leaving both sides to view the organization in a dubious light. Not a good thing for an agency that depends on credibility and goodwill to fill the coffers. The board of directors should have never started down this trail.

Rose, Beers disagree with Rowell's letter

To the editor:
On Sunday, Jan. 28, 2001 on the "Opinion" page of the Seminole Herald, a letter to the editor was written by Steve Rowell of Lake Mary titled "Arts shouldn't be based solely on bottom line."
According to Mr. Rowell's letter, he is apparently upset that his son, who plays Ricky Ricks in the Helen Stairs Theatre production of the play "Mother Hicks," will be unable to perform to an empty house on Friday, Feb. 9, and Saturday, Feb. 10 (the two performances that were canceled).

The criteria theaters use to cancel performances is fairly simple—less people in the audience than actors on the stage. Canceling a performance is at the sole discretion of the director. To think these shows were canceled for economic reasons is ridiculous.

The cost of producing "Mother Hicks" remains the same for one, two or six shows. The cost of the director, technicians, royalties, programs, advertising, set construction, props are set costs. The only additional costs would be utilities. There is no bottom line benefit to canceling a show, as well as no benefit for actors to perform to an empty house.
It is amazing that Mr. Rowell, who is not a contributing member of the theater, has never volunteered at the theatre, and to our knowledge has not sold one ticket to his son's performance, would decide to attack a theater and its volunteers, due to a director's discretionary decision. Volunteers and community leaders have worked hard for years to achieve the reality of a first-class performing arts facility in Sanford, where students, like his son, and others can showcase their talents.

California residents experiencing dark age

The dark ages have arrived in California. And the state has only itself to blame because lawmakers in Sacramento allowed state energy policy to be hijacked by special interests.

In 1996, the Democratic-controlled legislature enacted a misnamed electricity "deregulation" law that actually required the state's utilities to divest themselves of many of their electricity-generating power plants.

They became, in effect, energy brokers — buying electricity from out-of-state utilities and selling it to California businesses and residences.

Until utilities' stranded costs were recovered — San Diego Gas & Electric has done this, and the state's other two major utilities would have recovered these costs sometime later this year — price controls on the retail level remained in place. What happened, however, was that wholesale prices skyrocketed. The utilities had to pay higher prices for electricity, but they could not pass along this increase to the state's energy consumers.

Meanwhile, the utilities were forced to sell off most of their power-generating plants. The environmentalist left congratulated itself because, through so-called deregulation, it managed to rid California of control of those fossil-fuel-consuming power plants.

And the consumerist left patted itself on the back because, under the guise of deregulation, it managed to hem in California's electricity re-sellers with government-mandated price controls.

So now the ill-conceived plan has come home to roost.

California businesses and residences face the omnipresent threat of "rolling blackouts" as electricity demand far exceeds available supply.

California utilities are $11 billion in debt, teetering on the brink of bankruptcy as they are forced to pay twice as much (sometimes more) for electricity at the wholesale level than they are allowed to charge at the retail level.

And even with the retail price caps, California businesses and residents paid $10.9 billion more for electricity last summer than the year before. And they face even higher energy bills this year and next.

California's buck-passing Democratic governor, Gray Davis, says that out-of-state utilities are responsible for California's electricity crisis. And his spokespeople suggest that the Bush administration is somehow obliged to bail out the Golden State.

"Never again can we allow out-of-state profiteers to hold California hostage," said Davis in his recent State of the State speech. "Never again will we allow out-of-state generators to threaten to turn off our lights with the flip of their switch."

Federal regulators have "shirked (their) responsibility to protect ratepayers from this legalized highway robbery," he added.

And with that, California's governor beseeched the Bush administration to order the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to impose caps on wholesale electricity prices in the West to compel those mean old out-of-state utilities to sell cheap energy to California utilities.

But the prevailing sentiment in Washington, both at the White House and on Capitol Hill, is that the onus is on California, not the federal government, to work its way out of its electricity crisis.

"It is not up to the federal government to bail out California for a series of bad decisions," said Sen. Frank Murkowski, the Alaska Republican who chairs the Senate Energy Committee. He wants the state "to make a good faith effort" to correct the failings of its state energy policy before seeking federal aid.

Toward that end, Sacramento must make it easier to build new electricity-generating plants in California so that the state can meet its growing demand for energy. Because the Democratic governor and Democratic-controlled legislature have been so beholden to environmentalists, no new power plants have been built in California over the past 10 years, even as electricity demand has grown by 30 percent.

Then the state has to phase out its controls on retail electricity prices. As it is, even with Pacific Gas & Electric and Southern California Edison staring at bankruptcy, the state will not allow the utilities to charge businesses and residences prices that reflect the actual cost of the energy consumed.

Until California rolls back its draconian environmental restrictions on construction of electricity-generating plants, until California utilities are permitted to charge their customers the market price for electricity, the White House and Congress should remain on the sidelines. For by intervening now in California's electricity crisis, the federal government would allow Davis and the Legislature to delay or altogether avoid the structural reforms in energy policy that California must make.

"SAY — DIDN'T I SEE YOU FOLKS ON TEMPTATION ISLAND?"

From A to Z

Art Zielinski asks people what they think ...

The United Way. They are a broader organization to the people they help. They give to more charities. But, I would rather it be voluntary and not have money taken out of my paycheck.
Dale Duplechain, Longwood

My son is a Boy Scout, so I would give to the Scouts. But I don't think that sexual preference should matter.
Melissa Carpenter, Kissimmee

That's a hard question. But I would support the United Way. They give to families with low incomes. The Boy Scouts also help. Both organizations did something good for my life.
Ronnell Crittenden, Oviedo

I believe that both the Boy Scouts and the United Way have the right to control their own destinies.
Mark Shay, Guilford, Conn

I favor the Boy Scouts. Keeping money from the Boy Scouts is discriminating against them. But the Boy Scouts shouldn't be allowed to discriminate either.

Pest resistance crucial in choosing plants for landscaping

One of the criteria often overlooked on deciding what kind of plants to use in the landscape is their resistance to pests.

Decisions over plant materials for the landscape are usually based on their virtues on color and shapes, but with little or no consideration to their susceptibility to pest problems.

Pollution, pesticide regulations, and costs should make us think about the need to reduce the use of pesticides, and the need to increase the use of pest resistant plants in the future.

Native And Exotic Plants

Native plants are considered by many to be more pest resistant than exotic plants, but this concept is often misleading.

Native plants in the wild may seem to be more pest resistant because limited light, nutrients and water cause the plants to change their biochemistry and growth patterns as adaptations to survival.

In the urban environment, the same native plants can become more susceptible to pests due to exposure to other environmental factors and cultural practices such as fertilization or pruning. On the other hand, introduced exotic plants may be free from pests, common in their natural habitat, but non-existing in their new environment.

Plant Pests

Plants surrounded by plants very closely related are generally affected by more insect pests than plants surrounded by unrelated species.

For example, oak trees in North-America are affected by about 300 European imported pests, this is possible because plants in the same genera are affected by the same pest problems, no matter where the plant is growing. This means that the relationship between native plants and native pests is complicated by introduced pests from closely related plant species.

Native Plants In The Landscape

Native plants are very valuable for wildlife such as birds and bees, and in their natural habitat they survive very well without human intervention.

However, in the urban landscape some of the inherited values for survival are compromised, especially when considering the usually narrow genetic base of nursery propagated materials. It is a fallacy that people can replicate a natural site simply by planting an urban landscape entirely with native plants.

Diversity

Generally, as the number of species at a site increases, pest problems decrease.

One explanation for this general principle is that pests are suppressed in a natural site because they have a more difficult time finding their specific host-plants in a diverse or mix group of plants.

Diversity also increases the food, shelter and other requirements that sustain beneficial organisms.

Insectary Plants

Insect susceptible plants may be used in the landscape to attract beneficial organisms by providing shelter or alternate food sources in the form of pollen, nectar or host-specific pests that won't infest other plants.

One such plant is the crape myrtle, which is commonly infested by a specific aphid that serves as food for beneficial insects. These insectary or magnet plants increase the natural biological control in a landscape by providing food and shelter for beneficial organisms.

The Challenge

All evaluations of landscape plants should include a rigorous evaluation of their pest susceptibility.

A good evaluation program should identify pest-resistant species, ecotypes or varieties. This information should be carried out under different ecosystems and regional climates because plant use and pest complexes are strongly influenced by site, climatic and seasonal factors.

Recommendations

It is very important that horticulturists and consumer select and use plants based on their horticultural characteristics but emphasis should be placed on their relationships with pests and beneficial organisms.

The debate about the use of native or exotic plants should be secondary to the consideration that plant materials used in the landscape should be pest resistant and will require fewer pest-control measures.

Shaw no longer Sanford's best kept coaching secret

There is a special guy in Sanford, and he is a well-known untold secret. It is a secret that has been known for two years, but not told to many.

Crooms Academy has a basketball coach whose name is Bennie Shaw. He married his college sweetheart, Debra, and moved to Sanford, which is her hometown. Shaw is an educator who has had to work out of his field at Seminole High School. He also began coaching girls basketball at Crooms Academy.

Shaw guided the team that had not won a game in two years to first place in the district. That was the easy part. The hard part, said Shaw, was that he did it with a group of sixth through 10th graders that had never played basketball. With the transition to other schools, the girls transferred to other schools, quit school, or for other reasons didn't play. With only five girls — seventh through ninth graders and one junior — the team has taken a good beating. But, they are learning skills that will be a life-long experience for them.

Marva Hawkins

Coach Shaw was blessed, he states, with the opportunity to coach the Crooms boys varsity basketball team. It is a team that has gone from last to first.

Coach Shaw has taken two different teams in two years from last place one year to first place this season. Each year, he coached a team of players that have a lot of heart and the desire to win.

Coach credits his coaching success to the teaching and doctrine of his spiritual father and his pastor, Paul P. Wright, at Calvary Temple of Praise. The teaching of a father-son ministry has changed his attitude toward life.

Shaw often takes a portion of his small stipend and gives it back to the team because there are so many things that are needed to keep the team afloat, such as balls, travel expenses, referees, uniforms and so many other things vital for the teams.

He feels that if it were not for the teams, he would not be receiving this financial blessing. His attitude toward life is a direct influence of his faith, and the teaching he receives is manifested in his lifestyle. He truly feels and believes that what God has for him is for him and no one can take it away. Coach Shaw and the Crooms Academy girls and boys basketball teams indeed have a living testimony. They are young people who have endured many crisis in life, they live, walk, talk and have proven they can be champions.

They are still achieving their goals because they are working again to be the champs for 2000-2001.

Coach Shaw says he knows that life is easy if you live by the word of God, and to be obedient to Him. God does direct your life. Not everything will go right, but it means that things will work out right according to God's perfect will in your life.

Select a role model that reflects a good life, and teachings of the word leave no room for confusion. Coach says his life is the kind of example and model that will be good for the students that he comes in contact with whether on the basketball court, in the classroom or just in life.

Crooms Academy boys basketball will play Thursday, Feb. 1, away. The next home game for the girls is Friday, Feb. 2 at 5:30 p.m. They play Taylor High School at the Crooms R.A. Allen Gym.

People's thoughtless questions offend new adoptive mom

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been blessed with a beautiful daughter we adopted from another country. When we go out, we hear a variety of comments from strangers. Some of them — while well-meaning — are potentially hurtful to our little girl.

end to the thoughtless, insensitive questions some people ask — which brings to mind a letter that appeared in my column many years ago. Read on:

Dear Abby

I am writing in the hope that sharing our point of view will help others to be more sensitive to adoptive families:

— Please DON'T ask if I have children of my own. My daughter IS my own. If you must ask about other siblings, a better term is "biological children."

— Please DON'T ask about my daughter's birth family and why they are not raising her. These are issues I wish to discuss with her privately, in my own time.

— Please DON'T make disparaging remarks about my daughter's country of origin, regardless of how you feel about their customs or government policies. My daughter needs to hear positive things about her culture of origin. Many of the negative comments I have received have been untrue or one-sided.

— Please DON'T ask how much my daughter "cost." While adoption fees are expensive, so are hospital bills for labor and delivery. The difference is, many people have either insurance or public assistance to help them pay hospital bills; adoptive families have little equivalent to help to pay adoption fees. I did not "buy" my child through adoption fees any more than a family who pays hospital bills for the birth of a biological child has bought theirs. If you are truly interested in adoption costs, your local adoption agency or an adoption Internet site can provide those answers.

— Please DON'T tell me I got my daughter the "easy way." Adoption has its own unique challenges. Like any parent, adoptive parents consider their struggles worthwhile, given the end result. However, adoption, like childbirth, can be both wonderful and difficult.

— Please DON'T ask me about my fertility status. I would rather not discuss it with a stranger.

And to the many kind, discreet and polite people I have met — thank you for your positive comments and encouraging words. They warmed my heart.

BLESSED THROUGH ADOPTION IN WASHINGTON STATE

DEAR BLESSED: Thank you for telling it like it is. Sometimes people engage their mouths before engaging their brains. Unfortunately, there is no

DEAR ABBY: Our son is a dark-skinned child whom we adopted when he was an infant. My husband and I are both fair-skinned.

When our son was about 4, we attended a pool party at our townhouse complex. I got into a conversation with a woman who was very curious about him — asking how old he was when we got him and where he was from. She looked confused when I answered "Milwaukee" — as I'm sure she expected a more exotic location such as Africa or the Australian outback.

I almost lost my cool, however, when she asked me in all seriousness, "Are you going to tell him he is adopted?"

MIDWEST MOM

DEAR ABBY: I can top "Mystified in Fort Worth," who was shocked at an offering basket put out to defray the cost of an anniversary party.

Last year, a neighbor went door-to-door inviting people to a "Millennium New Year's Eve party." She and her husband were charging $230 per couple. She said that was a fair price to ask, since it was less than some of the fancy hotels were charging for a New Year's Eve party.

As it turned out, they had a dozen guests or so, some inexpensive entertainment and decor, and a catered meal. But nothing could top the look on those paying "guests'" faces when in walked a bride and groom — and those poor souls realized they had been duped into paying for a wedding reception for the host's son! While it's the rudest thing I've ever heard of, it's so outrageous we're still laughing about it. I swear this is a true story.

ALMOST SCAMMED IN SCOTTSDALE

DEAR SCAMMED: Your letter qualifies for Ripley's Believe It or Not. I applaud you for laughing at the outrageous situation.

Mikler honored by Children of the American Revolution

Mrs. Virginia Mikler was recently honored by the Fort Mellon Society, Children of the American Revolution (CAR) at the December meeting of the Sallie Harrison Chapter, DAR.

Susanra Sovran, President of the Fort Mellon Society presented Mrs. Mikler with the Grace Childs Parks Memorial

Award for her outstanding work with the CAR Society. She was cited as being a special friend of Fort Mellon and recognized for her contributions of time and talent. In addition to her support of CAR. Locally, Mrs. Mikler also serves on the state level as Insignia Chairman and as a State Patriot and

Promoter. Established in 1999, the award was named in memory of Grace Parks, past Regent of the Sallie Harrison Chapter, who was responsible for igniting an interest in the reorganization of a local CAR society during her term of office. The recipient receives a certificate and a State President's Project Pin, which depicts the theme chosen by the State President.

Danny Kopp, current State President, has chosen for the State Theme: "Reading Revolution." The State Project is designed to promote and improve the literacy of as many children of Florida's migrant farm workers as possible through the donation of books and monetary gifts to the five Redlands Christian Migrant Association Child Development Centers throughout the state. Approximately 175 preschool children will benefit from this project.

Fort Mellon Society, based in Sanford, meets six times a year with programs that focus on American Heritage, American History, Conservation, Government Studies, Kids Helping Kids and others. In addition members attend the Annual State Conference where they are able to share with CAR's from across the state the activities of their own societies. Members gain valuable leadership experience in conducting meetings, parliamentary procedure, serving as delegates and pages and public speaking.

The Children of the American Revolution is a national organization for youth who are descendants of patriots of the Revolutionary War. founded in 1895, it has grown to be the oldest and largest patriotic organization for young people in the United States. Its mission is to train good citizens, develop leaders and promote the love of the to the GPS or a compass and two depth finders. It's equipment that will ensure the Ladds won't get lost while at sea.

"Seasick, maybe — lost, no," Lee said.

When they weren't working on the boat, the Ladds were deciding what to do with the items they are leaving behind on land. After storing the sentimental things, selling what they no longer need and renting their house, the couple began living on the boat a month ago.

There is only one important thing they aren't sure about — Cosmo the cat.

Although Cosmo, a 7-year-old tabby, has lived on the boat with the couple for the past month, he doesn't like the noise from the boat's engines.

"He is going to try to go with us, and I hope he does," Kay said. "But, if he doesn't get used to the engines, a friend will take care of him."

The DBL-ELL is leaving

Sanford 9 a.m. Saturday, which will give the couple enough time to travel to Washington, D.C. for the Cherry Blossom Festival in April.

In the first leg of their three-year journey, the Ladds are following the route of "The Great Loop," which will take them up along the Atlantic Ocean into Canada and the Great Lakes. The couple will return to Florida via waterways through Illinois, Kentucky and Alabama.

At various locations along the way, the Ladds will anchor and travel to land on the boat's dinghy or stop at various marinas. To travel on land, the couple purchased two motorized bikes.

The DBL-ELL will go through 200 locks and travel 6,500 miles in the first 10 months of her journey. By the end of 2001, the couple will reach the Bahamas, where they will plan the second part of their voyage.

"We may go to Mexico the following year," Kay said.

Along their way, Lee and Kay plan to meet friends in various ports, and they will always be in contact with their daughter, who lives in Cincinnati, Ohio. They also want to share their voyage with anyone who has access to the Internet.

On board the DBL-ELL, Kay will be updating the Ladd's website, www.dblell.com, which includes the couple's schedule, Kay's personal diary, maps and the boat's log. She has also developed sheets that will help people follow the DBL-ELL on its journey.

"We've gained so much from other people's websites," Kay said. "Once you start following their journey, you almost get to know them."

The couple look forward to meeting new people and making new friends, although they will miss the people they are leaving behind. But, both agree — it's time to depart.

"It's time to get started and for the fun to begin," Kay said. "My philosophy is you have to stop dreaming and do it."

Robbery

As officers attempted to restrain Gaymon, he was able to start the vehicle and backed into officer Burkshire, who was standing at the rear of the vehicle. Burkshire sustained a fractured left arm.

Gaymon then continued speeding in reverse through the parking lot and struck an occupied 1993 Buick 4-door driven by Andrew C. Chipchak of Winter Springs. Gaymon then sped north through the parking lot and struck Officer Daniel Grieb as he was attempting to remove himself from the path of the oncoming, speeding vehicle. Grieb sustained minor abrasions and bruises.

Gaymon then exited the parking lot of Albertson's onto eastbound State Road 434, where he struck a 1999 Mercury van driven by Connie A. Rettew of Winter Park as Gaymon drove onto a sidewalk to overtake the van.

Gaymon then struck a 2000 Plymouth Neon driven by Trinite Hooks of Sanford that was southbound on 17-92. After striking Ms. Hooks vehicle, Gaymon's vehicle overturned on its side at the intersection of 17-92 and SR 434. Gaymon sustained multiple injuries in the crash and was apprehended as he was attempting to crawl from the overturned vehicle.

A total of $325 worth of meat products and various items were recovered from Gaymon and the vehicle he was driving.

The vehicle Gaymon was driving is registered to Delannie Arnette Greene of DeLand. Greene was unable to be located in an attempt to reveal if the vehicle had been stolen.

Gaymon will be charged with robbery, resisting arrest with violence, two counts of attempted murder of a law enforcement officer, five counts of fleeing the scene of a traffic crash with injuries, driving under the influence of alcohol and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Gaymon's criminal history revealed he was an Early Release/Serious Offender from the Florida Department of Corrections in March 1998 and had been arrested for robbery in March 1999.

Lights

lights already in place in the District. Creation of a Special Taxing District would have to be approved in the form of an ordinance by the Sanford City Commission. According to Florida Public Utilities Company spokesperson Jim McKenna, installation of the lights would take approximately six weeks. McKenna said the utility company has just started working on other gas street light projects, including a recently completed district in DeLand's Victoria Park subdivision.

Bob Cassels of the Historic Trust said details on insuring the lights against damage such as hurricanes is still being worked out. He added that the Trust is also working on a possible plan to develop criteria to help subsidize the cost for homeowners who would be financially burdened by the special tax district assessment.

Cassels said the Trust is working with city officials to see how many Historic District properties would actually be taxed because there are number of churches and other exempt parcels that would normally be exempt within the District.

Sanford Public Works Director Jerry Herman said it was likely that all plotted parcels would share equitably in the cost of installation and operation of the gas street lights because the initiative represents more of a "user fee" approach rather than a traditional taxing district for road or street light improvements.

The city is looking to schedule work sessions on the issue sometime this spring. City Clerk Jan Dougherty said this type of street light initiative is relatively new for Sanford.

"We are looking to gather information about how it has been done in other areas and to see what would be the best means of implementation for Sanford," Dougherty said.

She added that the city would in some way seek input from Historic District homeowners and the initiative would have to be approved by a majority of those impacted.

es to help Girl find a name and eventually reveals the truth about the orphan's past.

Throughout the story, the three main characters — considered the town's outcasts — present a timeless theme to the audience, Lathrop said.

"The theme is still relevant today," he said. "Teen-agers and young adults still need time to find themselves."

"The general public loves the story," he said. "People suggested that we do it again."

Lathrop said he is excited about presenting Mother Hicks in the Helen Stairs Theatre, formerly the Ritz, which re-opened last year after extensive renovations.

"The cast and I are very enthusiastic about it," he said. "This time, people are going to be able to see the production presented on a big stage with lights and a sound system."

The cast includes Kaitlyn Register as Girl, Marti Beers as Mother Hicks, and Robert DelMedico as Tuc. Martha Yancy, Elsa Silzer, Nicholas Rowell, Doug Baum and Ronald Rose also star in the play.

Lathrop encourages parents to bring their children to this weekend's performance. As an incentive, children attending Friday night's presentation with their parents, guardian, chaperone or teacher can get in free of charge. According to Helen Stairs, the theater has contacted numerous schools in Seminole, and the response has already been overwhelming.

"Our hope is to offer the play to every child participating in drama in Seminole County," Stairs said.

Mother Hicks is scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 2, and Saturday, Feb. 3, in the Helen Stairs Theatre, located at 203 Magnolia Ave. Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for seniors and students. For ticket information, call 407-321-8111.

According to Lathrop, the second weekend of the show was canceled due to slow ticket sales, but he hopes sales may pickup and additional shows presented.

"We've done a lot of work on this," he said. "To have the shows canceled is kind of painful."

However, Lathrop said he hopes Mother Hicks and other productions will encourage the community to participate in upcoming seasons at the theater.

"This is the first season for the theater, and things are going really well," he said. "And, I hope we can build from this for the future."

The next Helen Stairs Theatre production is "Having Our Say," written by Emily Mann. It is about the first 100 years of the famous Delany sisters. Even though it is scheduled for late April and early May, Lathrop has already begun casting for the production.

"We need to utilize our local talent," he said. "And, there is loads of local talent here."

Aubrey Siman, 12, used a political theme for her hat. The butterfly ballot and the dimpled chad will forever be part of Florida history.

Hat Tricks

A colander and several long balloons made a science fiction hat for pre-kindergarten student, Evren Tasci.

In addition to the balloon release, it also was hat day at The Double R Private School in Geneva. Students and teachers modeled their most creative head coverings. Many would make a haberdasher green with envy. Ashlynn Hall, 5, said she had some help from her mom when creating her flower arrangement hat.

the year. International passengers comprised 85 percent of that mark, totaling 987,935. Domestic passengers totaled 171,765 representing a 180 percent increase in domestic volume over 1999 levels. Pan Am's domestic totals for the year were bolstered by heavy holiday traffic in the final quarter of 2000.

Other areas of airport operations also saw healthy increases. Total cargo handled was up 21 percent for the year with a total of 12,760 tons processed. Overall airport operations were also up 2.4 percent ahead of 1999 figures with a total of 371,787 operations.

A new domestic terminal and ambitious route expansion by Pan Am during the course of 2000 helped the facility achieve its record domestic numbers.

In the past year Pan Am added flight routes from the Orlando-Sanford facility to several new hubs in the New England area and Pennsylvania.

Public Safety Reports

Vendor selling fake Oakleys busted
A Watertown, N.Y. man was arrested today by the Seminole County Sheriff's Office after a sting at a local flea market yielded thousands of dollars worth of counterfeit goods.

Michael George Prior, 51, faces a charge of Vending Goods with Counterfeit Trademarks. The crime is a 3rd degree felony.

Prior

Investigators with the Economic Crimes Section, as well as investigators hired by Oakley and other companies, conducted the operation. Items seized included fake Oakley sunglasses, Nike shirts and watches, Rolex watches, as well as counterfeit apparel bearing the Calvin Klein, Tag Heuer and other brand names.

The investigators seized the items from two booths Prior was working at Flea World, which is a flea market in Sanford. It's estimated the knock-off goods could have caused $216,000 in losses for the legitimate manufacturers.

Prior's bond was set at $1,000. He has already posted the amount and is out of jail.

Some of the several hundred pairs of Oakley sunglasses that were recovered in a counterfeit ring.

Infant dies in drowning

On Friday, Jan. 29, at approximately 12:10 p.m., the Casselberry Police Department received a 911 call regarding an infant drowning at 807 Debby Drive. Both the Casselberry Police and Fire Departments responded.

The Fire Department performed CPR on the infant and transported to Florida Hospital in Altamonte Springs. Efforts to revive the infant were unsuccessful and the infant was pronounced dead.

According to the information received, the mother of the infant, Regina Molina, 19, had placed her two children in the bathtub with approximately 1 inch of water, and when she returned a few minutes later, the water was running and the tub was full. The infant was under water, the mother pulled him out of the bathtub, attempted to revive him and called 911.

The children are identified as Anthony Molina, 8 months old, and Marcina Molina, 2 years old.

HazMat spill in Sanford

Seminole County HazMat workers clean up a spill in the back of a tractor-trailer truck on 17-92 south of Airport Boulevard. A 30-gallon drum of Haloflex, a copolymer, overturned during transport. No injuries were reported.

There is no foul play suspected, and this appears to be accidental.

The investigation is continuing by the Casselberry Police Department and the Seminole County Sheriff's Office Child Protective Services Division.

Student arrested for bringing device on campus

A Seminole County Middle School student was arrested this afternoon for bringing a device, which is believed to be an explosive device, to school.

The student, Anthony Joseph Perrelli, 13, of Altamonte Springs, attends Rock Lake Middle School in Longwood.

Perrelli apparently had the device in his coat. While waiting in the lunch line, he apparently showed it to another student, who, in turn, told an assistant principal.

Perrelli was taken to the office and questioned. He was later arrested. He is accused of manufacturing an explosive device, as well as bringing the device onto school property. Both are felony charges.

The student did not offer an explanation why he had the device, which was a sealed toilet paper tube. The student said it contained the flash powder of 20 firecrackers.

The Seminole County Sheriff's Office Explosive Ordinance Disposal (EOD) Unit took custody of the device.

Sex offender suspect sought

The Seminole County Sheriff's Office is releasing an artist's drawing of a suspect who may be involved in an incident in the Ravenna Park neighborhood involving a reported break-in and fondling of a child.

A 6-year-old boy, who has since turned seven, alleges a man crawled through his bedroom window and fondled him while he was sleeping. When the boy awoke, the man had a conversation with him. When the boy told his parents, they were first under the impression he was having a bad dream.

The incident reportedly happened on Wednesday, Jan. 17th. The case was reported to the Seminole County Sheriff's Office on Saturday, Jan. 20th.

The artist drawing is of a man who was seen by a neighbor pecking in the windows of the boy's home between 2:30 p.m. and 3 p.m. later the very same day (Jan. 17th).

One dies in motorcycle, truck collision

At approximately 7:10 PM on Jan. 29, units of the Casselberry Police Department, Casselberry Fire Department and Seminole County Fire Department were dispatched to a motorcycle versus truck traffic crash on SR 436 about .3 of a mile west of Howell Branch Road.

The initial reports indicated severe injuries and road blockage. Arriving units found a critically injured white male laying in the roadway. A flatbed, dual-axle truck was nearby with a motorcycle lodged beneath the truck's undercarriage.

The Florida Department of Transportation was contacted and their officers responded to the scene, as well since the truck was a commercial vehicle.

The initial Casselberry Police Department crash investigation revealed that the truck made a left turn across westbound SR 436 in front of the oncoming motorcycle. No charges have been filed and the investigation is continuing.

First aid was rendered to the injured victim, Cristhian Ortiz, 19, but his injuries were of such severity that he was pronounced dead on-scene. The victim's body was transported to the Volusia County Medical Examiner's Office for an autopsy.

SR 436 westbound was blocked off at Howell Branch Road and traffic rerouted for approximately 5 hours as police units worked the crash scene and cleared the roadway of damaged vehicles and crash debris.

Victim's Advocates were summoned for the truck driver. Additional Victim's Advocates were sent to the Ortiz's home with the Orange County Sheriff's Office for a death notification.

Scouts receive national crime prevention award
Members of Boy Scout Troop 234 in Longwood received special awards Monday, Jan. 29th for their efforts in crime prevention.

The scouts have been working with the Seminole County Sheriff's Office Community Services Section since September to earn the Crime Prevention Merit Badge. The scouts were also awarded patches from the National Sheriffs' Association, which are believed to be the first awarded in Central Florida.

To receive the national award, the scouts had to work on Crime Prevention projects, including a home security check with their parents. They also had to meet other requirements set by the Boy Scouts of America.

The event took place at the Sanlando Methodist Church in Longwood.

Outdoors- Women workshops scheduled

Women who want to learn how to fight a big fish, bag a wild turkey or canoe a river will want to make a note of this. The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) will host two "Becoming an Outdoors-Woman" (BOW) workshops soon.

Instructors - most of them females - will conduct the workshops February 16-18 at the Everglades Youth Conservation Camp at West Palm Beach and April 27-29 at the Hunter Education Training Center in Silver Springs. The FWC prefers to use female instructors for Bow workshops to help participants feel more at ease and to eliminate the impatience women sometimes encounter when they try to learn skills for their husbands, boyfriends or brothers.

"I think that's the main reason the BOW program has been so successful," said Lynne Hawk, director of the program. "Nobody is there to intimidate or rush the participants. Instructors take the time to guide participants through the activities."

During the seven years the FWC has offered BOW workshops, 2,000 women have signed up for them, and the reviews have been raves.

Organizers expect all the available slots to fill up with reservations within a few days. The cost is $125, which includes food and lodging at the FWC's camps, plus materials and instruction. Workshops are limited to 100 participants each. A limited number of partial scholarships are available for low-income females who would like to take part in BOW workshops. Scholarship information is available on workshop applications.

"The program is primarily for women, 18 or older, who want to learn outdoor skills associated with hunting and fishing, but it also includes training that is useful for many other outdoor pursuits," Mrs. Hawk said.

"Participants will be able to choose four of the 18 topics offered and will spend four hours on each topic they choose."

Topics include: Introduction to panfishing techniques, introduction to bass fishing, outdoor cooking, boating basics, canoeing/kayaking, deer hunting basics, small-game and duck hunting, developing archery and bowhunting skills, basic camping and backpacking skills, outdoor photography, bird-watching, reading the woods, developing wilderness survival skills and personal safety.

For a brochure and registration form, contact the FWC's West Palm Beach regional office at 561-625-5126.

SHUPE'S SCOOP
There is a growing trend for ladies to become more and more involved in outdoor activities. At the introductory level, it is important that ladies have a comfort level with the outdoor activity. Once the comfort level is attained, enjoyment and acceptance of the activity will usually follow.

SANFORD — The Seminole Community College baseball team, starting the millennium with a new coach and a young team, got swamped in their first home game of the season by St. Petersburg Junior College, 8-2, at Raider Field on Monday.

With dark clouds closing in on the game early, the Raiders (1-2) committed six errors, including a huge one early in the game, a grounder that slipped between the legs of first baseman Tommy Solitario, that eventually gave the Trojans (1-0) a three run lead in the second inning.

"We had trouble executing today," said Raiders assistant coach, Rick Plante, who took over after the first inning when new coach Mike Nicholson had to leave because of an emergency at home. "We gave too many free runs and walks."

The Raiders had a tough time recuperating after that first inning as T. J. Simmons gave a home run to St. Pete's Seminole Community College's Tommy Solitario (No. 10) congratulates Brian Machek (No. 25) after he blasted the second of back-to-back fourth inning home runs by the Raiders, but it was not enough as visiting St. Petersburg Junior College spoiled SCC's first home game of the season, 8-2, at Raider Field on Monday.

Juan Menendez in the third. Even fourth inning solo homers by Seminole's Drew Jackson and Brian Machek was not enough to spark the team's defense. The Raiders pulled within two making it 4-2 and seemed at least offensively back in the game.

The Trojans answered back by scoring single runs in the fifth and sixth innings, then put the game away in the seventh with a two-run blast by Abraham Valencia.

Relief pitcher Jesuel Cortes, who got four strike outs, two from the first two batters in the eighth inning, was impressive but it was still not enough to spark a Raiders comeback.

Plante mentioned that the team, "didn't deserve to win," but did say that he knows this is not "the team of the past. We will hit and be a fun team to watch."

Next up for the Raiders is the Polk Community College Vikings this Thursday at Raider Field at 2 p.m., followed by home games against Florida College (Tampa) at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday and Indian River Community College at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Forst leads Winter Springs past Mainland

By Dean Smith

WINTER SPRINGS — Jennifer Forst scored a career-high 29 points to lead four Winter Springs players into double figures as the Bears handed Mainland just its second loss of the season, 70-57, in a matchup of girls basketball powers at Winter Springs High School Monday night. The Bears, 21-3 and ranked No. 5 in the state in the Class 6A poll, forced 22 Buccaneer turnovers in the first half as they built a 35-20 halftime advantage.

Forst and Sally Johnston then opened the third quarter with baskets as the two-time defending state champions took their biggest lead of the night, 40-20, before Mainland started to play better.

But Forst netted 19 of her points in the second half, including four free throws in the final minute, as Winter Springs broke the No. 3 Class 5A state-ranked Buccaneers' 12-game winning streak, dropping Mainland to 20-2.

In addition to Forst, Johnston chipped in with 14 points, while Missy Guadagnino added 13 and Richella King 12.

Things did not go as well for a pair of other county girls' squads as Lake Howell (16-11) lost to Bishop Moore (18-8) despite a 14-point effort from Stephanie Martinez and Crooms Academy (3-14) continues to struggle, dropping a 52-21 decision to Temple Christian (9-7). See Hoops, Page 2B

Local Chevrolet dealer plays good Samaritan for Gause

By Dean Smith

SANFORD — Former Lyman High School graduate Joey Gause's dreams of playing professional football are alive and well.

Gause, a senior wide receiver at Ferrum College in Virginia, was scheduled to play in the 7th Annual National All-Stars Bowl.com a College Football Classic for players who are looking to get seen by professional scouts with games in Orlando, Dallas/Ft. Worth, Cleveland, Ohio, Louisville, Kentucky, and Minneapolis, Minnesota.

But with only a few days left before the January 15th deadline for fees to be paid, a promised sponsorship fell through and it looked as if Gause

But that's when Gause and his aunt, Connie, contacted Bill Heard Chevrolet and with the help of Anita Evans, Director of Marketing and Joe Ruth, General Manager, Gause is again on his way to the All-Star Game.

Unfortunately for Gause, his family and friends, he will not get to play in Orlando as he had hoped because those dates were filled and he will be attending the game in Minneapolis at Richfield Stadium on April 27th and 28th.

In the six years of its existence, National All-Stars.com has seen over half of its players receive opportunities in pro football from the National Football League, Arena Football League, NFL Europe League, Xtreme Football League, Arena Football League 2, Canadian Football League, American Football Association, European Football League and the Indoor Football League.

For a $300 sponsorship fee each player receives All-Star exposure to the media and pro football organizations, official all-star game jersey, game logo t-shirt, official game program, all-star awards certificate, two nights room accommodations, two See Gause, Page 2B
