FARLEY SAYS POLL SHOWS BIG VICTORY

Clean Sweep Indicated For Roosevelt And Garner Is View Of Party Chairman

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(A.P.)—Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley in a statement today at national headquarters predicted on the basis of the Literary Digest poll and checkup of his staff a "Clean sweep for Franklin D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner at the polls Nov. 8."

The statement said a recheck of poll statistics by Farley's staff indicated New Jersey, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Massachusetts, and New Hampshire "are definitely in the Roosevelt column" and that Maine and Vermont are "so close they can by no means be considered safe for the Republican ticket."

With the statement was given a table showing the totals of all straw ballots tabulated at Democratic national headquarters from 10 states not reported in the Digest poll. The 10 states are Florida, Maryland, Minnesota, Missouri, North Carolina, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Texas, Virginia, and Washington and Democratic figures give Roosevelt in these states 152,142 votes and Hoosier 64,631.

Alkaline Content Is Too High In Soil Of Sanford Farms

An interesting observation revealed at Seminole High School last night was made by 25 local farmers who gathered to attend the second Evening Class sponsored by the school's Agricultural Department this year. It is that a majority of the farms in this section show too much alkaline content.

This fact was brought out in a discussion, led by Alex R. Johnson, of "Fertilizer Costs and Soil Testing." Mr. Johnson said that over 1000 tests were made in the Sanford delta and from these tests it is apparent that the alkaline content of most of the farms is too high.

A comparison of prices of nitrate of phosphate, tankage, cotton, pomace, and Peruvian guano was also discussed and explained by mimeographed charts that were distributed. Mr. Johnson said that any farmer wishing one of these charts is invited to call at the school or write to him and one or more will be furnished.

Those present last night included: R. R. Pippin, T. F. Adams, Henry Thurston, F. F. Dorner, M. C. Stone, M. C. Nelson, Fred Thurston, E. J. Cameron, Nels Gustafson, Ben Packard, James Wilson, of Chuluota; C. D. Wilder, Jr., T. O. Landress, H. W. Gustafson, R. L. Garrison, W. H. Hughes, H. T. Russell, R. F. Cooper, J. E. Watson, Chas. R. Inn Keepers Discuss Prohibition Question

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 14.—(A.P.)—The time came yesterday for the nation's inn keeper to talk of bone, bed sheets, business booms and baggage.

The prohibition question was uppermost in the minds of those attending the opening sessions of the twenty-second annual session of the hotel association.

President Green, of New York, told the delegates the organization must center its efforts in the election of officers favorable to the repeal of the the prohibition amendment.

As for bed sheets, Green revealed there has been some agitation to shorten them, but he denounced such a plan as poor economy.

Then taking up the matter of business boom Green said that in a trip around the country he has found a spirit of optimism.

The hotel men headed into Memphis with baggage of all descriptions, hand-tooled bags, miniature trunks, decorative suitcases and hand bags. A lot of it came from travel bills and foot and hand departments.

Expedition Of Justice And Reduction Of Its Costs

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(A.P.)—The general council of the American Bar Association today nominated Clarence E. Martin, Martinsburg, West Virginia, for president of the association. The nomination is tantamount to election. It will succeed Guy A. Thompson, St. Louis.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(A.P.)—Refugee in criminal procedure to expedite justice and reduce administration costs was advocated yesterday by Attorney General Mitchell before the American Bar Association.

Mitchell, and enactment of a bill now pending in Congress, to empower the supreme court to make rules of procedure in criminal cases after verdicts of guilty have been given, "promises sweeping reforms in the interests of speeding the final disposition of criminal cases."

Mitchell presented figures to show federal criminal cases were on the increase and said prosecuting attorneys delayed action when persons found guilty in the lower courts were out of bill pending appeal. The courts he said, had been "too free in granting indulgences and recognizing stipulations involving delays."

Attention of the delegates was attracted to the close contest between Provost M. Pogue, of Cincinnati, and Clarence E. Martin, of Martinsburg, West Virginia, to succeed the retiring president, Guy A. Thompson, of St. Louis. The general council will nominate a presidential candidate later tonight the delegates and (Continued on Page Four)

PRESIDENT LAYS CORNERSTONE OF COURT BUILDING

Edifice Is 1st Built For High Tribunal In Period Of Its Life

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(A.P.)—A small crowd peppered with stones of marble yesterday as President Hoover laid the corner stone for the new home of the Supreme Court, the first built exclusively for the tribunal in its 17 years of existence.

GATOR SOPHS ARE SEMINOLE HIGH PUSHING VETS TO HOLD POSITIONS RATS TOMORROW

Newcomers To Squad Are Replacing Men Who Have Gained 'F'

By FRANK B. WRIGHT
GAINESVILLE, Oct. 13.—More pronounced than ever is the threat of the sophomores in the University of Florida football camp.

Several weeks ago it became apparent that newcomers to the varsity were displacing boys who won their football "F" a year ago.

And now the challenge of the youngsters is even louder.

Carl Schuman, Jacksonville, has been moved over to right tackle, where he will be ready to step in the event Joe Jenkins falters. Troubled with a nose ailment, Jenkins has not yet reached his best form.

Gene Butler, the Newberry sophomore, showed clearly in the Sawnee game that he is trouble aplenty at right end for Meiss, Goodey and Schirmer.

Playing at tackle for the first time in his career, Sophomore Welcome Shearer from Jacksonville proved the class of the tackles on the field last Saturday. He earned the plaudits of the coaching staff in no uncertain fashion. Alongside Shearer was Sophomore Tommy Lane from Tampa and he, too, was a stand-out in the line.

George McCampbell, West Palm Beach, the midget 150 pound sophomore guard, was in the thick of things every moment he played. He signalled to Drayton Bernhardt that he will be heard from this fall.

Herb McAnally, Arcadia's greatest football representative in a decade, and "Jumper Jack" Anderson, from that magic clime of Miami, have unquestionably put Al Rogero on notice that the left halfback job is not clinched. And to make the sophomore threat a three-way proposition, Obbie Beaman is showing his best form of the season this week.

Bobby Treadgold, with a year of varsity experience, started the Sawnee game, but it was George Moye, the Sanford sensation, and Wally Brown, from sunny St. Petersburg, a pair of sophomores who made the crowd stir.

Though not a sophomore, Sam Davis, from Tampa, playing his first year at quarterback, let Johnny Culler realize that the race is close. Davis blocked well, called his plays properly, and in most every way pleased Coach Charlie Bachman and the mentorial staff with his Saturday work.

Sophomore Charlie Stoltz went in at fullback after a great performance by Jimmy Hughes, and he looked good. Each carried the ball down on a touchdown play, and on defense, Hughes particularly, showed to advantage.

Against Sawnee, two of the veterans, "Monk" Dorsett and Johnny "Geyser" Fountain were held fast to the bench because of injuries, and had no opportunity to show their wares in the competition with sophomores, but in an unmistakable fashion, the sophos have challenged the old men, and for practically every position, it is a bang-up battle.

This narrative includes only a portion of the sophomores who are distinct threats. Fans may be whooping it up too loudly for the "Gators" as a team, and the sophomores as individuals as a result of the opening game, but certainly a measure of this praise is merited on the basis of the different individual performances of last week. The approaching Citadel encounter will offer a second opportunity, and the activities of the sophomores in particular will be watched with interest. Unless a combination of formidable resistance from Citadel, and the "swell head" takes a toll, the fans will see some colorful cowering on "Florida Field" this Saturday.

Croom's Academy To Play Football Game

Croom's Academy's football players know as the Panthers is ready for its opening game with the St. Petersburg High School football team in that city next Friday afternoon, according to Eddie Jones, press agent of the Academy.

Previous games indicate that the St. Petersburg eleven is no easy foe, but Coaches Foster, Englass and Miner believe they have an eleven that can hold its own with any school in Florida. The starting teams will be as follows: Amos and Monroe, ends; DeLaney and Dingle, tackles; Thomas and Jackson, guards; Anderson, center; Young, quarterback; Englass,半back, halfbacks, and Weller, fullback.

It is expected that Young will do most of the kicking while Amer and Englass will drop back and most of the passes, Patrick

Coach Leonard McLucas' Seminole High School grididers will meet the strong Rollins Rats team of Winter Park in the fourth game of the 1932 season at Municipal Park tomorrow afternoon at 4:00 o'clock.

During the past week Coach McLucas has stressed the need for blocking and tackling and has ironed out all the kinks that appeared in the Robert E. Lee game in Jacksonville last Friday. Scrimmages were held almost daily during the past few days although they produced injuries which today find Williams, a promising halfback prospect, the possessor of several broken ribs.

Coach McLucas believes that his team will be the first to win over a Rollins Rat eleven since relations between the two schools were started in 1928. In that year Rollins defeated Sanford 7 to 0. In 1929 the local eleven held the Rats to a 0 to 0 score and later in the season, playing in the first game of night football ever seen in Florida, the locals went down to a 33 to 0 defeat. In 1930 Rollins defeated Seminole High 24 to 13, while last year the two clubs battled to a 12 to 12 tie.

When the teams meet tomorrow Coach McLucas will send his entire first string team with one exception into the game at the start. That exception is John Stanley, right end, who received injuries in Jacksonville that are yet painful and will prevent his starting tomorrow. Stanley's place will be taken by Young, whom Coach McLucas considers a likely prospect.

The Rollins team that plays here is, as usual, composed of former high and prep school stars, most of them from the North and Middle-West. Every player on the squad has had some sort of football experience, and, under the coaching of Bob Evans, former North Carolina star, another strong combine is reported as coming to Sanford.

Reginald Bryan Owen, son of Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, is a member of the Rollins team and will probably be seen in action here tomorrow.

The starting line-up of the Sanford team is as follows: Young, Ang Preston, ends; W. Riser and Harrison, tackles; Branan and Coleman, guards; Higgins, center; Courier, quarterback; Vincent and Smith, halfbacks; and McClelland, fullback.

Use Of Enzymes In Many Ways Is Told By Chemist

In some instances enzymes cause trouble by their presence. This happens in the new quick-freezing process for the preservation of fruits and vegetables. For the enzyming present make the products darken in color and decompose. However, in many cases the vegetables can be balanced in hot water before freezing. The hot water destroys the enzymes and the frozen material then keeps well.

Enzymes are not alive and yet they are more nearly the quintessence of life than anything else discovered in living things. They are the agents that cause indigestion, oxidation, growth and nearly all the changes in living cells. Their manner of action is peculiar, for they act by their mere presence and are not used up in the process. In this respect they resemble the so-called philosopher's stone, which the alchemists thought would turn base metals into gold.

For nearly 100 years chemists tried in vain to discover what enzymes are chemically. The first enzyme to be isolated in pure, crystalline condition was obtained in our laboratory at Cornell University. This enzyme, urease, decomposes urea and liberates ammonia, a process advantageous to plant life. Urease is present in fungi, bacteria, leguminous plants, and sometimes in animals. Urease was isolated from the jack bean, which comes from Africa. In the isolated form urease consists of microscopic eight-sided crystals. Chemically considered, the substance is a protein, or something similar to egg-white, gelatin, or silk.

It is expected to be the leading half carrier. Walter Scarborough has been chosen as manager of the team and he will go to St. Petersburg with the eleven as will several local persons.

ation, of course, and will serve as the same as heretofore. The Winter Haven-Fort Myers special will be restored Dec. 15. The O. Steamship Company boats from the West Coast and to the P. & will be restored. The Scolz Highlander, with New York sleepers, will be back the same day. Connections will be provided to all West Coast cities through schedules.

This season, for the first time, the railroads have put on daily sale a reduced 18-day limit ticket to Florida, at one-fourth less than the round trip winter tourist rate. Traffic experts believe it will bring thousands of visitors to Florida who never came here before in winter. Much of this travel is expected to start right after the general elections, with a big pick up for Thanksgiving and Christmas. The roads are putting on an extensive advertising campaign in the East and West in the hope of having thousands of people spend Christmas in Florida.

BIBLE VERSES FOR TODAY

FINDING THE RIGHT WAY:
—Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call upon him while he is near; let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon.—Isaiah 65:8, 7.

As we get it, if business continues on the upgrade we will finally hit bottom.

An exchange suggests that Mr. Hoover looks upon the Digest poll as the last straw.

If it was the war that caused all this trouble, what a hell of a fix we would have been in if we had won.

We are not among those who believe that the depression is over, but we do think most folks are getting used to it.

The Communists have evolved a beautiful theory of government whereby they would make everybody rich by making everybody poor.

The World War must have been a fight to the finish—it practically finished all the nations that engaged in it.—Thomas (Ga.) Times.

The Taxpayers of America are the greatest collection of Consolidated Holding Companies in the world. To put it another way, they are holding the sack.

We support the presidential election will have to be held as usual, however, in order to formally confirm the result of The Digest's poll.—Weston Leader.

Russia shouldn't feel hurt because we don't recognize her. When we think back to 1929, it's about all we can do to recognize our own country.—Louisville Herald-Journal.

We see by the paper that Notre Dame's first string this year includes Jaskwhich, Branchous, Lukas, Koken, Shekstaki, and Malinowski.—Toledo Blade. How good for Amurical!

Venizelos' reported determination to use military force to prevent a return of royalism should the Greek people vote for it, reminds one of the man who said if people didn't want freedom it should be forced upon them.—Chicago Daily News.

Senator Borah's four point program for economic recovery has much common sense in it. He comes as close to advocating cancellation, or at least a scaling down of war debts, as any public figure has as yet dared to come. And this is something which is bound to occur, at least before recovery can be worldwide. Not only will war debts be measurably reduced, but so will municipal debts, and private debts.

In the latest Literary Digest poll Roosevelt has 1,062,087; Hoover, 781,431; and Norman Thomas, the Socialist candidate, 108,352. There is nothing particularly surprising in the vote being received by the two leading candidates, as almost everyone concedes that Roosevelt will lead in the popular vote and that the election at best will be close. But there is an element in the Thomas vote which is unexpected if not alarming.

While he cannot possibly receive enough support to place him in the lead or even near the lead, he is coming dangerously close to being a vital factor in the race. He might yet enough votes on election day to keep one of the other leaders in a close race from winning. And a strong Socialist vote demonstrates the support of the country.

Whispering Campaigns

It is a rather predominant, though perhaps unfortunate, national characteristic of the American people that no matter what they go into, they go into it with an almost insane passion to win. Whether it be business, politics, sport or love, their one objective is to emerge the victor. The method used is too often of small consequence. The earnestness with which we pursue our course may account in large part for the remarkable development of this country during the past hundred years; it may account for the extent to which we excel in most national sports; but it is also responsible to no less a degree for the presence of many mud holes on the highway to success.

In politics, for instance, we go all the way. Candidates are ever pretty apt to slay each other with all the facts and figures which the record possesses. Campaign headquarters invariably propagandize the public with every favorable deduction from the record of its candidate, with every unfavorable deduction from that of its opponent. Political orators make life as miserable as possible for everyone on the other side. Be it said to the credit of these factors of a political campaign that they themselves seldom resort to the falsehoods and vituperation of the "whispering campaign" which originates in the gutter and, strangely enough, ascends to most classes of society.

At the present time one hears that Franklin Roosevelt is a weakling with such impaired health that he cannot possibly endure the physical ordeals of the presidency. We hear that President Hoover is a British subject and once stole money in China. We hear that John Garner made his money selling political favors to crooked politicians down in Texas, and that Charles Curtis is in his dotage and a regency would be necessary in the event of Hoover's death. Such tales as these seem mild, however, when we recall the stories in 1928 of Al Smith's drunkenness and that his election would give a quiet claim deed on the entire United States to the Pope of Rome.

Even worse were the stories told about Woodrow Wilson during the war. It was whispered in the campaign of 1916 that the President would snoop through dark hotel corridors peeking through keyholes at undressed women. And when that great statesman had exhausted the last bit of his great physical energy in the pursuance of an ideal far beyond the grasp of his civilization, and lay helplessly invalided at his home, it was repeated with much frequency that he was failing illness, until a Congressional committee was sent to his room, pulling the covers off his bed in order to make sure.

But whispering campaigns are not of modern origin. They go back into the earliest days of American politics. When Andrew Jackson was running against John Quincy Adams over a century ago, such scandalous stories were told of his pre-marital life that the faithful wife with whom he had lived for thirty-seven years actually died from the shame of it and Jackson entered the White House alone. And strangely enough, during the same campaign it was rumored that Jackson's opponent, Mr. Adams, while minister to the Russian court, had sold an American girl to a life of shame.

Many other presidential aspirants have suffered the same indignities. Martin Van Buren was accused of being an illegitimate son of Aaron Burr. William Henry Harrison was a drunkard. Hannibal Hamlin, Lincoln's running mate in 1860, was said to have had negro blood in his veins. A similar charge was made against Warren Harding in 1920. In the Grant campaign, Grant was a drunkard, his opponent was illegitimate. Chester A. Arthur brought women to the White House for illicit purposes. Grover Cleveland was accused of having fathered illegitimate children, and his opponent was charged with having immoral relations with his wife before marriage.

And so it goes, the whole disgusting nauseating mess concocted in mud puddles and served to the voters as filth mignon. The wonder of it is not that people live who will deliberately fabricate such revolting tales and maliciously circulate them for selfish reasons. We all know that depraved people exist in all walks of life, though they seldom, if ever, aspire to the presidency. But what amazes one beyond human understanding is that there should exist so large a number of persons who fall for such rumors, hook line, and sinker, without making any effort to determine their authorship or to ascertain their truth.

The Library's Record

Sanford's municipal library set a record during the past year for which it can be justly proud. The librarian's annual report reveals that a total of 63,848 books and magazines were issued to the reading public in 346 days or an average of 184 books and magazines per day. This is a new high mark in the annals of the local library and is indicative of an increasing interest in literature which is reassuring.

This mounting enthusiasm for reading, it is interesting to note, has been almost in direct proportion to the severity of the depression and to the increase in unemployment. It appears that when the pocket book becomes slim and when job gets scarce people turn to the forms of diversion which cost them least.

As regrettable as it is that the public does not take up reading voluntarily but rather is led to it by the force of circumstances, nevertheless this situation can be looked upon as an advancement and as one of the distinct advantages of the depression.

More and more people are turning to simple values for their enjoyment. More and more they are finding that happiness is not necessarily dependent upon the size of the bank roll, and if this principle can be widely recognized, due to hard times, then the price we have to pay in reduced revenues and curtailed budgets may be to some extent compensated.

"The desires of men are without end, but the things that give content are few and well known," a Chinese poet once said. Evidently, judging by the increased popularity of the Sanborn library, local people are realizing that one of those few things which bring content is reading.

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

Unsettled and rainy weather throughout the gulf and south Atlantic states during the first part of the coming week is predicted by the weather bureau as a result of a tropical storm now entering the Gulf of Mexico from the Caribbean Sea. "HELLO, YOU OLD POTATO"

BY W. D. MCGEEHAN

The language of statecraft is passing strange. Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, meeting Governor Roosevelt at the Democratic State Convention, held out his hand and said, "How are you, you old potato?" This so touched Governor Roosevelt that he grasped former Governor Smith by the hand and said, "This comes from the heart." And so the Happy Warrior appeared happy again and the Forgotten Candidate (as far as former Governor Smith was concerned) was remembered again.

It becomes evident that in the language of statecraft the potato is a term of great endearment. If former Governor Smith had said coldly, "Hello, you old onion," there would have been no reconciliation. If he had said, "Hello, you old tomato," the greeting might have been taken as being semi-formal and as smacking of coquetry.

But when Al Smith from the fullness of his heart greeted Franklin D. Roosevelt as an old potato, there could be no doubt that all hostilities were off between the Happy Warrior and the man who was not forgotten by the man who could not forget.

When the pair held a long and lingering handclasp for the cameras, the Hon. James A. Farley crashed into the picture, putting an arm around the shoulders of each of them. Former Governor Smith might have continued talking in the language of vegetables and said to the Hon. James A. Farley, "Hello, you old cauliflower."

The Hon. James A. Farley, as you may or may not know, is not only chairman of the Democratic National Committee and the Democratic State Committee, but also marked upswing in business is noted by Vivian A. Speer

There is a marked improvement in conditions in our line of business, said Vivian A. Speer, junior member of Speer and Sons Department Store this morning when asked whether he had noted any appreciable change during his recent trip to New York City compared to his 1931 trip.

As an instance, he told of a visit to a large wholesale house that he has done business with for years, and in whose showroom there now appears a hurriedly constructed cutting room where several workers are busy all day making dresses and coats to supply a more than reasonable demand. "This struck me as an unusual sight," Mr. Speer said, "an indication that this one firm has more orders to fill than it is able to handle in its usual cutting room."

Values in clothing generally have increased during the year, in Mr. Speer's opinion, despite a small advance in cotton goods and furs, which carry an advanced federal tax that was not in existence last year.

Mr. Speer said that in brief contacts with old friends and from talks with new friends, he would say that the Democratic ticket nationally is conceded a sweeping victory. "I didn't see or talk with any persons who felt that the Republican party would return to power," Mr. Speer said. "Those I did talk with concede victory to Roosevelt. However, they are perturbed over the pre-election activity and are approaching election day with caution."

Mr. Speer went North with his father, G. A. Speer, about two weeks ago. They motored to Jacksonville and went from there to New York City by Clyde Line. Few passengers were aboard ship on the trip North, Mr. Speer said, but on the return trip there were more than 200 aboard. "Many of day was one of the best yet and President Lake handled the meeting with his customary vigor and dispatch. After the minutes were read and minor business disposed of the election of a treasurer was taken up and after a spirited but short campaign Frank Miller was declared the winner.

The formal opening of the new school building at Tarpon Springs took place a few days ago. The structure cost about $16,000 and is artistic in design and modern and complete in every detail. The enrollment of pupils on the opening day was the largest that Tarpon Springs has ever known.

Though a jury was selected within less than four days and considerable progress has already been made in the trial of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the indications are that the trial will not be finished for several weeks.

John P. McNamee, chief counsel for Becker, cross examined each of the state's witnesses fully.

TRAVEL BILL OF U. S. MOTORISTS IS HUGE AMOUNTAutomobile Tourist Business Takes Decline In Past Year

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—The travel bill of American motorists for 1932 will amount to approximately $2,000,000,000, the American Automobile Association estimated recently. "As compared with commercial enterprises by and large," it was said, "expenditures for recreational travel held up remarkably well during the period."

While the automobile tourist business for 1932 was considerably below that of 1931 because hundreds of families were compelled to give up their vacations. William G. Bryant, of Detroit, Mich., chairman of the A. A. National Touring Board, expressed the opinion that motor travel will respond speedily to the return of better times.

Long-distance travel was especially reduced during the last summer, Mr. Bryant said. Resorts and play places adjacent to metropolitan areas and large centers of population enjoyed a degree of prosperity. Playgrounds dependent on visitors from distant points suffered heavy declines. In Yellowstone Park, for instance, travel dropped off 30 percent.

Need for wider enactment of legislation designed to protect touring board chairman. Particularly, he cited the need for control of hitchhikers, relieving car owners from liability for injuries to guests transported free of charge, and regulation of so-called travel bureaus engaged in soliciting rides for persons in private automobiles.

The distribution of the $2,000,000,000 travel bill between directencies was outlined roughly by the A. A. A. as follows:

Car operating costs, including gasoline and oil, $400,000,000; hotels and other places offering overnight accommodations, $400,000,000; miscellaneous retail purchases, $300,000,000; restaurants, $200,000,000; confections, $150,000,000; amusement, $100,000,000.

"70,000 Witnesses" Is Showing At Milane

The football mystery drama, "70,000 Witnesses," which opened yesterday at the Milane Theater, will continue its showing through Friday.

Phillip Holmes, Dorothy Jordan, Charlie Ruggles and Johnny Mack Brown have leading roles in the film. Its action is set in a stadium packed with a throng of 70,000 where two big college teams were fighting it out in a traditionally thrilling game.

The team slated to win depends for the most part on its stellar halfback, a role played by Brown, a member of the championship 1925 Alabama eleven. And the climax of the picture comes when Brown tears loose for a touch-down, campers down a clear field, and then suddenly in the very shadow of the goalposts, drops murdered.

How and why he was killed is one of the 70,000 spectators can grasp. But the work of a clever detective, in cooperation with the dead man's roommate, finally clears up the mystery.
