

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"Come along, old man," he said firmly.

Nancy and Nick and the March Hare stood beside Grubby Groundhog's bed in Grubby's underground house, and watched him as he slept.

What did he care about the Land-Where-Spring-Was-Coming? He was having a grand time where he was.

Outside the snow was just about gone, there was only a little hand-ful here and there sticking in around fence-corners and stones, the sky was blue and the air was really as warm as pie.

Nancy and Nick and the March Hare were laughing. For Grubby was acting so funny in his sleep. "I'll tell you now why he was acting so funny.

Because the March Hare had cut off the red apple in two and laid the pieces right under Grubby's nose.

New groundhogs like apples about as well as you like chocolate ice-cream soda, or a salt-bonnet soda, or custard pie.

So it's no wonder Grubby's poor nose was wriggling itself off nearly.

He was dreaming. He was dreaming that it was summer and he was stuffing his sides out with sweet apples in a sweet apple orchard.

"There's a fine one," he would mutter in his sleep. "The big apple over there by the old grindstone. See! It just fell off the tree and never got bruised a bit and there aren't any ants on it. Not that I'd mind an ant or two. Some of them are mighty sweet."

Then Grubby snored twice and turned over.

"Say, where's the nice big sweet apple?" he muttered. "It's gone. It was over by this grindstone and now I can't even so much as smell it."

The March Hare took one of the big pieces of apple he had cut and held it under Grubby's nose. "Come along, old man," he said firmly. "Come along. We'll find it."

Grubby threw back the covers and got slowly out of bed. Then he saw the March Hare's nose. "Oh look!" he cried. "He's still asleep."

"Yes," said Nick. "He thinks he's still in the orchard smelling that big sweet apple."

"Come right along, Grubby," said the March Hare, wagging one ear at the Twins, which is the way rabbits wink at you sometimes. "Come right along, Mister Groundhog."

Then he took a step and Grubby took a step, then he took another step and Grubby took another step, the March Hare always carefully holding the piece of apple just far enough from Grubby's nose for him to smell it.

They went along the crooked hall and out of the front door by the potato patch, the Twins quietly following, and then they came to the little secret bush that is the beginning of Scrub-Up Land. That little place, ruled by Mister Rubadub, where all the meadow folk have to get groomed up so they'll look decent for spring.

Before Grubby so much as opened his eyes, they were tight at Rubadub's house.

And the very first person Grubby saw was that fairyman with a trowel over his arm and a big pair of scissors in his hand.

Grubby tried to bolt, but he was too slow.

They washed him up and trimmed his whiskers and slicked up his tail and combed him and brushed him and I think they put a few drops of brillianine on him. But it was of no use. Grubby just wouldn't shine. But he looked better when at last he waddled off the Land-Where-Spring-Was-Coming. Oh yes! I forgot! He got the apple after all and so he wasn't mad a bit.

$400,000

Lawrence Beckwith is only a year old, but he's sole heir to the $400,000 estate of William Beckwith of Massachusetts. Little Lawrence was adopted on William Beckwith's death by Miss Anita Hodkin of Berkeley, Calif., and eastern relatives are now trying to obtain custody of him, as he is the only barrier between them and the fortune.

Is this your BIRTHDAY

MONDAY, MARCH 15

If so, watch out. Be careful of that aptness to "explode" at the least provocation. Watch that disposition of yours and fight it. It will be a handicap all through life unless you better it.

You will make many enemies through your "explosions" and your inability to consider the feelings of others.

JAIL FOR KISSING ADULTS

TURIN, Mar. 15.—Any adults who kiss each other good night on the door steps will be jailed. The supreme court has so decided in letting off two young lovers with a fine.

PARIS LETTER

PARIS, Mar. 15.—A proposal that all the debates in the Chamber of Deputies be broadcast has aroused much contention in parliamentary circles. The plan is favored by all who would like to have the chamber's discussions shortened by elimination of unnecessary oratorical flights. It is opposed by many legislators who have appreciated the protection afforded by the fact that the stenographic report which now forms the official record of proceedings may be edited, abridged and corrected for the edification of their constituents. The radio would let the public in on the battles of words which often break out, and this, it is feared, might bring disfavor on the participants. If the radio drew aside this curtain, the president of the chamber would no longer be able to suppress seditious utterances or irrelevant reflections on the head of the state, which now are often heard in the chamber but which never appear in the printed debates.

Georges Clemenceau's new book on Demosthenes, which first appeared as a supplement to a weekly paper, has come out in book form. The chief point is that you have not a little point about it has escaped notice. He has not put "member of the French Academy" after his name on the title page. Most authors do so, and they have been elected one of the "Forty Immortals" hasten to add this distinction to their signatures, as it carries great weight in the country and gives them a higher value in the literary market.

But the election of the "Times" to the French Academy in 1918 was exceptional in every respect. The recognized procedure is for every candidate to pay personal visits to the members and solicit their votes. If he is successful, he is "received" by the academy at a ceremonious meeting at which he has to review the life and work of his predecessor, to whose "armchair" he has been elected.

None of these traditions was observed in the case of M. Clemenceau. Instead of soliciting votes, he was solicited by the academy to allow himself to be elected. He never made any visits to members, and since his election he has never taken part in the work of the academy, which includes editing the official dictionary of the French language. As for being "received," he has never made the slightest movement toward having that ceremony performed, and, of course, he has never been measured for that green and gold uniform or tried on that St. Nazaire shipyard's tunic (March 16). The new ship is not yet named, but will be called either the Verdun or Versailles.

She is larger than the line's present crack boats, the Paris and the France. Her tonnage is 40,500, estimated speed 23 knots an hour, length about 720 feet and beam 84 feet. There will be accommodation for 1,200 first and second class passengers and 600 third class. The crew, including officers, will total about 500.

STRATON REBUKES SOCIETY
WEST PALM BEACH, Mar. 15.—About the warmest thing in shivery Florida at the beginning of the winter was Dr. Straton's sermon denouncing a society for "degrading" Palm Beach, especially by having a "dirty girl show" for charity.

BERLIN LETTER

BERLIN, Mar. 15.—Deposed by the revolution as ruler of the Grand Duchy of Baden, which members of his family have governed for 500 years, the former Grand Duke Frederick Augustus has been offered a job as mayor of the village of Rastede, near Bremen. Frederick Augustus is 74 years old. Like many former ruling princes, he is beloved by his former subjects. It was with difficulty that he was able to make a deputation of citizens feel at home in the parlor of his castle at Rastede. The spokesman almost too moved to speak stammered:

"Your Royal Highness, our mayor is getting old, and under-stand our people. We thought you could guarantee your election. The chief point is that you'd be in the swim again in a modest way."

Frederick Augustus laughingly replied that he was not exactly young any more, but promised to think the matter over.

President Von Hindenburg has sent his congratulations on the 70th wedding anniversary of Casper and Frau Guckel, residents of Barmen, in the Rhineland.

Hale and hearty at 86 and 93, respectively, the couple are the head of a family of five generations. Their eldest daughter aged 70, lives in the United States.

Herr Guckel quit work in a textile factory only five years ago, and still attends a "young men's club" composed of twelve octogenarians who meet weekly to discuss religious topics.

Prof. Lichterfeld, in Brandenburg, Prussia, comes an account of another five-generation family. The fifth generation was reached with the arrival of a baby boy in the family of William Kruger, a laborer, and now under the same roof are a mother of 20 years old, a grandmother of 40, a great-grandmother of 60 and a great-great-grandmother of 84. All four women are in good health.

President Von Hindenburg has set an example to society-mad Berlin by closing his winter's social calendar early. He gave the last of his big dinners when he entertained members of the second Lutheran cabinet, their wives and parliamentary leaders. He has just given his last weekly tea. Only one function of importance remains and that is an informal "bierabend" this month for members of the Reichstag.

The president continues to surprise the people by keeping up numerous social engagements despite his age. He frequently stays out much later than midnight sipping his mug of beer and carrying on an animated conversation.

He accepts invitations with the utmost impartiality. One night he may be found at the home of the socialist president of the Reichstag, Paul Loebe; the next day at a dinner of the virtual head of the Republican army, General Von Seeckt, and the following day at a reunion of officers who fought at his side for the former Kaiser.

HARD ON BROOKLYN
NEW YORK, Mar. 15.—All the prohibition agents of the United States could not make Brooklyn dry, in the opinion of Rev. Ernest Johnson. Rev. John Callahan, chaplain of the Tomba, thinks prohibition is a modern miracle and "old King Alcohol" isn't dead; he is likened to Kaiser; he has abdicated and wants to get his throne back.

LONDON LETTER

LONDON, Mar. 15.—The Prince of Wales soon will have a new residence in London, Marlborough House, and he is personally directing the work of its preparation for his occupancy. As soon as the work was begun he went over the plans himself and made several radical changes, insisting on the installation of American style bathrooms to replace the old-fashioned English ones. The Prince told the contractor that he would visit the place every few days and ordered that he be informed of any changes made in the present plans.

He has asked his mother, Queen Mary, to select the decorations for his new residence, and His Majesty has agreed to do so.

Queen Victoria's feat that England would have war with the United States after the Civil War and might not be able to hold Canada is set forth in an extract from her diary, just published in Buckle's "Letters of Queen Victoria."

An entry on February 12, 1865, written at Osborne, Isle of Wight, tells of a conversation she had just had with Sir C. Wood in which they discussed the danger of losing Canada. "But we must struggle for it," the diary reads. "And far the best would be to let it go as an independent kingdom with an English Prince. But can we stave this off, and who would be chosen? I told Sir C. Wood that Dearest Alfred thought of the colonies for our idea. However, now I feel, knowing the serious reasons put before me, I could not but entertain the thought, though for Alfred it would not do. For Arthur it might be different."

Alfred was the Duke of Edinburgh, later Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, and Arthur was the Duke of Connaught, who still is living and was formerly governor general of Canada.

The Countess of Warwick's decision to live "in the stable yard" after she had turned her beautiful home, Easton Lodge, and 900 acres over to the trades union congress for use as an educational headquarters, was followed by an announcement that the Duchess of Rutland had retired from her Arlington street mansion to make her home in one of the Gate lodges.

The lodge has ten rooms, however, is two stories high with basement and attic, which the Duchess has fixed up as a studio for her work as a portrait painter and sculptress.

The Duchess decided that the mansion was too large for her small family, and with the difficulties of getting good servants she finally made up her mind to take over the lodge and make herself comfortable there. The Duchess, like the Countess of Warwick was one of the famous beauties in the late Victorian period.

Lady Warwick's new quarters at Easton Lodge are in a wing of the old house with a wonderful garden, in which she spends many hours daily.

A new kind of fowl to grace America's Thanksgiving feast or Christmas dinner is promised by British poultry raisers who announced they have solved the problem of crossing the chicken and the turkey.

It had been intended to keep the discovery a secret, but in the face of news from California that a new hybrid had been perfected by breeders near Santa Cruz, it was decided to make known certain facts about the "churkey" or the "Turken."

The California "invention" has been called the "Kiwi." The new English fowl is tame and hardy, has flesh the flavor of turkey though less coarse in texture, but in the process of evolution has lost one of the chief characteristics of the turkey—the gobble.

DAY BY DAY IN FLORIDA

DAYTONA BEACH—Municipal Judge John Parkinson has been "pulled" for parking wrong. He was fresh from imposing innumerable fines upon offending ones for the same infraction. When asked what he was going to do about being tagged, he declared that he would seek a bond, and they pay the customary $2 fine.

TAMPA—Par. Whiteaker, representative in the legislature from Hillsborough county, has pronounced his candidacy for the Senate in the June primary.

FORT MYERS—By the aid of a straggler, during which 10 bullets from a high-powered rifle were poured into its body, a devilfish, weighing over a ton and a half and measuring 14 feet across, was landed at Capt. P. H. Newton, Johnson and John W. Ellis, Ohio snortmen. The devilfish is the first caught since the late Theodore Roosevelt pulled one in 18 feet long in 1916.

LAKELAND—The Florida department of the Grand Army of the Republic and its auxiliaries, the Woman's Relief Corps, the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Daughters of Union Veterans, will convene in Lakeland on April 13 and 14. About 300 delegates are expected.

KEY WEST—Removal of the old devilfish which has been in the channel at Fleming Key since 1921 will probably be effected as a result of the visit here of Major George E. Brown, of the United States Engineering Department. Major Brown looked over the remains of the ship, which was towed in by the Navy, and stated that dynamite would likely be used to blow it up.

DELAND—When the state-wide meeting of county sheriffs is held at Palm Beach on March 17, Sheriff Edward Stone, of Volusia county, will seek the endorsement of the officers for a proposed change of the law governing the issuance of search warrants. Among the revisions the legislature would be asked to make, would be that making it unnecessary for the filing of a direct affidavit that actual violation had been seen before a warrant to search a questionable house or automobile is legal.

ST. AUGUSTINE—A "hard-balled" collie dog attempted to do bodily damage to a cat on a busy street here, but soon found out that the feline was not only protected by a shop window, but was only an alabaster kitten at that.

OCALA—When Deputy Sheriff Roddenberry went to arrest an intoxicated, half-crazed negro, it was only his cool, even temper that probably saved either himself or both of them. The negro advanced upon the officer three times, when a black-jack finally brought him down.

Clarence Saunders

Clarence Saunders, deposed head of the Price Now chain, appeared in the John Walker at Memphis, Tenn., and signed March 29 to answer charges of using the Saunders on the left and Commissioner Walker on the right.

FROSTPROOF—Construction begins on new Citizens Bank building.

JACKSONVILLE—Plans proposed for installing white was lights on Lake City road, from Duval county line to city limits of Jacksonville.

Scores of people visited Sanford Grove Sunday. They saw the tremendous progress that has taken place, the beginning of the first home, and the cleared course of Crescent Boulevard. All along Geneva avenue material has been piled preparatory to the paving on every hand. Its progress is evident, such progress is only made possible through a great amount of energy and activity. Such activity is proof enough that the developers are keeping faith in the growth and expansion of the city. If you have not visited Sanford Grove you are not aware of the progress of the city. For here you will find improvements and developments of such magnitude that assure nothing but prosperity with a background that lend greatly to the substantiality of the city. Make arrangements to see Sanford Grove at once. Our representatives will be pleased to accompany you to the property. We urge you to secure your site before the advance in prices becomes effective.

DRUID PARK

Every development we have fostered has been high-grade in every particular. We have never been called upon to offer apologies for the property we have distributed. Each development has been sold upon its own merits, therefore no apologies were necessary. Druid Park, our present development, is on State Highway No. 3 (Sanford-Orlando Road), and on the shores of beautiful Lake Jennie. It is in keeping with the high-class developments with which we have been associated previously—Pinehurst, Pinecrest, and others. Druid Park appeals to the most exacting investor, it embodies all the features that make it the pre-eminent investment opportunity of the Greater Sanford District.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"Goodness gracious!" he cried. "It's high time things were happening!"

Mister Rubadub pulled out a watch almost as big as a dinner plate and looked at it.

"Goodness gracious!" he cried. "It's high time things were happening. It's half past a quarter to the year after next almost. And spring's about here. And all those wood folk and meadow people not scrubbed up yet to go to the Land-Where-Spring-Is-Coming! If we don't watch out, Mister Hare, they will be slipping away without coming to my magic barber-shop first!"

The March Hare looked over his spectacles. "They can't," he remarked. "I've got burglar alarms on everyone of their doors. The minute they step out, the alarm rings right here over your towel-rack."

Nancy and Nick were stepping over curiously to gaze at the funny little bell when suddenly it went "tinkle, tinkle, tinkle, tinkle," like an alarm clock.

"There it goes!" cried Mister Rubadub excitedly. "Somebody's trying to slip out without us knowing it. Who is it, I wonder?"

The March Hare went over and looked at the little bell. Below it was an arrow pointer like the hand on a clock, and around it in a circle were names instead of numbers.

Each name belonged to one of the wood or meadow people.

"Ah, it says 'Mister Ringtail Coon,'" said the March Hare. "Come Twins, well skip over to his house and head him off. But I must say that I'm surprised. Ringtail Coon usually goes out at night and here it is broad daylight."

"I'll be waiting for him," said Mister Rubadub, sharpening his razor on his razor strap. "Ringtail's the biggest juke in the whole country and likes to be played around his nose. And he's very careful about his mustache. It has to be just so."

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Mar. 16.—Congressman Sol Bloom has been pretty cheery ever since Marcia, the well known astrologer notified him of his coming promotion into the Senate.

Marcia had been a good bit worried about the bill Sol has pending, to put a cramp into the fortune-telling industry in the District of Columbia.

But Sol was a blunder at regular intervals, like Marcia.

Sol's last wild idea, among whom it passes, he doesn't class Marcia.

It was when he explained this to her that she revealed to him what the heavens had told her bearing on his own political future.

They say that Senator Wadsworth, of Sol's own state of New York, who came up this year for re-election, is considerably upset over it. However, the stars don't say positively that Sol would get the very first vacancy.

At that, it wouldn't be surprising if Marcia had some strong enough political influence, though hardly with the New York state voters.

She has read the stars for two presidents' eyes.

Anyone with the ready access to the White House that she had while she was doing out the consultations for these two "first ladies" is likely to find an occasional chance to say a good word for some people.

If so, it would be up to the persons who spoke for to feel grateful. They don't always, though.

It was Harry Houdini who inspired the campaign against the Washington occultists.

So it was natural for the congressional committee which was considering Sol Bloom's bill, preparatory to reporting on it, to call the wizard as one of its witnesses.

The committee room was full of fortune tellers when he got there.

As might have been expected, a row started.

Houdini said the spirit never told anybody anything.

The mediums present said they did.

Houdini produced a crumpled telegram from his breast pocket, and slammed it, in a wad, down on the table.

"I'll give $10,000," he challenged, "to any medium if this room, who'll tell me what's on that paper without opening and reading it."

"Why, that's the telegram we sent, summoning you before this committee," grinned Congressman Frank Heid, an Ephraimite.

Houdini started violently.

"I only said, 'any medium,'" he hedged hastily.

AN ATOLL TO ORDER!

IT TAKES years to produce the atolls of the South Seas. But at Coral Gables one has been made in a few weeks. It circles in a majestic curve of 1600 feet from Tahiti Beach into the blue of Biscayne Bay. Palm towers along its slender ridge. Promenades and thatched bathing pavilions delight the bathers within its magic circle.

This tropic gem is only a small part of a water-front development at Coral Gables that will rival the riverias of the world. Come and see it. Let us arrange a bus trip for you to Coral Gables from any point in Florida.

READ THESE TRUTHS ABOUT A "REAL FLORIDA" CITY

(A day-by-day story of a Florida community that we believe will show more comparative progress in the next five years than any other city in the state.)

- THIS IS NO. 8
- How Sanford is Growing
- In five years, Sanford doubled its population. Today, it's Florida's twelfth largest city. It is made up of people from the other forty-seven states in the Union with a negligible foreign population. At Sanford, too, there is a permanent centered colored population, industrious and useful in the agricultural development which is Sanford's chief stock-in-trade.
- But Sanford is growing in other ways. This year a record celery crop, anticipating returns of $3,000,000, is being harvested. Bank deposits of approximately $4,000,000 in January, 1925, have increased to $6,500,000 in January, 1926. A building schedule covering 1 1/2 homes a day is maintained to meet the demand for permanent residences. Accommodations for leasing are at a premium.
- The municipality is planning a $2,500,000 bond issue to increase civic utilities and improvements.
- A city-planning commission, now functioning two years, is developing Sanford along well-defined lines.
- The fact that Sanford is a strategically located distributing center of the Solid Central Section of the State with lower freight rates occasioned by direct water shipment via Lake Monroe and the St. Johns River, industries are being attracted in increasing numbers. Certain portions of lakefront property have been reserved by the city for industrial investors of substantial and progressive nature. The largest icing plant at original point of shipment in the world is at Sanford. Fifty-two refrigerator cars can be iced simultaneously. A similar plant with daily capacity of 500 tons is being built. A $12,000,000 electric generating plant to serve interior Florida and some east coast points is being erected at Sanford by the Florida Light and Power Company. In the early days, the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, foresightedly established division and repair shops at Sanford.
- At Sanford are inexpensive homes on 1/2 acre sites, farms, acreage, business and industrial locations. Municipally owned utilities. Forty-seven miles of paved streets. Three banks. Modern schools, and churches of all denominations.
- New Forrest Lake Tourist Hotel. Eighteen-hole golf course. Fishing, hunting, water sports. Other recreational facilities of the type that has brought renown to other resorts.

- Sanford's Claim of Potential
- 1—Sanford is the World's Greatest Celery Center.
 - 2—Sanford's Recreational and Pleasure Center.
 - 3—The Hotel Forrest Lake, Sanford, is headquarters.
 - 4—The St. Johns River and Lake Monroe.
 - 5—The St. Johns River-Indian River Canal.
 - 6—Sanford as a Better Place to Live.
 - 7—Sanford as a Vacationing Center.
 - 8—How Sanford is Growing.
 - 9—The Spirit of Sanford's Citizenship.
 - 10—Sanford as a Place to Rear Your Children.
 - 11—Real Estate Possibilities in Sanford.
 - 12—Sanford's Moderate Cost of Living.
 - 13—Business Necessities in Sanford.
 - 14—Recapitulation of Facts and Statistics.
- Come and See for Yourself
- Why Sanford values are undiminished and why investments are strictly income earning and not just yield, see, for instance, an 18,000 acre record celery harvest.
- You'll see a city fronting on a magnificent bay of navigation on the St. Johns River, and bonded transportation by all-water route to principal seaports; Hudson municipal pier and bonded house to be built.
- You'll see a city on the main line (railroad) and terminal of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad and cross-state Dixie Highway midway between St. Petersburg and Tampa. Fulltime bus service to all Florida.
- You'll see, too, the new half-million-dollar Forest Tourist Hotel.
- You'll see property values like those you can't find up North and you will be convinced that Sanford is the place to live in Florida.
- Sanford offers the opportunity as St. Petersburg, Miami, Orlando and Tampa offered ten years ago.

Limit The Loans

Borrowing money for luxuries by those whose incomes cannot stand the debt is one of the principal causes of divorces, suicides, burglaries, embezzlements and sickness, according to the Denver Retail Credit Men's Association, which has recently completed an exhaustive analysis of the evils resulting from the indiscriminate loaning of funds to pleasure seekers.

There are few of us who cannot recognize the truth of these findings, either from experience or observation. Things look rosy when we borrow money for the new automobile; good salary, good chances of selling out those lots at a profit, tidily sum coming in from second payments.

Then the wife gets sick, second payments fail to materialize, interest comes due, worry entails loss of sleep and poor health, then finally to cap the climax of disaster, the boss says "sorry, but—" and Saturday finds the joy rider out of a job with a sick wife and heavy liabilities on his hands.

It's an old familiar tragedy that has played its part in many lives. And the unethical loan man is largely to blame for its increase in practically all parts of America. Instead of discouraging, or actually refusing to loan a man in moderate circumstances money for luxuries, there are too many loan companies whose interest is confined only to the collateral that is put up.

If the guarantee of payment is sufficient, many loan companies feel that they are doing their duty in supplying funds for no matter what purpose. Every right thinking man's conscience tells him that the loan man has not acted along ethical lines in advancing money for the purchase of some luxury by a man whom he knows is in no financial condition to afford the expenditure.

In this period of advanced business, the rigid adherence to ethics is necessary to draw the dividing line between legitimate and high class loan companies and those unscrupulous firms and individuals who will actually encourage a man with moderate means to court financial disaster, provided that financial disaster will result favorably to the firm.

The duty of the loan company is to advance money in time of sickness, to aid the business man in his financial enterprises, and to generally supply capital where it is required for legitimate purposes.

There is no doubt but that Charles M. Reed, general manager of the Denver Credit Bureau, speaks truthfully and lucidly in saying that "every conceivable sort of human ill could be traced to the practice of borrowing money by young married couples and persons whose incomes cannot support extravagant spending."

The consistent limiting of loans to strictly legitimate purposes would go far toward alleviating problems daily becoming more apparent.

It Can't Be Done

In all seriousness an attempt is being made by some disgruntled individuals of an East Coast city to read Governor Martin out of the Democratic party.

Captain George Manson, former Miami harbor master, has asked the Dade county executive committee to oust Martin from the party, charging that the Governor has failed utterly to keep pre-election pledges.

Captain Manson declares that the committee has already reviewed the alleged violations of campaign pledges and that a majority was favorable to action against Martin.

It will be interesting to see just how far such a "spite measure" can be made to go. Captain Manson, who is so vigorous in his attack on Governor Martin, happens to be the unfortunate individual who was harbor master at Miami when the Prims Valdemar overturned blocking the channel, and who was removed from office by the governor for inefficiency.

We cannot believe that the weight of this retaliatory effort will make itself very noticeably felt on the broad shoulders of Florida's governor. Reading men out of the party tends more to make martyrs of them than traitors and they are stronger afterwards than before.

Governor Martin certainly has his faults and he may one day have kept some of his campaign pledges, but he is easily one of the best governors Florida ever had and one whom the state can well be proud of. He has made many mistakes, but at the same time his list of achievements which react beneficially to Florida, has been steadily growing.

Any attempt to read him out of the party, who is one of the best Democrats in it, will be held as too ridiculous for consideration.

Tampa, as has been said, though located in a different quarter of the state, is not unlike Jacksonville in several respects. The two cities are at present running a close race in population, the actual difference probably being less than 1,000.

Tampa has a good harbor and is important commercially and for its manufacturing, the cigar industry being especially important. It belongs, like Jacksonville, in the more conservative part of the state.—Elmer H. Youngman in Bankers Magazine.

As Brisbane Sees It

The Man and Lizard, Cat and Monkey, Prohibition Crisis, A Shaky League. By ARTHUR BRISBANE copyright 1926, by Star Co.

HAVE YOU the latest news about that beautiful league of nations, that was to give the world peace and forever end strife? One pro-league newspaper gets this dispatch from Geneva, "the league is tottering as Germany rejects Briand compromise."

On page three of the same newspaper a Washington correspondent marvels at the power of small nations to mix up the league, describing Washington as "concerned over the misapprehension of the league for personal ambitions."

The New York Times, pro-league, now describes the league situation as "very near the breaking point," with "the fate of three governments in the balance."

Would it not be wise to keep the fate of this government out of any such balance, out of the league of nations and the world court, which is an annex and back door to the league?

PROHIBITION IS started by the vote of the United States Congress yesterday with 419 yeas and 19 nays, wanting the prohibition law changed to admit light wines and beers, or abolish entirely.

Only 76,385 would keep prohibition as it is. In Europe and Asia, President Coolidge to declare for prohibition of the present basis, evidently feel that there is a crisis and danger of the wet tide's return.

President Coolidge probably will think over carefully the fact that the public appears to favor some change by 10 to 1.

HAVING READ the fable about the cat that pulled the monkey's chestnuts out of the fire, European residents in China, the other day requested Uncle Sam's cruiser to shell and silence Chinese forts at Taku.

Since then those forts have fired upon Japanese warships, wounding several Japanese. You will hear more of that.

It is well for American cruisers and American sailors to keep out of that shooting.

In Europe and Asia the inhabitants and nations should be allowed to do their own fighting, without assistance or financing from Uncle Sam.

SHRINE CLUB BANQUET AT FORREST LAKE HOTEL IS BRILLIANT AFFAIR

The Shrine Club banquet given Monday evening at the Hotel Forrest Lake, honoring J. Putnam Stevens, past imperial potentate of America, proved a most decided success in every sense of the word.

Camels, Shrine emblems, as well as bunting in red, yellow and green, decorated the tables. Centerpieces of long tables were cut glass baskets and vases holding cut flowers and ferns, interspersed with Shrine suggestions. The place cards were in keeping with the decorations.

Julien Brazil, nationally known humorist and entertainer, was in his prime last evening, and witty remarks and songs kept the crowd in an uproar. Judge Landis of DeLand was one of the speakers for the evening, and his talk was full of good points interwoven with a bit of humor. J. J. Dickerson of Orlando also gave an unusually interesting talk.

The main speaker of the evening was Mr. Hitchcock, captain of the Morocco Patrol of Jacksonville, who proved a most interesting speaker.

"THE WOMAN'S DAY"

By Allene Sumner

THE WOMAN'S DAY—INSIDE.
Well of All Things!
Paris won against America when Parisian jewelers outbid American one for the Russian crown jewels, sold by the Soviet government. Paris bid $3,015,000 which was $140,000 more than the Americans bid. Poor Paris, so poor since the war, and that terrible war debt of hers which stings America won't forget all about!

The Glad Rags
Have you ever worn $50,000 worth of clothes at one time? Perhaps not. But we are told by a New York fashion writer that a number of women sit in the Golden Horseshoe of the Metropolitan Opera House every evening of the opera season wearing costumes which cost this sum. And this does not include their jewels.

One woman dressed in $33,475 worth of clothes wore a $90,000 sable coat, a $2,000 French gown, $200 costume slip, $250 chemise, $75 slippers, $25 hose, $100 head dress, and $225 worth of handkerchiefs, fan and scarf.

They tell of a millionaire who married a chorus girl, gave her $100,000 with which to buy the most expensive outfit in New York, and was angry when she returned $30,000, explaining that one outfit in New York!

WOMEN WRITERS AGAIN TAKE LEAD IN SUPPLYING THE BEST BOOKS

BY THE NEA BOOK SURVEY
WADING through the great spring downpour of fiction, it is almost impossible to believe that only 50 years ago one Mary Evans changed her very feminine name to George Eliot because women weren't supposed to write.

For women writers again are taking the lead and threatening to hold it. Furthermore, the list shows a vast number of male writers getting excited over feminine problems. Thus Wallace Irwin's "Motel" (Putnam) which deals with the problem of the child of parents who figure in sensational divorce.

And Samuel Hopkins Adams' "The Piper's Fee" (Boni, Liveright) which contrasts the "freedom" of two girls, one who runs to it out of poverty; the other, born rich, who has her fling through experience gathered "socially."

But to return to "the ladies"—last year it was Margaret Kennedy and "The Constant Nymph" that created a sensation. Perhaps the most notable discovery of many years was Sarah Millin, who wrote "God's Stepchildren." This year she is back with "Mary Glenn" (Boni, Liveright), one of the finest examples of tragic narrative to be found in present-day writing. And there is Sylvia Thompson with her "The Hounds of Heaven" (Little, Brown), which draws the picture of people who lived through the war times, but were—for the most part—non-combatants.

A quite remarkable war indictment is accomplished by Miss I. A. R. Wylie in "Black Harvest" (Doran).

There is Countess Clayka (formerly Eleanor Patterson) who has written such a book of Washington society as only a woman could prepare. It is "Glass Houses" and there are a dozen nipping bites per chapter.

How she does make the "dirt" fly!

The calmest, most poised and refreshing volume you will discover this year is Sylvia Warner's "Lolly Willowses" (Viking Press).

If you would have Athens, Sparta at all, in the good old Socratic days, brought to your front porch a most clever young lady named Naomi Mitcheson will help you in her book "Cloud Cuckoo Land" (Harcourt Brace).

Not even the Rider Haggard heritage is safe in masculine hands. Up springs a pretty young maid by name of Elswyth Than and produces "Riders of the Wind" (Appleton) in which a modern girl undergoes the dangers ordinarly credited in fiction to "strong young men." It's a "breathless" thriller.

The poetry prizes of the year go to two women, Babbette Deutsch and Leonora Speyer. Miss Deutsch took the Nation's annual prize with "Thoughts at the End of a Year," a truly beautiful thing, and, to our mind, the best selection the Nation's editors have made. Miss Speyer's poem was a ballad of superbly fanciful quality, "The Ballad of Old Doc Higgins." And Miss Speyer has a volume fresh from the Knopf press, "Fiddler's Farewell," which cannot be too highly recommended.

Finally there is Storm Jameson with "Three Kingdoms" (Knopf). Here is the story of the "masculine-feminine" as told by a feminine of international reputation. It's such a story as could be told only in such a generation, when Lucy Stoners and bobbed haired damsels are crashing the world's gates. It's a book the "modern girls" will "eat alive."

Yes, it's a great season for "the ladies."

Master Billy Evans Is Host At Party On Saturday Afternoon

Master Billy Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Evans of Lake Wales, entertained 50 boys and girls with a neighborhood party at his home on Saturday afternoon in honor of his fifth birthday.

At the close of the afternoon, a grand march was formed and the young folks marched to the lounge, where refreshments were served and Master Billy cut his birthday cake. The house was decorated in Easter suggestions, and Mrs. Evans was assisted in serving by Mrs. M. V. Evans, and Misses Eudora Ferguson, Camille Durant and Mary Dunn.

Brides, Beware! Says Cynthia.

By CYNTHIA GREY

Once upon a time there was a beautiful Cinderella, and every time she opened her mouth to speak priceless rubies and pearls and glistening diamonds fell from her lips.

That was before she married the prince.

I have often wondered if, even for the sake of scooping up a platter of crown jewels, the prince cared so very much whether or not she opened her ruby lips to the altar.

It's the old, old tale of the dolling swain hanging upon her every word before he wins her, but not caring a whit of a lot if, after the few first hymeneal weeks a neighbor asks him if that pretty wife of his is really deaf and dumb!

The man about the house, brides, you see, has so many things upon his mind.

There's the sport page to read and the radio to monkey with. It really takes a master mind to tune out the story of Little Johnny Slunk in the prickly briar patch, and substitute the reading of the night stock quotations.

And shaving! Few women know how this third hair on the upper right hand corner of the left jaw battles the sleuthiest razor blade. Any man would know that when another fellow man was caught in this strategic position, discretion were the better part of valor.

But how many foolish brides drape their ziplike figures over the wash bowl and make remarks at how he looks at this crucial moment of his life!

And, he it known, all men are born free and equal, and with the right to a morning grouch.

A few of our best scientists have discovered one or two rare specimens of the homo grunchless-before-breakfast, but these few have not been preserved in embalming fluid and put on the museum shelves to dry, so don't delude yourself into believing that you own one of them.

A few subjects, such as the need of a new Easter hat or the high price of pork chops, are better left until the dew of eventide have fallen—then he'll have his aquiline physiognomy buried in the newspaper again.

Yes, it's a hard life, brides, and the first few years are the hardest. You may have to talk some time, we'll admit, but choose the moment wisely and well!

Improvement Of Tourist Camps Stressed Today At Opening Of Social Council

Sanford's auto-tourist camps offer a challenge and an opportunity to the religious and social forces of the city," declared Dr. Worth M. Tippy of New York, secretary of the Commission on Social Service of the Federal Council of Churches this afternoon at the county-wide conference for discussion of community problems brought about by the tremendous growth of Seminole county. He made a detailed report of a recent survey of the auto-tourist camps of the state.

Praising the work done by the state health officials to insure sanitary conditions, Dr. Tippy said that the churches have done very little for the spiritual welfare of the auto-tourists. He urged that the Christian forces of Sanford unite to meet the need, saying it was beyond the ability of any one congregation or communion to handle.

The conference was opened this morning at the City Hall, where Mayor Lake made the address of welcome. It was called by a local committee in co-operation with the Federal Council of Churches, national church leaders and the American Social Hygiene Association.

The Federal Council of Churches was organized by 28 great Protestant communions with more than 20,000,000 adult members to carry on their co-operative work. The growth and development of Florida has created problems from the religious point of view that concern all the churches and social forces, according to the committee in charge.

A tribute was paid to the social and religious forces of the city by Dr. Tippy. He declared they were more alive to the community problems and more active in making Sanford attractive as a home center than most any place he has visited in Florida. In his address today was in the form of an open discussion, where the local situations were faced and frankly discussed.

"One of the fascinating stories of the new Florida is the adventure of the auto-tourist and the auto-tourist camp," said Dr. Tippy in presenting the report on auto-tourist camps. "No camps are allowed without being certified by a state sanitary officer."

"Ninety-five camps were certified on May 1, 1925. On November 1, there were 129 and on December 1, 178.

"Fifteen camps had over 900 campers each, three—over at Palm Beach and two at Miami—and over 2,000 each one at Palm Beach had 4,000.

"These were, it is estimated, on March 1, 1925, 120,000 auto-campers in the state. This startling information is given by Dr. B. L. Arms, state health officer.

"Until 1925, such camps were confined to the East and West coasts. Now they are all over the interior. They are controlled by strict sanitary rules to protect both the health of campers and citizens.

"The extraordinary climate of Florida has alone made it possible to care for such an influx of population without danger. People can live out of doors in the tonic of Florida sunshine. The soil dries out quickly after rains. Nowhere in the United States can this be duplicated. One reason also why the state has had no serious contagions is that the state board of health has stressed immunization by the use of vaccines for several years.

"Who are these 'auto-tourists'? People have all sorts of vague ideas about them. One committee consisting of Dr. Eugene L. Swan and Ray H. Everett, of the American Social Hygiene Association, any myself have been studying these camps to find out. This is what we have discovered by going from car to car in dozens of camps and talking with the auto-tourists themselves.

"They are people having a glorious adventure. They have come, absolutely from all over the United States, California, the Rocky Mountains, the South, New England, the Eastern states and the middle west.

"The people are friendly and interesting. That which surprises one most is the number of children. They play about happily. Camps are asleep early and stir early.

"Our committee has wanted to know what is being done for these camps to make life in them wholesome and happy, and what are their needs. And of course the best way to know what to do is to look about to see what is being done. We have this to report.

"The state and local authorities have done admirably as a rule in the regulation of camps and their inspection. We have been pleased also with the conscientious attention to the welfare of campers by most owners of camps. We have come across many instances of good social service.

"Our greatest disappointment has been to find the regular churches doing so little in auto-camps. Again and again we found no religious work in camps, except occasionally by the Salvation Army and here and there through the churches.

"We have come to the settled conviction that in the great majority of camps there should be a Sunday school on Sunday mornings and a vesper service with religious community singing towards the end of the day. In addition the camps should be visited by ministers and laymen and the campers made welcome in the local churches.

"No one pastor can look after these matters in the camps of the town. It must become a community affair. We therefore recommend the creation of committee in every town where there is a camp to provide these services without cost—to render assistance in cases of illness or misfortune and to surround the camps with wholesome influences.

BETTER FAMILY CONTEST BRINGS KANSAS BENEFIT

New Social Classification To Create Better Blood Among Residents of State Believed Sound Theory by Proponents

LAWRENCE, Kan., March 16.—(AP)—A new social classification, based not upon blue ancestral blood but upon the red blood of the living, is a possibility of remote future.

That was the thought in the mind of Dr. Florence Sherbon, of the University of Kansas faculty, when she launched a new venture six years ago at the Kansas Free Fair in Topeka—a "Fitter Families" contest.

"The time may come," Doctor Sherbon said, "when the family will be tested as a unit, not as individuals, but as a whole."

That was born an idea that has since been adopted by six other states and by the National Eugenics Society. In the last six years 123 persons, comprising 126 families, have been examined as participants in the "Fitter Families" in the Kansas Free Fair.

The purpose of the eugenics contests, Doctor Sherbon pointed out, is first to arouse family pride in being well born and to spread information concerning heredity and conduct.

Producer's Claim To Better Picture Making Is Awaited

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Mar. 16.—(AP)—The motion picture industry is prepared to produce artistic pictures just as soon as the public is in the proper mood to accept them. This is the consensus of producers and directors and they hoped for movement, they say, also has the approval of screen writers and players as well.

Clarence Brown, director, supports Jesse Lasky in voicing the opinion that "the public" will not get better pictures until they demand them.

"A so-called artistic photoplay would go right over the head of the average movie patron," he says, "and would result in a financial failure for the sponsor. Educating the public to better pictures must be gradual. The movie people are eager to improve the quality of their products but are held back by lack of support for advanced ideas and thought."

Brown cited several pictures that he played within the category of the artistic. Some patrons described them as the finest produced, but the box office result was a sad disappointment. Others brought forth newspaper praise but the pictures failed to draw the line at show time.

"If it is constructive, obnoxious and healthy giving it is good. If it is dissipative it is bad. The tendency in towns is to take our pleasures vicariously and to allow the sex interest to form the most of the thrill. Sex goes to see games instead of playing them, attend movies that entertain through rape situations and more or less left sex-suggestion and now dance to degenerate into a drag reminiscent of the cave man's supposed habits.

"To provide wholesome, healthful recreation and to give the duties of modern community building. To insure that commercialized amusements—whether the movies, the theatre or sports—are wholesome is as much a religious duty as to see that the Bible is taught and that the square deal is made an ethical code."

"We will be back here in 1927 and probably for many years to come," said Herrmann. There had been talk of shifting the camp to some point farther west, where it would be possible to schedule more practice games with American league teams.

The exhibition games to have been played with a semi-pro team at Winter Park on St. Patrick's Day, has been transferred to Orlando.

IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 16.—Chaos! A strange and virulent fever spreads from man to man. Faces are flushed. Voices are dry, sharp, nervous. Laughter is even more nervous.

Men pour down the sunless lanes of Wall street like lava. They seemed pulled, like bits of metal to a magnet. The magnet is a solemn, graystone building. To the disinterested eye it seems to rebel, rather than attract. It is cold, brightly, inhospitable. It is the Stock Exchange.

Yah, the greatest panic since 1914—when the war broke out!—Messenger boys scot by, as though greased. Gossip starts like smoke rings, the circle expanding as it goes, breaking finally into scattered wisps. Everyone is talking; young girls who get $25 a week and young men who get $50,000 a year.

Yah, know Stella—the phone girl over to the second floor—who was playing on margin and so was the secretary—the boss didn't know it. She got caught short and the broker yelled for more margin. What a chance!

The streets fairly cry such chatter. Big fish and little fish. All caught in the same net. The know-it-alls are everywhere in conversation. "Yep, it's Jesse Livermore. He's the boy that can break 'em. I told you it was coming. Anybody with half an eye could see it just wait. You haven't heard from our little Durant yet. Notice the motors haven't broken so bad. Just you wait. That Durant bird is still sitting back waiting. One of these days he'll bounce. He'll throw everything. He'll begin to buy and he'll

SLEEP

Hon. Ed. Walshall, c/o. Seminole Hudson-Essex Co., Sanford, Florida.

DEAR ED:—Some fellow who evidently has a guilty conscience and who suffers from insomnia has started some very disagreeable propaganda to try to convert people to the idea that four or five hours sleep is enough for a fellow.

Examples are cited to sustain this position, notably those of Napoleon and of Edison. It seems that Napoleon didn't have time to sleep more than five hours and that Edison doesn't take time to sleep more than four hours.

The new division of the hours of the day provides 12 hours for work, 7 hours for recreation and five hours for sleep, which will be all right if you don't weaken.

My system would be seven hours for work, five hours for play and 12 hours on the hay, especially in the winter time when the nights were made for sleeping.

I understand that John D. Rockefeller lives on crackers and water. Now John D. has made quite a success of life. So it might just as well be argued, if Edison is to be used as an example in the matter of sleeping, that everybody ought to live on crackers and water. If we use Edison as the standard in sleep, we could just as well use John D. as the standard in eating.

Sleep is a great, God-given gift that we ought not to let anybody talk us out of. Any man who can sleep eight hours every night and who cuts it down to four or five when he doesn't have to ought to be tried for larceny. A fellow can do enough worrying keeping awake 16 hours days.

Of course, if a man owns an Essex Coach he would be justified in cutting down his rest a few hours some nights to enjoy the pleasure of motoring, but even that great enjoyment would not justify any one in making a practice of it.

Yours, GILL.

THE GREATEST RACE IN HISTORY!

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The most romantic, daredevil race in history—a race for the north pole by air—will be on by the end of March!

Five expeditions, three of them American, will sail over the white reaches of the lifeless ice fields on new quests for information, undiscovered lands and adventure.

A hidden Arctic continent that is believed to lie about the pole, and that may contain oil and valuable ores, may be claimed for this or some other government as a result of the flight. Important air trade routes may be discovered. New knowledge of Arctic regions is sure to result.

But chiefly there is sport—adventure, competition, a five-sided dash for the glory of being the first to reach the north pole by air.

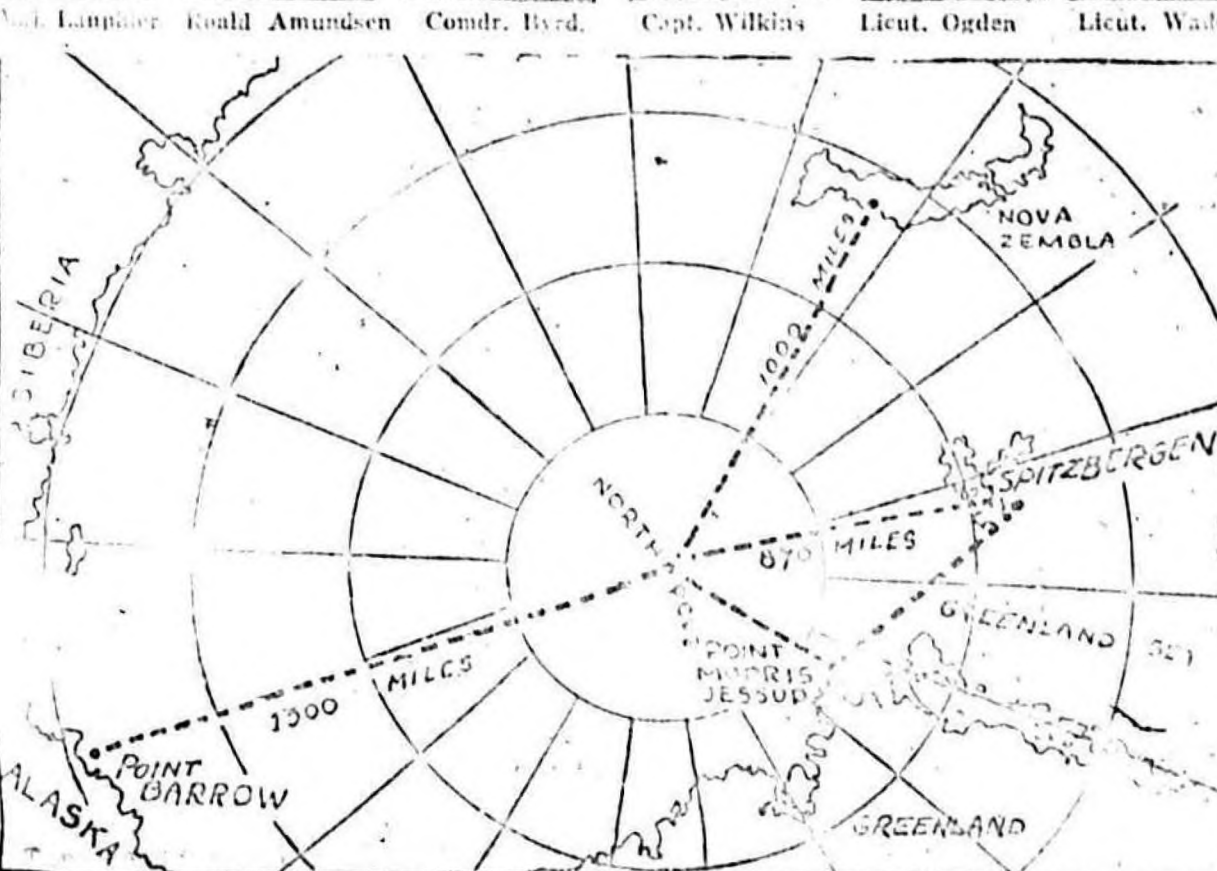

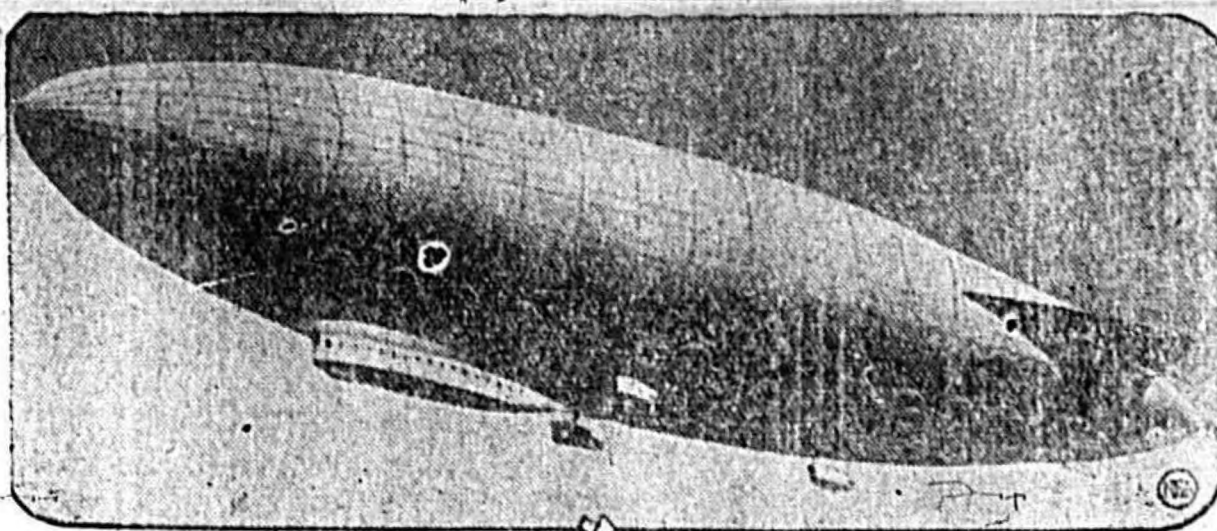

Four of the expeditions will go by airplane, the fifth will fly in a dirigible. This latter expedition is headed by the famous Roald Amundsen, discoverer of the south pole and being explorer of the lands of eternal winter. He will be accompanied by Lincoln Ellsworth, wealthy young American. A big dirigible has been especially constructed for them in Italy, and sixteen men will be in their party.

In a way, there is the most ambitious undertaking of the lot. For their flight financed by the Norwegian Aero Club and the Italian government, leaves at Rome. They will fly the Norwegian flag.

They hope to be able to start this month. From Rome they will fly to Spitzbergen, that lonely island far up on the edge of the northern sea. The explorers are undecided whether to fly by way of Iceland or Pearyland.

A second expedition is being organized by the National Geographic Society, and it has already chartered a vessel at Point Barrow, Alaska.

It is headed by two distinguished men—Captain George H. Wilkins, native of Australia, and Major Thomas G. Landner, commander of the first army patrol group, who has been given a leave of absence so that he can make the trip. Fokker planes will be used.

Also during this month, the steamer Chantier will sail from New York for Spitzbergen with a party of naval reservists headed by Lieutenant Commander Richard E. Byrd. On arrival at Spitzbergen, a three-engine Fokker plane will be assembled and Byrd, with one companion, will hop off for the pole.

Byrd expects to fly first to Cape Morris Jessup, the extreme northern tip of Greenland, and establish a base there. This will cut the distance that will have to be made in nonstop flights.

Two members of the famous group of American army aviators that flew around the world will lead the fourth flight, an expedition backed by Edsel Ford, John D. Rockefeller Jr. and others. They are Lieutenant Leigh Wade and Lieutenant Henry H. Ogdan, who recently resigned from the army to make the trip. They will use specially built Douglas planes, and are expected to make Spitzbergen their base.

The fifth air expedition will be headed by Lieutenant Elinor of Norway, who expects to take off from the bleak shores of Nova Zembla.

A French expedition will also use an airplane, but according to latest reports will place its chief reliance on new motor sledges. A trip to the north pole by air has been the dream of explorers for decades. Actual attempts to reach the pole by air, however, have been few.

Outstanding in the popular memory, of course, is the attempt made by Amundsen and Ellsworth last year—an attempt that came within an inch of ending in death for both. That trip, incidentally, convinced Amundsen that dirigibles were better than airplanes for polar travel.

Donald McMillan also went north last year with airplanes, but was blocked by bad weather conditions. Late in the nineties a Swedish scientist hopped off from Spitzbergen in a balloon on a quest for the pole. Whether he nor his balloon have ever been seen since.

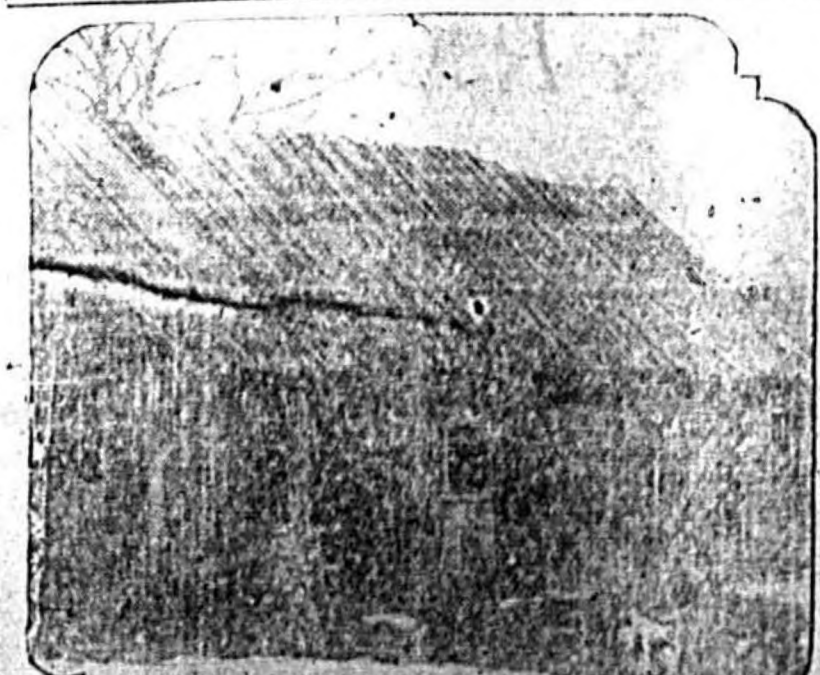

An other expedition is venturing into the Arctic with airplanes this year, although no effort will be made to reach the pole. The University of Michigan, aided by the U. S. Weather Bureau and the Geographic Survey, is sending a party to Greenland, and two amphibian planes will be taken along.

Native Hawaiians Claim To Have Seen Pele, Goddess Of Fire, This Season

HONOLULU, Mar. 16.—(AP)—Pele, goddess of fire, who in Hawaiian mythology controls Kilauea volcano on this island, has been seen twice of late, says believers in the superstition. About 11 o'clock one morning Mrs. Mamaki, a well known and much respected Hawaiian, was at work in her house. She heard voices and turning beheld two strangers, a woman dressed in the fashion of olden Hawaiian days. They were carrying a basket of peculiar design. Mrs. Mamaki made them welcome. They asked what she was doing and she replied, "Planting taro for ourselves and Pele for the future." The reply seemed to please her guests who seated themselves on the ground in the manner of old Hawaiians. The visitors said they were thirsty and asked for a bottle of water. They drank half of it and put the bottle in their basket. Next they requested tobacco. Their hostess had only cigarettes. They took two, smoked half of each, extinguished them and put the unburned halves in the basket. The guests then showed an interest in the taro patch, and finally asked for some plants. Several were offered but they took only two, which also went into the basket. Mrs. Mamaki remarked that she feared the dry weather would be bad for the taro. The man told her not to worry; it and Pele is planting taro and there will be lots of rain in Kona. They shook hands with their hostess and walked down the path. Mrs. Mamaki's attention was distracted momentarily by a passing automobile and when she looked again the couple had vanished.

Women Of Georgia Allowed To Testify Against Husbands

ATLANTA, Ga., March 16.—(AP)—Women of Georgia may go into court and give testimony against their husbands, although the latter have not the same right with regard to their wives. This situation came about through hurried legislation to meet new conditions created by the Nineteenth amendment and has not been corrected. Another state law exists which sets it a bit apart from other states. In charging a jury in a criminal trial, the presiding judge is required to inform the jury that it may elect to believe the unsupported testimony of the defendant in preference to any and all other evidence given at the trial. Atlanta recently created a divorce law which created a divorcee of the Jim Crow law when it passed an ordinance forbidding white women and children to patronize negro barber shops.

Ever Have ECZEMA?

Hope you never did. It never will. Of all the skin ailments, eczema is the most common. It is the worst. It's terrible. You know it too, if you have it. Makes you miserable all over—just tears your nerves to pieces—embarrasses you and lowers your efficiency. But listen! You can stop it. Eczema is where the real trouble is. The blood and seeps out, sores, blisters, lack of healthy, rich, red blood allows impurities to get into the system and break out through the skin. That's eczema. S. S. S. puts the blood back in fighting germ—puts the "stop" back in the blood. Red blood cells, the story the impurities—purify the system. Eczema, boils, pimples, blotches, blackheads, rashes and other skin eruptions vanish—leaving the skin clear, cool and healthy. Thousands have tried you get eczema with S. S. S. Just try it. Get S. S. S. at your druggist. Ask him for the larger bottle. It's more economical.

GRAVITY BLAMED FOR DIFFERENCE IN BODY WEIGHT

Discovered of Scientists That Man May Not Weigh Same in San Francisco That He Does in N.Y. Helps Geologists

DALLAS, Tex., Mar. 16.—(AP)—A study of the weight of a man in New York as he does in San Francisco. Discovery of this and similar facts regarding weight has enabled geologists to apply new methods to the age old question of the earth's crust. Likewise, certain families of bugs which became extinct many thousands of years ago, are being brought up from their nameless graves by the liquid weight. These discoveries in the scientific development of the oil industry are to be explained at the meeting of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists here March 23-27. The difference in the weight of bodies at different places on the earth's surface is explained as due to the varying intensity of gravity. An instrument invented at the turn of a century ago by Prof. Roland Eotvos, Hungarian scientist, only recently has been given practical application in measuring the gravity variation. The instrument is the torsion balance. This balance is described as so delicate that it will measure to direction and intensity of gravity at any point where it may be set up. The fact that objects do not weigh the same at different localities is attributed to the variation of the density or specific gravity of the rocks below the surface. Where the rocks are very dense or have great specific gravity, objects above them weigh more than where the rocks have a smaller specific gravity. Oil in Salt Domes If the torsion balance is set up at a number of places in a certain area and the intensity of gravity is measured at each point, it may be found that the force of gravity will register considerably less within a definite radius. This may indicate the presence of a salt dome, the specific gravity of which is less than that of surrounding rocks. Oil frequently is found in salt domes. A torsion balance operated across what is now the great Powell field in Texas showed the exact position of the fault which

Stubborn Coughs Quickly Stopped This New Way

It is often surprising how the most persistent, hacking cough that not only robs you of strength and sleep, but often leads to more serious trouble, yields quickly to a simple but wonderfully effective treatment. This treatment is based on the prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You take just one teaspoonful at bed time and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it also removes the phlegm and the irritation which are the real cause of night coughing. So with the cause removed, coughing stops quickly, your sleep undisturbed, and the entire cough condition soon disappears. Dr. King's New Discovery is for coughs, chest colds, sore throat, hoarseness, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, etc. Fine for children as well as grown-ups—has no harmful drugs. Economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY FOR COUGHS

YES SIR, YOUR SUIT IS READY! and on time, as we promised. What do you think of it?—I can hardly believe that is the same soiled suit of clothes I brought in to you for cleaning the other day. It is certainly new-looking. I never saw anything to equal your dry-cleaning. It is really remarkable.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Officials See A New Era In Ireland After Three Months Of Boundary Pact

LONDON, Mar. 16.—(AP)—The new Irish Boundary Agreement has ushered in a new era, characterized by the friendliness and co-operation shown by the two Irish governments in relations with each other and with the Imperial Cabinet at London.

This was the consensus of a census by The Associated Press of the heads of the Dublin and Belfast governments and other leaders of both states, some of whom even spoke hopefully of the prospect of eventual union of all Ireland. The agreement has been in operation nearly three months.

President William T. Cosgrave of the Free State Cabinet said: "I am well satisfied with the results of the London Agreement and with the friendly relations between the governments which it has facilitated. The result has been beneficial all around."

In Belfast, Sir James Craig, Premier of the Ulster government, while carefully avoiding reference to the possibility of union, stressed the co-operative aspect of their new relations. He characterized them as "two neighbors who are friendly, who wish to solve each other's problems and thus effect economies."

"North and South Ireland must live together as neighbors," said the Ulster leader. "Both administrations must turn their minds from those matters which have divided them in the past and concentrate on affairs that really affect the welfare of the people, so that the whole of Ireland, and not the part alone, may be prosperous."

Prospect of Union

Cardinal Patrick O'Donnell, Archbishop of Armagh, saw a prospect of union. "It seems to me reasonable to infer that the success which the Northern Government has had over the boundary question and the satisfaction resulting therefrom, will leave a disposition in which the Northern Parliament may more readily consider the advantages of Irish unity later on," he declared.

And Joseph Devlin, leader of the Ulster Nationalists, that party in the North which hedges for the union of all Ireland, said his followers: "The proper way to bring about unity is by working for it. It cannot be coerced into unity with the rest of Ireland by force. The only real union can be brought about by allowing the old passions to die and by depending less upon shibboleths and more on charity and good will."

A survey of official and other authoritative opinion on both sides of the border showed a prevalent belief that what has happened in Ireland can best be illustrated by two Februarys, a contrast of the reign of terror with the terrible days of 1922, when no man's life seemed safe on either side of the disputed border. In February, 1922, the Ulster border was literally "plugged with steel; thousands of Ulster special police were mobilized; raiders from the south had penetrated Ulster and seized hostages; Ireland south of the border was a Ulster book to those who lived in Ulster.

Cordial Relations

February, 1926, found normal and cordial relations between Dublin and Belfast, and with London. Sir James Craig's advice, that North and South should turn their minds from those matters which have divided them, is being followed. The North has reduced its costly police force. There has been a speedy release of political prisoners. The London Agreement by abolishing the abortive Council of Ireland, which was most irksome to Ulster, has substituted friendly co-operation.

One of the most important common interests is agriculture. Soon after the London Agreement was signed the Ulster Minister of Agriculture went to Dublin with his staff to consult with the Free State's Minister of Agriculture, and a reciprocal visit to Belfast is expected soon. Similar co-operation has been arranged in other phrases of administration.

Both governments have benefited financially from the Agreement, which relieved the Free State of its obligation to pay a share of the British War debt. The prospective burden was a great handicap to the Dublin regime, and its removal caused an immediate favorable reaction. The market quotation of the Free State National Loan rose at once and remains at two to three points premium.

Finances Good

New Free State loans, which must be floated in connection with the River Shannon power development scheme and other enterprises, will be marketed much more easily because of the removal of the war debt obligation, which meant an undetermined liability estimated as high as one billion dollars. The Ulster Government also has reaped financial gain by the facilitation of settlement of pending difficulties between Belfast and London.

The Agreement has caused a beneficial change in the relations between the people along the border and of the minorities in Ulster with the rest of the Orange belt. There is no longer any question of forcing the North into a union with the Free State, and the South frankly recognizes that union can only come in time by agreement between the two governments on the basis of equality. The Nationalists in the North, no longer able to rely on support from Dublin, have abandoned their former attitude of Ulster legislation, and Nationalists are anxious to take their place as an official parliamentary opposition.

In no field is the new era better exemplified than in sports, which have exerted a great unifying influence in Ireland.

Sports Help Unity

Exactly four years after the great raid of February, 1922, over the border into Ulster, Earnest Crawford, captain of the Irish Rugby football team which recently defeated England for the first time since 1917, rose at the dinner celebrating the match and said: "I am proud to represent Ulster and Munster, from Connaught and Leinster and all Ireland our team was recruited. Ulster and Cork teamed together while the score was being clinched. The victory was made by Frank Hewitt, son of a business man in Sandy Row, the hub of Ulster Orangeism, and a man by Dennis Cussen, a Dublin Catholic."

Before the match Timothy Healy, once hated by all Ulster Unionists and now governor-general of the Free State, passed through the players, from North and South together, and wished them the best of fortune.

The picture Irish leaders paint is not all rosy, though hope and friendliness are pronounced. Sir James Craig is advocating the removal of the customs barrier between the two states, while Earnest Blythe, the Free State Finance Minister, emphatically declares that it will be maintained. The North generally believes the customs belt is stereotyping Irish parties as nothing else could.

Another shadow in the picture is the sentimental legislation passed by the Dail Eireann, such as the creation of a separate college, issuing of stamps with the King's name from official documents. All this has an adverse effect in Ulster, and in Belfast there is a popular saying that nothing would do more to bring the North and South together than for the Dail to take a holiday for a year.

DELAND—A "regular" jail, finally obtained by the city, led to the imposition of "regular" fines by Municipal Judge McGregor. Judge McGregor has been asking exceedingly light fines on offenders until the city eventually rented a number of cells at the county jail. There were no facilities for taking care of city prisoners, and Judge McGregor had feared that those arranged before him would not be able to pay.

MIAMI—E. L. Givins, dishwasher at Miami Beach, literally "came out of the kitchen." He had been receiving $60 a month for washing dishes, when he was notified by a local bank that he had inherited $50,000. He dropped his dishes, and didn't care whether they broke or not.

GAINESVILLE—Youth will be served. Three lads who, when they were finally able to talk, gave their ages as 12, were found intoxicated here, on moonshine. One was captured by the police, but the other two got away. It was later disclosed that they had slipped by their parents at home, and were battling a sick spell in their rooms.

KISSIMMEE—The Kissimmee Daily Gazette expects to move into its new $10,000 plant within the next few weeks. The structure is up-to-date design, with housing facilities for all departments.

ST. AUGUSTINE—Harry Stone, employe of a local refining company, probably saved himself from being blown to bits when static electricity caused a spontaneous combustion in a 500-gallon gasoline truck he was driving. Stone plucked his body over a flaming hole of the tank, smothering the flames.

PLANT CITY—A total of 57,312 quarts of strawberries was sent out in one day here, bringing the grand total for the season for the local production to the million-quart mark. An average price of 35 cents per quart was paid for the day's shipment, or $20,054.20 for the lot. The express moved 465 refrigerators, with 412 of the 80-quart size, and freight, $2,554.90. The season's total a short time ago was 1,044,149 quarts.

OCALA—Only one firm completed with requirements necessary for the purpose of $1,550,000 worth of Marion county road bonds, when the county commissioners met to effect the sale, and all bids were rejected. A number of bids were made, with one above par, but the terms of the advertisement had not been carried out, and it was thought advisable to insert a new one.

DELAND—Florida's citrus resources were advertised over the countryside in rather a rude manner when Volusia county oranges, destined for points in the north, were scattered over the road bed of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad in a derailment.
