Rifles And Ammo Stolen At Armory

Burglars last night entered the Sanford National Guard armory and escaped with at least five .22 caliber rifles and 8,000 rounds of ammunition for the stolen guns, according to Sanford police. The thieves entered the building by prying off a portion of screening that covered a window leading to armory restrooms, according to Det. Sgt. William Lykens. Lykens, Det. Roy Williams and other police investigators were waiting for the arrival of Federal Bureau of Investigation agents before continuing an investigation since the armory is U.S. government property. Sgt. Lykens said three M-1 rifles were left in the fenced yard behind the building. These had the bait actions removed previously by guard personnel and, therefore, cannot be used. A full complement of police laboratory technicians were on the scene led by Sgt. Vern Brewster but, according to the identification officer, the FBI had instructed that nothing be disturbed until they arrived for an investigation. Therefore, it is probable that other arms may have been removed in the entry that was discovered this morning by Paula Higgins, who works in the driver's license office, which uses armory facilities.

By JOHN A. SPOSKI
See you at the parade tonight, O.K.? Incidentally... NOT SO INCIDENTALLY, as a matter of fact... that suburb of Sanford (they call it Orlando, don't they?) was all puffed up about the Christmas Parade of Tuesday evening. They had 92 floats and units... we'll have OVER 100 UNITS. Thanks to the Sanford-Seminole Jaycees and the Downtown Merchants for their wonderful support and direction. A great job, you all...

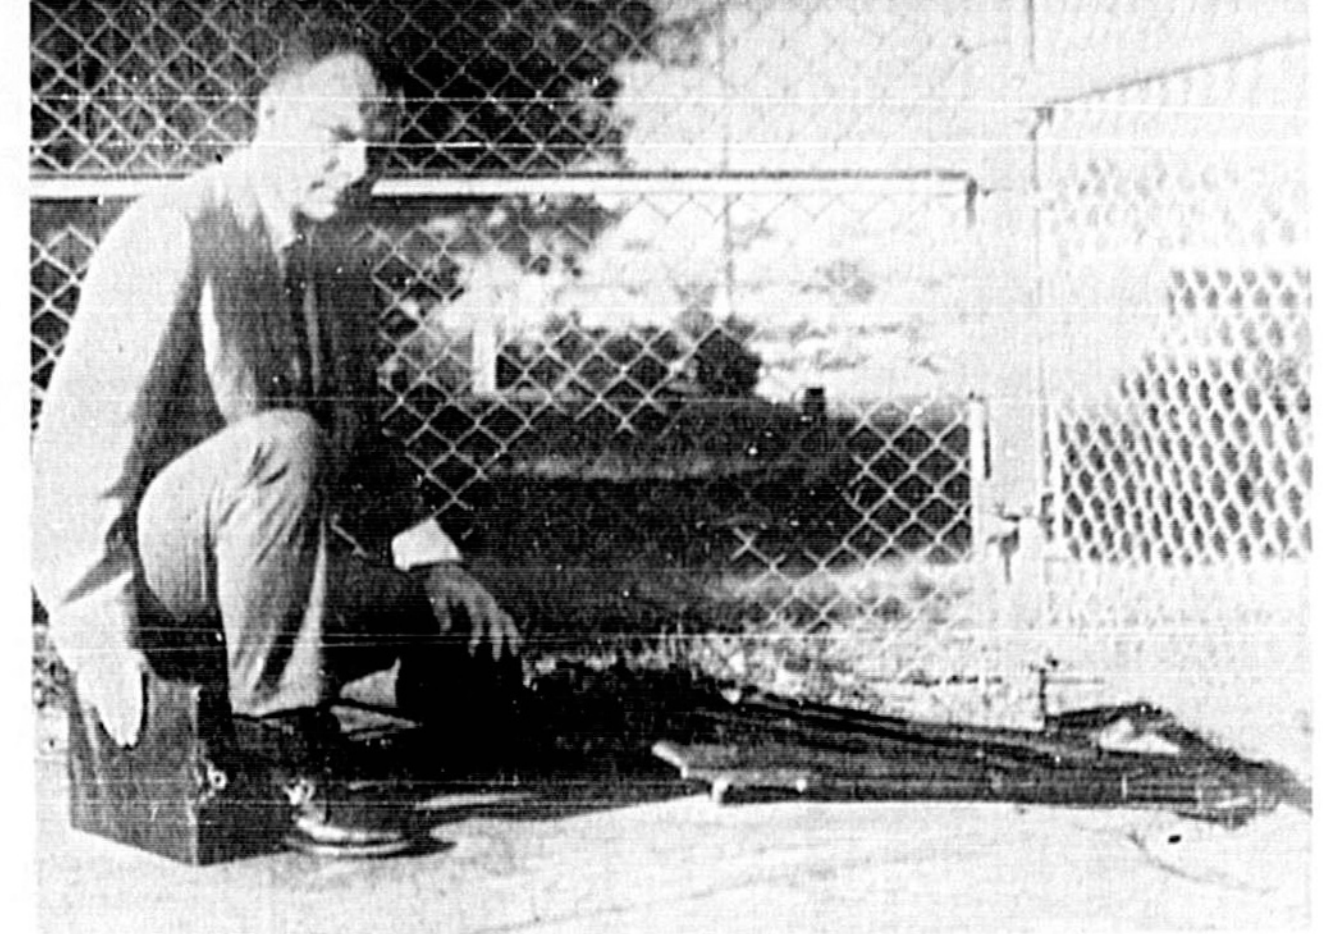

Don't talk about bad times to the folks at Water Bonnet. In case you didn't hear, this past week they hired 35-40 more persons and plan on duplicating that number again this week. Looking for a job, you say? Darn it all... been so busy trying to stay up with the holiday rush, this Saturday's football game, and a host of other chores that I've been neglecting the "book tube"... and they must have had a dilly 'tother nite between Clay and Bonavena. As a matter of fact, a few of you have indicated that I just might have a new hero in Bonavena, what with him chiding Cassius, "Why you no go in Armees... you cheekin'!"

A name change for Seminole Junior College might not be too far off in the future. If they follow the trend set by other junior colleges in the state, they may change the name to Seminole Community College. Bravard, Broward and Indian River are just three of the many who have changed. Now what would they do with all those SJC uniforms?

Chalk one up for Specialist 4 George Carver... a member of Uncle Sam's 101st Airborne Division, presently serving in Vietnam and a frequent contributor to "Letters to the Editor"... George was the first to mail his holiday greetings to his many friends here at The Herald. A personal note summarized his thoughts on this area: "May God Bless you each and take care of my town during the holidays..." It isn't the common man at all who is important; it's the uncommon man. 6H

Canal Critic Hits Public Spending

By MARION BETHA
S. B. (Jim) Crowe, member of the Seminole County long range planning committee for recreation and the St. Johns River advisory committee, and long time critic of the St. Johns-Indian River Canal, has directed a letter to County Commission Chairman John Alexander relative to the matter. Crowe asserts that he was not able to "get a place on the agenda." Crowe has stated that the subject he wishes to pursue is the "saving of the taxpayers dollar and the erosion of the power of the board over the public purse." Crowe further contends that the present survey by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers upon the canal will take between four and six years, and that Congress has not appropriated the entire sum for this survey. Crowe alleges that Alexander told him that the board can not declare a moratorium on payments to the St. Johns-Indian River Canal District because of the way the law (Florida Statutes Chapter 45.70) is written. Crowe has requested that Alexander poll the board to ascertain if it is in favor of saving the taxpayers' dollar and retaining power over the public purse. Crowe further submits that the state legislative delegation should be struck from Section 4, Paragraph 5 of Chapter 45.70. The statute reads: "To employ and disburse... necessary personnel including... attorneys, auditors and consultants..." Crowe suggests that the words "at present rates for these trades and professions" should be added after the present wording and also "and fix their compensation." Crowe also feels that Section 4, Paragraph 5, which presently reads, "To do any and not exceeding $2,500 per year to pay administrative expenses incurred and approved by the directors of the district."

College Student Incarcerated On Narcotic Charge

Casselberry Police have arrested a 23-year-old Winter Park college student and confiscated 11 bags of marijuana, according to Chief Don Brumley. Chief Brumley said Jamille Haddad was arrested by four Winter Park policemen, including Lt. David Smithers and Patrolman Steve Bangleford, Roy Keisley and Timothy McEvers and reserves, as he sat in his car. Haddad was later transferred to Seminole County jail in lieu of $2,000 bond. Brumley also advised that a cache of drugs in a bag had been found stored in a house under construction in Casselberry. He said workerman relayed the information to Clayton Reath, the firm in charge of the building and the information was given to police. Brumley advised the items appeared to have been stolen from a dentist's office since it contained the type of drugs usually administered by a dentist for relief of pain. The bag was turned over to Seminole Deputy Daniel Lane for further investigation. Sanford Police Officer Ralph Russell has advised The Herald he is expecting a warrant to be served on an 18-year-old Winter Park woman in a drug incident. He said he had signed an arrest warrant for Teresa Ann St. John for possession of marijuana seeds and a bag of the plant which was found in the girl's car. Mrs. Norma Evans, 43-year-old Sanford woman, hospitalized after a Nov. 21 traffic accident at the Sanford Avenue-25th Street intersection, died Dec. 1, according to information released by the Sanford police department today.

Injured Woman Expires

Mrs. Evans was a passenger in an auto driven by John E. Evans, her husband when it was in collision with a car operated by Billy Glenn Rawson, of Bonita Springs police records disclose. Mrs. Evans was removed to Seminole Memorial Hospital after the mishap while Rawson was charged by Lt. Edward Hayden, police investigator, with failure to yield right-of-way and improper license tag. According to the statement by Rawson, the traffic light at the street intersection was not working and he (Rawson) did not see the other car. The Evans vehicle was traveling on Sanford Avenue and Evans, the driver, stated he was moving on the green light.

County Hassles On Landfill

By MARION BETHA
Although County Commissioner Greg Drummond has contended that the Sanlando landfill is smoldering from underground spontaneous combustion and is "holding out clouds of wet corruption," his motion to declare a moratorium on use of the landfill died for lack of a second. Drummond alleges since there is shell available at Orceola and that he felt that the county is not moving in an expedient manner, he further contended that the longer the landfill is smoldering, the longer it will take for its ultimate closing. Alexander, however, noted that the county cannot maintain the roads with shell and that Sanlando is the only clay deposit which the county has in its possession. Drummond then injected that in this case the county should purchase more new land. Alexander countered that Road Supt. J. C. Lavender could not find any land within the amount of money budgeted to his department, and he further maintained that in regard to the smoldering of the Sanlando landfill that he would request an evaluation of the situation for possible elimination but that he could not "close down the road department because of complaints." Drummond called this statement an "exaggeration." Commissioner Robert Park entered the verbal offer with the statement that to close Sanlando landfill would be "to cut off our nose to spite our face." Lavender contended that the shell deposits at Orceola are being utilized to dig trenches at the central landfill and that the present stockpile will be depleted in a short time. Drummond injected that the county should undertake to use a dragline to stockpile more shell, to which Lavender answered that the trenches were being dug in union and that if the pits were not the water could not be controlled. Drummond suggested that the road department purchase an additional clay pit, and if the county needed to allocate more money that this be effected, since he saw no need of "one segment of the population in misery." Commissioner Sid Vilhen asked why the burning could not be controlled and Drummond answered that this had been attempted in the last four years, but the location is inappropriate in the beginning since it is high and dry. Alexander noted that there was no point in "kicking the 1969 board" and that when the dump was initially placed it was in the least populous area. (Cont. on Page 1B, Col. 4)

Water Resources Study Funds Are In Jeopardy

By LARRY NEELY
The East Central Florida Regional Planning Council (ECFRPC) may lose federal funds for a water resources study if some form of commitment is not made for supporting funds from the member counties of ECFRPC. According to Seminole County Planner David Farr pressure has been put on the Winter Park office of the United States Geological Survey to get commitments from the counties by January 1 or lose federal funds. Farr made the statements at Tuesday's County Commission meeting. The ECFRPC requested $3,000 from Seminole County to aid in the funding of the water survey project. Farr told the Commissioners that to date he was aware of commitments from only Orange and Brevard counties. The Commission directed the Seminole County representative to ECFRPC inform the group that Seminole County would be willing to pay in proportion to its population relative to all counties participating. In other business pertaining to the Planning and Zoning office the Commission authorized the Zoning Department to swear out a warrant for Carl Cabanni for violation of a county ordinance regulating junk vehicles. The Commissioners also by motion directed the County Prosecuting Attorney to take appropriate legal action against the owners of the Post Tim Lounge near the dog track for debris left around area. The Commission set December 22 as the date for a public hearing concerning a request for water service extension by Southern States Utilities Company.

County 'Helping Hand' Program Recommended Statewide

By LIZ MATHIEUX
 Mrs. Jay Catalano, president of the Jackson Heights Middle School Parent-Teacher Association, represented Suwannee County as a delegate to the three-day State Parent-Teacher Association convention in West Palm Beach recently. This was the 47th annual convention and the theme for the 1970 school year was "Unfinished Business — The Child and His Future."

Among the priority items proposed was the "Block Parent Plan" to be initiated on a statewide basis. The plan would be to promote a program of protection for children as they travel to and from school such as initiated this year in Seminole County under the "Helping Hand" label.

Also on the priority list for environmental control was the recommendation to enlist community alertness and positive action to reclaim and preserve our natural resources; create awareness of population crisis and encourage family planning within dikeates of religious and ethical beliefs; and control obscenity and pornography by law enforcement, encouraging laws to prohibit public display of sexually explicit pictorial material, enactment of laws to keep pornography from young people, and request that newspaper editors print in the TV section whether a movie is for general or mature audiences.

1,500 Top Schools Are Facing Financial Problems

By RICHARD BLYSTONE
 Associated Press Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — More than 1,500 colleges and universities, with 77 per cent of America's campus population, are at or near the point of having to cut back important services for lack of money, the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education reported today.

Source: U.S. Department of Education and most prestigious institutions including Harvard University, Stanford and the University of Michigan were named as representative of a "financial crisis unmatched in its impact" and fast getting worse.

Based on broader conclusions on weighting of on-site studies of 41 representative institutions, the report estimated that 546 institutions, enrolling 21 per cent of American college students, are "in financial difficulty." It said that means they have been forced to curtail services they consider important.

Could That Be Nixon 'Jawboning' We Heard?

Now that the mid-term elections are over it is quite in order to survey the political scene in terms of what is happening, why it is happening and what can logically be expected to develop.

Communication Now

Sometime ago, a large group of major investor-owned electric companies met at a "Think Shop" conference. A few years ago, such a conference might have been devoted primarily to operating problems involving profits, kilowatts, and customers — mostly discussed in the technical jargon of industry.

Perhaps the most significant result in terms of the interests of the American household occurred Tuesday when the hard-nosed attitude towards controlling inflation and halting unemployment of the Nixon administration started to soften.

It was not the voice of President Nixon that was present trends would lead to wage and price controls of some nature.

TWIN PROBLEMS

The lesson of the elections that put the "pocket-book" in top spot as an issue which must be handled with bold leadership and concern for the average American and not for the unscrupulous big business evidently has penetrated the wall of theoretical experts which surrounds the White House. Prior to Nov. 3rd it would be eyebrow raising of the highest extent should the Nixon administration have spoken out specifically about any such inflationary spurs which were being worn by big business or big labor.

Yet that was just what was done on Nov. 2. We believe that this was needed and that it was long overdue. We continue to support any move which will bring about a control of wage and price increases which will allow private enterprises of all sizes to plan with some degree of certainty.

Political Notebook:

Surveys in all sections of the United States indicate that the price boosts in goods and services—automobiles and gasoline are examples — are nagging at purchasers with the pocketbook squeeze which questions the effectiveness of the Nixon handling of this problem. The companion pocketbook issue is that of employment. The size of applicants at the unemployment insurance offices, especially in such areas as Florida where cutbacks in defense and space contracts have been cutting into these areas, from the ranks of highly trained and highly paid professionals, is visible evidence of a tragic failure.

It has been pointed out that the 1.9 million increase in the numbers of jobless since President Nixon took office is about the total of those dropped from defense, armed forces and allied civilian payrolls.

Census Was Near Perfection

By BRUCE ROSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — The 1970 census, ready for formal handing over to President Nixon, probably was the best count ever made in this nation.

Roughly 620 cities or other localities undertook, usually with the aid of newspapers, what might be called "come forward and be counted" campaigns, urging anyone who thought he or his house was missed to say so. In these undertakings, nearly 70,000 housing units were reported as missed, but the census authorities found all but 8,000 in their records.

FOURTH GRADE classes at Spring Lake School have been reading about Rome as of long ago, so the youngsters had their choice of dressing like the Romans as they also partook of foods favored back in those times. Two outstanding outfits were worn by Patrick Carazza, a Roman soldier, and Greg Logue, a gladiator. (Maryann Miles Photo)

123 Aboard Missing Planes In South Vietnam Mountains

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — U.S. planes and helicopters crisscrossed the rugged mountains of central South Vietnam, searching for the wreckage of two American C-123 transport planes missing since the weekend with a total of 38 Americans and 85 Vietnamese aboard.

Cloud cover over the rugged mountainous area has been heavy all week, and officials said no trace of either plane has been found for much of the week. Heavy clouds and low ceilings were reported to have hampered the search.

At POW Camp Activity Shown In Recon Photos

By JOHN ANGESEN
Associated Press Writer
EGLIN AFB, Fla. (AP) — Aerial reconnaissance photos taken shortly before the Son Tay prisoner of war camp raid did not show that the prisoners had been moved or that North Vietnamese troops had turned part of the compound into a garden, the mission commander said Wednesday.

Commander of the Air Force Special Operations Force, Major James W. Brown, said he also commanded the task force of Air Force commandos and Army green berets that raided Son Tay early in the morning of Nov. 21. The general was asked how close the time of the attempted rescue mission aerial photos of the POW camp, located 23 miles west of Hanoi, had been taken.

STARVATION faces survivors of the cyclone and tidal waves which hit East Pakistan in one of history's worst natural disasters. Nearly all the rice crops were washed away at the height of the harvest and food shortages appear to be a greater threat than disease. An estimated 500,000 persons will be totally dependent upon outside help for at least a year. More than 200,000 children were made orphans by the catastrophe and will become wards of the state.

Canal Critic Hits Public Spending

all things necessary to accomplish the purpose of this act," should be amended to read "to do any and all lawful things necessary to accomplish this project," he further asserts that the statute should be amended to require the publishing of a detailed audit in each of the four counties of the district. This has been an object of some contention in that County Commissioner Greg Drummond also has expressed that the financial details have been somewhat ambiguous, and that more detail of expenses is indicated. Crowe has claimed that when bill 62-733 was amended in 1958 by Senate bill 1382, which issued $12 million in bonds under section 274.85 and 274.82, that section 93 and 94 which requires the publishing of a detailed audit was "carefully left out."

Let me say it was very timely," he said. Major said the helicopter that landed inside the compound, discharging a force of rifle-bearing green berets immediately adjacent to a row of cells, touched down near a small garden.

REACHING OUT, seemingly to take over her domain, is 22-year-old Jennifer Hosten of Granada. The West Indies beauty was chosen "Miss World."

County Commissioner Chairman John Alexander stated this morning that he had advised S. B. (Jim) Crowe that he could be placed on the agenda when the commission "go through with all the people who were scheduled," Alexander said that it is customary to recognize anyone from the audience at this point in the meeting.

County Funds Released For Jurist's Chambers

The Seminole County Commission authorized release by the clerk's office of funds budgeted for an additional Circuit Court judge for Seminole County. Gov. Claude Kirk appointed Dominick Ralfi to the recently created post. Seven thousand dollars was budgeted by the commission for an additional Circuit Court judge's secretary's salary and other office expenses, according to Commission Chairman John Alexander.

U.S. Doles Millions To Florida

Federal "grants-in-aid" amounting to $426 million was paid into the Florida state and local government till last year, a 72 per cent increase over the annual amount five years ago, Ronald S. Spencer Jr., executive vice president of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce, said.

This fact is further brought out in the state chamber's Weekly Business Review which places the Florida grants at $99 per capita. Only Indiana, which was close behind Florida, received less on this basis. The highest per capita, $146, was paid to Alaska government, principally for highway construction. The U. S. average per capita was $79 last year.

County Hassles Over Closing Of Landfill

point that the public had been misled that the dump would close on Jan. 1, 1971, to which Alexander retorted, "I've yet to hear anyone but you dispute the matter." Drummond said that the first proposal was to eliminate garbage by October of this year, and trash by January, whereas the dates will not be January and April with the ultimate close in April 1971.

Alexander requested that Lavender report to the commission his recommendations in acquisition of a clay pit and also upon the operation and condition of Sanlando landfill as well as the burning and smoke. Further, Lavender was requested to negotiate for purchase of half a tract of land in which the price would be $40,000 for 20 acres. However, he said, he did not know if the owner would split the acreage.

Alexander concluded the matter with the notion that there was not $40,000 in the road department contingency fund and that the county could not lease purchase real estate or pay interest. The only solution, he said, would be to pay half the amount this year and half next year without interest, but that this would present a difficulty in that the commission would be overexpending the budget.

Lavender reported that the commission had approved in acquisition of a clay pit and also upon the operation and condition of Sanlando landfill as well as the burning and smoke. Further, Lavender was requested to negotiate for purchase of half a tract of land in which the price would be $40,000 for 20 acres. However, he said, he did not know if the owner would split the acreage.

HEAD 'EM UP and move 'em out. With thousands of punchers operating working in New York City, it would be a simple matter for an unlicensed peddler to slip in unnoticed. Not so here. A patrolman shepherds a line of such operators to a local police station where most were given summonses for obstructing sidewalks.

Christmas Tree Light Originator Now Developing Wireless System

CHICAGO (AP) — Christmas tree lights have created a happy glow in the life of Albert V. Sadacca, who invented them 56 years ago.

As a young boy in 1914, Sadacca devised the first string of lights when he was faced with the necessity for moving large trees from his father's New York City novelty shop.

"We lived in an apartment near the shop and I was the errand boy," he recalled in his office in the Merchandise Mart here. "I used to deliver little celluloid canaries that sat on a perch in a tiny cage and were illuminated by battery-powered bulbs."

At about that time he read that a number of children had been burned in a big fire caused by candles igniting a Christmas tree, and the idea occurred to him: "Why not Christmas lights that are electric?" His father had a big inventory of bulbs that he was anxious to clear from the shelves and Sadacca wired a set in series.

"The first sets didn't sell very well," he continued. The dark-haired, mustached Sadacca, who is of Spanish ancestry, "But the next year we colored the tiny bulbs and they sold better. Electricity was becoming more and more popular in stores and homes. Then we decided to make a series set for use with 110-volt house current using a larger bulb."

The Sadaccas — Albert V. and brothers Henri, Leon and Nestlé — then launched into the manufacture of Christmas light outfits, as they were called. In the early 1920s they founded the Noma Electric Co., of which Albert became the first general manager.

Now in his sixties, he is president and chief executive officer of a successor company, Noma World Wide, Inc., which is still manufacturing what he likes to call "festoons of lights." His son, Albert V. Sadacca II, 26, is executive vice president of the firm. He has already showed the family knack for inventiveness by creating a type of battery operated light to decorate women's formal gowns and elaborate hairdos.

The elder Sadacca also remains innovative in the field. He is now developing a wireless light system and is working on a way to produce Christmas light assemblies by machine instead of the intricate hand assembly now required.

Miss Jay Morrison Bride Of David

Mrs. David Ernest Lee (Bill Vincent Photo)

Miss Martha Jay Morrison became the bride of David Ernest Lee Nov. 20 at 7 p. m. at the First Presbyterian Church, Sanford. Officiating minister was Rev. Virgil Bryant for the candlelight, double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jack Morrison, 120 Crystal Dr., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Lee, Power Drive.

Church decorations included arched palms, two triangular arrangements of white daisy pom-poms and glads on white columns, foliage arrangements with candles in the windows and family pews marked with white satin ribbon and magnolia foliage.

Mrs. George Touhy, organist, presided the traditional wedding selections including the wedding march.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length gown of white bridal satin featuring a beaded bodice on lace and bead trim on the train. Her waist length veil of silk illusion was attached to a crown of beaded lace and she carried an Edwardian bouquet of white daisies, gypsophylla and ivy.

Miss Lee Morrison, maid of honor, wore a moss green velvet A-line gown of Empire design with matching ribbon and green shoulder length veil of silk illusion attached to a gold and moss green ribbon crown. She carried a hand bouquet of bronze daisy pom-poms with natural foliage and long matching green satin streamers.

Her cameo choker was a gift from the bride.

Mrs. Albert Jarrell was her sister's matron of honor and Mrs. Laurell Johnson was bridesmaid. Their gowns, headpieces and flowers were identical to those of the honor attendant and their gold chokers with jade-colored stones were also gifts from the bride.

Denver Hall was best man and serving as ushers were Jack Morrison Jr., brother of the bride; Daniel Lee, brother of the groom; Albert Jarrell, Richard Fordham and William Schmidt.

Flower girl, Miss Martha Nesmith, wore a beehive hairstyle to the other attendants and sprinkled rose petals from a basket while Master John Nesmith, dressed in a tuxedo, served as ring bearer.

The bride's mother, wore a deep pink bonded crepe dress with multicolor braid trim, deep pink rhinestones on the high neck and cuffs, full sleeves, matching accessories and a hand corsage of pink cymidium orchids with trailing ivy.

The bridegroom's mother wore a medium blue faille princess style dress, matching accessories (veil type whimsical corsage).

Mrs. George Johnndrow, Weymouth, Mass., bride's maternal grandmother, wore an aquamarine raw silk princess dress, with high neck and matching accessories. Mrs. Charles Morrison, Sanford, paternal grandmother, wore a cranberry ensemble of turquoise faille with matching accessories.

Mrs. Annes Thorne, the bridegroom's grandmother, wore a turquoise ensemble, lace coat over sheath with matching accessories. Mrs. A. H. Farber, honorary grandmother, wore a Navy blue princess style lace dress with matching accessories. All grandmothers wore corsages of white feathered carnations and white roses.

Following the ceremony, a candlelight reception was held at the home of the bride. In the entrance hall an antique Captain's desk, a family heirloom, decorated in a Pennsylvania Dutch motif held the bride's book. Other floral arrangements were placed at vantage points.

The cake table was overlaid with a white cloth, a gift to the bride from her grandmother, Mrs. Johnndrow. The five-tiered wedding cake on a pedestal was decorated with daisies and flanked by two three-branched candelabra with cascading arrangements of white daisies. Champagne punch was served from a silver punch bowl in the recreation room.

Those cutting and serving the cake during the evening were Mrs. Frank Mebane, Mrs. John Johnson, Mrs. Lee Moore, Mrs. Harry Robson and Mrs. James Cripps.

Presiding at the punchbowl were Mrs. Al Wallace, Mrs. Charles Park Jr., Mrs. Donald Carter, Mrs. Edward Alderman, Mrs. Gib Blake and Mrs. W.M. Phillips.

and his. The couple's wedding trip on the West, and when they return will be home on Beaver Road, Sanford. The groom is associated with his father, James E. Lee, in the construction business.

Retired Washington Newswoman Tells Of Presidents And Their Wives

RUTH MONTGOMERY: Tells of six presidents and their wives.

By JOY STILLEY

AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Slender, attractive and ultra-feminine, Ruth Montgomery looks at home at a White House tea than at a White House press conference. But in her 25 years as a syndicated columnist in the nation's capital she more than once scooped her male rivals. She was Washington correspondent for the New York Daily News, then for International News Service, and was later chief Washington correspondent. Now she has written a book, "Hail to the Chiefs," which chronicles the social, political and diplomatic goings-on during the quarter century she reported from.

Since she went to Washington in 1944 she has covered the non-matching conventions of both major parties, all presidential campaign trips and every inauguration, as well as other major stories. "Roosevelt loved to spar with the press and match wits with them," she said, recalling that her first experience with a presidential press conference was in his jam-packed office. "He held two news conferences a week and would jab with his cigarette holder to illustrate his points. "Mrs. Roosevelt held regular weekly press conferences in the family quarters of the White House," she continued. "She'd tell us where she was off to next in her constant travels. She considered herself the eyes and ears, and certainly the legs, of her husband."

Mrs. Montgomery, the only woman reporter permitted to attend Roosevelt's funeral, remembers that there was a dramatic change in the First Family when the Trumans came in. "Bess was warm, motherly, shy. She never held press conferences feeling that she had nothing to report except the normal activities of a wife," she related. "Truman was an equal fridge as a Dresden doll, she's actually large-boned and about as frugal as a steel girder—a very determined girl who did not have press conferences. "Jack was charming and debonair, witty and very forgetful, always leaving his overcoat and hats on the train or wherever he'd been," she said. "He was delighted with the press, but he removed the intimacy of the press conference when she came to the new State Department auditorium. We had to stand to ask questions and feel more like

"Although Jackie looked as fragile as a Dresden doll, she's actually large-boned and about as frugal as a steel girder—a very determined girl who did not have press conferences. "Jack was charming and debonair, witty and very forgetful, always leaving his overcoat and hats on the train or wherever he'd been," she said. "He was delighted with the press, but he removed the intimacy of the press conference when she came to the new State Department auditorium. We had to stand to ask questions and feel more like reporter. He held the first live TV press conference. "Mrs. Montgomery had known the Johnsons for many years before they moved to the White House. She considers Lady Bird about whom she wrote a biography, "Mrs. LBJ," a "remarkable woman, a real doer and one utterly dedicated to her husband, devoted to his cause." Though she did not regularly meet with the press she did hold press conferences when she was on the Lady Bird Special campaign train.

"LBJ was very gregarious," the author observed. "He would talk about it being the loneliest job in the world but he surrounded himself with people. He was eager to be the best President there ever was and terribly disappointed that there was no demand for him to run again." The Nixon too she had known, "ever since they came to Congress when Dick was the best-selling 'A Gift of Prohibition' and she traveled through Russia and Siberia with them when he was vice president.

"He is an enormously capable man who spent nearly two decades preparing himself to do a good job as President if the opportunity arose and who was an effective vice president. "Pat is unflappable, one of the most capable women I've ever known and innately shy," she continued. "She never wanted Dick to be in politics but was willing to go along." Mrs. Montgomery, author of six previous books including the best-selling "A Gift of Prohibition," gave up her column in 1968 and now devotes full time to writing books. She lives in Cuernavaca, Mexico, with her husband, Robert Montgomery, former Deputy Commissioner of the Small Business Administration.

Psychologist Says Being In Love Not Good Reason For Marriage

By BRINNE MOSS
Salt Lake Tribune Writer
SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — Being in love is really a lousy basis for getting married. To be in love is to be in a neurotic state, according to Dr. William H. Brown, Salt Lake City psychologist. It is a neurotic state because it's a stirring of emotions and we don't know what it is that is stirring us up. "To love, to really love, is an other matter," said Dr. Brown. "And it's probably the rarest experience in the world."

Love and understanding, real understanding, are closely related. Understanding is the love thing. If you can have honest love and understanding for a person, then things can be quite wonderful. "Goethe said a very pertinent thing once: 'You can't condemn that which you understand.' And have a greater understanding of yourself do you begin to understand others?"

Noting that if you're secure, really secure, then you can decide you are going to love someone and do it, Dr. Brown said, "If a fellow sees a girl, says she is lovely and wonderful and decides to love her, then he can, if he really wants to love. "The way other people feel about you is not decided by themselves. It's an interaction that you have very much to do with. Though it might be something of an overstatement, of yourself do you begin to understand others?"

Married couples seem to work more skillfully at relating with others outside the marriage than they do with their own spouse and family, he continued. They seem to think it is expected and is more important to impress others in their social world. When really their first concern should be for their partner and children.

"If we make a mistake in our jobs we make darn sure it doesn't happen again and we learn from that mistake. But for some reason we don't take marriage and family life as seriously as we do our work. Statistics are in favor of success in a second marriage. But those statistics are often misleading. People go into a second marriage without any understanding of why the first marriage failed. "If the person could say, 'Hey, I'm going to learn something from this mistake so it won't happen again,' they would be much better off."

TALKS ABOUT LOVE — Dr. William H. Brown, a Salt Lake City psychologist, says being in love is a lousy reason for marriage.
