CANADA CLOSES ANNUAL SESSION OF PARLIAMENT

Many Bills Passed Including Ones On Radio And Employment

OTTAWA, June 2.—The third session of the seventeenth Parliament of Canada closed before noon today. Since the session opened on Feb. 4, more than 100 bills have been passed. While many of these were of a minor nature, a few were of outstanding importance, notably bills establishing a radio broadcasting commission, providing relief for unemployed and drought-stricken areas of Saskatchewan, making a trade treaty with New Zealand, amending the civil service act and the customs tariff.

The country's business disposed of, government officials are free to attend to final arrangements for the Imperial Economic Conference of July 21. The agenda has been submitted to the respective dominions and colonies for approval, and probably will be announced within a fortnight.

Intention of the government to appoint a commission to investigate the whole problem of marketing was announced in Parliament recently by Mr. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, following a renewed attack on the administration for not doing more for the farmers.

The day before Miss Agnes MacPhail, progressive, had moved a want of confidence motion on account of the government's failure to declare a "policy calculated to meet the depressed conditions" and had advocated several drastic methods through which agriculture might be benefited.

Chief among these, in the opinion of Mr. C. C. Coote, United Farmers of Alberta, is the bringing of the Canadian dollar down to par with the pound sterling. He was convinced that this would increase production and the price of export commodities.

Mr. R. B. Bennett, the Prime Minister, reminded the speaker that "our obligations are paid in the United States." Mr. Coote replied that inflation by increasing Canadian export trade would raise price levels generally throughout Canada and thus increase revenues sufficiently to take care of the additional premium for foreign exchange. Incidentally it would ease the unemployment relief burden.

"While Canada is anxious to meet its foreign obligations," Mr. Coote concluded, "in the terms and on the dates due, this can only be done if we have sufficient exports, and inflation of the dollar is the means to this end."

Mr. Weir defended the government's agricultural policy as "laid on a sound foundation" and as having resulted in increased production for farm products and in putting $35,500,000 into the pockets of the farmers in the last 12 months.

While favoring a marketing board, Mr. Weir felt that little of a definite nature should be done until after the Imperial Conference. Therefore, it was thought best that a commission should be appointed to study the whole question of marketing, and especially export marketing, rather than attempt to adopt the policies that have been in vogue in other countries, and that had been more or less successful.

Miss MacPhail's motion was defeated by 17 to 47, many members being absent from the House.

U. OF C. ACCEPTS KELLOGG GIFT OF BIG HORSE RANCH

98 Head Of Arabian Steeds Are Among Livestock Donated

SAN FRANCISCO, June 2.—The board of regents of the University of California accepted here recently the gift of an 800-acre horse ranch at Pomona, Calif., made by W. K. Kellogg, of Battle Creek, Mich. It will be administered by the college of agriculture as the W. K. Kellogg Institute of Animal Husbandry.

Included in the gift are 98 head of Arabian horses—reported to constitute one-fourth of such horses in the world outside of their native land—and other valuable livestock. An endowment of $600,000 accompanies the gift in order that Mr. Kellogg's efforts toward preserving and improving the strains of Arabian horses in the United States may be perpetuated.

Under the terms of the gift and endowment, the university must carry on research and breeding studies at the institute. It must also continue public exhibitions of the horses, which Mr. Kellogg has presented for some time as his "Arabian horse show." The gift is valued at $2,000,000.

Besides the establishing of the W. K. Kellogg Institute of Animal Husbandry here on May 17 by Gov. James Rolph Jr., there is a story of a small boy in Michigan who once had as a pet a horse named Spot.

As horses go, Spot wasn't distinguished by any accumulation of blue ribbons; but he and the small boy were great friends. Such good companions were they, in fact, that when it became necessary to sell Spot one day the boy was sorely grieved.

He resolved then and there that upon becoming a man he would own a whole stable of horses which need not be sold. These horses, he told himself, would be Arabians. Multitudes of small boys make themselves just such rash promises. Often they do not come true. This boy waited for years before his wish was realized.

The boy was Mr. W. K. Kellogg of Battle Creek, Mich., who by manufacturing and selling a new type of food, lifted himself out of obscurity into wealth.

The ranch is situated in a tidy, spring-fed valley among the San Jose hills, three miles west of Pomona. It has a most handsome and pleasant situation. The fields upon the hills surrounding it are streaked with yellow mustard. Live oaks and chaparral spot the canyons and north slopes.

Outspread on the valley floor are 400 carefully tilled acres of wheat, oats, barley and alfalfa. Along the frostless edge of the slope, oranges, grapes, and walnuts have been planted. Buildings and fences have been thoughtfully and studiously constructed on the most improved and modern type. Behind the stables is a grandstand, training rink, and pavilion for the numerous exhibitions which Mr. Kellogg likes to give people who also are fond of horses.

Since Biblical times, Arabian horses have been praised for their qualities of beauty, courage, endurance and devotion—superior characteristics reputed to have been maintained for 3500 years through careful breeding. Adopted into Europe and America, their breed is said to have benefited nearly all fine light horses. For 127 years every winner of the famous English Derby descended from an Arabian. Arabian horses have also aided in the foundation of the present Morgan breed and Kentucky saddle horses.

men occupying offices in the clinic building, who, although assisting in many cases, are not connected with the Clinic itself. They are: Dr. H. H. McCaslin, dentist; Dr. G. S. Selman, eye, ear, nose, and throat specialist, and Dr. W. D. Gardner, osteopath.

BREAKS TARPON'S NECK
FORT MYERS, June 2.—One way to land a tarpon is to break his neck. H. A. Bartley, in landing a 50-pounder Tuesday at Redfish point, jerked back to set the hook. He combined force of the leap and setting the hook turned the tarpon in the air and broke his neck. The fish came in dead.

Traveling Around America

ANOTHER SOFT DRINK

HERE is a drink that carries its own cup—a delicious milk treat served in its own snowy-lined container. And mighty refreshing it tastes on a warm day! Fact is, both the coconut and its milk always taste better when delivery is made straight from the tree to the consumer. This photograph was taken on one of the fortnightly cruises between New York and California over the Central American route, just after the trip through the Canal.

What an amazing waterway the Canal really is—what romance and tragedy make up its history! Centuries ago caravans loaded with packs of gold from the Teca Temples in Peru blazed a trail through the deadly jungles of the Isthmus. Along this trail the French started to build a canal, and 30,000 workers lost their lives from yellow fever. Later came American sanitary experts who turned the jungle into one of the most healthful spots on earth. They were followed by American engineers who finally accomplished the greatest engineering feat of modern times—the long-dreamed-of Canal, built in ten years at a cost of $400,000,000.

GROUP ONE SEMINOLE COUNTY "My Platform Is As Follows"

I belong to no faction, am allied with no interest and if elected, shall represent all the people fairly.

Equal opportunities to all, special privileges to none.

My slogan shall be "TAX REDUCTION."

Motor Vehicle Department should be abolished and tags should be direct or through Tax Collector's Office.

Reduce price of auto tags one-half and repeal the penalty clause of 25 per cent.

The method of collecting taxes would be simplified and rendered inexpensive.

Tax on gasoline should be reduced to five cents per gallon.

Salaries of governmental officials should be reduced in proportion to the services rendered and the reduction in the cost of living.

Public road construction should cease for a period of five years, except to complete connecting links and keep those roads already constructed in repair.

Real Estate and tangible personal property should be released from the Ad Valorem Tax for State purposes and left to the Counties and Municipalities except the One Mill required by the Constitution of the State of Florida.

The main highways built in Seminole County, with taxes of the citizens of Seminole County, or from proceeds of bonds, for which they owe should be paid for out of the proceeds of the gasoline tax.

I was born and raised on a farm in Georgia.

Was graduated from University of Georgia in 1896, and practiced law at Sylva, Ga., until 1925.

Moved to Sanford, where I have lived and practiced law since.

CANAL ACROSS FRANCE WOULD BE BIG SAVING

Plan Submitted Which Would Cut Distance Around Gibraltar

PARIS.—A project for the construction of a canal across southwestern France, which would link the Atlantic with the Mediterranean and greatly reduce the distance between western Europe and the Orient by sea, has been submitted for the approval of the Ministry of Public Works by a company which desires to undertake its construction.

It is estimated that the total cost would be between 12,000,000,000 and 15,000,000,000 francs—$480,000,000 — $600,000,000 — and the work could be finished, if commenced within the next 18 months, by 1940.

Like earlier projects for this so-called Two-Sea Canal the present plan would have as its foundation the two existing small channels, known as the Canal du Midi and the Lateral Canal of the Garonne River. Unlike earlier projects, the present scheme is to construct a waterway big enough to accommodate merchant steamers. The plans call for a channel 13 1/2 meters (44 feet) deep, 150 meters wide at the surface and 60 meters wide at the bottom.

Viewed from the standpoint of trade with the Orient, the Bordeaux-Narbonne Canal would serve as a sort of prolongation or supplement to the Suez Canal, and would occupy a position of great importance in world trade. It would permit of considerable saving in fuel and maritime insurance, as well as of economies in time.

From the French viewpoint, such a waterway would tend to develop the seaports and industries of the South, which in recent years have lagged somewhat behind those in northern France. The Two-Sea Canal would tend to open-up comparatively undeveloped regions in the interior of southwestern France. Irrigation projects in connection with the canal and electric power schemes linked with it would stimulate agriculture and industry throughout the area.

The company which desires the concession for this big enterprise proposes that it be granted, under state control, for a period of 75 years. At the conclusion of this term, the canal would become state property. The undertaking would be financed through bond issues of from 2,000,000,000 to 3,000,000,000 francs a year over a period of five or six years. The company estimates its probable receipts at 7,000,000,000 francs a year, based on a toll charge of 10 francs a ton.

Although the economic advantages of the scheme are principally emphasized, it is also realized that the waterway would have great strategic advantages. In facilitating the prompt and safe exchange of naval units between the Atlantic and the Mediterranean, and removing the necessity of passing through the Straits of Gibraltar, French naval power would be enhanced and the country would feel itself more self-reliant in defense. When the plan was revived in 1928, M. Andre Tardieu, then Minister for Public Works expressed an interest in the scheme. Since then 125 senators and about 150 deputies have declared themselves in favor of carrying it out.

Estimates of the cost of construction have varied widely. One scheme placed the figures at 34,000,000,000 francs, and the project which was widely advocated two years ago fixed the sum at 7,000,000,000 francs.

WHERE PARRISH STANDS

In submitting my candidacy for re-election to the state senate to the people of Seminole County, I pledge my efforts to a drastic reduction in governmental expenditures rather than the finding of new sources of revenue.

I favor a reduction in the salaries of state officers and adequate control of all fees under the fee system so as to guarantee the greatest economy in these offices.

I am opposed to a general sales tax being enacted by the state legislature and my vote against the seven cent gas tax in the last session is proof of my intention to work for a reduction in gasoline taxes.

I promise to vote against any increase in the motor tax and believe that the twenty-five percent auto license tag penalty is too high.

I favor the temporary suspension of further road building projects, except the completion of necessary connecting links.

As a farmer and grower myself I can be depended upon to vote for such legislation as will be in the farmer's interest and make his burdens less heavy.

I favor the abolishment of all unnecessary bureaus, commissions and boards and the consolidation of such counties and circuits as will further tend to reduce taxes without interfering with the efficiency of government.

I will work for the interests of Seminole County the same as for Brevard county and no one will ever be able to say that I have done more for one special section because of a county line.

J. J. PARRISH

Candidate for State Senate.

TO THE VOTERS OF SEMINOLE COUNTY

The following are some of the more important matters I am interested in and propose to work for if elected to the state legislature:

- 1 The abolishment of the intangible tax.
- 2 A substantial reduction in the gasoline tax.
- 3 Suitable laws protecting agriculture.
- 4 All possible efficiency in our public schools.
- 5 Conservation of our natural resources.
- 6 The strengthening of our banking laws.
- 7 A moratorium on road building for at least two years, except the completion of unfinished roads that have already been taken over by the state, and the maintenance of our highways, which should be kept in repair.
- 8 The upholding and improving of the present green or immature citrus fruit law so as to prevent Florida citrus from being discriminated against by other states.
- 9 Adequate transportation facilities, both rail, motor truck, and boat lines, at the lowest possible cost.
- 10 The abolishment or consolidation of state boards, bureaus and commissions wherever practical and economical.
- 11 Reduction in salaries of state officers and employees, and control of the fee system.
- 12 Reduced appropriations such as will guarantee lower taxes without need for new sources of revenue.

I believe that the cost of government can be reduced in a very substantial manner without impairing the efficiency of the government, by practicing economy in every branch of government, and as my platform is "Economy", I pledge myself to work to this end.

To The Farmers and Truckers of Seminole and Adjoining Counties:

Being in this city on Governor Martin's and private business and hearing of the terrible misfortunes of the celery, watermelon, bean and other truck growers, and knowing of a fact that ex-Governor Martin is in touch with a number of financial influences in the North and East, and I being his campaign manager in West Florida, desire to say that if you gentlemen will help me put Governor Martin in as our next governor that he can and will influence a great many millionaires of the North and West to come down and put their money back of you farmers to enable you farmers and truckers to operate your farms for the next year and for the four years during which he will be Governor.

Therefore vote for John W. Martin for Governor of Florida on June 7 and let us put in a man of the people, by the people, and for the people.

Governor Martin is the poor man's friend.

LAST TIMES TONIGHT!!!

"THE WET PARADE"

Sanford's Political RALLY TONIGHT Municipal BAND SHELL 8 P.M. IN CASE OF RAIN THE RALLY WILL BE HELD AT THE COURT HOUSE

If there is any one thing acting more powerfully than another in Florida toward the depression of property, it is the heavy bonded indebtedness of our cities, counties and districts. The sum has reached the staggering figure of six hundred millions and the carrying charges on these enormous obligations are creating a burden on the taxpayer which is insufferable.

Many of these bonds have gone into default and others have declined dangerously in value until the credit standing of Florida securities has been practically destroyed. High taxation and the uncertainty of future taxation as a result of these bond issues have so depreciated the value of real estate, which for over half a century was the basis of Florida's growth and expansion, as to make it veritably worthless.

In this connection it is interesting to note that as far back as 1923, Cary Hardee, then governor of Florida and now a candidate again, was counseling against such extravagant bond issues. In an address to the regular session of the Legislature in 1923 he said, "While the State is measurably free from bonded indebtedness, I cannot say as much for the individual counties and municipalities. There are, no doubt, times when counties and municipalities find it necessary to issue long time obligations. There are, no doubt, worthy purposes in the way of improvements demanded by the people requiring such expenditures."

"I believe, however," Governor Hardee continued, with great foresight, "that there is too great a tendency on the part of our people to recklessly incur heavy obligations. Some of our municipalities and counties, and especially some of the school and road districts of many of the counties, have incurred heavy bonded indebtedness which will, I fear, embarrass them in the future. I feel that the time has come when we should adopt measures and policies looking toward the discouragement of the issuance of long time securities rather than their encouragement."

That is where Governor Hardee stood on reckless bond issues. And it is to be remembered that when he went out of office in January of 1925 Florida was in an excellent economic condition. However, immediately with the advent of the high pressure methods of Governor Martin in Tallahassee, all Florida governmental entities began the orgy of extravagance, mis-management, and bad financing which before the end of the year had precipitated the crash.

For the last three years of Gov. Martin's administration conditions went from bad to worse. Taxes continued to go up and land values dropped out of sight. Today Gov. Martin is making many vain promises about what he will do for Florida's economic life if he is again elected governor. Why didn't he do it in 1927 and 1928 when he had the chance?

Energetic Holland

Holland is not fazed by the world-wide depression and is engaged in one of the greatest and most interesting engineering feats ever undertaken. The historical Zuider Zee, a heretofore tempestuous inland sea, has been made into a placid lake by the construction of a huge 17-mile dam, and a great portion of this lake is being transformed into fertile ground.

Fifty thousand acres have already been filled in as the first portion of a project which involves 550,000 acres. Some idea of the vastness of the undertaking can be obtained from a recitation of dimensions and costs. The construction of the dam, which is 300 feet wide, cost about $50,000,000 while the cost of the filling-in process was $40,000,000. One can get a good idea of what the final outlay will amount to when it is considered that there are still 500,000 acres to convert into soil.

This addition of fertile land is expected to greatly enhance Holland's position as an agricultural country and to provide work for many thousands of farmers. But there is one feature of the whole thing which has a touch of sadness. It is what might be called the death knell of two ancient and extremely picturesque fishing villages of Volendam and Marken.

Now the fishermen of these two cities, with their voluminous breeches and wooden shoes, must forsake their nets and boats and turn to the plow. For centuries, generation after generation of these fisherfolk have braved the tempests of the Zuider Zee and have identified themselves with the sea and fishing as thoroughly as have the fishermen of Gloucester in our own country. No longer will they be able to go down to the sea in ships.

Nevertheless, the reclamation project will be a great benefit to Holland and will add much to her farm and dairy output, and while it was necessary to make inland towns out of Volendam and Marken it is to be hoped that the quaint customs and dress of their villagers will not be altered.

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

State Printer T. J. Appleyard, who is secretary of the Florida Press Association, is having his hands full getting ready for the meeting at Palatka June 20 to June 22. From the replies coming in from newspaper men generally (and all of the craft have been invited to be on hand whether members of the association or not), there will be a large attendance at this meeting.

Congress is about ready to investigate another so-called "trust" and in consequence some of the big men in the packing industry, who recently were acquitted in criminal proceedings in Chicago, probably will be summoned to Washington to tell why the prices of food and other meats has gone up. After a conference between Representative Henry, of Texas, chairman of the House rules committee, and Representative Cullen, of Alabama, chairman of the Judiciary committee, a joint statement was made public indicating that such an investigation would be made.

The business section of Post-Examiner was swept by fire at 10:30 o'clock this morning, ending a long, rough collection of 1928. The Miami Herald and South Florida Sun, which were in the building, were saved. The Post-Examiner was destroyed, but the building was saved.

THE MIAMI HERALD

The MIAMI HERALD has proposed the Eighteenth Amendment from the time it was proposed in Congress down to today. It has never been passed in that opposition. It has been believed that gold regulations should not be incorporated in the Federal Constitution. It is true that in spite of its opposition its enforcement has been a dismal failure and has caused a distinct retrogression in the cause of free enterprise.

The Herald believes that, under present economic conditions throughout the country, the immediate repeal of the gold regulations and of the laws enacted thereunder are of the most imperative importance, not only to destroy gangster rule which now threatens the life and property of every citizen, but to aid in the reestablishment of the business foundations of the nation.

Such repeal would release large amounts of capital for the construction and rehabilitation of manufacturing plants, would take up the surplus of grain which cannot otherwise be consumed, would offer employment in manufacturing and transportation to thousands of our idle citizens who now see no light ahead, would stimulate rental and realty values, would eliminate the bootlegger, the hi-jacker, the rum runner, would restore respect for law, in a large measure would deplete the prisons, and, in general, would improve the moral and financial condition of all the people of the United States.

There The Herald stands, where it has always stood—in good company now—for it is no longer considered disgraceful or dilatory to advocate the repeal of this amendment. On this question we disagree with Ruth Bryan Owen, our present congressman, who seeks

PORK OR RELIEF?

One fact stands out like a sore thumb in all the statements advocating a bond issue for public works as a relief measure. It is as conspicuous in the recent remarks of Messrs. Garner and Rainey as it was in the pleas of former Governor Smith, Mr. Owen, D. Young and Senator Wagner.

That is that none of these advocates even attempts to explain how a bond issue can possibly accomplish any amount of relief worth the mentioning.

They have all been challenged on this vital point. President Hoover showed clearly how few men would be put to work by such a policy. Secretary Mitty gave facts and figures. From the start we have raised the objection in these columns. Anybody can sit down with a pencil and paper and do the sum for himself. All such public works must pay the prevailing rate of wages for skilled labor. The average of such wages varies with each job, but it can rarely be less than $10 a day. Even if allowance is made for a certain amount of unskilled labor all along the line, back to the mines and quarries, it is hard to estimate the average wage, directly and indirectly employed, as under $7 or $8 a day. Often it would be higher. Add the fact that overhead and raw material consume a large part of the cost and the number of men employed on even the largest bridge or monumental postoffice becomes pathetically small compared with the millions of unemployed.

One dollar directly applied to relief equals 97 considered on public works, according to expert estimates. The country has taken care of its unemployed thus far by neighborhood aid. It can take care of no more in the kind manner that probably has aided it in the past. It is a matter of "either-or" whether it will endeavor the whole task if it serves billions to wasteful public construction. Mr. Smith spoke of "relieving" millions through public works. There is not enough illness in the country for any such grandiose scheme.

Let Congress please be honest by right economy and a cap on a bond issue. Let it be $100 million, if it cannot do better. It is a matter of "either-or" whether it will endeavor the whole task if it serves billions to wasteful public construction. Mr. Smith spoke of "relieving" millions through public works. There is not enough illness in the country for any such grandiose scheme.

SAYS EDUCATOR

But Calls Stress On...
NEW YORK, June 2.—The public schools should give more a career preparation of the student, says Dr. William Z. Owen, Superintendent of Schools, declared in the thirty-third annual report made public recently.

"For a long time we have been emphasizing the money value of an education," Dr. Owen said. "In consequence we have given to the younger generation a materialistic outlook on life. We have not had the courage to teach the truth that as it is written, 'man shall not live by bread alone.'"

The question "What is success in life?" should also be clarified by the schools, Dr. Owen declared.

"Too often the unthinking mentality success in life with wealth, and judge human achievement in terms of material possessions."

SONNET

There have been many cats I loved and lost,
And most of them were of the mongrel breed;
Some fillies have a mighty power to plead,
Especially when chilled by snow and frost.

No matter if by cares I am engrossed,
Somehow I feel that I should intercede.
They seem so much like human folk in need—
Life waits by winds of hardship roughly tossed.

I think that I should not be satisfied
In heaven with harps and wings and streets of gold,
If I should hear by chance a noise outside
Like some lost kitten crying in the cold.

One good thing about a girl at twenty-one. She never gets any older until her hair begins to turn gray.

Some of the folks are complaining that in our "Black the White Ball" we included the white's race. If we hadn't done that it would have been easy.

The Miami Herald, Florida's oldest newspaper, endorses Ruth Bryan Owen's candidacy, because it realizes Florida needs more in a congressman than a prohibitionist.

The appeal for economy is being heard. The Duval county bid-commission has estimated a saving of one million dollars in the next appropriations.

Environmental units have been set up. We will be prepared for another prosperous year.

Mrs. Counts Johnson Honored With Party

Entertaining for her sister-in-law, Mrs. Counts Johnson who came here recently from DeLand to make her home, Mrs. J. H. Colclough was hostess at a bridge party and tea given Tuesday afternoon at her home in Ross Court. A pastel color scheme was developed by the profusion of cala lilies and lavender and yellow gladiolus arranged in silver and lustre bowls about the rooms where the guests were entertained. The tables bore old-fashioned scenes in pastel shades.

Throughout the afternoon bridge games were enjoyed by the guests and at a late hour scores were added and prizes awarded. High score prize, a lavender and yellow children handkerchief, went to Miss Helen Varnay while cut prize, linen, was given to Mrs. E. I. Hoy. Miss Maudie Lake received lines for holding low score, while the highest was the recipient of a hobnail glass sandwich plate as a memento of the occasion. The prizes were wrapped in white tissue paper and tied with pastel colored satin ribbons.

At a late hour the tables were cleared and a satod course was served with fruit punch by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Lin-

FREEDOM FIGHT

Committees Are Conducting Probe Before Recommending

BHILA, India, June 3.—India is now entering a new phase of its journey toward political independence, a way thrown open by three preliminary committees charged with implementing the Round Table Conference proposals, which have just closed their investigations.

The three committees have been touring the country, acquiring information on which to base their recommendations for India's constitutional development in the way of the franchise, federal finance, and the Indian National Congress, despite its hostility toward the Government of India, has accepted the general policy of federation as the future constitutional system.

The relations between the Government and Congress are the chief obstacle to further political advance.

But it is also pointed out, however, that Congress' antipathy to the British Government, which the Congress working committee inaugurated.

In this regard, there are many people, including some British who are beginning to wonder where the ordinance policy of the Government is leading. It is recognized that the ordinance have to be rescinded before the final stage of the federation scheme is entered upon.

The general opinion in political circles here is that the British Government will quickly pass a special act giving federation a statutory basis. This, it is thought, will all be done as soon as possible after the communal question has been settled in London, following the report of the Mahatma of Lohian's committee on franchise.

Thereafter, provincial autonomy will be put into operation immediately, while the work of preparing for the introduction of central responsibility will be started. For this stage of negotiations it is generally felt that Congress will play its part. To obtain this, the leaders will be released from prison by a political amnesty that will enable the Congress to organize anew for the first general elections.

Islanders Pound 2 Indian Hurlers For 19 Hits and Victory

COCOA, June 3.—A pair of late rallies brought a 10 to 6 victory by the Islanders over the league-leading Cocoa Indians here this afternoon in a game in which 31 hits were rained all over the ball park. The Indians staged a ninth inning rally, too, but it fell short by several runs.

The Islanders started hitting Joiner in the very first inning, but were unable to score until the sixth. Again in the seventh they put over a run to follow those runs with four each in the eighth and ninth. Joiner was touched for 16 of the Daytona 19 hits in eight innings he worked. Atkinson finished the game.

Lefty Lane of the Islanders was also off form, the Indians getting to him for 12 hits. His mates battled brilliantly back of him however, and as a result, the Islanders went back into the pennant race, with one of their hardest games coming on Sunday when they face DeLand at Daytona.

Out of the 31 hits, only three were extrabase hits, two triples by Hutto, and a double by Ppina. Wall, league leading batter, failed to get a hit in four tries, while Apper and Hutto, the Islanders got four for five.

Score by innings:
Cocoa 000 300 003—6 12 3
Daytona 000 001 144—10 19 3
Batteries: Joiner, Atkinson, and Holton; Lane and A. Mobley.

WINTER PARK, June 3.—DeLand's Red Birds downed the Parkers 8 to 1 here yesterday afternoon in a batting attack that sent Parham to the showers early in the game, with Barker holding the Reds safely the rest of the way.

McRae, hurling for DeLand, was walking seven men, and giving up 10 hits, but Parker errors assisted in sending some on the runs across. Roberson and Provost were the stick artists making the most noise.

Score by innings:
Winter Park 000 000 010—1 10 3
DeLand 001 303 010—8 12 1
Batteries: Parham, Barker, and Crane, Adair; McRae and Dull, Shirley.

UNIVERSITY CENTER

Thousands Of Summer Students Already Pouring Into City

NEW YORK, June 3.—This city is being classed as the world's largest college town. It makes a show of being conscious of its numerous things, and nowhere else is the joy of self-education so well simulated as here. With the season of summer there comes an influx from the hinterland that the city is not quite successful in handling. It is the summer students, their suitcases and infinite supplies for observation.

Already they have begun to pour through the Grand Central and Pennsylvania railroad stations as the gateways from the little red houses to six intensive weeks in the biggest university city in the world. These months bring the city to life, scattering its life down the land every shade and variety of impression of the city of towers and angles.

While this summer horde increases only by a few thousands the 100,000 who study here during the winter, there is something ubiquitous about the summer student—perhaps his boundless enthusiasm and the limited time he has here—that makes the city under his scrutiny acutely conscious of its

As a neutralizer to too-much textbook there is the Aquarium in Battery Park, where the city takes its first breath before it strides to the north, leaving myriad-windowed canyon in its wake. At the other extreme of the city, he may stilly-dally the following day, without retreating the 400—surround the constitute "Geographical and botanical marvels of Bronx Park.

A city of negroes lies in the area called Harlem, between the Hundred Sixteenth Street and One Hundred Fifty-fifth Street. The Chinese quarter centers at Chatham Square. There is a ghetto in lower east-side Manhattan, for New York has 1,700,000 Jews—more than any other city in the world. The list of city neighborhoods is a roster of the nations.

A half-hour in the subway and the student is in the midst of the counting houses of the world's financial center. A block's walk from there toward the waterfront, and the air is rich with East Indian and West Indian spices, and before him is the pageant of sea-going trade of the largest Frederick W. MacMonnies' Nathan Hale stands in City Hall Park, and Karl Bitter's equestrian of Frans Sigel means the Hudson from Riverside Drive. In Union Square, where rises the flagpole memorial to the late Tammany chief, Charles F. Murphy, is Kirke Browne's equestrian Washington and Bartholdi's Lafayette. Peer through the dim recesses of the Hall of Records, back of City Hall, and there is Albert Weintra's group of the purchase of Manhattan Island.

One bumps into them all over the city crawling their necks at the new architecture and seeking out what still remains of eighteenth and early nineteenth century examples. In the swirl of Park Row stands St. Paul's Church, designed by MacBean in 1764; in Second Avenue, St. Mark's-in-the-Bowery, by Mangen and Macomb, built in 1799. City Hall by the same two artists was built in 1811. Renwick designed Gothic Grace Church that raises its delicate gray spire in the busy curve of Broadway east of Washington Square, and George E. Post the Times Building at Forty-Second Street and Broadway, and, in Park Row, the bronze-domed Pullitzer Building.

The student has a thousand things to see and hear—a sort of applied course in liberal observation—and yet, to come back to it, it is only in the summer that you seem to be always running into him, staring aloft, clutching his hat, rushing through the Metropolitan Museum. When winter comes, the city's life of the universities lapses again within its own boundaries as becomes the less gallivanting season.

REVENUE

(Continued From Page One) ning to tell, with outspoken irritation, they ordered the "swarm of lobbyists" from the corridors outside the committee room. Predictions were made freely that the lumber and copper import taxes added by the Senate to the oil and coal tariffs voted by the House would be retained.

The following special taxes with a life of two years definitely were in the bill: lubricating oils, toilet preparations, furs, passenger cars and trunks, jewelry, yachts and motorboats, radio and phonographs, mechanical refrigerators, sporting goods and cameras, firearms and shells, matches, candy, chewing gum and soft drinks.

Details of the methods of levying some of these rates were up for settlement. The increased inheritance tax rates and the gift tax voted by the House were not subject to dispute in the conference and remained in the bill.

Seeking every avenue of revenue to make up of balancing the budget, the conferees also looked favorably upon the east a gallon gasoline voted by the Senate and estimated to yield $150,000,000. The drastic House provisions imposing a minimum of one-fourth of one percent on stock transfers and subjecting corporation dividends to the normal income tax were shied away from by the conferees as the Senate objections were noted.

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, Republican independent leader, added a new issue to the Senate controversy over a flat 10 percent cut with a substitute providing an exemption for salaries of $1500 and less and a scale of graduated reductions, ranging from 5 to 25 percent, above that minimum.

Sponsors of the bipartisan economy bill pointed out that this would save only $23,000,000 annually instead of the $721,000,000 under the flat 10 percent slash.

"How do you propose to make up the difference?" inquired Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut.

"I have no specific plan," replied Norris, "but it would be highway robbery to take this vast amount of money out of those who are getting the least."

"The Mouthpiece" To Open Here Saturday

"The Mouthpiece," a Warner Bros. picture, will open at the Milano Theater Saturday for a one-day engagement.

The large cast is headed by Warren William, leading man of stage and screen, who in the past few months has appeared in such important vehicles as "Under Eighteen" and "Beauty and The Beast" and has been marked for stardom by the producers. "The Mouthpiece" will serve as an index of his future and marks his grandest screen role to date.

Warning Is Sounded Of Malaria Menace

Warning that unless Sanford persons will co-operate at once to rid this section of mosquitoes there may be a veritable epidemic of malaria cases here this summer was expressed by Dr. W. D. Gardner yesterday afternoon.

"Every person in this city should lend a hand in driving out this serious menace that is threatening us," he said, "for there are already nearly 100 cases of malaria being treated in this city. Every tin can or broken bottle or any receptacle containing stagnant water should be upturned or otherwise destroyed; piles of damp leaves or clothing or similar breeding places of the insects should be burned, and homes should be screened, or disinfected as often as possible, so that malaria and its attendant illnesses may be avoided."

Sanford's team of six golfers who appeared in the second tournament on the summer schedule of the Central Florida Golf Association at Orlando yesterday were returned victors over the DeLand entry by a wide margin.

The team of G. W. Spencer and Joe Masters defeated its opponents by 7½ points; the team of John Ludwig and Roy Hoffer defeated its opponents by 8½ points, while the team of H. W. Roebler and L. U. May went down under a 3½ point defeat.

The Dubred team defeated Aloma Country Club team, and the Eustis team defeated the Daytona team.

Next week, the tournament shifts to the Sanford Country Club when, on Thursday afternoon 88 golfers will go out for honors of the day, Allan Stewart, professional at the local club, in

States and France Agree on Trade Proposition

PARIS, June 5.—(AP)—The United States and France have agreed on a trade proposition which will give the way for the removal of the tariff on French wine, and the removal of the tariff on American wine.

The agreement, which was reached after lengthy negotiations, is the first of a series of trade agreements between the two countries. It is expected that the agreement will result in a significant increase in trade between the two nations.

The agreement provides for the removal of the tariff on French wine, which has been a major barrier to trade between the two countries. It also provides for the removal of the tariff on American wine, which has been a major barrier to trade between the two countries.

The agreement is expected to be signed in the near future. It is expected that the agreement will result in a significant increase in trade between the two nations.
