Winds Imperil Manila

MANILA, Philippines (UPI)—Typhoon Rita, the worst storm to hit the Philippines in eight years, today raised the nation's rice and coconut growing regions with winds of nearly 100 mph and roared toward populous metropolitan Manila.
Reports from the rice bowl region of Cebu province, 200 miles southeast of Manila, said Rita triggered flash flooding in low-lying areas, forcing at least 1,210 persons to flee from their homes and seek shelter in town halls and schools.
There were no immediate reports of casualties.
U.S. military authorities said the helicopter carrier USS Okinawa sailed out of the Subic Bay naval base to avoid the storm and U.S. aircraft flew to Okinawa from Clark Air Base, home of the 13th Air Force 60 miles north of Manila.
The weather bureau said the eye of the storm was expected to pass 31 miles north of the Manila today with winds up to 60 mph.
"The worst will come in the evening," Roman Kintanar, director of the geophysical office, said.
Kintanar described the storm as "extremely dangerous" and warned residents to take all necessary precautions.
Rita struck the coconut-producing eastern coastal provinces with peak winds of 137 miles an hour, but it lost some of its punch as it ran into the Sierra Madre mountains in its island sweep.
Intermittent heavy rains and wind gusts pulled the Philippine capital of 7.5 million persons, mapping power lines. The metropolitan area was placed on typhoon alert and most streets in the capital were deserted.
The storm disrupted communications and forced the suspension of all domestic air services and reducing rail traffic. Ten outgoing and eight incoming international flights were cancelled.

$22.9-Million Teacher Pact Gets Board OK

The Seminole County School Board has approved a new three-year contract for teachers calling for pay increases ranging from 4.6 percent to a high of 22.4 percent with an average pay raise of 6 percent.
It will cost the school system $22,922,176.53 to pay teachers for the first year of the new three-year pact.
That's $1,670,399 more than it cost this year under the old contract ending July 31. The figures do not include another $4,092,192 for fringe benefits for the first of the three years — an increase of $834,000 over this year's amount.
It took the school board about 20 minutes to accept the new contract Wednesday night by a 4 to 1 vote, with Robert Feather opposed because he said the pay raises were too high.
Under the new contract, teachers will receive pay raises from $400 to as much as $2,740 over existing base pay, depending upon the number of years of experience and the type of degree they hold.
There are about 1,700 teachers in the Seminole County school system affected by the new contract.
Of that number some 10 percent, or about 170 to 200 teachers, will receive the $400 raise as beginning teachers with bachelors' degrees and no previous experience, according to Owen McCarron, personnel director.
For those teachers, the new base pay is $9,100, plus fringe benefits.
McCarron estimated there are approximately 12 to 15 percent who fall into the highest pay raise category of 22.4 percent.
For those 220 or so teachers with the most years' experience and holding advanced degrees, the annual salary can be as high as $15,015.
The tax rate for school purposes in Seminole County is $4 per $1,000 assessed valuation and, according to Roger Harris, assistant superintendent for finance, that will generate about $12.9 million. Harris said about $5 million of that amount is currently budgeted for salaries and fringe benefits with the remainder coming from other non-tax revenue sources. The $5 million represents about $4 on the tax rate for teacher salaries and fringe benefits.
Two weeks ago the teachers had ratified the contract by a 1,121 to 136 vote and all that remained was for the board to give its approval.
Feather said he believed the base pay raise should have only been raised to $9,000. He also cited the Aug. 21 retroactive date as

Sanford Loses $99,200 From Feds; Options Hunted

By MAX ERILETTAN Herald Staff Writer
The city of Sanford will not receive $99,200 in federal anti-recession funds it had anticipated in its budget for the current fiscal year because of Congress' failure to enact the anti-recession program for another year.
The measure funding the anti-recession program was passed in late September by the Senate, but sat in the House Rules Committee until the last session of Congress ended Oct. 14.
Anti-recession funds could be applied only to salaries and employee benefits. The program originated as an effort to stimulate employment. The city had been receiving anti-recession funds since the program began July 1, 1978.
City officials are looking to the general fund for money to make up loss in anticipated revenue.
The city had budgeted the federal money to pay for: its $87,118 contribution to the Florida Retirement System, $26,640.14 for salaries and benefits for four employees and $6,311.86 for the contingency fund.
The four positions funded through anti-recession funds are: two clerk-typists in the finance department; one clerk-typist in the assistant to the city manager's office and a uniformed parking specialist.
"These items will have to be squeezed into the general fund," Henry Tamm, City Clerk-Finance director, said of the items originally scheduled to be funded with anti-recession money.
The city has $2,346,100 in its general fund for the present fiscal year.

Settlements: Will Decision Slow Talks?

TEL AVIV (UPI)—Israel's top negotiators departed for the peace talks in Washington today carrying a decision by the cabinet to strengthen settlements in occupied Arab territories, a move likely to irritate President Carter and stall progress on delicate treaty negotiations with Egypt.
Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan disclosed the cabinet decision as he and Defense Minister Ezer Weizman departed for Washington to resume negotiations with Egypt on the U.S.-brokered treaty.
"Government officials were reluctant to discuss the decision to sign the settlements. But one official, when asked if it was tied to getting approval for the draft treaty, said: 'Of course, there was an interest in getting wider support for the draft in the cabinet.'"
"The government's decision appeared designed to appease cabinet hard-liners who were reluctant to vote in favor of the treaty, which calls for Israel's withdrawal from the Sinai Peninsula. The Cabinet approved the treaty by a 15-0 vote after a three-day debate."
Carter has called Israeli settlements on occupied Arab land illegal and an obstacle to peace. After the Camp David accords were signed, Carter and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin publicly disputed how long Israel would delay settlement activity in the lands captured in the 1967 war.

PLO's Arafat: Pact 'Ticket To Slavery'

HEBRON, Lebanon (UPI)—Palestinian chief Yasser Arafat condemned the Camp David accords as a ticket to Palestinian "slavery" today and vowed to fight them "with all our potentials."
In his first interview with an American correspondent since the historic accords fashioned by President Carter Sept. 17, Arafat said the twin agreements made in fifth Middle East war more likely "with all our potentials."
The guerrilla leader also disclosed Washington was trying to get him to join the Camp David negotiating process for Palestinian self-rule on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, where 1.1 million Palestinians live.
But he scoffed at the U.S. bid.
"We are not against peace, we are against slavery... They ask me to put my signature to accept the slavery of my people."
Arafat said Israel's defense with Egypt made war more likely because it freed the Jewish state to deal with Syria, Jordan, Lebanon and the Palestinians "by fighting."
"What they are offering the Palestinian people in the accords is: Camp David... a period of time... giving some legality to the (Israeli) occupation."
Arafat said Israel's defense with Egypt made war more likely because it freed the David plan calling for elections on the West Bank that would lead to Palestinian self-rule with a continued Israeli military presence in the area.
"Such elections would be completely illegitimate," Arafat said. "We are against it."
He said Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin tried to implement the self-rule plan over opposition from the PLO and Palestinian mayors. The PLO would fight "with all our potentials."
Asked in the hour-long interview if this included military options, Arafat stressed:
"With all our potentials. We have to defend our people, our rights, our future."
Arafat, who will leave for Moscow in 48 hours, concluded with a warning about being the PLO into a corner.
"It should be understood that if you put a cat in the corner. He is going to scratch. But we are not cats. We are tigers."

"It will be felt," Tamm said of the loss of anti-recession funds, "but I don't think it will disrupt the operation of the city."
Tamm said the annual audit of the city's finances for the fiscal year completed last September will also have a bearing on the amount of funds carried forward into the present fiscal year. That will have an effect on the general fund, because it is made up of money carried over from the previous fiscal year plus revenues from fees charged on city licenses.

The Constitutional Amendments

Revision 4: Abolish The Cabinet?

(This is another in a series explaining the proposed revisions to the Florida state Constitution as appearing on the Nov. 7 ballot.)
TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Opponents as well as supporters are predicting a constitutional amendment abolishing the Cabinet will be rejected by the voters Nov. 7.
But Cabinet opponents hope the vote will be close enough to spur the Legislature into some reform short of a legislative vote sending out a "hands off" message.
Most polls show Florida voters opposed to Revision 4, which abolishes the century-old system under which the governor is forced to share his power over some, but not all, executive agencies, with six other elected officials.
Constitution Revision Commission members in favor of the Cabinet were so sure of themselves they joined with anti-Cabinet forces to get the amendment on the ballot instead of a less drastic plan which might have a chance of ratification.

Two other commission recommendations affecting the Cabinet are on the ballot. A provision in the Revision 1 catch-all limits Cabinet officers to two consecutive terms. Terms are unlimited now and Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner is about to enter his 18th year on the Cabinet.
Revision 8 creates a citizen's panel appointed by the governor to replace the Cabinet as state Board of Education.
Abolition of the Cabinet was Gov. Reubin Askew's major goal in constitutional revision before he backed off to concentrate on defeat of another amendment, legalization of casino gambling.
Before he lost his seat, Askew denounced the Cabinet as an outmoded system that chokes the governor, stifling his power and initiative.

"Where the governor of Florida is concerned, there are too many checks on his power to act in behalf of the people," Askew said in a speech to the commission last fall. "For not only is (he) checked by the growing might of the Legislature, he also is checked by the unrestrained power of the elected Cabinet."
Former Supreme Court Justice B.K. Roberts, a commission member who vigorously opposed Revision 4, says the alternative to the Cabinet system is "one person control of the multi-billion-dollar business which is our Florida state government."
"Major decisions of government made in regular Cabinet meetings constitute the heart of our time-tested system of checks and balances," Roberts said. "Decisions of government made after fair debate at a Cabinet meeting are likely to be much more dependable than those made in haste by a chief executive already overburdened with decision-making responsibility."
Revision 4 abolishes the attorney general, education commissioner, secretary of state, agriculture commissioner, comptroller and treasurer who not only run their own departments, but make jointly with the governor the major decisions for the several Cabinet agencies.
The Legislature would be ordered to reorganize state government, putting every agency under the governor who would appoint the various department heads.
The four Cabinet members expected to be back for new terms in January — Conner, Education Commissioner Ralph Turington, Comptroller Gerald Lewis and Treasurer-Insurance Commissioner Bill Ginter — formed Save Your Vote, a political committee leading the drive to defeat Revisions 1, 4 and 8.

French Vows Faith In Double-Tax Panel

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer
County Commissioner Robert French, chairman of the Council of local Governments in Seminole County, pledged to abide by the findings of the committee appointed by the organization Wednesday night to pinpoint areas of double taxation in the county.
French made his pledge after former Casselberry Council Chairman Edith Duerr questioned the worth of the committee, insisting county commissioners in the past responded to findings of a study committee by dismantling the committee.

"I believe the findings of the committee will be fair and unbiased and I will abide by them," said French. He added that since the committee will be under the auspices of the Council of Governments, the county commission will have no power to dissolve it.
County Mayor Bill Grier said he hopes the committee will do its work well and believes that "Commissioner John Alexander and Altona Springs City Commissioner Sandra Glenn," both of whom are sympathetic to the double taxation issue, "will be elected to the county commission."

They, with French, will see to it, he said, that the committee's findings are listened to.
Unanimously elected to serve on the committee were Dr. Duerr, an ex-officio member; Tom DeWalt, legal counsel for the local Republican executive committee; Jan Leibin, chairman of the Seminole County League of Civic Associations; and Bo Simpson, a Longwood real estate broker, all county commission appointments; and from the cities — Sanford City Manager W.E. Three Make Their Marks

Clennie (Patterson) Brundidge. Luke Stallworth. Joe Dillard. Three gentlemen All from Seminole County. All who have surmounted environmental obstacles to achieve success. All revered in less-than-affluent surroundings. And all whose stories were shared with Evening Herald readers this past week.

First, there was Luke Amos Stallworth. Lt. Luke Amos Stallworth of the Seminole County Sheriff's Department. "I've set my goals in my life and I've achieved them all," he said. Stallworth, 59, recalls that "survival was kind of a group effort" as he was reared with 11 other children in Oviedo. He has tried several professions and settled into law enforcement.

Then there was Clennie Brundidge. He returned to his Florida home last Saturday as a member of the West Point football team which took on the University of Florida. "I've set my goals in my life and I've achieved them all," he said. Stallworth, 59, recalls that "survival was kind of a group effort" as he was reared with 11 other children in Oviedo. He has tried several professions and settled into law enforcement.

Cadet Brundidge, too, overcame hardship to become a student at West Point and a co-captain of the Army football team. "He leads on and off the field," observed one of his coaches. And now, only on Wednesday, Joe Dillard became a sergeant in the Sanford Police Department — the first black ever to be promoted to that rank.

"A lot of people were pulling for me," he said proudly. "The only reason he was promoted was because he was qualified," assured Police Chief Ben Butler. We salute and commend these three gentlemen who have made their marks and wish them continued success as they strive for even higher goals.

Deregulating Airlines

For years, the industries regulated by federal agencies have insisted publicly that controls were costly to the consumer and restrictive for business. It is the private industry's role to compete in an unregulated marketplace. The airline industry is the first to step out cautiously from under the regulatory umbrella.

And the action of Congress in approving a phaseout of the Civil Aeronautics Board came only after board members already had eased restrictions on competition. Recent CAB rulings have permitted drastic changes in routes and fare structures which have been a boon to airline passengers. Moreover, the resulting surge of patronage has pushed airline profits to dramatic proportions.

Under the legislation approved in the final moments before congressional adjournment, the CAB will cease to exist in 1980, unless further action is taken to give it new life. CAB jurisdiction over routes will expire in 1981. Fares will be removed from regulation at the end of 1981. In the meantime, the airlines will be permitted to effect cuts up to 50 percent.

The move to abolish the CAB came at the urging of President Carter and consumer groups. But airline acquiescence would have been hard to come by if the CAB had not provided a preview of the potential benefits through its hands-off policies. It is traditional in the United States to laud the free market for making our nation strong, but the lip service paid to the free enterprise system was not easily translated into practice.

The CAB — and now Congress — have shown the way."

"All systems are go" (In the words of Jack Horner) for the Fourth Annual Golden Age Olympics to be held in Sanford Nov. 6-11 and the committee is already enjoying bigger and better things for next year. The overall male and female winners this year will receive a mini-vacation courtesy of Circus World for them and their spouses. Jim Jernigan, Golden Age Olympics committee chairman, has announced they will be given three days and two nights at the Holiday Inn across from the tourist attraction and a free dinner and special luncheon at Circus World, plus unlimited admission. Other area attractions and businesses know a good thing when they see one. Members of the GAO committee will make a splash at the annual Senior Citizen Breakfast to be held Oct. 31 at Sea World. McDonald's, which will donate the medals for GAO Olympic winners, will be bringing their luxurious Big Mac bus during the week of the GAO and it will be available when needed to transport the second citizens. The driver will also be taking pictures of the various events to prepare a slide show to promote the Golden Age Olympics.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The Central Intelligence Agency is at it again — invoking "national security" in a belated effort to cover up its inept handling of a sensitive matter. The current case involves Arkady Shevchenko, a Soviet Union diplomat who until last spring was the United Nations' undersecretary general for political and security affairs. Shevchenko disappeared from the UN last April, then surfaced two weeks later to apply for asylum in this country. The request was granted. But in late October, an embarrassed Shevchenko reappeared, in the company of a young woman named Judy Chaves who claimed that after she met the Soviet defector through her "secret agency" he paid for her companionship at an initial rate of $900 a night and later at $6,000 a month.

In addition, she claimed, Shevchenko took her to the Virgin Islands on a vacation and bought her a $100,000 sports car. The total tab came to $35,000 to $60,000 she estimated, with the money provided to Shevchenko by the CIA. After the story was uncovered by James R. Polk, a reporter for NBC News and one of the CIA's best investigative journalists, the CIA hastily issued a "white paper" to deny the woman's story. "The implication is fairly made that the CIA is paying for a whore."

The CIA then quickly took the offensive, accusing NBC of having somehow breached security. "Parts of his (Shevchenko's) protection was his anonymity. Obviously it was known," said Heta. "He was under cover until all this happened," added the CIA official. "Now the Soviets have got him pinpointed and we'll just have to relocate him."

The Soviet defector did indeed occupy a Washington apartment under a fictitious name. But last May he opened a personal checking account at Washington's second largest bank under "Arkady Shevchenko." As recently as last month, Shevchenko was paying personal debts — including those owed to Miss Chaves — with checks bearing his own name.

The choice of location for Shevchenko's new home is equally curious because this city is rivaled only by New York in terms of the large number of Soviet diplomats, intelligence agents and other USSR officials allowed to freely roam the streets. Shevchenko was a frequent visitor to Washington nightclubs and restaurants, no apparent effort was made to disguise his personal appearance and before his retirement apartment was ready for occupancy he was housed in two of the city's best hotels.

Privately, CIA and FBI officials point accusing fingers at each other, claiming that the sloppy security arrangements were the responsibility of the other agency.

Law enforcement authorities have now moved into the fray. The FBI and local police are looking into allegations that Innis ordered the shooting or leading of former colleagues who displeased him in one way or another. New York State authorities are also probing charges that Innis diverted CORE funds for his personal use. In conversations with us, Innis vehemently denied all charges and hoped scores on his computer.

Meanwhile, we reported ordering Cunningham to suspend Innis from the staff of the CORE. The suspension was a non-fatal shooting of a former staffer who was a member of CORE. In the context of a bitter feud between Innis, CORE leader James Farmer, and others in the organization, it is possible that some of these charges are either exaggerated or imaginary. We have obtained strong corroboration of the charges that Innis ordered the shooting of an ex-CORE member. In fact, we have received a letter from the man who claimed to have pulled the trigger and testimony by another man who claimed to have witnessed the shooting.

Similar corroborative information was obtained by our colleague Gerry Cohen and Terry Capozzello of the Washington field office, and later reported in the Washington Post. Farmer, a former CORE leader, who was set upon by three CORE members, told us that he had been ordered to shoot Innis. "I was ordered to shoot Innis," he said. "I shot him in the back of the head. I shot him in the back of the head. I shot him in the back of the head."

Innig's defense attorney, John E. O'Sullivan, who represented Innis at the trial of Peay and the two other CORE members, Terry Shannon and William "Tank" Hill, said dramatic testimony support to the contention that Innis ordered the shooting. Peay and Hill were picked up by sheriff's deputies outside Cunningham's apartment, the night before the shooting. The apartment found in the investigation was a small rooming house which police sources said was used by CORE. And according to law enforcement sources, Peay and Hill told them they had come to town to "infect a beating on a brother who screwed up."

Two CORE officials obtained Peay's and Hill's releases, and one of the officials told police that the organization takes care of its own disciplinary matters. The next day, outside Cunningham's place of business, the three had been freed. The fact that the shooting was committed in broad daylight lends weight to the belief that Innis intended it as a warning to others who might be tempted to slip out of line.

Guidry For MVP? Here's A Vote In Affirmative

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ron Guidry isn't a pop! His basic personality is such that he doesn't make your ears tingle talking about himself. "If anything, he often downplays the remarkable year he had for the Yankees, a year in which he won 30 games and led only three during the regular season and then added two more wins in the playoffs with the Red Sox and Royals plus another in the World Series with the Dodgers. Without trying to be unduly modest about it, Guidry comes right out and tells you, yes, he was surprised at his overall record, no, not at the way he pitched, and that he could've easily lost 10 or 15 more games if the club hadn't been hitting on the occasion he pitched. You don't find too many pitchers talking that way."

Pensacola Open Today

PENSACOLA, (UPI) — The $125,000 Pensacola Open, which begins today, is the last chance for golfers to move up the PGA money list or to become one of the top 60 money-winners with 1979 qualifying exemptions. Andy Bean, currently No. 3 on the 1978 money list, will be trying to overtake No. 2, professional-golfer Dr. Gil Morgan, who is not playing for Pensacola.

Others who will have to scramble in the last official PGA money-winning event for 1978 are Englishman Peter Oosterhuis, who is No. 64 on the money list now, and Leonard Thayer, last year's Pensacola winner, who is No. 66. For the first time ever, the Pensacola Open will be played 15 miles outside Pensacola city limits at the 7,152-yard Pardiwe Bay Inn and Golf Club, a swank layout two miles east of Perdido Bay.

Besides Bean, other pros playing well this year who are entered in the 165-purse field include Hubert Green, Bill Kratzer, Jerry Pate, Tom Kite, John Mahoney, Mark Hayes and Lee Elder. The quarter-finals don't start until tomorrow but there are already a number of players who are looking for a winning shot to get into the money list.

ST. AUGUSTINE, (UPI) — The quarter-finals don't start until tomorrow but there are already a number of players who are looking for a winning shot to get into the money list. "We have exceptional talent," Clark said, "but I think they could play first round for any school." "You're missing in a 6-foot, 200-pound offensive-defensive end and only a Jerry. Terry Schultz has been playing football since he was seven years old. One of the best runners around (he's had several 200-yard-plus rushing games in his career). Robert Schmitt is a wide receiver."

Clark, both of whose parents are deaf, said coaching a deaf football team takes a lot of patience. He communicates with his players by sign language and often runs the same play in practice over and over. "Sometimes it is boring," he said. "Coaching them requires determination, repetition and lots more patience than I've let my buddies. We are amazed people they can identify with."

Clark calls plays with hand signals from the sidelines — "we have to be more careful with the deaf teams, they can't see the signals," he said. "You can't hear the referee's whistle. We've got to be more careful with the deaf teams, they can't see the signals."

Freak Of Nature? 1-5 Trinity Seeks Playoff Berth

Trinity Prep just might be pulling off one of the miracle plays of all time. The Saints are only 1-5, but are one game away from a berth in the state playoffs. "By a true freak of nature, Trinity and Orlando Luther are the only teams eligible for the A-5 berth in the post-season playoffs. A third team in district is ineligible, so it doesn't play Trinity and Luther."

Florida Air 28, Trinity Prep 14 — Class A football is a matter of organization, and the Saints have exactly two weeks to get their act together before that Nov. 11 crucial test in Slavia. Seminole 38, Lake Howell 7 — A homecoming crowd is tickled pink by the offensive-minded Seminoles, who also show a few defensive tricks. Lyman 15, DeLand 7 — The Greyhounds are back, posting their third straight win. Oviedo 21, Eustis 12 — That's no easy game for the Lions, but since Oviedo has turned its fortunes, a new day has arrived.

Gators' Boss Feted

NEW YORK (UPI) — In a runaway winner in a building of 20 UPI baseball correspondents as he outdistanced Chick Tanner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, Roger Craig of the San Diego Padres and Tom Laurs of the Los Angeles Dodgers, The Giants' skipper received 14 votes on a ballot for MVP (most valuable player) over Craig and three for Laurs. "I'm tickled pink to win it," said Alou. "I had an inkling I'd win it. I thought Chick Tanner had a good chance because he is especially good with the Pirates."

Seminole JVs Home

Homecoming week at Seminole High School usually produces its share of happy moments, but the one junior rarely coach Bobby Lundquist is looking forward to is beating Lake Hraye in the 6:30 p.m. jayvee tussle that sets the tone for the varsity homecoming game against Lake Howell.

Florida Hunters In Arms Over George Hunt Limit

TALAHASSEE, (UPI) — LA GEORGIA lawmakers are willing to think about changing a controversial hunting law that bars Florida sportsmen up in arms, but they aren't willing to make any commitments. Eight members of the Georgia House subcommittee holding public hearings took the unique step of coming to the Florida capital Tuesday to hear what North Florida hunters had to say about the law which limits out-of-state deer culls in 1979.

'Tacky' Combinations May Result From Color Blindness. By CHARLES HIX. NEW YORK—Some men are applauded for the sense of daring they exhibit in their clothing choices. Others get a thumbs-down reception. Daring in dress, like beauty, is in the eye of the beholder. In a literal sense, Gitter still can't 'see' the point, since he has what he describes as a "very slight case of color blindness"—in his case, an inability to distinguish between gray and green unless he's in direct sunlight.

LINDA MORGAN WELCOMES SON, MIKE, HOME

As Crash Probe Continues Downed Pilot Home

By TOM GIORDANO
Herald Staff Writer

Michael Morgan, the 27-year-old Sanford pilot whose aircraft crashed into a house near Mayfair Country Club golf course Oct. 19 after the plane's engines apparently malfunctioned was released from Seminole Memorial Hospital today.

"Yes, he just arrived home," said his mother, Linda Morgan, of 1300 Forest Drive. Mike had left the hospital about 10 a.m. Morgan was alone in the plane when it crashed.

Meanwhile, an investigation into the cause of the crash continued today, according to an operations inspector with the St. Petersburg office of the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

The young man reportedly suffered a broken collarbone, broken ankle and head and face cuts when his Cessna 337 crashed into the roof of a home at 108 Par Place in unincorporated Seminole County.

One occupant at home, Mrs. Chester Krol, escaped injury. Her husband was not at home when the accident occurred.

"What we have so far," noted Thomas Smith, the FAA inspector assigned to the case, "is what the pilot has been able to tell us to date. I interviewed quid. Morgan said he pressed an electric fuel pump booster and that got the engine working again, but then his rear engine began to quit and he had to use the booster again.

"When he did," Smith continued, "that engine began to work again, too, but right after that the front engine quit altogether; then the rear one went."

Morgan, according to Smith, first attempted to fly the aircraft to the airport at Sanford, but when the engine problems worsened, decided to attempt a landing on the golf course at the Mayfair Country Club.

However, the plane glided over some trees, shearing the tops of a couple of them, then crashed into the rooftop.

Morgan remained unconcious about an hour before being rescued in the mid-morning crash, he said. Earlier reports noted eyewitnesses said they spoke to Morgan shortly after the crash. But Morgan said he recalled nothing.

Morgan declined today to comment on the crash, saying "We'll try to fire those engines."

Morgan to say nothing about the incident, but I expect by next week we'll be able to issue a statement," McIntosh said, this morning.

"I believe there are eight

Begin, Sadat: Peace Prize

OSLO, Norway (UPI)—Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin won the 1978 Nobel Peace Prize jointly today.

The prize, worth $175,000, was announced by the Norwegian Nobel Committee, and was awarded to the two statesmen for their historic efforts to achieve a Middle East peace.

Sadat, hailed as a hero at home and a master of "steep diplomacy" abroad, has brought the Middle East closer to peace than ever before.

His precedent-shattering trip to Jerusalem last Nov. 19 launched a peace drive that is reported to be crowned soon by a peace treaty ending 30 years of war between Egypt and Israel.

Holman: Take My Resignation Back, Please

Ron Holman, defeated in his bid for the Seminole County Commission by more than 800 votes in the Sept. 12 Republican primary, has asked the commission to permit him to withdraw an earlier resignation from the county's planning and zoning board.

The Winter Park dentist is the principal in a lawsuit requesting the circuit court to throw out the results of that election and to call a new primary because of voting machine failures.

A Seminole County grand jury recently found that improper and inadequate voting machine maintenance were to blame for their failure to operate.

Special County Attorney Mack N. Cleveland Jr. and Terry MacMahon, attorney for the victorious candidate in the primary, Altamonte Springs City Commissioner Sandra Glenn, have filed motions in Circuit Judge Clarence Johnson's court to dismiss the suit.

Holman on July 10 submitted a letter to the county commission requesting from the planning and zoning commission effective Nov. 14, in a letter dated Oct. 17 to the commission, Holman said. "As you have, results of the illegal election, indicate that I am not presently an active candidate for the county commission, district 4 seat."

"Until such a time as I become an active candidate or member of the board, I want to withdraw the required predated planning and zoning resignation letter."

"Therefore, I wish to remains a member of the Seminole County Planning and Zoning Commission until my appointment expires in 1980. At that time I will inform the board of my future intentions," Holman said.

MacMahon said today Holman's suit contesting the election remains active and that Judge Johnson has not, as yet, rendered any decision on either Holman's resignation or on the motions to dismiss.

During Visit To Sanford Legislative Chiefs Chide Proposed Revision Format

By DONNA ESTES

Early in the 1979 session of the Florida Legislature, the question of "whether the legislature really likes to have a constitutional revision commission play around with our state constitution will be considered," State Rep. Ralph Haben of Palmetto predicts.

Accompanying Speaker-designate Hyatt Brown around the state promoting the election of Democrats to the lower House of the legislature, Haben Thursday announced his plans to be a candidate for the speaker's office directly after Brown's term or soon thereafter.

Haben said with a full ballot in the Nov. 7 election the proposed constitutional amendments are not being submitted fairly to the people.

Brown said the voters are apt to vote against all the amendments. He said most of the amendments on the ballot hold out a "carrot" to the voters, yet include in each as many bad things as good, citing as an example the amendment that would increase the homestead exemption.

Brown said Democratic gubernatorial candidate, Sen. Bob Graham, has said when he is elected he will create a tax committee.

"If it is the consensus that a change should be made concerning homestead that could be placed on the ballot as early as the presidential preferential primary in March, 1980," said Brown, critical of the current amendment.

Seminole's Rep. Robert Hattaway, meanwhile, gave his support for Revision 3 which calls for single-member legislative districts, saying Seminole when reappointed in 1981 could possibly have two legislators and one state senator, all residing in and the cost of attending college soared, the government reported today that inflation had risen to 9.5 percent on an annual rate — was announced three days after President Carter unveiled his new anti-inflation campaign he hopes will lower the annual rate of inflation to between 6 and 6.5 percent in 1979.

Food and beverage prices, the biggest contributor to consumer inflation earlier in the year, rose 0.5 percent.

Public Gets OK To Talk, Vote On Tuscalwilla Deannex

The question of whether the 2,500-acre Tuscalwilla Planned Unit Development (PUD) should be deannexed from the city of Winter Springs will remain on the ballot in the city's Nov. 7 city election and a planned public hearing on the issue will take place at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Circuit Judge Dominick Salfi in a court hearing Thursday afternoon refused to stop either the hearing or the election after John McDonough, attorney for the Winter Springs Development Corp., could not show evidence that the firm would be irreparably injured by permitting the events to take place.

City Attorney Thomas Lang told the judge, the developer's court action was premature.

"If the election passes, they will have something to appeal," said Lang, adding if the question is to be voted upon only by residents of Tuscalwilla, the contention in the lawsuit will be moot.

When McDonough told Judge Salfi the developers have been damaged merely by the city violating the state law on deannexation, Salfi told him to produce case law and a hearing would be readily called before the election — "perhaps after 1 p.m. one day."

"There is nothing that could be done by the court now that could not be done after the election," said Lang. Added that would happen if the court issued an injunction to stop the Tuesday hearing, Lang said the council could hold the hearing after the election.

McDonough said he could produce case law showing damages by the city violating the law. Salfi replied that some case law appears to substantiate that contention, but looking into the cases further shows that they do not.

Salfi said McDonough was placing the city on notice it hasn't touched all the bases and the city was exposing itself to damages. McDonough cited as the violation of the law that the city in publishing notice of the public hearing said the city conducted a feasibility study — which it had not — and McDonough added he has a deposition from City Planner Dick Nonamaky to prove that point.

Salfi told McDonough he had shown an apparent case.

"The city has to take final action before it can be appealed. It has not done any act to be enjoined from. I'm not sure the court has jurisdiction at that time. If the election goes through, they will have something to appeal," Lang said.

"The city cannot tell the voters about feasibility. I think they are in error with the law," said McDonough.

Early in the discussion of deannexation, after voters in Tuscalwilla requested that the issue be placed on the ballot, Lang advised the city that the law calls for a feasibility study first.

Failure to have the feasibility study done as a pre-requisite to the hearing and election could subject the city to an injunction from the courts, he said. — DONNA ESTES
