Shooting reported in Midway

A woman reportedly shot in the head last night near her Midway home, was released from Orlando Regional Medical Center this morning. Sheriff's deputies meanwhile, continue to search for the gunman.

According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, deputies are following a number of leads in their attempt to locate Michael Williams, 25, believed to have shot Shalanda King, 19, of Midway Avenue, and fled with their 1½ year old daughter.

Williams reportedly lived on Broadway Avenue, a short distance from where the shooting occurred.

McDonough reported that Williams had apparently been in a dispute with King, and apparently shot her with some type of small caliber handgun, at approximately 7:30 p.m.

He said Williams then fled in a 1991 Nissan, taking his 1½ year old daughter from King.

"We believe he's a truck driver, working for a firm in Apopka," McDonough said. "We're also checking several other leads as to his whereabouts."

McDonough commented that because the young girl is Williams' daughter, deputies do not believe the child is in any immediate danger.

Although King was transported to ORMC for treatment of the gunshot wound, McDonough said she had been released this morning.

Robbery suspect nabbed

SANFORD — One of two men sought in the armed robbery of a Sanford service station Thursday night has been located. Police continue to look for the second man.

Alonzo Lorenzo Campbell, 19, of Geneva Gardens, Sanford, was placed under arrest yesterday afternoon in connection with a hold-up at the Highway Oil station at 2425 S. French Ave.

In the incident, two clerks were robbed of the store's money as well as personal items. Gunshots were also reportedly fired inside and outside the store.

Shots were also said to have been fired at a pickup truck when the driver attempted to pursue the two robbers as they fled from the store.

Campbell has been charged with one count of armed robbery, two counts of using a firearm in the commission of a felony, and three counts each of aggravated assault with a firearm and attempted murder.

"We are still looking for the other man who was involved in this case," said Police Commander Dennis Whitmire this morning.

No one was apparently injured in the shootings, and Whitmire did not immediately comment on any of the money which was reportedly stolen.

Funding 'uphill fight'

Federal $$ critical to I-4 interchange

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Congressman John Mica anticipates a battle for federal funding for the critical interchange of the Central Florida GreenWay at Interstate 4.

"It will be an uphill fight," said Mica, R-Fern Park. "There's a limited amount of highway money available."

Mica testified before the House Surface Transportation Subcommittee last week in support of the $85 million project to tie the GreenWay to I-4 at its northernmost point. The federal funding is seen as critical to receiving state approval for the completion of the six-mile "missing link" of the 62-mile tollroad.

Construction is slated to begin by late 1997 and be completed in about two years, said Gerald Hinton, executive director of the Seminole County Expressway Authority.

Mica said Florida transportation Secretary Ben Watts testified in support of the interchange and a Jacksonville bridge. Watts testimony was important support for the project, said Mica. It was the first time a Florida transportation secretary had testified for state projects.

If the interchange qualifies as a federal project, Mica said the next battle will be for the funding. Congressman Corrine Brown, D-Jacksonville, a member of the House Transportation Committee, has pledged her support for the interchange, said Mica. Sen. Connie

Rampage is declared closed forum

Controversy continues at Lake Mary High

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary High School student newspaper The Rampage is a closed forum publication principal Raymond Gaines informed the adviser and student editors Friday, and as such, he reserves the right to review controversial stories which might have a negative impact on the learning environment at the school.

Gaines said after researching the issue, he could not find any indication that any past principal had declared the newspaper an open forum format, although newspaper adviser Dianne Burd said the newspaper has operated as an open forum now, as it had for many years. As an open forum newspaper, the student staff is in charge of all aspects of the paper.

When latest edition of The Rampage was distributed Friday, stating it was an open forum, Gaines called Burd and student editors Elaine Heintzman and Carrie Johannesmeyer to task. Gaines said he was not angry over the declaration, but simply wanted the students and adviser to know the newspaper is a closed forum. Burd missed an entire class period during her meeting with Gaines and the student editors were called to the office during a timed writing exercise in their advance placement English class.

Williams has proposed to operate from a trailer, 56 feet by 12 feet in size. He said it has been fully conditioned and constructed according to State

Man reportedly shoots date's mother

FREEPORT — A construction worker who reportedly began sleeping with a rifle nearby after someone threatened his life has been charged with murder in the fatal shooting of his date's mother.

Linda Marie Satterfield, 44, a mother of six, was shot between the eyes early Saturday on the front porch of Raymond H. Ritenour's house. The Freeport woman had gone there to get some cigarettes from her daughter, Erika, 21, a family friend said.

Satterfield family friend Johnny Howell said Ritenour started keeping a rifle near his bed last week after someone threatened his life.

"He had been talking about that someone was going to jump him," Howell said. "When he opened the door, he probably didn't even look to see who it was."

Ritenour, 32, remained in the Walton County Jail early this morning without bond on an open count of murder.

Moore in the green

MIAMI — Dudley Moore's performance of "Rhapsody in Blue" brought in a lot of green.

Though best known for his roles in such films as "Arthur" and "10," Moore is an accomplished pianist and holds degrees in music and composition from Oxford University.

His black-tie benefit concert Saturday raised nearly $300,000 for the New World Symphony. About 700 people attended, paying up to $1,000 a ticket.

In addition to the Gershwin composition, Moore also performed two movements of Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 21 in C, mugging for the crowd during difficult solo passages.

Rescue plane crashes

MIAMI — A Brothers to the Rescue plane crashed while trying to take off after delivering food and water to Cuban rafters stranded on a deserted island between Cuba, the Bahamas and Florida.

The group's co-founder, Jose Basulto, 53, and co-pilot Arnaldo Iglesias, 55, received minor injuries in the Saturday evening crash on Cay Sal.

Basulto said they landed on the flat, rocky key to drop off emergency supplies and check on the condition of the refugees, who are awaiting pickup by Bahamian authorities.

Upon takeoff, he said, the Cessna Skymaster failed to gain enough speed to counter gusty crosswinds that carried them into some shrubs bordering the crude runway.

Testimony continues in Rolling sentence

GAINESVILLE — The defense is expected to begin presenting testimony about mental illness and childhood abuse to argue against the death penalty for admitted serial killer Danny Harold Rolling.

The prosecution, which says Rolling should die in Florida's electric chair, should wrap up the remainder of its case early today.

"We are going to put on everything we can to try to persuade the jury to spare the man's life," Public Defender Rick Parker said Friday. "He wants to live but expects to die."

Rolling, a 39-year-old Louisiana drifter and career criminal, pleaded guilty Feb. 15 to five murders, three rapes and three armed burglaries in the August 1990 slayings at off-campus student apartments.

The jury must recommend either a death sentence or life in prison to Circuit Judge Stan R. Morris, who makes the final decision.

State Attorney Rod Smith expects today to call Bobby Lewis, Rolling's fellow inmate at Florida State Prison, and a tool expert to the witness stand.

Parker said Rolling's cousin, Chuck Strozier, plans to testify today when the defense begins.

Health, school prayer discussed

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — With the state budget and juvenile crime out of the limelight at least temporarily, Florida lawmakers will focus this week on health care and school prayer.

The House will work on health care reforms sought by Gov. Lawton Chiles, who has threatened to keep legislators in session past their April 8 completion date or call a special session if they did not pass health care legislation.

"I think a lot of the attention now is going to shift to issues like health care," House Speaker Bo Johnson, D-Milton, said. "It's one of the issues still at committee level where a lot of product has to be brought together."

Health care also is expected to be debated in the Senate but votes are not expected until next week.

Among his proposals, the governor wants to expand eligibility for the state's 11 Community Health Purchasing Alliances, created as part of earlier reforms to provide affordable insurance to small businesses and to push insurers to offer lower rates.

In the Senate, school prayer, one of the most emotional issues of the session, is expected to get a hearing.

A bill (SB 1432) to permit prayers before school assemblies, sports events and commencement ceremonies is scheduled to be heard Tuesday in the Senate Education Committee. The measure is identical to one approved earlier this month by the House Education Committee.

The legislation permits a nonsectarian voluntary prayer if it is led by students and the prayer is approved by a majority of the students.

School prayer leads a list of highly charged issues that are leading lawmakers into the murky arena of morals, values and religion.

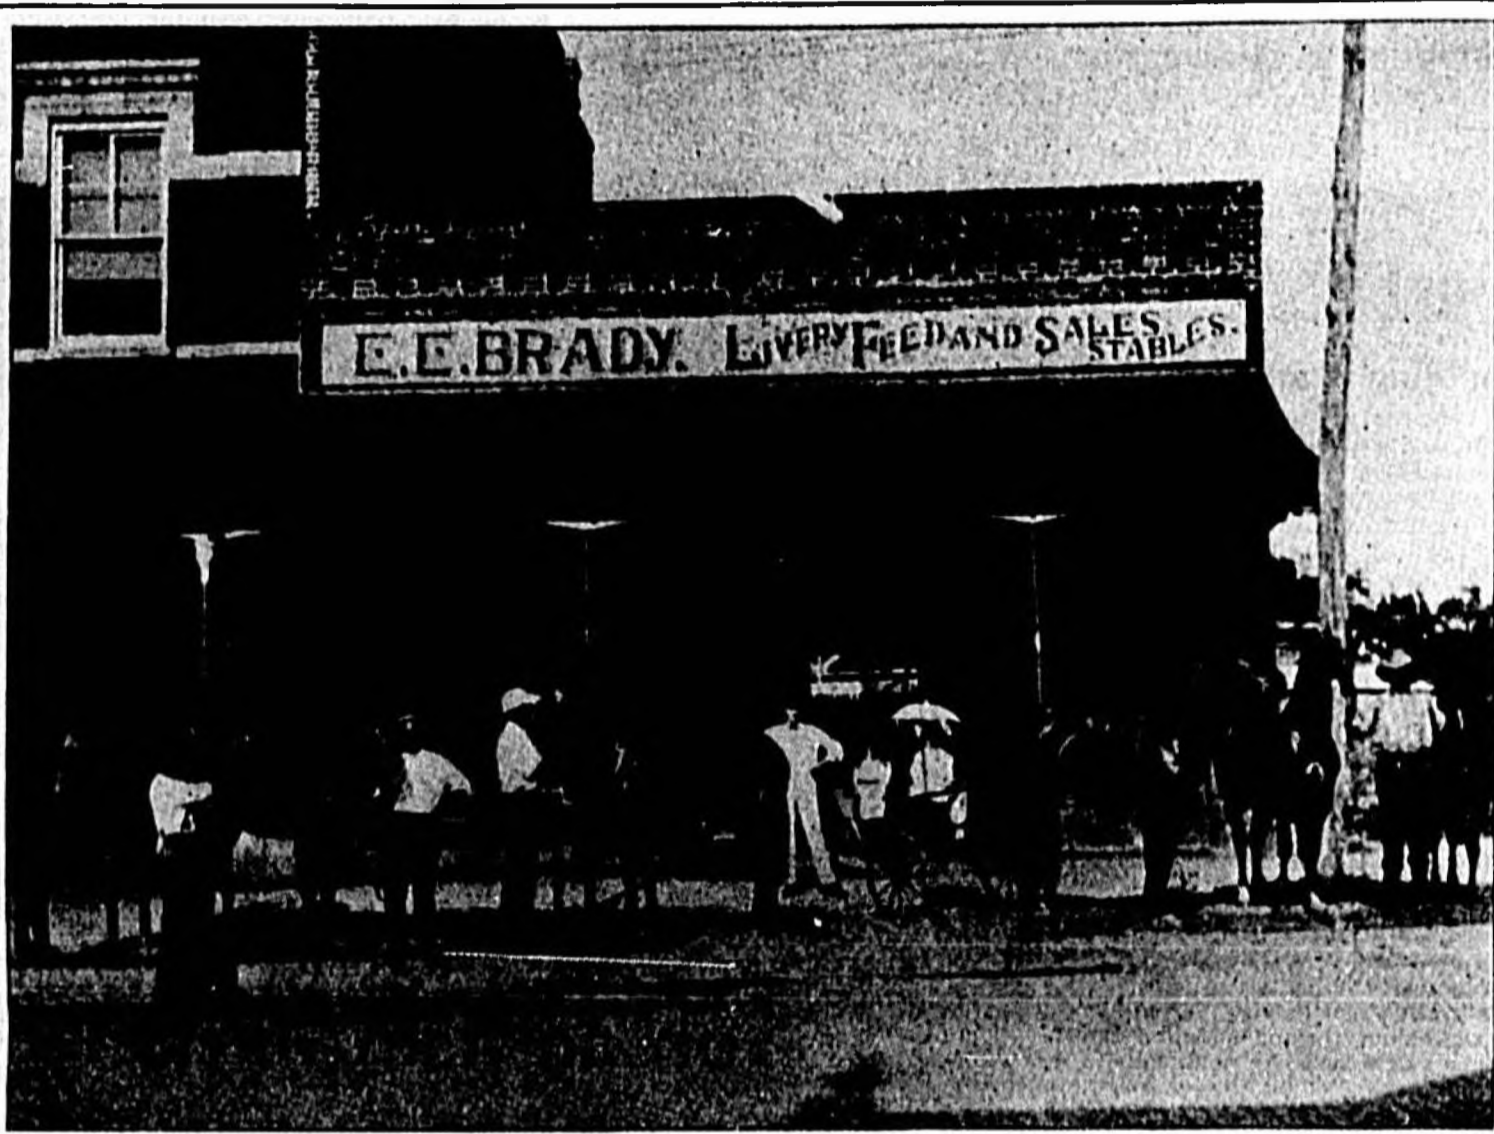

Johnson said he expects lawmakers will hear from their constituents.

"Those are headline-type items," he said. "That's when people start caring enough to start calling their legislators."

House and Senate negotiators will start work this week in joint committees to work out final details of a $38 billion state budget.

The biggest differences is how to pay for more than 14,000 new prison beds. The House wants to use $300 million in bonds while the Senate wants to pay cash.

The Senate also has not passed all of its juvenile justice reforms yet, but a joint committee will begin informal negotiations this week to work out differences between the House and Senate bills.

Way Back When

Standing at the extreme right in this photo is E.E. Brady who had opened a livery, food and sales barn and stable on Palmelto Avenue in downtown Sanford next to First Street. Later the operation was moved to a site which would now be in the middle of East First Street and Sanford Avenue. Write-ups in local publications indicated Brady had some of the handsomest horses ever seen in these parts with fine drivers and equipages and at the most reasonable rates. He also had mules and teams for all kinds of work. Brady not only served Sanford folks with his livery stable but he also did some farming. He served the county at one time as sheriff and also as a member of the Florida Legislature's House of Representatives. As a farmer Brady was considered among the best and also a good manager. He grew tall corn and high quality hay with practically no cultivation after the regular harvest time of winter crops was over. In his later years Brady was always distinguishable around Sanford since he wore white suits and white Panama hats with black shoes, belts and string ties. Brady adopted this attire long before Kentucky Fried Chicken's Colonel Sanders ever thought about the "finger licking good" business.

Casino petitions spark multimillion-dollar opposition

By BILL BEROSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — While two groups try to write casinos into Florida's Constitution, a third says the state's sparkling beaches are better off without Las Vegas-style glitter.

"We've spent a lot of money creating a family tourism image in this state, and we don't need to overlay Las Vegas on it," said Sen. John Grant.

The Tampa Republican said he's forming a political action committee this week to wage a multimillion-dollar fight against one casino gambling drive that's collected signatures for about a week and one that starts this week.

Meanwhile, the first petition drive, backed by pari-mutuel gambling operations, announced a steering committee of supporters, including some cruise lines and others in the tourist industry.

The competing drive, launched by a group of hotel owners, announced the endorsement of the Florida Hotel and Motel Association, representing 780 lodgings.

The first group, Proposition for Limited Casinos, proposes casino gambling at Florida's 30 dog and horse tracks and jail alai frontons, a free-standing casino in Dade County and up to seven more casinos to be authorized by the Legislature.

Its chairman, Pat Roberts, was an opposition leader when Florida voters last considered legalizing casinos in 1986 and rejected them by a two-to-one margin.

He said they're inevitable now because of fears that Florida's $31 billion-a-year tourism industry will be hurt by floating gambling halls on the Mississippi River, casinos in the Gulf Coast states of Louisiana and Mississippi and efforts to open casinos on Indian reservations.

The victim told police that when she saw that it was not her son, she asked Doe if he needed assistance. He asked for a ride home. She told police she had seen him before, but did not know him.

She told police that he got into her car and started shouting directions to her and said that he accused her of "fishing for young men" and that he told her that her "fishing days were over and (you're) now dead," the police report stated.

Rosewood massacre

Leader says state delaying $7 million claims bill

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — The victims of racial violence that destroyed the black community of Rosewood in 1923 may run out of time to get lawmakers to pass $7 million in compensation this session.

The leader of a victims group blamed delays with the claims bill on the state's lawyer, who has sharply questioned how the violence unfolded that left at least eight people dead and wiped out the settlement.

Arnett Doctor, head of the Rosewood Family Advisory Committee, accused Jim Peters, an assistant attorney general representing the state, of trying to bottle up the claims bill.

"If he can postpone it long enough or get enough extensions, then time will run out and, for all intents and purposes, the claims bill will die," said Doctor, son of one of the survivors.

Peters denied that part of his strategy was to tie up the claims bill in hearings, which were supposed to conclude March 4 but now are expected to end Friday. After the hearings, claims officers will make recommendations to lawmakers about the bill.

"I don't think it's fair to anyone to have blames dead and drove every black resident from the community.

Lawyers for the victims said the state should be liable because government officials failed to protect their lives and property.

One witness, 89-year-old Ernest Parham, who was 18 at the time, said Friday that deputy sheriff Clarence Williams was resting about a quarter-mile away from a group of 25 whites who were brutally interrogating a black man who they believed aided the assailant.

Parham said he witnessed the murder of the black man, Sam Carter, but no arrest was ever made.

Several days later, Parham said, the same deputy was at a hotel in Sumner and said, "All hell's breaking loose in Rosewood." But the deputy apparently did little to stop the violence.

Peters said the victims are relying too heavily on hearsay and old newspaper articles that include contradictory information.

To counter such testimony, Peters has taken statements from relatives of whites who were at Rosewood but have since died.

If he (state assistant attorney general) can postpone it long enough or get enough extensions, then time will run out and, for all intents and purposes, the claims bill will die.

this cloud hanging over the process, the state, the Legislature, or the witnesses any longer. Delay dis-serves everyone," said Peters.

"On the other hand, I don't want to expedite it and rush to judgment with an inadequate, insufficient record," he added. "That's what we have right here."

The violence in the black settlement near Cedar Key on Florida's Gulf coast started New Year's Day 1923 after a white woman, Fannie Taylor, who lived in the nearby community of Sumner, said she was assaulted by a black man.

The search for the alleged assailant, who was never arrested, turned into a violent spree that left at least six blacks and two GAINESVILLE — Alachua County officials have sought the help of law enforcement agencies across Florida to find jail escapee Richard Meisner.

About 200 officers were to begin searching for the murder suspect today.

The force, assembled by the Alachua County sheriff's officials, adds to the three dozen officers currently searching for Meisner since his March 2 escape from the Alachua County Jail, where he was awaiting trial.

The FBI and officers from as far away as Miami will join the effort.

"We need to say to the citizens that he is either there or not there," said Alachua sheriff's Lt. Emery Galney. "We feel that he could be slipping behind us. Hopefully, this could keep him from slipping by."

Interviews with inmates who knew of Meisner's escape plans and evidence found at several campsites — including a jail blanket — indicate he is still hidden in woods north of Gainesville, Galney said.

Meisner, 27, is charged with first-degree murder in the September stabbing death of University of Florida graduate student Gina Marie Langevin, and with the attempted murder of her roommate, Jena Hull.

345,000 illegal aliens cost Florida $884 million a year

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — State and local governments in Florida spent $884 million last year on public services for an estimated 345,000 illegal aliens, and Florida plans to sue for federal reimbursement.

Gov. Lawton Chiles will use the report to support a planned lawsuit against the U.S. government for the costs of medical care, education, prisons and other services used by illegal and undocumented immigrants and refugees.

"For millions of people seeking a better life, their arrival on American soil has been a dream come true," Chiles said in a statement Sunday. "However, federal immigration policy has created a nightmare for state and local governments in Florida forced to shoulder enormous burdens caused by that policy."

Chiles will release the report during a news conference today in Miami, one of the leading destinations for immigrants from Cuba, Haiti, and other Latin American and Caribbean nations.

The report, titled The Unfair Burden: Immigration's Impact on Florida, is the first attempt by state officials to put a price on the services used by legal and illegal aliens. The report acknowledges that precise estimates were difficult since many programs don't track illegal immigrants.

Florida paid an estimated $2.5 billion in 1993 to provide services to all immigrants, the report said.

The state receives about 50,000 legal immigrants a year and, with almost 1 million foreign-born non-citizens, has the third largest immigrant population behind California and New York.

Local governments paid an estimated $1.8 billion while state government picked up the balance, estimated at $751 million, the report said.

The costs includes Medicaid for the poor, prisons for criminals, education for the children of immigrants and welfare payments to low-income families.

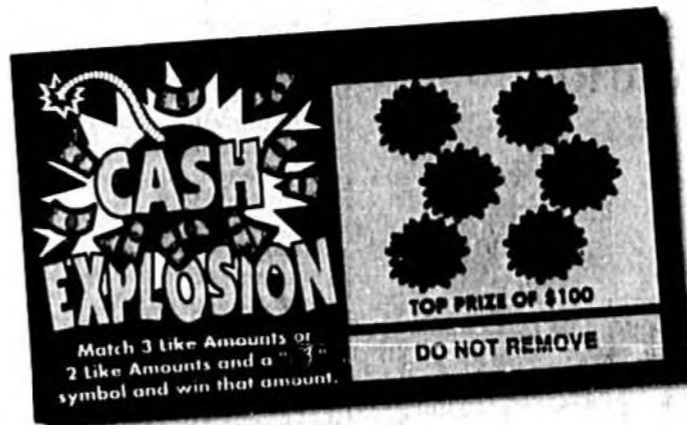

Chiles, however, is more concerned with the cost for the state's illegal and undocumented aliens.

The report estimated it at $884 million last year, including $622 million for local governments and $262 million for the state.

"The actual cost of undocumented immigration is likely to be even higher, but it is very difficult to calculate," according to the report.

The suit is expected to be filed in two to three weeks in federal court in Miami, Ron Sachs, the governor's spokesman, said.

Where should state spend this money?

Two adjacent articles from Tallahassee were on page 2-A of Friday's Sanford Herald. In combination, they show a fallacy in our state government's ideas of spending our tax dollars.

One has a headline, "Lawmakers push to limit state government spending." The other says, "State plans to spend $2 million to attract visitors."

We must agree that a limit on state spending is badly needed. More money must be spent on the necessities, and less on frivolities.

We fail to see the need to get involved in a promotion to attract visitors. Do we really need to advertise our beaches, Disney, Cape Kennedy, or the Daytona International Speedway? Are we to believe people who may have enough money to travel are unaware of these attractions?

Spending $2 million to tell people the benefits of visiting Florida is a waste of money and effort. We would do much better to use that money in fighting crime and obtaining more prison space.

When we reach the point where we can tell prospective visitors they can be safe while touring our state, it will be time to brag. Ignoring it however, will not make it go away. People will hear about muggings, car jackings, shootings, and robberies through media in their own state.

Lawmakers have already agreed to release the money, which has been in a trust fund collected at a rate of $2 per day on a surcharge for rental cars.

The Associated Press article says, "Officials said the effort is needed to fight the state's crime-plagued image and compete with other states that are advertising heavily for travelers from the northeast and midwest."

Are we going to lie and say, "Visit Florida attractions where you will be safe?" Or are we going to ignore crime as if it is not happening?

We suggest that by using money from this unnecessary promotional campaign, and adding it to money from other unnecessary projects, we can do much toward helping reduce crime. It can be done without having to increase taxes.

When figures show that Florida has lowered its crime rate, when we reach the point where tourist attacks have been eliminated, that's the time to promote our tourist attractions.

Heavy use of scent

I hope I'll at least see this in your paper. In Dec. 1993 I lost a dear friend. She was at the Civic Center at a civic affair.

A lady came in late and sat beside her reeking with her scents and my friend died.

I'm writing for the millions of us that scents (perfume and powder) are more deadly than cigarettes. My friend didn't smoke (she had asthma).

I don't believe the people who use the scents with such heavy hands are mean, it's just that no one has brought it to their attention.

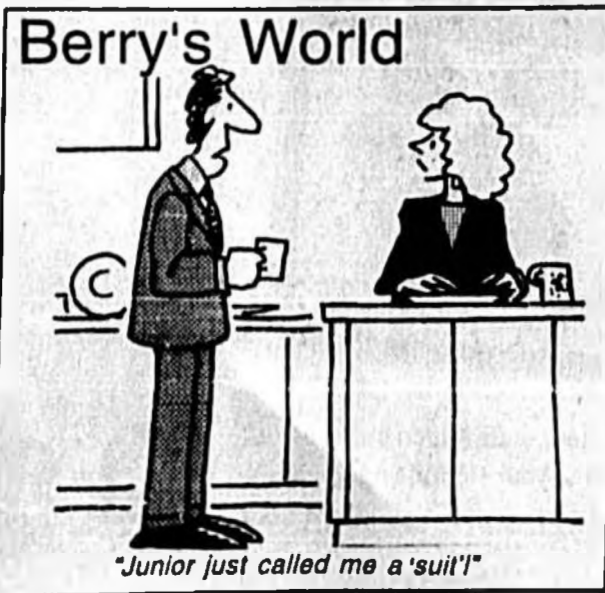

I can't count the number of times I've had to leave churches, meetings, stores, cafes and even elevators because someone had splashed, bathed or poured perfume or powder on.

Please print this. It may save someone's life. The woman that came in late and sat beside my friend wasn't there two minutes before my friend was choking to death.

For the millions of us that can't leave home without an inhalation aerosol, thank you.

And thanks to the people that will use the stuff lightly after reading this.

Condemn outrageous books?

Don Edwards, D-Calif., is retiring at the end of this term, and the Bill of Rights will lose its most consistent protector in Washington. Sometimes alone, or with others who are not intimidated by popular fears, Edwards has tried to defend chronically vulnerable individual liberties from attack by his colleagues and from the executive branch.

Sometimes he succeeds, but not on Feb. 23. Up for debate was a resolution that the House condemn the speech given by Khalid Abdul Muhammad at New Jersey's Kean College on Nov. 29 as "outrageous hate-mongering of the most vicious and vile kind."

For 361 members of the House, the resolution was not in the least troublesome. Nor had it been for the Senate which, on Feb. 2, acclaimed a similar condemnation of the increasingly renowned Muhammad by a 97-0 vote.

A parade of House members testified to their abhorrence of the multiple bigotries in Muhammad's three-hour lecture. Although anti-Semitism was at its poisonous core, the messenger from the Nation of Islam also trumpeted his contempt for gays and lesbians, Catholics and all otherwise unenumerated whites. Who could possibly vote against so satisfying a resolution? The day before the floor debate, Edwards sent a letter to his colleagues asking them to think beyond the righteous moment to the precedent that would be set by a formal congressional vote in favor of condemning a speech.

"Any member," he said, "has an absolute right (in or out of the House) to condemn the Kean College speech or any other specific expression of bigotry and racism... however, we would cross a constitutional line were we to vote of official congressional disapproval of this specific speech."

"The resolution concerning the Kean College speech makes the Congress into an official ratings board, scanning the landscape for speeches to be labeled 'Condemned by Congress.' If we officially condemn this one speech, how can we not condemn others?"

Keep in mind, he emphasized, "The resolution is an official act of the government." Liberals in the House who object to attempted government censorship of the arts were not moved by Edwards' point that "we cannot use the power of the government to condemn speech, however offensive." Even, for instance, John Lewis, D-Ga., spoke and voted for the resolution. "We have a moral obligation," Lewis said, "to speak out against bigotry."

The First Amendment, however, does not speak of a moral obligation to justify an official congressional censorship board.

"Will we condemn books and magazines next?" Edwards asked. "Offensive movies? The racist or sexist comments of one another?"

A member of the House influenced by Edwards' focus on the constitutional ramifications of the resolution was Bob Filner, D-Calif. "As a Jew and civil rights activist, I was sickened at the remarks of Khalid Abdul Muhammad... (but) as a member of Congress, I am sworn to protect the Constitution."

The Bill of Rights will lose its most consistent protector in Washington.

North not the stuff for Senate

WASHINGTON — Republican senatorial candidate Oliver North has a way of slanting details of his life to fit a flamboyant personality that seems to care little for the facts.

Calling Ollie North a liar is nothing new. We've done it before, and so have many others. But as he pursues his candidacy to one of the world's most exclusive clubs, it's worthwhile reminding folks of what this man has been. It provides a likely hint of what he might become if elected to the Senate.

To explain his various actions in the Iran-Contra affair, North has found a convenient scapegoat for some of his worst sins: William Casey, the late director of the Central Intelligence Agency. What Casey might claim in reply has gone to his grave.

Casey family confidants believe that much of what North has said about Casey was invented out of whole cloth. North was certainly Casey's protegee, but in the years since Casey's death, North has amplified that relationship far out of proportion, some family members believe.

For example, North implies in his autobiography that his frequent meetings with Casey included visits at Casey's home. But Casey's widow, Sophia, says she never saw North until the Iran-Contra affair became public, and it was unlikely he dropped by the house when she wasn't there.

It's become a North trademark to exaggerate his access to top Reagan administration officials when the record shows otherwise. North has claimed to have had frequent private contact with Reagan himself. But White House records don't mention a single private meeting between North and Reagan, and far fewer group encounters than North boasts about. North has said that he used to brief Reagan once or twice a week.

North also claims that Casey knew about the diversion of profits from the Iranian arms sales to the Nicaraguan Contras. North has reported Casey "loved" the idea and approved of it fully. There's just one problem with North's claim: He never made it when Casey was alive. As a Reader's Digest article noted last June: "North failed to link (Casey) to the diversion on the most important occasion when he might have done so: at a meeting on Nov. 23, 1986, when Attorney General Edwin Meese demanded the facts about Iran-Contra on behalf of the president. Meese asked North who else in the government knew about the diversion.... According to notes taken at the meeting, North did not mention Casey — and doing so 'would have been to his advantage,' Meese says."

We have gathered additional information that Casey might not have known about the diversion — even though he was a fully apprised participant of the Iranian side of the Iran-Contra affair.

Casey's family remembers the morning of Nov. 25, 1986 as if it were yesterday. Just hours before Meese announced the scandal to the world, he rushed to a private, hastily arranged 6 a.m. meeting at the Casey home.

Casey's son-in-law, Owen Smith, was there. He went to the kitchen to make coffee while Casey and Meese met. "When Bill (Casey) came out," Smith told a confidant, "he turned to me and said things were 'going to hit the fan on this one.' He told me, 'Money went from Iran to the Contras! I'd known Bill Casey for a long, long time. He looked just shocked.'"

The Casey family also disputes North's version of Casey's wake. North says Sophia Casey asked him to come to her husband's wake. But Casey's daughter, Bernadette, says North called and asked if he could come, and that she agreed.

Calling Ollie North a liar is nothing new.

HODDING CARTER

Russian spy case hardly unique

There is a terrible, undoubtedly malicious, rumor going around. It suggests that the Russians, despite billions of dollars of American aid in recent years, have been spying on us. In fact, it goes so far as to hint that we are also spying on the Russians. If this is true, the end of the end of the Cold War is at hand, and it's time to double the defense budget.

That isn't all. Impossible as it may be to believe, some people have had the effrontery to insinuate that Israel, whose very existence depends on massive American aid, routinely spies on the United States. The name Jonathan Pollard surfaced in their discussions and we are asked to accept that he is serving a long sentence for handing over important U.S. defense information to the Israelis.

There are rogue historians, political scientists, regional specialists and other malcontents who go much further. They contend that innumerable nations whose safety, and perhaps survival, have depended on the American shield have also routinely spied upon us. Names like Great Britain, France, the Iran of the Shah, the Philippines of Marcos, Taiwan and Japan are among those regularly bandied about.

But that is not the most monstrous assertion. Some allegedly knowledgeable Americans boldly claim that we have a centralized intelligence apparatus in this country, costing between $30 billion and $40 billion a year, whose mission is the accumulation of information and "agents of influence" among friends and foes. Undoubtedly as a joke, we have even heard congressmen and businessmen urge that very same, though undoubtedly mythical, agency to turn its espionage expertise on the business and industrial concerns of other lands.

Enough of the sarcasm. It is too much like shooting fish in a barrel. Besides, after the initial round of congressional breastbeating and editorial umbrage, everyone seems to have calmed down about the discovery of a high-ranking Russian mole in the CIA. The revelation that Aldrich Ames and his wife betrayed the nation for filthy lucre — $2.5 million of it — rather than from ideological conviction probably helped soothe some outraged sensibilities. Selling out for money is somehow more American than selling out for political principle.

But for a few days it was a close race between hypocrisy and honesty. Politicians were swooning with feigned surprise all over town. Almost every movie buff remembers Claude Rains, playing the corrupt cop, parodying surprise at the discovery of gambling in Rick's place in the movie "Casablanca." You know, the line that goes something like, "I'm shocked, shocked, shocked." It could have been written for the congressmen who went bananas because a Russian agent working in Washington had unmasked American agents working in Moscow, some of whose tasks undoubtedly included dropping the dime on Russian agents working here, etc., etc.

What their reaction suggested was that there is still no understanding or sense of irony among many Americans about the way Washington operates in foreign lands. We long ago stopped being innocents abroad, if we ever were, a statement not of moral relativism but of absolute fact. The old Soviet Union may have had more people actually employed in their espionage operations, since everyone within that totalitarian land was automatically an instrument of the state, but we were a close second, far ahead in money and expertise of whoever was in third place.

And the game goes on, which makes the Aldrich brouhaha potentially more useful than the initial reaction might have suggested. It offers an appropriate hook for a fullscale re-examination of the purpose and scope, among others, of the Central Intelligence Agency and the National Security Agency. It might establish exactly what we expect of our country when it comes to espionage, to use the long word, or spying, to use the blunter term. Are friends fair game as well as foes? When and what is enough? Answering those questions might help provide a more nuanced context for our reaction to the intelligence activities of others to pose both dangers and dilemmas.

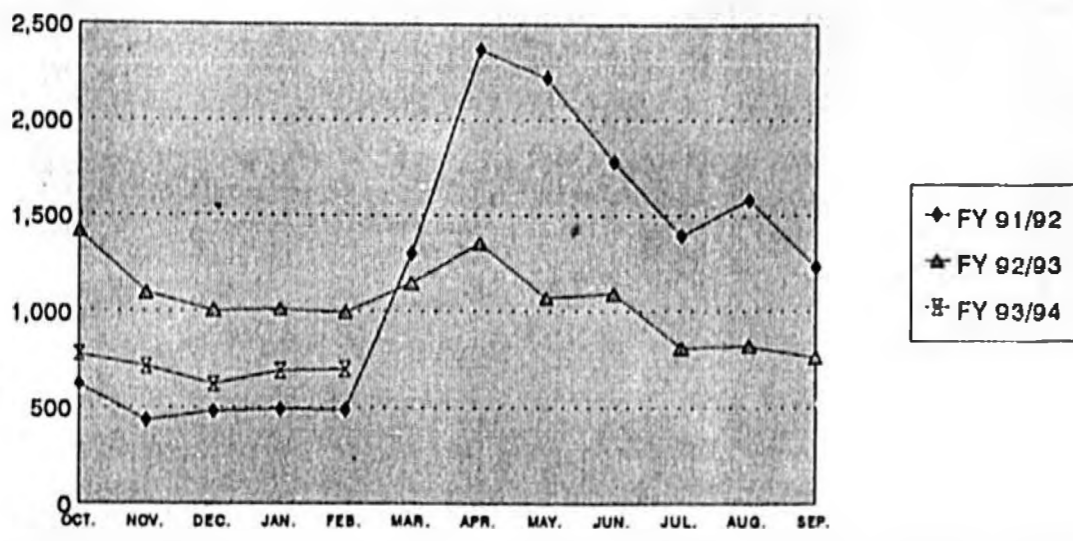

But are they comparable to those posted by the Soviet empire when it was in full flower? When Moscow spies on us today, does the threat of that espionage compare with, let us say, that posed by Beijing or Paris — or is it really more like the old Moscow, a wolf in sheep's clothing?

The speed with which Capitol Hill got over its public display of outrage and the ease with which the administration managed to shove the embarrassing Ames mess back under the rug suggest that most people believe it is the former. If it is, however, that has implications for the intelligence budget which have not yet worked their way into the kind of reductions asked of many other government agencies.

But that is not the most monstrous assertion.

BUILDING PERMIT ACTIVITY FISCAL YEARS 91/92, 92/93

81 percent during the past two years. The Building Department issued 89 so far this year, compared to 49 permits during the same months a year ago.

The county is seeing month-to-month increases as well. The Building Department issued 89 new home permits last month, compared to 65 in February 1993, a 37 percent increase. Eight commercial building permits were issued last month, nearly three times the three permits issued during the same month last year. Commercial alterations increased fourfold, 19 last month compared to five in February 1993.

The total number of permits have decreased, both year-to-date and for February. The difference is due to the number of reroofing permits issued by the county following the March 1992 hailstorms which damaged thousands of south Seminole County homes. About a third less permits were issued in February 1993 compared to February 1994.

But the value of construction is more reflective of the strengthening construction activity. The value of construction last month was $25.5 million, nearly double the $14.2 million permitted in February 1993. There has been a 28 percent increase in construction value so far this year, $100.2 million this year compared to $77.7 million last year.

Newspaper

per was an open forum, and in the newspaper, it was printed up that it was an open forum," Gaines explained. "In my researching, I tried to establish how did the newspaper get to be an open forum, because there is no other newspaper in the county that is an open forum, and tried to determine who declared the newspaper an open forum. In my research, there was no decision ever made by any administrator to give the Lake Mary High School newspaper open forum status. I communicated that to the editors and I also communicated that to the sponsor."

"The question of whether the newspaper is an open or closed forum has legal implications."

"If there is an article I have a question about," Gaines explained. "I want the students and everyone else to know that I will question the article as it relates to the (learning) environment on campus, without people claiming there has been a violation of their rights because of the fact that they are thinking that the newspaper is an open forum. I'm not going to prior review everything that comes from the newspaper."

Gaines said he will provide the students with a list of topic or subjects which might be considered controversial, for example, such things as religion, condoms, sex, homosexuality and abortion. If the students write stories on those topics, they will tell the adviser who will inform the principal.

"I'm not setting myself up as a censor. I'm not trying to read everything the newspaper staff does," Gaines said. "I want to try and operate as much as we possibly can, as I have said many times before, in the same vein such as we have operated in times past. But the information shared with me was that the newspaper was an open forum, and that's the point that had to be established."

"I'm not even saying we are not going to have those things (controversial topics) in our newspaper," Gaines explained. "But how they are dealt with is the critical issue."

When he questioned the religion articles and graphics in the January edition of The Rampage, Gaines said he was told he did not have a right to say anything because the newspaper was an open forum. That determination is made by the individual administrations of the high schools, he said. "The declaration has to come from the principal."

"In checking with former principals," Gaines said, "no principal at Lake Mary High School has ever established a Lake Mary High School newspaper as being an open forum. It is not my desire either to prior review everything that comes from the newspaper. It is my desire to allow the students as much freedom as possible within that range. But I need to be sure that if, in fact, there are certain things that are dealt with that may negatively impact this environment it will be handled in such a fashion that its not going to cause problems for us here at the school."

Dr. Tom Marcy, executive director of high schools did not return numerous calls to his office.

Interchange

the proposed link to Interstate 4 have all committed to donating land needed to build the $11 million interchange, in the planning stages since 1987. The state must now complete justification studies and submit a proposal to the Federal Highway Administration before the end of this year.

To preserve the land donations, interchange design plans must be completed by the end of 1996 and construction started before July 1, 1997. County Manager Ron Rabun wrote a letter to the state earlier this month.

"If your department does not meet all of these time frames, the efforts that developed this joint state, federal, local and private project will be frustrated and this much needed road project will be thwarted," Rabun wrote Ben Watts, secretary of the Florida Department of Transportation.

The agreement required the cooperation of Arvida Corp., Bank of Central Florida and Simon Development Co. Bank of Central Florida will sell their property to the state with a $200,000 contribution from Arvida and $435,000 from Lake Mary, originally pledged for the Rinehart Road widening.

When Congress appropriated $11.2 million for the project in 1987, no money was included for land. At the time, Jeno Paulucci and other major property owners at the interchange site were eager for the I-4 connection to boost their development. But in subsequent years, land changed hands or was lost in foreclosures and the interest in the project waned.

It was renewed last year when it appeared federal funding could be revoked because of inactivity. Congressman John Mica, R-Fern Park, said he told county and private landowners if they didn't provide the land for the project, he would not continue to support preservation of the federal grant.

Funding

Mack, D-Fla., a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee has also pledged support, Mica said.

The Seminole County Expressway Authority and Florida Department of Transportation are seeking $85 million as part of proposed National Highway System Improvements. Mica's press aide Sharon Pinkerton said more than 1,000 projects have been submitted for funding.

Brinton, who also testified at the March 9 hearing, said the federal funding is crucial to securing the $100 million needed from the state to build the link between U.S. Highway 17-92 and the interchange. Preliminary traffic projections suggest tolls couldn't repay bonds to build both the road and interchange, Brinton said.

Legion Auxiliary Unit 75 Smith's wife, Joanne, serves as unit president.

The observance is for the national organization, and is being celebrated by posts across the entire nation.

Tomorrow morning, Sanford Mayor Betty Smith will be on hand at Post 53, 2974 S. Sanford Avenue, to officially declare American Legion Week for the city of Sanford.

Events open to the general public are scheduled for this coming Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the post property.

Friday will feature a barbeque dinner and music. The dinner will be from 5:30 until 7 p.m. at $5 per person, with music beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Saturday is a special St. Patrick's Day party beginning at 7 p.m.

Sunday the post hosts a fish fry from 3 until 5 p.m. at $4.50 per person. Music for entertainment begins at 3 p.m.

"For each of these days," Smith said, "we are inviting everyone in the area to visit us. We'll be giving tours of our facility, and explaining the purpose served by American Legion posts in helping fulfill the needs of veterans."

"Much of our work deals exactly with the areas discussed yesterday by Congressman Mica," he added. "We believe we can accomplish much more in the area of veterans rights if we continue to band together into an organized effort."

Smith said information will also be available on the auxiliary, known as Unit 53. "These are not just wives of service veterans," he explained, "some of the auxiliary members are daughters, with a few less than a year old. There are many advantages to membership in the auxiliary, and we'll be giving that information out during this coming weekend events."

CIA reviews in light of spy case

NEW YORK — The CIA has suspended some operations abroad and decided to review some of its most important cases of the past decade after the arrest of an alleged spy within the agency.

Recent published reports also said the Central Intelligence Agency has told many clandestine operatives to lie low.

Aldrich H. Ames, a former Soviet counterintelligence branch chief accused of spying for Moscow, was arrested Feb. 20. As a result, the CIA was forced to reopen the files on hundreds of cases involving drug operations, a defector and even the death of one its own officers. The New York Times reported today. "The problem is that everybody's covering their hindquarters, and trying to do a true damage assessment ends up being difficult," said David Holliday, a senior staff member of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence from 1985 to 1991. "There are careers at stake," he told the newspaper.

The Washington Times previously published a similar account saying several steps will be necessary to deal with the Ames disclosure and any damage relating to his alleged spy activities.

Both papers quoted unidentified government officials.

Steps the agency needs to take. The New York Times said, include reviewing the loyalties of scores of agents recruited from Russia and Eastern Europe and reviewing the death last August of Fred Woodruff, a CIA officer shot in the former Soviet republic of Georgia.

Georgia officials have said Woodruff was killed in a random robbery attempt. U.S. officials told the Times he had arrived in Georgia on assignment the month before.

Also necessary is examining the possibility that Ames sold information on drug operations from his most recent post in the CIA's Counterintelligence Center.

Grand Marshals in jail, but gays march in San Francisco St. Patrick's Day parade

By JAMES O. CLIFFORD
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Gay and lesbian marchers made their debut in this city's St. Patrick's Day Parade, but the grand marshals couldn't make it. They were in prison.

The late entry by a contingent of about 30 homosexuals drew no opposition, and they marched in Sunday's 142nd annual parade behind a banner reading "Irish Lesbian & Gay Organization," said Joe O'Donoghue, the parade chairman.

"We wouldn't be consistent with our stand on no political or religious discrimination in Northern Ireland if they were kept out," he said.

The gays and lesbians were a small segment of a parade that drew thousands to its Market Street route, and featured screeching bagpipes and energetic Irish dancers.

The main political message was the struggle in Northern Ireland and signs reading "British Troops Get Out of Ireland," "IRA All The Way" and "Britain Still Holds Ireland" were plentiful.

The parade's four grand marshals all escaped from Northern Ireland's Maze Prison in 1983.

Alleged terrorists Kevin Barry Artt, Paul Brennan, Terence Kirby and James Smyth were captured in California and are in custody facing extradition charges in federal court in San Francisco.

Mayor Frank Jordan, a past grand marshal, didn't mention the four when St. Patrick's Day festivities opened Thursday at City Hall. His aide, Noah Griffin, said Jordan felt the ceremony was not the proper forum.

The gay and lesbian contingent drew little attention on the ten-block route.

"They have as much right to march as anybody," said spectator Cortosa Walsh. In Boston, organizers of the annual St. Patrick's Day parade scrapped the event to protest a court order allowing gays and lesbians to march.

Martha Fitzgerald, a member of the San Francisco group, said the ad hoc organization entered late "to show support to lesbians and gays in Boston and New York who have been denied the right to march in their local parade."

Fellow marcher Martin Gould said he was "very happy" with the group's reception.

"They were a little booing at the end," he said. "But there was a lot more applause. Of course, most people didn't do anything."

A native of Cork, Gould said gay groups have marched in Ireland for years.

"They took the prize for the best float in the Cork parade two years ago," he noted.

Fun with a purpose

Astronauts to test new arm attachment

By MIKE DRAO
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Astronauts today tested a new magnetic attachment for Columbia's robot arm that NASA hopes will allow for more deft handling of satellites and other space cargo.

Astronaut Marsha Ivins swung the 50-foot arm over the open payload bay and latched onto the device, known as the dexterous end effector, or DEE. It features two electromagnets, a sensor to gauge how much force is being applied and a new targeting system.

She and crewmate Charles "Sam" Gemar then tried out the new guidance system, which uses a mirror and three video cameras to help line up the arm with its target.

They were later to take turns maneuvering the arm and its new appendage around targets and grabbing a dummy satellite in the cargo bay.

The DEE could eventually replace the current grappling method in which the arm mechanically latches onto posts extending from objects. Cargo could instead be outfitted with flat, space-saving pieces of iron to attract the magnets.

Also today, the crew fired shuttle thrusters that lowered Columbia's orbit from 184 miles to about 160 miles for a study of shuttle glow.

Since the flight began, atmospheric scientists at the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md., have been studying the faint halo that appears as atomic oxygen and other gases collide with shuttle surfaces. They want to observe the glow at different altitudes.

As part of the experiment, researchers commanded a canister on the shuttle to open and spew nitrogen gas into space so astronaut Pierre Thuot could photograph the effect.

The fuzzy glow, shown in images beamed to the ground, appeared so intensely as nitrogen flowed over Columbia's tail.

The mission began March 4 and is set to end Friday morning in Florida. If that plan holds, it will be just an hour short of the longest shuttle flight to date.

The crew members joked in a space-to-Earth news conference Sunday that they wouldn't mind NASA extending the flight so they could break the endurance record.

"We've got a big check for the flight director if he'll take it," said commander John Casper.

Living and dying in college colors

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — College fans can be true to their school beyond their dying day with funeral caskets in their alma mater's colors.

The Indiana University cream-and-crimson casket is a good seller, says Marty Gaede, owner of Gaede Casket Company, an Indianapolis firm that makes college-oriented panels for the caskets.

"It comes in a crimson color and it's got white pinstripes on it with white vinyl swingbar hardware," Gaede said.

"The interior is ivory velvet and it comes with the choice of either a neutral panel or one that says Indiana Hoosiers. That one has a basketball going through a hoop-and-net combination. It's really a neat thing," he said.

Jerry Ellenwood of Day Mortuary in Bloomington said he has sold three or four Indiana-colored caskets since they became available last summer.

Comparable caskets in black and gold for Purdue University fans also are available.

The casket is manufactured by Oak Grove International of Manistee, Mich., which specializes in fiberglass caskets.

"We don't make them with colleges in mind, but some of the colors are somewhat indicative of certain colleges," company president Jim Kieszowski said.

"Actually, one of our customers in Texas does the same thing for the Texas A&M Aggies," he said. "The colors are approximately the same."

Gaede remembers a recent funeral.

"You should have seen it. Everything was IU colors inside the funeral home," he said. "Including the flowers."

Tribe boys are easy winners in Edison Invitational

From Staff Reports

FORT MYERS — Depth in the sprints plus a typical night for Andre Scott and Bernard Sparrow helped the Seminole High School boys' track team make a shambles of Friday night's Edison Invitational.
 Seminole, the defending Class 3A state champion, outscored runner-up Sarasota-Riverview 78-55½.
 "We took all the kids down and let everyone run," said Seminole coach Ken Brauman. "We're still looking at different people in different events, so we had everybody running. We're starting to improve in some areas but there are other areas where we're not doing as well as I thought we'd be."
 "This was a chance to go somewhere else. This week, we're going to Jacksonville for the Bob Hayes Invitational, then we're going to Gainesville for the Florida Relays. Once April gets here, we're into it fulltime in this area. These meets are our only chance to get away and run against other people."

 According to Brauman, the road trips also help prepare the younger Seminoles to deal with the unique circumstances they will encounter when they have to leave Seminole County for post-season meets.
 "This helps them get used to traveling, to get used to conditions that they don't face when you're running at home all the time," Brauman said.
 Cory Wilson, Andre Rawlings, and Charlie Farmer paced the Tribe's effort in the sprint events Friday night. Wilson won the 100-meter dash in 10.8 seconds with Rawlings finishing second at 10.9. The two then combined with Derrick Swain and Farmer to win the 4 x 100-meter relay in 42.8 seconds.

Farmer later finished second in the 200-meter dash with a time of 22.2 seconds while teammates Ansel Davis and Bryant Moore came in fourth (22.5) and sixth (22.9), respectively.
 Davis, who also took fifth in the 400-meter dash with a time of 53.1, and Moore joined Aswad Duval and Swain on Seminole's second-place 4 x 400-meter relay (3:34.9).
 Duval added a fourth-place showing in the 800-meter run (2:07).
 Scott continued his dominance in the triple jump with a winning jump of 50 feet, 2½ inches. He also took first in the long jump (22 feet, 5 inches) and a third in the high jump (6 feet).
 Sparrow added a first-place showing in the shot put (57 feet, 6 inches) and a second in the discus (144 feet, 6 inches).
 Rawlings also took fourth in the triple jump (42 feet).

Keep the opposition guessing

Lake Mary senior pitcher Rich Alexander did a nice job of keeping Jamie King (hitting) and the rest of the Seminole Fighting Seminoles guessing Friday afternoon as he pitched the Rams to a 7-3 win. Alexander, who did not pitch for Lake Mary as a sophomore or junior, is off to a 3-1 start.

Big inning again spells doom for SCC

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — It is amazing what a difference one pitch can make in a baseball game.
 Seminole Community College again was victimized by one big inning as the visiting Florida Community College at Jacksonville Stars held on for a 9-7 Mid-Florida Conference win at Raitler Field Saturday.
 The Stars (20-5, 8-0 MFC) took an 8-0 lead on the strength of a seven-run second inning. But when all was said and done, the game was decided by just one pitch.
 With the bases loaded and two out in the second inning, FCC-J's Tatum blasted a grand slam to left field. If the ball had stayed in the park, it might have been the final out and SCC could have won.
 After falling behind 8-0, the Raiders started chipping away at the deficit, scoring two runs in the second, one in the third and two in the sixth to trim the lead to 9-5.
 SCC looked like it might come all the way back when it scored a run in the eighth inning and had a man on third with no one out. But Bolan came on in relief and retired six of the seven batters he faced, including a sacrifice fly by Pete Bezeredil, to save the win.

 Leading the Raiders, who outlit FCC-J 14-10, were New Smyrna's Johnny Goodrich (3-for-5, two runs), Sanford's Demy Beannon (3-for-5, run), Spruce Creek's Isaac Cruz (3-for-5), Sanford's Matt Diemer (2-for-4, double, run, two RBI), Bezeredil (2-for-4, run, two RBI), Sanford's Rick Eestem (single, run), Larry Hardy and Oviedo's Erik Jordan (one RBI each) and Sanford's Scott Ferguson (run).
 Anthony Von Doteren was superb in relief for SCC, allowing two runs (one earned) over 7½ innings.
 The Raiders (8-13, 3-4 MFC) go to Orlando Tuesday for an MFC game at Valencia Community College.

Hagge hits, pitches Lions by Mainland

From Staff Reports

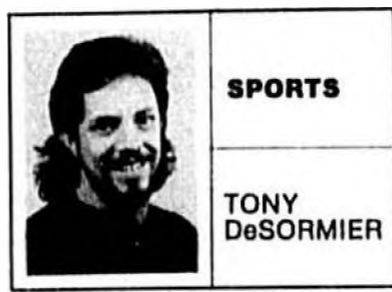

DAYTONA BEACH — Scott Hagge carried a no-hitter into the sixth inning and also homered as the Oviedo Lions blasted the Mainland Buccaneers, 14-3, Saturday afternoon in a 5A District 4 baseball game at Mainland High School.
 The Buccaneers finally got to Hagge in the sixth inning for three runs and two hits, but it was not enough as the Lions had scored eight runs in the top of the sixth to build a 14-0 lead.
 Hagge, a senior lefthander, improved to 2-0 with the victory, striking out 10 and walking four.
 Hagge's home run, his first of the season, was a three-run shot that keyed the eight-run sixth. Also featured in that inning were two-run singles by both Rich Wright and Jason Fore.
 Mike Rugenius helped the Lions get away to a quick start, ripping a two-run homer, his first of the season, in the top of the first inning.
 Rugenius later doubled in a run as the Lions collected 12 hits.
 Also contributing to the offense were Andy Hynes (2-for-2, two runs, RBI), Brian Buchanan (1-for-1, double, run), Mark Metcalf (1-for-2, two RBI), Carlos Martinez (1-for-2, run), Tim Slavik (single, run), Ted Brown (single), Todd Bellhorn (run, RBI) and Brian King (run).
 Oviedo, now 7-3 on the season, will host Lyman in a Seminole Athletic Conference contest Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Being a coach pays dividends for them, you, us

WANTED: Someone with . . .
 ● the patience of Job
 ● the wisdom of Solomon
 ● the wit of Stengel
 . . . for the thoroughly exasperating, entirely taxing, and completely satisfying task of dealing with headstrong adolescents (and their children). Successful applicants will have most of the following characteristics:

- a quick mind
 - a thick skin
 - a strong back
 - a cast-iron stomach
 - a rubber arm
 - and nerves of steel.
- Within the next couple of weeks, every youth baseball league in Seminole County will have conducted its open day ceremonies and begun playing games. And even though the season will be underway, each and every league will continue its never-ending search for that most precious of commodities.
 For example, no matter when I have the opportunity to talk with Jim Schaefer at the Sanford Recreation Department, he'll invariably ask that we put something in the Herald asking for volunteers to coach.
 Every release we get from area youth leagues, from Seminole PONY to the Seminole Family YMCA, the refrain is the same: "COACHES. WE

SPORTS

TONY DESORMIER

NEED COACHES?

What about you?
 It's a tough choice to make, especially if you've spent any time with parents and other interested parties second-guessing the efforts of their children's coach (which is every fan's God-given right, I grant you). Who wants to submit themselves to that kind of criticism?
 And if you're already a parent, you're already intimate with the frustration of trying to get one child to do what he or she is told. That frustration increases exponentially when the number of children involved increases.
 There's the hassles of getting and maintaining equipment, making sure you have enough uniforms and hoping that they all fit, dealing with fund-raising activities, and just hoping that you have enough kids show up for a game.

It's a pain. While it may seem like you're banging your head against a wall, there's a fundamental difference between the two activities. In banging your head against the wall, it feels so good when you stop. In coaching kids, stopping creates an empty feeling in a place you never knew you had.

I know from personal experience. Before Vicki and I moved here, I volunteered to coach T-Ball and Coach-pitch baseball for the local YMCA as a favor to the director, who was and still is a friend of ours. With Genevieve having turned 4 this year, I assume I'll be back in youth coaching before too long.

Sadly, the task of finding coaches has been made more difficult and delicate by the frightening reality that there are adults who prey on children and look for ways to gain easy access to kids. As a result, leagues must be much more careful in deciding who they allow to coach their kids.

What about you?
 As a parent or interested party (I make that assumption is you've gotten this far), you're faced with a difficult call to make. If you have the time and the inclination, should you volunteer to be a coach?
 No-one can ever fault you for not being a coach. The great majority of parents don't or can't coach for a variety of valid and undeniable reasons. For many, it's just impossible. For others, it's just not a good idea.

But there are those of you out there who have the time and what it takes to be a good coach (which has absolutely nothing to do with the skills necessary to be a winning coach).

The trick is getting you to recognize that you may be suited to the task and get over the natural apprehension of putting yourself on the line. If the idea's ever crossed your mind and brought even the slightest of smiles to your lips, there's a chance you may be right for the job.

As you contemplate that, consider this: We can't pick up a newspaper or turn on the television without seeing a story about youths getting into trouble. I don't know if anyone's done a study on youth sports as a deterrent to juvenile delinquency, but it seems to me that the two are mutually exclusive.

By being a youth coach, you may not be a part of the answer to the problem, but you may be a part of the prevention.

Springtime is pruning time

Pruning encourages healthy plant growth

GARDENING

TRICIA THOMAS

Pruning landscape shrubs is a task that should be accomplished in early spring. Summer and fall-blooming shrubs, like hibiscus, generally develop their flowers on this season's spring growth and should be pruned before the first flush of growth. Shrubs that bloom in the spring and winter, like azaleas, set flower buds in early summer and should be pruned immediately after flowering to ensure that developing flower buds are not removed. Pruning is practiced for several very good reasons: to maintain plant health, control plant growth and to encourage flowering and fruiting. Remember these pruning objectives when you begin your spring cleaning in the landscape.

Pruning encourages healthy plant growth, and helps defend against disease. Therefore, it is important to prune using the correct pruning tools and techniques. For general cleanup of small branches less than 1-inch diameter (little finger size), hand pruning shears are recommended. Loppers are used for larger branches up to one inch in diameter. Hedge shears are used for trimming hedges only. All pruning tools must be kept sharp! Sharp tools not only cut easier but do less bruising of plant tissue as they cut. Bruising slows the healing process and can encourage disease.

When pruning, a clean cut should be made. This means the cut should have a smooth edge instead of a jagged one that looks as though the tissue has been torn. Take care not to injure the plant around the cut, or rip and tear the bark above or below. The cambium layer, a thin layer of cells just below the bark, is important in wound healing and is easily injured. Do not twist or turn the shears as you cut; this twisting action can injure the plant as well as the shears.

Painting the wounds with tree wound dressing or pruning paint at this time is a controversial practice. Painting all wounds, over one inch in diameter, with pruning paint to protect the cut surface from wood-rotting organisms was once recommended. It is now recommended to air dry wounds and allow the plant to heal itself. Wound paint can crack and peel and may even harbor disease and insects, causing more problems than it prevents. However, if aesthetics are important, pruning paints can be used. Allow the wound to dry before applying the paint. This will improve the chances of good bonding and prevent cracking.

Clipped hedges require a specialized type of pruning and are a continuous job during the growing season. There are two important factors to remember about sheared hedges. First, the hedge should be pruned when the new growth is green and succulent. Please note that if the sheared hedge needs to be three feet tall, prune several inches below that height so that the hedge has room to leaf out to the desired height. Second, the hedge should be trimmed so that the base of the hedge is wider than the top so that light can reach the lower leaves. All shrubs, excluding topiary, espalier or formal hedges should be allowed to develop a more natural form rather than unnaturally shaped or closely clipped. This way, pruning is done to enhance the natural form and beauty of the plant. Naturally pruned shrubs are less maintenance in the long run than sheared shrubs. Choosing the right plant for a particular spot, according to size and function requirements, can greatly reduce the need for excessive pruning.

The first pruning step is to remove all dead, diseased and injured branches. Once this is done, it may be necessary to thin out the plant. Remove all branches that cross each other. If the shrub still looks too thick, remove some of the older branches. As a general rule, to reduce the size of a shrub, cut back no more than one-third the total height of the shrub at a time. Never rush a pruning job! Once you have removed too much, it's too late! Take frequent breaks to step back and view your work before getting in too deep. Pruning too severely can do damage that takes several growing seasons to correct.

Remember to be aware of your reasons for pruning. Is your goal to increase flowering or reduce plant size? Why you are pruning will help to determine when and how you prune. Take the time to follow proper pruning guidelines and your spring pruning will result in a more pleasing landscape that can require less maintenance over time. For more information call 323-2500 ext. 5558 or 5550 or visit the Cooperative Extension Office at 250 W. County Home Rd., across from Flea World.

Record set straight: Marian Anderson was snubbed

DEAR ABBY: This refers to a letter published in your column in regard to the time Marian Anderson was refused the use of Constitution Hall for a concert in Washington, D.C. Your writer from Raleigh, N.C., was wrong in stating that Miss Anderson was denied use of the hall because it had already been booked for the night of the concert.

That story was untrue and was cooked up some time following the incident. Neither Miss Anderson nor Sol Hurok, her manager, was offered the auditorium until the voice of the public was heard — including Eleanor Roosevelt, who resigned from the DAR because of it. I was working in Washington, D.C., at the time and was aware of the whole episode.

Harold Ickes, who was secretary of the interior under Franklin Roosevelt, offered Marian Anderson the Lincoln Memorial site for her concert, which she performed free of charge. (I attended that concert.) Obviously, Eleanor Roosevelt would not have resigned from the DAR if this incident had not occurred.

ADVICE

NEWTON S. FRIEDMAN.

ATTORNEY AT LAW, DULUTH, MINN.

DEAR MR. FRIEDMAN: Evidence received. Evidence believed. Thank you.

DEAR ABBY: I am nearing retirement age and lost my wife a few years ago. A nice-looking widow caught my eye. I asked a mutual friend to introduce us, and he said, "I think she's about 10 years older than you." If she is, she certainly doesn't look that old, nor does she act it.

When I asked my children what they thought of the idea, they said, "Go for it, Pop — age doesn't mean a thing these days."

What do you think, Abby?

How to control pain following a stroke

DEAR DR. GOTT: A year and a half ago I suffered a thalamic stroke. I now suffer from what my doctor refers to as thalamic pain syndrome. What can you tell me about this and is there a medication for control?

DEAR READER: The thalamus is a structure within the brain that mediates the perception of pain. Injuries, such as strokes, to this area are often associated with a type of chronic discomfort called "neuropathic central pain," which can affect any part of the body. This pain is often described as "burning or lancinating."

Treatment consists of three major components: mobilization of the affected part to prevent "frozen" joints and muscle wasting; consideration of psychological factors (such as therapy for anxiety and depression); and the use of appropriate pain control. This includes analgesics, counseling, hypnosis, trigger point injections and other methods.

Although you are likely to suffer pain for a long time, much can be done to ameliorate this symptom. In particular, you may be helped by attending a pain clinic, such resources are available in most teaching hospitals.

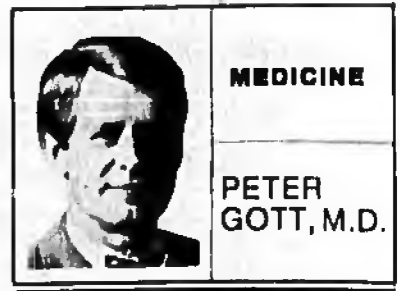

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there any help for Sjogren's syndrome?

DEAR READER: This autoimmune disease can cause dry mouth, dry eyes, enlarged salivary glands, loss of smell and taste, baldness, arthritis, pneumonia, and other complications, such as liver and nerve disorders. Sjogren's syndrome shares many characteristics of lupus and rheumatoid arthritis.

The diagnosis is made by blood tests and special examination of the speed with which patients form tears (Schirmer test).

Prednisone and other steroids are used for therapy of severe cases, because, untreated, the syndrome can lead to death from pneumonia, renal failure, or lymphoma (lymph node cancer). Mild to moderate cases require no treatment, other than symptomatic relief, such as

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

A few subjects can be seen as black or white, but most contain an element of gray. It's the same in bridge deals, except in reverse. Usually there's a right line of play. But occasionally it isn't so straightforward. Then the mathematicians get out their calculators and estimate that one line - let's call it Line A - has, say, a 64.32 percent chance, and the alternative, the imaginatively named Line B, has 65.01 percent. Then they pour scorn on the poor player who adopted Line A.

In today's deal when he sorted his hand, North didn't expect to make three bids. But such is life once in a gray moon.

Against four hearts, West leads the spade three. It is clearly black and white for South to win the first trick with the spade ace, cash the spade king, ruff the spade four in the dummy and play a club to the king.

Now things get gray. It's tempting for South to lead a low club, hoping to bring down the ace. But here that costs the contract. West wins with the jack and switches to the diamond jack. South ruffs the second diamond, but when the hearts break 4-2 he has lost trump control.

Since East must have the diamond ace for his opening bid, the right play at trick five is the club queen. This forces East to win the trick. He cannot do better than switch to a trump. South draws all of West's hearts and concedes another club trick. The contract is home with these 10 tricks: two spades, five hearts, two clubs and one spade ruff in the dummy. HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
March 15, 1994

In the year ahead you could be better disciplined regarding things which are of significance to you materially. Your ability to determine what something is worth should be quite keen.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Usually you're not overly concerned about who runs the show. Today, however, you might feel you can do a better job than others and chances are, you're right. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have the wherewithal today to derive benefits or extract something of value from arrangements that appear to others as having little or no promise. You'll know their real worth.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be sure to include old friends in your social plans today. You'll be more at ease with them than you will be with others. They'll be delighted to know they're still special.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might not make the biggest splash today, yet everyone will know when you first hit the water. There is something about your presence that commands respect and attention.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Knowledge is power and you have some special information that could be of real value to others. However, don't let them think it is just there for the taking. Mete it out advantageously.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Challenges, changes and shifting conditions could work for your ultimate benefit today if you utilize your gift for turning negative developments into positive results.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're not apt to evade making difficult decisions today. However, what is more significant is that you're likely to act in the manner and method your best judgment dictates.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In this cycle your ambitious objectives have excellent probabilities for being gratified. This is because your productive and constructive motives are strong.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you make a welcome addition for team efforts, especially if you're involved in some type of activity where both chance and competition are prime elements.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's important today that you have staying power and are not deterred by challenge. You start to blossom when the finish line is in sight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Have fun and enjoy yourself today, but pace yourself wisely if involved in activities that draw upon your physical and emotional energies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Stand up for your rights today if you're involved in something where you feel you're not getting a fair shake. Reasonable adjustments can be made, but they won't be volunteered.
