New Nixon Tape Stand Angers Both Sides

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barring a last-minute concession by the White House, the House Judiciary Committee is preparing to subpoena presidential tapes it wants for its impeachment inquiry.

The confrontation that has been building since Feb. 25 when the request was made, became all but certain Wednesday after the White House said it would not decide until after April 22 what it would give to the committee.

The White House position, spelled out in a letter from James D. St. Clair, President Nixon's counsel, antagonized committee members of both parties and a wide segment of the House.

"I think it was offensive to the House," said Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., the senior Republican on the committee.

"It was insulting in every paragraph," said Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., a committee member.

After a party caucus Wednesday to consider the letter, the Republican members launched a last-ditch effort to persuade the White House to comply at least in part with the committee's request.

"It looks as if the committee will issue a subpoena if the White House will not yield," said Rep. Robert McCloy, R-Ill., House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes said he hoped the committee would make another request for the tapes before issuing a subpoena.

"Mr. St. Clair would have to reconsider and there might be some change in his answer," Rhodes said.

But most committee members said they thought the committee had been patient long enough and had no alternative now but to subpoena the tapes, which cover conversations between Nixon and his aides that the committee thinks relate to the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

But there was little evidence it will affect next Tuesday's special congressional election.

State Republican Chairman William McLaughlin was the only major figure in either party to say that Nixon's Wednesday visit could be decisive in the contest between Republican James Spang and Democrat J. Robert Traxler.

After speaking to an enthusiastic group of 5,000 at Tri-City Airport between the 8th District's population centers of Saginaw and Bay City, Nixon flew here by helicopter for a 57-mile motorcade through solidly Republican towns and hamlets in an area known, for its shape, as Michigan's Thumb.

Though his reception was generally friendly, there were signs at many stops urging his impeachment. Speeches in Bad Axe, Cass City and Sandusky drew only mild applause, possibly because few could hear.

But there were many who said they still support the President's position.

which carried the area overwhelmingly in 1972.

"I don't think he's as bad as they all try to let out," said John Graham in Cass City. "He has done an awful lot of good for our country."

McLaughlin, eager for a GOP victory after the loss Feb. 18 of Vice President Gerald R. Ford's old Grand Rapids seat, said Nixon's visit will have "a very dramatic effect on this campaign. If we win, there's no doubt in my mind that the President has turned the tide."

Harris Says Gurney Broke Election Law

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — State Atty. Harry Morrison said today he would meet with a state grand jury to discuss a state grand jury investigation of Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla. Rep. Marshall Harris, D-Miami, requested the probe, charging that the state election law was violated during secret fund-raising efforts for Gurney.

Morrison said he hoped to meet with Harris this week.

"I want to talk with him about the over-all situation," Morrison said. "That's about as far as I can go today."

Harris said Gurney violated that portion of the code that requires officials to file periodic reports of all gifts in excess of $25.

Mostly from builders seeking influence with the Federal Housing Administration.

Gurney said during the televised news conference that he had raised $100,000 but said he did not learn from whom. He said he knew of Williams only as a volunteer worker.

Williams is serving a year in prison on charges of helping an FHA official receive an illegal payment from a builder and of attempted income tax evasion.

He pleaded guilty to the charges, handed down by a federal grand jury that is investigating the fund-raising.

Gurney, a member of the Senate Watergate Committee and up for re-election this year, said the $100,000 was not reported because there was technically no way of reporting it.

"There was no campaign fund-raising apparatus because I wasn't a candidate, so there was no way to report," Gurney said. "The only solution seemed to me to wait until I became a candidate and report the funds then."

REP. HARRIS
... Wants grand jury probe

Remembering back to the days when I was with Westinghouse Corp., it was an accepted business practice for a wholesale distribution point to make five per cent profit, and it is lauded by others in the organization.

As a matter of fact, one of this country's biggest "discount houses" gloated how successful their operation was at only one per cent net profit. (Of course, they weren't talking about the many dollars which they received via "kickbacks" thru illegal double-billing and advertising practices.

What I'm leading up to is today's announcement by Occidental Petroleum Corp. that for the first two months of this year, they show a profit of 1,200 per cent.

In 1973, they reflected a profit of $3.4 million. This year, during the comparable period, it has risen to $6.9 million, and that's only for the first two months of the year mind you. You'd think that with all that kind of dough, they could at least clean your windshields, eh?

Daytona Front Destroyed

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Daytona Beach Jai-Alai front, valued at $1.5 million, has been almost completely destroyed by a fire that began less than two hours after Wednesday night's games, fire officials said.

Fire officials reported no injuries.

"It's the worst I've heard of here in 15 years with the department," said Assistant Fire Chief Terry Dickerson as the blaze continued, whipped by 14-mile-an-hour winds, toward dawn Thursday.

Front manager Vance Schwartz told newsmen the building would be a total loss, and firemen agreed after the roof of the huge building caved in shortly after it began at about 1:45 a.m.

Sheriff May Get 2nd Jail

By JEAN PATTESON
Herald Staff Writer

The Sanford Airport Authority (SAA) today indicated it would lease Building 310 to the Sheriff's Department for a minimum security jail if a study shows it possible to convert the building for this purpose.

The Authority gave Sheriff John Polk 60 days to have an architect complete the study, after which time a lease agreement would be worked out with the County Jail Commission.

Polk asked Airport Manager J.S. (Red) Cleveland and one or two authority members to meet with Commissioner Sid Vihlen, who is in charge of the project, to outline tentative financial terms of the lease for presentation at the Commission's meeting Tuesday.

On April 5 state inspectors toured Building 310 and declared it suitable for a minimum security jail, according to Polk. "It's the only alternative we have for housing minimum security inmates," Polk said.

The building is the newest of the permanent structure barracks for the old base. Polk said the walls of several small rooms on one of the upper floors would have to be knocked out to make a larger dining area, but no other major structural changes would have to be made.

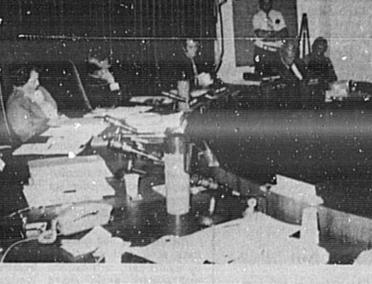

Security screens would be placed over all windows, and the building would be surrounded by a 10-foot chain link fence, said Polk.

He estimated the total cost of modifying and equipping the building would be around $175,000. At this time the jail would house about 40 inmates, but in the future could house as many as 160, said Polk.

Cleveland said he had canvassed most of the other tenants at the airport, and about one fourth were opposed to the establishment of the jail.

Polk explained none of the inmates could be considered dangerous. They had short sentences of between 30 and 90 days, said the sheriff, and were not likely to attempt to escape as this would add five years to their sentences.

At least 10 of the prisoners were currently on jail release—working in the community during the day and returning to jail each night—others were weekend prisoners, said Polk.

Teachers Will File Suit Seeking Bargaining Right

By MARK WEINTZ
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole Education Association members told they will sue for the right to bargain collectively.

Following the disclosure, board member Davis Sims lashed out at Supt. William P. Layer charging, "The superintendent's support of collective bargaining is a political and devious method to drive a wedge between teachers and the board."

(Related story page 5A)

Layer sat quietly at the edge of his chair while Sims charged he had used "poor judgment" in taking a stand on bargaining Tuesday without ever recommending that the board implement collective bargaining. "He attended our executive session and knew our decision to wait for guidelines from the state legislature on bargaining procedures," Sims said.

Layer contended he had tacitly supported collective bargaining by asking a team be sent to see what SEA wanted and to bring back tentative agreements, but this was rejected by the board.

"I don't see how you can trust the teachers to teach your children and yet not trust them on the bargaining table," Layer retorted amid cheers by teachers.

SEA president Adameo Nazario Jr. promptly stood and said, "I asked him to endorse the teachers' right to bargain collectively. I did not know of the closed door meeting about bargaining."

Golda Quits; Israel Shaky

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel faced months of political uncertainty today in the wake of Premier Golda Meir's resignation, and there was no indication of the government that would emerge.

Officials of Mrs. Meir's ruling Labor Alignment said she would stay on as head of a caretaker government until new elections, or until a replacement cabinet could be formed. Either one could take months.

The political upheaval and the fragility of a lame-duck government could weaken Israel's hands in the negotiations with Syria for a withdrawal of Israeli forces on the Golan Heights, political analysts suggested.

Worn out by increasing controversy over whether Defense Minister Moshe Dayan should share the blame for Israel's initial setbacks in 13 October war, Mrs. Meir, who will be 76 in three weeks, told the leaders of her party Wednesday night: "I can no longer bear the burden... I have reached the end of the road."

She said her resignation would go to President Ephraim Katsir after a cabinet meeting today.

It was the second time in 39 days that Mrs. Meir announced she was quitting, but this time it was generally believed that she meant it.

Arsonist: Dynamite Supplied By Evans

By CHRIS NELSON
Herald Staff Writer

A convicted arsonist testified today an official of Air Flow Club's union local 803 gave him dynamite to blow up the car of the owner of Air Flow Air Conditioning Company a month and a half after the Sept. 19 blast which wiped out Air Flow's truck fleet.

Arthur Ray Brundon, 17, now serving six months to two years for his role in the setting of the fire, told a Seminole Circuit Court jury that union organizer Daniel Evans, 25, Altamonte Springs, personally gave him six sticks of dynamite.

Brundon, who also charged Evans' complicity in an abortive Sept. 2 attempt to burn the All Weather air conditioning company in Orlando, said Evans give Haines $150 in small change prior to the Air Flow fire, and said Evans told them to "blow" Air Flow because the company had not been organized by the union, despite a 1972 attempt.

Today's testimony on the bomb and Orlando arson attempt was the first public statement of alleged union complicity beyond the Air Flow incident.

Tornado Relief Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spurred by tornadoes that devastated parts of the South and Midwest, the Senate has passed a bill broadening federal disaster relief. The House, however, may not act on the legislation until returning from its Easter recess April 22. The Senate unanimously passed the bill after Sen. Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., staved off several attempts to amend the measure. He warned that the administration might withdraw its support of the bill if it is burdened by amendments to which it objects.

Aussies Dissolve Parliament

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Governor-General Sir Paul Hasluck dissolved both houses of Parliament today, and Prime Minister Gough Whitlam announced that a general election will be held May 18.

Whitlam told a news conference the main issue will be the frustration of his legislation by the opposition-controlled Senate. It has blocked several measures passed by the House of Representatives, including Whitlam's health insurance bill.

The opposition is expected to fight the election on the issue of inflation, now running at an annual rate of 14 per cent.

'This Defendant Will Kill'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "This defendant will eventually kill someone," says a 1970 prosecutor's report on Donald David DeFreeze, 30, an escaped convict, believed to be the mysterious "Cinque," voice of the Symbionese Liberation Army which kidnapped newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst Feb. 4. The records of DeFreeze's 1970 Los Angeles robbery-assault trial reveal that he was viewed as a potential killer by his prosecutor and was treated by the judge as a man in need of "a lot of psychiatric aid."

Jews, Christians Dine

NEW YORK (AP) — Together, Jews and Christians ate the bitter herbs of horseradish symbolizing a remembered plight and tasted the green parsley dipped in salt water signifying thanksgiving and tears. "We were slaves in Egypt, and the Lord our God delivered us with a mighty hand," they recited in unison. The occasion was a joint Jewish-Christian observance Wednesday night of the seder, the ceremonial Passover meal, at Manhattan's Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church. Sharing the observance points up that "we are brothers and sisters in the family of God," said Rabbi Marc Tanenbaum, who led the service with the church's pastor, the Rev. Dr. Bryant M. Kirkland.

Bridget Marries Bernie

NEW YORK (AP) — David Birney and Meredith Baxter, co-stars of last season's television series "Bridget Loves Bernie," are honeymooning after their marriage here. A spokeswoman for the stars of the canceled TV series that detailed the romantic troubles of a Jewish boy and a Catholic girl said they were married Wednesday in a traditional ceremony at the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church.

It was the second marriage for each, she said. The ceremonies were attended by Miss Baxter's two children by her previous marriage.

The couple plans to live in Connecticut, where Birney is rehearsing for an American Shakespeare Festival production of "Romeo and Juliet."

He Pitched Hank Homers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wilmer "Vinegar Bend" Mizell claims one distinction none of his colleagues can hope to match: He's the only member of Congress to have pitched two home-run balls to Henry Aaron.

"They were No. 61 and No. 181," the North Carolina Republican boasted, "I remember them well."

A major league pitcher for 14 years, Mizell said he was delighted watching Aaron smash past Babe Ruth's home run record by belting No. 715 in Atlanta Monday night. Mizell said he watched the game on television.

Mizell, 43, pitched professionally from 1948-63. He played for the St. Louis Cardinals until 1960, pitched two seasons for the Pittsburgh Pirates, and ended his baseball career by pitching a season for the New York Mets.

Steel Pact Near

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the usual 11th-hour frenzy of previous negotiations missing, steel industry bargainers indicate they are near agreement on a new three-year contract for 350,000 workers.

Sources close to the talks between the United Steelworkers and the 10 major steel companies say the negotiators have agreed "to try and wrap it up" today.

Although the sources caution that some problems remain, the union has called its Basic Steel Industry Conference with representatives from 832 locals to a 1 p.m. EDT meeting for a report on the negotiations. The 600-member conference has authority to ratify a tentative agreement or recommend turning over unresolved issues to a panel of arbitrators.

A Washington Rarity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. William R. Saxbe's political friend, J.D. Sawyer, has talked himself out of a top Justice Department job and the fancy new office suite Saxbe provided him.

Saxbe has declined to abolish the $35,000-a-year job of associate attorney general less than three months after he appointed Sawyer to it.

Sawyer said he recommended the move because he concluded "there is really no role for the associate attorney general... if the department is to function effectively and along traditional lines."

When U.S. Senate Acquitted President, It Was By Narrow Margin Of One Vote

By SAM STEWART
Copley News Service

By the narrow margin of one vote, the U.S. Senate acquitted the president of the United States. Whereupon the congressman who had introduced in the House of Representatives the resolution for impeachment and chaired the House committee which drafted the articles of impeachment, declared, bitterly, that henceforth no president could be removed from office by process of law.

The setting here is not 1974. It is 106 years ago, in 1868. The president was Andrew Johnson. The congressman was Thaddeus Stevens, Pennsylvania Republican.

And Stevens was right. A full 106 years after the Johnson affair, there has not been another impeachment proceeding involving a president.

In all our history, we have had only 11 impeachment trials — only one a president.

But the advocates of impeachment may be getting warm again, as the saying goes, because the critics of Richard Nixon are in full cry as raucous as those which yapped at Johnson's heels. Mr. Nixon has his enemies, personal and political, and Johnson did, too. If Stevens had been harsh in branding Johnson a tyrant, history must balance the name-calling by noting that Johnson called Stevens a traitor as worthy of hanging as Jefferson Davis.

Early in 1867, Congress passed the Tenure of Office Act, prohibiting the president from removing a Cabinet officer without Senate approval. On Aug. 12, 1867, President Johnson, in defiance of the act, dismissed Edwin Stanton, secretary of war and a radical Republican leader (as was Thaddeus Stevens).

The Senate, on Jan. 13, 1868, ordered Stanton reinstated — but on Feb. 21, Johnson replaced him again. So impeachment proceedings were begun. (This little summary dramatizes the fact that conflict between the executive and legislative branches is nothing new.)

Impeachment proceedings of Johnson got under way on March 13, 1868, with Chief Justice of the Supreme Court Salmon Portland Chase presiding. Associate Justice Samuel Nelson administered this oath to the chief justice: "I do solemnly swear that in all things appertaining to the trial of the impeachment of Andrew Johnson, president of the United States, now pending, I will be impartial justice to the Constitution and laws. So help me God." The chief justice then administered the same oath to the 54 members of the Senate. On May 16, 1868, Chief Justice Chase polled each senator on the Eleventh Article of Impeachment and then announced: "On this article, 35 senators having voted guilty and 19 not guilty, a two-thirds majority not having voted for conviction, the president is therefore, acquitted under this article."

Ten days later, by the same vote, Johnson was acquitted on the other articles as well. That's the setting of the only precedent for the fate many of his critics demand for President Nixon. More than a century later, politics and personalities still tend to cloud the picture.

But one fact must be stressed: "impeach" by definition and application means only "accuse," "indict," or "challenge" conviction, or acquittal, is another process. In 1868, or 1974,

Political Aspirants Asked To Let Parties Supervise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seeking insurance against future Watergate, political reformers are urging 1976 presidential nominees to do their campaign business through the Republican and Democratic national committees.

The theory is that management, or at least supervision, by regular party organizations and leaders would guard against the kind of abuses that marked President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

But there is a flaw: the way the system works. In a presidential year a party's nominee for the White House decides who is going to run the party organization anyhow.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford has proposed that 1976 GOP candidates agree in advance that they will not set up special campaign committees without specific approval of the party.

A House Republican study panel has said that "a strong national party would help curb some of the excesses that have been witnessed during the past few years and would make it easier for the public to isolate responsibility for illegal actions."

But presidential candidates build their personal political organizations as they campaign through the primary elections, seeking White House nomination. At that stage, the regular party organization is theoretically neutral. The pattern has been for the personal organization of the winner to take over in the fall and run the national campaign.

The presidential nominee traditionally chooses the top leadership of his party's national committee. Committee members from the 50 states elect their chairman — but in practice, they ratify the choice of the presidential nominee. Neither party committee had much to say about the 1972 presidential campaign. As always, the clout was where the presidential nominees put it. And as usual, there was friction between state party organizations and the campaign committees set up by the candidates.

In an era of political specialization and increasingly lengthy and expensive presidential campaigns, the pattern has been one of management and control by the candidate's men, not the permanent party structure.

All of this suggests that a long term solution to the problem of presidential campaign control is going to take more than persuasion aimed at candidates.

One proposal is part of the public campaign finance bill now before the Senate.

Another Nixon Election Official Going To Jail For Lies To FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) — Herbert L. Porter, who handled the surrogate speakers program in President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign, was sentenced today to serve 30 days in a federal correctional institution for lying to the FBI in its Watergate investigation.

Porter, who will be 36 on Saturday, is the fourth former White House aide who has been sentenced to prison but the sentence was the lightest of any.

The charge carried a maximum five years in prison and a $10,000 fine but a lawyer for the office of special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski said Porter's involvement in the Watergate cover-up was "less in degree than others who pleaded guilty to felony charges."

Porter, who now works in his father-in-law's small construction business at Laguna Niguel, Calif., had admitted to the Senate Watergate Committee that he also gave perjured testimony to the grand jury and at the 1973 Watergate break-in trial.

He said he agreed to the lie "because of the fear of group pressure that would ensue, of not being a team player."

The false story concerned money he gave to G. Gordon Liddy, the alleged mastermind of the Watergate break-in. Porter said deputy campaign director Jeb S. Magruder had ordered him to give money to Liddy for "dirty tricks," and that he turned over some $35,000.

At the end of June 1972, some 11 or 12 days after the break-in at Democratic Party headquarters, Porter said Magruder told him that "dirty tricks" would sound bad to investigators and asked that they concoct a cover story.

Porter said he agreed to say he gave Liddy $100,000 for hiring 10 college students for 10 months at $1,000 a month and that was the story he later told.

Meanwhile, four of the seven defendants charged with conspiring to obstruct justice in the investigation of the Watergate cover-up filed motions Wednesday asking that U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica be disqualified from the case. Sirica assigned himself to the trial, scheduled for September.

Mitchell: I Did Not Obstruct Vesco Probe

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell has told a federal trial jury he wanted to abet and not obstruct a Securities and Exchange Commission fraud investigation of international financier Robert L. Vesco.

"On your oath did you do anything during this entire period of time to fix or quash the investigation?" he was asked Wednesday, shortly after he took the witness stand in his own defense.

"No sir," replied Mitchell.

President Nixon's first attorney general. The criminal conspiracy trial of Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans was recessed Wednesday until next Monday, when Mitchell is scheduled to resume his testimony. Stans is expected to follow his one-time cabinet colleague as a witness.

Stans and Mitchell are accused of obstructing the SEC investigation, in return for Vesco's secret $200,000 cash contribution to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

The two are charged with conspiracy, obstructing justice and lying to a grand jury to cover up the scheme. Mitchell was asked by defense attorney Peter Fleming Jr. if he had believed or intended that by asking then SEC chairman William J. Casey to see Vesco aide Harry L. Sears he was "impeding, obstructing or delaying the SEC investigation of Mr. Vesco?"

"Quite to the contrary, I thought I might further it," Mitchell replied.

As for being motivated by the Vesco campaign contribution, Mitchell testified he never knew of it until six months after he intervened with Casey — in late August or early September.

The government had emphasized in its case that just five hours after Stans accepted the $200,000 on April 10, 1972, Mitchell sent Sears to his long awaited face-to-face meeting with Casey.

"We delivered the $200,000 today," Sears said he told Mitchell, strengthening a government claim that not until the money was in hand was there any action on Vesco's behalf. Mitchell testified he had no recollection of Sears telling him of the delivery of the contribution.

Mitchell also contradicted the government testimony of former White House Counsel John W. Dean III that he was asked by the defendant to call Casey in Vesco's behalf, and ask for aid in postponing SEC subpoenas against a quartet of Vesco aides.

Boyle Murder Case Goes To Jury Today

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — A jury begins deliberations today in the murder trial of former United Mine Workers president W.A. "Tommy" Boyle, accused of the slaying of union rival Joseph "Jack" Yablonski. The case goes to the jury of nine men and three women after the instructions from Common Pleas Judge Francis J. Costanza.

Yablonski, his wife and daughter were slain Dec. 31, 1969, as they slept in their Clarksville, Pa., home. The killings occurred three weeks after Yablonski lost a bitter battle to win the UMW presidency from Boyle — an election later voided by a federal court as fraudulent.

But chief defense counsel Charles F. Moses asked for acquittal on grounds there was insufficient evidence and a "reasonable doubt" as to Boyle's guilt.

Testimony against the 72-year-old Boyle would begin Wednesday, and opposing lawyers summed up their versions of the evidence produced by 38 prosecution and nine defense witnesses.

An Unusual Nun Makes Life Easier

By CIMA STAR
Copley News Service

BOSTON — How you ever been alone in a strange foreign city where you couldn't understand the language and no one could understand you? What would you do if taken ill? How would you ask for a doctor or hospital, and how would you explain what was wrong? What if you were robbed?

Sister Anna Mary Kelly, of the Sisters of St. Joseph, worried about the constant problem and frustrations of the roughly 200,000 Spanish-speaking people in Massachusetts. Typically, as soon as she identified the problem she began to act.

"She is a real tiger," says Fred Gilmp of the Permanent Charity Fund of Boston. That might seem an unusual comment to make about a nun, but this is a very unusual nun. Virtually single-handedly, she has set up a unique program to teach Spanish language and culture to public service personnel — police, nurses, social workers, etc. — who deal with the many Puerto Ricans in and around Boston. The results, to say the least, have been rewarding.

"She knows exactly what she wants to accomplish, how to get it organized and how to implement it," as Gilmp discovered when Sister Anna Mary came to him with a proposal for her program.

"The thing is," he says, relaxing in his bright, modern office near Boston's historic Common, "that a foundation may have money to fund a program, but you just can't give that money away until you know you have the right person to make a go of it."

Set up nearly four years ago with seed money provided by Gilmp's organization as well as several others, including the Federal Regional Council of New England and several private foundations, Sister Anna Mary's program has made life a little easier for many people. As patrolman Charlie Fleming of Boston's Tactical Patrol Force says, the program was "truly the most comprehensive and rewarding experience of my career. I have found on numerous occasions that a serious situation has been lessened and a pleasant one shared because I understand what is going on."

A Motor Vehicles Department inspector, Joseph Casella, seconds this attitude, pointing to many Spanish-speaking people he has helped to study for and pass their driving tests.

Nancy Passikoff, a public health nurse, is another who has found the program invaluable. "I came in contact with many Spanish-speaking families, and before the course, I was not able to be of service to them," she says.

"This is a general problem as there are not enough Spanish-speaking nurses or interpreters and some families go unseen or receive decreased health care because of it." Not only does Ms. Passikoff now care for these families herself, but she often accompanies other nurses on their visits, as well as acting as a translator in some of Boston's clinics.

"In a sense," says Sister Anna Mary, "I think the most important thing we do is offer an insight into the difference between the two cultures. An understanding of the heart, along with the spoken language. We give talks on the history of Puerto Rico, for instance, because we cannot really understand the problems of people unless we see it in the whole historical perspective."

"As I learned when I visited Mexico," explains Sister Anna Mary, "you don't really know the Spanish people unless you know their music, unless you have enjoyed a fiesta with them."

"For this reason, the institute throws its own 'Fiesta'."

Bikers' Bitterest Enemy Or Mankind's Best Friend?

By ROLLA WIL LAMS
Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Not the steep grades, not the dry desert, not the lack of camping facilities — none of these pose particular problems for the bicyclists heading south on Baja California's Trans-Peninsular Highway.

But the dogs do. Man's best friend is a bicyclist's bitterest enemy.

"Every house you pass, they run you and snap at you and bite you if they can," says Flip Nicklin of San Diego, just back from an odyssey which stretched into the skin-diving water south of Cabo San Lucas.

"We busted two of our three tire pumps fighting them off." But it was a trip Nicklin and his pals, Phil Sloan, John Craig and Eileen Burns, found rewarding.

Even though they had six flats, found a scorpion under their tent, slept in a graveyard, ran out of white gas for their stove, and Phil suffered a siege of Montezuma's Revenge.

"One thing we did wrong," says Flip, "was buying all our food in Mexico. That was an error. Everything is cheaper this side of the border." They took three bikes and Eileen, carrying the heavy equipment in a Volkswagen, patrolled the road ahead. They camped out at night.

The group traveled with a three-man nylon tent, a two burner stove, an lantern, two down sleeping bags and one extra tire, three pumps, two patch kits, two extra gear cables, a brake cable and extra spokes.

Somebody in La Paz stole two front wheels they carried for emergencies. Also packed were 10 extra tires, three pumps, two patch kits, two extra gear cables, a brake cable and extra spokes.

"We gave a couple of spools to a guard at a construction site in Punta Prieta," Flip says. "We were using them to roast marshmallows, and he'd never eaten burned marshmallows before."

Already the new highway is being criticized by visitors as too narrow, too thin in concrete and too lacking in gasoline and campground facilities. But it proved ideal for the young bike riders, who ranged in age from John, who is 18, to Phil, who is 33. Flip is 29.

"We just went as far as we could, pulled off and camped," Flip says. "No problem... I don't say I'd want to do it regularly, but it was all right as a one-time thing."

The bike pioneers, who may be the first ever to pedal the length of the Baja, said the grades posed no insurmountable or terrifying problems, that there were plenty of paradises, or tourist stopovers, and that the scenery was unbelievably grand.

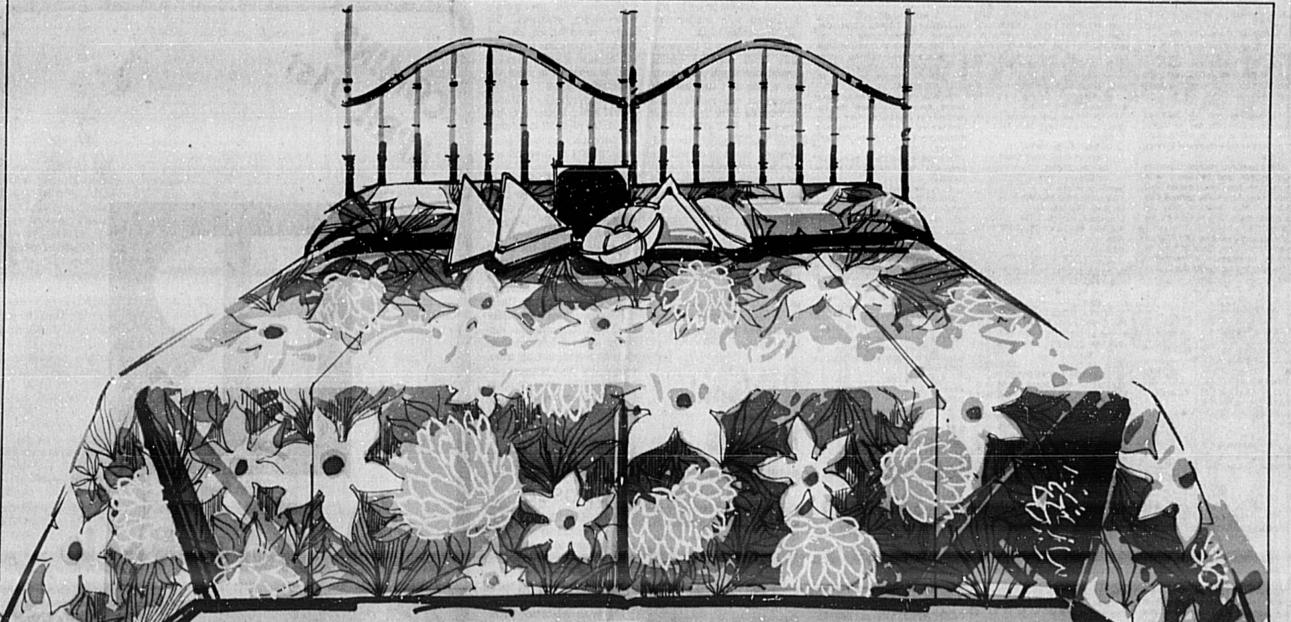

"They would suggest, though, that others of the same bent do some heavy shopping for freeze-dried, dehydrated, even canned food in the United States before departing, that they fit themselves with one-and-one-half-pound and heavier down bags with enolate sleeping pads, and that they carry adequate supplies of white gas for stoves and lanterns."

"We ran out of white gas, and had to use regular," Flip says. "And what happened was it worked all right in the stove but it burned out the lantern."

Oh My! No More Lies, Or Political Bigotry?

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — When it comes to doing something about the shady political practices spotlighted by Watergate and other scandals, actions of Florida lawmakers are speaking louder than words.

The House Elections Committee last week approved a bill requiring candidates to take a pledge of fair campaign practices.

The Florida House last week passed with a matter of minutes a pair of bills providing widely divergent penalties for virtually the same food stamp frauds.

First up was a bill by Rep. Lewis Earle, R-Orlando, providing a five-year penalty for falsifying information to obtain food stamps.

Then the House passed a bill by Rep. Ed Fortune, D-Pace, making it a crime to withhold information in applying for food stamps.

Fortune's bill carried a five-year penalty for withheld information frauds of more than $200 and one year for lesser cheating.

There was little discussion of the bills and no attempt to debate the differences between falsifying and withholding information.

Barber, found innocent of charges he enticed a 14-year-old girl to work for $20 a client, remained smiling when Hosemann sternly warned, "Now listen, don't you get caught again."

Barber, a brick cleaner, enthusiastically rushed back to hug his defense attorney, Gene Stephenson of Casselberry.

Senators took no chances when Senate President Pro Tempore Louis De La Parte, D-Tampa, was matched against House Speaker Terrell Sessums, D-Tampa, in a recent cow milking contest.

Democratic Sens. Julian Lane, a Tampa dairy farmer, and Phil Lewis, Senate agriculture chairman from West Palm Beach, gave De La Parte a crash course in milking.

Barber Acquitted, Board Refuses To Promote Harris

An estatic James Barber, acquitted by a Seminole Circuit Court Jury of running a prostitution ring from his Altamonte Springs apartment, delighted spectators by rushing to the jury box, shaking hands all around, then grasping the hand of Judge A. J. Hosemann Jr.

Barber, found innocent of charges he enticed a 14-year-old girl to work for $20 a client, remained smiling when Hosemann sternly warned, "Now listen, don't you get caught again."

Board Chairman Dave Sims countered. "The public does not know the whole truth," Sims said, but he refused to explain what the "whole truth" is.

After the resignation of Finance Supt. Walter Teague last July the board voted a new job description for the position.

The board said the post should be filled by an applicant holding a master of finance degree.

The first time Layer recommended Harris for the job the board said he did not fit the job description.

Layer advised Harris to advertise statewide to fill the position. When none of the new applicants fitted the job description, Harris was again recommended and rejected.

Wednesday, Board Member Allan Keith dissented and members Stuart Culpepper was absent. Sims and members Jean Bryant and R.G. Feather voted to reject Harris again.

"After the third rejection the board can appoint someone to the position. It is part of the system of checks and balances," Sims said, adding the board could also direct Layer to pick another applicant.

However, officials say there is no applicant to date with the qualifications set down by the board.

Editorial Hearst Tragedy Lesson For All

As certified "bleeding heart liberals" we usually save our saltiest tears for the aged, the infirm and others unable to cope with society or even life.

We don't often find the time or even a reason for feeling sorry for the rich.

Today we'll try to bring a little more balance into our approach by extending our editorial hand to the family of Randolph A. Hearst, the San Francisco newspaper editor and publisher.

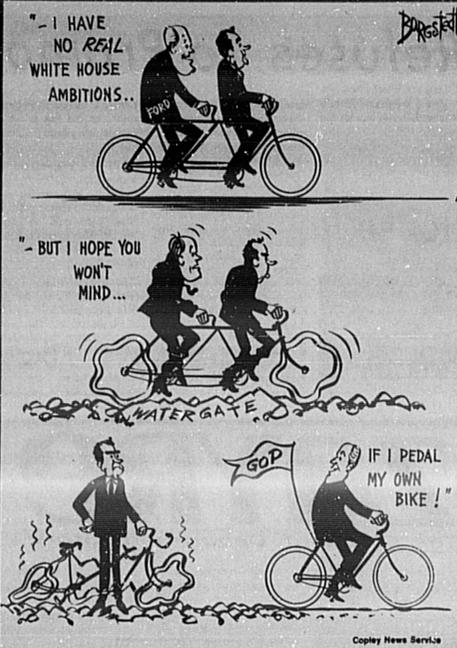

Hearst has been living the life of the damned since Feb. 4 when his 20-year-old daughter Patricia was kidnapped by people later identified as members of something called the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Since that time the Hearst family has known little peace. The fear that their daughter might be killed at any moment and for any reason has been a constant companion. When the SLA demanded Hearst dip into his personal fortune for $2 million to feed the poor of San Francisco, he did so; that distribution program and the predictable antics of hoodlums turned it into something of a disaster in no way reflects on Hearst.

And with the bulk of his personal fortune depleted the newspaperman turned to the Hearst Corporation — over which he has little direct control — and secured a pledge of another $4 million for food conditional only upon the release of Patricia.

Even this failed to satisfy the SLA and Patricia remains missing, either a prisoner of these thugs or, possibly, a convert or, as some have suspected from the beginning, a willing accomplice.

But the circumstances of her disappearance are really beside the point to a grieving family. A parent spends a great deal of his or her adult life worrying over and loving children. Some grow up to become model citizens; others

Nixon Defense Is Failing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's campaign-style defense against Watergate and impeachment does not appear to be working where it counts most: in Congress.

The impact of his announcement that he will pay up to $485,000 in back income taxes and interest remains to be seen. No one can forecast with certainty what the House will do when it comes to a vote on impeachment. "It's impossible to get a hard count," a Nixon defender said. "No one can say until we know the charges."

The House Judiciary Committee is investigating now to determine whether impeachment charges should be brought, and what they should be.

That fact of congressional psychology already has been demonstrated in Watergate.

Politics Grip Is Slipping

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Some recent but as yet uncompleted studies on the state of Congress have come up with some disturbing findings.

As one indicator, it seems most lobbyists these days don't bother much with most congressmen, because they don't think their votes are worth cultivating. They believe that 70 to 80 per cent of the legislators on Capitol Hill have so little influence on legislation it is not profitable to buy them. They offer free transportation on company planes, curate automobile leases or otherwise attempt to legally or illegally influence what they do.

This feeling of unimportance is felt by a growing number of representatives and senators themselves.

Some members of the "I won't run again" group have more assuredly been influenced by the conviction that Watergate has measurably decreased their likelihood of reelection. But when congressmen talk privately, the investigators find a considerable number of those quitting — and some who are staying — are simply fed up. One long-time legislator who has decided not to run again, one student of Congress who is dropping out because of losing this fall, anyone his party nominated to succeed him, he said, would have a certain victory. But the game simply wasn't worth the candle anymore.

Now some congressional leaders are forecasting a majority vote in favor of impeachment.

"There is no doubt in my mind that there are enough votes for the articles of impeachment in the House," says Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says House members have told him the impeachment votes apparently are there.

Jack Anderson Kissinger In Detente Clash

WASHINGTON — Inside the secret policy councils, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger have collided head-on over concessions to Russia.

Kissinger came back from Moscow without the "conceptual breakthrough" he had sought in the strategic arms limitation talks. Now he is pleading behind closed doors for U.S. concessions to keep the detente going.

Sources privy to the secret debate say Kissinger and Schlesinger bitterly disagree over the strategic importance of the heavier missiles Russia is developing. Once these missiles are deployed, each Soviet missile will be able to hurt more warheads than is U.S. counterpart.

Schlesinger contends that the SALT agreement, therefore, must restrict not only the numbers of missiles but their throw-weight. Otherwise, the Soviets will wind up with a 6-to-1 nuclear superiority, he warns.

This is disputed by Kissinger who insists that concessions can be granted without upsetting the nuclear arms balance. He points out that the Administration has been unable to persuade Congress to remove the trade discrimination against Russia. Now the United States, having originally accepted the principle of restricting only the numbers of missiles, is demanding that the throw-weight also be controlled.

He cannot "blurt" the Soviets from achieving "everything" they sought from the detente, Kissinger has pleaded. He stresses that the detente has made it possible for the United States to pull out of Vietnam, stop construction of a Soviet base in Cuba and reduce tensions in the Middle East.

President Nixon agrees with Kissinger that the detente "has served us far more than it has served them," as one source recalls the President's remarks at a secret session.

Our source quotes the President as acknowledging that our domination of the Middle East peace negotiations has not created a "happy situation" for the Kremlin. Yet the President noted that Soviet leaders have acted "with restraint" and have avoided inflammatory propaganda.

Nevertheless, the President doesn't want to risk giving Russia a nuclear edge, which the Soviets might use for political leverage.

MULTIMILLION PROBE: The Pentagon's $500-million-a-year Champus Health Insurance Program is under investigation by Senate probes who fear its worthy aims have been corrupted by mismanagement and fraud.

CHAMPUS STANDS FOR Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services. It pays much of the health care at civilian facilities for some six million military dependents and retired GIs.

For weeks, gunshoes from the Senate Investigations subcommittee have been visiting CHAMPUS headquarters in Denver, poring over budget records and interrogating the private firms that handle CHAMPUS contract insurance.

The importance of the study is indicated by the fact that Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and Charles Percy, R-Ill., have diverted senior investigators from their vital field study, to looking into CHAMPUS.

So far, the subcommittee has not been able to nail down absolute proof of fraud. But they have found some negligence and mismanagement in the huge insurance program. One of America's biggest insurers has been the object of special scrutiny by the subcommittee, we have learned.

At the subcommittee, tight-lipped spokesmen confirmed only that the probe was busily going on. Hearings are not expected for months and even a staff report is not yet drafted.

FOOTNOTE: In Denver, a spokesman said CHAMPUS has "been cooperating fully" with the Senate probes. It's "entirely possible" that some fraud may exist in a program as large as CHAMPUS, he conceded. But he said the program is sound, contract monitoring is constant and "we'd be surprised if anything is seriously wrong."

Panama Is Changing Attitude Toward U.S.

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copy News Service

Panama seems to be changing its mind about the United States and the Panama Canal.

Not completely, but enough to make it feasible for the two countries to sit down and talk seriously about a new treaty covering the interoceanic waterway.

For years, since the Panamanian National Guard revolted and toppled President Arnaldo Arias' Oct. 11, 1968, most of Panama's tightly controlled newspapers have done little more than vilify the United States and the U.S. presence in the canal zone.

But there has been a change in the tone of editorial comment since Feb. 7 when Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Panamanian Foreign Minister Juan Antonio Tack signed a joint statement of principles that are serving as guidelines for the next round of treaty talks.

To those who followed the course of the fruitless treaty negotiations in which the two countries have engaged the last 10 years, there was nothing surprising in the principles.

They included agreement that the treaty of 1903, under which the United States built the canal, will be abrogated by the conclusion of a new canal treaty.

That the new treaty have a fixed termination date, rather than running in perpetuity, forever.

That U.S. jurisdiction over Panamanian territory be terminated.

That the canal zone be returned to Panamanian jurisdiction.

That Panama have a just and equitable share of the benefits derived from the canal.

That Panama participate in administration of the canal and assume total responsibility for its operation when the new treaty runs out.

That Panama participate with the United States in protection and defense of the canal.

Finally, that the two countries agree bilaterally on enlarging canal capacity.

None of those points is really new or startling.

They are mostly conditioned on what is agreed upon in the new treaty and they have been widely and heatedly debated. The impression has been created that Panama insisted on everything "right now," or at least in the very immediate future.

However, it now appears that Panama may be willing to wait quite some time before realizing its long-cherished ambition of running the canal as its own.

A series of articles in the newspaper El Panama America little by little these Panamanian, which was taken from its former owners following the revolution of October, 1968, and which has been considered the newspaper voice of dictator Gen. Omar Torrijos, has been analyzing the agreement on principles, point by point.

In discussing the matter of Panamanian participation in canal administration, commentator Mario Augusto wrote that, while Panama would like to have jurisdiction over the canal and the canal zone returned to it immediately, Panama is not yet ready to assume the responsibility.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Evidence does not support allegations that Pollution Control Director Peter Baljet's state-paid weekend trips home to Miami violated state law, a senate subcommittee chairman says.

Sen. Tom Galen, D-Bradenton, said Wednesday that his three-member panel also had not found any evidence of political meddling by Gov. Reubin Askew's office in Pollution Control Department affairs.

"We're still looking into the reorganization of the department without legislative approval," Galen said.

Baljet's 36 weekend trips to his home in Dade County in 1973 at taxpayer's expense were in connection with state business, Galen said, adding that business meetings were scheduled there either on the Friday before or the Monday after the weekend.

Profanity Law Upheld
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida Supreme Court has ruled that the state's profanity law is specific enough to tell people what language they shouldn't use in public.

And while the court, in a 4-1 opinion written by Justice David McCain and handed down Wednesday, gave a few examples of what it considered offensive, it wouldn't spell them out.

The opinion said: "Let us first examine the language publicly used by the appellant resulting in the initial arrest, which is as follows: 'Gdmother f, fipgs and son of a b.'"

"Is this indecent or obscene language?" asked the court.

"We think it is," the court answered.

House Panel OK's Workman Benefits Bill

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The House Commerce Committee today approved a bill providing a formula for workmen's compensation benefits as another House committee began a major revision of bureaucratic rule-making powers.

The workmen's compensation bill, passed by a 12-5 vote, provides that benefits for injured workers will be pegged to the average statewide salary. An injured worker would get up to three-fifths of his weekly pay, not to exceed two-thirds of the average statewide wage.

In effect, maximum workmen's compensation benefits would be raised from $80 to $98 a week.

However, a key amendment added to the bill in a 9-7 vote apparently was incorrectly worded. The amendment, aimed at keeping protection of most farm workers in the bill, passed in place of an effort to exempt many migrant and seasonal farm workers.

Mobile Home Inspection Bill

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A Senate committee has approved a bill to tighten up the inspection procedures for mobile homes sold in Florida.

The Senate Commerce Committee approved the bill on a 6-0 vote Wednesday. It would set up a system of independent licensing inspectors to check each mobile home sold in Florida.

"We'll probably have the strongest inspection law in the nation," Sen. Jim Glisson, R-Easton, a committee member said after the vote.

Candy Caution Urged

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner has warned parents to be cautious of Easter candies.

A woman in Tampa last year bought a chocolate bunny and her child became sick after eating part of it, Conner said Wednesday. He said the bunny turned out to be mostly colored wax.

Statewide Vote On ERA Proposed

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — For the third year in a row, Florida lawmakers have buried the Equal Rights Amendment only to watch it rise again from the grave.

The Senate killed the proposed women's rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution on a 21-19 vote Wednesday. But the vote was barely tabulated before both sides of the controversy said they now will try to get ERA on the general election ballot in November.

Senate ERA backers proposed the addition of an Equal Rights Amendment to the Florida Constitution, which would require approval of the voters in November.

On the other side, Sen. W.D. Childers, D-Pensacola, an ERA opponent, began seeking co-sponsors for a bill to call a straw vote referendum on the federal ERA, also in November.

He already has 12 signatures, including Rules Committee Chairman Dempsey Barron, D-Panama City, "and there'll be more," Childers said.

Miami, Kenneth Myers, D-Miami, and an ERA backer, has drawn up a state constitution ERA and is circulating it among Senators to obtain co-sponsors.

"A state ERA eliminates two arguments raised against the (federal) ERA — number one, the draft and number two, the state's rights issue," Myers said. "It's a way to obtain a meaningful referendum on the issue."

Opponents of the issue said it would lead to women being drafted into combat and was an abrogation of states' rights.

During debate on the Senate floor, Childers called for a referendum on the issue, promising for his chamber to take the issue now unless someone could convince him that the Senate would change its mind.

The Senate vote was the third defeat for the ERA in as many years in the Florida Legislature.

House Speaker Terrell Sessum, D-Tampa, said he saw no reason for his chamber to take the issue now unless someone drafted into combat and was an abrogation of states' rights.

Christian Re-Trial Nears Jury

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — James E. "Pete" Christian says he left Carry Lou O'Donnell alive in his car on a country road the morning she was murdered.

Taking the stand in his own defense Wednesday, Christian denied involvement in Miss O'Donnell's beating death Dec. 6, 1970.

Christian's testimony concluded testimony in the first-degree murder trial. But his first-degree murder conviction in the trial for today.

Christian told a jury of three men and three women that he

Yawn Beats A Slap In Face

By RICH SEELEY
Copley News Service

That is a yawn. You probably think it is nothing more than a reaction you have when dull Howard from work is telling you his life story over lunch.

Or maybe it hits you when John Garfield appears on the late movie on the tube.

Whenever it happens, you usually end up feeling dumb and self-conscious. This feeling isn't helped by the dirty looks you get from dull Howard.

Well, you can stop worrying about it. Scientists have decreed yawns are natural and healthy for you.

Northwestern National Life Insurance Co., apparently for lack of something better to do, has been researching yawning. The Northwestern people say the yawn is your body's way of slapping you across the face.

A yawn, they say, pumps a sizable amount of oxygen into your lungs. The oxygen then zips into your bloodstream and up to your foggy brain.

This rush of oxygen to the head is the solution to your personal cerebral energy crisis.

Most Auto Trips Are Short

By FRANK T. MARTIN
Copley News Service

Now that Americans must tailor their driving patterns to the amount of gasoline they can find, this question pops up: How much do U.S. motorists drive now, and where?

The Motor Vehicle Manufacturers' Association, which keeps tabs on such matters as representative for most of the nation's auto and truck makers, says that while billions of auto trips are made each year, 54 per cent of them are less than five miles and nearby 75 per cent less than 10 miles.

While less than 1 per cent of auto trips involve one-way travel of 100 miles or more, these account nevertheless for 17 per cent of total vehicle miles traveled every 12 months, the association study shows.

Passenger mileage in 1973 totaled 1,025 trillion miles, the survey notes.

Trips of 15 miles or less make up 87.5 per cent of the 1973 total, but account for only 43.6 per cent of miles traveled.

Of all passenger car trips, nearly 37 per cent are involved in the business of making a living. That includes 23.3 per cent traveling to and from work. Family activities, such as visits for medical and dental treatment and shopping, account for more than 31 per cent of trips, while social and recreational use take up some 22 per cent.

The average commuter by auto travels 9.4 miles to work in an estimated 16 minutes, the study shows. Trips to the doctor's or dentist's office average 8.4 miles and are nearly twice as far as the average 4.4-mile drive to the store.

Though the percentage of women drivers is climbing each year, men are likely to have more problems than the distaff side in adjusting their motoring habits.

More than 54 million of the 122 million U.S.-licensed passenger-car drivers are women. Back in 1940, women held 24.3 per cent of all licenses. By 1952 the proportion had climbed to 28 per cent and by 1972 it had jumped to 44 per cent.

"Since then I have worked as an interpreter on a steady basis in almost any kind of situation you can imagine. Sometimes I've been paid and sometimes not. But it's always been fascinating."

For Mrs. Strader, communicating in sign language is more than just a job. For her it's second nature and comes as easily as talking.

She learned the skill in order to communicate with her deaf brother.

"I just loved my older brother and wanted to be able to talk to him. So I started learning when I was about 5. Sign language was used almost constantly in my home. The rest of us used it when we were talking so that my brother wouldn't be left out of what was going on."

"I'm so used to sign language that I can often understand a deaf person better than the hearing. When I'm talking to hearing people I often find myself doing sign language while I'm talking — or even instead of talking. Instead of singing, I sign to music. I even dream in sign language."

Her close affiliation with the deaf has given her a feeling for their way of life that transcends sympathy and reaches true understanding.

"The last thing most deaf people need is sympathy," she said. "They don't need to be pitied. They need to be thought of and accepted as they are — people who are just like anyone else, except they can't hear."

"Many normal hearing people put them down, pity them or turn away from them because they don't understand and are a little afraid of the handicapped. People are reluctant to hire them."

But she says there is no need to shut the deaf away in a silent, separate world.

"Most people would be surprised at the things the deaf can do as well as — or better than — many hearing people," she said.

"Many are excellent dancers. They follow the rhythm of the music."

"They tend to have a lively and highly developed sense of humor and they're often better, more alert drivers than the hearing because they have to depend entirely on their vision, not traffic sounds."

"Yet they're often just left out and forgotten about. Many more things should be presented in sign language. A daily television news show, for instance, could be translated into sign language while the newscaster reads. TV shows and movies could be treated the same way. So many things could be done to include the deaf more in the hearing world."

Ideally, Mrs. Strader would like to see more and more hearing people learning the sign language so that they could communicate with the deaf.

GOOD SAMARITAN: She Lends An Ear To The Deaf

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—Pamela Strader began her career standing on a soapbox in the Baptist Church in Lexington, Ky.

She was 7. And she was translating the minister's sermon into sign language for eight deaf members of the congregation.

She's been transforming the spoken word into symbols the deaf can understand ever since.

"That was my first professional job," she said.

Tiny Diego Garcia Is The Place U.S. Will Be In Indian Ocean

LONDON — (LENS) — The British island of Diego Garcia, a tiny coral atoll almost in the center of the Indian Ocean, is to play a major part in support of American forces in the area. The agreement between Britain and the United States provides that the United States will spend about $30 million on improving the aircraft runway and parking ramps on the island, building more fuel storage tanks, providing some modest maintenance facilities for ships and aircraft, and deepening the anchorage area.

Britain will provide the real estate and will have equal access to the facilities.

The thing most commentators have seized on is the lengthening of the runway from 8,000 to 12,000 feet. That will let it be used by almost any aircraft in the world, fully loaded. The other changes are equally important, however. They will allow the American navy to bring its power to bear in the area much more rapidly and effectively than it has been able to do in the past.

Long-range patrol aircraft such as the P3 Orion will be able to operate from there for months at a time to watch for submarines or surface warships almost anywhere in the central Indian Ocean.

The base will provide the means to shift fuel, spare parts and other supplies rapidly to ships in the area. All this will involve an increase in the present contingent of Americans stationed on the island from 375 to about 500 men.

The whole thing hardly constitutes a "naval base" in the sense of a place that can provide complete support to a fleet based there permanently; the American practice is to rotate a task group into the Indian Ocean from the Pacific Fleet for about six months at a time. Nevertheless, the proximity of a readily available airfield and the rest of it on Diego Garcia can make a lot of difference to the task group's combat readiness.

The strategic value of the Indian Ocean has increased markedly during the past few years, as the West's dependence on oil from the Gulf has increased and the Chinese and the Russians have gone on trying to establish political footholds in the area. The Americans have for years wanted to deploy a naval force in the Indian Ocean, believing that Russia in particular would try to put its power into the area sooner or later.

Cardinal Mindszenty Out; Vatican-Hungary Pact In?

LONDON — (LENS) — Cardinal Mindszenty was sacked by Pope Paul from his post as leader of Hungary's 7 million Roman Catholics, because he had become an obstacle in the way of the Vatican's policy of accommodation with the communist governments of eastern Europe.

The 81-year-old cardinal has been living in exile in Vienna since 1971, when he was brought out of his self-imposed exile in the American legation in Budapest at the Pope's express orders. But the Hungarian government was not satisfied and demanded the cardinal's formal renunciation of his post pro quo for its agreement to the appointment of new Catholic bishops in Hungary.

In the Vatican, too, Cardinal Mindszenty had made himself unpopular by his regular visits to Hungarian refugees in the west and his refusal to keep silent, his memoirs, which are obviously going to be bitterly critical of the communist regime in Hungary, are due to be published this year.

The announcement of Cardinal Mindszenty's dismissal revealed that the Pope wrote many letters to him in an effort to persuade him to go voluntarily; but he refused, and had to be dismissed.

It happened almost exactly on the 23rd anniversary of his notorious trial by the Rakosi regime in Hungary in 1949 on trumped-up charges of currency speculation and other offenses.

Unconfirmed reports said more than a dozen Israelis were killed.

A splinter guerrilla organization in Lebanon, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, said the raiders were from its organization and were holding hostages. It demanded the release of 100 guerrillas from Israeli prisons, including the Japanese Red Army man who survived the massacre at Israel's international airport.

"Unless the prisoners, including Japanese commando Kazuo Umemoto, are released within six hours, we shall not be responsible for what will happen to the hostages," said the ultimatum telephoned to news agency offices in Beirut, the Lebanese capital.

The statement did not say how many hostages were being held, and there was no confirmation from Israeli officials. But it was believed that they included a man and several children who were asleep in the house seized by the guerrillas.

The Israeli government was not expected to comply with the guerrillas' demands. It has consistently refused all such demands, contending that to meet them would only encourage the terrorists to further attacks.

An explosion shook the four-story schoolhouse about four hours after the guerrillas captured it, and Israeli troops rushing into the building "found the bodies of three terrorists."

Khmer Rouge Threats
PHNOM PENH (AP) — The Khmer Rouge threatened today to hit Phnom Penh with rockets Saturday and Sunday as the Cambodians celebrate Chul Chham, their new year. The insurgents distributed leaflets in the capital warning residents of the southern suburbs that about 100 missiles would be fired into their area, which was heavily bombed in February. The government responded to the leaflets with artillery attacks on Khmer Rouge areas northeast and southeast of the city.

Next French President

PARIS (AP) — A majority of the French believes their next president should continue the late Georges Pompidou's independent foreign policy, a leading opinion poll indicated today. The poll, published by the independent newspaper Figaro, also showed that the front-runner in the campaign for the election May 5 is Gaullist Jacques Chaban-Delmas, who has "the firm intention to maintain the directions" of Pompidou's foreign policy if elected.

The policy, as expressed in recent months by Foreign Minister Michel Jobert, has brought relations with the United States to a new low and produced severe strains inside the European Common Market.

The preference poll for the presidential candidates came out 39 per cent for Chaban-Delmas, 36 per cent for Socialist Francois Mitterand, who is also supported by the Communists, and 21 per cent for Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing.

Nixon, Boumediene Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger are opening talks with Algerian leader Houari Boumediene in an effort to gain influence with the increasingly important Arab leader.

There were several reasons for the American effort, including wider access to the extensive natural gas fields in Algeria. But international politics was a major motivation.

Kissinger has been trying to increase American influence among the major Arab nations in order to strengthen his leverage in arranging a Middle East settlement.

Hank Hits Just Homers? Dud Against LA

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer
Now that Hank Aaron has hit THE home run, the question is when will he get any other kind of hit.

Other than his two home runs—Nos. 714 and 715—there has been nothing but outside this season and the 40-year-old Atlanta superstar with the lifetime .311 batting average is hitting at a lowly .154 clip.

Aaron grounded out twice following his record-breaking home run Monday night. He sat out the next game and Wednesday night he took an 0-for-4 collar—two fly balls, one ground and a strikeout—as Tommy John and Mike Marshall of Los Angeles held the Braves to four singles in pitching the Dodgers to a 4-0 triumph.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Montreal Expos finally swung into action and beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 12-13 in 13 innings, the San Francisco Giants edged the Cincinnati Reds 4-3, the New York Mets nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2, the Chicago Cubs overtook the Philadelphia Phillies 7-6 and the Houston Astros wall-popped the San Diego Padres 9-1.

John, who is in his third National League season and has a perfect 6-0 mark against the Braves, is one of those rare birds—of whom Aaron has never homered.

The Dodgers got the only run they needed in the first inning on singles by Lee Lacy and Bill Buckner and Jim Wynn's sacrifice fly. Lacy singled again in the sixth and came around on three walks.

Expos 12, Pirates 8
After being unable to open as scheduled at home because of bad weather, the Expos finally heard the cry of "Play ball!" in Pittsburgh and took out their frustrations on the Pirates' pitching staff to the tune of 14 hits.

Doubles by Larry Lintz and Jim Cox sparked a four-run burst in the 13th inning that gave the Expos the victory and sent the winless Pirates to their third straight defeat in their home opener.

Lintz opened the 13th with a double off reliever Ramon Her-

The Pirates tied the game 8-8 in the bottom of the ninth on pinch hitter Bob Robertson's two-out, two-run homer after the Expos scored three times in the top of the ninth off Pittsburgh relief ace Dave Giusti.

Astros 9, Padres 1
Houston broke open a tight game with six runs in the fifth inning, including successive two-run doubles by Tommy Helms and pitcher Dave Roberts. It was the fifth loss in a row for the Padres.

While Bill Greif held Houston hitless for three innings, the Padres picked up a third-inning run when Derrel Thomas tripled and scored on an infield out. But the Astros took a 2-1 lead in the fourth on Cesar Cedeño's home run and consecutive singles by Bob Watson, Matt May, Lee May and Doug Rader.

Mets 3, Cardinals 2
Jerry Grote, who hit only one home run last year, cracked his second of the young 1974 season and drove in another run in the first, helping the National League champion Mets win their home opener. Grote, who hit just 27 homers in eight previous seasons, connected off

John Curtis, who was making his NL debut.

Cubs 7, Phillies 6
Billy Williams hit a three-run homer in the first inning and singled home two runs in the ninth for the victory. The Phillies had taken a 6-5 lead in the top of the ninth when Greg Luzinski drove in his third run with a sacrifice fly.

American League scores:
Kansas City 4, Oakland 1; Minnesota 6, Chicago White Sox 5; California 4, Texas 3 and Milwaukee 6, Cleveland 4. Baltimore and Boston were snowed out and the New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers were not scheduled.

Grand Slam Clout Breaks Monotony

By BERT ROSENTHAL AP Sports Writer
Rangers 4-3, the Kansas City Royals defeated the Oakland A's 4-1, the Minnesota Twins beat the wretched Chicago White Sox 6-5, and the Baltimore Orioles' game against the Red Sox at Boston was postponed because of snow.

Wright and Jim Perry were locked in a 2-2 duel until the ninth. Then the Brewers filled the bases on two walks and a single, before Wayne tagged reliever Cecil Ushah for his homer, which carried over the left field fence.

Angels 4, Rangers 3
The Angels broke a 3-2 tie in the ninth inning when Richie Scheinblum singled with one out, and scored from first as Ellie Rodriguez singled to left and Alex Johnson fumbled the ball.

Texas' Ferguson Jenkins, who pitched a one-hitter in his American League debut last week against Oakland, was clipped for three runs in the first inning by California, but settled down and hurled scoreless three-hit ball until the ninth.

Frank Tanana went the distance for the Angels and allowed nine hits, including Tom Grève's two-run homer.

Royals 4, A's 1
Home runs by John Mayberry and Fred Paik backed the sixth-inning pitching Steve Busby in Kansas City's victory over Oakland.

Busby helped himself by picking off Bill North from third base in the sixth inning when the A's scored their only run. Both Kansas City homers came off loser Ken Holtzman, Mayberry connecting with one out in the first inning and Paik hitting his line leading off in the fifth.

Twins 6, White Sox 5
Minnesota capitalized on the wildness of Chicago pitchers in the seventh inning, bunching five walks, a double and a sacrifice fly for four runs in overcoming a 5-2 deficit and handing the White Sox their fourth setback.

After starter Stan Bahnsen walked loaded batter Jim Holt in the seventh, Terry Forster came in and walked Randy Hundley and surrendered a run-scoring double to Jerry Terrell. Then, Forster walked Sergio Ferrer and Rod Carew, forcing in a run.

Cy Acosta replaced Forster and walked Larry Hise, forcing in the tying run, and Tony Oliva drove in the winner with a sacrifice fly.

White Sox' slugger Dick Allen slammed his first homer of the season, but also struck out four times, taking a third strike from rookie reliever Bill Campbell in the eighth inning with two out and two men on base.

Canadians Introduce American Football Ban

OTTAWA (AP) — Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde introduced long-awaited legislation designed to preserve professional football leagues in Canada Wednesday and said he expects early consideration of it by Parliament.

The legislation not only bans American football leagues but sets limits on the numbers of Americans who can play on Canadian teams.

It is believed that this is the first time that a Canadian government has proposed such legislation, designed to preserve Canadian football which Mr. Lalonde said is an element in Canadian unity.

The legislation would: —Fully ban foreign football leagues from operating in Canada and Canadian leagues from operating in the United States. —Allow exhibition games with foreign leagues. —Not apply to any other sport but football. —Set a Canadian football team import player limit for this year of 15 players or 45 per cent of all players on the roster, whichever is less.

This is in line with present Canadian Football League rules that allow 15 imports on a 22-man roster.

Aaron's Masters Hopes Rated A 50-1 Longshot

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The sports spotlight shifts today to the other Aaron—Tommy Aaron, the golfer—in the start of the 38th Masters Tournament. "I met Hank Aaron at a golf tournament recently," Aaron said, referring to the new home run king of baseball. "He mentioned that since he was from Alabama he probably got his name from masters named Aaron—maybe ancestors of mine."

He won his first tournament in 1970—the Atlanta Open—and spoiled Jack Nicklaus' bid for a fifth Masters last year with a winning score of 283.

Nicklaus is the 3-1 pick in the blue ribbon field of 78, including 55 U. S. professionals, 11 U. S. amateurs and a contingent of 12 foreigners.

The odds are the latest from Lankford's, the London bookmakers, where gambling is not only legal but almost an obsession.

The 26-year-old Johnny Miller, winner of three straight tournaments this spring, is rated second choice at 10-1, followed by Ben Crenshaw and Tom Weiskopf at 12-1.

Aaron is rated a 50-1 pick. The 1973 Masters victory provided one unforgettable dividend for the drawing Georgian. "I got to go to the Champions Dinner Tuesday night," he said, with wide-eyed wonder. "It was great sitting there in my green jacket with fellows like Gene Sarazen, Sam Snead and Jimmy Demaret."

"Snead told some raunchy jokes. A couple of guys got stoned on grape juice but there wasn't much drinking. You'd have thought it was a Baptist picnic."

Nicklaus, looking tan and fit, said the 7,020-yard, par 72 Augusta National course was in the best shape since he's been playing it and predicted low scoring. The weather forecast for fair skies with temperatures in the 70s.

WFL Texans Ambush Dallas To Get Morton

By ANDY LIPPMAN AP Sports Writer
The Cowboys have been ambushed. And not by Indians.

It's the World Football League that's playing havoc with Dallas' wobbly Coach Tom Landry's plans for next season. Craig Morton, whose aspirations each football season grew and then were crushed, was the latest Cowboy to warmoon, announcing Wednesday he was signing with the Houston Texans for the 1975 season.

Star running back Calvin Hill said Tuesday that after playing out his option with the National Football League Cowboys, he was switching to the WFL's Hawaii franchise.

Morton has been unhappy for several years since Roger Staubach beat him out for the No. 1 quarterback spot despite Morton's fine record.

Landry said he wasn't certain whether Hill and Morton would play under their lame-duck status.

Landry announced that Ed "Too Tall" Jones had signed a multi-year contract, with the NFL club.

Goalies Go Overtime In Surprising Playoffs

By FRANK BROWN AP Sports Writer

The first full night of National Hockey League playoff action was full of surprises. The New York Rangers, who finished with the 11th best goals-against record in the 16-team NHL, held the potent Montreal Canadiens offense to just one goal in recording a 4-1 opening-game victory Wednesday night.

Scoring expert Phil Esposito of Boston was held to just two shots on goal and the Bruins, who scored 349 times during the regular season, tallied only once in their quarter-final series opener with the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Chicago Black Hawks, heavy favorites in their Western Division battle with Los Angeles, trailed 1-0 midway through the second period of their 3-1 first-game triumph. Meanwhile, the World Hockey Association playoffs continued with the Chicago Cougars defeating the New England Whalers 2-1 in overtime to even their best-of-seven series at two victories apiece; the Houston Aeros trimmed the Winnipeg Jets 2-2 to push their series advantage to 2-4, and the Minnesota Fighting Saints crushed the Edmonton Oilers 6-2 to take an overwhelming 3-0 advantage into Friday night's fourth game.

Rangers 4, Canadiens 1
The New York defense had been criticized recently, but Rodney Dowling followed by grounding the shortstop for what appeared to be a double play.

That wasn't the case Wednesday night, when "Frank was perfect teamwork from the goaltender on out," according to Coach Emile Francis.

Much of the credit went to Rangers goalie Ed Giacomin, who held off a furious Montreal attack in the opening minutes of the first period and latter stages of the third.

Michel Larocque played an excellent game in the Montreal net, but close-in efforts by Steve Vickers and Bruce MacGregor—just 19 seconds apart in the first period—and another by defenseman Dale Rolfe got the Canadiens into a hole.

Black Hawks 3, Kings 1
Stan Mikita's empty-net goal in the closing seconds clinched a victory despite a number of anxious moments for the Black Hawks.

The Kings, in the playoffs for the first time since 1968-69, struck first when Gene Carr tipped a Tom Williams shot past goaltender Tony Esposito at 9:08 of the opening period.

Chicago packed its other two goals into a six-minute span in the middle period. Darcy Rota hammered a pass from J. P. Bordeleau into the Kings net

Jan Popiel deadlocked the game with just 23 seconds left in regulation play. The Cougars had pulled goaltender Camp Newton nine seconds earlier in an effort to tie.

Aeros 3, Jets 2
Three rookies—Marty Howe, Mark Howe and Andre Hinse—scored to lead Houston past Winnipeg. Norm Beaudin gave the Jets a 1-0 lead after 2:36 of play, but the Aeros scored the next three goals.

Marty Howe took a pass from father Gordie, also a rookie in the WHA, to tie the score at 16:24 of the second period, then Mark Howe and Hinse netted their goals within 62 seconds.

Houston carries its 2-0 advantage back home for games three and four.

North American Light Heavyweight Champion Mike Quarry out-brawled Canadian Gary Summerhayes for 12 rounds Wednesday night at the Orlando Sports Stadium.

The split decision was not well received by the record 3,170 in attendance, as they hurled articles into the ring during the presentation of the trophy Quarry successfully defended.

Tipping the scales at 177, the Orlando-based Quarry started off quickly as he captured the rounds of the grueling affair. Catching the cut and champion with straight lefts and rights, while eluding his roundhouse punches, Quarry built up a comfortable lead.

Summerhayes, a younger version of Andy Kendall, a previous nemesis to Quarry, cut Quarry over the right eye in the second round with a butt, but it wasn't until the fourth that he was able to get his offense untracked.

During the middle rounds the visitor from the north came in strong as the two had several vicious exchanges in mid-ring. Summerhayes used straight right hand leads with great effectiveness during his rally.

At the end of round seven, Quarry staged a counter-attack, allowing him to sweep rounds eight and nine before suffering another cut, this one to his left eye in the tenth.

With blood streaming down his face from two cut eyes Quarry complained to his opponent and the referee about Summerhayes' "butting." This was referred by many in the crowd as "cry-baby tactics," and seemed to alienate him for the rest of the bout.

Judge Bob Burns saw it 117-117, a draw, while the other two sawy referees and Paul DeFranco saw it for Quarry, 117-115 and 117-112 respectively.

The semi-final was a 10-round war, as Leroy Caldwell scored his second major upset in the Orlando ring when he turned back former Olympic star, Oliver Wright.

Using a snapping left jab along with a clubbing left hook and a sharp right hand, Caldwell controlled the action from the outset.

Wright, 12 pounds lighter than the winner, came in at 198. In the second round he staggered Caldwell with a solid right cross but was unable to follow it up when the two went toe-to-toe for the remainder of the round.

Wright, a Jamaican, had the clincher applied when he was dropped by a whistling left hook midway through round nine. Upon arising, he tried to take the fight to Caldwell during a "risk exchange."

ARCADIA, Calif.—The day at Santa Anita racetrack begins early for Steve Valdez.

He is the 17-year-old jockey who won $2 million in prize money last year as an apprentice jockey in Southern California.

A telephone call at 5:30 a.m., from his agent sets him on his way from his Arcadia apartment in the pre-dawn darkness.

It's only a short drive to the nearby Monrovia, where they now reside.

Like hundreds of youngsters before him, Valdez began to hang around the track in his spare time and eventually became a stable hand and exercise rider.

When he was a junior high school student, he would go to the stables at 6 a.m. and work hard—grooming, feeding and walking the horses—but earned little.

ticket stubs clutched tightly until the finish line, then discarded along with racing forms and dope sheets and the litter of a thousand other unfulfilled dreams.

In the backstretch there also are dreams. The most common one is to do as Steve Valdez did.

It is to become a jockey, resplendent in colorful silks, astride a gleaming Thoroughbred, racing down to the finish line surrounded by the thundering crash of hooves.

When he was 11 or 12, he began riding horses on morning workouts as an exercise boy.

It proved to be his first opening into the world of little men and big money—the Willie Shoemakers and the Laffit Pincays.

Valdez hasn't forgotten those days, and unlike most jockeys who don't arrive at the track until shortly before the first race of the afternoon, he still rides horses on their early morning exercise rounds.

A few fans come out to watch as the horses are put through their paces, but most don't arrive until the gates open officially at 11:30 a.m.

Valdez makes his way through the bustle, careful to avoid the watchdogs stationed sentry-like at every stable, and checks with the trainers of the horses he will ride that day.

Although Valdez was born in East St. Louis, he is no stranger to Santa Anita.

His family moved to Arcadia track parking lot, where Valdez eases his Firebird into one of the long line of spaces labeled "jockeys," that later in the day will fill with Continentals and Cadillacs.

After a cup of coffee to take some of the chill out of the morning, he is off to the old Santa Anita stables nestled between the Los Angeles County Arboretum and the new shopping center under construction.

By 6 a.m., the backstretch already is filled with activity, as horses are readied for their morning workouts.

A Teenage Apprentice Jockey's Day Starts Very Early

usually returns horse at 9:30 a.m. and rests for a few hours. By noon, he's back at Santa Anita again, dressed and waiting with the other jockeys for the horses for the first race to be brought from the receiving barn.

In the receiving barn, the horses are given closely by members of the California State Horse Racing Board. Numbers tattooed on the upper lips and mouth shots on the face are checked for identification.

A veterinarian follows up with an examination to make sure each horse is sound.

Then the horses are saddled and mounted by the jockeys in the paddock gardens that front the Santa Anita grandstands.

Like the other jockeys, Valdez provides his own saddle, together with the metal weights necessary to bring him to the weight stipulated for the race.

Jockeys and horses parade around the paddock gardens for the public before marching down the tunnel to the track and the starting gate.

Valdez usually repeats the ritual for five or six of the nine daily races at Santa Anita. Valdez used to keep in shape by running, but now he rides enough to stay in condition that way.

He does miss the sports he used to play in junior high school, however.

He was a 5-foot-6 guard in basketball, a halfback in football and a record setter in the 660 on the track team.

"I'd still be out playing basketball or football with my friends if my manager would let me, but he knows that if I did, I'd probably end up hurting myself," he said.

So Steve Valdez just does what he wants to do most and does best. He rides horses.

COLONIAL CATCHER MIKE KINSEY (10) MIFFS POP FOULTRY ... With Lyman runners on all bases, as Hounds win 2-1 in 13 innings

Lyman Slips By Colonial For 13 Inning Win, 2-1

By JOHN CHERWA Herald Correspondent

LONGWOOD — In a marathon 13 inning baseball game, the Lyman Greyhounds held onto a piece of first place in the Metro Conference with a 2-1 win over Orlando Colonial.

Bob Keane and Mike Jones battled for 13 innings with Keane claiming the victory. Keane gave up seven hits and Jones four, and each fanned 11 batters.

The winning run came in the bottom of the 13th frame. Hal Staats led off with a single and moved to second on Jerry Bachman's sacrifice pitcher to first. Bob Costantine then walked to put runners on first and second.

Rodney Dowling followed by grounding the shortstop for what appeared to be a double play. The Granadier shortstop tossed to second for one out but Tim Green, the Colonial second baseman threw it against the fence allowing Staats to score from second.

The Greyhounds win kept them in pace with the Winter Park Wildcats who through the last few days have been in first place. At this point both Winter Park and Lyman have lost only one game, setting up the important Wildcat-Greyhound game on the April 17.

The Granadiers scored their only run in the top of the third on three hits.

With one out Mike Jones drilled a single up the middle. Wayne Phillips, the next batter flew out to Ed Callan in left field, and Tim Green and Steve Christmas both singled.

Christmas picked up the RBI in his single. The Greyhounds got their lone run in regulation play in the bottom of the fourth. With one out Dowling lashed a double down the third base line. Phillips then popped up to the first baseman before the Hounds lone sophomore starter, Jeff Hodges, singled.

Hodges was thrown out going to second but not before the run scored.

The Greyhounds next encounter will be Monday when they travel to Orlando Evans in a Metro Conference game.

Sports Briefs

Collins Sells Tracks
SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP)—Florida race track and circus magnate Jerry Collins has placed two of his race tracks near Sioux City on sale, the Sioux City Journal reported Thursday.

Collins said he expects Sodrae Park, a greyhound track, and Park Jefferson, a thoroughbred race track, will bring a total of about $4.5 million. He has owned them since 1960.

Last year the greyhound track had a mutual handle of slightly less than $2 million, while the handle at the horse track was about $4 million.

Collins recently sold Portland Meadows, a thoroughbred race track at Portland, Ore., for $2.5 million.

He has also announced that the Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. Circus, of which he is a co-owner, is on the sale block for $10 million.

Collins said he will retain ownership of the Sarasota, Fla., Kennel Club and the Sanford/Orlando, Fla., Kennel Club.

Temple Joins Bowl
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—The Temple University Owls have been added to the field for the Gator Bowl basketball tournament Dec. 26-27.

Memphis State was selected previously and two more teams to be named will round out the field.

Loiz Signs Wizard
GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP)—The first prospect to sign a University of Florida basketball grant this year is Gret Armstrong, 6-foot-3 passing wizard from Central High of Columbia, Tenn.

Armstrong, averaging 17.5 points a game, led Central to a 74-9 record over the past three seasons.

"He is one of the finest passers we've ever seen coming out of high school," Florida Coach John Loiz said Wednesday.

Evert Stretches Aussie
SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—High school senior Jeanne Evert's bid to remain in contention with her top-seeded sister, Chris Evert, in the women's professional tennis tour has been halted by Evert's Godolag.

But it took a rally for second-seeded Miss Godolag, of Australia, to beat Miss Evert Wednesday. She lost the first set 3-6 before taking the second 6-3 and dominating the third, 5-0.

Kroc Apologizes
SAN DIEGO (AP)—Ray Kroc said Wednesday night he "talked without thinking," in berating his San Diego Padres over the public address system at San Diego stadium.

"Certainly I'll make a public apology," the Padres owner said in a 10-minute interview from Hollywood, where he stopped on the way back to his Florida home. "I used a bad choice of words and I'm sorry."

... Summerhayes escapes blow

Amateur Ricky was unable to examine the first round of his bout with the Florida's junior middleweight Golden Gloves champion Darrell Clay, when the referee stopped the bout at the 1:37 mark to prevent Perez from taking any further punishment.

The fight was given and taken from the opening bell in a five way meet at the Forest City school.

Although the Patriots didn't take first in the meet, Brantley's Ron Harris turned in the fourth best time in the state this year with a winning 39.1 Class Three-A time in the 330 intermediate hurdles.

Sharing the spotlight with Harris was another sophomore, Henry Stanley, with a 1:58.4 clocking in the half-mile.

'Charley O.' Still Boss
KANSAS CITY (AP)—Manager Al Dark of Oakland said he wanted to use Vic Davallo as the A's designated hitter Wednesday night against the Kansas City Royals, owner Charles O. Finley asked him to use Deron Johnson.

The Royals won 4-1. "I had decided to put Davallo in there," Dark explained. "The general manager called about 7:15 about something else and said he'd rather have Johnson."

Atlanta Braves Weekend Baseball ON WTRR14

Four unearned runs in the first inning proved more than Crooms ninth grade could handle as the Lyman javve baseball team edged the Panthers 4-3 Wednesday.

The baby Hounds capitalized on three first inning errors to put themselves in front. Scott Weiderski picked up the win in relief and Trent Smith was the loser. Crooms outbit the Hounds 10-4 and every player in the lineup had at least one hit, although they were scattered.

Joe Sembrina was the top hitter for the Hounds going two

Patriots' Harris Sets Cinder Mark

By JOHN CHERWA Herald Correspondent

FOREST CITY — The Lake Brantley track team has come a long way in a year. Last year Brantley's best was mediocre but this season they have posted some of the best times in the state.

All this was in evidence Wednesday as six school records were broken in a five way meet at the Forest City school.

Although the Patriots didn't take first in the meet, Brantley's Ron Harris turned in the fourth best time in the state this year with a winning 39.1 Class Three-A time in the 330 intermediate hurdles.

Sharing the spotlight with Harris was another sophomore, Henry Stanley, with a 1:58.4 clocking in the half-mile.

Harris went into the record books twice with a 23.5 in the 220 yard dash for the final record of the day.

Apokka dominated the field events as Tom Boyles won the high jump clearing 5'8". Patriot

McGuire won the pole vault for the Darters at a height of 11'9" and Yellow Jacket Lee Pratt won the discus with a toss of 128'9" with Apokka's Kindred second.

Apokka's Hughley won the long jump at 19'6" and Davis' record toss of 46'11 1/2" won the shot put.

In the relays Leeburg won the 800 and sprint medley with Brantley taking the mile relay.

Where Can You Dump It?

No Joke - Superman Has Been Grounded!

METROPOLIS, Ill. (AP) — there on the Daily Planet newspaper?

Enthusiasm ran so high that a full-length portrait of Superman was painted on the town water tower, and the local weekly newspaper changed its name to the Planet.

Last spring, to the accompaniment of a Marine Corps band and a chorus of gospel singers, a Superman exhibition hall — Amazing World's first phase — opened in a refurbished roller rink.

Then it got very quiet. No body came.

May 1 Target For Bus Service

May 1 was set as the target date for bus service to South Seminole County by Orange-Seminole-Oscola Transportation Authority (OSOTA), members Wednesday despite resistance from the City of Maitland to the use of its residential streets.

The Authority members, including Seminole County Commission Chairman John Kimbrough and County Planner Roger Neiswender, agreed to give Maitland three choices before implementing the south end service sought by Seminole for many months.

Maitland Mayor Homer Hough was not available for comment today on the three-proposed ultimatum which OSOTA plans to issue to the city at 4:30 p.m. meeting Monday.

OSOTA agreed Wednesday that Maitland may either approve a route on Thistle Lane bypassing the Dommerich area or a U.S. 17-92 and Lakewood Shores route which restricts buses to U.S. 17-92 but requires a $9,500 subsidy from Maitland.

The third alternative is a cutback in the existing 10-trip daily service due to the OSOTA finding a different route to South Seminole by-passing Maitland city streets.

OSOTA officials concede it is unlikely all service to Maitland will be discontinued, but the service may be curtailed.

Seminole County has agreed to pay a $30,000 subsidy for the bus service. Authority attorney William Mateer recommended the board issue the ultimatum to Maitland. The North Orange County city has been sparring with OSOTA officials on the bus routes for several months.

Life Slow For Unemployed Workers As America Reappraises Big Autos

EDITOR'S NOTE — People aren't buying big cars. And Bob Smith, who helped make them, is laid off. "Sooner or later, I'm going to get called back," he says. "Things will pick up." But in his voice there's a grain of doubt.

Three months ago, the foreman at the head of the assembly line in factory 26 handed him a 4-Release. Indefinite lay-off.

Bob Smith is a 23-year-old automobile worker, a young American worker complete with wife, two kids and a $164-a-month mortgage. He likes to spend weekends at the drag races, tells you he's as well off as the next guy and says he doesn't care much for his job.

"Working on the line? It's OK, I guess. I know guys got it a lot worse."

Bob Smith thought during high school that he might be some mechanic. He liked cars, liked tinkering with engines. His father had worked for Buick for 20 years then, 25 years now. Five days after graduation, Bob went into the shop.

"You live in Flint, it's the only good paying job there is. Really, there ain't no other place you can work."

His first job was putting in rear main seals as the empty motor blocks started down the line in factory 26, the engine assembly plant. Webbed by air hoses and parts conveyors, he put in rear main seals, 197 an hour, every hour, every day. "I was taking home $130 a week, right off the bat. I'd never even thought about money like that."

He bought a new car, a Chevy II, built up the engine and raced it in the union driveway. He was drafted in September, 1969 and went to Vietnam, to the DMZ.

"There were maybe a few kids whose parents were rich enough to buy them out. But everybody, just about everybody, goes into the Army in Flint."

He was riding on the side of an M-48 tank when a pair of land mines blew the tracks off. The flash seared the backs of his eyes, scarring the retina. The Veterans Administration rated him 60 per cent disabled by the loss of vision.

"They put me in for a Purple Heart. I was supposed to get one, but I never did. They never said nothing about it."

Smith can see well enough to drive a car, but the state will not give him a driver's license. He says Buick did not want to hire him back when he got home. The union intervened. He went back, in factory 36.

"I went right back where I was. I knew the job already. I might have had a hard time at another job."

Bob and Nancy met at McDonald's after his Vietnam service. They had known each other in high school.

"I thought she was a stuck up."

"I thought he was a red neck."

"She told this guy I was running around with that she wanted to go out with me."

They have two children now, Mike, 6, is Nancy's son from her first marriage. Mary, their daughter, is just learning to walk.

Living the family life, and working for Buick. He worked at other stations, did other jobs. But, always, on the line.

"Sometimes you go in there, it's like a jungle. Everything is banging and hissing all over the place. All the tools are compressed air, that's how they run, the wrenches and all that. Each one makes a noise, a different noise. After a while, you get used to it. But every so often, you know, it just hits you."

People on the line live with the monotony of it a lot of ways. Some go in with a half pint of Gilbey's gin tucked in the belt. Others punch in with two or three marijuana joints tucked in the end of a pack of Kools.

Smith sits in the living room of his home as he talks rocking back and forth in a lounge chair, twisting a 1/2-inch piece of wood from a kid's toy over and over in his hands.

At first glance, he does not look much like what you expect an auto worker to look like. The dark brown hair hangs straight to his shoulders. He has a beard, two, maybe three inches long. His gold-rimmed glasses have grey lenses.

But the lenses are not for effect. Even with them, he turns away from bright lights. His 6-foot-3 frame carries 170 pounds. The hands are tough, not just calloused, but scarred.

"You get on a new job. You find out there are lots of ways to do it. The easiest, the hardest, the dirtiest. It's exciting ... for maybe five minutes."

After a while, you got to do something. You try to work up the line a bit, get close to someone and throw your gloves. Sometimes you just yell at somebody. You got to get something going."

A grin crept into the corners of his mouth.

"Last summer it was squirt guns. Someone brought one in one day. Next day, everyone had one. At Christmas, people used to set fires in the scrap barrels just to see the foreman run. You know, get something going."

In 1955, the United Automobile Workers won what amounted to a guaranteed annual wage in its contract with the Ford Motor Co. For each hour worked, the workers were guaranteed a certain amount of money. Inflation, however, eroded that guarantee. The administration ran up roughly $60 billion in budget deficits. Unemployment never got down to the original goal of 4 per cent, and it is rising again.

ROBERT B. WHITEHILL

LYNN H. GARRETT

ComBank Promotes Robert B. Whitehill

The Board of Directors of ComBank-Casselberry has named Robert B. Whitehill to the position of executive vice president, according to J. P. Toole, president.

Whitehill joined ComBank-Winter Park in 1971 with 13 years banking experience and was promoted to senior vice president in December, 1973. He has a B.S. Degree from Grove City College in Pennsylvania and is a graduate of the Florida School of Banking. He has also completed several courses offered by the American Institute of Banking.

Mr. Fekany is a member of the Mortgage Bankers Association, and a board member of the Central Florida Heart Association and the Association of General Contractors. He is also a member of the Home Builders Association and the Winter Park Chamber of Commerce.

Whitehill and his wife, Marion, have two children. They reside in Winter Park and attend Valdosta State College, Valdosta, Ga.; Orlando Junior College, and completed several courses offered by the American Institute of Banking. She is currently a member of Instant Loan Bankers Group 5.

Some Retirees Due Tax Refund

JACKSONVILLE—Retirees who work occasionally during the tax year and who had federal income tax withheld from their wages in 1973 may be due a tax refund, the Internal Revenue Service said today.

"Since much of their total income may come from social security or railroad retirement and is not reportable for tax purposes, it may not be necessary to file a tax return," Mr. A.J. O'Donnell Jr., IRS District Director for Florida, said. "But in order to obtain a refund of the income tax withheld, they must file a return."

Retirees who worked for wages during the year should determine from Form W-2 if income tax was withheld from their wages they were paid in 1973. If so, they should file a return to get their refund. Form W-2 should be attached to the return.

Mr. O'Donnell said persons with questions about their taxes or who need help in completing their return should contact their local IRS office. "If they had no income tax liability for 1973 and do not expect to owe any tax for 1974," he said, "they can file a Form W-4E with their employer and no tax will be withheld."

Bank Elects Officers

At a recent meeting held at the State Bank of Forest City, eight officials were re-elected to serve as directors of the bank. One new officer, James A. Hubbard was named assistant cashier.

Those who will serve as members of the board for the coming year are: Dr. Charles C. Carleton, who was also re-elected chairman of the board; Edwin W. Fly, president of the State Bank of Apopka, H.S. Musselwhite Jr., Hubert W. Williams, William M. Morris, William D. Long and Sara O. White. E. Stewart Green is executive vice president and chief executive officer of the bank.

"We are pleased with our growth since opening in November, 1973," Green remarked. "Our success indicates that the State Bank of Forest City fills a definite need in this area."

The banking facility is located in temporary quarters on Highway 434, San Sebastian Square, just north of Highway 436. According to Green, a permanent facility should be completed in approximately one year.

Investing Club Advised

Q. I am 23 years old. I certainly don't have enough capital to do what I would like to do in the stock market. I have thought about getting a group of my friends together and we will pool our money to invest. There would be about seven of us. Is that possible?

A. Yes, it would be possible, but all of you certainly would not be able to have your names in the brokerage account. The best thing for the seven of you to do would be to form an investment club. Then each one of you could have various periods of time "in office" to be the contact with the brokerage firm. If you think that you

Officials Fear Money Crunch

NEW YORK (AP) — Those rising interest rates are scaring the daylight out of many corporate treasurers and securities officials, some of whom fear the approach of another money crunch within the next two months.

Capital is the corporate body as air is to the human body. Without a company cannot meet its bills and, over the longer term, cannot expand or modernize to remain competitive.

Speaking of the longer term, James Needham, chairman of the New York Stock Exchange, told a meeting of financial executives this week that corporations face a "staggering economic challenge" to raise capital.

Needham cited a figure of $3.3 trillion as the sum needed by 1985, and said large amounts of this must come from equity or stock market financing because of the already heavy level of corporate debt.

Disturbing to exchange officials and corporate financiers alike is the possibility that the stock markets might be unable to raise their share. One reason for fear, of course, is that high interest rates drain money from equities.

The Federal Reserve policy of restricting the money supply in an effort to combat inflation is coming in for mounting criticism. Some critics in fact maintain that the Fed is making matters worse.

Representative of this viewpoint is John Wright, who heads a large money management and investment advisory service. Unless an easier money policy is adopted, Wright says, a devastating money crunch will occur by June.

If it occurs, he wrote to Arthur Burns, Fed chairman, it will "kill business, the securities markets, federal tax revenues, and any chance of avoiding a new round of deficit financing and uncontrollable inflation."

Wright and others maintain that the Fed is working under a delusion in stating that the money supply is expanding. "If the money supply rises 5 per cent and inflation is greater than that then the money supply shrinks," Wright states.

The Fed, along with many supporters of its policies, maintains that a sharp increase in the money supply would only fuel inflation.

"Today's domestic inflation isn't caused by too many dollars and it isn't going to be cured by restricting the money supply," he said in an interview.

Container Shortage Reported

NEW YORK (AP) — There have been plenty of problems with food in the last year or so, but now there are reports of a new one for the people who produce it and sell it.

Raw material shortages, including shortages of paper and other materials, have lightened the container market, whether the containers are made from glass, paper, metal or plastic, industry officials say.

"For various reasons, the usual packaging materials are in shorter supply to container makers these days. And while no one seems to be calling it a crisis, it's not unlikely the problems will be mentioned in price calculations for the goods on supermarket shelves."

Glass makers report a shortage of soda ash, a prime ingredient. Refinery allocations and higher prices are trimming production of the oil-derived plastics, polystyrene and polyethylene. Heavy demand for tin plate and paper are creating bottlenecks as well.

Packagers are having to dig into inventories and wait longer for new shipments, industry spokesmen say. Yet there seems little worry at the food stores.

By late spring or summer of this year there will be container shortages in the U.S. because of raw material shortages and possible energy cutbacks, says one respected Wall Street analyst, more bearish than most.

"Manufacturers who have the ability to switch from one material to another are in a better position to weather the other," says a plastics producer.

Where possible, packagers are converting to less scarce supplies, like substituting paper milk cartons for plastic ones.

Virus Kills Palm Trees

Five species of palm trees have now been found to be susceptible to lethal yellowing, a virus disease that swept through the Keys, Dade and Broward Counties and into Palm Beach County according to Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner.

A helicopter survey of the South Florida area detected no unusual spread of the disease except in Palm Beach County, Conner said.

Some 35 diseased palms were removed from the area of the Boca Raton golf course and all diseased palms have been removed from Palm Beach County. Another diseased palm was removed at Lake Worth.

Halwin L. Jones, director of the Division of Plant Industry, Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, identified the susceptible species as the Akikuryroba palm, coconut palm, talipot palm, Pritchardia palm and Christmas palm. These species are now quarantined against movement, Jones said.

In a report to the Plant Industry Technical Council, Jones said a fungus has been isolated from dying milkweed vines, which now infests some 300,000 acres of citrus—about one-third of the state's citrus groves. The fungus was recovered from dying milkweed vines. It is being tested in various groves as biological control organism.

Winn-Dixie Sales Increase

Winn-Dixie supermarkets in the local region and throughout the South showed a 22.7 per cent sales gain during the four weeks ended Feb. 9 compared with the like period a year ago.

Total volume was $204,160,950 against $166,297,300, an increase of $37,863,650. An advance also was registered for the 32 weeks ended Feb. 9 when sales were $1,499,295,826 compared with $1,232,224,712, up $267,071,114 or 21.67 per cent.

The company presently operates 956 food stores compared with 915 a year ago.

Plan-It-Yourself Vacations

MIAMI—The "Continental," a unique new European holiday program, will allow the vacationer to be his own boss in planning a visit to Great Britain and Europe, and still have low-priced air fares and hotel accommodations based on group rates.

The program offers two basic packages, one for 15 days and the other for 23 days. Many additional options are available, such as weekends in Europe, cruises on the Mediterranean, the Black Sea and the Danube, excursions in Great Britain and sunshine holidays in numerous Mediterranean countries.

National Airlines and the Bamao Group of London are cooperating on the plan-it-yourself vacations. All begin and end with National Airlines flights between Miami and London, with fares based on low group inclusive tour fares or excursion fares. The program is offered from March 1 through October 31.

Bank Elects Officers

At a recent meeting held at the State Bank of Forest City, eight officials were re-elected to serve as directors of the bank. One new officer, James A. Hubbard was named assistant cashier.

Those who will serve as members of the board for the coming year are: Dr. Charles C. Carleton, who was also re-elected chairman of the board; Edwin W. Fly, president of the State Bank of Apopka, H.S. Musselwhite Jr., Hubert W. Williams, William M. Morris, William D. Long and Sara O. White. E. Stewart Green is executive vice president and chief executive officer of the bank.

"We are pleased with our growth since opening in November, 1973," Green remarked. "Our success indicates that the State Bank of Forest City fills a definite need in this area."

The banking facility is located in temporary quarters on Highway 434, San Sebastian Square, just north of Highway 436. According to Green, a permanent facility should be completed in approximately one year.

Skimmed Milk Good For Kids

By LIZETTE L. MURPHY
Consumer Education
Florida Cooperative Extension

Q. Is skimmed milk as nutritious as whole homogenized milk? I have a child who needs milk but who is overweight and needs to watch the number of calories.

A. Skimmed milk is whole milk with the butter-fat removed. In removing the butter fat you lose only the vitamin A and calories. If you buy skimmed milk fortified with vitamin A, you will get the same amount of protein, vitamins and minerals but far less calories.

According to the Extension Nutrition Specialists and the United States Department of Agriculture, one eight-ounce glass of whole milk contains an average of 160 calories while the same amount of skimmed milk contains about 90 calories.

Q. I know there are safety regulations for children's car seats or seat belts. Could you provide any details?

A. When shopping for a child's auto seat or restraint system, look first for a label that lists the make's name and the date and date of the manufacturer. The law specifies that all child seats manufactured after April 1, 1971 meet Federal Safety Standards. If there is no label or if the label has no date on it, you can be sure it does not offer adequate protection.

To meet federal standards, all child seats must be built to your car's seat and secured by a standard car seat belt.

The type restraint system your child needs depends on his weight and height. Manufacturers are required by law to state on each label the height and weight of the child for which the seat is meant. Also, directions for proper installation of the seat must accompany it.

Q. How can I remove tar without damaging my tile floors?

A. It is easiest to remove materials such as tar, chewing gum, and candle wax when they are hard, according to the Home Management Specialist, Florida Home Economics Extension. Ice cubes in a plastic bag, placed on the area, will hasten hardening. Then scrape up the excess material with a dull-edged tool. Except on asphalt or rubber tile floors, apply mineral spirits or other household solvent with a cloth or very fine steel wool and rub clean. Wipe dry with a clean cloth and repolish the area if necessary.

Since asphalt and rubber tile floors can be damaged by a solvent, you should clean them by rubbing with very fine steel wool dipped in a detergent solution. Hine, let dry and apply polish.

Q. Shortly after I moved to Florida, I applied for a charge account in one of the department stores. They refused me credit on an information about some bad luck I had several years ago and was not able to pay my bills on time. My question is do credit bureaus transfer information from one location to another? If not, how did they get this information?

A. Some Credit Reporting Agencies (credit bureaus) do transfer information to bureaus in another location. However, in most instances when you apply for any kind of credit, you are asked to complete a form generally known as a credit application. By completing this form you give the credit grantor, which is the department store in your case, background information about your previous location, employment and credit reputation. From this information the credit department of the store either will run a credit check on you or pay a local Credit Reporting Agency to do the job.

You can be assured that your credit reputation will follow you wherever you go. However, under the "Fair Credit Reporting Act" you are protected against the circulation of inaccurate, incomplete or out-dated information by Consumer Reporting Agencies (credit bureaus).

For complete details about credit reporting, you may obtain sheet 1-2 "Fair Credit Reporting Act" from Consumer Information, Extension Home Economics, University of Florida, Gainesville, FL 32681.

Since the fuel shortages I have heard so much about caulk cracks to conserve fuel. How does one find the best caulk compound?

When choosing a caulking compound, consider the long life as the most important factor. Generally speaking, shrinkage, hardness, and adhering quality directly determine how long it will last. Other qualities are the ease with which the compound can be applied, flowing quality especially in low temperatures, tendency to bleed, stain or to change colors as it ages, and whether or not it can be painted.

There are three major types of caulking compounds available. First, the regular which is generally made with an oil base. It is the least expensive but some brands are reported to stain or bleed. Secondly, the latex compounds which are generally preferred over the regular because they do not bleed or stain, can be applied to a primed surface, and can be painted over after they are applied. Then, there are also the butyl compounds which are the most expensive but are noted for their long life.

Most cartridges will be labeled with the lowest temperature at which the content should be applied. However, for best results and flow ease, keep the cartridge at room temperature for awhile before applying and use only when the temperature is above 65 degrees Fahrenheit.

Japanese Car Output May Slide

COPY NEWS SERVICE TOKYO—The Japanese automobile industry is facing an extremely difficult time due to the oil crisis.

For the first time since its booming business paved the way for the miraculous economic growth of this nation, the automobile industry is expected to be forced to cut down production as the government enforces Phase 2 controls on oil and power consumption.

Domestic demand for passenger cars is expected to drop sharply as a result of the steps taken to curtail consumption of fuel, such as closing of gas stations on Sundays and holidays. Various government anti-inflation steps have also forced postponement of major projects, which in turn has reduced demand for trucks.

HEADED SOUTH OF THE BORDER...Mrs. Rodriguez and Lyman High students

Lyman Students Off To Mexico

By ELIDA NICHOLS
Herald Correspondent

A group of Longwood's Lyman High School students will soon be South of the Border, down Mexico way. They will be speaking Spanish with the natives and lapping up the color and excitement of our neighbors to the south.

The Mexico visit, a first for Lyman, has been in the minds of the students for several weeks now. Mrs. Eugenia Rodriguez, Spanish teacher at Lyman, is masterminding the jaunt.

Your costs will be borne by the individual students. Seven will be Lyman High School students with five others from other schools. "We will leave Thursday, April 11, and return Monday, April 15," said Mrs. Rodriguez. "This is our Spring Holiday, so no school time will be lost."

After arriving in Mexico City, the group will tour the nearby attractions, including the Aztec Ruins, and the Shrine of Guadalupe. They will visit the ballet and witness an actual bull fight. Mrs. Rodriguez feels that everyone should be exposed, at least once, to a bullfight. "You either love it or hate it," she said. "But there is real life in the forehead and his movements. After you see one, then you can make up your own mind."

An undercurrent of excitement runs through the comments of the students who will be making the trip. Wendell Day is receiving the trip as a graduation present from his parents. He said, "I'm anxious to visit Mexico to see what a different country is like."

Wendell will be very young. Sarah Klein knight earned the money for the trip. She is studying French, but decided to go to Mexico would further her interest in archeology, humanities and different cultures. Sarah has already been to Europe.

Alice Barnes said, "I can speak Spanish pretty good, and I'm anxious to meet the people." My parents are musicians and we have traveled a great deal, but I am very excited over this trip," Kim said.

Mrs. Rodriguez said, "I am very pleased that the students' parents have such confidence in me. This trip will be a learning experience, with an opportunity to see first hand how the people live and have fun, as well as using the language they have been studying."

Lynda Dacre, a sophomore, likes the idea of traveling and said, "I think this is the best way to learn. I went to Europe with my family last summer. My parents gave me the money for this trip and I'm really excited about going."

Persons who are not sure of their status should check their Form W-2 and, if it shows that income tax was withheld, file an income tax return. O'Donnell said that those needing answers to tax questions or help with the preparation of their return should contact their local IRS office.

O'Donnell reminded taxpayers filing their tax returns to use the preprinted name and address labels attached to their tax forms packages. This will enable quicker processing of the returns and speed up refunds.

"Many persons who are not required by law to file a return for 1973 but who had to file to get a refund can avoid having tax withheld from 1974 earnings," O'Donnell said. "If they do not expect to owe any tax for 1974, they can file Form W-4E with their 1974 employer and no tax will be withheld."

VW Introduces Newest Model

By JAMES A. GROTH
Copy News Service

Volkswagen has just introduced a Dasher—the first in a string of new models that are quite a bit different from the things you have come to expect from the German manufacturer.

The Dasher is designed to replace the Fastback and Squareback Volkswagen models that were discontinued at the end of the 1973 model year.

But it is radically different in both style and power plant. The basic differences in the Dasher are a water-cooled engine with front-mounted engine with front-wheel drive and styling.

Compared with the Beetle, displacement of 1471cc (89.7 cubic inches) and develops 75 hp at 5,800 r.p.m., longer over-all length. It is also longer over-all length. It is also longer over-all length. It is also longer over-all length.

Linda Karp, sophomore, hopes to be able to communicate with the people in Spanish. "My parents want me to travel and see new things she said, Linda's parents are paying her way young.

Pamela Willis is anxious to try her Spanish and said she appreciated how her relatives have cooperated to make the trip possible for her.

Kim Anderson is one of the youngest students to make the trip. Her mother, Mrs. Diane Perry, will also travel with the group. Although only a first year Spanish student, Kim feels confident she will be able to communicate with the people.

Mrs. Rodriguez said, "I am very pleased that the students' parents have such confidence in me. This trip will be a learning experience, with an opportunity to see first hand how the people live and have fun, as well as using the language they have been studying."

You Have To Seek Good Legal Aid

By CARLTON SMITH

What do you do when you've retained a lawyer to handle some problem, and you feel he's overcharging you, or isn't handling the matter properly?

"Complain like hell," is the advice of Pennsylvania's Insurance Commissioner, Herbert S. Denenberg—a lawyer himself, incidentally—who has published a "Shopper's Guide to Lawyers" to help the citizens of his state avoid getting overcharged or under-represented.

"Most lawyers like to keep their clients happy," he says, and are likely to respond to vigorous complaining. One of the problems of lawyer-client relations, he points out, is the layman's trepidations about the whole arcane and fearsome apparatus of the law, and general mistrust of lawyers.

It's a long-rooted tradition, going back at least to the line Shakespeare gave one of his characters, who was voicing his notions of how to make the world a better place to live in. "First," he said, "we kill all the lawyers."

If that tradition has persisted, there seems to be reason for it. Chesterfield Smith, president of the American Bar Association, is quoted on the "fringe" of incompetent lawyers—20 to 25 per cent of those practicing in the U.S., he says—that he "wouldn't trust to do anything."

If that's the case, there is real need for something like Denenberg's guidelines on how to avoid going wrong when you need a lawyer's services.

Rule 1: "Because you probably can't trust 20 per cent or more of the lawyers in this country, picking one from the yellow pages of the phone book is like playing Russian roulette with your legal rights."

Not much better are most of the referral services. Local bar associations, for example, generally compile the lists of lawyers who can be contacted. But some good lawyers prefer not to be listed, and the people operating the service seldom have enough legal expertise to send you to the "right" lawyer.

Probably the best way of getting to a right lawyer, says Denenberg, is through a recommendation from "people who are honest and who know what they're talking about."

That might be a friend who's had personal experience with, and trusts, some good lawyer. Or ask any professional person who you know and trust—your family doctor, clergyman or banker.

If you work for a company big enough to have its own lawyer or legal staff, inquire there. As someone who's with the company, your needs are likely to get sympathetic and judicious consideration.

Lawyers who aren't in private practice, Denenberg points out, are likely to be more objective in judging lawyers who are. If you know a lawyer who works for a government agency, for example, or can get an introduction, ask him for names.

Watch out for referral fees. You might, for example, talk to Attorney Benchwarrant about your problem, only to find that he handles only criminal cases. So he sends you to Attorney Stuffgown, who has an arrangement whereby he pays Benchwarrant a referral fee, commonly about one-third of what he collects from you. It comes ultimately, of course, out of your pocket.

How do you avoid paying referral fees? Simply ask the first lawyer whether such a fee is involved. If the answer is yes, say you won't deal on that basis.

Home Fuel Allocations Explained

State Allocation Officer Wallace W. Henderson today advised all Florida residents that an emergency change in the Federal Fuel Allocation Program now requires wholesalers to treat all retail customers equitably in the distribution of home heating oil and other middle distillate fuels.

Henderson also said that other changes in the federal regulations now provide priority treatment for the middle distillate fuel needs of farming operations, mass transit systems, and commercial fishing and certain associated seafood processing activities.

Originally, the provision for wholesalers to supply retail customers equitably was voluntary. The change in the federal regulations now makes the provision for equitable treatment a requirement of the mandatory allocation program for middle distillate fuels. The U.S. Energy Policy Office said the change was put into effect immediately "because of the emergency nature of the regulation due to the possibility of present and prospective shortages of middle distillates."

The order establishing priorities to assure sufficient diesel fuel for the necessary operations of farm and ranch equipment, and mass transit systems was put into effect for a 60-day period which started November 15, 1973. It also gives preference to the allocation of diesel fuel for the exploration, production, refining and distribution of fossil fuels, including petroleum, natural gas, and coal. For these categories, the order states that the diesel fuel needs will be met in full by the appropriate supplier in an expeditious manner.

The order providing preferential treatment in the allocation of marine fuels for the operation of American commercial fishing vessels and certain processing operations was put into effect for 60 days, effective November 23, 1973. It provides for the harvesting and transportation of marine food products to parts in the United States or its territories and for the processing and storage of the seafood in shore-based processing installations.

The order also provides preferential allocation for American commercial fishing boats harvesting Yellow Fin Tuna during the 1974 season. It will be effective January 1, 1974 and will continue until the end of the Yellow Fin Tuna season as determined by the International Tropical Tuna Commission.

Under the Federal Mandatory Allocation Program for

When You're Gold, And Hot, You're Hot

By DONALD C. BAUDER
Copley News Service

Now that the price of gold is around $150, gold stocks and gold mutual funds are soaring, silver is going out of sight and people are hoarding coins and taking their gold-filled dentures to appraisers, let us sit down for a brief respite.

Gold stocks are now "hot." In the last several years, what categories of stocks have been hot? Conglomerates, recreational vehicles, computer leasing, fast food franchises, new issues, secondary distributions, leisure time industries, waste disposal, ad nauseum.

They have one thing in common: They're very gold just now. As the stocks soared, sharks began forming companies for the purpose of making money on their stocks, rather than selling products or services.

Brokers started breathing heavily — and as always, investors got burned.

The same could happen in gold stocks. Now, more than ever, is a time to be very, very cautious and selective.

Right now, the buzz phrase is, "Pans" in the literary critic's sense; Forbes exorcises gold investors, and runs a very unflattering picture of Schultz to underscore his point.

Fretty soon, we can expect the short sellers to move in, as they always do — often with uncanny timing — when a stock category heats up.

The experience of Day Mines, Inc., is instructive. The stock has traded as high as nineteen and one-fourth this year. On Friday, Feb. 8, after the market close the company announced it would close its Dayrock lead-telling people that gold investments are risk-free. No investments are risk-free. Ever.

Said Levie, with customary caution, "If you believe we are headed for an inflationary depression for several years ahead you can be better off with gold than anything else I can think of."

But he added, "If you believe the price of gold won't go higher than $130 or $140 an ounce, most of these stocks are fully overpriced."

I can not try to discourage people from getting into gold now. Analysts whom I respect — Levie among them — think certain stocks can go much higher, along with the price of gold bullion.

Levie, along with International Investors and other gold followers, likes the South African gold stocks. The accounting is very conservative,

Job Scarcity Forces Youth Into Mine

WHITE PINE, Mich. (AP) — Gene Boggetto graduated from Northern Michigan University in June 1972 and looked forward to finding a teaching job in his native Upper Peninsula.

Last July, he gave up the search in despair and became the third generation of his family to "go underground" as a miner at the only mine left in this once ore-rich country.

Boggetto's plight is symbolic of the malaise faced by every young man and woman growing up in the incredibly beautiful western end of the U.P., where deserted shafts stand as a haunting reminder of the area's sagging economy.

"Oh, there are jobs for people who want to work," Boggetto insisted recently. "But what are they? They're working in the plywood plant or logging or going underground."

Boggetto, 23, still dreams of finding a teaching job, and so does his wife, Pat. But they have an 18-month-old baby now and they admit it will become increasingly difficult to leave the copper mine as the weeks turn into months. His job pays about $4.25 an hour to start.

"It pays good. That's the rub," Pat said. "It pays so much better than a surface job. You get used to the money and you buy so much stuff on time. Then you can't afford to leave the mine any more."

The giant mine carved out of a wilderness 29 years ago by Copper Range Co. employs nearly 3,000 men, making it easily the area's largest employer. But even the old-timers cling stubbornly to the hope that other things will open up.

As a result, few live here in this modern company town.

Gene and Pat have a modern three-bedroom apartment in Bessemer, about 50 miles from White Pine. They pay $95 a month rent, a rate city dwellers would consider a bargain.

But, since Bessemer is on Central time and White Pine is on Eastern, he has to get up at 4 a.m. in order to make the long bus ride through the woods and report for work at 7 a.m.

Energy Related Shortages Share Inflation Billing

Shortages created by the energy situation now share top billing with inflation among independent business people as their major problem.

This is indicated in the second quarterly survey developed for the National Federation of Independent Business by Faculty Associates. A team headed by Dr. Richard Bailey of the University of California at Berkeley and Dr. William C. Dunkelberg of Stanford which probed a sample of the NFIB membership in January shows that shortages of fuel, merchandise or materials now concern 22.6 of the firms.

Inflation is still the major concern, with 23.3 per cent giving this item top place, down slightly from the 24 per cent ascertained by the research team in data gathered in October. In October the question concerning shortages was not asked the respondents.

A special section added in the NFIB survey taken in January shows that 59 per cent of the respondents had already experienced shortages of merchandise or materials, which reduce 19 per cent of them to reduce their sales, and 12 per cent reduce their hours of operation, or their number of employees, or both.

But the worse is yet to come, in the opinion of the respondents to Faculty Associates

Alaska Cruises Gaining In Popularity

By ALFRED JACOBY
Copley News Service

GLACIER BAY, Alaska — Truthfully, glacier ice doesn't get colder or wetter or taste any better.

But it sure gives you something to talk about back home after a cruise through the Inland Passage along British Columbia and into southern Alaska's Panhandle. Memories are what cruises are made of. You see a lot of ice on the newly popular Alaska cruises. A lot of trees, too. And scenery.

And old towns and new buildings. And considerable history, too, if you're interested.

The Alaska cruise ships sometimes have trouble satisfying the cruise cliché of the pool because the summer season is short and sometimes 200 feet high that fall away into the green water.

The ships send out lifeboats to pick up chunks of ice to be used at dinner to chill champagne. "Huzum, glacier ice, 1009," someone will quip. "A good year for glacier ice."

And of course, Glacier Bay and glacier ice. There are 10 active glaciers at Udenwair in Glacier Bay National Monument. Sometimes the ice slithers down with hardly a splash; now and again, almost as if on schedule for the cruise ships, there are great splashing chunks of blue ice sometimes 200 feet high that fall away into the green water.

The ships send out lifeboats to pick up chunks of ice to be used at dinner to chill champagne. "Huzum, glacier ice, 1009," someone will quip. "A good year for glacier ice."

business northward has been booming as various other companies joined the rush. Last year P&O, the granddaddy of the cruise business, joined the act to give the whole thing a cachet of success.

And even if the sun doesn't always shine, life aboard ship can be fun in an instant community in miniature, a community without worry and without chores.

There are no worries, for example, about housekeeping for the wife. And no feeling of guilt for the husband who is relaxing while his wife has to cook and scrub.

That's the joy of cruising: Someone else does the cooking, the cleaning, the straightening up and smoothing out. There are few deadlines to meet beyond getting to one or more of six meals a day which are served from sunset to midnight.

It's a life that is more informal than camping in the past. Fancy dress is mostly confined to ladies who want to show off their wardrobes or their figures. The rules of tipping are laid out in little booklets thoughtfully placed in your room.

Libraries Benefit From Bank

Ten Seminole County libraries are participating in a contest sponsored by the Sanford Atlantic National Bank to gain contributions for library books.

Atlantic Banks in the statewide library promotion called, "You're Overdue at the Library," will contribute $4 to participating libraries for each savings account opened with $100 and for each addition of $100 to an existing account.

The libraries will acknowledge each contribution by placing the donor's name in a book at the library.

Libraries participating include Sanford, Seminole Junior College, Florida Technological University, All Souls Parochial School, Little Red School House, Barney Academy, Sanford Christian School, Sanford Naval Academy, the Seventh Day Adventist School and Trinity Preparatory School.

Linda Evans ComBank-Winter Park in 1972 with several years banking experience and has worked in the Commercial Loan Department since that time. She has completed courses offered by the American Institute of Banking.

Mrs. Evans and her husband, Ealie, attend the Church of Nazarene.

Phillip L. Ferguson joined the bank's Installment Loan Department in 1972. He holds a B.A. degree in government from Florida Southern College. He serves as treasurer of the Winter Park Optimist Club and is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity. He served in the United States Army.

Ferguson and his wife, Patricia, attend the Winter Park Methodist Church.

Robert J. Hasson joined the bank's Installment Loan Department one year ago. He is a graduate of Ohio School of Installment Credit at Kent State University and earned a Basic Certificate from the American Institute of Banking. He served four years in the United States Army.

Hasson and his wife, Barbara, have two children.

B. Dean Sliger managed a credit company seven years prior to joining ComBank-Winter Park's Installment Loan Department in 1972. He served four years in the United States Air Force.

Hundreds Attend DeBary Celebration

By FANNETTE EDWARDS
Herald Correspondent

Hundreds of spectators lined streets in DeBary for the annual DeBary Day Parade featuring bands, marching units and gayly decorated cars. Marching units included the Sanford Christian School, DeLand High School and Deltona Junior High School bands and the Deltona Twirlettes baton group.

Other activities in the day-long celebration included arts and crafts exhibits, a band and choral concert and a community dance.

Miss Chris Lundergan, DeLand Junior High sophomore, was crowned "Miss Chamber of Commerce".

Mrs. Pearl Menafee was crowned "Queen of DeBary". Artists from the DeBary, Deltona and Orange City area displayed their arts and crafts near the Chamber of Commerce building. Members of the DeBary Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary displayed articles they make and give to veterans in Veterans Administration hospitals throughout the state.

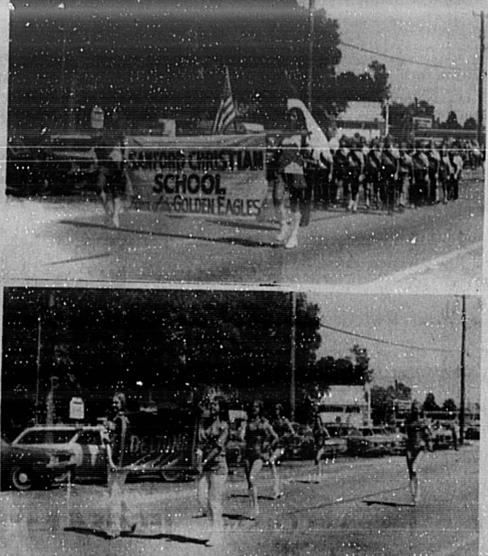

First prize ribbon in the art exhibit competition went to Ernest Waschnak, of DeBary, for his sculpture "Multiple X2." Mrs. Gil Amaral, of Deltona, received the second place ribbon for graphics entitled "Communion" and third place ribbon went to Albert E. Mercer, of DeBary, for his oil painting called "Fog Lifting."

Following the Saturday afternoon parade the Sanford Gospel Singers, Sanford Christian School Choir, DeLand High School Band and other groups entertained the crowds with a concert.

Modern City Rises After Earthquake

AGADIR, Morocco (AP) — Grass covers the rubble and no one will ever know how many dead lie buried in the ruins of the ancient Kasbah of Agadir, destroyed 14 years ago in one of the great killer earthquakes of the century.

Foreign tourists, often unaware they are standing on a vast graveyard, look out from the hilltop Kasbah over the sprawling modern city that has risen from the ruins. Agadir, locally destroyed on Leap Year Day, Feb. 29, 1960, is on the way to becoming one of Africa's biggest vacation spots, a Moroccan version of Miami Beach.

Gleaming white hotels have sprung up along the sandy beach stretching 25 miles in both directions. Foreign investors are jostling for space to build more and more tourist accommodations. Elegant stores and modernistic public buildings have grown from the heart of the stricken city.

A concrete monument beside the brand-new city hall proclaims that Agadir was rebuilt "by the will of Allah." But nowhere is there a memorial to the victims of the earthquake. They were originally estimated at 12,000 dead, plus 2,000 injured. More than half the population died in a few seconds. Others came to a slow, agonizing end, far beyond the reach of help.

The Kasbah (fortified city) is one of the few areas not rebuilt. It was the epicenter of the quake. The ancient stone buildings collapsed on the 2,000 inhabitants and hardly anyone survived. Very few bodies were recovered. Only the 18th-century battlements, built by the Dutch to protect their route to the Cape, are still standing.

"The Kasbah is a taboo subject in Agadir," said a shopkeeper who was among the rare survivors. "No one talks about it. Nearly everyone has a friend or a relative buried up there. Only the tourists go there, for the view, and most of them don't even know there ever was an earthquake."

Restructured Britannica Ready

CHICAGO (AP) — Mortimer J. Adler says the objective was stated simply: "Start with a blank page of paper and collect all of human knowledge."

After 15 years, $33 million, and more than two million academic, research and editorial man hours, Britannica 3 is ready.

Warren Preece, the editor, says, "It does for its users what encyclopedias always should have done but what no encyclopedia has ever done before."

"It is a total departure," says Adler, director of planning for Encyclopaedia Britannica. "All previous encyclopedias were based on earlier editions. Britannica 3 is completely new. It is the first restructured and reconceived encyclopedia in two centuries."

The new set is called Britannica 3 because, unlike previous encyclopedia sets, it is divided into three parts: a single volume Propaedia which serves as a systematic table of contents; a 10-volume Micropedia which covers 102,000 subjects in 14 million words with no more than 750 words in a single article; and a 19-volume Macropedia containing 4,300 articles of greater depth, some of them as long as 25,000 words. More than 4,000 scholars from 131 countries contributed.

The Britannica 3 project, biggest private publishing venture in history, germinated in the 1950s when the late owner and publisher of Britannica, William Benton, met with his board of editors.

"Let's talk about what we would do if there were no Britannica," he told them. Finally, Benton committed himself to spend $17 million — what later became $25 million and then $33 million — to launch Britannica 3.

"It was done solely for the public interest," Adler says. "We knew we would sell X number of the old Britannica and we would sell X plus Y of the new set. The only difference would be the 'plus Y' and I can tell you there's no way that the 'plus Y' will make up the $33 million. No way at all."

The editors adopted Adler's plan for what they first called "a table of intentions," which later became the Propaedia. For two years they worked on the outline of all knowledge by starting with a list of subjects and breaking each down to categories and topics and subtopics.

The lists were sent to experts all over the world and revised and revised again. After the outline was completed, the 350 writers and editors under Preece began submitting a list of 2,500 articles.

Little Miss Nobody Finds Modeling Is Work And Luck

By JANE FRENCH

What is it like to be on your way to fame, even stardom, in the modeling world?

We asked Zacki Murphy, the beauty from Hillsborough, N.C. who is appearing as the "Coty Woman."

"More than anything else, it is hard work," Zacki said, as she crossed her long, slender legs. "There is so much to learn and to know about yourself. It is not easy to get good assignments, no matter how good you think your chances are."

It all started one summer, almost eight years ago, when Zacki moved to New York City. She had graduated from the University of North Carolina with an A.B. in Art Education and was going to try for the "big time" in the big city.

While still at school, she had been selected as a college board member for one of the fashion magazines, which qualified her for a possible job with that publication in New York.

"The salary the magazine offered was so low that, although it could have been fun, I decided to go seriously into modeling. I had tried to do this the summer before, during school vacations," she said.

That previous summer's modeling experience had been disastrous. "I didn't know about fashion or make-up. I remember being sent to a department store for a make-up lesson and instead of going home with a good idea on how to use what I had, I spent sixty-five dollars on cosmetics I didn't need. Everything I bought was wrong for me, such as false mink eyelashes, to which I am allergic."

By trial and error Zacki became aware of her assets as well as her liabilities. "Every woman has to work on her figure, no matter how slender she is. I used to have those bumps and bulges on my upper thighs. With a diet, a strict exercise program and vitamin treatments, I eventually had this problem under control."

Mrs. Kenneth Boyden, assisted by Mrs. Anthony Borowski, Mrs. Arthur Brent and Mrs. Frank Murphy served as hostesses. At 1 p.m. play began. This is an annual card party given by the club.

DELTONA—The Club House of the Deltona Woman's Club looked like spring had sprung, when 184 women (a full house) gathered to enjoy a dessert card and games party, Friday noon.

The tables were set with pink plate mats at each one's place on each card table, on which rested a portion of pink layer cake (all made by members), iced with green frosting. In the center of each table stood a pink begonia plant in bloom, a dish of pink and green little mints. Coffee was served in white cups and saucers.

On the stage stood larger begonia plants and in the center of a small table stood a large money-tree with silver pieces, wrapped in green leaves and pink bows tied on the tree limbs.

Beauty Tips
Crowning Glory
The best remedy for tired and split ends is a good blunt cut done professionally. As hair gets longer it gets older, porous and less resistant to washing, setting, teasing and drying.

Natural Beauty
A good night's sleep is essential to healthy youthful skin.

MODEL ZACKI MURPHY Shares make-up techniques

"But it means I always have to be careful what and how much I eat, so it won't come back. I do daily calisthenics for about 10 minutes and find this helps in keeping muscles toned. Yoga exercises are excellent for relaxing and giving me peace of mind," Zacki said.

Her basic regime includes professional facials. "You have to have really clean skin before you can try to look beautiful. And you have to take care of it. That means, among other things, staying out of the sun."

Zacki loves the sun, but she also knows how harmful it is for the delicate tissues of the facial skin.

Even though she thoroughly cleaned her face the night before, Zacki repeats the cleaning procedure in the morning. After the 'cleansers are wiped off, she splashes her face with cold water, an effective way of refreshing the skin and closing pores.

Having dried her face, she applies a protective cream, even in winter, to prevent any damage from harsh winds. In the summer a moisturizer helps her to prevent dryness and assures her make-up will smooth on evenly. Over this she applies a foundation, one that really covers.

Then Zacki applies a lighter shade of foundation to the top of her nose, contouring the sides with a darker shade. "It somehow makes it look smaller and straighter, as I have a banana-shaped nose."

"I try to stay away from the artificial look of false eye-lashes, so I usually just apply a lot of black mascara. But for publicity photographs I use individually glued-on lashes. I buy a very inexpensive brand from the Five and Ten Cents store, that I cut up into tiny sections and apply one by one." Zacki does this superbly. It is impossible to tell she is wearing false eyelashes among her eyes.

Her mouth she outlines with a light brown eyebrow pencil, "to sharpen the contours." She then fills in the color with a lipbrush.

"That's essential! You just can't have as fine a point on your lipstick as you have on a brush and it makes all the difference."

Wig Creates Enthusiasm And Dismay

By JOAN COLBY
Copley News Service

Not long ago, on a mad impulse, I bought a wig.

Not content with a subdued hairstyle that is supposed to duplicate one's natural hair, I instead opted for a voluminous cascade of flowing curls enhanced by huge poufs. The effect is slightly as though one had scalped Raquel Welch. No ordinary human has ever had such a profuse thicket atop her noggin.

The response of my family was varied. "You're not going to wear that outside!" says Conservative Eleven, peering through the veils of her own locks.

"You're trying to look like a teen-ager," says Twelve ominously. (Twelve has this hangup about mothers looking like "mothers" and is always buying me cobbler aprons as a kind of gentle cue.)

Four was enthusiastic. "You look pretty, mom," he exclaimed in the supermarket, yanking one of my new modacrylic curls, which resulted in my side part descending to my left ear, leaving a rakish scoop of hair dangling over my glasses.

After adjusting my hair, to the astonishment of the produce clerk, I proceeded to speculate how many other women were wearing pseudo Dutch-boys, shags, or Afros. Approximately 50 per cent, I estimated, were also bewigged.

There are a number of little drawbacks about a wig. Also a few new sensory discoveries. For instance, I never realized that one "feels" one's natural hair, until we went out to dinner not long ago. "You're eating your wig," my husband remarked casually. (I thought the salad was unusually crunchy.)

Another thing, when I frown strenuously, my wig makes a startling curtsy, grazing my eyebrows in the process. This is an incentive to keep smiling.

The one person who really likes my wig is my husband.

"Why aren't you wearing your wig?" he inquired, disappointedly if he comes home to find me sans hairdo. I hate to think what this might imply about the state of my real hair.

Elsewhere, my wig is a qualified success. The man in the department store parking lot guides me to a slot and gives solicitous parking instructions rather than yelling "Dial a get yer license in a Cracker-Jack box?" as he used to pre-wig.

I have to stifle a morbid impulse to rip off my hair and grin horribly at them from beneath my nylon skullcap (a delightful little contraption which subdues one's own recalcitrant locks, besides giving one a really great tension headache).

Anyways, I recently saw this fantastic wig that looks just like

Alli McGraw's own hair. Hmmm...

Daughter Defends Her Dear Old Dad

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower says President Nixon could have contested portions of his back tax bill but did not in order to encourage Americans to support the tax collection system.

"Frankly, my father's entire position on the tax matter has been one of trying to encourage the American people to support the Internal Revenue (Service) system," the President's daughter told a news conference Tuesday.

"He did not have to pay $171,000 back taxes from 1969 because the statute of limitations had expired," she said.

"Yet, he is paying that money just because he wants to take a stand."

She said "another point that could be made is that his intention obviously was to contribute" his vice presidential papers and take the income tax

Card-Dessert Party Ushers In Spring For Clubwomen

By FANNETTE EDWARDS Herald Correspondent

DELTONA—The Club House of the Deltona Woman's Club looked like spring had sprung, when 184 women (a full house) gathered to enjoy a dessert card and games party, Friday noon.

The tables were set with pink plate mats at each one's place on each card table, on which rested a portion of pink layer cake (all made by members), iced with green frosting. In the center of each table stood a pink begonia plant in bloom, a dish of pink and green little mints. Coffee was served in white cups and saucers.

On the stage stood larger begonia plants and in the center of a small table stood a large money-tree with silver pieces, wrapped in green leaves and pink bows tied on the tree limbs.

Jimmy's Behavior A Problem

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph. D., M.D.

CASE #404: Jimmy D., aged 9, is a problem child. "Dr. Crane," his frantic mother began, "Jimmy's teacher says he is a behavior problem at school.

"His grades are so low, she feels he should be required to take his school year all over."

"Jimmy is restless and always getting into some kind of mischief.

"Is he a hyperkinetic child? "And what can be done to make him a good student?"

"For his father and I both finished college, yet Jimmy will not even be able to complete high school if he continues like he is now."

USE PSYCHOLOGY

Briefly, Jimmy's problem involved need for eye glasses, plus use of the "Flash Card" technique outlined in the booklet below.

For many energetic youngsters who feel they are the class "dummy," may then compensate by naughty behavior.

Often, too, it helps to make such a youngster a "Monitor" or classroom "Policeman," who supervises the others.

Parents also need to use the following psychological steps in such cases:

- (1) Check the child's vision, hearing and general health level.
- (2) Bolster your child's classroom work spots in the curriculum. Maybe he is good at reading, yet rates a low grade in arithmetic.

That's especially true of youngsters whose parents more frequently.

For a child may be able to read comic books and "Classics, Illustrated" on trains, planes, or buses, but not mean while gain drill on multiplication tables.

Thus, he may leave one school when the teacher is just starting 3x1, 3x2, etc.

But when he arrives at the new school, that teacher may be working on 6x1, 6x2, etc.

So the youngster may always be weak in mathematics, having lost the drill on 4x1, 4x2, as well as 5x1, etc.

So be sure to use the "Flash Card" strategy in the booklet below.

Mrs. Crane and I even had to employ it a few times to bolster weak spots in our 5 Crane children's Chicago grammar school.

But don't make home drills a serious affair, so vary the pattern and stop at 10 or 15 minutes.

(3) Help your child get acquainted quickly with those of his own age, especially if you move into a new neighborhood or new school.

This modern stress on busying children into distant schools is bad!

It actually produces more race prejudice and hampers good teaching.

Children need to grow up with their neighborhood buddies, if they are to enjoy a feeling of security.

(4) Encourage youngsters to read the comic page to you about, telling them you'll do the duties if they'll read about to daddy and mother.

Also, most newspaper comics depend on wisecracking and adult plots above the comprehension of kiddies for few good child comics are in modern newspapers.

Children prefer narrative, suspenseful comics that portray action, and that have continuing plots!

So send for my booklet "How to Make Your Child's School Marks," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus $1.00.

Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, addressed envelope, for the cover typing and printing costs when you need for one of his booklets.

Tonight's TV Highlights

8-9 CBS THE WALTONS (RERUN) John-Boy finds himself reluctantly cast in the role of a matchmaker. A widow gets after him to help her land an itinerant fruit picker she fancies and wants to marry.

8:30-9 ABC FIREHOUSERS "False Alarm" The firefighters go about their duties with great concern for their leader tonight. Captain Ryerson (James Drury) is hospitalized for a possible heart attack, and he stays there for tests while his men save a young man suffering from drug overdose, put out a fire in a garage. Then they get the happy news the captain is okay.

9-11 CBS THE CBS THURSDAY NIGHT MOVIE "The Cable Car Murders" This one is set in picturesque San Francisco, as Robert Hook plays a police inspector and Jeremy Lynley.

9-10 NBC IRONSIDE (RERUN) "In the Forests of the Night" An old love affair runs into beautiful Dana Wynter, once his flame, now an art thief. The chief is protecting the art treasure, and Dana mysteriously drowned some time ago, and police suspect both deaths are linked to drug trafficking. Strong supporting cast features Jose Ferrer, Simon Oakland and Carol Lynley.

9-10 ABC KUNG FU "The Cenotaph" (PART II) Recalling his own love for a pretty Chinese girl many years ago (it seems to be old-flame night on TV tonight), Caine helps a mountain man resolve his own love problems. Nancy Kwan is guest star as Caine's old flame in flashback scenes.

Movie Converted to TV Series

NEW YORK (AP)—The certainty NBC will make a series based on nine books about frontier life on the prairie is causing a cable car. A brother mysteriously drowned some time ago, and police suspect both deaths are linked to drug trafficking. Strong supporting cast features Jose Ferrer, Simon Oakland and Carol Lynley.

"I'm beaming all over," says Roger L. MacBride, who said he's learned that "The Little House on the Prairie," a made-for-TV movie NBC aired March 30, will be a regular series next fall.

The movie, which drew extremely high ratings, starred Michael Landon. It was adapted from one of the classic "Little House" books written by the late Laura Ingalls Wilder, who died at age 90 in 1957.

Where does MacBride fit in? He's her great-grandson by adoption. And he owns the rights to the books, which chronicle the struggle of Mrs. Wilder's youth and her family in the Midwest of the 1870s.

"I've just heard that the NBC lawyers are writing our lawyers out in Hollywood that they've picked up the option and that it will be a series," he said in a telephone interview. "Isn't that terrific? I've been up all night, as you can imagine, talking to people."

MacBride, 44, had just stepped out of the shower to answer the phone. He was asked how the whole TV deal came about.

NBC, when called, said it couldn't comment about new series until it unveils its new fall line next week. But knowledgeable industry sources said "Little House" definitely will be among those wares.

MacBride, a lawyer, said he now specializes in Canadian land development deals in addition to operating his farm. He was asked how the whole TV deal came about.

Dear Abby Even Abby Makes Mistakes

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You're the best in your field, but every now and then you make a mistake. Example: Woman engaged to man who wants to buy a farm. She refuses to live on a farm. He gives in. They live 28 years in city.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is almost perfect. We've been married for three years and get along fine, but there is one problem. When we are with people Norton is very quiet. I am forever making up excuses for him, like, "Oh, Norton isn't feeling very well."

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest (and envy) the letter from the woman whose husband wanted to share her with his friends. I should be so lucky!

Twelve years ago I married a man who was so effectively taught in his childhood that sex was dirty, that after 12 years of marriage he still thinks sex is sinful.

Need I tell you what kind of a bed partner he has been? I have had a lot of time to think about it and if I had to choose between promiscuity and abstinence, believe me, I'd choose promiscuity. DOING WITHOUT IN GAINESVILLE.

DEAR ABBY: Tell Norton that silence is sometimes mistaken for indifference, so to please try to be more sociable. But don't nag him about it. He's probably shy, and too much pushing on your part will make him even more self-conscious.

DEAR POLLY: We have added three shelves. I spent the last six months remodeling our bedrooms so kitchen cabinets and have a wonderful storage place for pots and pans. We found another large one on the town became very wrinkled. Does dump and added doors, back anyone know of a way to remove these wrinkles? — VIOLET.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve concerns the bottoms of cups, bowls, mugs and glassware. When many such pieces are turned upside down in the dishwasher they come out requiring more drying with a dish towel as water collects in the curving bottoms. This is most annoying and I wonder why all such items do not have flat bottoms. — AMY.

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell G.R. how my son converted an old TV console. He installed three shelves using scrap lumber for shelves and brackets covered them with carpet scraps and has an attractive cabinet for his room that holds his tape recorder, radio, books, clock, etc. All for about two hours work and no expense. — PAM.

DEAR POLLY — I think I was in a lovely cabinet with doors so my husband saved off the legs, put on a plywood back led a second trump to dummy; ruffed the last diamond and played one of his low clubs. Mordred won with the king and was forced to lead a red card which allowed Gareth to ruff in dummy and discard his last club.

Nothing remarkable about the play. Anyone could have made it. Furthermore, Mordred could have fooled Gareth by simply cropping his king of clubs under the ace.

Why didn't he? Because Gareth's line of play had caused Mordred to relax and overlook the danger of hanging on to the king.

When Gareth of Orkney arrived at King Arthur's court he was regarded as a country bumpkin. It didn't take him long to establish his position as one of the best knights at both jousting and serious combat.

Today's question: You do bid four clubs and your partner bids four diamonds. What do you do now?

DEAR POLLY: I read with interest (and envy) the letter from the woman whose husband wanted to share her with his friends. I should be so lucky!

Twelve years ago I married a man who was so effectively taught in his childhood that sex was dirty, that after 12 years of marriage he still thinks sex is sinful.

Need I tell you what kind of a bed partner he has been? I have had a lot of time to think about it and if I had to choose between promiscuity and abstinence, believe me, I'd choose promiscuity. DOING WITHOUT IN GAINESVILLE.

DEAR ABBY: Tell Norton that silence is sometimes mistaken for indifference, so to please try to be more sociable. But don't nag him about it. He's probably shy, and too much pushing on your part will make him even more self-conscious.

DEAR POLLY: We have added three shelves. I spent the last six months remodeling our bedrooms so kitchen cabinets and have a wonderful storage place for pots and pans. We found another large one on the town became very wrinkled. Does dump and added doors, back anyone know of a way to remove these wrinkles? — VIOLET.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve concerns the bottoms of cups, bowls, mugs and glassware. When many such pieces are turned upside down in the dishwasher they come out requiring more drying with a dish towel as water collects in the curving bottoms. This is most annoying and I wonder why all such items do not have flat bottoms. — AMY.

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell G.R. how my son converted an old TV console. He installed three shelves using scrap lumber for shelves and brackets covered them with carpet scraps and has an attractive cabinet for his room that holds his tape recorder, radio, books, clock, etc. All for about two hours work and no expense. — PAM.

DEAR POLLY — I think I was in a lovely cabinet with doors so my husband saved off the legs, put on a plywood back led a second trump to dummy; ruffed the last diamond and played one of his low clubs. Mordred won with the king and was forced to lead a red card which allowed Gareth to ruff in dummy and discard his last club.

Nothing remarkable about the play. Anyone could have made it. Furthermore, Mordred could have fooled Gareth by simply cropping his king of clubs under the ace.

Why didn't he? Because Gareth's line of play had caused Mordred to relax and overlook the danger of hanging on to the king.

When Gareth of Orkney arrived at King Arthur's court he was regarded as a country bumpkin. It didn't take him long to establish his position as one of the best knights at both jousting and serious combat.

Today's question: You do bid four clubs and your partner bids four diamonds. What do you do now?

HOME OF RARE BOOKS

Huntington Library in San Marino, Calif., whose treasures include the Gutenberg Bible and Benjamin Franklin's Autobiography written in his own hand.

Library Is Famous Home Of Rare Books

By NEIL MORGAN Copley News Service

SAN MARINO, Calif. — Gary Kurutz, a graduate student with the clean-cut campus look of the 1950s, unlocked a fireproof steel door and nodded for me to follow him into the rare books stacks of the Huntington Library. It was like leading a blind man into the dark. The Huntington collection is so extensive that it is difficult to describe. It is the result of one of California's earliest air-conditioning jobs. Its unique coding borrows from the tradition of brandy-makers. A book coded XXX is very rare. The Huntington is a mecca for rare books. The late Henry E. Huntington, the Pacific Electric railroad baron who lived on Ince rolling acres east of Los Angeles from 1914 until his death in 1927, was almost certainly the most voracious book collector in America up to his time. The collection of his lifetime has been augmented until it has become one of the world's most important libraries of British and American history and literature. Scholars granted access to the Huntington stacks may consult 300,000 rare books and five million manuscripts. Some of the Huntington's treasures are exhibited out front for the public to examine. Among them just now are a Gutenberg Bible printed in Mainz about 1450; the Ellesmere manuscript of Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales," transcribed about 1414; Benjamin Franklin's autobiography, scrawled in his own meticulous hand between 1771 and 1789; and original books and manuscripts of Wordsworth, Shelley, Byron, Frost, Thoreau, Fitzgerald and London. But for those whose senses quicken at the touch and smell of any book — even a book club edition can do it to me — an afternoon among the Huntington rare books stacks is a courtly privilege. At a time when the mass-produced paperback threatens to dominate the book industry, it is sobering to handle a 16th Century Bible bound in carved wood and needlepoint. Or volumes of the Peacock Era of Victorian times, when book bindings were studied with gems in peacock designs. The Huntington has books bound in tapestry, tortoise shell, and silver. Among the novelties here is a large collection of fore-edge painting. Artists painted

Old Atwater Kent Is Back In Style

By JOAN COLBY Copley News Service

It is now possible to purchase a replica of the radio on which my grandmother listened to "Ma Perkins" and "Stella Dallas." The original cathedral-style table model that brightened Nana's day with the horrendous adventures of "One Man's Family," was in later years disposed of with the rest of the "old-fashioned things" her heirs didn't want. Like the curved Kimball upright, the red mahogany bedroom suite, and the bachelorette Victorian sofa. Not to mention the starched and stretched lace curtains which served as my Irish grandmother's passport into the Middle Classes. We never possessed one of those authentic 1932 radios that are presently being reissued as nostalgic touchstones. (To digress momentarily — today's rapport with items from those dark days of the depression, is perhaps a bit ominous.) "Inner Sanctum," but prohibited as well those daytime thrillers like "Captain Midnight" as being "time-wasting." He also believed comic books rotted the mind. However, since Father and Mother worked, I sped to Nana's house every day after school to listen enthusiastically to every brain-decaying serial there was, with the full approval of Nana, a daily addict of "John's Other Wife" and "Our Gal Sunday." My father, in a qualified way, gave his approbation to such programs as "The Voice of Firestone," "Lux Radio Theatre," and (for children) "Let's Pretend," a Saturday morning dramatization of fairy tales that even I, a confirmed "Green Hornet" lover, admired.

Arsonist's List Included Several Sanford Firms

By CHRIS NELSON Herald Staff Writer

Several Sanford air-conditioning firms were on a list to be "hit" on plumber's union orders, a self-professed demolition expert told the Air Flow arson trial jury today. "Suck it to 'em," Benjamin Franklin Haines recalled as the reply of a high union official after Haines read him a list of companies in both Seminole and Orange Counties he claims was drawn up at the instigation of Daniel Evans, an organizer for Plumbers and Pipefitters Local 803, Orlando.

The firms were targeted because they refused to unionize, he said Evans told him. The testimony came in the fourth day of Evans' Circuit Court trial on charges he hired Haines to burn Air Flow Air Conditioning Company's 27-truck fleet Sept. 19. Telling the jury the target list was so "numerous" he couldn't remember all the names, Haines said he recalled one Sanford firm scheduled to be burned—Wall Plumbing and Heating Inc., 1007 S. Sanford Ave.—because he worked at Wall five years ago. Haines, 39, the father of nine, confessed to a string of "successful" fires he says he set on union orders, but said Air Flow was the first job he carried through for Evans. Other Seminole County firms claimed by Haines included a blaze last year at Tuttle-White Contractor's Inc., Altamonte Springs. Haines said his standard fee for union-inspired arson over a five-year period, including his employment at Walt Disney World, was $250. Haines admitted stealing power tools and selling them, and said he "enjoyed fleeing."

Councilmen Call Longwood Meet

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Three councilmen have called a special city council meeting for 7:30 p.m. today to authorize legal defense in the civil law suit filed by Mayor Eugene Jaques to void sections of the 1923 city charter and to remove Thomas Hennigan as police chief. Circuit Court Judge William G. Kridger earlier this week entered a default order against Longwood after the city offered no defense to Jaques' suit. Councilmen with a 2-2 hung vote refused to authorize City Atty. Joseph Davis to defend the action. Councilmen June Lormann and Don Schreiner voted for a defense while Councilmen B. H. Ferrell and B. L. Helms, both noting they are Jaques' supporters, opposed. With Council Chairman E. E. Williams hospitalized the deadlock could not be broken. Williams came home from the hospital Wednesday afternoon and he, Mrs. Lormann and Schreiner called tonight's meeting at the Williams residence, 801 E. Lake Ave., Longwood. Davis ruled last week that Williams acting in his capacity of chairman could not call a meeting outside city hall, but that the council could call a meeting anywhere it chose. Schreiner said this morning the police department was delivering meeting notices to all five councilmen, Jaques and City Clerk Omie R. Shomate. In addition, Schreiner said public notices of the meeting were posted on the bulletin board in front of city hall, at the post office and at the police station. Jaques in the lawsuit asks the circuit court to define his responsibilities and powers as mayor, to void a charter provision permitting override of a mayor's veto by simple majority, to stop councilmen from repealing ordinances giving him additional powers and a $10,000 annual salary. Jaques is also claiming in the suit that Hennigan was illegally hired as police chief by the city council and only the mayor has the power of appointing the head of the police department. The city charter says the mayor shall appoint a town marshal which Jaques said

'We're Suckers' Stone Says Of Russian Phosphate Deal

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — While banks are raising prime interest rates to 10 per cent, the U.S. Import-Export Bank is providing a $100 million low-interest loan to help pay interest on a $100 million loan needed in the United States, a Florida official says. "It is amazing to me how the Export-Import Bank, an agency of the U.S. government, can make an unsecured loan to the Soviet Union for $100 million at 1 1/2 or seven per cent interest," Secretary of State Richard Stone said Thursday. ammonia nitrates over a 20-year period. Both resources are primarily used for different type fertilizers. Stone said the loan from the tax-supported bank in Washington was to help finance $400 million in materials and equipment for Russian plants. Forty million will come from the Soviets and another $100 million will come from a consortium headed by the Bank of America. The agreement was worked out by U.S. industrialist Armand Hammer, board chairman of Occidental Petroleum Co., he said. Hammer also helped negotiate the 1972 Russian wheat deal. Stone contended that the phosphates are needed in the United States where farmers have complained of shortages in phosphate-based fertilizers. "Phosphate is in such short supply that we could have gotten gold, or oil, or rubles or anything we wanted," he said. He also said the exchange will force food prices up, as did the wheat deal. Most of the phosphate will come from north Florida, primarily in Hamilton and Columbia counties where Occidental has state permission to expand its mining operation, Stone said. Florida is one of the world's major producers of phosphate. The deal requires Russia to build plants to make ammonia nitrates from natural gas.

Richard Stone... Seeks probe. "At the same time the people of Florida would have to pay a 10 per cent interest. We're suckers," he said. Stone called for a Congressional probe of the deal and said his office has been investigating the agreement for two months. As Stone described it, the deal provides for 20 million tons of Florida phosphate to be traded for an equal amount of Russian ammonia nitrates from natural gas.

Don't Fret, Your Gripe Gets Heard

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — If you have a beef with a state agency's rule that directly affects you, you may soon be able to do something about it after all. The House Governmental Operations Committee unanimously passed a bill Thursday that would revise procedures for state agency rule-making and allow a review of all existing rules. "This requires that rules that have been adopted thus far will be subject to challenge for one year by persons affected by the rules," said committee chairman Rep. Kenneth Mackay, D-Orlando. Rep. Robert Hector, D-Miami and chairman of a subcommittee that drafted the bill, stressed that a person had to have a direct involvement to challenge an existing rule. "You have to be affected by the rule, not just somebody off the streets because some people would rather go to a hearing than go to the movies," Hector said. He said the bill would create an office of hearing examiners — providing independent arbitrators who would hold hearings on challenged rules and proposed new ones. If the examiner agreed that a challenge was valid, he could order a revision, Hector said. The bill must go to the House Appropriations Committee before it reaches the floor of the House.

Jaques in the lawsuit asks the circuit court to define his responsibilities and powers as mayor, to void a charter provision permitting override of a mayor's veto by simple majority, to stop councilmen from repealing ordinances giving him additional powers and a $10,000 annual salary. Jaques is also claiming in the suit that Hennigan was illegally hired as police chief by the city council and only the mayor has the power of appointing the head of the police department. Pope, Despite Illness, Will Make Pilgrimage

ROME (AP) — Despite his recent illness, Pope Paul VI will make his annual way-of-the-cross pilgrimage tonight, carrying a six-foot cross of light wood through the ruins of the Roman Forum. The frail, 76-year-old Roman Catholic pontiff will also carry out the rest of the annual Good Friday ritual, which requires him to kneel in the open for more than half an hour. The procession is the Pope's main Good Friday activity. His Easter schedule has been limited as a "precaution" because of his recent attacks of the flu. He is not attending the Good Friday Mass in St. Peter's Basilica or the Saturday night Easter vigil there, Vatican officials said. They brushed aside suggestions that the Pope is seriously ill but said he is "extremely frail" and often in pain from arthritis, a stiffening of the joints, especially in the back, that makes both sitting and standing painful.

Like The Christ He Loves, Father Of Six Is Crucified

Philippines (AP) — For the sixth year, Juanito Piring, a laborer who earns about $7.50 a week when he works, was nailed to a cross today as a Good Friday act of sacrifice. Piring, 33-year-old father of six, did not utter a sound as Medina Pamposo drew a silver painted, three-inch spike into the palm of each outstretched hand with two quick blows of his hammer. Medina was dressed as

Pilgrims Follow Last Walk

JERUSALEM (AP) — Christian pilgrims from around the world followed Christ's last walk through the holy city of Jerusalem on Good Friday, guarded by reinforced Israeli police units. Armed police and border police patrolled the narrow, twisting alleys and stood guard on the massive Turkish walls as thousands thronged the Via Dolorosa leading to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. A police spokesman admitted the Israelis had called in additional security forces following the Arab guerrilla massacre Thursday at the northern Galilee town of Qiryat Shimonah. Many of the faithful carried heavy wooden crosses as they followed Christ's route to his final agony on Calvary. Catholic and Protestant celebrations coincided this year with those of the eastern rites.
