Taking the good with the bad

CASSELBERRY — For Lake Howell, the year started out on a high note, with the football team punishing local opponents for two months. The rest of the year was not as successful. Lake Howell had young teams. But 16 athletes, including 10 from football, did receive scholarships to attend colleges next season.

Boxing great Graziano dies

NEW YORK — Rocky Graziano, who rose from a troubled childhood in the slums to become an enormously popular middleweight boxing champion and television personality, died of heart and lung failure. He was 69.

Graziano, who held the championship in 1947 and 1948, died at New York Hospital at 7:24 p.m. Tuesday, hospital spokeswoman Diana Goldin said.

He had been brought to the hospital April 8, suffering from a stroke and was initially treated in an intensive care unit, Goldin said. "Graziano died of cardiopulmonary failure," she said.

Youth lost in Gulf waters

PENSACOLA — The Coast Guard and Escambia County officials resumed a search Wednesday for a 17-year-old boy missing in the Gulf of Mexico.

The boy's name and hometown were not released. The Coast Guard said he had been fishing with friends near Pensacola Tuesday night and got into a 12-foot boat to paddle into the Gulf.

County appeals Martinez order

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners unanimously agreed Tuesday to appeal an April order by Gov. Bob Martinez and the Cabinet to overturn the county's decision to allow commercial uses on a five-acre parcel on State Road 46 near the Wekiva River, restricting the land to residences.

County Attorney Bob McMillan said the decision was vague because the county has no land use classifications restricting development to homes. The parcel, located on either side of Longwood-Markham Road south of the Lower Wekiva River Preserve, is in part owned by Miller Enterprises, a developer of Handy Way convenience stores.

SANFORD — At least a majority of the members of the Seminole County School Board will be new after the general election this fall. It appeared Tuesday following the second surprise development there this week.

Board members were divided about how an inexperienced board would affect conduct of school business.

Board chairman Ann Neiswender revealed at the school board meeting last night that she would not

House, Senate leaders try to hammer out plan

From staff, wire reports

TALLAHASSEE — House and Senate leaders agreed Tuesday to try to win passage of a $725 million revenue package by early next week and adjourn the Legislature ahead of schedule.

House Speaker Tom Gustafson and Senate President Bob Crawford held a brief tax summit with tax and budget leaders from each chamber, to discuss the differences in their respective tax-and-fee packages needed to balance the coming year's state budget.

"Nothing would suit me better than to resolve the question of the revenue package as soon as possible," said Crawford, D-Winter Haven.

Elderly residents may be put out on the street

By J. BRADLEY DILLING
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Thirty-four impoverished elderly people living at the Good Samaritan Home are going to be homeless if $123,000 is not raised fast, officials said today.

The Good Samaritan Home for the elderly, 1704 W. Ninth St., was put on the Internal Revenue Service auction block yesterday because it was unable to pay overdue employment taxes.

No one bought the property and it is scheduled to go up for auction again at 9:30 a.m. June 7, said Ellie Sanford, president of the board of directors for Good Samaritan, which has been a part of the community since 1946.

"We are in desperate need," Sanford said. "If we don't get the money, these people are going to be out on the street. We need people to love these people and to feed them and care for them."

Sanford said the financial trouble started in late 1987, when taxes went up and donations went down, leaving the home unable to afford the taxes.

"When it came down to a choice between paying the taxes or feeding the people, we fed the people. The vultures are out now," Sanford said. "There are people who could buy the property and try to resell it for a profit, but where are these people going to go?"

A spokesperson for the IRS said in these cases.

Impact fee increase approved

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

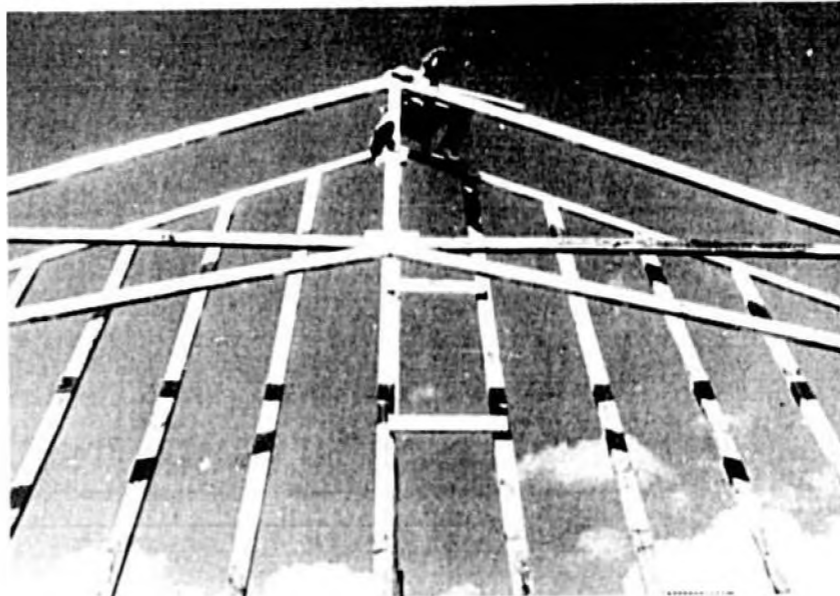

SANFORD — With no opposition, Seminole County commissioners voted unanimously Tuesday night to increase road impact fee for all new homes and other construction. In some cases, the fees would more than double.

With a growing population and increasing land and construction costs, county staff and advisory committees determined the fees needed to be increased to allow the county to provide adequate roads. The fees are used to build new roads and widen existing ones to meet the transportation needs of the people living in the new homes or driving to the new businesses.

The fees are charged on only new construction and are charged on all construction throughout the county this week (Oct. 1-7).

The increase was the first since the fees were first adopted in 1987. A nine-month study by planners and engineers from the county and seven cities revealed the number of miles of road improvements needed for new residents increased from about 53 miles to more than 100 miles, almost a 12 percent increase. The average cost to build a road increased by about 25 percent.

As a result of the increased

In some areas of Seminole County, the impact fee will be more than doubled for new homes and other construction.

needs and costs and a change in the way the number of car trips are calculated per land use, the county's $210 million 10-year major road construction program has now ballooned to more than $300 million.

A new home in the Sanford Lake Mary portion of the county now has a $415 county road impact fee assessed when the home is completed. The proposed increase will be to $848, a 91 percent increase. A new house on the southwest section of the county currently has a $829 road impact fee assessed on it. The new fee will be $1,271, a 140 percent increase.

The impact fees vary in different sections of the county based on road needs and population growth projections.

Homebuilders' representatives have said the increases may prevent some people from affording a new home.

The only public comment Tuesday night came from Democratic county commission hopeful Larry Furlong who said it was not fair to place a cap on the road fee charged for drive-through restaurants and convenience stores. Furlong has announced he will seek the commission district held by Sandra Glenn, a Republican.

In March, commissioners agreed to cap the increases for drive-through restaurants because, if restaurants said the resulting toll would increase the cost of their restaurants by 50 percent. They capped the convenience store rates.

Tax hike pressure mounting

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The pressure for a Seminole County tax increase continues to mount.

On Tuesday, commissioners learned they now have no source of revenue to pay for the approximately $1.4 million in smaller road projects throughout the county.

County engineer Jerry McCollum said unless another revenue source is found for the projects, all property taxes would have to be increased about one-quarter mill for the projects. A property owner with a $75,000 house and $25,000 homestead exemption could pay $12.50 more in taxes to pay for paving and widening portions of 18 roads in the county.

Among the projects that may be affected by the lack of money is $25,000 for a right turn lane from Sanford Avenue to State Road 46, turn lanes on County Road 415 and Celery Avenue, estimated to cost $50,000, and a turn lane on Upsala Road north of SR 46.

The county now uses gas-

School official to undergo heart bypass

MIAMI — Paul Bell, the newly appointed superintendent of Dade County schools, will undergo bypass surgery within the next few days to remove a blockage caused by a previous triple-bypass operation, physicians said Tuesday.

Bell, 57, suffered a mild heart attack on May 15 and his physicians say tests indicate that vein grafts performed during the previous surgery had begun to obstruct the blood flow to his heart.

Dr. James Fleming, Dade's associate superintendent, said Bell's prognosis is excellent and he should be back at work by July.

Bell heads the nation's fourth largest school district. He was appointed to the job on March 21.

Bell had the heart attack after he spent the day lobbying for school funds in Tallahassee and then flew back to Miami to present an award.

His first heart attack occurred in 1977.

Mystery plane baffles forest rangers

MIAMI — State forest agents are baffled by their discovery of a four-engine DC-7 airplane they believe crashed in the Everglades 20 years ago.

Forest rangers found the plane while fighting a wildfire last week. It was stripped of its wings, engines and instrument panel, and lying half-buried in a swgrass marsh near the Tamiami Trail in western Dade County.

"It is certainly still a mystery to us," forestry pilot David Rosenbaum said.

Rosenbaum returned to the site Tuesday to survey and videotape the wreckage. He found few clues to explain how or when the plane crashed.

"We wanted to know for our own peace of mind," he said. Rosenbaum said the propeller-driven plane, which dated to the 1950s, had no passenger seats. He speculated that it probably carried cargo between south Florida and the Caribbean.

Identification numbers were given to the National Transportation Safety Board for review. But NTSB officials said there is probably no great mystery.

"It is probably a documented crash," said NTSB investigator Andrew Alston. He said he would be checking the numbers against agency records later this week.

Author says Navy was 'incompetent'

GAINESVILLE — The U.S. Navy's failure to resist a German submarine campaign that began just off New York City and affected the waters surrounding Florida was more devastating than Pearl Harbor, a historian who has written a book on the attacks said Tuesday.

The Navy failed to fight off a 1942 attack by German U-boats in New York Harbor, resulting in the sinking of nearly 400 ships and the deaths of more than 4,000 people within months, said Michael Gannon, a University of Florida history professor.

The German U-boat campaign, called Operation Drumbeat, sank nearly one allied ship in Atlantic waters each day for the next six months, he said.

The attacks that occurred off the East Coast. In the Gulf of Mexico and in the Caribbean took a far greater toll than the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, said Gannon, author of "Operation Drumbeat."

"This 'Atlantic Pearl Harbor' nearly brought the Allied war effort to a halt because the ships that went down were carrying oil, weapons and raw materials that were desperately needed by the British and by U.S. war industries," he said.

In his book, Gannon charges Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the U.S. Navy, with "arrogance," "incompetence" and "dereliction of duty" for not fighting the German U-boat attack, even though he had 25 destroyers in place.

Police arrest 'high priestess'

CORAL SPRINGS — Police seized teeth, hair and marijuana at a home described as the meeting place for a Satanic cult and arrested its alleged high priestess on charges of arranging for contract murders.

The Tuesday night arrest resulted from a five-month undercover investigation in which an agent infiltrated a Satanic cult, Coral Springs Police Sgt. Jeffrey Maslan said.

"This coven was found to be involved with the recruitment of new members, including juveniles, along with the sale of narcotics. Detectives also discovered that the organization could also arrange for contract murders," according to a police report released Wednesday.

"Such an arrangement was made during the course of the investigation," the report said, but further details on the contract were not immediately available Wednesday.

Police described a 34-year-old woman, Linda Barazec, as the group's "high priestess." She and two others were arrested during a search at a home police called "the location of the Satanic cult."

Cigarette counterfeiters convicted

Scheme to sell fake Winstons foiled by U.S., Cuban officials

United Press International

MIAMI — A former R.J. Reynolds employee and two other men were convicted of participating in a Cuban government scheme to manufacture counterfeit Winston cigarettes in Havana and then sell them in Europe.

A U.S. District Court jury deliberated nine hours, finding the trio guilty Tuesday of violating the Trading with the Enemy Act and the Export Administration Act.

The counterfeit operation was undertaken with the full cooperation of the Cuban government's ministry of the interior, said Assistant U. S. Attorney Paul Pelletier.

"It was a government-sponsored production," Pelletier said. "The Cuban government was to profit after the first six months of production in the amount of $2 million."

The export ring was headed by Emilio Ortiz De Zevallos, 48, a Peruvian citizen who operated an exporting business in the free-trade zone in Colon, Panama.

Pelletier said Zevallos arranged the shipment of $180,000 worth of cigarette packaging machinery and other supplies from Miami through Panama to a cigarette plant in Havana. Three shipments took place in October 1988.

Such shipments are illegal under a U.S. embargo of Cuba.

Once the equipment was in Cuba, defendant Michael Macko, a former engineer with R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. in North Carolina, traveled to Havana to get the equipment running, Pelletier said.

The third defendant, Frank Van Ameringen, 70, of West Palm Beach, introduced Macko to Zevallos in order to set the stage for the counterfeiting.

Pelletier said. Each of the defendants faced 15 to 21 months in prison.

U.S. investigators contend that Gen. Manuel Noriega, while commanding the Panama Defense Force, profited personally by allowing the free-trade zone to be used to ship goods from the United States to Cuba.

Pelletier would not comment on possible involvement by Noriega, and said he had no direct knowledge of involvement by Cuban President Fidel Castro.

Prosecutors said that according to documents seized during the investigation, the Cuban factory was expected to produce up to 4,000 cases of counterfeit Winston cigarettes per month.

Gasoline in city sewers paralyzes business district

United Press International

ST. PETERSBURG — An undetermined amount of gasoline apparently dumped into the city's sewer system forced the evacuation Tuesday of a 30-block area in the downtown business district, city officials said.

"Apparently someone out of laziness or greed may have just dumped it down a manhole. It's probably safe to say that at least a tanker load of gasoline was dumped," said Ross Gordon, a St. Petersburg police spokesman.

Firefighters began receiving reports of a gasoline odor in a residential section adjacent to the business district late Monday, Gordon said.

Fumes apparently ignited by a pilot light sparked a house fire at 9:30 p.m. Monday, causing an estimated $150,000 in damage, fire investigators said.

Sparking sparks from a match or a car might ignite another blaze, police evacuated the downtown section, including a federal office building, shortly before noon Tuesday.

The area was reopened at about 2 p.m. after officials determined that most of the gasoline had dissipated in the sewer system.

"The bulk went through the treatment plant last night. Very little remains to come through today," said David Shulmister, manager of the Albert Whitted Water Reclamation Facility.

"The effluent quality just suffered very briefly. It was barely noticeable. I was rather surprised we didn't see a big effect on the treatment plant," Shulmister said.

RACIAL UNREST

Pastor urges 'eye-for-eye' justice against blacks accused of killing white teenager

United Press International

BROOKSVILLE — About 350 mourners who packed a small wood-frame funeral home Tuesday to bid farewell to a white teenager heard a pastor call for "eye-for-eye" justice against the blacks accused in his beating death.

"I believe in an eye for an eye, and I hope you get justice," the Rev. Ed Gardner told mourners during a 15-minute service for Russell Coats.

Coats, 19, was killed Saturday in a brawl between 17 black youths and 12 to 16 white youths, Police Chief Ed Tichner said. Four juveniles and two adults, all black, were charged with first-degree murder in connection with his death.

Coats was beaten to death with clubs, boards and tire irons, apparently as he sought to break up the fight, Tichner said.

Gardner later denied making the "eye-for-an-eye" statement after receiving several calls from the media. "I didn't say it. If somebody else said it, it may have happened when people were waiting by the podium. Whoever said it is looking for some attention," Gardner said.

But several reporters present at the funeral, including one representing United Press International, recalled hearing Gardner make the remark.

Coats' father, Gene Coats, had demanded that blacks be excluded from his son's funeral. Hernando County school officials agreed not to excuse black students to attend the funeral, and the only blacks at the service were two Tampa television reporters.

Officers of the Brooksville Police Department, the Hernando County Sheriff's office and the Florida Highway Patrol stood by outside the Turner Funeral Home and the Brooksville Cemetery to prevent any clashes. None was reported.

"We're hoping that everything remains calm," Tichner said after the service. "We've had some reports that some black groups might be demonstrating some time today. But nothing has happened so far."

The elder Coats and about 20 other mourners wore blue jeans and T-shirts in a tribute to the youth, who was buried in the same attire. Many of the others in attendance were casually dressed high school students.

The younger Coats was "more concerned, it seemed, about work, the future and education than going out and having a good time," Gardner said. "It is such a tragedy for this time to be necessary."

Gardner attributed Coats' death to "the evil that prevails in the world."

Authorities, concerned about the potential for racial violence, have increased security at local schools and tried to keep calm in the community.

Tichner said media attention and the turnout for Coats' funeral rivaled most services held for law enforcement officers.

One black community leader said he understood Gene Coats' desire for a service without blacks in attendance. "That's a family's privilege, and a family's right. If that's what they so desire," said the Rev. Lee Inmon, pastor of the black Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church.

Tony Bastanzio, former Imperial Wizard of the Dixie Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, said his group will rally June 16 if prosecutors do not bring federal civil rights charges against the blacks accused of beating the youth to death.

Residents of a black neighborhood in south Brooksville said no demonstration was planned to counter their exclusion from the funeral service.

"If something was going to happen, it would have happened the same day as the fight," said one black man, who did not want to be identified for fear of retribution. "I feel sorry for the guy who got killed, and I think the guys they arrested deserve to go to jail."

Police identified those arrested as Bobby Owens, 19; Sammy Lee, 21; Jonathan Mathis, 18, and John W. Smith, 18, all of Brooksville. A 15-year-old and 16-year-old also were arrested, but police did not release their identities because of their ages.

The adults were being held without bond in the Hernando County Jail.

Hazardous chemical found in herbicide sprayed at firehouses

United Press International

WINTER PARK — Tests indicate that a weed killer sprayed by mistake at two city fire stations contained a hazardous chemical but not the toxic chemical 2,4-D, as was feared, city officials disclosed Tuesday.

The spray, mislabeled as bug killer by a distributor, was applied by city workers two weeks ago.

Firefighters who complained of headaches and other minor health problems have been working out of temporary quarters since May 11.

A laboratory that tested the herbicide reported that it found no traces of 2,4-D in samples, although the herbicide is supposed to contain the chemical, said Deputy Fire Chief Larry Grainger.

The chemical, also known as dichlorophenoxyacetic, is a hormone-based toxic acid effective against broad-leaf weeds that also kills rats and can cause eye and skin damage to humans.

However, tests identified 4.06 percent of the solution tested as prometon, or isopropylamine, a highly flammable tissue irritant that is dangerous at levels of 5 parts per million in the air.

City Manager Anthony Barrett said crews were removing carpets, baseboards and floor tile from the affected areas, and the buildings would be tested before firefighters would be allowed to return.

Firefighters assigned to one fire station were still working out of a hotel Tuesday, Grainger said.

The crew assigned to the second station moved out of vacant hospital rooms at Winter Park Hospital Monday evening and into a mobile home parked just outside their station, Grainger said.

POLICE BRIEFS

Man threatens girl

WINTER PARK — A 14-year-old girl told Seminole County sheriff's deputies a man grabbed her by the neck and threatened to rape her as she walked from a friend's house on Peruvian Road, rural Winter Park, in the Eastbrook subdivision. The girl said she kicked the man and managed to break free and run away at about 8:20 a.m. Tuesday. However, deputies reported the girl had a cut on her left arm, which she said the man inflicted with a boxcutter.

Maintenance man accused of theft

LAKE MARY — K-mart security workers who suspected camera equipment was being stolen after hours from the store set up video surveillance, which led to the arrest of a maintenance man.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies report Oliver D. Barber, 32, 212 W. Fourth St., Sanford, is accused of stealing more than $600 worth of items as he worked at night at 3639 Lake Emma Road, over the past month. He was arrested at the store on a charge of grand theft at 9:20 a.m. Tuesday, after store workers showed deputies a video tape of Barber allegedly stealing items from a display case.

Deputies also reported that when confronted by store representative, Tuesday, Barber allegedly had a pair of stolen sandals, four packs of cigarettes and a pack of gum hidden in his clothing.

Altamonte man arrested after threat

CASSELBERRY — A man who allegedly argued with a woman as he moved his belongings out of her house was arrested there by Casselberry police after allegedly threatening the woman with a handgun.

Police charged Dale Troy Stanley 54, 814 Orienta Blvd., Apt. C, Altamonte Springs, with aggravated assault. He was arrested at the victim's house at 510 Iris Road, Casselberry, at about midnight Tuesday. The victim said the suspect shoved her into a chair and pulled her phone out of the wall before threatening her with a gun. She fled from the house.

Complaints lead to drug arrest

SANFORD — City police who received several complaints about drug-related activity on North Palmetto Avenue, Sanford, report arresting a man who ran when they arrived there at about 10 p.m. Tuesday.

Police said William LeRoy Tolbert, 32, 1701 W. 13th St., Sanford, was charged with possession of cocaine and drug paraphernalia and resisting arrest without violence after a pipe was found in his pocket and cocaine was found near him on the ground.

Man arrested on weapon, drug charges

LAKE MARY — Damon Ian Ralston, 20, 1920 Lake Reservoir Lane, Sanford, was charged with carrying a concealed weapon and possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana after Lake Mary police stopped his car and saw a knife on the console.

Ralston was arrested at 12:15 a.m. Tuesday on County Road 15, Lake Mary. Police said they found a partially smoked pot cigarette in the car, along with a baseball bat hidden under a shirt near the seat.

Seminole County DUI arrests

SANFORD — The following persons face a charge of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

- Shotsup Sansanan, 21, 522 Hillcrest St., Altamonte Springs, was arrested at 2:23 a.m. Tuesday on Palm Springs Drive, Altamonte Springs, was arrested after his truck appeared to be speeding and traveling erratically on State Road 436, police said.
- John Richard Youhman, 36, 2821 Sanford Ave., Sanford, was arrested at 1:27 a.m. Tuesday after his car was seen weaving on Sanford Avenue, Sanford. He was also charged with careless driving and driving with a suspended license.

Sex education bill hits obstacles

By MICHAEL MOLINE
UPI writer

TALLAHASSEE — Conservatives failed Tuesday to persuade the House to add tough anti-abortion provisions to legislation requiring sex and family education at all grade levels and promoting school-based health clinics.

The measure's sponsors also beat back attempts to strip the bill (CS-HB 1789) of the proposed $6-million grant program for local school clinics, where students could be treated for everything from sore throats to pregnancy.

However, the Senate version of the legislation ran into trouble in the Finance and Tax Committee, which ran into its scheduled time of adjournment before the measure could be voted up or down.

The effect was to leave the Senate version of the bill in parliamentary limbo, although sponsors could seek a special committee hearing on the bill or try to bring it up on the floor.

The full House was scheduled to vote on final passage of the bill on Wednesday.

In debating amendments Tuesday, conservative forces lost a series of narrow votes and left the chamber grumbling. Carole Griffin, lobbyist for an array of conservative groups, warned the votes would haunt some members during this fall's campaigns.

"I think there's going to be a lot of explaining that's going to have to go on in a lot of the districts in this state," Griffin said.

But Rep. George Albright, R-Ocala, an abortion opponent who co-sponsored the bill to try to eliminate the need for that procedure among teens, reacted angrily to the conservative assaults.

"There's an element in society out there that doesn't believe that children should have access to information to make their own decisions," Albright said.

"I have a lot of faith in Florida's children, that given the information, they will make the right decision on every issue. How can you make a decision to abstain or not abstain (from sex) unless you're given the information about the consequences of either?"

The bill is also a bid to dampen Florida's teen pregnancy rate. In 1988, nearly 20 percent of the births in Florida were to teenagers, two-thirds of whom were unmarried and required extensive and costly social services.

The bill extends the existing sales tax to currently exempt health clubs, raising $9 million to operate school clinics and $3 million to fund a mandatory curriculum in kindergarten through 12th grade.

Victim says gunman set off by trim

United Press International

MELBOURNE BEACH — One of two people shot by a distraught church member said Tuesday the gunman was upset over minor remodeling work at the church and killed himself at the very beginning of a six-hour standoff.

"He shot me at 9:20 (Monday morning), and he shot himself about 9:25. It was in the next room, but I could see," said George Smodell, 62, the deacon of St. Sebastian Episcopal Church.

Authorities waited outside the church for about six hours before entering the building to find the gunman. Douglas James Pearson, dead of a gunshot wound to the head.

An autopsy performed Tuesday indicated Pearson died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the left side of the head, said Joan Heller with the Brevard County sheriff's office.

Smodell was in stable condition Tuesday at Holmes Regional Medical Center in Melbourne. A bullet from a .45-caliber pistol — one of two guns Pearson carried — pierced Smodell's left leg and penetrated his right leg, fracturing a bone.

Pearson, 47, also shot Diane Conaroe, the wife of another church official, at her home before going to the church, Heller said. Conaroe was listed in critical but stable condition Tuesday at Holmes, said hospital spokeswoman Valerie Davis.

Smodell said Pearson, head of a major church remodeling project, entered the church office and fired into a telephone and a wall before ordering church secretary Barbara Baldwin and painter David Oraboni to leave.

"He said that he was going to have to shoot me because I disagreed with him (about) a bunch of molding, a real big issue," Smodell said.

Road-E-O drivers round up honors

Drivers honor outgoing director of transportation

By NICK PPRIFAUPE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Richard Wells, assistant superintendent for facilities and transportation for Seminole County schools, last night presented honors to the county's 1989-90 Bus Road-E-O team, who placed second in this year's state competition.

"Imagine maneuvering a 40-foot long school bus through a course where at times you only have a two-inch clearance," Wells said.

"There has only been school bus driving competition for the past seven years, and Seminole County has placed in the top three seven times," Wells said. During the April 20 and 21 competition in Sarasota, the team placed second, coming to within only five points of taking first place. Through driving skills and written tests, 535 points were possible.

This year's team members were Debbie Burkhardt, Kate Calloway, Teresa Chapman, Juanita Lane, Bonnie Williamson, and alternate Stan Kmitt. Also, for the fourth time in seven years, Seminole County has the state individual champion, Stella "Kate" Calloway, who will represent the county and the state at the national competition in Seattle, Wash., in July.

At the conclusion of the awards presentations, Calloway presented a plaque and floral bouquet on behalf of the Road-E-O team to Benny Arnold, school transportation director.

Prior to the start of last night's meeting, other bus drivers gathered in the lobby of the School Board headquarters at 1211 Mellonville Ave., carrying posters calling for the reinstatement of Arnold. The board announced last month that his contract would not be renewed.

Later in the evening, however, the board approved hiring Jerry Klein, of Pembroke Pines, to replace Arnold. Klein holds a master's of business administration in transportation management. He currently serves Dade County Public Schools as coordinator for transportation operations, training, personnel and administration.

PRIDE, scholarship winners honored

From staff reports

SANFORD — The Seminole County School Board Department of Curriculum Services announced the State Commissioner of Education PRIDE Awards at the opening of Tuesday night's Seminole County School Board meeting.

PRIDE, an acronym for Florida's Program to Recognize Initiative and Distinction in Education, is conducted annually with certificates of excellence, plaques and cash awards in mathematics, science, social studies and writing.

Amy E. Campbell of Lyman High School was singled out for honors in writing; John David Bandy, also of Lyman, received the Pride award for science; Michael E. Sabine of Lake Mary High School was the regional winner in social studies, and Neil A. Steiner of Lake Brantley High School won the award for mathematics.

In order to be eligible for the PRIDE awards, a student must have a 3.5 average or above, based on a 4.0 scale for academic courses, must have scored at the 90th percentile or above in required testing, and must be enrolled

Southern Bell to issue refunds

From staff, wire reports

SANFORD — Local Southern Bell customers should see about a $2 refund in their July telephone bill, their share of a refund totaling about $15 million, a state official said Tuesday.

Public Counsel Jack Shreve, who represents citizens' interest before the Florida Public Service Commission, said the recommended refund is yet another rebate to customers of excess earnings by Southern Bell in 1987.

The settlement, if approved in June by the PSC, would bring the amount of refunds by Southern Bell in the 1987 case to $36 million.

Larry Strickler, spokesperson for Southern Bell offices in Seminole County, said the one-time residential refund varies from about $2 to $2.50 throughout the state. Commercial customers should see one-time refunds varying from $6 to $7.50.

"We're pleased we've reached a final decision and can get on with it," Strickler said.

Shreve's office has been instrumental in winning the refunds for customers of the state's largest telephone utility. In 1986, the company and its parent, AT&T, agreed to a stipulation calling for a refund of 1987 earnings in excess of 15 percent of its return on equity.

In March 1988, the utility suggested to the PSC that it approve a refund amounting to $21.1 million. The PSC staff endorsed the suggestion in June, but Shreve and his staff pressed for a further investigation and an even larger refund.

The PSC agreed to the $21.1 million refund — which was returned to customers as a credit on their August 1988 bills — but left the issue open for further discussion.

Several months later, in February 1989, Southern Bell suggested an additional refund of $7.3 million to close the account. The commission agreed in November and ordered what it termed a "final refund" in that amount.

Again, however, Shreve's office refused to agree. Further investigation followed, and the PSC staff ended up agreeing with Shreve and his staff that the refund should be approximately $11.8 million, plus $3.2 million in interest.

That is the $15-million amount stipulated in the recent agreement. If authorized by the commission, it will be rebated as a credit to all residential and business single and multi-line customers of record as of May 15, 1990.

Southern Bell is based in Miami and has about 4.3-million phone lines in 24 of Florida's 67 counties.

Stop being stingy with the IMF

After three years of rancorous negotiations, the members of the International Monetary Fund have agreed to increase money to aid the struggling economies of Eastern Europe and the evermore impoverished Third World debtor nations. But the size of the increase is far too small, mainly because of opposition of the United States.

Since voting strength in the IMF is weighted according to economic strength, the United States has a virtual veto power over increases in the IMF's resources. Ronald Reagan steadfastly refused to consider any expansion of the fund for two years, even as the rest of the major industrial powers pressed for a two-thirds' increase. Only the revolutions in Eastern Europe persuaded President Bush to compromise on a 50 percent hike.

While the World Bank makes the long-term loans that underwrite basic economic development, the IMF is the primary source of aid for nations unable to meet their immediate debts. The fund makes short-and medium-term loans to debtors trying to avoid default. Frequently, private commercial sources of credit follow the IMF's lead. Hence when the fund is stingy, the many impoverished nations of the Third World lack access to international credit.

In relation to the need for them, the IMF's resources have always been small: $120 billion at present, $180 billion when the latest increase is ratified by all member countries, in about 18 months. While most nations are expected to approve their negotiators' handwork without trouble, there may be a tough fight in Congress. The last increase, in 1983, was authorized only after the strenuous intervention of Mr. Reagan. Foreign aid of any kind remains unpopular in Congress.

The Bush administration will have to work hard to get the American share of the latest IMF increase — $12 billion — endorsed. It also should stand ready to agree to another increase in the IMF's resources in the early 1990s, because the condition of the poor nations demands it.

A budget opening

Bowing to economic realities, President Bush has junked his happy-talk budget and invited Congress to come and negotiate, with everything, including maybe even higher taxes, on the table. That's a welcome development. But the task in those negotiations will not be simply to keep the deficit from soaring but to produce a multiyear spending plan that takes advantage of the end of the Cold War to set the United States moving on its key problems.

The spur was bad economic news. Rising interest rates, increasing costs for the rescue of savings and loan depositors and signals of economic slowdown have shredded the rosy economic assumptions of the budget Bush presented in January.

Where once the administration officials expected to be able to meet next year's Gramm-Rudman targets with $36 billion of deficit reduction, they now project a gap of $60 billion. Neither Republicans nor Democrats are prepared to countenance closing that gap with discretionary spending cuts alone, and almost no one in Washington is prepared to accept Gramm-Rudman's dull and clumsy axe, which would make across-the-board program slashes ranging as high as 20 percent. Putting everything on the table, including taxes, has become unavoidable.

But simply agreeing to negotiations doesn't guarantee a responsible budget. Neither Bush nor the Democrats in Congress want credit for raising taxes in an election year, even if that serves the national interest. A mutual political reluctance to do the right thing could thus feed the temptation to avoid the problem, as in past years, with accounting gimmicks and a redefinition of the Gramm-Rudman targets.

Some change in the deficit targets may in fact be necessary. If the economy is headed for a slowdown, it doesn't make policy sense to impose Draconian spending cuts and huge tax increases to reach an artificial target of $64 billion. In a $6 trillion economy, what counts is not hitting the target precisely but a national policy that keeps reducing the deficit over the long term. To do that, the summit must produce a multiyear plan for spending and taxation that charts a sound fiscal policy and a set of priorities for the challenges of the 1990s.

That should include higher revenues from closing income tax loopholes and bigger taxes on gasoline and spending cuts in programs such as farm price supports.

New Canadian report a 'cover-up'

Connoisseurs of the activities of secret communists in the Free World have long been fascinated by the case of Herbert Norman, the Canadian ambassador to Egypt who committed suicide in Cairo in 1957 when his name surfaced in an investigation then being conducted by the U.S. Senate's Internal Security Subcommittee. (I was associate counsel to the subcommittee at the time.)

The subcommittee's interest in Norman grew out of his long association with an American foreign service officer named John K. Emerson, whose own record and activities had excited its attention. The subcommittee reasoned that Emerson's close ties with an individual as long and deeply involved in communism as Herbert Norman were, in themselves, suggestive.

At the time, the subcommittee's information concerning Norman did not include evidence of espionage, though of course, in view of his long communist record, that possibility had to be kept in mind. But Canadian and American liberals, led by External Affairs Secretary Lester Pearson, had the gall to try to destroy the subcommittee by concealing Norman's communist affiliations and accusing it of "hounding an innocent man to death." That piece of effrontery quickly collapsed.

During the 1960s and '70s, new information from investigators and defectors convinced some observers that Norman had indeed performed valuable services for the Soviet Union. This material was eventually gathered into a book, "No Sense of Evil" by James Barros, an American professor at the University of Toronto. Two Conservative MPs thereupon launched a campaign to force the Canadian government to disclose what it knew about the matter.

For over a year the (nominally Conservative) Mulroney government stonewalled. Then suddenly it reversed course and hired a retired political science professor, Peyton Lyon (who himself had been a

to review all documents on the subject in the government's possession. His mandate, which made up in clarity whatever it lacked in balance, was "to be highly unequivocal in putting to rest once and for all allegations about Norman."

Now Lyon has eagerly obliged. His 31-page report is a confused farrago of misstatements and misrepresentations, culminating in the requested whitewash. There is, he declared, "not one iota of evidence" suggesting that Norman was a spy, or "the slightest evidence" that he was a Soviet agent of influence. (This, despite, to select just one example of many, "Fourth Man" Anthony Blunt's flat statements to investigators that "Herb was one of us" and was "definitely in the game.") Lyon labors manfully to demolish a deadly CIA report from Cairo that Norman, just before his suicide, had told a doctor friend that he would kill himself rather than let himself be forced to "implicate 60 to 70 Americans and Canadians."

Lyon quite unjustifiably conflates this report with the texts of two alleged suicide notes which the Canadian government declared inauthentic. On that basis, he then charges that "the Senate subcommittee, and the CIA in Cairo, ... certainly practised forgery in order to exploit the suicide

Canadian and American liberals had the gall to try to destroy the subcommittee by concealing.

GEORGE F. WILL

Kennedy bill presumes guilt

WASHINGTON — Suspense was less than intense when President Bush met with advocates of "The Civil Rights Act of 1990." Ostensibly, the question was whether he might abandon his veto threat. Actually, there never has been serious doubt but that he will sign whatever Congress enacts labeled "civil rights."

This is so even though this year's bill, whose prime mover is Sen. Ted Kennedy, mocks the core tenet of what once was the civil-rights movement. That tenet is: Rights inhere in individuals and do not derive from membership in government-favored minority groups.

The bill will not, as its advocates assert, simply overturn some of the most important decisions rendered last year by the Supreme Court with its new conservative majority. It will, by traducing the principle that defendants are presumed innocent, drive America deeper into the quagmire of racial quotas.

Last year the Court acted to make enforcement of the 1964 Civil Rights Act compatible with assurances that were given when it was enacted. That act stipulates that no employer shall be required to grant preference to any individual because of race or other group attribute, or shall be required to achieve racial balance in his work force reflecting the composition of the available population.

Nevertheless, statistical disparities between employment patterns and the composition of local populations soon came to be treated by courts as sufficient to create a presumption against the legality of employment practices that have a "disparate impact" on various groups. But last year the Court re-established the correct interpretation of the 1964 Act. The Court adjusted the burden of proof so that mere statistical imbalance would not virtually guarantee that plaintiffs would prevail. Hiring practices could be invalidated only for discriminatory motives, or for statistical consequences that could not be explained by legitimate business considerations such as hiring or promotion by merit.

Critics of the Court argue, in a crashing non sequitur, that such condemnation is difficult to achieve, and therefore wrong. The strange premise is that plaintiffs' successes are the proof of justice.

However, supporters of the 1990 bill do not merely want to mandate continued misapplication of the 1964 act. They also want to make employers' situations so threatening that they will engage in reverse discrimination as insurance against ruinous litigation. The 1990 bill will do so by placing on employers the burden of demonstrating that a "disparate impact" of a hiring practice is demonstrably and substantially related to "effective job performance."

That language is a cosmetic concession, replacing the bill's original requirement. Originally employers were to be required to demonstrate that challenged hiring practices are "essential to effective job performance." For challenged employers, the modification will be a distinction without a significant difference.

And challenges will proliferate because by joining a cry of "discrimination!" with a claim of "disparate impact" plaintiffs can enter a potentially lucrative lottery. The bill will entitle them to jury trials rather than merely mediation procedures, and will empower juries to impose punitive damages, and damages for pain and suffering. Hence the bill is a machine for coercing employers to adopt preemptive quotas.

The closed reasoning of many civil-rights organizations is: All standards (hiring, academic, etc.) are socially conditioned.

Such reasoning dovetails with the assumption that employers, who are part of "the system," should be presumed, on the basis of statistical disparities resulting from their practices, to be guilty of racial discrimination until they prove themselves innocent.

Now, the fact that a hiring practice has a disparate impact on a particular group may indeed be powerful (although by itself rarely decisive) evidence that the practice needs to be changed. Or it may indicate that the group needs to be. Here we come to "the pool problem." The available pool of qualified persons may be, for social and cultural reasons unconnected with racial discrimination, too small to generate the "correct" statistics.

Because many people fear being charged with "blaming the victim" (and because they accept the assumption that minorities are always victims), they rush to condemn practices on the basis of statistical results. Besides, it is easier, and politically profitable, to blame racism rather than face the long, hard chore of rectifying the social deficits of disadvantaged minorities. For all their professed militancy, people who focus on statistical disparities as proof of racism encourage — indeed depend upon — underestimation of America's real social problems.

This year's bill mocks the core tenet of what once was the civil-rights movement.

Military adept at wasting billions

WASHINGTON — If the Pentagon had its way, the "peace dividend" from the cutbacks in defense spending would all be squandered on doodads. The military has a boundless propensity for paying more for something than it is worth and spending billions on trinkets that we could all do without. Our recent report on the frills at U.S. military bases struck a chord with military personnel across the country.

These are people who see the top brass wasting money on flowers and other fancy cosmetics while the rank and file live in substandard housing. We heard from the GIs who mow the lawns and prune the roses so the top brass can host debutante balls for their daughters. Bolling Air Force Base is a regular offender. It is the home of the Defense Intelligence Agency and 12,000 Air Force personnel. Sources there tell us that the top brass will stop at nothing to make Bolling look good.

They haven't been very successful, but it isn't for lack of spending. The base south of Washington, D.C., has all the charm of a railroad yard. Yet in the last year, our sources say, Bolling has spent at least $406,000 on aesthetic improvements. There was the $213,000 spent on a curved brick wall and wrought-iron fence to make the front gate more imposing, and another $25,000 for landscaping the surrounding area.

The Bolling brass spent another $6,938 to build an elaborate brick walkway through a ceremonial lawn where special events such as retirement parties are held.

And then there was the approximately $210,000 spent to build four-foot brick walls around the patios at 30 homes on base that are occupied by officers.

Sources told us that $2,000 was spent to put new carpeting in a commissary that was scheduled to be replaced in a few months.

If that's the kind of spending that the brass does just to make Bolling pretty for themselves, you can imagine the flurry of activity last year when President Bush decided to visit Bolling.

Bush was hosting King Hussein of Jordan and had taken the king on a tour of George Washington's Mount Vernon plantation. From Mount Vernon, the king, the president and the entourage were to sail a few miles up the Potomac River and dock at Bolling.

The base was pitched into a royal fever. Groundskeepers were dispatched to do a rushed landscaping job, and a few were handed cans of paint and pointed toward the dock where the boat would stop in a matter of a few hours. The crew had already begun the painting when officials realized that the paint would still be wet when Bush and Hussein stepped ashore. Since it wouldn't do to have the king and the president sticking to the dock, the painting project was stopped.

Fortunately, neither Bush nor Hussein stepped on the grass. One source at Bolling told our associate Scott Sleck that the grass was sprayed at the last minute with a chemical to make it look a deeper shade of green. Bolling officials denied that they painted the grass for the president.

Even when the president isn't around, Bolling is a festive place. In 1988 the families of top officers decided to hold a party for their teen-agers at the officers club. A good time was had by all, except the GIs who were detailed at the last minute to mow the grass and trim the shrubs in the rain.

Compared to the multibillion-dollar defense budget, the waste at Bolling is a drop in the bucket. But the Pentagon has filled millions of buckets with those drops to the point where the waste is monumental.

These are people who see the top brass wasting money on flowers and other fancy cosmetics.

Nominations open for sheriff's board

SANFORD — This week Seminole County Sheriff's Department workers covered by civil service are nominating three candidates to vie for a recently vacated, employee-elected slot of the five-member civil service board.

Any covered worker may be nominated by secret ballot through the end of this week. The final election, with three finalists, hasn't been scheduled, but will be within the next couple of weeks.

The slot was vacated by jail Sgt. Darryl Payne, who was seated on the board in January. Sheriff's staff said Payne resigned the post for personal reasons.

The term is for two years. There is one other employee-elected slot on the board. The board itself appoints one other member and the sheriff appoints the remaining two board members. The board has input on employment matters at the department.

should approve: ● Returning to voters in the upcoming November general election to approve a scaled-down version of a bond issue for new school construction;

● Asking voters in the November election to decide whether the position of schools superintendent should remain non-partisan or be changed to a partisan;

● Extend the contract whereby Ned Julian is the school board attorney from September to June.

Near the conclusion of the two-hour long board meeting, Chairman Ann Nelswender outlined her plan of attack for the next five months, goals that she plans to bring up for board action and ultimately electorate action.

"Number one," she said, "we need to bring up the matter of an elected versus appointed School Superintendent. We need to place it on our agenda, discuss it, then have the question put on the November ballot."

A number of Florida counties have changed from elected to appointed Superintendents in the past several years, according to Superintendent Bob Hughes.

Nelswender's second point concerned the $519 million bond issue referendum that was defeated overwhelmingly by the voters last February.

With the rapidly growing number of school-age children in the county, and the need for a number of new schools and additional classrooms with no money for construction, Nelswender said she will ask Superintendent Hughes to research the possibility of having a smaller bond issue placed on the November ballot.

"If that is found not to be feasible," she said, "I want to work toward putting a straw vote before the people to see what they want to do about building new schools." She said she didn't know exactly how that would be worded, "maybe a multiple choice or something, we'll have to work that out."

Her third goal concerned the contract for the School Board Attorney.

"The money does not belong to the business," Michanczyk said.

Sanford said she has been working with the community to garner aid, but that it hasn't come through.

Eastern to recall pilots, outline plan for creditors

United Press International

MIAMI — Eastern Airlines plans to add new domestic routes and recall about 85 union pilots, the first recall since the 1989 strike that forced the carrier into Chapter 11 bankruptcy. The Miami Herald reported Wednesday.

Eastern trustee Martin Shugrue was expected to announce the plans Wednesday during a meeting with the airline's unsecured creditors, the newspaper said.

The meeting was to be the creditors' first with Shugrue since they persuaded a federal bankruptcy judge to take control of Eastern away from Texas Air Chairman Frank Lorenzo and appoint Shugrue April 18.

Before recalling any pilots, Shugrue must first reconcile Eastern's union pilots, who have been out of work 14 months, with workers who crossed their picket lines.

Working pilots want returnees to come from a list of pilots who decided to cross the picket lines in August, but were shut out of jobs when Eastern stopped hiring. Union pilots think the new jobs should be filled by pilots on the union seniority list.

Shugrue was expected to compromise by recalling from both lists.

As the creditors arrived for the meeting Wednesday, dozens of striking Eastern machinists marched peacefully outside the Coral Gables Hyatt hotel, carrying signs that said "No Contracts, No Peace, No Passengers."

A machinist spokesman said the picketers bore no animosity. He said they wanted to show that they were ready to negotiate and to demonstrate their gratitude toward the creditors for their help in ousting Lorenzo.

"We're frankly welcoming them to Miami and thanking them for helping us get a trustee," he said.

Shugrue also was expected to report on his continuing efforts to find a buyer for Eastern. The Herald quoted an unidentified industry analyst as saying. The trustee has talked recently with both Pan American World Airways and Northwest Airlines executives about potential combinations, the newspaper said.

Eastern has already announced plans to add Atlanta-Houston service July 5 and Atlanta-Cancun service July 7. The Herald said Shugrue also was examining Southeastern markets once served by Piedmont Airlines.

The expansion routes would be flown with planes currently used on Eastern's Latin American routes.

On Tuesday, Eastern said it would transfer the Latin American routes to American Airlines in four stages beginning June 30, in exchange for $310 million to be paid in two installments.

The cash from the sale would help Eastern pay its debts and reorganize.

Eastern said it will transfer its routes covering Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Guatemala and Costa Rica to American June 30. Eastern routes to Panama, Peru, Bolivia and Paraguay will be turned over July 20.

Routes to Colombia and Ecuador will follow July 31. The sale will be completed Aug. 14 with the transfer of Eastern's routes to Belize, Honduras, El Salvador and Venezuela. Eastern said.

should approve: ● Returning to voters in the upcoming November general election to approve a scaled-down version of a bond issue for new school construction;

● Asking voters in the November election to decide whether the position of schools superintendent should remain non-partisan or be changed to a partisan;

● Extend the contract whereby Ned Julian is the school board attorney from September to June.

Near the conclusion of the two-hour long board meeting, Chairman Ann Nelswender outlined her plan of attack for the next five months, goals that she plans to bring up for board action and ultimately electorate action.

"Number one," she said, "we need to bring up the matter of an elected versus appointed School Superintendent. We need to place it on our agenda, discuss it, then have the question put on the November ballot."

A number of Florida counties

have changed from elected to appointed Superintendents in the past several years, according to Superintendent Bob Hughes.

Nelswender's second point concerned the $519 million bond issue referendum that was defeated overwhelmingly by the voters last February.

With the rapidly growing number of school-age children in the county, and the need for a number of new schools and additional classrooms with no money for construction, Nelswender said she will ask Superintendent Hughes to research the possibility of having a smaller bond issue placed on the November ballot.

"If that is found not to be feasible," she said, "I want to work toward putting a straw vote before the people to see what they want to do about building new schools." She said she didn't know exactly how that would be worded, "maybe a multiple choice or something, we'll have to work that out."

Her third goal concerned the contract for the School Board Attorney.

She said that when she first took oath as a new board member in November, 1986, the first significant question she was faced with, was voting on a one year contract for an attorney.

"It's inappropriate for a new member to have to make such a decision right away," she said.

In order to change this, Nelswender said she would bring up a question of extending the board's present contract with the firm of Stenstrom, McIntosh, Julian, Colbert, Whigham & Simmons, for an additional six months, through June 30, so new contract terms would run July to July, rather than November to November as it presently stands.

"That would keep it from becoming a political issue," she said, "and give the new members more time before they would vote on any future contract extension."

It is known that Ned Julian who serves as the School Board Attorney, is campaigning for the position of Circuit Judge, although he has made no formal announcement.

Only approximately half of the students were on hand for the honors at the School Board meeting, as similar scholarship and honors programs were being held at the same time at various schools throughout the county.

Board

see' re-

election. On Monday, board member Pat Telson announced she would not run again.

In addition, it is known that board member Larry Betsinger has told others that he does not intend to seek re-election although last night he said only, "I don't know for sure, I haven't completely made up my mind at this point."

Commenting on her decision, Nelswender said, "It is a personal decision: a difficult but happy decision."

She said if she would run, she felt confident she would be able to retain her board seat.

The other board members are Vice Chairman Nancy Warren and Member Joe Williams, Jr.

Looking ahead to next year's board, Nelswender said, "They will have a lot of work facing them, but I believe they will be able to handle it, just as other boards have done in the past. I don't see any major changes in the operation of the School Board."

Betsinger, on the other hand, described the outlook as, "Chaos, pure chaos."

There is a possibility however, that the entire board, rather than the three members, could appear on the ballot this fall.

According to School Superintendent Robert Hughes, "We're waiting on word to see whether or not the Martin County decision will end up having an effect on Seminole County."

The State Supreme Court recently ruled that school board members in Martin County must run on a non-partisan basis. "It's up to the Florida Legislature and the Courts," said Hughes, whose also runs in a non-partisan position.

Board member Joe Williams, Jr., commenting on the future of the board summed it up by saying, "I don't know right now what will happen, but I plan to be here for the duration."

Revenue

Crawford and Gustafson, D-Fort Lauderdale, agreed to appoint conferees to work out the differences between House and Senate tax packages, giving them 48 hours to report back by Thursday.

Sen. W.W. "Bud" Gardner, a member of the Senate negotiating team, said he was unsure if significant progress could be made before the end of the two-month legislative session next week.

"We're way apart as far as revenue sources go," said the Titusville Democrat who represents a large portion of Seminole County. "And that's not get to be this late in the session and still talking about revenue sources. I can't say if we'll get done by the end of next week or not."

Part of the complication, Gardner said, was proposals sought by Gustafson without widespread support from House members. "He's singing from a different hymnal," Gardner quipped.

"I would like to get it all resolved so we can know what we have," said Sen. Jim Scott, R-Fort Lauderdale, a member and former chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

If they can manage that, a bill could be drafted and released by Friday for a floor vote in both chambers by Monday, which means the Legislature could adjourn as early as Tuesday — three days early, said House Appropriations Committee Chairman T.K. Wetherell, D-Daytona Beach.

Gustafson said it was important to get the revenue situation resolved as quickly as possible so the governor's desk that he can sign by June 1, "so we can replenish the capital reserve before we start bouncing checks July 1."

Lawmakers agreed it's going to take a lot of negotiating to work out the differences between the House and Senate revenue plans.

"We both have passed tax bills that has some of the same things," Wetherell said. "It's which mix of dollars we want."

The House and Senate revenue packages would each raise the same amount of money — about $725 million in new taxes — but they differ on how that money is raised and where it will go.

For example, the Senate wants to increase the cigarette tax by 14 cents a pack, while the House is shooting for a 9-cent-a-pack increase. The House version also increases the tax on other tobacco products, which the Senate bill does not.

While the House would raise the 15-cents-per-$100 tax on notes, bonds and corporate shares by 20 cents, the Senate would raise the tax by 15 cents and also close some loopholes in the documentary stamp tax.

Other differences that need to be resolved are how the House and Senate propose financing a 10-year state lands acquisition program, the gross receipts utility tax for public school construction and relief for hospitals that serve a disproportionate share of indigent patients, said Senate Appropriations Committee chairwoman Sen. Gwen Margolis, D-North Miami.

Crawford also agreed that both sides should deal separately with the matter of speeding up sales-tax collections so the issue can move out of both houses soon enough to give the Department of Revenue enough time to begin collecting more than $250 million in due sales tax.

"The sooner we get a notice out to retailers, the better," he said.

Increase

because store officials produced a study showing convenience stores reduce traffic on roads, not increase it.

Seminole County's road impact fee faced an uncertain future until a year ago. After the county first adopted the fee in March 1987, three cities, Sanford, Casselberry and Winter Springs, refused to collect the fees for the county and the county sued them to have the courts determine whether it had the right to do so.

In March 1988, Seminole Circuit Judge Kenneth M. Leffler ruled the county could charge the fees, but any city had the right to refuse to collect them. A year later, the Fifth District Court of Appeals ruled the county had the responsibility to build roads and had the right to collect the fees throughout the county, including cities.

Sanford holds mall zone hearing

By J. BRADLEY DILLING Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The development of the 30-acre, $100 million Seminole Mall project took another step forward in the bureaucratic process as it was presented at a public hearing at a city commission meeting Monday night.

The commission voted to table the issue until its next scheduled public hearing, which will be June 11. In other action, the commission also adopted on second reading an ordinance increasing building permit fees.

The commission also tabled a request for emergency condemnation of an abandoned apartment building where police said they found evidence of drug use and occupation by transients.

Final PTL defendant sentenced to home

United Press International

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Preacher John Wesley Fletcher, who introduced PTL leader Jim Bakker to Jessica Hahn, was sentenced Tuesday to home by curfew every night for the next eight months as punishment for lying to a grand jury.

Potter placed Fletcher on probation for three years for lying when he said he did not know that sex was the purpose of the rendezvous he set up between Bakker and Hahn in a Florida hotel room in December 1980.

Potter also ordered Fletcher to be home with his mother in Durham, N.C., every night by 8 p.m. for the next eight months and to stay there until morning.

Quadriplegic seeks permission to die

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — A 31-year-old quadriplegic who has been hooked up to a respirator for more than two decades has filed papers in court seeking an end to his "painful" existence, a report said Wednesday.

The Las Vegas Sun said Kenneth A. Bergstedt, paralyzed from the neck down since a swimming accident, submitted the papers to the Clark County District Court in April. He wants to be given a sedative, have his life-support system turned off and be allowed to die in peace.

His adoptive father, Robert Bergstedt, 65, a retired steel worker who lost a leg in an industrial accident, is reluctantly supporting the decision, the newspaper said.

In a five-page court affidavit, Bergstedt said he has "no happy or encouraging expectations to look for from life, receives no enjoyment from life, lives with constant fears and apprehensions and is tired of suffering."

Bergstedt, who is mentally alert and capable of speaking, was rendered a quadriplegic at the age of 10 when his spinal cord was severed in an accident at an Indiana swimming pool on July 4, 1969. A young girl doing a "cannonball" dive landed on him.

Stormie improves, heads home

PITTSBURGH — Stormie Jones, the world's first heart-liver transplant recipient, was released Tuesday from Children's Hospital after a mild liver rejection was brought under control with increased medication, a spokeswoman said.

Stormie, 12, and her mother, Lois "Susie" Purcell, planned to return Wednesday to their home in White Settlement, Texas, hospital spokeswoman Lynn McMahon said. The girl was planning a party for her 13th birthday on May 31.

Greyhound workers offer to return

WASHINGTON — Striking Greyhound workers have made an unconditional offer to return to work and end their 12-week-old strike, putting additional financial pressure on the economically beleaguered bus line.

In a letter Tuesday to Anthony Lannie, Greyhound vice president in charge of labor relations, the Amalgamated Transit Union announced its "unconditional offer to return to work immediately."

But the offer was unlikely to settle the bitter, violence-marred labor dispute involving the national bus line. Instead, it put more pressure on Greyhound management — and the company's creditors — to return to the bargaining table.

Measles: More vaccination programs

NEW YORK — U.S. measles cases are up sharply for the second year in a row, underscoring the need to extend mandatory vaccination to preschool children, a report said.

There were about 17,000 cases of measles in the country in 1989, up from 3,396 cases the year before, and the latest numbers for this year show a continued acceleration, according to the Statistical Bulletin, a quarterly magazine published Tuesday by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

The average age of those catching the infectious disease has dropped from earlier years, with about 40 percent of 1989's cases occurring in preschool children under 5 years of age, the report said.

House passes bill to assist disabled

By JANET BASS
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The House passed landmark legislation outlawing discrimination against America's 43 million mentally and physically disabled people, promising greater employment opportunities and increased access to public accommodations.

"This is a significant and historical step forward for the disabled," Rep. Steny Hoyer, D-Md., said Tuesday.

The House bill, approved on a 403-20 vote, must be reconciled with a somewhat different Senate-passed version before the legislation gets final approval and is sent to President Bush.

One of the most controversial differences is House language aimed at people with contagious diseases who handle food, which critics saw as playing on fears about AIDS.

The Americans with Disabilities Act would protect the disabled from discrimination on the job, on public or private buses or trains, and in public places such as restaurants and theaters. Hearing, and speech-impaired individuals also would be provided access to special telephone services.

The legislation builds on the 1964 Civil Rights Act, which does not address the disabled, and the 1973 Rehabilitation Act, which does not specifically deal with public accommodations, private sector employment and programs not receiving federal money.

The House rejected, 192-227, an attempt by Rep. James Sensenbrenner Jr., R-Wis., to limit the legal remedies for victims of job discrimination to those currently available under the Civil Rights Act. These include getting a court-ordered injunction against bias and the awarding of back pay and attorney fees.

Instead, the House will allow disabled victims of discrimination to take advantage of whatever is provided in the pending Civil Rights Act of 1990. Under consideration is a proposal to allow monetary damages for victims.

The Sensenbrenner amendment looks to the future and says if the remedies for minorities and women victims are strengthened, these remedies won't apply to persons with disabilities," Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., said. "This is gross discrimination in advance."

House members defeated an attempt to modify a provision that requires all new rail cars purchased or leased by Amtrak or commuter trains to be readily accessible to the disabled.

Rep. William Lipinski, D-Ill., suggested that one accessible car per commuter train would be sufficient, but Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill., said that would be segregation.

Most ex-smokers quit cold

BOSTON — Most people who successfully quit smoking kick the habit "cold turkey" and without any help from organized programs, scientists said.

Data from a nationwide survey of adult tobacco use shows smokers who quit on their own are twice as successful as those who seek the aid of a variety of stop-smoking programs, said Dr. Michael Fiore and colleagues at the University of Wisconsin.

The researchers also found those who succeed are generally better educated and older than those who fail, but other factors such as sex, race and number of cigarettes smoked per day do not play a major role in determining success or failure.

Fiore analyzed information compiled in a 1986 survey of 13,031 people conducted by the federal Centers for Disease Control. They included 2,049 ex-smokers who had quit at least one year before the survey and 2,465 active smokers who had made at least one unsuccessful attempt to give up smoking.

Among those who had smoked in the decade before the survey was conducted, 48 percent of those who tried to quit on their own succeeded, compared with only 24 percent of those who sought assistance, including counseling, hypnosis and acupuncture, Fiore said in the study, published Tuesday.

Dozen local groups to make pitch for tourism tax money

By J. BRADLEY DILLING
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Twelve organizations will be vying for tourism tax dollars in separate presentations before the Seminole County Tourism Development Council in the county services building tomorrow.

Eight of the organizations are from the Sanford area.

The council will make recommendations to the Seminole County Commission, which will decide how to disburse the money.

Who the groups are, how much they are asking for and what they intend to do with the money follows:

- City of Sanford: $12,000 to run the Golden Age Games. This fall will mark the 16th Golden Age Games competition. The games are sporting and hobby competition for citizens aged 55 and older. They were designed to promote and foster athletic competition among senior citizens.
- The event will be held Nov. 4 through 10.
- Seminole County Historical Museum: $17,908 for the layout and production of advertising brochures for museum visitors and for production of a 20-minute slide show utilizing two projectors which will be controlled by a narrated tape.
- Additionally, the museum wants to remodel the display "Three Forts and Three Lakes," which shows Indian artifacts and explains the exploration and early military activities in Seminole County. The organization also wants to use the money to advertise the "Pioneer Days 'N' Ways" festival to be held at the museum this Oct. 6 and 7.

- City of Altamonte Springs Community Redevelopment Agency: $100,000 for the construction and promotion of a lake-side amphitheater/plaza on Craneg Root Lake.

- United Arts of Central Florida: $30,000 to produce two concerts by the Florida Symphony Orchestra in Seminole County.

"The amount represents one-half of the expenses of the concerts. United Arts will subsidize the remaining costs," a UA report said.

The amount requested is based on the cost of two concerts and one rehearsal, the report said.

The Central Florida Regional Zoo: 50 percent of gross annual revenue from tourist development taxes to acquire suitable lands and facilities and animals for display and to operate a zoological and botanical garden.

"The purpose of the corporation ... shall be to create exhibits of insects, fish, amphibians, reptiles, birds and mammals with appropriate surroundings for the instruction, recreation and pleasure of the public and for scientific study," the zoo application said.

- The St. Lucia Festival, sponsored by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce: $25,000 for advertising the event and for the production of brochures, posters, banners. The money would also be used for postage and stationery expenses related to the December festival.

- City of Sanford: $150,000 for the installation of structures to prevent beach erosion on Lake Monroe.

The structures would be several large tubes, more than 30 feet long and about three feet in diameter, made of a filter fabric "would hold back sand while water to filter through."

Henry Shelton Sanford Memorial Library and Museum: $400,000 for the construction of another wing which would be used to display visiting exhibits as well as artifacts that the museum has in storage.

The money would also be used to help research the past of the city as well as the man for whom the museum and the city are named.

- Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce: $24,600 for visitor center to occupy approximately 324 square feet within its new office building.

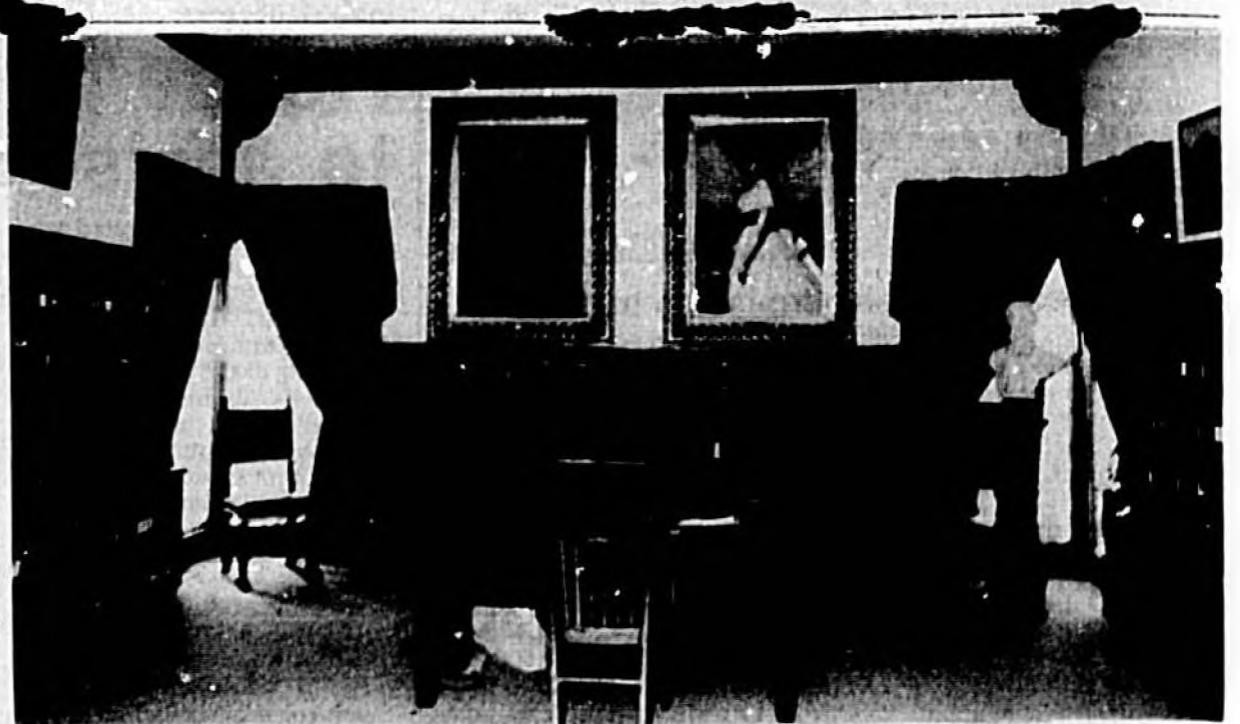

The center will include wall-mounted racks in which to display approximately 180 promotional brochures, a continuous-loop audio-visual presentation on Seminole County, six large back-lit color-graphic panels featuring county attractions and three information centers.

- Sanford Gymnastics Association: $25,000 to hold gymnastics competitions, teach gymnastics students and purchase special equipment for handicapped students.

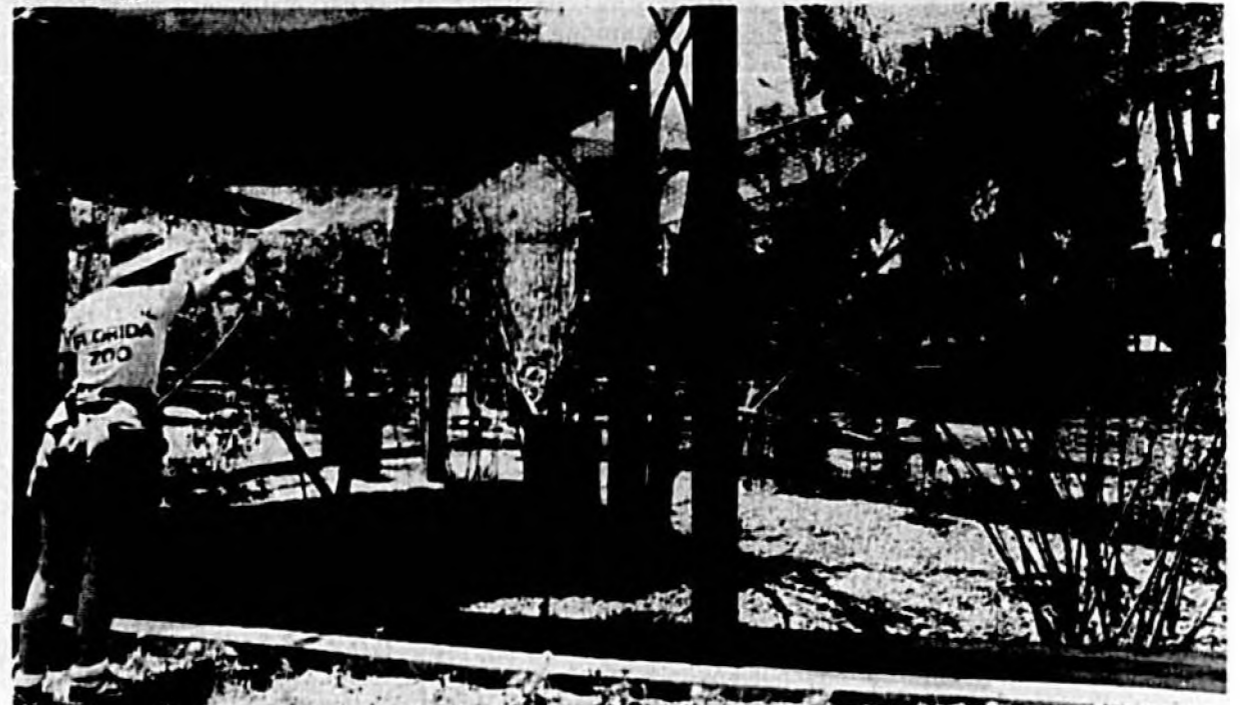

The organization would also like to hold a Special Olympics meet.

- Seminole Soccer Club: $89,000 to provide newspaper, radio, sports-magazine and billboard advertising for soccer games and tournaments and to produce and distribute booklets, flyers, newsletters and posters.

The money would also be used for traveling expenses and to pay a tournament manager to officiate and manage competitions.

The Henry Shelton Sanford Museum, above, is applying for a share of the tourism tax money.

The Central Florida Zoo, at Sanford, has asked for half of the tourism tax revenue.

'Groovy Kind of Love' top tune

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — The Bayer Sager & Co. song "A Groovy Kind of Love" was named Song of the Year Tuesday night by BMI, symbolic of its having been the past year's most played pop composition.

Antonio "L.A." Reid and Kenneth "Babyface" Edmonds were named Songwriters of the Year, and EMI Music Catalogs was named Publisher of the Year at the annual black-tie gala, which this year celebrated BMI's 50th anniversary.

BMI is the world's largest performing rights organization, representing more than 100,000 songwriters, composers and publishers from around the world in all areas of music. The organization keeps track of the number of times a song is played on the air, and collects the royalties for the artists.

The organization also presented a 5-million-performance award to Richard Addrisi, who wrote "Never My Love" with his late brother, Donald. The song is only the second in BMI's repertoire to reach the 5 million airplay milestone on U.S. radio and television. "Yesterday" by Paul McCartney and John Lennon was the first.

"A Groovy Kind of Love" was first released in 1965 by The Mindbenders.

Reid and Edmonds won for such hits as "Every Little Step," "The Lover in Me," "On Our Own," "Ron," "Secret Rendezvous," "Superwoman," and "The Way You Love Me."

Two cooks are better than one

By JOAN KING
Herald correspondent

SANFORD — Our Cooks of the Week, Sanford residents Sharon and Charles Lindsey, are a team.

When Sharon, a divorced mother of five children, met Lindsey, he was a divorced father of one child. They courted, fell in love and married. Her five kids and his one became their six.

Sharon has been cooking since she was eight years old. She was taught to cook by her mother and grandmother "by the cookbook and exaggeration."

Jokingly Lindsey corrects her by saying, "You mean imagination."

Lindsey started cooking as a lad of fourteen, because no one could cook a hamburger the way he liked it.

While he speaks, Lindsey fuses over preserving jars that didn't turn out clean enough to suit him.

He washes the jars and says, "Everything has to be very clean when you preserve food."

He holds a jar up to the sunlight streaming through the kitchen window. The jar sparkles.

FOOD & NUTRITION

Sharon says feeding and clothing a large family has been a challenge.

"We had to learn to economize and do a lot of things for ourselves," she says, "feeding six kids and clothing them was expensive. You have to learn to make it work."

The Lindseys learned to make it work together. All of the children wore handmade clothes.

"Sharon made all of the children's school clothes, but we shared that too," Lindsey explains. "With her bad arm, she couldn't cut out the material very well. I did and still do all of the cutting and she sews."

When Theresa, the youngest Lindsey child was in grade school, she didn't want to wear homemade clothes. There was no discussion. She had to wear them. When her teacher complimented her on the outfits that she wore, and asked if her parents would make hers also, Theresa began to appreciate her wardrobe and finally wore her clothes proudly.

The Lindseys have many things in which to be proud. Sharon was the first woman graduate of Telecommunications School at Seminole Community College. She is duly qualified to climb poles and install lines. She also invented a HUG and formed her own company based on the product.

The Lindseys add pucker to the pickles

In the Navy, Lindsey returned to civilian life and settled in Sanford. While in the Navy and stationed in the Philippines, he and a friend would eat in the local restaurants of the island. They would pick apart the food to see how it was made and what it consisted of. One of his favorite recipes, Fried Rice Phillipino, is one that he found in the Philippines.

Their family is growing. What started out fifteen years ago by the merger of two families with six kids has now grown to 12 big kids, including spouses, 13 grandchildren and two more on the way.

Sharon says, "We do good work together."

Charlic agrees.

FRIED RICE PHILIPPINO
10 to 15 cups cooked rice
1 lg. green pepper diced
1 lg. onion chopped
2 eggs beaten, set aside
10 slices bacon, diced slab is best

1 whole stalk celery sliced
8 cocktail-size shrimp, boiled and diced
sliced mushrooms, optional
Fry bacon until crisp, then dice. In bacon grease fry eggs as an omelette. Pour off about half the grease and add rice. Be sure to break up rice into grains first. Make sure rice is coated in the grease. When rice gets hot, add green pepper, shrimp, onions, celery and mushrooms. Cook, stirring until veggies are transparent. Cut omelette into diamond-shaped pieces, add to rice mixture. Serve with soy sauce.

How to cook rice with the never-fail method by the Lindseys. Cover rice with cold water measuring one and a quarter inches above the rice. Salt to taste, usually a pinch. Bring to a boil, cover tightly, simmer five minutes. Remove from heat, allow to stand twenty minutes and do not remove lid for twenty minutes. Do not peek.

CHARLIE'S MINI DILLS (pickles)

For every quart of apple cider vinegar add 1 tsp. of pickling spices in a net bag and boil in the vinegar.

Sterilize the jars, make sure they are clean. Stuff jars with clean cukes after they have soaked in the brine. Brine consists of 1/2 cup of pickling salt and water.

Pack jars full of cukes. Add 1/4 tsp. alum or 1 dry grape leaf to each quart and 1/2 sliced garlic clove. Add cayenne pepper for hot flavor. Pour boiling vinegar over packed cukes in the jars. Seal with sterile lids. Wait three weeks to eat. May be stored on pantry shelf.

Wonderful seafoods no fish tale

To complete our trilogy on the cuisine of the Southern Gulf Coast we'll concentrate on the wonderful seafoods for which this region is famous.

With the trend toward simple, more nutritious eating, fish has become a popular lower-cholesterol entree. It is naturally tender and needs minimum cooking time. Microwave cooking is an ideal method for most fish and seafood since it quickly heats while maintaining delicate texture and flavor.

When cooking fish and seafood arrange thicker portions toward the outside of the container. When checking doneness, look for a change from translucent to opaque in color and firm soft to firmer texture.

Combine two Gulf seafoods in this recipe for a delightful entree typical of this region of our country.

SEAFOOD SUPREME

- 1 tsp. instant bouillon
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 clove garlic, minced

- 1/4 tsp. garlic salt
- 2 Tbsp. dry bread crumbs
- 1 Tbsp. Parmesan cheese
- 1/2 tsp. paprika

Place spinach in 1 1/2 qt. casserole. Cover with plastic wrap. M/W on 100% power 5-6 minutes or until spinach is tender. Drain. Add crabmeat, soup, water chestnuts, cheese, half and half, Worcestershire sauce and garlic salt; mix well. Combine breadcrumbs, Parmesan cheese and paprika, sprinkle over spinach. Cover with paper towel. M/W (100%) 8-10 minutes or until heated through and cheese is melted.

Spoon this truly traditional dish of the Gulf region over rice. Chicken or shrimp can be substituted for the crawfish.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Paul (not his real name) and I have been married for two months. Paul is 35 and I'm 27. This is my first marriage. Paul was married briefly in college and has a 14-year-old daughter who lives with her mother in another state. His daughter is coming to spend the summer with us. She's a sweet girl and I like her, but Paul has told me that while his daughter is here we will have to put our lovemaking on "hold."

At first I thought he was kidding, but he explained that he has this "little hang-up" — he can't perform sexually unless he has total privacy, which means there can be nobody in the next room, or even in the same house! I tried to tell him that it's perfectly normal for married people to make love, and it shouldn't matter whether somebody is in the next room or not.

Paul can't understand why I don't accept his little hang-up, but I'm losing sleep over his obsession for total privacy because it may be indicative of other little hang-ups I don't know about. Besides, we're still honeymooning.

Your opinion, please.

LOSING PATIENCE

DEAR ABBY: Paul could have been "surprised" during lovemaking at some time in his life, which may account for his obsession for total privacy. However, asking you to put your honeymoon on hold for the entire summer is expecting too much.

For his sake and yours, Paul should seek counseling from a psychiatrist or sex therapist in order to bring up this "little hang-up" once and for all.

Surgeon should advise on postoperative adhesions

DEAR DR. GOTT: I get severe pain periodically from postoperative adhesions. Is there any type of medication I can take to help this condition? If not, is surgery the best solution?

DEAR READER: Surgery always results in scar tissue. In particular, abdominal surgery is associated with filmy but tough strands of scar that attach to the interior of the abdominal cavity. At times, these adhesions can press on portions of the bowel, causing partial or complete intestinal obstruction. In these circumstances, patients almost always require another operation to remove or sever the blocking strands.

Some people seem especially susceptible to postoperative bowel adhesions; the reason for this is not known. To my knowledge, there is no consistently effective medication to prevent adhesions, although some surgeons have tried cortisone, with inconsistent results.

The problem with re-operation is, of course, that new adhesions may form, perpetuating the cycle.

If you have periodic pain in the same area of your abdomen and your surgeon is convinced that your symptoms are due to adhesions, you may be helped by laparoscopy, during which the surgeon introduces a lighted tube through a small abdominal incision, identifies the adhesions and clips them. This might solve the problem and save you a more extensive operation.

In any case, you can obtain the most appropriate advice from your surgeon, who is most familiar with you and your health problems. Let me know what he says.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is the external use of alcohol a sterilization medium? I always thought that swabbing an injection site (I'm a diabetic) was adequate. Now medical advisers suggest that the alcohol merely moves the germs around. What's your opinion?

DEAR READER: Alcohol kills most germs. While it may not sterilize an area — that is, render an area completely free of bacteria — it is appropriate to use as a cleansing agent prior to injection. Alcohol is cheap and dries rapidly. It has the further advantage of dissolving oils on the surface of the skin, thereby disrupting bacteria that may adhere to the skin.

I am certain alcohol "moves the germs around" as well as killing them.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

This deal should cause even the best of us to do some soul-searching about our attentiveness at the table. After East's logical diamond overall of North's very minimum one-club opening, South jumped to three no-trump. Although this was built-in-a-china-shop bidding, an attempt at more sophistication would have resulted in the same final contract. West led the heart jack and declarer played low from dummy, winning the ace. Declarer led a spade to dummy's king and a spade back to his jack, noting the fall of East's 8-9 as West won the ace. West continued the heart nine, and declarer played low from dummy. (It was quite plausible that East might have started with only three hearts to the king.) West carried on with the heart 10, East winning his king and cashing his seven as South threw diamonds. Next came the diamond king to South's ace. By this time declarer, having read East for five diamonds and four hearts, knew he would have to do some nimble stepping to take the rest. So he led the seven of spades. When West played low, declarer ducked in dummy and then played a club to dummy's 10. (If East had only two clubs, it was odds-on that the jack would be with West.) When that won the trick, declarer had the rest. Well-played, but do you remember the opening remark about attentiveness? If West covers the spade seven with the 10, declarer has to win the trick in dummy. He is then in the wrong hand and can no longer play the clubs to take all four tricks.
