Former inmate files suit

SANFORD — A former inmate has sued the sheriff and three jail officers for injuries he claims he suffered during a fight at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility three years ago.

Samuel G. Hastings filed a civil suit against Sheriff Don Eslinger, Lt. Dennis Whitlock, Sgt. Jimmy Ferguson and a corrections officer seeking $1.4 million. Hastings claims he suffered a broken nose and broken teeth in the incident March 19, 1991.

The suit claims the officers did not heed threats of violence before the fight broke out. Black inmates in one cellblock attacked white prisoners, after security lights were turned on while the inmates slept. Hastings contends Ferguson walked away despite threats of violence by black inmates unless the white prisoners were removed from the cellblock. Guards were not sent in to breakup the fight and Hastings claims it took 5-10 minutes for someone to respond to his call for help.

Both Whitlock and Ferguson served a suspension period without pay after the incident. Sheriff Eslinger was out of his office this morning and unavailable for comment on the suit.

River level update

SANFORD — Flood waters continued to drop this week as water managers wait to see what impacts will follow the second surge working its way downstream from the headwaters of the St. Johns River. A river monitoring station north of Lake Harney measured water 8.74 feet above mean sea level, a drop from Tuesday's 9.00 feet. Lake Monroe was measured at 6.66 feet last Friday — the most recent figures available — less than two inches above the 6.49 feet measured on Nov. 21. Water managers say the Friday level was the "stage" or peak. They say Lake Jesup peaked Sunday at 6.92 feet. Water managers believe a second surge of water will be seen in Seminole County within two weeks. They now believe if the waters increase again, they won't rise above last weekend's stages.

Calling all phone users

Customers to choose carriers for local toll calls

By NICK PPRIPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — In the not-to-distant future, persons making local toll phone calls from Sanford may eventually be able to select the phone company that places those calls.

The state's latest step in telephone deregulation made in Tallahassee yesterday, will let customers choose from competing carriers for local toll calls the same way they choose long distance companies.

Carriers such as AT&T and MCI said the state Public Service Commission vote Thursday means more competition, and more choices for consumers.

PSC Chairman Terry Deason says the decision, "potentially could put upward pressure on local rates."

In Sanford, Southern Bell Regional Manager Larry Strickler says the changes are not expected to bring about any immediate increase in local phone bills, but is expected to reduce the profits somewhat for most local service phone companies.

"Southern Bell has no plans at the present time for any rate increases," he said, "but it certainly puts local companies under a considerable amount of pressure to possibly raise rates in the future to compensate for the loss."

Strickler said he couldn't speak for the long distance phone companies, but he expects local citizens will be approached by the various companies seeking to lure new customers.

The decision by the PSC wasn't unanimous. Some members said they feared customers could be hurt if local telephone companies lose too much business.

Deason said the cost of the necessary telephone network modifications statewide was estimated at more than $27 million. He and new member Joe Garcia of Miami were on the losing end of a 3-2 vote.

Public Counsel Jack Shreve, who represents consumers before the utility regulatory panel, favored the change, which is not expected to be made until 1997.

"We think it will further competition, and

Sailfest breezes into town

By TONY DeBORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — There should be plenty of just about everything for this weekend's Seminole County Sailfest — plenty of people, plenty of water, and plenty of things to do.

As long as there's plenty of wind, it should be a great weekend.

According to Linda Embrey, director of public relations for the Sailfest, over 700 boats are expected to make up the fleet of sailing craft that will compete in the regatta on Lake Monroe this weekend.

"Based on preregistration, which is running ahead of last year, we're expecting over 3,000 people to participate this weekend," said Embrey Thursday night.

In its 23rd year, the Sailfest — sponsored by the Seminole County Tourist Development Council — is open to all sailboats under 27 feet in length. This year's regatta will feature 15 sanctioned events, ranging from state to North American championships.

Among the classes that have sanctioned events planned include the Lasers (state championship), Ocean Breeze 18 (national championship), Hobies (points regatta), and Vanguard 15s (midwinters).

Over 50 different classes of boats — including catamarans, displacement monohulls, planing monohulls, sailboards, Optimist dinghies, sailboards, and remote-control sailboats — will share eight separate race courses.

The high optimism of Sailfest organizers hoping for a possible record-setting weekend was tempered recently by the rising of Lake Monroe's water level to near-record measures. While the water level won't affect racing, the resulting flooding of beach area will make launching and landing 700-plus craft an adventure.

Watchdog group says borrow pit operation's data may be faulty

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

GENEVA — A local watchdog group has accused the operators of the Excavated Products borrow pit of submitting inaccurate and possibly falsified data to the St. Johns River Water Management District.

In the report submitted last week, Save Our Bubble technical advisor Mike Rich claims some data reports are missing, others are "worthless" and some show evidence of "fudging." As a result, the impacts of the digging operation can't be accurately measured.

"At least, the data should be accurate so we can see what's going on here," said Rich.

Rich suggests data be conducted by independent engineers to assure accuracy. The report is under review by water managers. Their conclusions aren't expected for another week.

Ed Quinn, managing partner of Excavated Products, said he was disappointed to learn of the complaint.

"I have had a constant open-door policy with Mike and anyone since I became more involved last November," said Quinn. "I was under the impression we were working very well together. I don't believe we've done anything wrong. I believe this will fall on deaf ears."

Quinn said he wants to begin pumping water from one pit to another to speed digging. Save Our Bubble members say they won't support that unless reliable

Holiday historic home tour weekend

Tour veterans keep learning more about home

By SHARI BRODIE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — When the Sanford Historic Trust Holiday Tour of Homes was just one week away, one would have expected the home of Michael and Julia Goeb to be a flurry of activity.

But, while boxes and cartons of holiday trimmings and decorations could be found throughout the house, the Goeb's, tour veterans, seemed calm this past Saturday, and ready to face the task ahead of them in the coming week. In fact, Julia was looking forward to the tour, and beyond. The weekend following is scheduled for the wedding of her daughter and she feels a sense of relief that the house will be ready in advance for the bridesmaid luncheon, thanks to tour preparations.

This is the Goeb's second year on the tour. They first opened their home for this annual holiday event in 1990 but the home has gone through some further renovation since then.

When the Goeb's bought the house, 5 1/2 years ago, they believed, based on the records given to them at the time, that the home was built in

NAACP leader takes aggressive stand

JACKSONVILLE — The new president of the Jacksonville branch of the NAACP says the organization will be a "litigating NAACP" when he takes over in January.

"We're going to court over any issues that our city leaders neglect to deal with," said Bill Randall. "We're going to become a litigating NAACP."

Randall succeeds Willie Dennis who is stepping down after a decade as NAACP president to focus her energies as state representative.

"I don't intend to allow 20 years of neglect to go on. I don't intend to allow racism and oppression of people of color to go on. We'll be open to negotiation, but that hasn't always worked in the past," Randall said.

Randall said areas needing attention include school desegregation, hiring and job promotion, and housing.

Hazardous waste plant plans stopped

TALLAHASSEE — Proponents of a commercial hazardous waste incinerator in Polk County have withdrawn their application to build the project.

The decision by Weatinghouse Corp. formalizes an earlier announcement that the company was stopping the project.

A recent statewide study by the Department of Environmental Protection found only a fraction of the plant's 70,000-ton capacity was needed to handle hazardous waste produced in Florida.

Last year a proposal for a similar incinerator in Madison County was withdrawn.

"We don't feel there is a need for new additional commercial incineration capacity," said Raoul Clarke, administrator for the department's Bureau of Solid and Hazardous Waste. "On a national level, there will remain an excess capacity."

Some environmental advocates said the state's study didn't go far enough.

"It says there is no need for an incinerator at this time but it doesn't make it clear how much this time is," said Mark Ferrulo of Florida Interest Research Group, a non-profit environmental and consumer group.

Naval monument to be unveiled

PENSACOLA — A $1 million monument depicting naval aviators from five eras will be unveiled at a ceremony in Washington, D.C., Tuesday.

The bronze memorial, titled Spirit of Naval Aviation, is made up of figures representing World War I, World War II, the Korean War, the Vietnam War and the modern era including the Persian Gulf War.

The monument will go on permanent display at the National Museum of Naval Aviation in May 1996 as part of a $13 million addition to the facility at the Pensacola Naval Air Station.

The ceremony next week will be held at the National Air and Space Museum. The memorial will be on display Monday and Tuesday. Then it will be stored until the Pensacola museum addition opens.

Adm. Jeremy M. Boorda, chief of naval operations, Gen. Carl E. Mundy Jr., commandant of the Marine Corps, and former Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld are to speak at the Washington ceremony. Rumsfeld contributed $200,000 toward the monument in memory of his father, George Donald Rumsfeld, who was a naval aviator in World War II.

Group photo cancelled to save life

TARIFON SPRINGS — When 72-year-old Emanuel Matalon collapsed face-down in the surf with a failing heart, help wasn't hard to find.

On the beach were 27 firefighters posing for a group photo. Their two trucks, loaded with lifesaving equipment, were parked behind them.

Half ran for their rescue gear. The others hit the water in full uniform, their beavers still clipped to their belts. The three strongest swimmers grabbed the ailing man and pulled him to shore.

"He was just very lucky that they were out there," Matalon's son, Robert, said of Wednesday's rescue.

Response time from the closest station would have been six or seven minutes, said fire Lt. Phil McKenna, and Matalon was in cardiac arrest.

"It might have been the difference," McKenna said.

Matalon was upgraded from critical to serious condition Thursday. He is in the intensive care unit at Helen Ellis Memorial Hospital.

Brown campaign violated laws

FEC report finds problems with '92 campaign

By RON WORD
Associated Press Writer

JACKSONVILLE — A Federal Elections Commission report shows U.S. Rep. Corrine Brown's campaign violated several laws when she ran for office two years ago.

The Friends of Corrine Brown, her principle campaign committee, is accused of receiving contributions from corporations and apparent foreign nationals, using a corporate aircraft, misstating financial activity, failing to submit documentation on loans from the candidate and failing to itemize contributions and disbursements.

A FEC spokeswoman said the commission was not issuing a fine.

The final audit released Wednesday states Ms. Brown's campaign had corrected most of the errors uncovered in the audit of her 1992 campaign. Ms. Brown, D-Jacksonville, was re-elected in November to her second term.

Ronnie Simmons, Ms. Brown's chief of staff, did not return telephone calls. Ms. Brown earlier attributed the problems to an inexperienced campaign staff unfamiliar with the intricacies of federal campaign laws.

Under federal law, corporations and foreign nationals cannot contribute to campaigns. The FEC report shows Ms. Brown's campaign received 17 contributions from corporations totaling $4,200 and a $250 contribution drawn on the account of a foreign national.

In response to an interim report, Ms. Brown's campaign provided copies of refund checks in the amount of $3,200. The report does not mention the remaining $1,250.

The FEC report also showed Ms. Brown paid Florida Rock Industries $4,111 after using the company's aircraft. Federal law requires that campaigns pay in advance for use of corporate aircraft.

The interim report recommended that Ms. Brown's campaign committee list each of the flights and how the cost was determined. Since none of the documentation was provided, the report said, the FEC could not determine if the billings were correctly calculated.

According to the report, Ms. Brown's campaign also understated its receipts by $12,325 and understated its disbursements by $24,480. On Aug. 4, 1993, her committee filed amended reports correcting the misstatements of financial activity.

The other complaints dealt with record keeping.

Ex-supervisor accuses bosses, discrimination

By The Associated Press

TAMPA — A former water management supervisor is accusing his bosses of an AIDS-related violation of the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Victor Gagliardo, 37, seeks a jury trial, compensatory damages and back pay from the Southwest Florida Water Management District, a regional quasi-government agency.

His AIDS discrimination suit was filed Thursday. World AIDS Day, in U.S. District Court in Tampa.

Gagliardo said he was involved in an auto accident on the job in August 1993 and while out of work his health deteriorated. He went on disability leave and later told his bosses that if doctors approved he would be back to work by spring.

He returned to the job May 2 but was sent home, he said. Two days later, he accused the district of AIDS discrimination.

Gagliardo said he wrote to the district, asking permission to come back, and on May 11 filed an internal grievance alleging AIDS-related violation of the federal Act.

The following day, Gagliardo said a nine-page questionnaire was delivered to him to have his doctors complete.

He refused to bring the questionnaire to his doctor, and the district refused to reinstate him, according to the suit.

The two-count complaint accuses the Brooksville-based water district of disability discrimination, AIDS-related and retaliation discrimination for filing the grievance.

Hill tells Chung he has no regrets about killing doctor

By The Associated Press

PENSACOLA — Paul Hill says he has no regrets about killing an abortion doctor and clinic escort and expects to go to heaven when he dies.

"I have great peace and joy in the Lord, in that I have done something that I think the Lord is pleased with," the former minister told CBS newswoman Connie Chung in an interview broadcast Thursday on her "Eye to Eye" program.

Hill, 40, of Pensacola was facing possible life sentences today on three counts of violating a new federal abortion clinic protection law by fatally shooting the two men and wounding another volunteer escort July 29 outside a Pensacola clinic.

He was the first person convicted under the Freedom of Access to Clinic Entrances law two months ago. U.S. District Judge Roger Vinson will sentence him.

Hill will have another sentencing in state court Tuesday. There, the maximum penalty could be death in Florida's electric chair for the shotgun slayings of Dr. John Bayard Britton, 69, of Fernandina Beach, and retired Air Force Lt. Col. James Barrett, 74, of Pensacola.

Hill, a former minister in the Presbyterian Church in America and Orthodox Presbyterian Church, also was convicted of attempting to murder Barrett's wife, June, 69, who was wounded.

The look of things

Students at Lakeview Middle School are helping future generations know about life on the Sanford campus. Yearbooks, signs, photos, writing implements, Sanford Herald newspaper clippings, and the code of student conduct were among the many items included in the Plexiglas time capsule which will be opened in a quarter century in celebration of the school's 50th anniversary. The ceremony was presided over by members of the school's Beta Club. The Philco Company donated the vault, the tools and much of the labor for the project. Randy Birdmier of Philco helped Jared Nixon and Geoffrey Holland install the top as Mayor Bettye Smith and Geoff Tuck of Philco look on.

World AIDS Day: Demonstrations, programs, services

By The Associated Press

The rhythm of the bass drum was as steady as a heartbeat, pounding once each time the name of another AIDS victim was read.

Gathered under black umbrellas at Philadelphia's city hall, about 600 activists and artists, family and friends, visionaries and victims listened to the names and mourned the losses.

It was one of many ceremonies across the country Thursday commemorating World AIDS Day. Elsewhere, there were mock funerals, candlelight prayer vigils, demonstrations, even a salad bar cart filled with thousands of condoms and safe sex pamphlets.

It was a day of sounds from the angry protests of people demanding more money for AIDS research to the "thunk" of a 9-ton granite boulder being dropped into place at an AIDS memorial garden in San Francisco.

And it was a day of no sights. Works of art were shrouded or taken down for fear that the losses AIDS had inflicted on the art world.

At the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, Renoir's "Two Girls at the Piano" was removed from the wall, and a Rembrandt self-portrait and David Hockney's "Mount Fuji and Flowers" were shrouded.

The Museum of Contemporary Art in Los Angeles took a different approach. It left its exhibits untouched, admitted people free and asked artists to present readings and performances. "so you don't just feel a sense of loss, you feel a sense of there is something you can do," said museum spokeswoman Dawn Setzer.

That's the way Joe Cote felt. He spent the day threading his van through Boston traffic to deliver hot meals to AIDS shut-ins.

"I can usually stay for only two or three minutes, but sometimes people are lonely and want to talk, so I stretch it and make it up in the drive to the next place," said Cote, who works with a group that serves 1,300 hot meals per week.

In New York City's Times Square, a huge image of a white blood cell being attacked by the tentacles of the AIDS virus was magnified 1,000 times on a giant television screen.

Superimposed over the image was the text: "Today is Day Without Art ... When is Day Without AIDS."

At the University of Houston, fraternities filled a salad bar cart in the student center with 4,000 condoms, thousands of safe-sex pamphlets and discount coupons for HIV tests.

In San Francisco, a crowd of people with AIDS, their family and friends dedicated the 15-acre AIDS Memorial Grove at Golden Gate Park, a memorial to those who have died and those who cared for them.

Groups of volunteers have met in the shaded grove once a month for the last three years to revive a portion of the park which has languished for almost a century.

"Somehow it helps work through the sadness and grief," said Phyllis Gomez, who lost her son Michael to AIDS. "We can't have our loved ones back, but we can remember them. Working here is an expression of caring and respect."

Data

data is produced showing the Bubble hasn't been harmed.

"This material appears to be inaccurate," said Don Crabtree, group president. "If there isn't accurate elevation reports, then they shouldn't be allowed to de-water."

Bill Carlie, with water district, said he was reviewing the complaint and anticipated he'll be done in another week. Carlie said if inconsistencies are found, Excavated Products engineers may be asked to respond.

Rich asserts information required by the water district is missing and the data collection process or evaluation is "sloppy" rendering some reports useless. Rich also asserts some data was "tilted" to favor Excavated Products.

Rich said inaccurate data could mask damages to the Geneva Bubble done by digging.

Digging was stopped for four days in June when digging caused water in a monitored wetlands to drop below permitted levels. Carlie said the work stoppage came after a complaint was filed.

"We insisted they comply with the conditions in the permit," said Carlie.

Excavated Products is required to take regular rain, wetland and underground measurements to assure the borrow pit operation complies with permit conditions imposed by the water district. Some of the conditions were imposed after Save Our Bubble filed an appeal after the district issued a permit for the mining operation.

The appeal led to a 1992 change which required the pit to be dug in two phases. The second phase would not be allowed unless extensive testing showed the digging did not affect the Geneva Bubble.

Rich said district files show one monthly report was not submitted for more than a year and other monitoring requirements were not met.

Following a series of reported vandalism of pit monitoring wells, Rich said much of the data became inconsistent or useless. Rich said Excavated Products testers didn't report some wells were vandalized for several months, even though other measurements showed they were.

Although tampering would affect testing results, Rich said he found they were not, suggesting the data had been altered to compensate for the damages.

"By a two to one margin the data shows that the vandalism is apparently not confirmed by the data," Rich wrote. "However, the applicant's agent arbitrarily and capriciously adjusts all piezometer data back to Jan. 4, 1994" (when the unexplained drops in water levels began after construction started).

In his most serious accusation, Rich states some reports may have been deliberately altered. In one example, he cited differences in data for the same period in subsequent reports.

Rich also said recently filed reports no longer show a steep drop in the water table in early January, two months after excavation began. Earlier reports show the drop, often two feet or more.

1914. One Sunday afternoon a couple of years ago, they were working in the yard when a carload of Peabodys, descendants of the original owners of the home, pulled up in front of the house. They had been attending a reunion in Orlando and had driven up to Sanford to see the old homestead. The Goeb invited them in to see the house. Members of the family were able to give them more information about the house and a copy of the original warranty deed that dated back to 1892. Suddenly they realized that their relatively new home was relatively older than they expected.

Thanks to information first given them by Julia Higgins Dietrichs, and later confirmed by the visiting Peabodys, the Goeb discovered that the staircase, which was enclosed by a solid wall, was originally open to the second floor and that there was a fireplace in the parlor. These two facts were not known to the Goeb's the year of the first tour.

"We had Julia Higgins Dietrichs come in one day to see the house," Julia Goeb said. "She was married in this room (the parlor). And the first thing she said was, 'There was a fireplace against that wall (opposite the front wall of the house) and the stairs were open because when I came down the stairs I could see all the family waiting in the parlor.' So they took a sledge hammer and knocked a hole in the wall and found a fire box."

"This room (the parlor) has been done twice," Julia said. "This was the first room we did when we moved in."

"We had to redo the whole room, because it messed up all the wallpaper and everything. So we changed the whole color scheme," Goeb built a new mantle for the fireplace. The new fireplace is now graced by a pastel of Julia's grandmother who was raised on a peach plantation in Georgia. There were eight children in the family and a portrait was made of each child. Julia inherited it from her mother.

In uncovering the staircase, they salvaged the original railing that was attached to the wall, but the Goeb had to have all the balusters handturned to match the ones on the second floor landing, because none of the originals existed.

The Goeb has tried to take a very organized approach to the renovation of their home. "We were so devastated by all the work that needed to be done, that we found ourselves running from one room to another. We'd start a project here, and we'd run into another room to get something, and we'd end up fiddling around in that room," Julia said. "Finally we decided that we needed to take one room at a time and get it done and finish it and walk away from it and do another room."

"We had a five year plan, and it has taken us five years."

Besides removing the walls and partitions that were erected when the house was split into apartments to house military personnel from the naval base, the Goeb decided to make better use of some of the bedroom space.

The house is built on the four-square plan which was a variation of Colonial revival, built from the 1880s until the mid 1950s. The American four-square had four rooms downstairs, four rooms upstairs, a central staircase, a full width porch, hipped roof and a detached kitchen.

Julia said that the Peabodys raised 12 children in the house and the Higgins raised eight children in the "so there's been a lot of kids come through this house. It's a happy home, and everybody says that who comes in here. There were always good times here." Julia said the house is often referred to as the "Higgins House" for the prominent Sanford family and former mayor who lived in the house after the Peabodys.

The Goeb did not need all of the six bedrooms, so the two downstairs were converted into a laundry room/work room and a den. Upstairs, there are two bedrooms and master bedroom suite with a luxurious master bath; space stolen from an existing bedroom.

The home is furnished with Oriental pieces Goeb acquired when he was working in Singapore and family antiques and others purchased at local antique stores. There are two clocks which chime the hour, half hour and quarter hour, adding to the ambience of the home. There is an old high chair that converts into a stroller and finally down to a rocking chair that was originally in the Chase Mansion (All Souls rectory) that Julia purchased in a local antique store and used for her grandchildren.

In the den hangs a photo of the house as it looked when the Peabodys owned it. Julia said the brick porch, which was added sometime in the 1940s, was originally wood and they would like to restore it. "That's our final project, to take it back to a wood porch," Julia said.

One of the upstairs bedrooms is filled with memories of Julia's mother. There is a picture of her parents on their wedding day, a child's dress and a picture of the child, Julia's mother, wearing it. The bed is made with a lace bedspread which belonged to Julia's mother when she was a little girl. "She's coming to stay with us when my daughter gets married, and this is the room she wants to stay in." There is also a picture of Goeb's parents on their wedding day on a bedside table. "This is kind of a family nostalgia room."

Of their century-old home, Julia said, "You get in these old places and just have to kind of dig and talk to people, and eventually you find out all kinds of information." They expressed their luck with having had the visit from the Peabody family. "That was wonderful," Julia said.

"That's what really makes it interesting to live in an old house, when you can talk to some of the people who lived in it."

hopefully lower some bills," Shreve said. "We don't see that its going to provide any justification for raising local rates."

Long-distance carriers hailed the decision.

"The decision today is the next critical step to breaking down the old telephone monopoly and giving consumers all the benefits of competition," said Neal Larsen, MCI's director of governmental and regulatory affairs.

Only Michigan and Minnesota have made similar moves to open local toll calls to competition, he said.

"That ... will serve to bring Floridians more choice, innovative services and more money-saving opportunities," said Jack Spooner, AT&T vice president for state government affairs.

If that seems like too many choices, consumers can leave their service the way it is, Shreve said.

Florida's four largest local phone companies — Southern Bell, GTE Florida, Sprint-United and Sprint-Centel — plan to offer "intra-ATA presubscription" in some areas in 1995 and all areas by the end of 1997. Smaller companies were expected to begin offering it in 1997.

Strickler says the changes cannot be made immediately. "Every local switching office of every local system will have to be re-programmed first," he said, "then each individual customer will have to be given an opportunity to select which local toll call service is wanted."

Senate OKs GATT

WASHINGTON — In a dramatic culmination of the 103rd Congress, the Senate delivered President Clinton a political triumph on a historic world trade agreement with a spirit of bipartisanship that both Democrats and Republicans hoped would carry over into next year.

"Let's make the GATT vote the first vote of a new era of cooperation," a beaming Clinton said, surrounded by leaders of both parties on the White House South Lawn.

The 76-24 vote Thursday night came during the first lame-duck session of Congress in 12 years and was too late to give Democrats a pre-election boost in popularity of the kind Clinton enjoyed a year earlier after the approval of the North American Free Trade Agreement with Canada and Mexico.

But senators said it could serve as a model of inter-party collaboration next year when Republicans take control of both chambers of Congress for the first time in 40 years and square off against the Democratic White House.

Serb leaders to meet U.N. envoy

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Bosnian Serb leaders agreed to meet a top U.N. envoy today even as they ignored demands to free captive U.N. peacekeepers and allow humanitarian aid to be delivered to trapped civilians in northwest Bosnia.

The United Nations has pressing issues to discuss: Attempts to calm fighting in the Bihac region in northwest Bosnia, where Serb forces have overrun Muslim villages in a U.N.-designated "safe area"; and the fate of more than 400 of its soldiers being held by the Serbs as insurance against NATO air strikes.

Seven more peacekeepers were seized Tuesday from an observation post in Croatia, across the border from Bihac, said Alexander Ivanko, a U.N. spokesman. Bosnian Serb units entered Croatia and took the Ukrainian soldiers and a U.N. armored carrier back into Bosnia. The United Nations hasn't heard from the peacekeepers since, Ivanko said.

Human embryo research

WASHINGTON — A scientific advisory panel's recommendation that the federal government fund human embryo research generated 50,000 letters, mostly in protest, the panel's chairman says.

Dr. Steven Muller, chairman of an advisory panel at the National Institutes of Health that made the recommendation two months ago, attributed the flood of protest to widespread public ignorance about human reproduction.

"The public has no idea what human embryo research means, but to most people it does seem terrible," said Muller, president emeritus of Johns Hopkins University. "The extreme high level of public ignorance invites exploitation" by opponents to the human embryo research.

Hubbell to plead guilty

WASHINGTON — One of President Clinton's closest friends, former Associate Attorney General Webb Hubbell, plans to plead guilty to two felony charges brought by the Whitewater prosecutor, a source close to the investigation says.

The source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Hubbell, 46, would admit to tax evasion and mail fraud under an agreement with independent counsel Kenneth Starr.

Hubbell, a former law partner of first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton, has been under investigation by Starr over allegations that he overbilled legal clients, including the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

The source would not say whether the charges were directly related to the alleged overbillings. It could not be immediately learned whether Hubbell has agreed to cooperate with prosecutors as part of the plea. It also was not known when Hubbell would enter his plea.

U.S. intelligence in late 1950s

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — U.S. intelligence in the late 1950s foresaw that the Soviets would make long-range missiles a focus of their nuclear arms buildup but greatly underestimated the surge once it began, newly declassified records show.

The records, released today by the CIA at a Harvard University conference, paint a picture of American intelligence analysts in the early Cold War years struggling to understand Soviet military intentions with little hard information.

Although the CIA and the other U.S. spy agencies failed to recognize fully the 1960s buildup of Soviet missiles capable of striking U.S. soil, they did hold consistently — and apparently correctly — to a belief that whatever the size of the Soviet nuclear arsenal, it was not designed for deliberate attack on America.

Cleaner gas to push prices higher

By H. JOSEPH HEBERT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Millions of American motorists are about to find that cleaner air does not come without a cost — higher gasoline prices.

A new, cleaner burning gasoline began flowing from distribution terminals into service station tanks Thursday. By the end of the month, the old, cheaper gasoline no longer will be sold in all or parts of 17 states. Nearly 50 million motorists will be affected.

"This is the biggest change in gasoline in our lifetime," said William Heman, environmental affairs director for the American Automobile Association. He voiced concern that amid the confusion, some gas retailers may boost prices unnecessarily, although some legitimate price increase can be expected.

By January, the new gasoline, which the Environmental Protection Agency says burns cleaner with less evaporation so it produces 20 percent less pollution, will account for nearly a third of all the gasoline sold in the country. It will be required in urban areas with significant smog problems. That includes most of the Northeast and mid-Atlantic region from parts of Virginia to southern Maine.

The fuel also will be required in the Los Angeles and San Diego areas of southern California; in and around Houston and Dallas-Forth Worth in Texas; in the Chicago area, stretching into northwestern Indiana and southeastern Wisconsin; and in the Louisville, Ky., area as well as in three counties across the river from Cincinnati.

But as motorists likely will notice, the new gas will cost at least a nickel a gallon more because of higher refining costs. Wholesale reformulated gasoline for delivery in January recently sold for 6 to 8 cents a gallon more than conventional gasoline on the New York commodity market.

How much of that higher cost will be passed on to the retail customers is uncertain and largely will depend on local competition, says Harry Murphy of the Service Station Dealers of America. "By the first of the year, it's going to be 3 to 4 cents higher than today" because of the reformulated gasoline change.

In some areas of the Northeast and mid-Atlantic region, gasoline prices already have jumped as much as 10 cents a gallon since mid-October for a variety of reasons, including weather-related supply interruptions. Now, some of those higher prices may become permanent, industry representatives suggested.

But EPA Administrator Carol Browner said the "extremely modest" increase in gasoline prices will have a payback in cleaner air.

"This is the easiest, most common-sense approach toward seriously improved air quality," said Browner.

Personal mettle tested

Unbeaten Tribe thrash short-handed 'Hounds

By TONY DeSORMIER

One of two Lyman starters who haven't been sidelined by injuries, Angel Rhodes (No. 33) had 19 points (including three three-point field goals) and a game-high 15 rebounds in the Greyhounds' loss to Seminole Thursday.

SANFORD — Stripped of the traditional suspense of who would win and lose, Thursday night's Seminole Athletic Conference girls' basketball game between the visiting Lyman Greyhounds and Seminole Fighting Seminoles instead was an experiment in motivation.

Basically, how would the drastically outnumbered Greyhounds, who had as many players sidelined with injuries (six) as they did in uniform, respond in the face of playing the undefeated Seminoles on their home court? And what would the Tribe do when faced with a weakened team that they're supposed to beat?

Largely, the game went as expected, Seminole using its high-pressure defense to leap out to an 18-5 lead and cruise to a 71-44 victory over the Greyhounds at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium.

Both coaches were satisfied with their respective teams' effort.

"We played sloppy at times," said Seminole John McNamara, who took advantage of the contest to get every player on his 11-girl roster some substantial playing time. "But it was an unusual game. Not only was it our third game in as many days, the girls know the problems Lyman is having with injuries right now."

"One thing that's nice is looking down the bench and seeing six

For the most part, senior guard Tennessee Eason (21 points, nine rebounds, four assists) kept the Seminoles — whichever ones happened to be on the floor at a given time — fairly together. Late in the game, Haneefah Miller (six points, 10 rebounds, six assists) took over running the attack.

All the while, Seminole employed its man-to-man pressing defense against the Greyhounds (who played without starters Kate Brown, Ilishia Weas, and Kim Collins), which contributed some to the

James, Kohn lead Hawks in romp of Lake Mary

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — The one-two punch of Christine James and Kelly Kohn sparked a huge fourth-quarter advantage for the Lake Howell Silver Hawks as they administered a 61-39 beating of the Lake Mary Rams in a Seminole Athletic Conference girls' basketball contest at Lake Mary High School Thursday night.

James poured in 18 points, while Kohn added 16 as Lake Howell outscored the Rams in every quarter but one to end Lake Mary's winning streak at three.

The Silver Hawks led 45-34 after three periods, then turned the game into a rout with a 16-5 fourth quarter advantage.

Laura Ragucci was the only Ram in double figures with 17 points.

The junior varsity contest went to the Rams by the score of 54-28.

Lake Howell, which improved to 6-3 overall and 1-1 in the SAC, will play its third game of the week tonight at DeLand, with the junior varsity opening play at 5:15 p.m.

Lake Mary, now 3-2 overall and 1-1 in the conference, will play an SAC tripleheader at Oviedo next Tuesday, with the freshman game starting at 4:15 p.m.

Brooke Kent (No. 18), shown in action earlier this week in a match against Lake Brantley, scored the game's only goal in the 26th minute to boost the Lake Mary Rams to a 1-0 win over the Lake Howell Silver Hawks Thursday night at Lake Howell's Richard L. Evans Field. Lake Mary will play Orange Park Saturday.

Rams, Greyhounds kick up 1-0 wins

From Staff Reports

WINTER PARK — The story of the night in girls' soccer was, if you score, you win.

In all of the five games reported, including two junior varsity and one freshman contest, the loser was held scoreless.

Brooke Kent scored the only goal of the game on an assist from Megan Martin 26 minutes into the game as the Lake Mary Rams nipped the Lake Howell Silver Hawks 1-0 in a Seminole Athletic Conference matchup at Richard L. Evans Stadium Thursday night.

The freshman and junior varsity games went to Lake Howell by the scores of 3-0 and 1-0, respectively.

The key to the game, according to Lake Mary head coach Bill Eissele, was the play of goal keeper Michelle Rovito.

Educators visit Optimists

Several guests recently visited the Sanford Optimist Club. Peggy Hardin (from left), president, welcomed Emory Blake and his son Jimmie Blake who were among the visitors. Emory Blake, former football coach at Seminole High School and father of Jeff Blake, star quarterback on the Cincinnati Bengals football team, told members about his family who were born and reared in the Sanford area. Jimmie Blake told the club about some of his experiences. He has been a Cumberland Farms manager for many years, has been a physically impaired outreach counselor at Midway School for six years and is a Pentecostal minister.

Gift for the future

Start a fund for economic peace of mind

How much money would it take to support your family for three to six months? Home economists urge families to set aside this much savings for emergencies or unemployment. However, many families have not saved for the future. Emergencies will come. We just don't know when.

Starting a fund for economic peace of mind could be the best family gift this holiday. Job layoffs are increasingly common, and unemployment periods are longer. If you do not have adequate savings, here are some suggestions:

- Sit down with family members and get their ideas on how to save money. Talk about the need for savings. Preschoolers will help you save if you explain it.
- Tell your friends and family that you need to save instead of spend. Tell them that your holiday gifts will be either handmade or "coupons" for services such as free babysitting, a car wash, etc.
- Gift wrap a box and label it "Emergency Savings." Cut a slot to drop in notes. When you put money into your savings, write how and how much. Drop the note into the slot. Keep the box in a special place to remind your family of the project.

- Repair or repair toys for gifts instead of buying new ones. Maybe you could help your older child repair an outgrown bike in a younger child's favorite color. Add special decals or trim. This becomes the older child's gift to the younger. Figure the money saved from recycling the bike instead of buying a new one. Deposit this much in your savings account and place a note in your savings gift box.

- Write down how much your family spends in a week on eating out, soft drinks, and snacks. (Wow!) Agree to carry all your own food and drinks from home for the rest of the year. Each week, put the fast food savings in your account.

• Take peanut butter sandwiches and apples on a picnic instead of buying that greasy fast food! Stash the savings.

• Agree not to spend money on holiday decorations. Use what you have or make your own. (Remember chains from recycled paper and popcorn garlands?)

• Shock your parents and grandparents by asking for their ideas on savings!

• Be prepared for your children to remember this holiday as special because 1) your gifts were from the hand and heart and 2) your lesson about saving is something they can use the rest of their lives.

'Gentleman' may not be so perfect

DEAR ABBY: I lost my husband several years ago, and met this very nice man after being alone for many years. We started dating, and he was the first man to tell me he loved me. Abby, it was wonderful to hear those words again. He is a perfect gentleman, brings me flowers and always walks me to my door.

I kept expecting him to propose marriage, but he has never mentioned marriage, nor did he introduce me to any members of his family. I thought it was rather odd. Then he told me that he had promised his wife before she passed away that he would never marry again.

Abby, he asked me not to go with any other man. I told him I would not — and I have kept my promise. I love him, but I do not like this hiding. I told him he needs to talk to a head doctor about his promise and how it is affecting his life. He refused.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

I would appreciate any advice you can give me. Please don't use my name or town. I don't want to get him in trouble.

IN HIDING

DEAR IN HIDING: The man you love is being very unfair to you. Furthermore, he appears to be untrustworthy. Unless he introduces you to his family and friends, I see no future for you in this relationship.

DEAR ABBY: The grandma who says she doesn't expect her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren to "fall all over themselves" thanking her for gifts is contributing to their irresponsible behavior.

Sending a postcard addressed to yourself with written responses to be checked and returned is a good idea. However, I would not include a self-addressed postcard with the gift.

If a month of five weeks have passed without any acknowledgment of the gift, I would send a postcard with the following choices to be checked, and returned:

- PLEASE CHECK ONE:
1. I am irresponsible, and don't care about you, or the effort you have put out for me.
 2. I have two broken arms.
 3. You owe me, and I expect a gift.
 4. I'm too lazy to lick a stamp.
 5. I realize that this will be the last I'll be hearing from you, but I'll call you right before my birthday next year.

JANE BYRD, MOTHER OF FIVE.

GRANDMOTHER OF 10, GREAT-GRANDMOTHER OF ONE, SHOW LOW, ARIZ.

DEAR ABBY: Here's another gift idea for "A 91-Year-Old Grandma," who doesn't need crystal bud vases, nightgowns or dusting powder.

For about $17, a family member can buy grandma 50 pre-stamped envelopes imprinted with Grandma's name and return address. This gift would make her letter-writing easier — she wouldn't have to worry about stamps or address stickers. The envelopes are available with either a "star" or a "love" stamp design. Order blanks are available at the post office, and orders are shipped in about two weeks. For a 91-year-old grandma, I'd certainly get the "love" design!

No, I don't work for the U.S. Postal Service; I'm a nurse educator who knows a good deal when I see one!

NANCY MACKLIN, BELLEVILLE, ILL.

DEAR NANCY: What a great idea! I'm giving it my "Dear Abby stamp" — of approval!

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

Boy's behavior blamed on Mom's addiction during her pregnancy

DEAR MARY: I've had custody of my five-year-old grandson since he was 3 months old. He was born addicted to cocaine because his mother snorted all during her pregnancy. Then HRS took him away from her and gave him to me because they found cigarette burns on his bottom legs and back.

He's always been real hard to handle. He was a real cranky baby and since he's been able to walk, it seems like we can't make him mind. He runs away when I call him, has temper fits and tries to hurt smaller kids, and animals.

Needless to say, his kindergarten teacher is calling me several times a week because of his behavior. I've told her that he acts the same way at home and I can't handle him here so I sure can't tell her what she should do at school. To tell the truth, I'm tired of her bothering me. She's supposed to be the professional. Anyhow, I'm willing to try anything but I don't know where to go or what to do.

TIRED GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: You really do have your hands full and I'm sorry to say that there are no really good answers on how to manage the behavior or cocaine-exposed infants and children. Additionally, there is an ever-increasing number of children entering school manifesting the same symptoms that you outlined in your letter.

Research has indicated that these children appear to be neurologically over excitable and overly sensitive to external stimuli. Therefore, if a TV is on, the telephone rings, and people are talking all in the same room at the same time, the child may have a violent reaction.

Needless to say, both at school and at home it is very difficult to control the child's environment to the degree necessary to keep these children stable. You and the school may wish to explore the possibility of medication to help control his ADHD types of behaviors.

It is sometimes very effective in helping the child manage his/her behavior and in other cases, it is completely ineffective. Finally, it may be necessary to place your grandson in an exceptional student education classroom where the teacher is trained in behavior management and the lower student-teacher ratio makes control easier.

The only truly effective solution to the heartbreak of cocaine-related problems in children is prevention. To protect a developing fetus it is critical that the pregnant woman abstain from using any drug throughout her pregnancy. If the woman has a drug problem, she must consult a health care professional early in her pregnancy.

BUDDIES

No, we didn't confuse the title and the photograph, though it may appear so. These fuzzy buddies seem to feel right at home in each other's company, putting no consideration into any apparent dissimilarities.

In 1 Timothy 4:4, we read, "Every creature of God is good." Each creature is from the same Source...the Great Originator of all existence. In that sense we are kin. We are one, our hearts keeping time with the primal rhythm of life itself.

As we sit in the House of our Almighty Creator this Sabbath, may we take a moment to search God's sanctuary...and to capture the sense of sanctuary as we experience His warmth reflected in the eyes of our fellow worshippers, touch it with our soul, and join in that singular sacrament, the worship of our Father in Heaven.

Sister Winnie marks 50 years in music

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Shower Down of Blessings Church on Elm Ave. will be a place of rejoicing on Sunday, December 11 at 2 p.m. "Sister Winnie" will be celebrating 50 years in the music ministry.

Formerly from Pennsylvania, "Sister Winnie" has worked since 1977 as the Ministry Coordinator with Outreach Ministry Christian Fellowship Center International. Although she has been in Sanford only one year she hopes in her retirement here to teach others.

"Sister Winnie" is also in the process of writing a book about how to live debt free to be released in 1995. She was a missionary in the United Kingdom in 1986 for five months, a member of Women's Aglow and the Women's Evangelist Fellowship. She received her Bachelor of Arts degree from Morgan State College in Baltimore, Maryland in 1960 and was inducted into the National Honor Society Hall of Fame in 1973 for outstanding achievement.

Her talents of music and singing were developed at an early age. "I started playing the piano and singing at 8 years old," she said. "I was raised in church. I have a prophetic and a healing ministry. Music soothes people, lifts the Spirit and refreshes the soul. I remember when I taught school. The children would get restless and I'd sit down and start playing the piano. They'd always settle down."

Matthew 6:25, 26 Therefore I say unto you, Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment? Behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into them: Are ye not much better than they?

"For, 'Everyone who calls upon the name of the Lord shall be saved.'"

Is inhaled helium a laughing matter?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there harm for the jokers who inhale helium to change their voices just for a laugh?

DEAR READER: Helium is plentiful in our environmental air. When breathed in high concentrations, it alters the timbre and raises the pitch of the voice, causing speech that sounds like that of cartoon characters. The practice of occasionally inhaling helium is not considered, by most authorities, to be a health hazard.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 36-year-old husband has rheumatoid arthritis. He has taken lots of over-the-counter remedies for pain, but refuses to see a specialist, convinced that there is nothing that can be done. He's getting very difficult to live with and I think something will help. Your opinion?

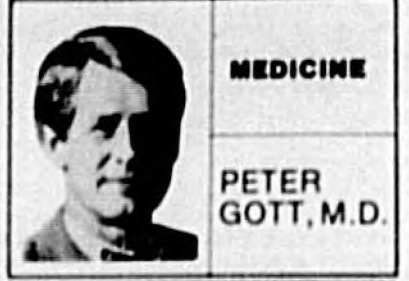

DEAR READER: Your husband can be helped. In fact, some of the modern treatments for rheumatoid arthritis are very effective. These include anti-inflammatory medicines, gold shots, a drug called Plaquenil, and cortisone steroids -- all available by prescription. I think it's a shame that a man as young as your husband is so willing to surrender to a treatable disease. Rheumatoid arthritis, an auto-immune disorder, can be relentlessly progressive and, in many patients, causes severe disability, if left untreated.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Following my last mammogram, I was told to undergo an ultrasound for further clarification of two cysts. My doctor decided it wasn't necessary to aspirate, to simply leave them alone. I'm very concerned about his decision since I've had other cysts that have always required drainage. Could this cause cancer and do I have cause for concern?

DEAR READER: The fact that you have had fluid removed from previous breast cysts probably means that your two new cysts reflect fibrocystic disease, a common benign condition. In addition, the mammogram and ultrasound exams appear to have shown that your breast lumps are filled with fluid that does not need to be, biopsied or drained.

Nonetheless, if you're very concerned about simply monitoring the situation (with repeated examinations, mammograms and ultrasound tests), I recommend that you seek a

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

In "The Rape of the Lock," Alexander Pope wrote, "Let spades be trumps!" she said, and trumps they were."

That applies to today's deal, but when East made a great play, South found to her dismay that she didn't have enough spades to get home.

Sitting East was John Wignall, who lives in Christchurch, New Zealand. One of the best bridge players on the World Bridge Federation Executive Council, Wignall opened with a weak no-trump, promising 11-14 high-card points. South bid two spades, which showed a two-suiter with spades and a minor. North asked for the minor with two no-trump (no, I don't know why either) and then jumped to game in spades.

The defense began with three rounds of diamonds. After ruffling, declarer immediately led a heart to dummy's 10. Wignall won with his jack and the critical moment had arrived.

Suppose Wignall returns a club. Declarer wins with the ace, runs the spade queen, plays a spade to dummy's 10 and leads the heart king. Whether East plays his ace now or on the next trick, South ruffs and leads a trump to dummy's ace, simultaneously drawing West's last spade and giving access to dummy's established heart suit.

However, Wignall played a fourth round of diamonds, which killed the contract. If declarer ruffed in the dummy, West would win the setting trick with his spade king. So South ruffed in hand. She ran the spade queen, played a spade to dummy's 10 and ruffed out East's heart ace. But now South had no trump left in her hand.

West had to score his spade king to defeat the contract.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Oso
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Dec. 3, 1994

Your chances of success are strong in the year ahead, if you don't take on more than you can comfortably manage. Focus only on the most meaningful assignments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone very close to you might not be as perceptive or resourceful as you are. If the two of you have something to prove, prepare to do the work yourself. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which govern you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The world is a tough place already, so don't make things harder for yourself today. Try to overcome your self-doubt.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

A friend who still owes you for an old loan might try to tap your resources again today. If you must say no, say it with compassion and understanding.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today associates might have more faith in your abilities than you do. Try to see things from their perspective.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Occasionally you get away with telling little white lies, but today you will be held strictly accountable for everything you say.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you're contemplating an investment at this time, do your own research. What others find might not reveal the whole picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In a union there is strength, but this might not hold true today. Instead of being part of a team, you might fare better operating independently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your ideas may have some merit today, but they are not as great as you believe they are. Be careful; associates might try to deflate your balloon.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today you might find yourself in a situation where you should let your heart rule your head. Unfortunately, this may be too difficult for you to do.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Select your companions carefully today; you may adopt their attitudes. If they behave badly, you probably will too.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Someone you dislike will have excellent ideas today, but you may reject them owing to the source. The loss would be yours, not his/hers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You are in a cycle demanding careful management of your resources. If you act extravagantly, a major loss could occur.
