

Fuel Adjustment On Utility Bill Going Up

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Not only will Florida Power & Light Co. (FPL) customers in Sanford and the immediate environs face the prospect of a power loss through brownouts in the next few weeks, but they will also be facing a 13 percent increase in the fuel adjustment cost on their monthly power bills.

"We received notice today that the cost of low sulfur oil has been increased by $2 per barrel or 13 percent from $15.45 to $17.45 per barrel. Regular sulfur content oil has been increased by $2.35 per barrel," Scott Burns, district manager for FPL said.

"Customers can look for the fuel adjustment portion of their power bills to increase. The fuel adjustment cost is controlled entirely by the cost of oil," he said.

Fuel adjustment charges have ranged from five cents to to-$14 per barrel for oil and the last price increase came only a month ago." Burns noted that the cost of oil to the power company before the fuel crisis of 1974 was $2 per barrel. The company has estimated it will use 40 million barrels of oil this year. "With 43 gallons of oil in a barrel, that's a lot of oil," he said.

Meanwhile, the firm is continuing its plans to appeal to Gov. Graham and then to President Carter with Graham's expected support for permission to use higher sulfur content oil.

about $2 per barrel less even with the latest increase in cost, Burns said.

Currently, federal anti-pollution standards ban the burning of higher sulfur content oil.

Burns said without the lifting of the ban FPL's customers which include residents in the Sanford area—will be facing brownouts—loss of power.

FPL will be receiving 36 percent less low-sulfur fuel during this month, April, May and June, he said.

Officials Say Sanford Pay Dispute Over

Members of the Sanford City Commission said today they plan to vote tonight to pay a total of $1,120.30 to two city street department employees for time spent over a 10-year period in training with the Florida National Guard.

A search of city records over the past 10 years by Assistant City Manager Richard Cudgley indicated the city owes Danny Martin $865.06 and Kenneth Forsythe $255.24.

"Quite frankly, I think it has been the attitude of the commission to pay these guys and get on with it," said Commissioner David Farr. "Unless someone can come up with something that is very conflicting to show me otherwise, I really think we owe it to those employees to pay them and I'm going to vote that way."

Commissioner Eddie Keith agreed with Farr's assessment. "I'm sure we're going to go on and pay it," commented Keith. "I think we have no other alternative."

Commissioner Julian Stenstrom noted the commission would have to approve the back pay to comply with state law. "If that's the law, that's the law. When I took my oath of office I swore to uphold the law," said Stenstrom. "I'm going to go along with the state law and vote for paying the back pay," commented Commissioner John Morris. "I don't see that we have any other choice."

City Manager Warren E. Kowies said as far as he's concerned: "The law is the law and that's what we should abide by. The law says they should be paid fully, and that law has been on the books for a long time. Anyway, I've followed the commission's directive and we've researched the records to determine how much money is involved. We'll present those figures to the commission tonight and whatever is the commissioner's wishes, that's what we'll abide by."

The issue came to light in early February when Seminole County officials said they would seek an amendment to a state law requiring municipal and county employees to pay their personnel full salary for any time spent on military training with the Florida National Guard up to 17 days a year.

To date the Sanford and county commissions have failed to comply with the law. The county and Sanford have paid their employees in the guard their salaries less what the guard paid during their two-week training periods.

Irked Carter To Israelis: 'We Still Fall Short'

JERUSALEM (UPI) — U.S. officials said President Carter blew up in anger today when Israel interjected a "new serious complication" that brought his quest for a Middle East peace agreement close to failure.

The Israeli Cabinet in an all night session accepted some but not all of his proposals for an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty. Then Prime Minister Menachem Begin told parliament that the treaty could not be signed until after parliamentary debate.

American officials described this as a "new serious complication" and that the unexpected development caused Carter to explode in anger. Normally treaties are initiated, then signed and then debated by parliament before ratification.

"I will bring this treaty to this house (the Knesset) before we have fixed our signature," Begin said as Carter listened to a simultaneous translation of the Hebrew through earphones. "I take great pride in our democracy."

Carter had listened to the fiery parliamentary debate, instead by repeated interruptions of Begin by Geula Cohen, a disaffected member of Begin's Likud bloc. After a 10-minute disturbance she was forcibly ejected from the chamber. Carter appeared somewhat bewildered as leftist deputies repeatedly heckled the prime minister with shouts and catcalls.

Carter had told the parliament earlier that "the people of the two nations are ready now for peace" but "the leaders have not yet proven that we are ready now for peace. They must persevere. With or without a peace treaty, the United States will always be at Israel's side."

Begin, in his speech to the Knesset, said, "the problems that are separating us are serious ones. We don't play around with words or niceties. It is not a matter of words. It is a matter of essence."

Begin indicated that one of the major unresolved problems was a clause in the treaty giving it priority over Egypt's defense pacts with its Arab sister states — a clause Cairo wants changed.

"This is the heart of the matter," Begin said. "We have security problems" on the Lebanese, Syrian and Jordanian frontiers "where hostility remains."

Carter had tried to ease those fears. "Despite the progress of the past six months, we still fall short," Carter said in slow, almost painful tones. "... We have not yet fully met the challenge... We must again contemplate the tragedy of failure."

Using different approaches and terms, Carter repeatedly stressed the need for a commitment by Israel to take the risk required for peace.

"We are now at the very edge of Israel's eternal dream for peace. But we must make this beginning," the president said.

Juvenile Arbitration Alternative To Lock And Key

By MAX ERKLETTIAN
Herald Staff Writer

The doors swing wide and Sgt. William Bernosky leads a young man and his parents into the back room at the Sanford Police Department.

"This is the booking room," Bernosky tells the boy. "This is where you get your prints taken and where it all starts and goes on, because once you start, it never stops."

The teen continues to the jail. There the youth is placed in a cell and the door slammed behind him. "If you ever see two eyes grow, it's when that door shuts," said Bernosky, sitting in his office. "Then they know it's not Barney Miller. This is reality."

Reality in this case is the newly instituted juvenile arbitration program.

The arbitration program is an alternative to sending a first-time juvenile offender through the time-consuming court system.

The program works this way:

the arresting officer must recommend arbitration. Following that recommendation, the child and child's parents or guardians must agree to the procedure within three days of being notified arbitration has been recommended.

The arbitrator must hear the charges against the youthful offender and make a ruling within seven days of receiving the complaint.

The arbitrator functions like a judge in that he or she can determine the case or pass sentence. Sentencing could include counseling, a work program or restitution in property damage cases.

At a time when juvenile crime is on the upswing, Bernosky said he feels the arbitration system is a curb against such a rising crime rate.

"The juvenile arbitrator is an alternative," commented Bernosky. "We're not talking about the hardened criminal. This is the first-time offender with no prior record. I think this gives law enforcement an alternative to suggest to HRS (State Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services) and the judges where the kids don't go to the detention center or jail."

The program also makes provisions for the offenders to learn their actions will not go unpunished.

"A lot of these kids have an attitude that they say 'hey, I'm a juvenile, what can they do to me?' Now these kids aren't getting off scot free." The offenders who enter the juvenile arbitration program are usually sentenced to some form of work detail. Bernosky draws up a contract for the offender and their parents or guardians to sign. The contract calls for the child to appear at a designated time at the police department.

During the time the child is at the police department, he or she is required to perform a work detail supervised by Bernosky.

"No demeaning work is to be done by these kids," noted

Bernosky. "There is no toilet-cleaning or anything of this nature. They wash windows and scrub walls and desks."

Upon completing the sentence, the child is required to write a five-page paper on why he or she should not steal. The program has netted the police department some new-found friends as well, according to Bernosky.

"This one boy asked if he could come down a couple of days each week and work at the department," recalled Bernosky. "He said, 'I kind of like you guys, you're just like everybody else."

In addition to working with the children directly, the officers involved in the arbitration program confer several times a month with members of the county's arbitration task force, according to Bernosky.

"I guess you can see I'm really enthusiastic about this program," said Bernosky. "It's really gratifying to see. And when you get a cop to say, 'I like it, let's give it a chance,' it's got merit."

Oviedo's Centennial 'Rich Heritage' Celebrated

By ROGER ROY
Herald Correspondent

A hundred years ago Oviedo consisted of a general store and post office on the south shore of Lake Jessup at a place known as Jessup's Landing.

Riverboats coming down the St. Johns from Jacksonville, far to the north, stopped to pick up cotton from John Mitchell's fields or perhaps some citrus, celery, or other agricultural products grown in the area.

Then they would make the long trip back to Jacksonville where the goods would eventually end up in northern markets.

Life in Oviedo was quiet, relaxed, and moved at an easy pace.

The past weekend, residents of Oviedo and its surrounding communities celebrated the 100th birthday of Oviedo and the easy lifestyle that has characterized the area. The fact that Oviedo has survived 100 years is indeed a credit to the city and its residents have had to contend with.

It survived the "Big Freeze" in 1899, when the temperature dropped to 17 degrees and many people, financially ruined, left Florida. Thirty-five years later Oviedo not only weathered the Great Depression with the rest of the nation, but also had to contend with swarming insects that almost wiped out the area's citrus production.

Oviedo's pride of their past was evident throughout the centennial celebration, which began Friday night with a dance at the Oviedo High School. The music was a mixture of square dances, classical tunes, and country and popular music.

About 600 people, many of them dressed in the colorful costumes reminiscent of different periods in Oviedo's history, were on hand. At 9:30 Frank Wheeler and Mae King, long-time residents of Oviedo, were crowned king and queen of the celebration by U.S. Sen. Richard Stone. As king and queen, they presided over the weekend celebration.

Some had originally planned to spend at Oviedo High School on Sunday afternoon, but upon learning he was to appear on "Meet the Press", he flew in to make the presentation Friday night. Stone said he was impressed by Oviedo's history.

"In a state like Florida, that is so full of landmarks, how many places like Oviedo are there that have such a rich heritage?"

A centennial parade marked the beginning of Saturday's activities. An estimated 7,000 to

The parade included many floats, the U.S. Navy marching band, several local school bands, and some state and local political officials, among them Congressman Richard Kelly.

After the parade, the Oviedo Women's Club held a "Great Day in the Country" outing behind St. Luke's church on SR 426. Smoke from chicken being barbecued on open charcoal grills drifted through the shade trees and into the display and sales booths, where one could buy anything from antique furniture to "raw, unfiltered honey."

While she sat in the shade listening to a local group of musicians play different country-western selections, Maggie McClellan explained why she has lived in Oviedo for 17 years. "I like the country atmosphere and people here are so nice. Everyone says hello. And besides, I can get really fresh produce. I wouldn't want to live anywhere else."

Sunday afternoon, after a community church service at the high school led by several area ministers, Oviedo Mayor Ben Beasley introduced notable local figures, including 96-year-old Henry Jackson, who has lived in Oviedo for more than 70 years. While the Navy band played "America the Beautiful," Jackson sat smiling, tapping his foot and swaying to the rhythm.

Nita Rawlson, chairman of the centennial committee, then introduced "the many people who helped make this centennial a success." Mrs. Rawlson explained the funds for the centennial came from the sale of city stock certificates for one dollar each and commemorative medallions, which were sold for eight dollars apiece. The medallions are inscribed with the words "Great Day in the Country."

The weekend-long celebration was an attempt by Oviedo's citizens to present the city's history as well as to bring out the points that they feel make Oviedo special.

The letter was well-illustrated by an incident that occurred in the parking lot during Saturday's "Great Day in the Country."

A young, dark-haired girl who was collecting the medallions was told a man "that'll be twenty-five cents parking, sir." When he replied that he didn't "have any change," she just smiled and said "Well, go ahead and park. We won't worry about it."

Khomeini Criticized Over Changes

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — U.S. feminist Kate Millet and Iran's second most important holy man confronted the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini today with separate but sharp criticisms of the way the revolution is being run.

Islamic revolutionaries reported executing six men Sunday after summary trials on mass murder, sex and drug charges. Other people were flogged for gambling and promiscuity and two youths were sentenced to die, one by stoning, for raping an 11-year-old girl.

Women opposed to Khomeini's edict that they exchange their Western garb for the chador, the Moslem ankle-length veil, planned to march today from Tehran University through the streets with a protective screen of male supporters.

"This time we will have our own protection," one of the organizers said referring to attacks by knives, stones and sticks by Moslem revolutionaries during Saturday's feminist march.

Ms. Millet, 45, said she had been invited to Tehran by Iranian women organizers of the drive against the strict Moslem dress codes.

Asked if she would describe Khomeini as a male "chauvinist," Ms. Millet, author of "Sexual Politics" and "Against Our Will," said: "Yes, if only because the rights promised women at the beginning of the revolution are now being threatened by what he says and does."

In the most outspoken criticism of Khomeini's planned March 20 referendum, the Ayatollah Kazem Shariatmadari, second most important Moslem leader in Iran, called for the question on ballot to be rephrased.

"Instead of asking people to say yes or no to an Islamic republic or constitutional government or either of the two, we must ask them: What kind of government do you want?" Shariatmadari said.

Shariatmadari, 73, respected widely for his moderate views, led the movement against the shah's regime while Khomeini was in exile in Iraq and later in France.

He said the majority of Iranians were "Moslems and not in favor of anything except an Islamic republic."

But he said the referendum had to give Iranians a free choice of the future form of government so that "everyone in Iran and outside the country may know that there is no coercion or pressure at work."

The latest executions brought to 50 the number of announced deaths by revolutionaries that were defunct mullahs acting on behalf of the 78-year-old Khomeini in defiance of Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan's provisional government. Bazargan has called for an end to the summary trials.

The Iranian Air Force disclosed Sunday that "certain people" seized rockets, apparently during the revolutionary takeover last month, and warned the weapons could explode spontaneously, killing across an area of two square miles.

"These rockets, if wrongly handled, could explode at any time as a result of atmospheric conditions, causing irreparable damage," the air force said.

Energy Plans Prompt Florida Delegation Visit To Capital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gloomy predictions of gasoline shortages and what the federal government plans to do about them sent a delegation of Florida tourist industry leaders to Washington today.

The delegation plans to confer with members of Florida's congressional delegation to see what can be done to sustain the tourist industry during an energy crunch. State tourist officials don't like President Carter's gasoline conservation plans, which include mandatory closing of service stations on Sunday. They pointed out that heavy tourist travel to beaches, sporting events and other attractions occurs on Sundays.

'Altered' Records Investigated

ATLANTA (UPI) — Agents from the FBI and the Justice Department questioned a former employee of the Carter Warehouse Sunday night to determine whether the president's peanut business altered records and violated the terms of a 1975 loan from the National Bank of Georgia.

A Washington Post article, published Sunday, said that Jimmy Hayes, a bonded warehouseman who worked for a company whose bond covered a Billy Carter loan from the National Bank of Georgia, had claimed in a series of interviews that he and Carter altered records. He also said they sometimes pledged the same collateral — bins of peanuts — for more than one loan during the spring of 1976 to cover a deficit in payments on the NBG loan.

The Atlanta Constitution reported today, however, that Hayes had denied that there was ever a shortage of collateral at the warehouse and said that the Carters "were not crooks."

Lewis To Disclose Finances

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Even if he wins a state Supreme Court challenge the constitutionality of applying the Sunshine Amendment's financial disclosure provisions to incumbents, colleagues say Senate President Phil Lewis will file a full report on his personal finances.

Lewis, a millionaire businessman and rancher, joined in the suit with Senate Rules Committee Chairman Dempsey Barron of Panama City and Ways and Means Committee Chairman Jack Gordon of Miami Beach. The trio contends that the act does not apply to their current terms since they were elected before the Amendment became law. They filed the Florida Supreme Court challenge after the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear their suit challenging the constitutionality of the Sunshine Amendment.

...Fuel

"If the governor declares an energy emergency and President Carter goes along with it, we will burn a higher sulfur content fuel and there will be no shortage of power," Burns said.

Normally, the peak use periods for power consumption daily, Burns said, are around 10 a.m. and in the evenings from 5-7 p.m.

"The peak usage times is not going to be the problem," he said. "This should affect most of our customers at some times and some at others. But it will affect all of our customers."

With the 26 percent shortage of oil anticipated, Burns said, "We will have to do something as of April 1st to the residents at our plant." He said currently a pamphlet urging conservation of electricity is being prepared listing ways of accomplishing this.

He said some ways include raising thermostats by two-to-three degrees on air conditioners or heaters. The thermostat on water heaters should be lowered to 100-120 degrees. An even better way to conserve, he said, is to turn off automatic water heaters when they are not in use and during times families are away from their homes. This will not harm the hot water heaters, he said.

Burns noted EP&S has been promoting low-energy homes and solar water heating as conservation methods. He assured that brownouts do not harm electrical appliances.

"Electricity is an awfully convenient thing and we are awfully spoiled," he said. "But the American people have always lived up to the challenge and the situation at hand. And if this emergency comes I expect they will do the same thing again." "We, Americans, have proved in the past we can handle what we must."

Meanwhile, at the Sanford Airport, Marvin Greenstein, assistant manager, said today the airport has been practicing energy conservation for some time.

"We have been turning our runway and field lights off at 11 every night. We went to the Federal Aeronautics Administration (FAA) and received authority to turn the lights out at night as a conservation measure.

County government will also be looking at measures for energy conservation, especially during the upcoming warm weather months.

'An A To Z Look At Entire Situation' Senate Hearings On Energy Begin Today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry Jackson says skyrocketing oil prices affect so many other products they will threaten the entire economy out of killer and possibly bring about a "deep recession, not just an ordinary recession."

His Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee today was beginning what he called an A to Z examination of the entire energy situation, with Energy Secretary James Schlesinger as the lead witness.

On Sunday, Sen. George McGovern told a nationwide television audience that Schlesinger should be fired.

Appearing on "Face The Nation" McGovern said the administration's energy policy is a "disaster."

"If I had any one word of recommendation to make today, I'd say get rid of Mr. Schlesinger and get an energy chief that can look at the whole energy problem in this country with more imagination and intelligence," McGovern said.

Jackson, interviewed Sunday on ABC's "Issues and Answers," said he has no doubt his previous predictions of $1 a gallon gasoline will come true within a year.

"You're going to see, I think, a recession because of the developments in the Middle East and they're just as serious as the 1973-1974 (oil) embargo," he said. "You're going to see a deep recession, not just an ordinary recession."

Jackson also repeated an earlier warning that the Middle East oil fields are vulnerable to a guerrilla attack that could wipe out America's supplies. Egypt and Israel, he said, Sunday, should form a task force to defend the fields.

He said the United States should not just stand idly by and let such an attack occur and should be ready to send in its own forces as a last resort.

But in the meantime "there needs to be a contingency plan so that local forces, Egyptians and Israelis or a combination of both, should be available to defend those oil fields in the event of sabotage or in the event of a direct assault on those fields," he said.

Jackson said an American backup would be essential, but Egypt and Israel could form a task force now without any help from the United States.

"The two countries have right now the means of defending those oil fields without one bit of support from the United States," he said. "It's only if it should break out into a larger situation that American forces would be needed."

"There's no need for American forces at this point, but we should never rule out that possibility," he said. "American forces would only be used to defend the oil fields as a last resort."

'Grandma Pot' Tried To Cheer Kids

VENTURA, Calif. (UPI) — Lola Faulkner is known as "Grandma Marijuana" to the neighborhood children she attempted to cheer up with free baggies of pot.

Miss Faulkner, 68, and her 63-year-old brother, Joseph, were arrested last month for allegedly running a marijuana sales operation out of their Simi Valley apartment.

The couple, free on $1,000 bail, faced a preliminary hearing today. Both are charged with felony possession of marijuana for sale, while Miss Faulkner also faces two additional felony counts of selling marijuana.

The elderly woman freely admits she sold, and occasionally gave, marijuana to children and adults during the past two years, despite police warnings to stop.

"They was nice then," she said, recalling a visit and an "informal warning" a year ago by Ventura County narcotics agents.

Miss Faulkner said she began using pot herself two years ago — making tea out of the stems in an attempt to remedy her high blood pressure.

"I tried to smoke it, but I couldn't — it hurt my lungs — so I made tea out of it and that worked," she said. "Those high blood pressure pills the doctors were giving like to kill me."

Gradually, she began providing marijuana to youngsters whom she felt were depressed by a combination of more dangerous drugs and noise pollution.

Pep Talk Ended, SHS Players Head For Field

Sports Parade

By MILTON RICHMAN

Sparky Comes Back 'Home'

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Sparky Anderson is an emotional man. He tried hard not to show it when he came back "home" Sunday but he didn't fool anybody.

This wasn't some sentimental journey for Sparky Anderson, who had managed the Cincinnati Reds the past nine years and had anticipated managing them again this year. It was strictly a business visit. He arrived with a three-man TV crew from Los Angeles with whom he has been making the rounds of Florida training camps the last two weeks and he came to interview his old players.

He looked nervous, and admitted he was. "Give him a tranquilizer," joked one of the members of his crew. "You're right," the former Reds' manager laughed, nervously.

Most of the Reds' players were returning to the Reds' clubhouse from Al Lopez Field, three blocks away, and when Anderson spotted Tom Seaver, the two men greeted each other warmly and Seaver cheerfully agreed to be interviewed.

Later, all the players moved down to the four different fields and Anderson walked down to the main one. He stood behind the batting cage with his hands deep in his back pockets watching every batter intently just as he always had when he was managing the Reds. Old habits die hard.

After Johnny Bench was finished hitting, Anderson went over to interview him. "You know, John, you had a lotta problems last year," he began with the camera rolling. "How does it feel now?" "It feels great," Bench said.

Anderson suddenly began laughing. He broke up over how seriously the two of them were going about the interview when both knew how close they really were to each other and how casually they always talked otherwise.

When the camera started up again, Anderson grew serious once more. "I've been with you nine years and I have a dream," he said to Bench. "My dream is that some day I'm gonna see a better catcher than you because then I'll know that I've seen everything."

"Thank you, Sparky," answered Bench. "It's been a super nine years. I have many people to be thankful to — my father, Dave Bristol, who was the manager when I first got here, and you. Last year, we did not perform up to your standards. It was our fault, not yours. But we will move on to bigger and better things, and you have done that. I'd say Howard Cosell is in trouble now. But you won't be out of baseball long. I'm sure of that."

On the other side of the batting cage, Joe Morgan, the Reds' second baseman who said publicly if he hadn't been hurt and slumped so badly last season Anderson wouldn't have lost his job, watched his ex-manager interview and guessed he was enjoying his new job.

"I don't think it's gonna last, though," Morgan said. "Before the year is over, he'll be managing someone else." Morgan then talked about his relationship with Anderson during the seven years he played for him.

Franklin To Remain On Spectacular Bid

RALLANDALE, Fla. (UPI) — The owners of Triple Crown champion Spectacular Bid have decided to keep 10-year-old gelding Remo Franklin on their big grey colt, trainer Grover "Big Boy" Campbell announced today. Franklin, who last his opponent Jack just last month, had been sharply criticized by Dale and others for his ride on the way to spectacular Bid's four-and-a-half-length victory in the Florida Derby.

Dale called the young rider, who lives in his home as a "third son," an "idiot" in the winner's circle after the race.

Gloomy Opener For Cincy, 6-1

By United Press International Cincinnati's home opener of the exhibition season was as gloomy for the Reds as the cold and overcast Florida weather was for Tampa Sunday.

Phil Garner's bases loaded pinch-hit triple off of lefthander Dave Tomlin sparked a four-run seventh inning that carried the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 6-1 victory over the Reds.

Ed Whitton, the third of the Pirate pitchers, was credited with the win even though he gave up the Reds' only run in three innings and Gary Lavelle delivered a two-run double to end Bishop Moore's upset hopes.

Chris Gilmore went the distance for Seminole, making his first prep start. "Chris pitched well for his first game," said SHS coach Bob Lundquist. "He walked the first three batters, but settled down to pitch a fine game after that."

Seminole is 7-2, and plays again today at 5:30 at Lake Howell. Darren Whitehead will pitch for Seminole in that contest.

Other exhibition baseball matchups: the Red Sox dropped the Chicago White Sox, 7-0; Houston rallied to defeat Los Angeles, 2-1; California beat Oakland, 7-2; Atlanta defeated Montreal, 3-2; the Chicago Cubs defeated Milwaukee, 10-6; Philadelphia shooed Toronto, 1-0; Kansas City ripped Texas, 1-0; Detroit downed Minnesota, 2-0; Baltimore crushed the New York Yankees, 7-3; San Diego roared to a 4-1 win over Seattle;

San Francisco defeated Cleveland, 3-1, and St. Louis knocked out the Mets, 4-2. Andy Hassler, Steve Renko and Jim Wright, three possible starting pitchers for Boston, combined on a five-hitter to lead the Red Sox as Boston got all the runs it needed when Fred Lynn and Jim Rice belted solo homers in the first inning of the Chicago loser Fred Howard.

Ninth-inning singles by Jesus Alou and Jim Sexton scored a pair of runs to rally the Astros over the Dodgers.

Rod Carew's three-run homer in the first inning, his second home run of the spring, led the Angels over the 'A's.

Veteran Mike Lum hit his second home run in two games to lead the Braves in a win over Montreal.

Gene Clines drove in three runs with a triple and a single and Bill Buckner and Jerry Martin had three hits apiece to help the Cubs outlast the Brewers for their first exhibition victory of the spring.

Jim Morrison belted a 3-3 pinch into right field with the bases loaded and two men out in the 11th inning to give the Phillies the win over the Blue Jays.

Brantley Tops Apopka By 6-3

Lake Brantley posted a 6-3 victory over Apopka Saturday as David Hill had the big hit, a bases-loaded triple, and Craig Watkins and Jon Fuller combined to pitch a five-hitter.

Seminoles Topple B. Moore

Seminole High School's baseball team proved the adage about the game never being over until the last out Saturday night with a 5-4 triumph over Bishop Moore.

The Seminole trailed, 4-3, going into the bottom of the seventh, but made good a comeback with Mike Wright being the game's hero, delivering a two-run double to end Bishop Moore's upset hopes.

Brown, Bonin, Glidden Win

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Kelly Brown, Gordie Bonin and Bob Glidden roared off with the top honors and about $12,000 each in prize money Sunday in the finals of the National Hot Rod Association's 1000-Futures Championship, which began Tuesday in Orlando, Fla. Newberry earned $1,000.

Maraskova erupted that "I am back on my game again. After losing three consecutive firstround matches on the circuit, I was a little down. This week has got my confidence back."

"It's frustrating to play her," Newberry said, "because her shots are so solid and she's so strong. It's difficult to develop a strategy against her."

Former University of Southern California teammates Diane Destor and Barbara Hallquist captured the doubles title and $1,200 with a 6-4, 6-4, victory over Marjorie Blackwood of Canada and Kym Riddell of Australia.

Other winners in the $18,250 Gatornationals were: Joe Amato, Old Forge, Pa., in Pro Comp; John Lingensfelder, Decatur, Ill., in Competition; Orlan Perry, Ringgold, Ga., in Modified; Bob Marshall, Columbus, Ohio, in Super Stock; Kenneth Koonce, Kinross, N.C., in Stock; and Wayne Buckler, North Fort Myers, Fla., in Pro Stock Motorcycle.

bested Tom Hoover, Minneapolis, in the Funny Car final. Glidden, of Whitehall, Ind., defeated Ronnie Sox, Burlington, N.C., for the Pro Stock championship.

For Glidden, it was his seventh straight Pro Stock victory and the 22nd of his drag racing career. The 34-year-old driver has won the World Championship three of the last five years.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Maraskova Overpowers Newberry At St. Pete

FORT MYERS, Fla. (UPI) — Regina Maraskova of Czechoslovakia overpowered Janet Newberry of St. Petersburg, Fla., 6-2, despite a balky forehand Sunday to win the $25,000 Futures tennis tournament.

The victory was worth $3,400 for Maraskova and earned her the eighth and last position in the $55,000 Futures Championships, which begin Tuesday in Orlando, Fla. Newberry earned $1,000.

Maraskova erupted that "I am back on my game again. After losing three consecutive firstround matches on the circuit, I was a little down. This week has got my confidence back."

"It's frustrating to play her," Newberry said, "because her shots are so solid and she's so strong. It's difficult to develop a strategy against her."

Former University of Southern California teammates Diane Destor and Barbara Hallquist captured the doubles title and $1,200 with a 6-4, 6-4, victory over Marjorie Blackwood of Canada and Kym Riddell of Australia.

Singleton Cycle Champ

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Dale Singleton, racing without factory assistance, won the world's richest motorcycle race Sunday — the Daytona 200 Motorcycle Expert Road Race — in a fierce battle that featured 42 lead changes.

The 22-year-old rider from Dalton, Ga., collected $13,810 for his victory and became only the third rider in the 28-year history of the race to win from the pole starting position. He averaged 107.6 mph for the 200-mile spin on the combination high banks and road course, driving a Yamaha.

Penguins Lose Center

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Penguins have announced center Pete Mahovlich will be sidelined for the rest of the season by a shoulder injury he sustained in a 3-2 victory over Philadelphia Saturday night.

Mahovlich suffered a shoulder separation later in a collision on the next hole when Steve Liosanos, the Penguins' Vice President Paul Marzita said Mahovlich underwent surgery Sunday at Presbyterian Hospital.

Shoemaker Wins Again

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Jockey Bill Shoemaker drove Calumet to a one-horse victory Sunday in the $400,000 running of the $114,000 Santa Susana Stakes for 3-year-old fillies at Santa Anita and had Terlingua her first western defeat.

In scoring her first victory in four starts over Terlingua, Calumet raced the 1-1/8 mile track in 1:41.34 to clip one-fifth of a second of the Stakes' record set by Silver Spoon in 1969.

NFL Meets in Honolulu

HONOLULU (UPI) — The selection of sites for the 1981 and 1982 Super Bowls and proposed rule changes will be the top orders of business when the National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle convenes the NFL annual meeting.

Some 250 league officials, club owners and their family members arrived in Honolulu over the weekend for the five-day conference, opening today.

Charleston Coach Named

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — The College of Charleston named longtime St. John's University assistant John Krease as its new head basketball coach.

Lopez Lesson Pays

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Domingo Lopez gave his daughter her first golf lesson when she was 12. Sunday he gave her another lesson and now 22-year-old Nancy Lopez said it made the difference between winning and losing.

Lopez, the defending tournament champion, sank a 10-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole of the $100,000 LPGA Classic to capture the event and earn $15,000. She won by one stroke over Hollis Stacy.

"Dad got me back my putter back a few weeks because he said I was rushing my putts," said Lopez. "So when I got up on the golf course I felt good and wasn't nervous at all. My putting was much better today than it had been all week."

Lopez, who started the day two strokes behind Stacy, the U.S. Open champion the past two years, shot a 3-under-par 69 for a 280 total, 8-under par on the par-72, 6,268-yard Rancho Park golf course.

Stacy, who blamed her defeat on her conservative play, shot an even-par 72 for a 281 total.

Lopez's win, her first of 1979, came in the 10th hole of her 1979 earnings to $27,300, tops on the LPGA money list. She won nine events and a record $28,000 last year.

Stacy, who earned $9,800 for second, held one-shot lead over Lopez after 10 holes. She lost the lead when she bogied the 12th, regained it with a birdie on 15 and lost the lead again on the next hole when she three-putted for a bogey.

Tied for third at 283 were Peggy Conley, who shot a 69, and Susie Berning, who had a 71. Laura Baugh and Pat Bradley, both with final-round 71, shared fifth place at 284.

"The reason I lost today was because I didn't play aggressively enough on the front nine," Stacy said. "But I'm going to take this as a stride and go on to win a lot of tournaments before I'm through."

Lopez finished ninth and second in her only two previous tournaments of 1979, both in Florida. She said she will skip next week's tournament in San Diego and is going home to Hersey, Pa., to spend a week with her husband Tim Mellon.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Tuesday, March 13, 1979

YOUR BIRTHDAY
March 13, 1979
Several unusual and progressive persons could enter your life this coming year, unexpectedly opening doors that lead to expanding your horizons. These new experiences will contribute a great deal to your growth. Your one-to-one relationships continue to be the touchy area for you today. A philosophical attitude will go a long way to help alleviate any strain. Find out more of what lies ahead for you for the next year starting from your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter, Mail #1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 486, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you're prepared to change directions because a co-worker has a different way of handling a task, you'll prevent an unnecessary confrontation.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) How you react will be more important than getting over with someone who has stepped on your toes. Protect your reputation above all.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Do what needs to be done quickly today. Don't waste time arguing over whose job it is supposed to be. You'll save yourself much frustration.

CANCER (June 21-July 20) Refuse to take part in any confrontations today. Change the subject or remove yourself from the scene.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll have little patience today for anyone who doesn't immediately go along with what you think is best. Know when to hold your tongue if you wish to avoid an argument.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Someone could easily mail you a bill of goods today. Before buying, make certain you're getting the steak and not the sizzle.

Recovering From Prostate Surgery

Dr. Lamb
DEAR DR. LAMB—I was operated on for prostate gland trouble by a urologist. I could not urinate at all. He removed my prostate gland and operated on my male tubes. I now have a tube in my bladder to drain the urine which will be taken out in three weeks. I am 68 years old. What are the chances of complete recovery of my urinary organs?

DEAR READER—If you simply had an enlargement of the prostate to the point that it obstructed the flow of urine from your bladder, the removal of the prostate gland may have permanently removed the problem for you. The remaining question is how much damage was done to the bladder during the years your bladder was overworked and stretched prior to your operation. If your prostate was removed soon enough and you didn't have prolonged obstruction, you should have complete recovery of urinary function. There is some difference in recovery in relationship to the kind of surgery that is done. If the prostate gland is removed through a surgical incision, there is a much smaller chance that it will cause permanent complications. The other factor that may be involved is increased pigmentation in the area. These are the same pigment cells that you have in your skin to produce skin color. Some people are born with pigment cells in this area that produce increased amounts of pigment. In any case, the dark circles under the eyes that people talk about are not related to lack of sleep or discoloration. Usually, they are due to the fact that the skin is thin and it shows through the underlying vessels. The house had been rented to Kenneth James Carter, 30, St. Petersburg, according to Sheriff John Polk. Carter was arrested by DEA agents on a federal grand jury indictment Wednesday night at the home of his brother in St. Petersburg, according to a Tampa-based DEA spokesman. Carter had been indicted in late 1977 for the manufacture of PCP, according to the spokesman, but had slipped out of sight before he could be arrested. Information leading to the raid on the Longwood residence came from information gathered in Jacksonville, Tampa and Orlando, according to the spokesman. Seminole County Sheriff's officers working undercover began turning up information on the activities going on at the house several weeks ago, according to Polk. That information was turned over to the DEA Task Force office in Orlando, according to Polk. The sheriff's department and DEA coordinated their investigations to close in on the house, said Polk. Residents in the neighborhood surrounding the home began complaining to officials last week of odd odors. Some feared a gas leak, according to a sheriff's spokesman, and a fire rescue unit investigated the area for leaks. The odors the neighbors were detecting came from attempts to filter the deadly cyanide fumes given off by the drug through household plumbing and into the sewer system, law officers said. Polk noted the drug is normally used as an animal tranquilizer. Carter is being held in Hillsborough County Jail for federal officials. Charges also are expected to be filed against Carter in Seminole County in connection with the raid on the house, according to Polk. "I'm particularly pleased that on this occasion the lead was developed by our Sgt. Robert Kunkler and working with DEA's Lt. Ray Parker we were able to combine our police forces and make a significant contribution to closing down another one of these homemade labs," said Polk.

As Carter Leaves Mideast Peace Treaty All But Wrapped Up

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI)—President Carter said today Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin had reached agreement on the main ingredients of a peace treaty although further Israeli cabinet discussions are necessary. Carter conferred in Jerusalem with Begin for 90 minutes this morning then flew to Cairo for a two-hour airport conference with Sadat during which he said he wrapped up most of the outstanding issues. He then telephoned Begin to inform him of Sadat's acceptance of the proposals. "I have an announcement which I consider to be extremely important," Carter told reporters at the airport. "I am convinced we have defined all the main ingredients of a peace treaty which will be the cornerstone of a comprehensive peace for the Middle East." American officials said the Israeli cabinet and the Knesset (parliament) have to approve the proposals accepted by Begin at a breakfast meeting with Carter earlier today.

Drug Probe Continues Longwood 'Lab' Raided

By MAX ERKLETTIAN
Herald Staff Writer
Federal Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) officials and the Seminole County Sheriff's Department are probing the possibility others may have been involved in the operation of a home laboratory for the manufacture of illegal drugs. The laboratory was capable of producing $50,000 in drugs per month, according to federal officials. The house had been rented to Kenneth James Carter, 30, St. Petersburg, according to Sheriff John Polk. Carter was arrested by DEA agents on a federal grand jury indictment Wednesday night at the home of his brother in St. Petersburg, according to a Tampa-based DEA spokesman. ## Mental Health Bills Pending; County May Go In The Red Seminole Countians may be suffering from more mental health problems in 1979. At least bills for persons committed to institutions for mental care under the state's Baker Act which requires county government to pick up the tab—have increased so much that the county may go in the red for its budgeted care this year. County Administrator Roger Neiswender reported to the county commission Monday that $17,000 in unexpected bills for Baker Act care last year have been received. If the rate of care seen during the first 4 1/2 months of this year continues the program may run as much as $38,000 over budget, he said. Over half the patients are being admitted for neuroses, Neiswender said. "That could be for anything and include nearly everyone," County Commissioner Dick Williams said. Neiswender said he is asking for a detailed explanation from the county's mental health board. "We are definitely going to have a short-fall in the fund," Neiswender said. In other business, Neiswender told commission members that the county's mental health base allocation for gasoline by the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE). Separate certification of fire department needs was also designated and no significant problems should be seen, Neiswender said. Earlier, Jeff Etchberger, Director of the Office of Management, Analysis and Evaluation (OMAE), said removal of the fire department from the county's gasoline allocation which was approved by DOE means sufficient gasoline has been allocated for the county's other vehicle needs. The county's several weeks ago, asked the DOE to increase its allocation to reflect county needs since the allocation of several years ago. The countywide fire department was created after the original allocation. Gasoline needs for the sheriff's department have also been separated from other county needs. Etchberger said if problems develop with the new allocation, the county will request that gasoline for its auxiliary landfill program also be separated from the county's allocation.

Planting A Ring Of Friendship

It's National Girl Scout Week and as part of the celebration Brownies Melody Sambers (left) and Donita Vaughn present Sanford City Commissioner David Farr with azaleas to be planted in Fort Mellon Park. The plants will be used to begin a "friendship ring" which will grow each year as the scouts continue to add plants.

New Senior Citizen Complex May Spawn Civic Center

A new 5,000-square-foot senior citizen complex could be constructed to institutions for mental care and as possible sites in the future of both a city hall and a civic center, with the 4.8-acre piece, most of it under water in riparian rights in the lake, west of Sunset Drive for future recreation. Bruce Furino, city planning technician, said today the city is "land poor" and could use its portion of the property as a site for a new city hall and civic center complex for the city. The city council Monday night began its move toward acquiring property sufficient in size for the three facilities by authorizing an acquisition of a 14-acre tract, located both east and west of Sunset Drive. The proposed use of the land is for the senior citizen building and as possible sites in the future of both a city hall and a civic center, with the 4.8-acre piece, most of it under water in riparian rights in the lake, west of Sunset Drive for future recreation. ## First In City's History Chacey Named Longwood Administrator

By JANE CARSELEBERRY
Herald Staff Writer
David Chacey, who has served in an interim capacity since last October, was named city administrator by the Longwood City Commission Monday night. Originally hired as building inspector, the retired Air Force officer, was given the additional title of city planner in December 1977 to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of City Planner Jim Lee. The position of city administrator was created when the voters approved the new commission made Chacey interim administrator at a salary of $18,000 a year, while voting to solicit resumes from other applicants for the job. "I'll have a go at it until the next budget time..." At that time when asked by Commissioner Larry Goldberg if he would leave the city's employ if he was not appointed to the job, Chacey said: "I don't think I would like going from $18,000 back to $12,000. Commissioner Stephen Barton Monday night suggested a work session be scheduled to study the applications for the job of city administrator, but Goldberg moved to hire Chacey. "There are a lot of qualified persons, but Dave has been with the city for four years, and it would take someone coming in green a long time to figure out how the city runs," said Goldberg. "I personally would like to see Dave take it for the year." "I concur," said Mayor June Lormann. "If you feel that strongly about it, I'll go ahead and second the motion," said Commissioner Ray Leibensperger. The Commission voted 3-1 to hire Chacey, with Barton casting the no vote. Commissioner J.R. Grant was absent due to illness. "I'll have a go at it until the next budget time," Chacey told the commissioners. "and if I can't prove myself by that time you can bring it up again."

Alan: "What are we showing today's hand for? South is in a very normal and very solid three-no-trump contract that goes down one because West gets off to the perfectly normal lead of the fourth-best diamond from a suit headed by ace-queen and East holds the king of clubs."

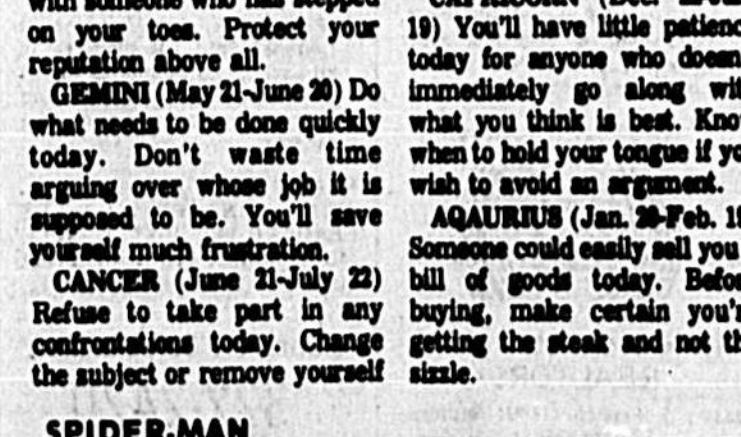

Oswald: "It is the first hand in a new and delightful book called 'Play of the Hand With Blackwood.' Easley is crowning his distinguished career with a great book."

Alan: "I suppose that he gives this hand to show the effectiveness of the normal fourth-best lead against no-trump." Oswald: "That is part of the main thrust of this hand is to point out that only a low diamond should be bid, not trump, but that in case South plays at five clubs then only a low diamond should give him his contract."

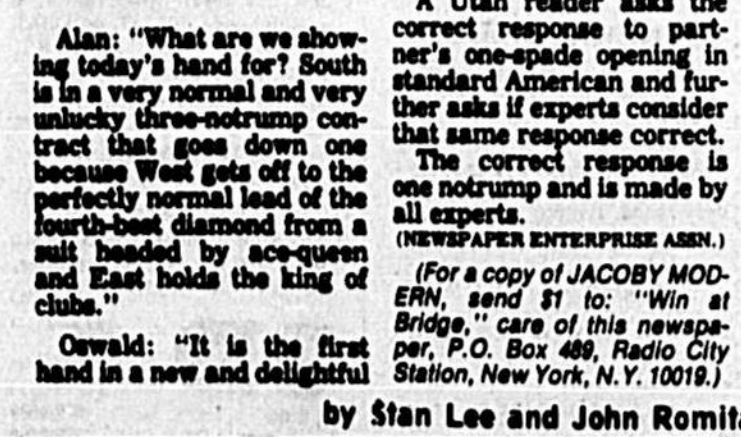

Alan: "All this has to be obvious to any experienced player, but to see where it is a good start on the general principles of the opening lead."
