HOROSCOPE

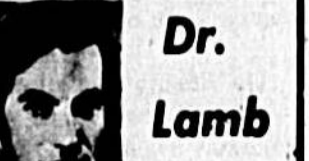

By BERNICE BEDE OOL

For Saturday, January 5, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY January 5, 1980 This coming year you are likely to experience several major changes because you'll be taking the bull by the horns and rearranging things more to your benefit. The net result will be extremely comforting. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In situations where you have a vested interest, rely more upon yourself today, but your gains aren't likely to come through games. Stick to conservative approaches. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Obama will admire you more today if you show you have the courage of your convictions. You must not say one thing and do another. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be careful today that you don't prejudice the motives of others before they have a chance to prove themselves. Given an opportunity, they'll be in your corner. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Friends will enjoy being around today and you'll take pleasure in their company, but be democratic. Don't demand that everything be done your way. BAGYATIARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Stick to your game plan today regarding your long-range views on ways to enhance your security or improve your status. Last-minute changes could gum things up.

Coffee Often Helps Relieve A Headache

DEAR DR. LAMB—I hope you can help me. I'm 33 years of age and get a lot of headaches. I take Excedrin and it does help somewhat. However, I'm hesitant about taking the pills because of the acetaminophen which it contains. Some time ago I read a newspaper article about the dangers of pills containing acetaminophen. Would you please enlighten me on the use of taking Excedrin? DEAR READER—Excedrin contains aspirin, a salicylamide and acetaminophen. Actually, each Excedrin contains only about 97 milligrams of acetaminophen. You need to take three to six times that much for it to have any appreciable effect. It follows that the main and most important ingredient in Excedrin is aspirin as far as relieving headaches or mild pains is concerned. Unless you happen to have some unusual reaction or are on some other medication, the amount of acetaminophen in an Excedrin tablet is so small that it would not be possible for it to cause you any trouble. People do have toxic effects from acetaminophen, but that's in very large doses taken over a period of time. However, if you're worried about acetaminophen in the Excedrin, you might just take aspirin, and if you want to get a little additional help, you might drink a cup of coffee at the same time. The standard Excedrin tablet also contains about 65 milligrams of caffeine. If you read my column regularly, you know that I'm not a big fan of coffee or caffeine. However, it is a drug and as such has medicinal purposes for some occasions. In some instances it does help to relieve headaches if it is taken at the onset of the headache in some people. If headaches are associated with anxiety and tension, however, drinking too much coffee may result in too much caffeine stimulation, which can make the situation worse. There are a wide variety of medicines that you can use for relief of pain or mild headaches. Many of these depend principally upon aspirin for their effect. Therefore, I'm sending you the Health Letter number 64, Aspirin and Related Medicines. Other readers who are interested in this subject, send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

WIN AT BRIDGE

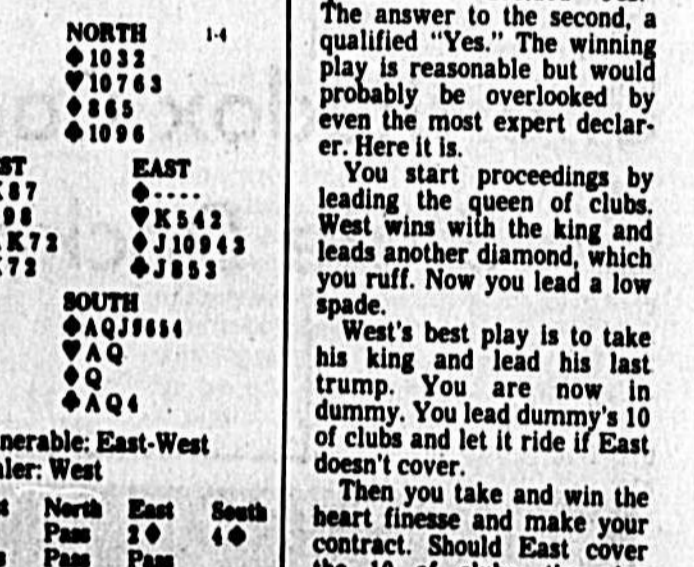

By ORNOLD JACOBY and ALAN SIEGAL

question is a decided "Yes." The answer to the second, a qualified "Yes." The winning play is reasonable but would probably be overlooked by even the most expert declarer. Here it is. You start proceedings by leading the queen. Clubs West wins with the king and leads another diamond, which you ruff. Now you lead a low spade. West's best play is to take his king and lead his last trump. You are now in dummy's hand with the 10 of clubs and let it ride if East doesn't cover. Then you take and win the heart finesse and make your contract. Should East cover the 10 of clubs, the nine becomes a re-entry. Mathematically, your chances weren't good. It was necessary that East hold both the jack of clubs and king of hearts. But the winning line was slightly better than the simple line of finessing hearts and then hoping to get away with one club after playing clubs from your own hand.

Giving Is For Everyday

Creed Of Sharing Center

Mrs. Anita Barries, Executive Director of the Sanford Christian Sharing Center, Inc., tells about how Christian giving is for every day, and explains how this is a daily act for the center. When asked what special emphasis the center made for helping people for Christmas, she replied, "Nothing special. Christmas is a year round." She spoke of special projects that have been helpful which are being sponsored by some of the churches which support the center. Father Leroy D. Soper of Holy Cross Episcopal Church had a dream of all the churches working together to serve God in a united effort. To often Christian doctrine keeps churches separated, but an idea such as serving the needy is a true interpretation of the church's ministry for all Christian faiths. At the time Father Neville is serving as president. The board is formed with the officers and a representative from each of the 15 churches in Sanford which are involved in supporting the center. The board meets quarterly to plan how they can best serve the community. The sharing center is small, and therefore not designed to come together and share the responsibility of managing and staffing a center that could serve the needs of all, instead of each church having to try to manage to help the needy individually.

Father Soper took the idea to Florence, S.C. for two weeks. She visited her daughter, Mrs. Jerry Lancaster. Mr. and Mrs. William Butler of Melroseville were happy to have their daughter and her husband from Washington D.C. for the holidays. Their daughter, Becky, works for the National Society for Pension Actuaries. Their son-in-law is an attorney who works for the National Association of Life Underwriters.

Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Horst, Sr. spent Christmas with their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Horton, Jr. in Orange Park.

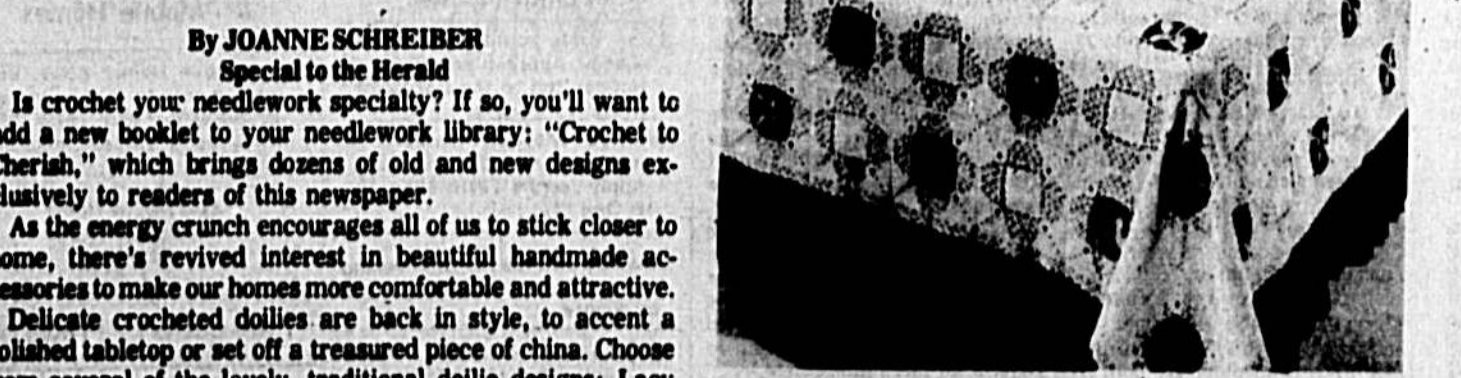

DEAR READER—You're only one of those who've had such an experience. Many people with burning pain in the pit of the stomach, cramps of the stomach and intestinal area are surprised to find that their symptoms are greatly decreased or even disappear when they change some of their habits. This applies to cigarette smoking and drinking coffee, tea, colas and even hot chocolate.

Crochet Up Memories In Home Decor

Is crochet your needlework specialty? If so, you'll want to add a new booklet to your library: "Crochet to Cherish," which brings dozens of old and new designs exclusively to readers of this newspaper. As the energy crunch encourages all of us to stick closer to home, there's revived interest in beautiful handmade accessories to make our homes more comfortable and attractive. Delicate crocheted dollies are back in style, to accent a polished tabletop or set off a treasured piece of china. Choose from several of the lovely, traditional dollie designs: Lady Circle, the colorful Holly Leaf and Berry, the fragile Snowflake, Flower-on-Flower or the 18-inch Sun Rays. All are done in the old favorite "Kaiti-Cro-Sheen" thread. For a larger project, make a set of place mats. Directions are given for an oval mat in a white metallic thread and for a two-tone mat in a scallop stitch. Crocheted tablecloths are pretty today as they were in Grandmother's time—and practical, too, for these cloths may be washed and hung to dry with never a touch of an iron needed. Can modern synthetics match a hand-crocheted tablecloth in beauty and permanence? See for yourself. "Crochet to Cherish" has instructions for three cloths: A 5-foot round called Cool and Pretty, a 70-40-40-inch Starry Lace made of lacy motifs stitched together to form the cloth, and the favorite old Plaisance in 72x104-inch size. Crocheted bedspreads in the height of memorabilia elegance and you can finish one in plenty of time for the first best wave, if you start now. Choose from the peppers spread, the Wild Rose, or a marvellously delicate Fillet with a serrated border. If there's a springtime bride on your list, a crocheted spread will be a wedding gift to treasure always. No crochet book would be complete without alpagna. Try your hand at the Radiant Rose, the Colorful Floral, the Soft

This lovely bedspread, featured in "Crochet to Cherish," is made by combining two separate square-at-a-time motifs. This classic is worked in Knit-Cro-Sheen in tones of white, rose, green and brown. Strip, or the Henry Clay Wheel. All are gone in soft, warm Red Heart Knitting Wool. All are warm and welcome on a chilly afternoon. If you've never tried to crochet, you can learn the techniques from an excellent how-to section, which gives you the basics of creating chain, also, single crochet, half double crochet, triple crochet and other stitches. There's even a special section for lefties, showing left-handed needleworkers how to create the airy stitches. Crocheted bedspreads for towels and pillowcases plus several boutique gift items complete this book. Order your copy now and start a crocheted project to dress up your home, or to use as a gift. "Crochet to Cherish" is only $5. Write to "Stitchin' Time," c/o this newspaper, Box 801, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Gardening

Don't Be Hasty To Prune Plants Damaged By Cold

Don't be too hasty in pruning cold damaged plants such as hibiscus, allamanda, poinsettia, citrus, rubber plants, philodendrons and others. The extent of cold damage in many instances, cannot be distinctly determined until growth starts in spring. By pruning now, you may cut off live wood. Also, the leaves and stems that are dead afford some protection to that not yet damaged. If you prune this out, later freezes may do more damage than would have been done if the dead parts were left on the plant. If you do prune now, cover the part remaining during freezing weather to protect it.

Freeze damage to citrus is not easy to determine since damage to the trunk may not show up for several months following the cold weather. Trees should be pruned as soon as possible after the extent of damage has been determined. You will know, as a rule, that this damage is after the second flush of growth following the freeze. Damage to azaleas may be to flower buds and stems. Flower bud damage will show up at blossoming time (no flowers) and stem damage by death of branches in late spring or early summer. Dead azalea branches should be pruned out as they occur. Camellia damage is probably confined to flower buds and leaf burn. Cold damaged flower buds will either drop from the plant or only partially open showing a brown center. Leaf damage on camellias will not be too lasting, as new leaves will come out in spring and the old, damaged ones will drop from the plant. Keep plants as healthy as possible and provide as much protection as you can during cold weather and chances are no very little pruning of cold damaged plants will be necessary.

DEAR ABBY: Danny and I have been married for 13 years, and ever since last summer I've had something on my mind that bothers me. Danny and I went back to his hometown to attend his 10th high school reunion. (It was the first he ever attended.) Basically we have a good marriage. Danny is a steady worker, doesn't drink, smoke or chase. We have three nice children, and he's an honest-to-goodness family man but sometimes I consider.

Well, Danny and I walked into the reunion party together, and that was about all I saw of him for five hours! He ignored me the whole time while he was off laughing and talking with old classmates. I just sat there, all choked up, feeling like a leper.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my neighbor. He's divorced, retired and lives across the hall from my husband and me. This pest rings my bell at least 10 times a day asking if I "need" anything. If I tell him I'm busy he asks me stupid questions and engages me in conversation anyway. He loves to visit. What a bore he is!

Last evening, after working 15 hours, my husband came home exhausted. Five minutes later "Mr. Pest" rang our bell, and my husband invited him in yet!

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, you said: "Snakes make wonderful pets for retired people and apartment dwellers. They're odorless, clean, quiet and don't need to be groomed or walked. And another plus you won't have to worry about anybody stealing them."

Well, Abby, that's where you're wrong. My house was burglarized last month, and what do you think was stolen? My stereo and my 8-foot box convolvulus that I'd had since he was a little.

Rookie Anderson Selected As UPI Player Of Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ottis Anderson, the St. Louis Cardinals' awesome running back who shattered the NFL's rookie rushing record, became the first player in NFL history to earn both the UPI Player and Rookie of the Year Awards Thursday night. Anderson, who captured the NFL Player of the Year award last week by edging Dallas Cowboys' quarterback Roger Staubach, was named on 45 of 56 ballots cast by UPI's panel of pro football writers, four from each NFL city. Brevard Rips Quebec For Raider Classic Title

Brevard Community College, behind the 17-point performance of Tyrone Brown, jumped out in front of Quebec Provincial early and went on to post a 105-47 victory over the Canadian's in the championship game of the Raider Classic Thursday night. Using its superior size and quickness, Brevard blitzed out to a 16-0 lead at 14:49 of the first half and continued to add to the lead behind Brown, Willie Uley and Isaiah Singletary. The Titans stretched it to 15 points, 29-14 midway through the first half and maintained that bulge, 35-40 at intermission. Quebec opened the second half with the same display of scrappiness that got them to the title game and Brevard led 40-10 at the 10:00 mark. Quebec narrowed the Titan lead to eleven points three minutes into the second stanza. But the Titans began crashing the boards and Quebec went ice-cold for eight minutes and Brevard steadily pulled away. Rams Favored In Buc Rematch

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Greg Horton feels his Tampa Bay teammates will be making a mistake if they figure their 21-6 early-season victory over Los Angeles is any indication of what they can expect for Sunday's NFC championship game against the Rams. "There were no signs at the time, but, I think it's quite possible the Rams may have taken us lightly in our last game," said Horton, an offensive guard, who spent four years with the Rams before being traded to the Bucs early in the 1978 season. "That's a team I played with, a team I know," said Horton. "I have a great deal of respect for the Rams. They weren't intimidated. They do the job they are supposed to do. They have a place to be and that's where they'll be."

Arizona State Fires Miller, Man Who Axed Kush

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — If he had it to do over again, Fred Miller says he would fire Frank Kush, a move that eventually cost Miller his own job as athletic director at Arizona State University. "Periodically in one's life, one is tested to do the right thing... I didn't feel I was compromised by acting on 'truth,'" Miller told a news conference Thursday, hours after he was fired by university President Dr. John Schwada. Miller said his dismissal of Kush midway through the 1979 season was based on facts from depositions and sworn statements and he would not "reconsider or modify" the justification for the firing. Schwada's announcement of Miller's firing followed weeks of heavy criticism aimed at Miller for his handling of the Kush affair. Kush was fired during his 22nd year as ASU coach after Miller accused him of attempting to cover up information about an incident in which he allegedly abused a player. Miller said he had asked Schwada twice to hold a public hearing for Kush, but Schwada declined to do so until the state attorney general ruled Kush was not given due process. Miller said his first request came Oct. 12, the day before Kush announced he had been fired, and a written request was made Oct. 20. Schwada called a hearing after the attorney general's opinion was issued, but the hearing was canceled after the university agreed to make a $200,000 settlement to Kush. According to Miller, Schwada gave no reason for his dismissal, but did give him an opportunity to resign. Miller said he declined twice to step down voluntarily, adding, "I would in no way compromise my principles or integrity by such actions."

Philly Sneaks By Cavs 109-108

By United Press International. After shooting a paltry 7-for-18 from the floor Thursday night, Julius Erving erupted for nine straight field goals in the second half and Maurice Cheeks sank two foul throws with 12 seconds left to give the Philadelphia 76ers a 109-108 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers. Trailing by 11 points entering the final quarter, the Sixers, who are struggling to overtake the Boston Celtics in the Atlantic Division, rallied behind Erving to take a 105-100 lead with 1:09 left in the game. "After I shot two air balls in the third period I got more determined," said Erving. But Cleveland's Dave Robisch sank five straight free throws to put the Cavs ahead, 108-107, with 43 seconds left and the pressure was on. Five seconds later Cheeks, a second-year man out of West Texas who scored 11 of his 21 points in the final period, hit a layup and, after being fouled by Kenny Carr, stepped to the line and hit the winning free throw. Cleveland made two last-ditch efforts to win the game but Philadelphia center Darryl Dawkins blocked a shot by Cavs guard Fouts Walker with three seconds left and Randy Smith's shot at the buzzer was off the mark. "The Sixers just took it to us in the fourth period and we didn't respond as well as they did," said Smith. In other games, New Jersey beat Atlanta, 126-119. New York routed San Diego, 139-101, and Milwaukee topped Indiana, 106-96. Nets 126, Hawks 119. Mike Newlin scored 24 points, including 10 in the fourth quarter, and Cliff Robinson added 21 to spark New Jersey over Central Division-leading Atlanta. Knicks 138, Clippers 101. Ray Williams tossed in 23 points to pace nine New York players in double figures as the Knicks raced to a 42-12 first-quarter lead and never were threatened. Bucks 106, Pacers 96. Junior Bridgeman scored 23 points and sparked a thirdquarter rally which enabled Milwaukee to break a threegame losing streak.

Longwood Couple

The 10-by-20-foot greenhouse is constructed from PVC pipe and Fiberglas along the lines of a Quonset hut.

Story and Photos by Tom Netsel

Betty Dimitry enjoys growing hybrid orchids.

Give Their Plants A Home

John Dimitry had a problem that faces many men whose wives enjoy growing plants around the home. They had too many plants with no place to keep them. Since there was not enough room inside the house, he made the plants a house all their own.

Using lengths of PVC pipe and fiberglas, Dimitry constructed a 10-foot-by-20-foot greenhouse behind their home at 1082 Hamilton Ave. in Longwood. Without using any plans, he built the structure along the lines of a Quonset hut complete with heaters, fan and watering system.

Mrs. Dimitry enjoys growing hybrid orchids, ferns and bromeliads, all of which require careful attention. A fan connected to a thermostat will cool the air during the hot summer months, while a heater comes on whenever the weather becomes too chilly for the delicate ornametals.

Dimitry, the work study coordinator for exceptional children at Crooms High School, also enjoys fishing. Any earthworms left over from his fishing trips are added to the flower beds to help cultivate the soil. Seeds and cuttings from plants in the yard are also started in the greenhouse.

After going to such lengths to care for and pamper their flowers, the Dimitrys do have one member of their household who sometimes causes a good deal of damage due to his fondness for the plants. He is the rabbit owned by the Dimitrys' daughter, Susie, and lives in a hutch in the backyard where the greenhouse is located. Whenever he is hopping around the yard, he likes nothing more than stopping by the greenhouse for a little snack.

He's the only natural predator," Dimitry said. "We have to watch the rabbit when he's out and make sure the (greenhouse) door's closed."

Dimitry adds earthworms to flower beds

Orchids thrive in the Dimitrys' greenhouse

With too many plants and no place to keep them, John Dimitry solved the problem by building a greenhouse.

TV Misdeals Cards In 'Young Maverick'

By DAVID HANDLER
Western comedies are not the stuff our dreams are made of. The oater has rarely played well as comedy. John Wayne did ride tall in the saddle, and did define American manhood for a couple of generations, but he was never noted for his ability to deliver a spit take.

James Garner, the only successful western comedy hero who comes to mind, scored 10 years ago with "Support Your Local Sheriff" and "The Six Gun." Not surprisingly, Garner starred in the only funny western series TV has ever produced, "Maverick," which ran from 1957-63. It was a delightful spoof of the Old West, and of westerns.

Bret Maverick wasn't your basic staunch, strong-jawed Western hero who let his trusty six-shooter do the talking. He was a genial, cowardly Dapper Dan who followed the dollar around the frontier and skimmed a share off the top by using his wits and a deck of cards.

Part riverboat gambler, part modern-day con man, Maverick was usually the only person in the saloon who bathed regularly and knew how to read. Maverick had a sense of humor and his own brand of dignity—if faced with a showdown at high noon, he was known to sneak out of town at dawn. What's the point in getting shot?

CBS has revived the show this season as "The Young Maverick," presenting the exploits of Bret's younger, Harvard-educated cousin Ben. The network is clearly banking on the character's nostalgic familiarity, and on the natural format for a non-violent western.

The Maverick character is pretty much the same. He still plays cards, gets in and out of scrapes and delivers lines like, "One of the things my pappy taught me was never take drafts from distant banks, especially from men who smoke cheap cigars."

And the stories are pretty much the same. One week Maverick tries to raise money by promoting his girlfriend's giant cousin in a bout against a touring prizefighter. Another week he tries to avert a mineer payroll heist so he'll be able to finance the miners himself.

But "The Young Maverick" implies charm and wit without actually putting any of it on screen—a hallmark of bad writing, bad acting, bad television.

The big problem is Garner's successor, Charles Frank, who's about as deft with light comedy as Chuck Connors was. His idea of playing cute is to act like he doesn't want anyone to know that a mouse is crawling up his leg.

He also looks all wrong. With his refined features and stylish designer western gear he suggests a Times Square "cowboy" more than he does the character he portrays.

Then there's trouble with his girlfriend, Nell (Susan Blanchard), a "woman of quality" who boasts her independence but seems to do nothing but follow our hero from town to town, working as a freelance chef and trying to get a ring on his finger.

Nell is supposed to be a modern woman who gets by on her own. But the show has copped out with this chef business. She should be a rival card sharp so we can occasionally get to see Maverick in his natural setting. But that would require her to hang around in saloons—where she would be exposed to coarse language and behavior. Not our little Nell.

So, we end up with a stacy card sharp and a whining girlfriend standing around in the street. She yanks on his sleeve, he bats his baby blues. Nobody has any fun.

"The Young Maverick" is an ill-advised and ill-fated venture. Once again Hollywood has tried to recreate an oldie without understanding what made it golden.

Cerebral Palsy Teletthon To Feature John Ritter

It will be all in the family when the "Weekend With the Stars Teletthon for Cerebral Palsy" is aired from Hollywood, Las Vegas and New York this weekend, Jan. 12-13.

The teletthon will be seen on more than 100 stations across the country and Canada, including ABC, CBS and NBC affiliates and independent stations, as well as the Global Television Network in Canada.

This year's "Weekend With the Stars" teletthon is the second national United Cerebral Palsy broadcast. Last year's show, seen on 78 stations, raised more than $11 million.

John Ritter and wife, Nancy Morgan, Dick and Pat

Nobel Laureate Begins Series On Economics

"I am a liberal," Milton Friedman has said. Friedman, the 1976 Nobel prize winner in economics, is the host for a new PBS series called "Free to Choose." But don't let the subject of economics put you off. This series promises to be provocative and—at times—chilling.

"I believe in freedom, pertaining to freedom. Those people today who call themselves liberal have misappropriated the term because for them it simply means they are liberal with other people's money."

"Free to Choose" is a series of 10 hour-long programs in which Friedman, who's been called "the foremost conservative economist in the United States today," clarifies some of the issues facing the U.S. Each program begins with a half-hour documentary film, shot on locations around the world. The documentaries then serve as the basis for an additional half-hour discussion between Dr. Friedman and exponents of different (and usually opposing) points of view.

Friedman is known as a monetarist, one who believes that the supply of money, not government manipulation of taxes and spending, is the key to inflation and recession. He's a wholehearted advocate of free enterprise. But this doesn't mean that big business doesn't get its share of Friedman's criticism on "Free to Choose." And so do farmers and labor unions.

Friedman, currently a senior research fellow at the Hoover Institution at Stanford University, is a staff member of the National Bureau of Economic Research and a contributing editor for Newweek magazine, for which he has written a column for the past 14 years.

He has also written extensively on public policy issues. His most important books in this field are "A Program for Monetary Stability," "Capitalism and Freedom" and "There's No Such Thing as a Free Lunch."

He has been active in public affairs for many years, serving as an informal economic advisor to Richard Nixon in 1969, and subsequently on the President's Commission on

'Police' Balances Its Many Talents

By ROB PATTERSON
With the acceptance of their single "Roxanne," the Police lay claim to being the most successful of the new British bands in America. Their two albums - The Police and Regatta De Blanc (A&M Records) - prove the Police highly versatile stylists as well as songwriters. From blues-trio work through reggae rhythms to flat-out rocking, this threesome skillfully balances its many talents (lead singer and bassist Sting has a starring role in Quadrophenia, for example). The band's power rests in the dynamic tension between the three members: Sting; guitarist Andy Summers; and American drummer Stewart Copeland. But whatever directions the three take, the Police is most important to all - it has opened its doors in America to release material not put out through their deals with Columbia and Epic Records. Their first release is a sheer delight: Wreckless Eric's "The Whole World, an irresistible motley collection of raucous rock snippets which Wreckless composes and sings with an off-beat but commercial flair. Live at Hurrah, New York's top rock club, he proved himself the equal of his record in the best way. With a loose, rollicking performance by himself and his band, Wreckless found out his songs in an atmosphere best described as "pure party pop." This unusual, diminutive character is a real rock original. If his work can't be found in your local store, write Stiff at: 157 West 57th St., New York, NY 10019.

Salute to "Channel 30"
The New England Chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences (NATAS), a donor of TV's coveted Emmy Award, has selected WWTN's "Channel 30 News" as its finalist for Outstanding News Program and the station's public service messages for the Martin Luther King Youth Fund as its finalist for Outstanding Public Service Announcement. The public is best served by a broadcast press that is free to report news - both good and bad - without fear of FCC intervention. The Fairness Doctrine, however, now stands in the way of the public interest, according to Caydon B. Dunham, Executive Vice President and General Counsel, NBC, who spoke on Nov. 16 at a Princeton University Conference on The Media and the Law. Dunham called the Fairness Doctrine "government censorship" and "a political doctrine," and added, "It has no place in a free society."

Carney Gets 'Itchy' When Not Working

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Art Carney is only 61, but he already seems to have his life's work mapped out. He appears headed for a career playing old men, even before he's really an old man. He's been an old man for several years now, in plays like 'The Prisoner of Second Avenue' on Broadway and in movies like 'House Calls'. His hair is white, and he knows it, and so he tries to be busy constantly. "I'm not a hobby person," Carney says. "I get itchy when I'm not working. In the last few years, I've done 10 or 11 films, and that's the way I like it."
His home is in Connecticut, on the shore. It sounds like a magnificent place to just relax and enjoy those sunset years. Hamburg to sunset years, says Carney. "At home," he says, "all I do is empty wastebaskets and put out the garbage. Oh, I rake the beach. I don't play golf and I don't do wood-working. And how much beach raking can you do?" He has three grown children who live nearby — one son, Brian, is, Art says, a "struggling actor" and his other son, Paul, is a "plainsitter-composer-musician." Art's daughter, Ellen, is a housewife. But, children and beach raking aside, acting is his life, and so he takes virtually any good part that comes his way. For example, he just did a week's work on a film that was shooting in Austin, Tex. It was called 'Roadie' and it is a rock musical starring the singer who calls himself Meat Loaf. Carney says it is a cartoon-type film, pure slapstick, and he enjoyed it. But, naturally, he prefers class films and he believes that "Going in Style" rates that adjective. In the first place, it concerns itself with "the elderly people who have nothing to do with their once productive lives." It deals with that problem with humor, but with pathos, too, he says. And he believes it is the best thing that George Burns has ever done, and he has tremendous admiration for Burns. "George," Carney says, "has humor, wit, patience, kindness and talent." Carney won't say it, of course, but he's no slouch in those departments, either. His talent is attested to by Oscar — including an "It's funny," Carney says, "we only made 39 of them, 'The Hog' and 'The Man'."
He hasn't done much TV in recent years, but his old series, "The Honeymooners," which starred Jackie Gleason, is still being seen in re-runs around the country. "I know where my handkerchiefs are, so why move?"
George is full of one-liners," Art says. "I once asked him how long he'd lived in his house. 'Forty-three years,' George said. "I know where my handkerchiefs are, so why move?"

ART CARNEY "I'm playing older — again."

U.S. To Soviets: 'Business As Usual' Ends

World In Peril As U.S., Soviets Cool Relations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Warning the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan threatens the security of all nations, President Carter related against the Soviets with a series of punitive measures, including a sharp cutback in grain sales and military aid to Pakistan.

In a nationally televised address Friday night, Carter said no nation "can continue to do business as usual with the Soviet Union," in ordering the most stringent reprisals since the end of the Cold War.

He warned a Soviet-occupied Afghanistan threatens both Iran and Pakistan and "is a stepping stone to possible control over much of the world's oil supplies."

Carter said the Soviet Union will receive only 8 million tons of grain this year instead of 25 million tons the United States had agreed to sell them.

It was the first time the United States has used agriculture as a foreign policy weapon "for overriding national security reasons," a White House official said.

To soften the blow to farmers, officials said the administration will spend between $2.5 billion and $3 billion over the next two years to protect prices and markets.

Following his address, the president and Mrs. Carter drove to Camp David for the weekend, despite warnings of heavy snow and hazardous highways and mountain roads.

Carter also warned if Russia continues its aggression in Afghanistan where it now has 50,000 troops, the United States may withdraw from the Olympics in Moscow next summer.

Other retaliatory measures he announced included a severe reduction of fishing rights for Soviet trawlers in U.S. waters, a ban on exports of high technology, particularly oldidling equipment, and a freeze on Soviet consular, cultural and economic exchanges.

In addition, Carter offered to provide military equipment, food and other assistance to help Pakistan "defend its independence" against the Soviet threat. He said the United States also stands ready to help other nations in the region to forestall aggression.

A White House official said if Iran releases the 50 American hostages and comes to realize the threat to its own security, U.S. aid would be forthcoming.

Carter made it clear he fears the Kremlin intends to alter the world balance of power and may be bent on further expansion.

"If Soviets are encouraged in this invasion by eventual success, and if they maintain their dominance over Afghanistan and extend their control to adjacent countries, the stable, strategic and peaceful balance of the world will be changed," he said. "This would threaten the security of all nations, including, of course, the United States, our allies and friends."

Carter also delayed the opening of the new American and Soviet consular facilities. Aerial flights between America and Russia, which were to be increased, will continue on a twice weekly basis.

Carter noted he already had sought and won postponement of Senate debate over the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty with Russia.

But he said he is not rejecting the pact for the long run because "the entire world will benefit from the successful control of strategic nuclear weapons through the implementation of this carefully negotiated treaty."

REACTIONS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter has general bipartisan support of his actions in response to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, but Republican presidential hopeful Robert Dole called his Friday night address a "coverup" and "deception."

"The president is rushing in to say something about Afghanistan to avoid facing up to the problem in Iran," Dole, R-Kan., said.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., seeking the Democratic presidential nomination, said "I think we're beginning to see a crisis presidency and I find it ironic that the president brings home the ambassador to Russia but that he failed to bring home the 50 American diplomats that were in Iran, prior to admitting the shah."

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., also expressed support. "I support the president's actions," he said.

AFGHANISTAN

By United Press International

Widespread fighting flared across Afghanistan today between occupying Soviet forces and Afghans, President Carter described the Soviet invasion as "an extremely serious threat to peace" and ordered a sharp curtailment of grain exports to Russia.

Carter, in a national TV address on deteriorating Soviet-American relations, also announced a cutoff of sales of high technology items such as oil-drilling equipment and threatened to withdraw the United States from the 1980 Olympics scheduled to be held in Moscow this summer.

The U.N. Security Council scheduled a full debate on the Afghan crisis today but any action by the council faced a certain Soviet veto.

Reports from Afghanistan and Iran indicated a fierce battle was being fought for control of Herat.

IRAN

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh today rejected demands from the militants holding the American embassy that U.S. Charge d'Affaires Bruce L. Laingen be handed over to them to answer charges for a future spy trial of hostages.

In a letter addressed to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Ghotbzadeh said Laingen and two other American diplomats had been placed under the Foreign Ministry's protection with the knowledge of Khomeini and the ruling Revolutionary Council.

"I follow orders only of the leader (Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini) and carry out decisions taken by the Islamic Revolutionary Council and request that necessary orders be issued in this matter," Ghotbzadeh said.

There was no immediate response to Ghotbzadeh's letter from either Khomeini or the council.

Teacher Hearing Slated Monday

A binding arbitration hearing will be held Monday in the contested dismissal of Raymond Masters, former guidance counselor at South Seminole Middle School.

The 10 a.m. hearing to be held in the board room at the School Administration Building, 1211 Melonville Ave., is open to the public.

Masters, a counselor at the school for school years 1977-78 and 1978-79, was not recommended for reappointment by the school principal, Ernest Cowley, chairman of the school board, said the principal, Sidney Boyette, decided a "better qualified" and "more responsible" counselor could be found.

Masters filed two grievances against the school board which will be ruled upon Monday. These involve academic freedom and the principal's professional evaluation of his work, Cowley said.

"The arbitration hearing will determine whether or not his (Masters') contract was violated," Cowley said.

George Eyraud of Birmingham, Ala., will serve as arbitrator. Eyraud's decision in the matter will be binding. He was chosen as arbitrator from a host of qualified arbitrators provided by the Public Employees Relation Commission of Florida, Cowley said.

'Old Bob' Sanford's Funeral Horse Remembered With New Grave Marker At Cemetery

By JANE CASSELL BERRY
 Herald Staff Writer

Friends of "Old Bob" will be relieved to know his marker is back in place on his grave in Sanford's old Lakeview Cemetery.

Dead for many years, Old Bob, the horse who used to pull the hearse that carried the city's dead to their final resting place at the turn of the century, still has many friends — some of whom are too young to have remembered him.

In fact the plastic flowers that decorate the grave on the right of way at the cemetery are placed there by children.

One of Old Bob's friends recently reported that his marker — decorated with an engraving of a horse head and shoe — has been broken and removed by "vandals."

City Parks Director Jim Jernigan explained this was not the case. It seems someone had backed into it at a funeral and it was safe in the maintenance building awaiting repair.

"Old Bob is still in our hearts and we're not going to let anything happen to his marker," Jernigan said.

The repair of the horse's grave marker became a priority item and in no time at all Jernigan reported it was back in place, in memory of Old Bob's "22 years of faithful service."

Martha Fox, who still remembers Old Bob, said: "I don't know how the poor horse got everyone out there, the road was just deep sandy ruts."

Miss Fox was 11-years-old when her mother died in 1904, and she remembers riding in a carriage behind the hearse pulled by "Old Bob."

Old Bob was later replaced by a team of horses to pull the hearse she said.

Miss Fox said her mother and father are buried in a family plot in Lakeview Cemetery, purchased in 1883 while they were still living in Lake Jessup before moving to Sanford.

"I've got 11 of my people buried there," said Miss Fox, whose father died in 1919.

Settlers from old Fort Field and Civil War veterans are also among those buried in the old cemetery.

Old Bob was owned by T. J. Miller, who owned a combination funeral parlor, furniture store and music store at the corner of Park Avenue and First Street, where the Atlantic Bank of Seminole now stands.

Back in those horse-and-buggy days, the stores closed out of respect when someone in the community died. "Everybody knew each other back then," Miss Fox added.

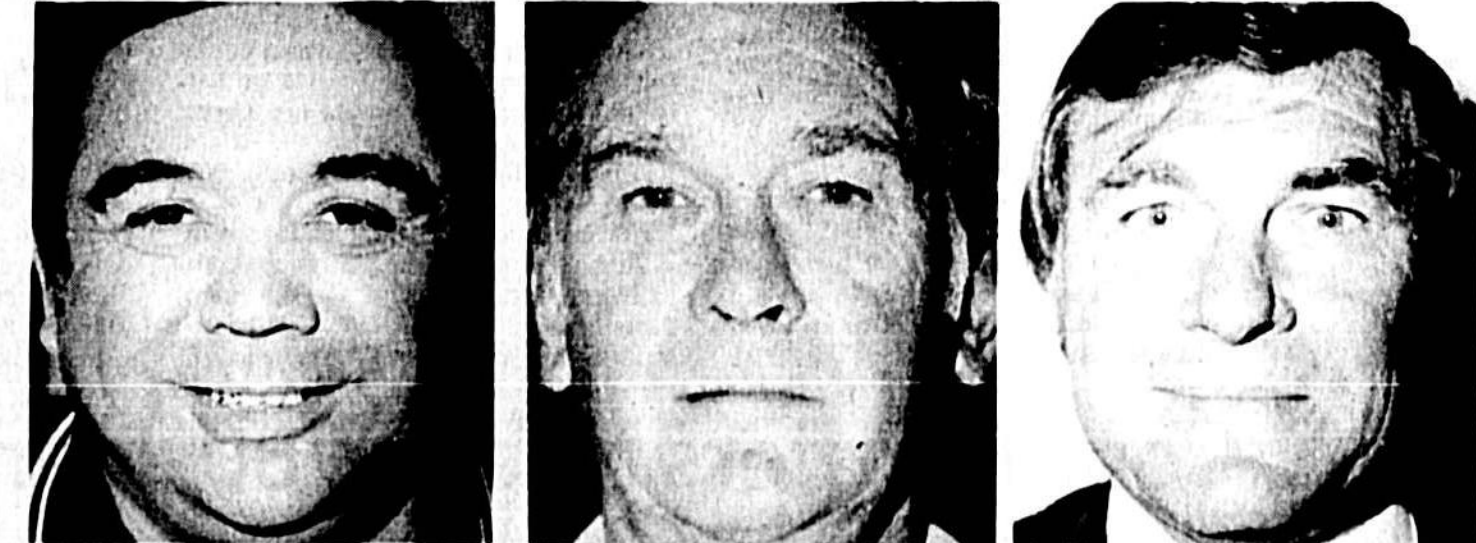

Although funeral services were held at Miller's funeral parlor and in local churches, many were also held in private homes. The deceased was taken back to the home on the day of the funeral and flowers were hung on the screen door.

Funerals for Miss Fox's father, mother and brother were all held at the family home on Oak Avenue, now the home of the Catholic nuns who teach at All Souls School.

Miss Fox, who has lived at 1208 Park Ave. for 30 years, would like to carry on this tradition.

"I've told them at Brissons, if they're still living to bring me home again for the last time and they said they would," she said.

Lake Mary: Will New Councilmen Turn The Tide?

VICTOR OLVERA ...forget magic
RAY FOX ...can't find cuts
GENE McDONALD ...questions numbers

Olvera, Fox, McDonald Hope To Sort Out City's Financial Woes

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer

No immediate solutions to financial woes which have plagued the city of Lake Mary for the past several months appear possible to the city's three new councilmen.

Victor Olvera, Ray Fox and Gene McDonald, elected in December and set to take office at 4 p.m. Monday say financial stability may be a long way off.

The city's financial distress came to light last summer when it was found that a city employee charged with preparing the prior year's budget had overestimated income and included within spending proposals some funds earmarked for capital projects.

The Legislature approved a new law last year permitting the city to raise property taxes only to the point of gaining five percent more income than the previous year. The council placed on the ballot a question asking for approval by the voters of a larger property tax increase.

The referendum was turned down in September by the voters. The resulting property tax rate of $2.84 per $1,000 assessed property value gave many property owners a 16-cent-per-$1,000-cut in taxes. The city previously levied a $3 rate for five years.

"I don't see anything magic happening," said Olvera. "The long range solution appears to be enticing industry to locate in the city to expand the tax base. But the city must be able to provide water and sewer service to entice industry to come here."

Current council member Pat Southward, whom Olvera will be replacing on the board, has for the past several months been looking into the possibility of gaining federal funding for installation of both water and sewer lines in the Rinehart Road and Lake Emma Roads area. So far her project has not been successful.

From first-hand experience, Olvera, employed by Herian Engineering, a new industry located on Rinehart Road, knows how necessary those two city services are. The firm has been in its new facility for several months, yet it is only within the past few days that central water and sewer service has been provided. The service is not provided by the city, but by Florida Land Company's privately-owned utility which serves the Crossings planned unit development.

The firm, which relocated to Lake Mary from Detroit, produces audio care products and currently employs 20 persons.

In the next few months, the production staff is expected to reach 75 in addition to increases in the office and engineering staff.

The firm is using only a couple acres of the 53 acres it owns on Rinehart Road.

Olvera said he also sees as a long-range solution the annexation of the Crossings. He said information must be gathered to prove to the residents of the Crossings that they will save tax money and receive better service by going into the city.

He said answers must also be found to the complaints of some landowners along Lake Mary Boulevard about the 104-foot setbacks from the center line of the highway. The setbacks were originally adopted by the city to provide a method of widening the road in the future.

Olvera said several of the owners of Lake Mary Boulevard property want to sell their lands for commercial development. The city must control the development, he said, to maintain a high quality. "We don't want another State Road 438 or State Road 434," he said.

Fox, who served on the city's planning and zoning commission, said several commercial developments are in the planning stages in the city. Several weeks ago, plans were announced for construction of a commerce park much like the Live Oak Center in Casselberry. This past week plans were announced for a warehouse park.

Fox said he has been studying the city's budget carefully and there appears to be no obvious areas where cuts can be made to save money. He noted the city council's first quarterly budget review will be held later this month.

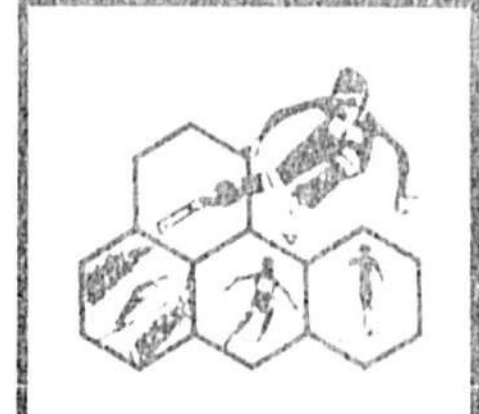

The first meetings of the newly constituted city council will be a workshop on Jan. 17 followed by a regular meeting on the 24th.

Fox said he has no preconceived notions about the Lake Mary Boulevard controversy. He pointed out that quite a few new homes have been built during the past year that will be coming on the tax rolls this year. But he recognized actual taxes will not be received from many of those new houses until the 1981 fiscal year.

McDonald admits that the city has got to find some additional revenues, "but I don't know where those revenues are," he said, adding, in line with the information he has received, he is opposed to the institution of a utility tax.

"The council has to wrestle with the problem and see what it can come up with," he said.

McDonald said he has been studying the city's financial statements and asking questions to gain a better understanding of, "why the numbers are what they are."
