Artery Hardening: Foot Care Needed

DEAR DR. LAMB—The last two years I have walked poorly and the doctor says it is hardening of the arteries but discloses there is nothing I can do for it. I'm 77 years old. From my feet up to my seat the sides of my legs feel tender. Recently I did a lot of yard work with lots of bending over and for several days I could hardly get out of a chair. A relative of mine, the same age, had an operation four years ago to put new arteries in his legs and this helped him for nearly two years. Then it came back. My attorney says he knew a man who had good benefits for five years and died in his 80s. Would an electric body massager on arteries help or hurt? Someone said this might cause blood clots. What if?

DEAR READER—There are a lot of people younger than you who might be a little stiff and sore after yard work. When a person has leg problems related to poor circulation through the arteries to the legs it can sometimes be corrected by surgery. The problem is a build up of fatty-cholesterol deposits in the walls of the arteries to the legs. This blocks the circulation. When the area is localized a surgeon can put in a graft above the block and below the block. The graft simply detours blood around the blockage. Now, if the artery is blocked all the way down the leg, there is no open artery you can detour the blood to. An operation is of no value in that case. These operations only work for people who have localized blockages with pretty good arteries beyond the blockage. In your relative's case, as the fatty-cholesterol build up continued in the artery below or above the detour graft, the circulation would be blocked again and the symptoms of poor circulation would return. Surgery is great to detour around the localized blockage but it is important to realize the basic disease, the accumulation of fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries, is still there and can progress after surgery. Even if it is possible to put in a graft to detour around the artery, it is still important to take measures to improve the circulation. This means preventing any more accumulation of fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries. Exercise, a low fat diet, and complete cessation of smoking are all important parts of the treatment. A vibrator or muscle massage by any means may help to relax muscles that are in spasm caused by poor circulation in any way. It will not cause blood clots. When you have poor circulation to the legs and feet it is important not to expose the feet or leg to too much heat or cause any kind of injury. Good shoes are important. Any injury in the presence of poor circulation may not heal properly. Good foot care may save your foot or leg from amputation. So I am sending you The Health Letter number 11-4, Your Feet and How To Care For Them.

Labor Secretary To Rail Strikers: End It, Or Else

Judge Calls Unionists

JACKSONVILLE (UPI)—U.S. District Judge George C. Carr ordered union officials to appear at a 9 a.m. hearing today to explain why they have not obeyed an earlier order to call off their sympathy strikers against the Seaboard Coast Line Railroad. The strike was called Tuesday by the Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks against several railroads, which intersected with the Norfolk & Western Railway, which has been on strike since July 18.

Marshall noted, however, that union leaders do not appear ready to end nationwide picketing. "Our economic health is imperiled by a continuation of this strike," the secretary told a Washington news conference. Two-thirds of the nation's rail traffic is affected by the walkout, he said, layoffs have begun in the automobile industry and food supplies "will soon begin to rot if the strike is not settled."

"This is why I have given both sides a 24-hour deadline to reach an agreement," he said. Formal talks between BRAC and N&W broke off Thursday, but Marshall said they had arranged to resume them at noon today.

Marshall was unwilling to spell out administration plans in the event of a continued deadlock, but noted that two alternatives would be creation of an emergency board which could lead to a back-to-work order, or special legislation. What started July 18 as a contract dispute over job protection between the Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks and the Norfolk & Western Railway, which has been on strike since July 18.

Tuscowilla De-Annex: Mayor May Veto Vote Plan

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

The question of whether Tuscowilla residents will be able to vote Nov. 7 whether they want to be excluded or remain within the City of Winter Springs has still not been resolved.

The Winter Springs City Council on a 3-1 vote Tuesday night adopted an ordinance ordering the issue placed on the city's November general election ballot for a vote of Tuscowilla residents only. But Mayor Troy Piland has threatened to veto the ordinance.

Councilman John Daniels, Thomas Craven and Laurent Pellerin voted in favor. Councilman Bert Logan voted against and Councilman John Sebastian was absent.

The re-adoption became necessary when former-City Attorney Gary Manney, a property owner in Tuscowilla, and employed professionally by the Winter Springs Development Corp., developers of Tuscowilla, showed the city council that the legal description in the original ordinance was faulty.

Manney told the council that the deannexation ordinance as approved would create an enclave—a city area completely surrounded by county territory—in violation of the law.

The property omitted from the first ordinance is a 300-foot strip City Attorney Thomas Lang agreed with Manney's finding. The new ordinance corrects the legal description to include the 300 feet.

Piland inserted the new vote possibility into the discussion Tuesday night.

After Lang pointed out the council had "given up its right" to deannex Tuscowilla by simple ordinance when it called for the referendum, Piland asked, "Did they give up my right to veto the ordinance?"

"That is a question we will have to come to when you do veto it," said Lang. "It's something that drafters of the state statute (permitting deannexation) did not envision."

Piland indicated he has not made a decision on whether to attempt to veto the ordinance.

Lang told the council immediate action was required to place the question on the Nov. 7 ballot.

A public hearing on the proposed deannexation required by law, was scheduled for Oct. 31.

A new petition said to contain the signatures of 10 voters in Tuscowilla requesting the referendum could not be considered by the council because not enough time remains for it to be certified.

Councilman John Daniels indicated the number of signatures in excess of the 10 percent required under state law to initiate the referendum.

The original petition had more than 100 signatures.

Lang told councilmen that the law permits the council to initiate the referendum without a petition.

Piland questioned the councilman about the new ordinance.

Missing Boy Search Ends: For Now

By DENNIS FEOLA Herald Staff Writer

The fourth day of searching for six-year-old Brian Schultz ended at dusk Tuesday, as officials abandoned plans to "sweep" a wooded area near South Seminole Middle School.

After two Winter Park policemen spent the entire day searching the woods with tracking dogs a plan to have volunteers walk through the area was deemed unfeasible.

"The woods were too thick to sweep," Capt. Jay Leman of the Seminole County Sheriff's Department, said. "The men and dogs had to crawl to get through the area. There was no way to walk it."

The search of the area south of the school was prompted by a report from two Casselberry students who said they talked with the first grader.

The students said the youth told them he was afraid of being punished and would never come out of the woods, deputies, who described the students as reliable, said.

"I've never had one like this before," Leman said. "You have to believe the two kids. The dogs picked up a

Seminole Medical Clinic: Temporarily Defunct—Todd

"If they came in for treatment Tuesday, they didn't get it, it's that simple," said Troy Todd, Seminole County's director of human services.

The "they" referred to are the people who have been coming to the county's twice-a-month medical clinics at the Seminole County Health Department offices in Sanford and Longwood.

Todd said today the medical operation is "temporarily defunct," but when it does resume there will be a restructuring. The restructuring will mean the elimination of treatment given by the clinic to people who have chronic diseases.

Treatment will be stopped for such chronic diseases as arthritis and diabetes. The clinic will still give assistance in such areas as sore throat and treatment of venereal disease, Todd said.

"We will continue to give diagnosis and detection and that's all," said Todd.

Those who have been receiving treatment were told Tuesday of the change and the department has been contacting some people by phone, according to Margaret Magill, county nursing director.

"For those who came in Tuesday we told them they have to make other arrangements," Todd said.

Ms. Magill added she did not agree with Todd saying "was not certain about the future of medical clinics in the county." She noted she will talk with state officials to get further information on the situation.

However, an official of the state Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) said today the county has the option to do what it chooses.

"These clinics are set up by the county and there is no violation of any state law that I know of," said Larry Dugher, HRS deputy district administrator. Todd noted that no medical help can be given until a new county health director is hired.

The new person will be taking the place of Dr. Ilanida Battila, who resigned last week in dispute with Todd over the clinic's operation.

The state has begun state and national advertising for a recruit for Dr. Battila. Once enough qualified applicants are received the state will forward the list to the county commission.

Commission OKs Increased Insurance For Knowles

In an effort to bring Sanford City Manager Warren E. Knowles on a par with administrators in comparable Florida cities, the city commission has agreed to pay almost $800 a year more for his life insurance.

The vote came with little discussion, but was split 4 to 1 with Commissioner A. A. McClanahan voting against the proposal.

The city has for several years paid for a term life insurance policy of $1,000 for Knowles, but the city manager said he recently discovered the amount for a city administrator is far below the average provided by other cities of comparable size for their city managers.

The $1,000 life insurance policy on Knowles has cost the city about $80 a year. The new policy of $2,000 will cost $207.30 a year, according to Knowles.

"I voted against it because as far as I'm concerned, it amounts to a $60-a-month pay raise," McClanahan said. However, he was quick to add:

"This is nothing personal and has nothing to do with the city manager. As far as I'm concerned, he's the best damned administrator in the business. I just felt this is a tight budget year and that we can't afford it."

Knowles said a recent survey of area cities of comparable size to Sanford indicated he is not being paid in line with the managers in those cities, and did his insurance policy of $2,000 paid by the city compare with their coverage.

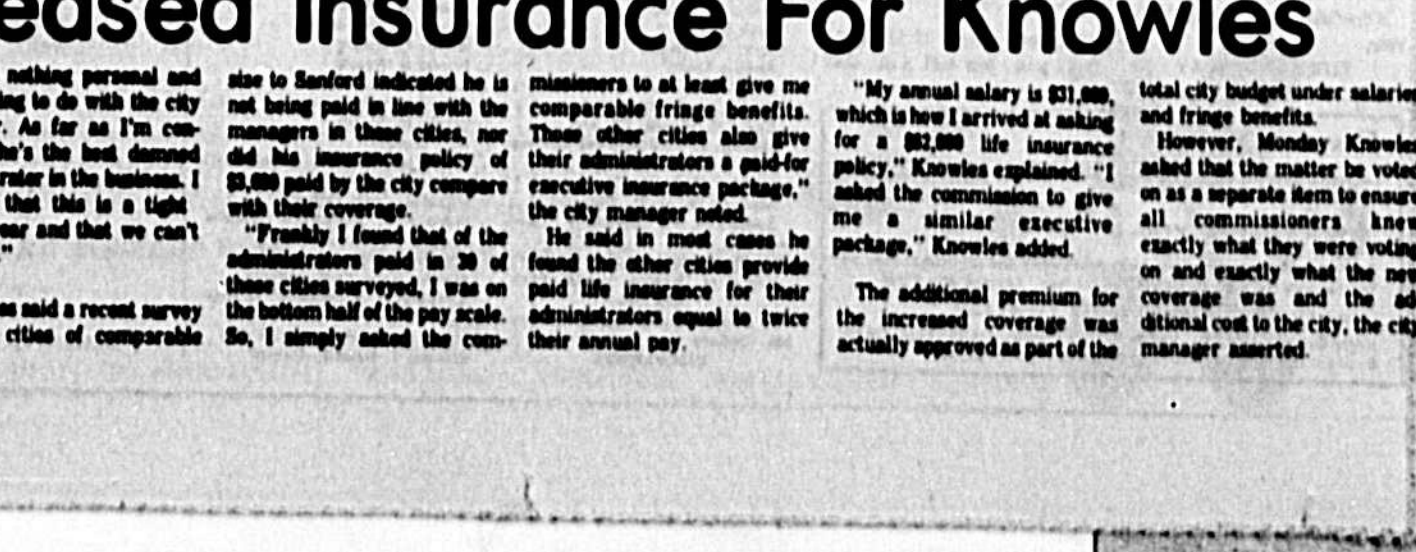

"Frankly I found out of the administrators paid in 10 of those cities surveyed, I was on the bottom half of the pay scale. So, I simply asked the commissioners to at least give me comparable fringe benefits. The other cities also give their administrators a paid-for executive insurance policy," the city manager noted.

He said in most cases he found the other cities provide paid life insurance for their administrators equal to twice their annual pay.

"My annual salary is $21,800, which is low I arrived at making for a $2,000 life insurance policy," Knowles explained. "I asked the commission to give me a similar executive package," Knowles added.

The additional premium for the increased coverage was actually approved as part of the total city budget under salaries and fringe benefits.

However, Monday Knowles asked that the matter be voted on as a separate item to ensure all commissioners knew exactly what they were voting on and exactly what the new coverage was and the additional cost to the city, the city manager asserted.

Carriers Of Bad News

The Postal Service will survive the current confrontation with its labor unions, probably by sweetening its wage-bike offer.

The predictable result will be higher postal rates or a larger tax subsidy, or both. Unfortunately, there won't be anything in the new contracts about better mail service.

That, in a nutshell, is the trouble with the Postal Service. The people continue to pay more and more for a mail system that offers them less and less service.

Since 1971, the cost of sending the average piece of mail has risen by 80 percent.

During the same period, many parts of the country have experienced a decline in the number of daily mail pickups. Multiple deliveries to downtown businesses have been drastically reduced.

The forwarding of mail has been substantially slowed. And the long-ago promise of two-day delivery anywhere in the country is a job not mentioned to the millions who wait four and five days, or more, for even cross-town mail.

Meanwhile, postal employees collect wages and salaries that, according to one authoritative study, exceed compensation for comparable workers in the private sector by $2 billion a year.

The postal reform of 1970 was intended to shape up the old Post Office Department by depoliticizing it, converting it to a quasi-independent agency and placing it on a self-sustaining financial basis. As we have said before, the reform hasn't worked.

Removing political patronage from the postal system has succeeded only in insulating it from citizen complaints and the will of Congress. As for making the system financially self-sustaining, the annual operating deficit of $185 million in 1970 swelled to $1.2 billion by 1975.

As we see it, any realistic effort to improve postal service must entail either a return to congressional-executive branch control or allow, even encourage, the private sector to assume distribution of some classes of mail.

A return to political control of the system would not help unless Congress did what it failed to do in 1970: give the postal system a clear mandate for specific service objectives and a workable financial plan to pay the tab.

Moreover, repoliticizing the system is not likely to work unless Congress enacts some reasonable restrictions on the powers of the postal employee unions.

Full automation and the improved productivity it would bring are not likely to be achieved so an 850,000 postal employees retain the muscle to defy court orders and shut down delivery of the mail.

Benjamin F. Ballar, who resigned as postmaster general earlier this year, concluded that new technologies available in the private sector will leave the postal system with a shrinking share of the country's communications market.

He's probably right. Satellites, microwaves and other space-age gadgetry may some day transmit more written messages than letter carriers and sorting clerks.

If that is the shape of the future, Congress would do well to begin studying ways the existing government monopoly could be gradually cut back to accommodate faster and ultimately cheaper mail service, provided by private enterprise.

Around

The Clock

By JIM HAYNES

The other faculty of polls was rarely more evident than Monday when Lake Brantley High's football team saw itself served off a perch numbered No. 6 and dumped straight to the ground.

There were no broken bones, only a bruised pride. Brantley dropped a 20-14 decision to a strong Gainesville team Friday night. Gainesville went in ranked No. 1 and emerged the same.

The Patriots don't have as well, dropping out of the top 10 and well back in the pack of those also receiving votes.

The state prep poll has long been under criticism. Originally conducted by the Miami Herald, the Florida Sports Writers Association took it over about 10 years ago. This writer conducted the poll for the first three years, using a panel of eight writers representing the eight districts of the state. It was a frustration three years, because most of the poll voters were either untrained or had no experience at all in the sport.

The factor often overlooked when a team loses and is asked to drop in ranking, is who did it lose to? In Lake Brantley's case last weekend, losing to Gainesville is hardly a disgrace, even if the score wasn't close.

If I were voting, I would drop Brantley down a couple of notches after such a loss.

Here's the injustice. The Patriots are not likely to lose again in the next month, yet unless some takes up the torch and does some crusading to the pollsters, Brantley won't come close to climbing back into the top 10.

By the same token, Brantley could finish 8-1 and still get only passing consideration from voters, who are swayed less often by that unadmitted record.

A few years ago, The Patriots were 7-3, with the only losses coming at the hands of Class AAAA schools in Orlando's Metro Conference.

Bill, Class AAAA voters listed Bishop Moore only as an "also receiving vote."

Ah, but they just don't understand.

ANGLE-WALTERS Navy Tosses In Towel

WASHINGTON — What ever happened to the United States Navy's combat readiness?

Navy Captain John Jones was ordered to command the USS Intrepid at the end of the bloody battle of the Revolution. "I have not yet begun to fight," he proclaimed, then went on to claim victory in the battle.

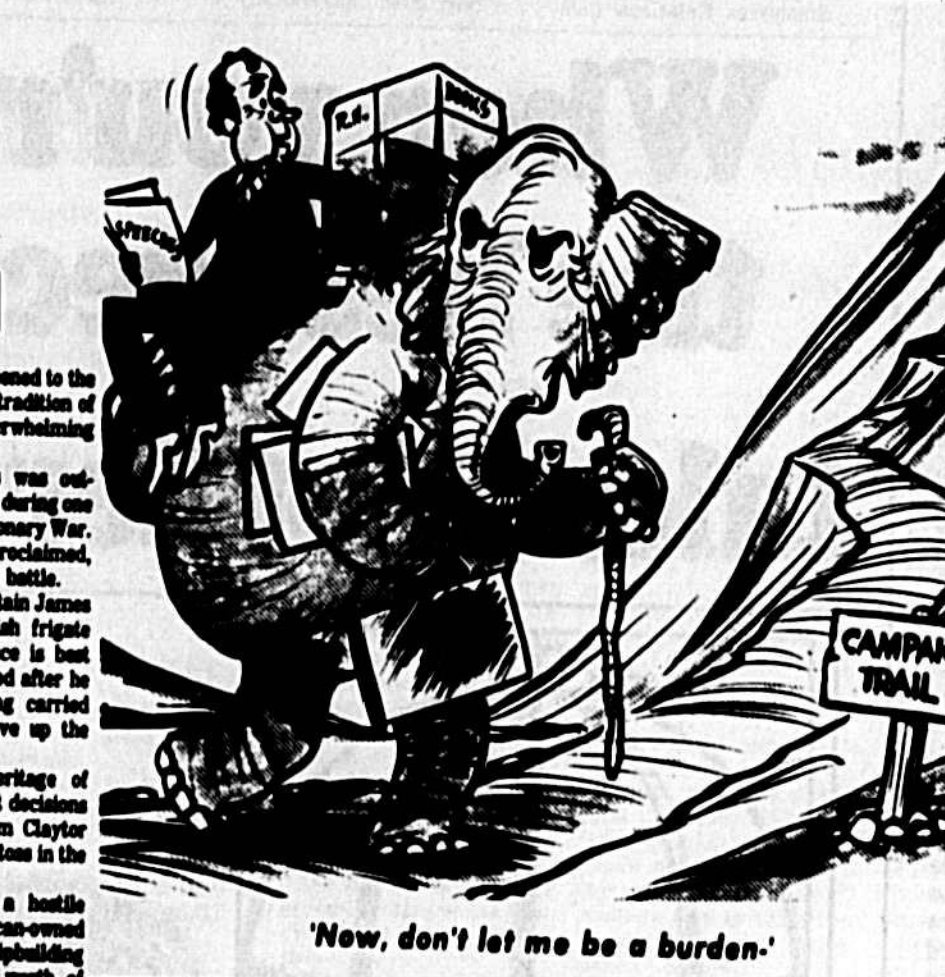

The ship commanded by Navy Captain James Lawrence was captured by a British frigate during the War of 1812. But Lawrence is best remembered for his final order, issued after he was fatally wounded and was being carried away deck by his crew: "Don't give up the ship."

In contrast with that great heritage of bravery and courage stand the recent decisions made by Navy Secretary W. Graham Claytor Jr., who apparently has embraced a "loss in the war" philosophy.

The "lossy" these days isn't a battle, but a series of decisions made by the Navy Secretary that have cost the United States Navy billions of dollars worth of Navy construction contracts.

Lyle Electric Boat Co. of Groton, Conn., a subsidiary of the General Dynamics Corp., was awarded the contract for the USS Zumwalt.

The Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. of Newport News, Va., a subsidiary of Tenneco Inc.

WASHINGTON WORLD Hearing Footsteps?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Professional football players say a press room is needed in the end of his career when he begins "hearing footsteps" — the sound of ticklers approaching as he is about to catch the football.

If Democratic Party leaders in Minnesota and Maryland do not hear footsteps these days, they have been playing the game too long without their helmets.

There is strong evidence that the primary victory of Barry Hughes in Maryland and Robert Short in Minnesota, both over candidates with the backing of the regular Democratic organizations, were more than isolated upsets.

Minnesota's Democratic Party has been a strongly issue-oriented force on the left of the national Democratic coalition. It produced one of the most influential candidates in the history of the party — Hubert Humphrey.

In Minnesota, the Democrat Farmer-Labor Party, a fusion of a strong rural party and the traditional Democratic Party, has been a strongly issue-oriented force on the left of the national Democratic coalition.

RONALD REAGAN The Year Of The Elephant

After election day in November, if the Republicans don't manage many gains in Congress and the state houses, the pundits will do what they do best: write a history of the Year of the Elephant.

It may be wrong. In fact, the historians may come to describe 1978 as the Year of the Elephant. It began with the realization — at first tentative — that the party had the issue with which to turn around its reputation for conservatism.

This, coupled with the growing awareness among GOP activists that the left-wing of the Democratic Party was influencing Carter administration actions on both foreign and domestic policy way out of proportion to its numbers, gave the Republicans a real lift.

Unlike the light bulb switching on in the cartoon, the tax cut logic and strategy did not come in a flash to the Republicans. But, little by little, as the benefits of the Roth-Kemp bill (including across-the-board income tax cuts averaging 33 percent) became apparent, Republicans recognized that grassroots Democrats and independents felt the same way they did about high taxes and government waste.

At about the same time, Republicans began to realize that tax cuts can produce economic growth without ravaging the U.S. Treasury. The evidence was there for all to see. Under Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Kennedy, tax cuts led to sustained growth in the economy (as a result of improved incentives) and more, not less revenue to the Treasury.

The Treasury's "running train" form, added to the Republicans' enthusiasm. Just as it had in those earlier cases, the Treasury predicted dire results if tax cuts on the order of Roth-Kemp were passed.

At least the mandarins at the Treasury Department were consistent in their wrongheadedness. Typically, they base their predictions on "static analysis," assuming that if tax rates change, human behavior will not. In other words, if you get to keep more of your own money as a result of a tax cut, they figure you'll bury it in a tin can in the back yard rather than invest or spend it — where it spreads out through the economy, causing growth.

The plan by the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) to locate a treatment center for seven boys with a variety of minor discipline problems in a home on Dixon Road near Longwood is officially dead.

Homeowners in the area had protested the location of the center, insisting it would have an adverse effect on their property values and petitioned State Insurance Commissioner and Treasurer Bill Gunter to consider their position as a member of the cabinet.

Grant Gripes, But Longwood Passes Budget Anyway? Sanford OKs $1.5 Million SHA Grant Bid For HUD

By JANE CABELLERRY
Herald Staff Writer

Disatisfaction with the proposed 1979-80 city budget and the federal revenue-sharing fund budget was voiced at Monday's session of the Longwood City Council.

But the budget was passed anyway.

The $1,046,732 general fund budget, which goes into effect on Oct. 1, was adopted by the council after it was pointed out it could be amended later by resolution.

A property tax rate of $2.56 per $1,000 assessment, a 4-cent increase from last year's millage rate, was also adopted.

Council Chairman J.R. Grant called the budget the "worst budget in four years," saying the city would be spending $200,000 more than it was taking in.

"If you continue to do this next year, this will raise taxes. You will spend all the $200,000 carry-over from this year."

"We are trying to take care of transgressions of the past," said Councilman Ray Leibensperger. "There was no money approved for drainage and paving on Grant could make a big carry-over."

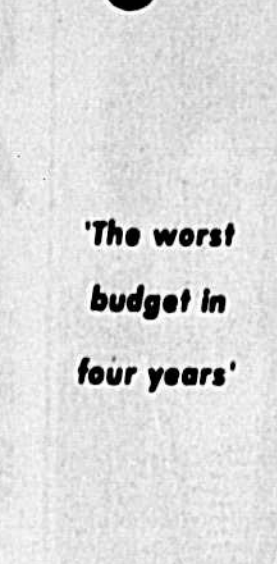

"We have taken some steps to correct the wrongs of the past by putting money in for drainage and paving. We finally did something that should have been done five to 10 years ago. Instead of sitting up here and saying let's put this in the back."

Included in the budget are $50,000 for street repair and construction and $60,000 for storm drainage.

"There are a lot of one-shot items such as roads, drainage personnel, if Tommy needs equipment as bad as he says," said Barton; "perhaps the two recreation directors."

"Everyone is panicking too early," responded Leibensperger. "I would be very amazed if we end up with less than $175,000 carry-over next year."

Following a public hearing on the federal revenue-sharing budget, the council voted to change the budget which allotted one-third of the anticipated $48,329 revenue to drainage, one-third to paving and one-third to capital outlay for equipment in the two recreation departments.

The council budgeted $2,000 for equipment; and $16,229 for paving; and another public hearing was set for Oct. 9.

Budget for the Longwood Police Department for the coming year totals $339,024 — the largest amount for a single department. Last year the police department received $237,162. The fire department budget totals $108,302 compared to $71,205 last year.

Included in the budget is a $16,000 salary for hiring a proposed city administrator. The street department budget has increased from $104,572 last year to $254,300 in the new budget.

The Sanford Housing Authority's application for a $1,500,000 Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) grant to build a neighborhood facility to serve the poor and elderly is on its way to HUD's Jacksonville office.

The Sanford City Commission approved the application. The facility would provide office space for the housing authority, meeting rooms and medical examination facilities for low-income persons.

The facility also would contain offices for social service agencies which would send staff to the facility on certain days every week to deal with the needs of the poor.

On a 3-3 vote the commission agreed to act as the sponsor for the grant application. Mayor Lee P. Moore and Commissioner Eddie Keith voted against the proposal.

Questioning Tom Wilson, executive director, Sanford Public Housing Authority, Moore asked how many low income housing units there are in the county outside the city of Sanford.

Wilson told him: 68.

Moore then asked how many of those were outside the city of Sanford.

Wilson responded: "30 in Oriskany."

"It isn't fair," declared Moore. "I know I'm not helping you cause any, but somebody's got to draw some attention to should shoulder some of the costs of providing public housing and facilities for low income and elderly.

"In a county of 175,000 we've got 30 low-income housing units outside Sanford. Altamonte Springs, Winter Springs, Casselberry and Longwood all have elderly and I'm wondering where these good folks are in these towns who believe they are their brother's keeper," said Moore.

"If we act as they do then we are as irresponsible as they are," said Commissioner A. A. McManahan.

Police Change Shifts

The Sanford Police Department will be shifting from a 40-hour work week to a 48-hour work week, Monday.

The city commission has voted to alter the current eight-day work schedule which calls for officers to work six days straight with two days off.

Under the new proposal, officers will work a 16-day cycle with six days on duty, two days off followed by five days on duty and three days off.

The new schedule amounts to a 36.81-hour work week average.

"This alone would be 72.60 hours per year less than the normal 48-hour work week," according to City Manager Warren E. Koonline.

However, the new schedule also requires officers to participate in a little over one hour of training each week. The training will amount to 72.60 hours of training each year.

"People don't stop to realize if you work a 48-hour week you put in 2,880 hours a year," said Commissioner Julian B. Anderson. "Under this schedule, officers would work 2,807.52 hours and be required to spend 72.60 hours in mandatory training."

Anderson contended hours spent in training are still considered working time.

A police spokesman said the new schedule change is "being worked up," but would be instituted Sunday.

"I personally feel the change will be a great benefit," said acting Chief Ben Butler today, "because every two weeks there will be an extra day off for the officers."

Butler also commended the mandatory training concept. "I think this is a good idea," he said of the training program. "They will have to be there for training about an hour and a half every week. There will be no more people coming in to work, things like that."

A more detailed training program is in the works, according to Butler, and should be ready soon.

"When I look over, there was no training, but we are working on a full training program now," said Butler.

SEN. STROM THURMOND

Thurmond: 'This Is My Last Race'

By MENLE KELLERHALS

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — Strom Thurmond, erstwhile "Dixiecrat" and Democratic-turned Republican, insists he'd be turning his people down if he didn't run one more time for the Senate seat he's held for nearly a quarter of a century.

But the veteran senator, who hasn't lost an election since 1950 and whose supporters label him "a living legend," is embroiled in one of the toughest races of his career — the classic "New South" vs. the "Old South" battle.

"I'm not running to win physically," says the trim, smooth-faced senator whose outward physical appearance belies his 75 years.

While many of his Southern colleagues in the Senate have retired, Thurmond isn't about to quit the fight for tradition, state's rights, free enterprise and military supremacy.

With a pretty 31-year-old wife and four young children by his side, Thurmond is vigorously campaigning for his fifth term in the Senate against a Democrat named Charles D. "Pug" Ravelle, 46, a longtime farward quarterback, Wall Street entrepreneur and political newcomer.

"I'll be the No. 2 Republican in the Senate after November," Thurmond said. "That security means a lot to the state. But this will be my last race."

In the contest between Ravelle and Thurmond, the Dixiecrat's 1948 presidential forerunner who has voted against every major piece of civil rights legislation, a major issue has been the senator's record.

Blacks, who make up 30 percent of South Carolina's population, are considered crucial in a 1978 victory.

Thurmond, an individualist who has switched parties three times, contends times have changed since the height of the

New Faces Topple Politicos In Alabama

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Alabama Democrats have turned to some new faces, nominating a young state legislator over Sen. James B. Allen's widow for Allen's Senate seat and picking a political newcomer to succeed Gov. George Wallace.

Voters also nominated a former judge over a 19-year congressional veteran for the other Senate spot in Tuesday's runoff primary, which marked the end of more than two decades of Wallace-dominated politics in Alabama.

State Sen. Donald Stewart, a 38-year-old lawyer, defeated Maryon Allen for the Democratic nomination to succeed Mrs. Allen's late husband.

Feb. James, a 44-year-old sporting goods manufacturer from south Alabama, defeated fiery Attorney General William Baxley for the gubernatorial nomination, while former Alabama Chief Justice Howell Heflin soundly beat Rep. Walter Flowers for the other Senate seat now held by retiring Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala.

Nomination in the primary is tantamount to election in heavily Democratic Alabama.

With 77 percent of the vote in Stewart, who trailed Mrs. Allen by about 5 percent in the Sept. 5 primary, had 480,169 votes or 57 percent to Mrs. Allen's 359,572. James had 499,337 votes or 55 percent to Baxley's 405,333. Heflin amassed 529,704 votes or 65 percent to 288,099 for Flowers.

In a statement issued by an aide, Mrs. Allen said she probably would devote herself to writing and broadcasting. She made no mention of the cause of her defeat.

Although Wallace supported Baxley in the governor's race, James said he expects Wallace to help him make the transition.

"I think the governor can help me tremendously," James said. "I expect him to. I'm a rookie. I've never held public office before."

Stewart said he expected to do well, but not as well as he did.

"This is a grass-roots type thing," he said. "I don't know what to attribute that to (his win). We felt like we were going to do well, but not this well."

Maybe I was in the wrong place at the wrong time," he said.

Women Invade Yankee Locker Room... No Free Show

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Yankees' clubhouse will never be the same. A small group of women reporters from local TV stations appeared Tuesday night for the first time in the Yankees' clubhouse following a U.S. District Court decision saying they could not be barred.

There were no incidents and the Yankees players present were all clothed when the women reporters appeared before the game at Yankee Stadium with the Toronto Blue Jays.

Most of the questions the women reporters asked did not deal with the permanent race, but rather the decision by Judge Constance Baker Motley allowing women reporters access to baseball dressing rooms for the first time.

"When I get undressed there'll be no ladies around," said reserve outfielder Jay Johnstone to one of the women reporters. "Why don't you get in your uniform now?"

"I'm in my uniform," the woman replied.

Yankee outfielder Lou Piniella said, "I don't care what they do, it won't have any effect on the permanent race or how we play. All I know is when the man says 'play ball,' they won't be on the field... will they?"

Melissa Larkie, the Sports Illustrated reporter who brought the court proceedings after last year's World Series, was not among the initial group of pioneer women reporters.

Phils' Magic Number Reduced To Just 3

United Press International

Montreal, Quebec, Sept. 27 (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies' magic number for clinching first place in the National League East — he's more concerned with the first division.

After his Expos blazed the first game, 3-2, but the second game defeat, coupled with Pittsburgh's triumph over Chicago, means Philadelphia cannot clinch its third straight division title at home. The Phils lead Pittsburgh by 3 1/2 games and their magic number for clinching the division is down to three, but they and the Expos with four games in Pittsburgh — where the Pirates have been invincible over the last quarter of the season.

"I'd rather those two settle this thing in Pittsburgh... let them fight it out," Williams added. "If we win tomorrow night and the Pirates win, it'll be 3 1/2 games. Who knows, maybe they (Pirates) will have to play that game in Cincinnati after all."

The Pirates have a makeup game to play, if necessary, against the Reds on Monday, Oct. 1.

Warren Cromarrie hit a home run off Tim Lincecum, making his first start in four years, while Rudy May pitched a four-hitter to lead the Expos to victory in the six-game series.

Greg Louganis drove in three runs with a single and the Phils moved to power the Phillies to an opening game triumph.

Wille Stargel moved into 10th place on the all-time major-league home-run list with his 427th career homer, a three-run shot, and rookie Don Robinson tossed a six-hitter to lead the Pirates over the Cubs.

Astris 2, Braves 0:
Joe Niekro combined with Ken Forsch on a seven-hitter to outlast his brother Phil and lift Houston to a shutout victory over Atlanta.

Mets 3, Cardinals 1:
Craig Swan allowed three hits over seven innings in lowering his earned run average to a long-leading 4.2 and picking New York to a win over St. Louis.

Reds 4, Dodgers 4:
Johnny Bench hit a two-run double and George Foster added a two-run homer in leading Cincinnati over Los Angeles.

Padres 4, Giants 1:
Clayford Perry, with relief help from Rollie Fingers in the final two innings, won his 21st game and Gene Richards hit a pair of triples to lead San Diego.

Mets In Trouble, Brother!

NEW YORK (UPI) — This job never signs his name, so I can't tell you what it is. All I know is that everytime I write anything about the Mets, good or bad, he gets himself all worked up and fires off a scurrilous letter accusing me of roasting for them.

Simply to set the record straight, the only team I ever rooted for was the St. Louis Browns — not so much for them to win as for them to just make it through the season because they were the kind of outfit that really had trouble year after year. And speaking of trouble brings me right back to the Mets again. Brother, do they have trouble.

For the second straight year, they're going to finish last, which is precisely where I picked them to end up six months ago. And, although Joe Torre, their manager, says he's looking hopefully to the future, he must be looking somewhat bleak.

The awful truth is that the Mets' farm system hasn't produced much at all; the team's bullpen is virtually empty; the "power hitters" the Mets traded for, Willie Mays, Ben hit only 17 home runs, partially because he didn't particularly "shoot for them, and there is no walk-down star on the club to lure the people into the ball park.

Most of the Mets' critics lay the bulk of the blame upon M. Donald Grant, the club's board chairman, because of his insistence that the club not enter the free-agent market the last two years. But even had the Mets done so, there is no great evidence they would've been much better off than they are right now.

Moreover, Grant was not alone in feeling they should not go out and spend millions on free agents. The Mets' board of directors all felt the same way.

Spending huge sums on free agents doesn't guarantee a winner, anyway. Ask Brad Corbett of the Rangers, Gene Adry of the Angels, Ray Kruc of the Padres or Ted Turner of the Braves. Similarly, staying out of the free-agent market, doesn't mean a club can't win, and the Dodgers and Royals are prime examples of that.

In that regard, a team like the Milwaukee Brewers are somewhere in the middle.

They didn't go after free agents the way the Yankees, Angels and Padres did, for example, but they did sign Larry Hale for close to $5 million, Sal Bando for around $1 million and Ray Yose for substantially less. Hale worked out spectacularly for them this year and Bando almost as well. But Yose never played a game this season after injuring his knee in spring training.

"It's strictly a gamble," Brewers' President Bud Selig says, "and for anyone to blame the Mets' present position on the fact they didn't go out and spend a whole lot of money on free agents is utterly ridiculous."

"We're a club that invested in free agents in three cases, and fortunately, it turned out well for us, but the results of all such investments are not in your hands. Some clubs that invested heavily in the free-agent market have little or nothing to show for it."

"Two things are clear. One is that you can't take continuous gambles in the free-agent market and still remain economically viable. The other thing that's clear is there's more need than ever now for a club to have a very aggressive player development program in its farm system. It has any hope of succeeding."

And that's where the Mets have been seriously lacking.

The conclusion is obvious enough.

What the Mets have to do now is go back and plant the seeds in their own farm system and then wait for them to flourish. That won't happen overnight.

Dickey Says Mistakes Key

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Florida Coach Don Dickey warned his football players Tuesday they cannot afford any mistakes this weekend in their home opener against the undefeated (3-0) Mississippi State Bulldogs.

"Mississippi State is playing extremely well right now," Dickey said. "Defensively, they are big and physical, while on offense they have very good balance between their running and passing game."

The Cats (8-1) worked for two hours Tuesday against Mississippi State defensive and offensive sets. Kickoff is scheduled for 7 p.m. Saturday at Florida Field.

The Kansas City Royals clinched the 1978 American League West Division title for the third straight year Tuesday night when Larry Gura stopped the Seattle Mariners, 4-1, on three hits for his 10th victory in 20 decisions.

Unfortunately, it's only a half pennant and the Royals have had trouble the last two years getting the other half. Both times, they have lost to the New York Yankees in five games. This year, however, the Royals are confident they will capture that elusive AL pennant.

Kansas City's opponent will be either New York or Boston and it doesn't really matter to the Royals.

Kansas City would seem to have an edge in the playoffs since the first two games are scheduled for their own park, which has artificial turf. The Royals have been overpowered in their stadium this season, posting a record of 44-52 for a .701 percentage.

McKay: It's Time For Reevaluation

TAMPA, (UPI) — Tampa Bay Buccaneers Coach John McKay says it's time for the end of the season, the sportswriters and sportscasters to start assessing his young club on how they feel about him.

"I have won four of our last six games," McKay said.

"If you ask the players and coaches of the teams we've played, they'll tell you we're a pretty good football team," he said.

McKay had been asked at his weekly post-game news conference how long he thought it would be before the Buccaneers and the country could be convinced they should take the Buccaneers seriously after their last Minnesota and Atlanta back-to-back.

McKay said the problem is that the Buccaneers are not getting due recognition because some people who do not really care have ill feelings toward him.

"I don't say this to complain, but just to answer your question," McKay said, "I'm not going to let anything continue to do it the way we have been doing it."

"They don't like John McKay because he was successful," he said. "I don't shake hands with them, I just play them. It's not so much feeling against the players as it is against me."

"They remember that I once said that when I retired I wanted to coach defense in the National Football League," he continued.

"Until Bud Wilkinson (St. Louis) came into the league I was the only one (among coaches) who had ever coached in the great old-fashioned college ball and see how they do."

Looking back at Sunday's game in which the Buccaneers built control in the final period and scored on a 15-yard pass from Doug Williams to Jim Clayton, McKay said he was glad to win the game against the Falcons.

"We did what we planned, but we dropped the ball," he said. "When you do that you lose the touchdown, you lose the completion, and more importantly, you lose the down."

"Let's face it, (Steve) Hasker does have the speed to get deep, but he couldn't hold onto the ball," McKay said. "We'll just have to go back to the well again next week."

THOMAS LOTT, WHO IS THE BEST WASHBURN QUARTERBACK EVER TO PLAY AT OKLAHOMA? ACCORDING TO HIS COACH, "HE'S ALSO ALL HIS EIGHT QUARTERBACKS IN '77."

LSU's Alexander Heisman Seeker

ATLANTA (UPI) — Louisiana State's unimpressive start — a seven-point win over Indiana and a two-point win over Wake Forest — has slowed Coach Alexander's bid for the Heisman Trophy, but the Bengals running star isn't far off his outstanding 1977 pace.

Alexander, who rushed for 1,888 yards (second only to Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell of Texas) and 17 touchdowns (making him the nation's third-leading scorer) last season, has rushed for 387 yards and four touchdowns so far this year.

In the process, the 216-pound senior win has been clocked at 4.3 seconds for the 40-yard dash and 9.4 for the 100, has set school records for touchdowns (30) and points scored (182) and has 972 yards in his nine remaining games to eclipse former Kentucky star Sonny Collins (3,853) as the career rushing champ of the Southeastern Conference.

Although held to 125 yards by Wake Forest, Alexander scored LSU's only two touchdowns on runs of 11 and 32 yards.

"We're going to get the ball to Alexander 25-30 times a game and, with his speed and his power, there's no way he's going to be stopped for an entire game," said LSU Coach Charles McClendon. "He's a threat to go all the way every time."

Although Alabama was steadily beaten at the line of scrimmage on both offense and defense by the bigger Southern Cal Trojans last Saturday, the Crimson Tide came up only two plays short in their 24-14 upset. The first of those plays was an official signaled that sophomore fullback Billy Jackson had scored, then changed his call, putting the ball at the Trojan one yard line. The Crimson Tide had two more downs but failed to crack the Southern Cal middle and turned the ball over at the Trojan one yard line.

The other play was Southern Cal's final touchdown, midway through the final period.

Alabama cornerback Don McNeil appeared to have an interception at the Tide 20 but couldn't hold on to the ball and Trojan flanker Kevin Williams, a 180-pound speedster, grabbed the ball after it bounced off McNeil's hands and completed a 60-yard pass.

Atlanta Falcons quarterback Steve Bartkowski has to wonder if one of these clouds over Tampa stadium Sunday was the one that seems to have been hanging over his head ever since he joined the pro ranks in 1975.

Something new appears to be heizing the former California All-America who had all the earmarks of becoming a great pro quarterback.

In each of his first three NFL seasons, Bartkowski was sidelined (three weeks in '75, nine weeks in '76, seven weeks in '77) by injury. This year, an apparently healthy Bartkowski didn't start until the fourth game of the season because of an intestinal problem.

He finally got his chance Sunday and his three interceptions and a fumbled snap on a crucial fourth-and-inches play helped the Tampa Bay Buccaneers beat the Falcons, 14-9.

"I just didn't play very well," said Bartkowski who desperately needed a good game to nail down the starting role he wanted so badly. "You try to come up with the big play, but it can't come, and it can't do something happen, and it cost you."

Falcons Coach Leeman Bennett hasn't indicated any change in his quarterback plans for next Sunday's game against the newly improved New York Giants (5-1), but veteran Scott Hunter, who hasn't played a game so far this season, has to be in the back of his mind.

Bostock Grant Set

NORTHBRIDGE, Calif. (UPI) — A baseball scholarship is being set up at Cal State-Northridge in the name of Lyman Bostock, California Angels' right fielder who was murdered at Gary, Ind., during the weekend, Northridge Coach Bob Hignert said Tuesday.

Bostock played for Hignert at Northridge in 1971 and 1972. Before his death Sunday, Bostock was going to get up a $1,000-a-year baseball scholarship at Northridge.
