Miss Florida Pitman In Her Shining Glory In Miss America Pageant

By DORIS DIETRICH
PEOPLE Editor

Miss Florida, Deanna Pitman, is in the height of her shining glory this week in Atlantic City. The bright lights and glamour of the famous eastern metropolis that's spinning with festivities when beauties are trumps and a few jokers are wild — is right up Deanna's alley.

The vivacious beauty queen who won the Miss Sanford 1982 Scholarship Pageant, the immediate forerunner of the Miss Florida Pageant, is writing a daily diary. That daily report is being published in an area newspaper and Deanna said she is being paid for it, but isn't certain of the amount. She said the Florida Pageant people have that information. The first day she wrote that she was frightened and homesick — pageant jitters.

But not today. "I don't want to come home," she said between rehearsals Thursday in the Atlantic City Convention Hall. And Miss Florida is deeply saddened that the pageant will soon be over.

"Sure I would do it over again," she said. "I just wish this was not my last chance," she remarked about the hectic week of frustration, competition, stress and smile, Deanna, smile.

She loves every second of it. "The press is wild over me," she extolled with exuberance. "They picked me as their favorite. The Atlantic City paper has run two full pages of me, and they have used a picture or a quote of me every day."

For the safety-conscious, don't fret. Deanna says each of the 50 contestants have at least four police officers escorting them whenever they leave the six hotels the Miss America contenders are calling home this week.

"There are guards everywhere," she said. Each contestant also has her own state chaperone in addition to two Miss America pageant chaperones. One of Deanna's chaperones is Lynn Catterson, state attorney for Atlantic County, N.J.

Deanna is safely sheltered in the luxurious Bally's Park Place Casino Hotel with the comforts of home right at the tips of her pink-enameled fingernails.

"My room is just beautiful," she beams, "contemporary furnishings decorated in orange, peach and mauve with two king-sized beds and a sitting room. Oh, it's the room Miss America of 1981 was supposed to stay in with a gold emblem on the door. It's my good luck. And the hotel sends flowers and a basket of fruit daily. Just great!"

But keeping in tune and in step with the rigid schedule pageant officials have established has not been all play. It's tiring.

Miss Florida admits she has lost sleep and is restless. She said she slept about six hours Wednesday night. But previously, four or five hours sleep nightly was all she could manage. "My mind is constantly going, but my body feels dead," the beauty queen mumbled.

Thrilled over what she terms as a favorable interview with the judges Wednesday, Miss Florida recalls that she was questioned on Temik, the Haitians in South Florida and legalized gambling in Florida.

"Another question they asked me was: 'How would you handle a difficult situation?'" she said.

Well, how would she? "Like I always have, with a smile and a sense of humor," she said confidentially.

Deanna said she was excited over the evening gown competition Thursday and the talent contest tonight. Talent is the big winner across the board — 50 percent of the rating.

The winner of the evening gown competitions are not announced, so no one knows how well Miss Pitman did last night. A Miss America Pageant official said the winners of the three evening gown competition preliminaries are not revealed "to add a little mystery to the pageant."

Winners announced from Thursday night competition were Miss North Carolina Elizabeth Gray Williams, swimsuit competition winner, and Miss Mississippi Dianne Evans, talent preliminary winner.

Miss Florida's positive attitude is still shining through — just like the bright lights — the glitter — the glamour.

Sure, she's going to wear the Miss America crown. If you don't believe it, ask her.

Or watch for yourself Saturday night on Orlando's Channel 2. Her dance routine Friday night will be to the song, "I Hope I Get It."

"I am finally getting to do the big show," she bubbled. "It's what I've been waiting for, waiting to be in for years."

Deanna, a college business administration major, commented, "When things wind down at night, I think about how do I face the people who helped me if I don't win or at least place in the top 10? I don't know. All I know is I want to show that Florida has it together. I'm ready."

Chamber Panel: Zoo Should Stay

The Bankers Committee of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce endorsed the retention of the Central Florida Zoo in Sanford.

"The zoo should stay where it is," said Howard Hodges, chairman of the Bankers Committee and president of the Atlantic National Bank of Seminole after a committee meeting Thursday.

The committee unanimously supported the present location of the zoo, south of U.S. 17-92. The committee's adopted resolution was supported by members of the Chamber's Board of Directors.

Hodges said he can see no reason to move the zoo to Orange County "to aid Orlando's financially ailing Turkey Lake Park. The zoo has been in Sanford for over 50 years and is somewhat a beloved landmark in this area," he said.

The committee's resolution requests city and county officials in Seminole County to provide leadership and support to retain the zoo at its present site.

Representatives of the chamber also will ask to be included on future agenda of these elected bodies to discuss the issue.

Members of the committee, in addition to Hodges, are: Gib Edmonds, the chamber's board chairman and president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Seminole; Walter A. Gielow, retired publisher of the Evening Herald; Wayne Doyle, publisher of the Evening Herald; Mack N. Cleveland Jr., former state senator and Sanford attorney; Jack Horner, chamber president; Jerry Poppel of the Tropic Bank in Sanford; John Mercer, vice president and manager of the Sanford office of Southeast Bank; Wayne Keeling of Flagship Bank and Joseph Justice, manager of the new ComBank in Sanford. — DONNA ESTES.

3 Testify They Burned Jones' House

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

The arson trial of ex-Sanford police officer Walter Lee Jones continues today following Thursday's testimonies by three people who said they set fire to Jones' Goldsboro home at Jones' request and for payment from an insurance policy he was to collect from the fire.

In the opening day of the trial against Jones, a 13-year police force veteran who was fired in February, Sharon Meeker, Jones' girlfriend, testified Jones offered her $2,000 if she would torch his 1839 Jerry Ave. home on Dec. 30, 1980.

Ms. Meeker said she agreed to burn the home so Jones could collect money on an insurance policy which he needed to pay off gambling debts and other bills. She added she committed the crime out of love for Jones.

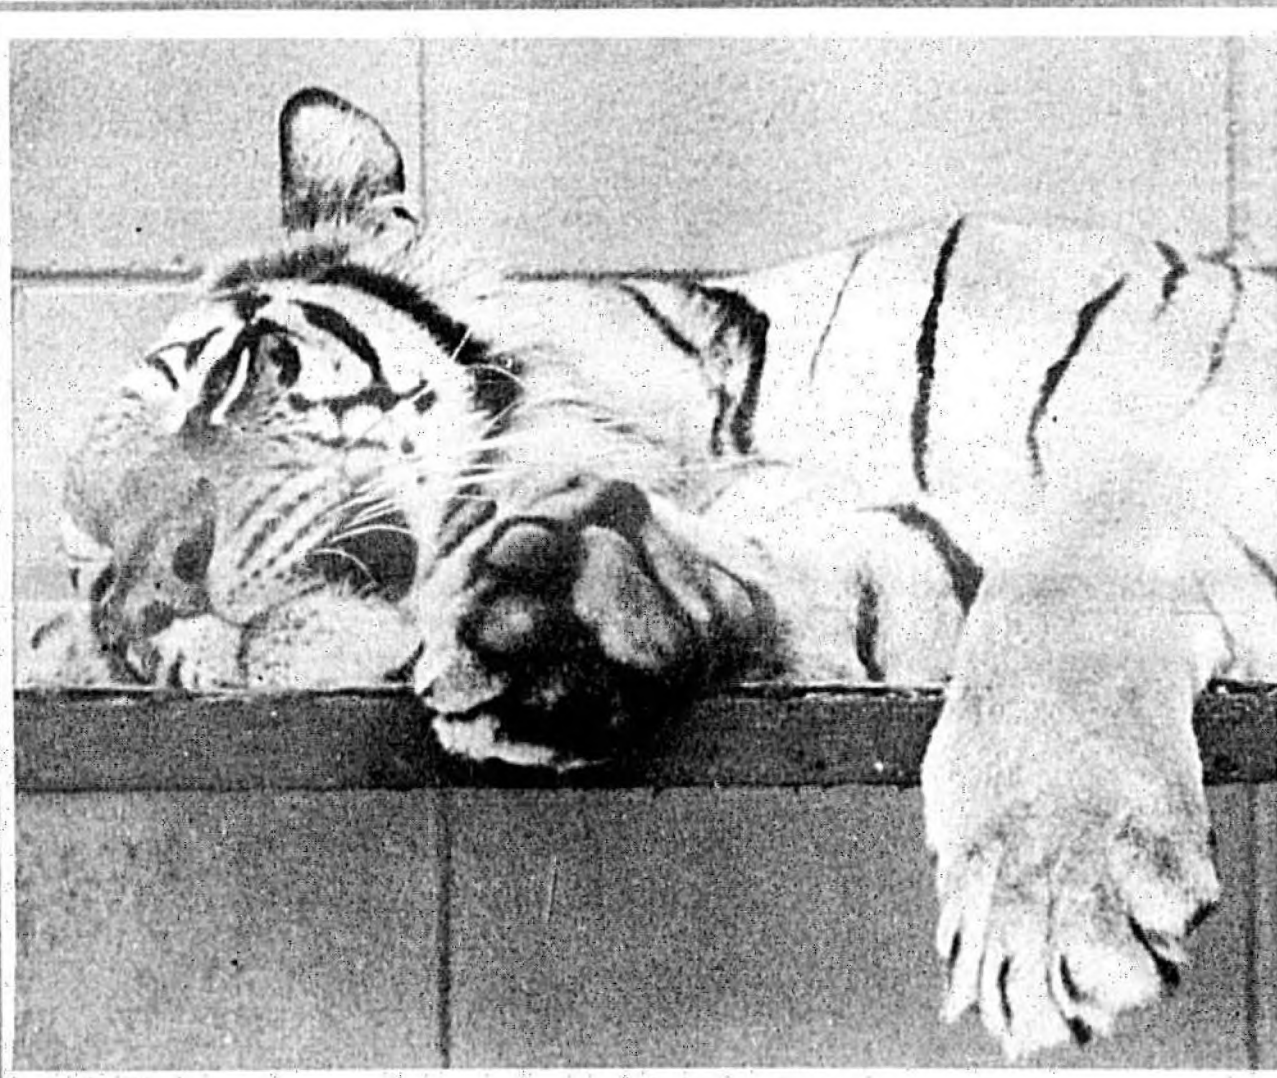

Jones, who also is slated for trial in Orange County next week on insurance fraud charges, is accused of solicitation to commit arson, second-degree arson and burning to defraud an insurance company. Jones received between $30,000 and $40,000 in insurance settlements, prosecutors said.

Ms. Meeker, who pleaded guilty to her participation in the arson and is serving a 10-year probation sentence, said she solicited the help of her former roommate, Patricia Williams, and Ms. Williams' ex-husband, Jimmy, to burn the home.

Ms. Williams is currently serving a 10-year probation sentence while Williams is serving one year in the county jail for their participation in the arson. Both testified in the trial Thursday, saying they agreed to burn the home in exchange for payment from Jones, which they said they have never received. Williams also said he agreed to commit the crime in an effort to win back the love of his ex-wife.

"Today I plan to call Sharon Meeker back to the witness stand to answer a few more questions concerning the arson,

The Zoo University To Proceed With Study

A decision on whether the Central Florida Zoo at Sanford will move to Orlando's Turkey Lake Park is drawing near.

Orlando's share of the funding for a feasibility study on such a move got the Orlando Budget Review Committee's stamp of approval this week. A letter notifying a University of Central Florida department to proceed with the study went into the mail Thursday to Dan Gunn, director of Orlando's Bureau of Parks and Facilities.

Some $2,500, the zoo's share of the $5,000 cost of the study, is in hand from the Dr. P. Phillips Foundation, said Al Rozon, executive director of the zoo.

Additional approval was not necessary from the Orlando City Council because it had earlier voted yes when it routinely approved minutes of a parks and recreation board seeking money for the study.

Dr. Duane Davis, who heads UCF's Dick Pope Sr. Institute of Tourism Studies, has said the study will take three-to-four months.

The $5,000, Davis said, would pay the expenses of the study. The zoo and Orlando are splitting the costs evenly.

Dr. Davis' research will look at the problem of: Will the relocation of the Central Florida Zoo from Sanford to Turkey Lake Park be mutually beneficial for both the zoo and Orlando?

In his proposal to the zoo and Orlando's Bureau of Parks and Facilities, Davis said a number of conditions promoted the discussion. "First, attendance at Turkey Lake Park has dropped substantially, causing a serious shortfall in revenue needed to maintain the park. Second, the future potential of the current zoo site is limited."

The proposed research, Davis says, would investigate and make specific recommendations on the desirability of moving the zoo to Orlando.

Meanwhile, Rozon has said the zoo is not interested in relocating to Orlando or another site "at our expense."

"But if the city of Orlando or Orange County or Central Florida businessmen will come up with $20 million to $30 million over the next five years, it could happen," Rozon said.

Todd Persons, administrative aide to Orlando's Mayor Bill Frederick has said that at this point Orlando is not prepared to commit large sums of money for construction or maintenance of a zoo.

Decisions are hinging on the results of the feasibility study. — DONNA ESTES.

Girl Beaten With Hammer Dies

An autopsy of a 14-year-old Longwood girl who died Thursday at Orlando Regional Medical Center just two days after she was found brutally beaten with a hammer is slated to be performed today.

Seminole County Medical Examiner Dr. G. V. Garay is expected to conduct the autopsy on Katherine Suzanne Greco of 1685 Glenethel Court in Longwood at 10 a.m. at the Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies discovered the injured girl at about 7 p.m. Tuesday after the teen's brother, Richard David, 16, notified their father, Richard J., 37, at work and told him Katherine had been beaten in the head numerous times with a hammer.

Greco called deputies, asking them to check on his daughter's well-being while also calling a neighbor, Michael Young, and asking him to go to the home, deputies said.

When deputies arrived at the home, they discovered the young boy lying on the front porch, apparently in shock, saying only, "My sister, my sister," deputies said. Deputies entered the home and were met by Young who directed them to the girl, deputies said.

The girl was taken to Florida Hospital-Orlando and later transferred to Orlando Regional Medical Center where doctors operated on her, deputies said. Doctors said the girl had been struck at least 14 or 15 times in the head with a hammer.

The operation came after a three-hour delay when family members would not allow blood transfusions during surgery because of their religious convictions as Jehovah's Witnesses, deputies said. However, the surgery was conducted after an Orange County judge issued a court order allowing the doctor to take whatever measures necessary to save the girl's life, deputies said.

Deputies are still investigating the beating and added that it does not appear the attack was the result of an attempted burglary at the home because nothing appears to have been stolen.

Double Tax Peace Sought By Officials

DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Officials of six Seminole County cities and County Administrator Roger Neiswender began talks Thursday designed to bring peace by settling the many years' war over double taxation locally.

At the conclusion of more than two hours of intensive discussion when city representatives and Neiswender jockeyed for position, final agreement was reached on a number of issues to allow the talks to continue in earnest, searching for agreement.

Agreement was reached to:

— Stop the clock on the 90 days the county has to respond to a resolution from the city of Altamonte Springs accusing the county of doubly taxing city residents for services they do not receive, choose not to receive or receive in a lesser measure than unincorporated area residents. The county had only 12 days left to respond to that resolution.

— Instruct Dick Kelton and Associates of DeLand to reveal to Neiswender within the next week how it defined "real and substantial benefits" in its study of double taxation, commissioned by the county's seven cities. State law requires that city residents receive "real and substantial" benefits from the county taxes they pay.

— Hammer out an agreement on the least controversial items of double taxation cited by the Kelton report leaving the public works department operations and the Sheriff's Department until last.

— Set the goal of completing all discussion on the administrative level prior to Neiswender's leaving county government for a job in private industry in mid-December.

— Set additional negotiating meetings for the next two Wednesdays (Sept. 15 and 22) beginning at 1:30 p.m. each day at Sanford City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles' conference room at Sanford City Hall.

As part of these agreements, the cities reserved the right to stop all discussion at any point where it was felt a deadlock had been reached. If that happens, the city governing bodies are to be notified that court action is the only recourse left to solve the problem.

Knowles, with backup from Altamonte Springs City Manager Jeff Etchberger noted if the cities went to court without determining whether room for compromise exists, the court would likely cite their failure to exhaust all the available remedies.

While Casselberry Mayor Owen Sheppard and Oviedo Mayor Robert Whittier stated their concerns about whether the cities can legally "stop the clock" on the 90 days the county had to respond, Knowles and Etchberger quieted their fears.

Etchberger particularly stated hard facts to his colleagues. He said a delay at this point is not of major importance. The manager said it is already too late for the issue to be resolved in the county's 1982-83 fiscal year budget, scheduled for adoption before the end of the month.

He said if it is found that the cities did not have authority to stop the clock, the available remedy would be to adopt new resolutions and start the clock rolling again.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Murder Suspects Returned; Will Face Alachua Jury

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Three youths described as polite, boyish-looking male prostitutes face an Alachua County grand jury on charges of sadistically murdering the University of Florida's "junk food professor."

The three were arrested over a 24-hour period in New York Monday and Tuesday and flown back to Gainesville by three detectives Thursday night.

Detective Dennis Stinson said they would be taken before a grand jury on charges they murdered Howard Appledorf, 41, who was dubbed the "junk food professor" for championing fare served at fast food franchises.

Appledorf's bound and gagged body was found Sunday in his Gainesville apartment, where the word "murder" spelled forward and backward had been scrawled on the wall with food.

Battling The Bid Riggers

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Attorney General Jim Smith, calling bid rigging in Florida an epidemic, has filed a series of anti-trust suits against more than a dozen construction companies and their officials in the Tampa and West Palm Beach areas.

Smith, who would not reveal the specific details of the cases, said the value of the contracts involved in the suits is about $330 million. It is uncertain how much the state will be able to recover, he said, but it should be in the "multi-million-dollar range."

His office is reviewing Department of Transportation highway construction contracts of more than $3.5 billion over the past seven years for more evidence of bid-rigging.

Drinking Age May Rise

ORLANDO (UPI) — Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter says a higher drinking age is necessary because so many young people are involved in alcohol-triggered traffic accidents.

Gunter said Thursday he will ask the Legislature during the 1983 session beginning next spring to raise the drinking age from 19 to 21.

Young people between 16 and 24 accounted for 35 percent of last year's 25,000 drinking-related motor vehicle accidents in the United States.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Arab Leaders Reach Mideast Peace Plan

FEZ, Morocco (UPI) — Putting aside their differences, Arab kings and presidents issued an eight-point Middle East peace plan calling for creation of a Palestinian state and Israeli withdrawal from the occupied West Bank and Gaza.

After four days of deliberations, the 12th Arab League summit ended late Thursday compromising on a Saudi Arabian plan modified to give the Soviet Union a role in future peace moves.

The plan specifically mentioned a Palestinian state but did not mention Israel, although it appeared to implicitly recognize the Jewish state's right to exist.

President Reagan's recent Middle East initiative, which called for Palestinian autonomy in the Israeli-occupied Arab territories in conjunction with Jordan, was not mentioned.

U.S. Marines Leave Beirut

United Press International

Eight-hundred U.S. Marines finished their peace-keeping mission and withdrew from battle-scarred Beirut today but tension persisted in eastern Lebanon with the second Israeli air attack on Syrian missile batteries in as many days.

The Leathernecks marched two abreast up the gangplank of the USS Manitoiwoc and beneath the U.S. and Lebanese flags and a banner reading "Mission accomplished — farewell."

Hours later, fighting broke out between Lebanese army regulars and leftover Palestinian guerrillas in Beirut, and Israeli warplanes attacked Syrian anti-aircraft batteries in Lebanon's eastern Bekaa Valley.

Food, Fuel Prices Climb Slightly

Wholesale Prices Inch Up In August

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale price inflation grew at a moderate 7.5 percent annual rate in August, restrained by a slowdown in gasoline price hikes and food prices, the Labor Department said today.

The Producer Price Index for August moved up 0.6 percent. Spreading the figure over 12 months revealed a slight increase over July's annual rate of 7.1 percent, owing to adjustments for seasonal variations.

The two major influences, food and fuel, moved in opposite directions from July to August, canceling out the changes.

Modest gasoline price increases reflected a substantial slowdown, as the continued surplus of oil in world markets once again worked its way back to dealers. Gasoline prices were up only 1.3 percent in the August report, compared to 7.9 percent in July.

But food prices, which had gone down 1.5 percent in July, the most in more than six years, climbed again in August but only slightly, showing a 0.1 percent gain, the department said.

The August Producer Price Index for finished goods was 282.4, equivalent to a price of $282.40 for the government's sample "market basket" of wholesale goods and services that cost $100 in 1967.

Through August of this year, wholesale prices have climbed only 3.7 percent, compared to 9.2 percent for all of last year. Many leading private analysts predict the year will end with a rate of between 4 percent to 5.5 percent, which would be the lowest annual rate since 1976.

Within the index were signs that demand has not firmed up as could be expected during an economic recovery. Sensitive raw materials prices, the first to reflect changes in basic trends, declined 0.6 percent in August, the third consecutive month of declines in that category, the department said.

All figures were adjusted to compensate for routine seasonal price variations.

Small Businessmen Say Reaganomics Not Working

MIAMI (UPI)—A majority of small business executives surveyed in south Florida say they don't think President Reagan's economics are working for them, but they expect the recession to be over in a year.

Out of 116 replies, 77 percent of south Florida's small businessmen—those with annual sales of $30 million or less—said they expect the recession to last no more than 12 months.

But a majority also said they expect their earnings to be off and plan no capital expenditures over the next two years and plan to reduce their work forces.

In reply to the question: "Is the President's economic program working for you," only 42 percent of the south Florida small business executives answered "yes."

The affirmative responses from Texas, Southern California and Oklahoma responses ranged from 55 to 59 percent. In Boston, it was only 19 percent.

FAIRWAY, Kan. (UPI) — Garry Trudeau is suspending his Pulitzer Prize-winning "Doonesbury" comic strip to rest and provide unreconstructed hippie Zonker Harris and the other residents of Walden Puddle Commune the chance to evolve into the "world of grown-up concerns."

Trudeau, who combines editorial-page gravity with funny-paper levity in "Doonesbury," has announced an unprecedented hiatus from cartooning — perhaps for as long as 20 months.

Universal Press Syndicate President John P. McMeel said "Doonesbury" would be suspended in more than 700 newspapers, including the Evening Herald, beginning Jan. 2, 1983. The specific length of Trudeau's leave was not announced but he told the syndicate he would likely resume the feature by the fall of 1984.

"This is simply a lull in the action," he said in a prepared statement. "It is not repeat not, a mid-life crisis. "I need a breather," said Trudeau, 34, a New York City resident and husband of NBC's "Today Show" host Jane Pauley. "Investigative cartooning is a young man's game. Since the industry frowns on vacations, I'll be claiming a medical leave."

Trudeau, who refuses to grant interviews, said he considered the time off as a reprieve from the pressure of writing a daily topical comic strip. He often works only two weeks ahead of deadline.

A news conference "to amplify" Trudeau's decision was scheduled for today at the syndicate's offices.

Trudeau said it was time to reappraise his characters and review development of the strip, which he started while attending Yale. It went into syndication in 1970.

"There are a few problems that need to be ironed out," he said. "For almost 15 years, the main characters have been trapped in a time warp and so find themselves carrying the colors and scars of two separate generations. It was unfair to stretch their formative years to embrace both Vietnam and preppy."

"My characters are understandably confused and out of sorts. It's time to give them some $20 haircuts, graduate them and move them out into the larger world of grown-up concerns."

"The trip from draft beer and mixers to cocaine and herpes is a long one and it's time they got a start on it."

...Not A Lender Be

Neither a borrower nor a lender be, Polonius advised his son. The world runs on credit, nonetheless. It is left to bankers to exercise prudence in their lending, and to urge the same prudence on borrowers, to prove that the high-principled Polonius was wrong.

But the gathering problems for the international banking community suggest there has been something less than prudent by both lenders and borrowers in the flow of credit from the United States, Western Europe and Japan into the Third World and the communist bloc.

The bad news from Mexico has been especially bad for U.S. banks. By one calculation, our nine biggest banks have the equivalent of 40 percent of their capital and reserves tied up in the faltering Mexican economy. Falling oil revenues and fiscal mismanagement have left Mexico scrambling to cover payments due on an $80 billion foreign debt.

Mexico's predicament is not unique. Disappointing oil exports also have made Nigeria a basket case. Sudan and Zaire are rescheduling debts because of a slump in export revenue. The list of problem-clients for international bankers in this hemisphere includes not only Mexico but Costa Rica, Jamaica, Nicaragua and Bolivia. Even Argentina, otherwise doing well in managing its credits, may be unable to cover current debts because of its costly Falklands war.

Poland is not the only communist country unable to cover its debts to Western banks. Hungary and Romania also are in trouble. Some bankers are even worried about the relatively productive East German economy.

The total in outstanding international bank loans stood at $70 billion only a decade ago. Today it is estimated at $300 billion, and the signals from abroad indicate rough weather ahead if there are further defaults. These problems add to the strain on the U.S. banking system produced by the high rate of mortgage foreclosures and bankruptcies in our own economy.

The U.S. government has aided and abetted the extension of credit to foreign countries with loan guarantees and other programs that had the best intentions. We are a trading nation. Loans which help other countries develop their economic potential serve our mutual interest. A rising tide lifts all boats.

But we are seeing what happens to over-ambitious borrowers and lenders when the tide turns. International banks have been pouring loans into foreign countries with doubtful records of fiscal responsibility or with socialist systems known to be inefficient and unproductive. Both borrowers and lenders are victims of their own optimism in projections of economic growth.

Bankers dealing with less developed countries now must do what they have been reluctant to do in the past — be hard-bitten in responding to requests for new loans or rescheduling of old ones. The borrowers must accept what they have been reluctant to accept — fiscal discipline and lower expectations on the hard road out of debt. Polonius would have warned them that this might happen.

Mideast Realism

President Reagan took a strong new initiative on the Middle East when he recently delivered a television talk to the nation and a letter outlining peace plans to the Israeli government.

It was expected that the Israelis would reject the initiative, but that is simply the first reaction of the government in Jerusalem. Many in Israel will welcome the president's new leadership.

Mr. Reagan, with the help of his new secretary of state, George Shultz, and secretary of defense, Caspar Weinberger, must continue to press for a just and lasting peace along the lines suggested in the president's talk.

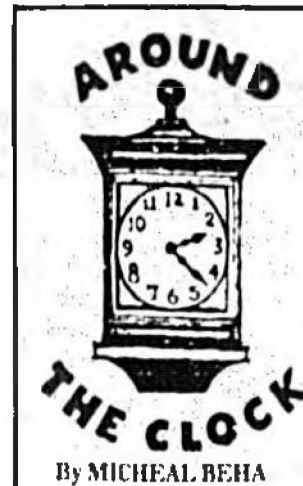

For the first time, it appears that the Reagan administration is interested in developing a Mideast policy of its own, based on realities in the region, on this nation's historic dedication to the principles of self-determination and justice for all peoples, and on our own strategic interests in the region.

That's good. We have a heavy responsibility for finding a peaceful solution for the problems of the Middle East. We helped create them.

BERRY'S WORLD

"For heaven's sake, David, don't we have enough of a credibility problem?"

With the annual budget hearings come the inevitable rash of people to complain about their taxes. This year was no different from other years, the people did show up to complain.

But the cause of the complaints was a little different. This year most of the problems stemmed from a misunderstanding by some people about tax rates and tax bills.

For example, one man complained to county commissioners this week that while they were saying his tax rate went down his taxes actually went up.

The commissioners agreed that his taxes may have gone up, but explained that the reason was a third factor, the countywide reassessment of property values.

What happened, in effect, was this, the recent state sales tax increase and its accompanying regulations resulted in the county lowering its tax rate. That means you pay less per dollar of the assessed value of your house.

But, the reassessment of property increased the assessed value of your house.

So, you're paying a lesser tax rate, but on property that is assessed higher than previously.

Seminole County School Board member Pat Telson is concerned that installing digital clocks in schools may make students forget the meaning of the terms clockwise and counter clockwise.

It seems there are provisions in the plans for the county's new Tuskawilla elementary school to allow for digital clocks to be installed.

Mrs. Telson said that might not be a good idea because students wouldn't be able to learn the two directions.

But Hugh Carlton, director of auxiliary services for the school district, doesn't think it will matter much.

"My wife is over 40 and she still doesn't know the difference."

Alphabet Leads To Computer

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Although the home computer is used now mainly for videogames, these are laying the groundwork for more serious uses in the long run, says Fernando Herrera.

Herrera is the young Colombian-born computer expert who won Atari's $25,000 grand prize for inventing the videogame, "My First Alphabet."

He invented the game to test the vision of his son Steve, who was born with cataracts. Although doctors believed the two-year-old was blind, Herrera proved them wrong when he responded well to the program Herrera had designed for him on his newly-purchased Atari computer; initially a display of the letter "E" in various sizes.

Not only could Steve see even the smaller letters, but Herrera noted he would play happily for hours with the computer-generated letters. Herrera added a picture of an elephant to go with the E and then more letters and pictures. Thus developed the unique award-winning teaching program.

Herrera has other startling proof in his own family of the educational effectiveness of the home computer. His 12-year-old daughter, Vivian, showed little interest in the computer or in the games played on it, but did well at them when she could be induced to try.

When Herrera was pressed for time on a professional programming assignment, he jokingly told Vivian she could try her hand at it and could have the fee if she could do it.

"To my amazement she completed the job satisfactorily in only three weeks, earning $600," Herrera told United Press International.

That was an eye-opener. It showed Herrera youngsters can learn programming a lot faster than adults and that working or playing at games with the home computer teaches them to think in an orderly, step-by-step manner.

It reinforced his conviction that ultimately practically every home in America will have its computer — and it will be used for a lot more than the games Herrera makes his living from.

"After all, a videogame is short-lived and the whole fad could slowly lose its hold on people," he said. "Good educational and other practical programs sold on cassettes or floppy disks, perhaps with an accompanying book, can last for many years."

Herrera, although involved with computers only a few years, has built his interest and skill to the point where he has launched his own company, First Star Software, with partners Bill Blake and Richard M. Spitalny, independent filmmakers. Herrera will be originating and designing programs with entertainment and small business applications, including movie and TV tie-in videogames.

Herrera, now a New Yorker, until this spring managed a computer hardware store, and served as a programming consultant to a number of firms. He came to computer programming by an interesting route.

He received his architectural degree in 1967 from the National University of Columbia and was a self-employed architect for three years before moving to the United States. More recently, he worked as an industrial engineer for Williamsburg Steel Products — and spent all his free hours pursuing an avid interest in chess, and winning several U.S. Chess federation trophies.

Then, just a few years ago, Herrera said, he became filled with "amazement and curiosity" when he first saw an ad for home computers.

Salesmen Boost Pacemaker Costs

WASHINGTON — The half million Americans who wear pacemakers may be paying too much for their lifesaving devices, thanks to a team effort by friendly salesmen and compliant doctors.

Investigators for the Senate Select Committee on Aging, chaired by John Heinz, R-Pa., have concluded that the marketing system for the tiny battery-operated heart regulators is riddled with abuse. The reason Uncle Sam is involved is that 90 percent of the $2 billion annual bill for pacemakers is paid by the government through Medicare.

Selling pacemakers is a lucrative business. Consider this finding contained in an upcoming report from the Senate committee, reviewed by my associate Tony Capaccio.

"There are about 400 pacemaker salesmen in the country. Their minimum salary is $50,000 plus a hefty commission. Average salesmen earn several hundred thousand

WILLIAM A. RUSHER

Labor Of The Pipeline

NEW YORK (NEA) — There are a lot of things to be said about this country's current dispute with its European allies over their use of American technology to build the Soviet gas pipeline, the first of which is that the United States doesn't come to the argument with entirely clean hands.

We are selling millions of bushels of grain to the Soviet Union every year, and making a very tidy profit on the deal. So it is perfectly understandable, in human terms, why the major nations of Western Europe should think there is something just a little hypocritical in our current outrage over their contract to build a gas pipeline for the Soviet Union and take payment in the form of future deliveries of natural gas.

Still, President Reagan is quite right to point out that we are demanding cash on the barrelhead for our grain, while France, Germany, et al. are giving Russia generous credits with which to buy its pipeline.

Moreover, though even our grain undeniably strengthens the Soviet economy, selling the world's premier dictatorship food isn't in quite the same moral class as beefing up its industrial infrastructure the way the pipeline, with all its attendant network of roads, settlements, airfields, etc. will do.

But there is yet another factor to be taken into consideration in connection with the pipeline, and it weighs most heavily of all against our European friends: Human hands are going to have to build this pipeline. Whose will they be?

The Soviet Union's apologists are fond of pointing out that there is no unemployment in the Workers' Paradise, and indeed there isn't. Unemployment is a crime, called "parasitism," and anybody convicted of it is subject to a prison sentence. He thereupon becomes a member of the vast population of prison labor upon which the Soviet economy has depended from the very start.

Slave labor is an ancient technique, and America will never quite eradicate the stain of its own early involvement with this brutally simple means of keeping labor costs low. But the Soviet Union is the only important nation on earth (with the possible exception of Red China) that in the fourth quarter of the 20th century still depends upon the forced labor of prisoners, political and otherwise, to underpin a substantial part of its economy.

It took Alexander Solzhenitsyn's "The Gulag Archipelago" to shake most Westerners into an awareness of the vast extent of the Soviet prison system. But the same author's "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich" had earlier described in vivid detail from personal experience, how that system works. Listen to Solzhenitsyn's account of the start of a typical workday:

"The sun came up, red and hazy, over the empty compound... Gang 104 went to the repair shops, where they'd put window panes in last autumn, and Gang 38 was making concrete blocks. Some of those blocks were lying around in their molds, others were standing upright, and there was steel mesh-work for reinforcing the concrete. There was a high roof and an earthen floor, and it never really got warm here. But it was heated and they weren't stingy with the coal — not so people could get warm, but so the blocks would set better."

"Now then!" Tyrin looked around. "Are you all here, 104?" And not checking or counting — because nobody could have gone anywhere — he started giving them their working orders in a hurry. He sent the two Estonians and Klevshim and Gopchik to get the big cement-mixer from nearby and take it to the power plant... He sent two others to the tool shop... where Pavlo was getting the tools. He told four others to clear the snow from around the plant, by the entrance to the generator room, and inside it, and from the ladders. He told another two to get the coal stove going there and to pinch some boards and chop them up. One man was to take cement there on a small sledge. Two were to carry water, two had to bring sand, and another had to clear the snow off the sand and break it up with a crowbar."

That is the way the Soviet pipeline is going to be laid, inch by painful inch.

I have great respect for British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, but I cannot help feeling that the deal she is closing with the masters of the Kremlin, and which will be consummated with the forced labor of many thousands of gangs like 104, ill accords with her neatly-coiffed image — let alone with the socialist compassion of Francois Mitterand, or the finely-honed Social Democratic sensibility of Helmut Schmidt.

DON GRAFF

What's In A Name?

A recent letter to the editor of the Washington Post makes an interesting comment on the projected radio campaign against Cuba.

The subject is Jose Marti and the writer, David Wald of Santa Clara, Calif., makes the point that the Cuban poet-patriot was not an admirer of the United States, where he lived in exile for 15 years while carrying on his campaign against Spanish rule of his country. On the contrary, he saw the United States as an imperialist threat to Latin America.

Considering the terms in which he depicted his hosts in some of his writings — "crude, uneven and decadent" and given to violence, discord and immorality — Wald concludes that Marti is a dubious choice of a namesake for a station to beam the American message to Cuba.

As things have been developing, the matter of a name is likely to be the least of the problems connected with Radio Marti. Cuba threatens to counterattack with transmitters 10 times as powerful as any in the United States and with the capability of interfering with hundreds of American FM stations in 32 states.

The threat has only served to escalate the airwaves battle. Even the New York Times, which otherwise suggests editorially that the plug ought to be pulled on the project, finds at least an argument for the station in American refusal to yield to Cuban bluster on the issue.

Numerous positive arguments have been advanced. Heard most often is that freedom needs a voice on this front in the worldwide confrontation with communism similar to that long provided by Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty in the European theater.

Possibly, but there are some significant differences in circumstances. Both Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty originated as covert CIA operations. They pretended to be something — free agents with no obligations other than to the cause of truth — they were not, which in the rough-stuff context of the Cold War at that time may have been justified.

That time was very different in many other ways. Telecommunications were less advanced — domestic programming did not spill so easily and so pervasively across borders. There was little people-to-people communication across East-West borders. The Soviets had sealed themselves off from the world and sought, somewhat less effectively, to do the same to their European satellites.

Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty continue to operate today, on a greatly scaled-down basis, primarily because they already exist. It is questionable that if they did not, their establishment would be undertaken. It would make more sense to step up the pressure through the existing facilities of the Voice of America than to set up specialized but essentially redundant new entities.

This is, of course, one of the arguments against Radio Marti. Not only does the Voice broadcast to Cuba but many commercial American stations can be received, including programming in Spanish from Miami. It is being argued that these voices are the most effective way of getting the American message across.

Further, Cuba is not sealed. There is still plenty of people-to-people contact despite recent administration efforts to restrict it.

Back to Jose Marti, some quick research of the Britannica variety suggests that he was much more than a Cuban nationalist. He considered himself first of all a citizen of the Americas and his anti-Americanism.

Gardening

It's Now Time To Plant Winter Flowering Annuals

It's time to get out of the summer doldrums and start thinking about gardening. Get set to go. It's about time to plant winter flowering annuals.

Many of the annual flowers that thrive in northern gardens can be successfully grown in Florida, however, the season at which they are grown is quite different. Most annuals are classified into two groups — cool season annuals and warm season annuals.

Florida's cool season is from October to April thus we grow many annuals during the winter which would normally be planted in the spring in northern states. As long as the proper planting time is considered, home gardeners can produce many colorful annuals all winter.

Remember, however, the cool season annuals you plant in the fall must be able to endure frost if they are planted outdoors.

Annuals which can be planted in September to October include sweet alyssum, browallia, calendula, candytuft, gaillardia, gypsophila, nasturtium, pansy, petunia, phlox, sweet-pea, verbena and viola.

Annuals have numerous uses in the garden. They are probably best displayed in front of shrubby borders. By choosing annuals of different heights, deep flower borders can be produced. Plant the taller species at the rear and progressively shorter varieties in front. Use colors which blend well and avoid too many varieties having different colors.

Beds should be large enough so that flowers can be cut and used to provide winter color. Many low growing annuals make effective edgings for walks and drives and don't forget to use annuals for window boxes and porch gardening.

Annuals can be planted as seeds or obtained as bedding plants which can be transplanted into the garden. Bedding plants are usually available at reasonable prices and offer flowers quicker than growing your own plants from seed.

When buying seeds you get what you pay for. Seeds of named varieties of a spotted color are more expensive than color mixtures. The latter should not be expected to produce flowers of as high quality as the more expensive seeds. If possible, plant seeds after the rainy season or small seeds may be washed away. The other alternative is to start plants in flats so they can be moved to shelter during rain storms. Some annuals such as nasturtium and sweet peas should be planted directly where they are to grow because they are difficult to transplant successfully.

Keep a careful watch on young annuals. Their roots are shallow so watering is necessary until they are well established. Pests must also be kept under control.

To produce compact, bushy plants, pinch off the top pair of leaves after seedlings have at least three pairs of leaves. This will produce lateral branches and better quality plants.

Most seed packages contain directions for planting and care of annuals but experience is the best teacher. The gardener who learns how to successfully grow annuals will produce magnificent color in his winter garden. So color it with Florida flowers.

All Extension Programs are open to anyone regardless of race, color, sex or national origin.

Organizations Ready For Fall

September is the month when all of Geneva's civic organizations revamp after a summer vacation.

The active Geneva Citizens Association will hold its first meeting of the new year Monday at 8 p.m. in the community hall. According to secretary Loraine Whiting a representative of the Seminole County Tax office will be on hand to discuss the new tax bills.

Another important topic at Monday's meeting will be the Florida Power & Light "power tower issue." Plans are being formulated at this time to take a bus of Geneva's citizens to the state's capitol within the next three weeks for the express purpose of letting the governor's cabinet know the strong opposition to the tower. This will be the last chance for voicing of opinions over this matter.

Hank and Jean Heath had an enjoyable trip to Palm Bay this week where they visited with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Spencer.

A baby shower was given for Jean's granddaughter, Mrs. Michael Stephens (Angela) at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Huggins by co-hostesses Barbara Horne and Lucille Kahn.

This was a grand "celebration" according to Jean Heath who also said, "This baby will be our first great-grandchild!" Angela received many lovely gifts for baby-to-be.

the Chuluota First Assembly of God will be leaving the church site on Highway 419 in Chuluota Monday, Sept. 13 at 6:30 p.m. to attend the quarterly Section V W. M.'s Rally at Calvary Assembly in Winter Park.

President Lilly Simpkins extends an invitation to all ladies of the community to join in this activity. For further information, you may call her at 365-7192.

The Local School Advisory Committee will hold its first meeting at Geneva Elementary School Tuesday, at 7 p.m. in the media center. A chairman and officers will be selected at this meeting which is open to all parents and teachers.

Mrs. Nancy McNamara has also scheduled the first parent meeting for this year, an Open House to be held Sept. 21, at 7 p.m., outdoors on the play court. This will be a chance for parents to meet teachers and visit their classrooms.

By the way, the new sign in front of the court was a work of art done by Ken Brooks, husband of fifth grade teacher, Charmaine Brooks. If you haven't seen it yet, drive down first Street for a peek at another new landmark for Geneva!

Girl Scout Sets Sights On Space Program Career

By DEE GATRELL
Herald Correspondent

"I did a lot of reading about the space programs and noticed there weren't many women in space." Ariella Reback commented after a visit to the Kennedy Space Center with the Girl Scouts.

Ten-year-old Ariella, who says she's "almost 11" says the visit to the space center has fueled her interest in pursuing a career in the program, but she hasn't decided whether she wants to be an astronaut or an engineer. Ariella was one of 15 girls from Central Florida who participated in two 2-week programs at the Citrus Council of Girl Scouts River Point Program Center on Merritt Island.

The first week's program was designed to teach the girls sailing and canoeing while the second session dealt with solar energy and the space center.

The girls also did career explorations. When Ariella fed her information into the computer she decided she wanted to zero in on Astronautical Design Engineering careers.

Ariella is a sixth grader at Rock Lake Middle School. Her hobbies include playing the piano, reading and clogging. She belongs to Girl Scout Troop 157 and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Reback of Longwood.

Would Ariella's father like to see her in the space program?

Jerry Reback replied with fatherly pride, "Absolutely. I think it would be super to see Ariella in space."

Diabetes Chapter To Hear Dr. Ferris

The first regular meeting of the Lake Monroe Chapter of the American Diabetes Association will be held on Tuesday, at 7:30 p.m. in the northern section of the cafeteria of the Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford.

Everyone who has any interest at all in any phase of diabetes is encouraged to attend. The program will be "How periodontia is connected with diabetes." Dr. Robert Ferris, D.D.A., Ph. D. who lives in Winter Park and practices as a periodontist in Altamonte Springs, will be the speaker.

Dr. Ferris has been practicing since 1971 and has been in Central Florida for the past 11 years.

He is a graduate of the University of Ohio in the dental field and also has a Ph. D in microbiology. He has taught and is teaching at Valencia Community College and the University of Florida.

Dr. Ferris has been active in the community affairs of the area, having served as president of the Maitland-South Seminole Chamber of Commerce as well as president of the Rotary Club of Seminole County South. The public is invited to this meeting.

GETTING MARRIED

Engagement and wedding forms are available at the Herald offices, to announce these events. The forms may be accompanied by professional black and white photographs if a picture is desired with the announcement. Wedding forms and pictures must be submitted within two weeks of the wedding.

Wife Broods Over Brews After Work

DEAR ABBY: Why does a man have to stop off in a tavern after work to have a few beers with the guys he works with all day? We've been married nearly three years and have a 6-month-old son. I know Joe loves us, but after an 8-hour day working at construction, he feels he has earned himself "a few beers." So how many is "a few," Abby? When he comes home two hours late he says, "One guy buys you a beer, then you buy him one and so on..."

I never know when to start cooking dinner because I never know how late he is going to be.

Am I wrong to feel that he is being inconsiderate? I can understand stopping off for a beer or two once in a while, but he's made a habit of stopping every night now. Joe has plenty of freedom. He bowls two nights a week in the winter, and in the summer he plays softball.

I'm home with the baby all day, and if he came home at a decent hour after work he could take over for a while and give me a rest. I hate to nag him, but this is really getting to me. What should I do?

ANGRY

DEAR ANGRY: You have a right to be angry. You and Joe should set up some ground rules and decide which nights he will be late — and how late he will be. The uncertainty and endless waiting are unfair to you.

DEAR ABBY: Why don't you quit sending people to church to "meet" a nice man — or woman? I was always under the impression that people went to church to pray. If I am mistaken, please set me straight. Sign me...

ALWAYS ON SUNDAY

DEAR ALWAYS: There are a variety of reasons why people go to church. Some go to pray, some go to pray that they meet someone. Other reasons:

1. Habit.
2. Training.
3. Fear of punishment from the Lord if they don't go.

4. To be seen.
5. To see who else is there.
6. To show off a new outfit.
7. To get spiritual inspiration.
8. To socialize.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have just had our first baby. We've been married only 14 months, and although this baby wasn't exactly planned, we are thrilled.

My mother-in-law said, "I hope you kids aren't going to send out any birth announcements to all our friends who sent you wedding presents, because it's the same as asking for a baby gift."

We had planned to send some, but now we don't know what to do. In your opinion, is sending birth announcements the same as asking for a present?

BABY MAKES THREE

DEAR BABY: It's not "the same," but it could be interpreted to some as a hint. Send birth announcements only to those of your friends who are far away and may not have heard the good news. If there is a doubt as to whether you should send one — don't!

CONFIDENTIAL TO DONE WRONG IN LOS GATOS: Skip it. No one said it better than Francis Bacon: "By talking revenge, a man is but even with his enemy; but in passing over it, he is superior."

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Don't Be Victim Of Mayo Clinic Diet

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am enclosing a copy of the New Mayo Clinic diet. It strikes me that your column in our paper that said grapefruit juice didn't help burn off calories and, in fact, contained calories, is just the opposite of this diet. I have been on the Mayo Clinic Diet and I lost 11 pounds in 15 days. It is difficult to believe your comment, as the results are to the contrary. I'd be interested in your answer, as would quite a few people around here. Yes, I have been to the Mayo Clinic.

but don't assume it is the grapefruit that is causing a person to lose weight. The weight loss is from water loss and the decrease in calorie consumption. I'm sorry but calories do count.

DEAR READER — You may have been to the Mayo Clinic but you didn't get that grapefruit diet there. It is well known among informed professionals that the "Mayo Clinic Diet" with "12 eggs and 12 slices of bacon if you like" has nothing to do with the Mayo Clinic. It is a promotion gimmick to label it as the Mayo Clinic Diet. So I am already wondering about you and your letter.

You badly need to read The Health Letter 16-2, Dangerous Dieting, which I am sending you to avoid being a victim of the many diet plan ads. Others can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The so-called Mayo Clinic Diet is just another low-carbohydrate diet. It is not recommended by competent dietitians or nutritionists. The fact that you lost weight on it is not very important. You can lose weight on lots of unsound diets that are bad for your health.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I find it inconvenient to do much walking in the winter because of the subzero temperatures and snow. Is the exercise bike a good substitute? I would especially like to know if it is beneficial to the heart muscle.

Even if you ate nothing you would only lose about a pound of body tissue in a day, one half-pound of fat and one half-pound of needed body protein. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture food values, a half of a medium grapefruit contains 55 calories. That's not a lot.

DEAR READER — There are many different types of stationary bicycles available. You can get one that you can adjust to increase your work by cycling against resistance. Any of these will help train your heart. The heart-training effect depends upon increasing the need to deliver more oxygen to working muscles. It follows that any exercise that requires lots of energy and hence oxygen will condition the heart.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Saturday, September 11, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY

September 11, 1982

You will acquire several new interests this coming year which will bring you into contact with a larger circle of acquaintances. From those whom you meet, two important friendships will result.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be hopeful regarding matters which you deem to be important today. If you feel optimistic and lucky, you'll act accordingly and much good could result. Predictions of what's in store for you in the seasons following your birthday and where to look for your luck and opportunities are in your Astro-Graph, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Matters relating to your career and finances should be given priority today. Something fortuitous is stirring and it could break now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Conditions which have an effect upon your future plans are starting to shift in a favorable direction. Something you're hoping for may soon come into being.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Two persons to whom you're been helpful are both working on ways to repay your favors. Neither one may be aware of the other's efforts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is a good day to get together with that certain someone with whom you'd like to establish stronger relationships. Conditions are ripe for cementing the alliance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't back away from situations today just because they appear to be challenging or tough. You'll function admirably when the heat is turned up.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Temporarily shelve anything today which is of the workaday world. Make arrangements to be with fun people who like to do fun things.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be optimistic regarding the outcome of events today. Things have a way of working out for your ultimate benefit, regardless of who or what triggers the situation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Dealings on a one-to-one basis should turn out successfully for you today. You could also be very fortunate where romance is concerned.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be materially alert today. Opportunity for gain could present itself from two different sources. It could come through people who have been lucky for you previously.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll be popular with your peers today and you'll also have enormous influence over your intimate circle of friends. Fortunately, you'll do all the right things.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is one of those days when you could be rather lucky through involvements which others initiate or already have going. Chance will juggle things around to fit you into the picture.

WIN AT BRIDGE

three no-trump No amount of bad luck could defeat that contract. Still, four hearts looked like a good contract. Could anything bad happen to him there?

Suppose East held both king and jack of spades. It's one chance in four but Pete always expected those one in four chances to be against him. Was there any way to guard against that? Pete found one.

He let East hold the first trick with his queen of diamonds. Now East returned the jack of clubs. Pete wasted no thought on the chance that East had led from the king. He had a sure thing going for him and went up with his ace.

Two rounds of trumps came next. Then Pete cashed his ace and king of diamonds and led the seven of clubs.

West took his king and led a spade. Pete played dummy's 10. As expected, East took his jack, but had to give Pete the rest of the tricks.

Note that if Pete had played less pessimistically West would have been able to lead spades twice and defeat poor Pete.

What A Way To Spend Friday Night

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

(A typical Friday afternoon in Seminole County, The husband, John, has just arrived home from work. His wife, Karen, has just put the final touches on the day's housework.)

"Honey, I'm home, what's cooking?" asks John.
"Nothing yet," replies Karen. "I've just finished cleaning the house. Do we have to eat here? It's Friday night."

"Well, what do you want to do, go down to Lou's for happy hour? I hear the eats are delicious."

"They are good, but do you remember how long it takes to get a drink? A person could die of thirst."

"How about the mall? They have several good restaurants and we could do a little early Christmas shopping."

"Are you crazy? Do you know how bad the traffic is on 436? It takes longer to get to the mall than to get a drink at Lou's."

"Well, we could go to a movie."

"I've seen both of them in Sanford. The ones in Altamonte are always sold out and don't you think we're getting a little too old for the drive-in?"

Friday night. What to do? Every place is crowded, but it's almost un-American to stay home.

Beginning this Friday, however, there is an alternative. High school football season opens for seven Seminole County schools and the crowds have never been a problem.

Football has become socially accepted in the United States. Millions flock to college and professional games every Saturday and Sunday. The game was never been more popular.

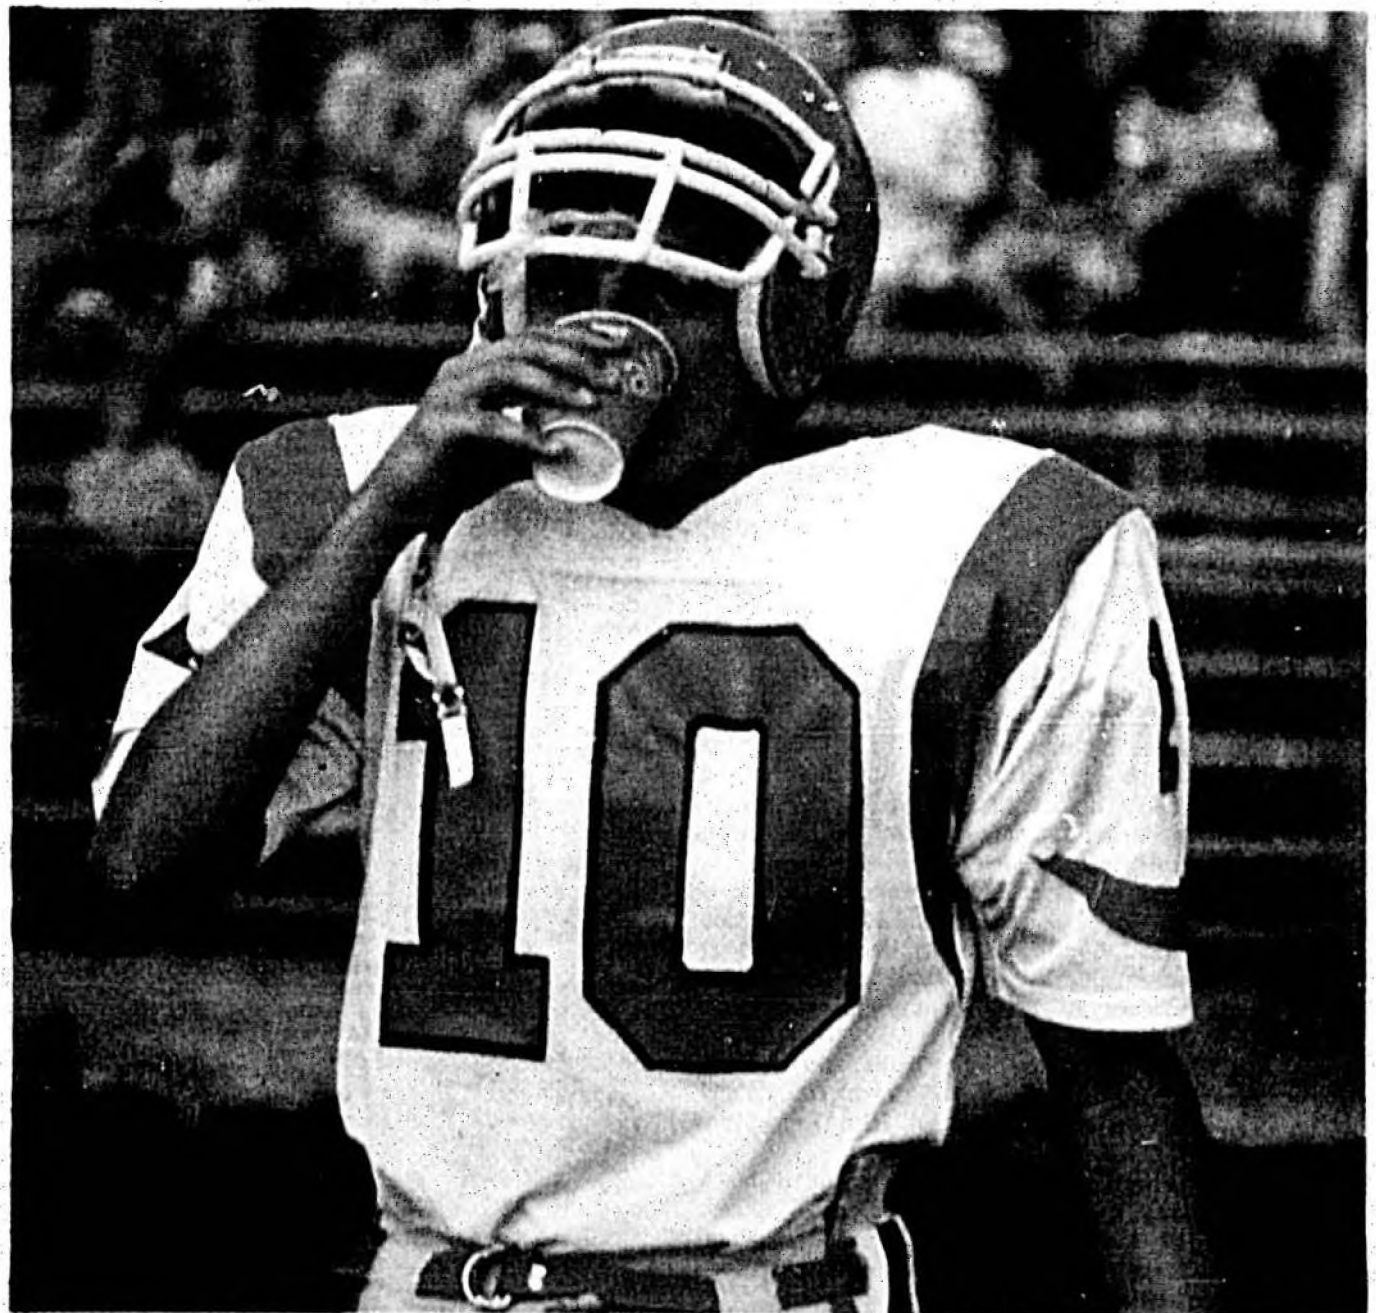

So, why not high school? In little towns like Auburndale it's not uncommon to see 5,000 people at a game. Titusville Astronaut, Seminole's first game opponent, has a tremendous following. On Friday nights in those two sports hotbeds, high school football is the only game in town.

So why not Seminole County? Big deal that your son or daughter doesn't go to school at Seminole, Lake Mary, Lyman, Oviedo, Lake Howell, Lake Brantley or Trinity Prep? You have to go to only a couple of games to become familiar with the players.

And, there are some good ones to watch.

At Seminole, coach Jerry Posey lost 18 starters from last year's Five Star Conference championship team. Returning, however, are defensive standouts Tim Herring (no. 18) and Harold Gaines (no. 34). Herring, a speedy, high-jumping safety, is exciting to watch while Gaines heads up the Seminole defense from his linebacking spot.

At Lake Mary, the Rams begin their initial year of varsity 3A football after posting a 4-4 record last year as a junior varsity club.

Coach Roger Beathard feels Ned Kolbjornsen (no. 70) will be a major college player by the time he's through at Lake Mary. Kolbjornsen is an offensive and defensive tackle. Junior fullback Greg Shatto (no. 24) and linebacker Jeff Hopkins (no. 23) are also future college

Dishpan stars

It's tough, even for the talented, to break into show business. Many starry-eyed actresses spend years perfecting their craft before making it big. What do they do before then? Many work as waitresses. Page 5.

Good riddance

You may have heard that John Schneider and Tom Wopat, also known as Bo and Luke Duke, have left "The Dukes Of Hazzard" show in a tiff over money. TV critic David Handler cheers their departure. Page 7 prospects. Sanford's Donald Grayson (no. 42) is a gifted sophomore "monster" back.

At Lyman, the county's most explosive performer, Vince Presley, (no. 36), is hobbled by a leg injury. There are plenty more Greyhounds to hold your attention, though. Quarterback Jerry Axley (no. 11) and wide receiver Todd Marriott (no. 5) are a dynamite passing combination and offensive tackle and kicker Chris Tschieder (no. 73) was an All-State second-team choice last year.

At Oviedo, junior blockbuster J.W. Yarborough (no. 28) has been awesome in preseason drills. The 5-10, 205-pound tailback is capable of breaking loose anywhere on the field. Quarterback Dwyane Johnson (no. 12) can zip the ball while linebacker Tommy Johnson (no. 99) is a standout defensively.

At Lake Howell, the Silver Hawks' two bearded giants — 215-pound guard Dan Rae (no. 65) and 205-pound tackle Bill Norton (no. 77) — will make things tough on defensive linemen. Quarterback Troy Quackenbush is a fine runner and safety Bill Long is a future all-stater, says coach Mike Bisceglia.

At Lake Brantley, coach Dave Tullis is rebuilding around sophomore tailback whiz Joe Warezak (no. 25) and quarterback Dennis Groseclose (no. 8). John Desmet (no. 53) a senior fullback, is another standout.

At Trinity Prep, coach Ron Vierling's squad has a mixture of Friday and Saturday games. Speedy tailback Gerald Sutton (no. 22) heads a senior-dominated Saints' squad while Richard Milliman (no. 12) is an excellent running quarterback.

'Discover' Uncovers Science Secrets

Why do little babies turn serious, normal grown-ups into gurgling, silly, squealing clowns?

What is going on at a university in California where students spend a day barricading their rooms and setting traps for other students?

Why can't a young woman athlete ever be as proficient in her field as other athletes — just because she won't take drugs? "Discover: The World of Science" is a one-hour syndicated special produced by Graham Chedd and John Angier ("Nova," "Odyssey") in association with Discover magazine. It airs the week of Sept. 13 through 18. (Local times will vary; check listings in your area.)

Host Peter Graves introduces the first segment, which begins at a "baby bash" — a picnic with dozens of gurgling babies and their parents. He asks: "Why do we talk baby talk? And what does the baby make of it all?"

Interviews with scientists and researchers reveal that talking baby talk is indeed something all adults do. Adults raise the pitch of their voice, speak slower and with more lilt. They make faces — grown-ups suddenly contort their faces with exaggerated expressions — and become very intimate, putting their faces nose to nose with baby's, even with an infant who is a stranger.

What does the baby think about all this? He loves it. Experiments have shown that the baby will turn off and become unresponsive when the adult stops talking baby talk and begins acting "normal." Even very young infants continue to make eye contact with an adult who is acting silly and they are very sensitive to emotional signals they read in the parent's face.

In one experiment, babies actually put themselves in danger — crawled across a deep drop that was covered by a sheet of glass — to reach a mother who was smiling and encouraging in her expression; but held back when the mother's face registered fear and disapproval. Graves' advice? When talking to babies, fun is the name of the game.

In the other two segments, on the Cal Tech students and an Olympic discus thrower who won't take steroids, the same balance of scientific examination of the facts and human interest appeal is maintained. It's worth tuning your mind into "Discover" for an hour this week.

Sled Is The Secret Of Kane's 'Rosebud'

DEAR DICK: I just saw "Citizen Kane" for the first time and, for whatever reason, I couldn't figure out what or who Rosebud was. Please tell me, for it was quite frustrating. L.W. Hollywood, Fla.

Rosebud was the name on the sled Kane had as a boy. Producer-director Steven Spielberg ("E.T.," "Jaws," "Poltergeist") recently parted with $55,000 at auction to purchase the actual sled used in the filming of the movie.

DEAR DICK: Is Alice Cooper the son of Bob Keeshan (Capt. Kangaroo)? If not, does Keeshan have a famous son? A.P., Plainwell, Mich.

Keeshan has a son, Michael, who is temporarily non-famous. Alice Cooper is not related.

DEAR DICK: I would very much like to know what happened to Bobby Breen, the tenor discovered by Eddie Cantor. He did some movie musicals, but where is he now? Is he still alive? Does he still sing? T.M., Lethbridge, Alberta, Canada

I've had trouble tracking him down, and my report is not too recent. But I did learn that until a few years ago, at least, he was singing in clubs and dinner theaters, and was based in the Miami, Fla., area. Maybe this note will elicit later information.

DEAR DICK: I saw "West Side Story" recently and Natalie Wood looked very short, compared to Richard Beymer. How tall was Miss Wood? K.V.V., Albuquerque, N.M.

She was 5 feet 3 inches tall.

DEAR DICK: I recently heard that Burt Reynolds had married Lon Anderson. Could you verify whether or not this is true? If it isn't, will they marry soon? D.V., Kalamazoo, Mich.

Breathlessly, I can tell you that they are still two separate entities as I write these words. They are, as the euphemism goes, good friends. Burt has said he has no plans to get married.

DEAR DICK: Less than five years ago, I watched a movie on TV that I think starred the actor who played on "Columbo." It was a spoof on all the Bogart movies. It was hilarious, but I forgot the name of the movie. Can you help? A.F., Cheyenne, Wyo.

I believe you must mean "Murder by Death," which starred Peter Falk, and was released in '76.

DEAR DICK: I say Gil Gerard (Buck Rogers) is married to Connie Sellecca ("The Greatest American Hero") in real life and they have a new baby. My dad says he is married to the girl from "Buck Rogers," Erin Gray. Help soon! D.F., Vancouver, Wash.

You win. Call her Connie Sellecca Gerard.

DEAR DICK: Wasn't Blair, from "Facts of Life," one of the Mousketeers on "The Mickey Mouse Club"? C.D.G., Decatur, Mich.

Yes, although Lisa Whelchel, who plays Blair, was on "The New Mickey Mouse Club," not the old one. She's 19, from Fort Worth, Texas, and a young actress of great promise.

DEAR DICK: I have an elbow-bending neighbor who used to be well-acquainted (tennis, etc.) with the late Guy Lombardo. I recently mentioned that Lombardo had once killed a pedestrian accidentally, while driving a car. I believe it happened in New York some 20 or so years ago. My neighbor insists I'm wrong. He swears Lombardo never killed anybody, even racing boats. Help me set my friend straight — I'm going to nail him for a 1.75 liter of vodka. M.C., Ventura, Calif.

Prosit! A pal of mine, who was Lombardo's press agent for years, backs you up. It happened in Queens, on a dark corner off Queens Boulevard, probably in the early '60s, so you'd be roughly right as to the date. Lombardo was absolved of all charges. Witnesses agreed that the pedestrian ran in front of his car.

 (7) (8) CELEBRITY REVUE

By RUTH THOMPSON

Some had college degrees, all had work experience in their chosen field, all were still young when they had to take jobs as waitresses for survival. Why? Because their chosen field was show business.

Here are the recollections of three successful actresses who look back with laughter at their waitressing days.

For Emily Bindinger — now a well-paid regular as Francine on the quality syndicated children's show "The Great Space Coaster" — the crisis came just three years ago when she was 24. For her, it was a surprise.

She is a product of New York's High School for the Performing Arts, which was the model for the school in the "Fame" series. At 15, she got her first job in a musical. She worked in Paris, then off-Broadway, then on Broadway, including a leading role.

Then suddenly, "I had to take a job as a singing waitress at an ice-cream parlor to pay the rent and buy the food."

She adds: "Now don't get me wrong — lovely people run the place and I go back as a customer. But 'The Great Space Coaster' came along at just the right time."

Barbara Bosson and Susan Sullivan are less lyrical about their short-term waitressing. Both were Playboy bunnies.

Miss Bosson performs as Capt. Furillo's bewildered, often hysterical, but oddly likable ex-wife Fay on NBC's "Hill Street Blues," a role that got her an Emmy nomination this year as best featured actress in a drama.

She was a drama major at Carnegie Mellon — and determined to be an actress from the time she was 3. But it was long after that before a real break came along.

"I wasn't really the type to be a bunny but it paid better than other waitress jobs and any of them were better than the worst job I tried — selling cemetery lots over the telephone."

Beautiful Susan Sullivan, who plays Maggie in CBS' "Falcon Crest," says her bunny days were brief. But even after college (a drama major at Hofstra University) and after a few professional roles, she needed advanced coaching and that cost money. And bunny money was the best at that moment of her life.

GO GUIDE

BY DAVID HANDLER

Maybe you got real caught up in the John Schneider-Tom Wopat story this summer. Then again, maybe you didn't.

Schneider and Wopat have, of course, portrayed the Duke boys, Bo and Luke, since "The Dukes of Hazzard" arrived on CBS in January, 1979. Recently, they engaged in a bitter dispute with the show's producer, Warner Bros., over licensing royalties. They ended up not reporting for work when the show went back into production at the end of July.

Result: Warner Bros. hired two new hunks, Christopher Mayer and Byron Cherry, to play two new Dukes cousins.

The big concern over at CBS now is whether the show's somewhat mystifying popularity will suffer without its original stars. I've been wondering about it myself, but I haven't felt qualified to comment. I've never been able to get through an episode of "The Dukes of Hazzard."

I've tried. Lord knows, I've tried. I've tried watching it alone. I've tried watching it with friends. I've tried before dinner and after dinner. Cold sober and not entirely.

It's no use. I've never been able to last more than five minutes without jumping to my feet, screaming "Life is too short!" and flipping to another station. Once, I flipped so hard the dial came off in my hand.

I watch 'em all. I can sit through anything. I'm a pro. But I've never been able to make it past the five-minute mark of the "Dukes." The other night I decided to give it one more shot. All of this controversy, after all. Here goes.

I make it through the credits, where our balladeer, Waylon Jennings, describes our down home Duke boys, Bo and Luke, as "fightin' the system like two modern-day Robin Hoods." I usually get this far.

Then comes scene one. The Duke boys, Bo and Luke, are zipping around dirt roads in their car, General Lee, when a plane goes over. A package is thrown out and parachutes to the ground. Two thugs with shotguns wait for it to land. It lands right in the laps of the Duke boys, Bo and Luke.

It is a Bugs Bunny doll. "Ain't never seen no Bugs Bunny paratrooper afore," observes Bo. Or possibly it was Luke. "Told ya there'd be trouble," says Thug One. "Shut up," says Thug Two. They hop in their car.

The Bugs Bunny doll is stuffed to the eyeballs with real diamonds. The Duke boys, Bo and Luke, take off in their car, General Lee. Thugs One and Two take off after them, shooting. Here comes the banjo music, screeching tires and clouds of dust.

We cut to the Boar's Nest, Boss Hogg's hang-out. Boss Hogg is trying to learn how to use chop sticks so he can enjoy a Chinese lunch. Sheriff Roscoe and Deputy Cletus are showing him their new invention for trapping speed-demons — a revolving, remote-controlled speed limit sign. They demonstrate it for him.

It revolves so fast it sends all of his papers flying. Then the coins fall out of the pay phone. The jukebox goes haywire. Popcorn flies. Girls scream.

The Duke boys, Bo and Luke, pull up in General Lee at the Boar's Nest. Their cousin Daisy Duke takes one look at the Bugs Bunny doll and says, "That's the cutest 'I'll ol' Bugs Bunny doll I ever seen! Is it for me?"

It is not, reply the Duke Boys, Bo and Luke. They decide to head on home in General Lee. On the way they are caught by the new-fangled speed sign. Roscoe takes after them at high speed. More banjo music, screeching tires and clouds of dust.

Cut to the first commercial. I fall back in the sofa cushions, in a cold sweat, hands shaking. A wave of nausea passes over me. It is now 8:14. I change the channel. I must. Still, I've shattered my record.

In regard to the defection of Schneider and Wopat, I can offer this observation: The show will survive without them. If General Lee leaves though, then "The Dukes of Hazzard" will have both feet in the bucket.

Her Role In 'Garp' Put Glenn Close On Track

By DICK KLEINER
 HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—I recently had a pleasant chat with Glenn Close, the remarkable actress who will almost certainly get an Oscar nomination for her work as Garp's mother in "The World According to Garp."

And so, in her honor, we will get the Close jokes out of the way immediately. Yes, I did have a Close encounter. Yes, it is true that she may come Close to getting an Oscar. And, it is also true that if she misses, it will probably be a case of Close, but no cigar.

Glenn Close is a Greenwich, Conn., girl, the daughter of a doctor. The product as she says, of 12 generations — the Pecks, the Weeds, the Closes and the Meads — who have helped make Greenwich strong.

"We're dyed-in-the-wool Yankees," she says. And she looks it, proud and patrician and strong. And fiercely independent. She always was, and her family still is.

When she was 5, they put her in ballet class in Greenwich. But the teacher made a mistake and called her Glenna, instead of Glenn, and she walked out in a huff. (A huff is something like a tutu only less frilly.)

"I just quit," she says. "If she couldn't call me by my rightful name, I wasn't going to stay there." Anyhow, she didn't want to dance, she wanted to act. She says her childhood dream was to run away and go to wherever they made Disney movies and be in them.

Her parents thought her dream of acting was not a good idea. They had nothing against acting or actors, they just felt it was the wrong thing for their child.

But while Glenn was in prep school — Rosemary

GLENN CLOSE

Hall — two things happened. First she and some classmates began doing plays. And, second, Glenn's parents went to Africa.

When Glenn's folks finally returned, they settled in Big Piney, Wyo., where her father now runs his own medical clinic.

So she became an actress. She studied in college (William and Mary) and then she worked in a procession of America's finest rep companies — Princeton and Milwaukee and such — and then moved onto Broadway.

The play that changed her life, as it developed, was "Barnum," in which she played the circus impresario's wife, Charity. She says she just found out exactly what an important step that role was to her.

"Only last night," she says, "George Roy Hill (he directed 'Garp') told me the whole story of how he found me. He and his casting director, Marion Dougherty, saw 'Barnum'."

"At the beginning of the play, Charity — my character — sits in a box, knitting. George told me that I was still for about five minutes, and he didn't know if I was real or just a mannikin. He said he was struck by my composure, which is the quality he was looking for for Jenny, Garp's mother."

"Garp" was not, as has been written, Glenn Close's film debut. She says she did "two weeny little roles" in a couple of TV movies. She had one scene in "Too Far to Go," and in "Orphan Train," in which she played a woman who took off her jewels so that a girl could pay for the train.

Now, suddenly, she is a movie person. And she likes it. She wants to do more and, certainly, she will have plenty of opportunity. There is no question — Glenn Close may be the next star.

Or, at least, she'll come very Close.
