

GIs Returning To Civilian life To Face New Trials

By HAL R. COOPER
AP Newsfeatures

WASHINGTON — Two weeks after doffing the baggy khaki of the Air Corps I feel justified in reporting the establishment of a small beachhead on the shores of civilian life, and am regrouping my emotions for a deeper penetration. Frankly it looks rough.

Many major obstacles lie ahead—the deciphering of ration books, the computing of pay-as-you-go income taxes, the foraging for food, and finding a place to live in a city where the dogs are doubling up in their kennels.

But I've reached the point where my store-bought shoes don't hurt (much) and I can pick my way among the teeming brasshats without a twitch in the saluting arm.

I can laugh now hollowly, at that solemn pledge I made every time I had to hurry up and wait in the Army: No more standing in line for anything as long as I lived.

When you see a line in civilian life you get in it.

I tacked on to a block-long queue in front of a drug store this morning and wound up with two packs of a brand of fags I never heard of. The first puff made me mildly homesick for a PFC. The second made me mildly sick.

I am billeted with a friend who is lucky enough to be a resident of long standing in an apartment building only a few blocks from the office. I am beginning to feel like the man who came to dinner, but from the look of the housing lots there hasn't been a vacancy in these parts since John Nance

Garner left for Uvalde. Armed with a brand new assortment of ration books, I set out confidently last night to track down a couple of pounds of beefsteak, a loaf of bread and some country butter.

"Well, good bye, friend," said my host.

"Whaddya mean, good bye?" I asked. "The store is just around the corner."

I came back three hours later with a piece of fish, half a pound of butter substitute and the bread. But the time was well spent. I now know the address of stores all over that part of Washington.

Acquiring a wardrobe which wasn't thrown at me by a dyspeptic supply clerk—and which fit gave me my biggest lift since my discharge at Ft. Dix. On it I spent $100 of my mustering-out money my Army pay for April and May, and a nest egg I had been saving for the mutual windows at Pimlico.

But the end result certainly looks like a civilian.

The night before I hung up my uniform I spent some time in a neighborhood Javern. It was full of beautiful girls. They cheered around, admiring my wings and medals and encouraging me to lie about life in the wild blue yonder. My every word they appeared to believe without reservation.

I returned the next evening in muff and received no attention whatever.

"You waiting for somebody?" I asked a pretty blonde at the next table.

"Yes," she said, "my sergeant in the Air Force."

"I used to be a sergeant in the Air Force," I offered.

"This one," she said, "still is."

The discovery of the electric current was made by an Italian physicist, Alessandro Volta.

In 1771, Karl Wilhelm Scheele, a Swedish chemist, discovered that stibic acid could be done with hydrofluoric acid which eats away the outer surface of glass.

The curved hooks at the ends of the long legs of rubber fly enable it to capture prey in mid-air by striking its sharp claws into the victim.

1935 JULY 1945

We are ten years old this month. Yes, way back yonder in the year 1935 just about the time Hitler was promoting himself from Corporal to Reichsfuhrer and Hirohito was planning the "China Incident" we started selling mutual fire and automobile insurance in Sanford.

Now there is absolutely no connection between these events—they just happened about the same time. The plans of Hitler and Hirohito were destructive, tearing down of something that was doing rather nicely, while our ambition was constructive—to build up an Agency devoted to the task of providing good insurance protection for Homes, Business and Automobiles AT A SAVING.

That we have to some extent at least succeeded in doing this is indicated by the fact that today we have the pleasure of serving over five hundred customers.

To you, our good customers, belong the credit for the growth of this Agency—for without your loyalty and support throughout these ten years—it just wouldn't have happened.

To you, we are duly appreciative and we want you to know that we fully recognize the fact that this is truly YOUR AGENCY—you get back 20% to 25% of the money you pay us for insurance in dividend credit on your renewal premiums—we hope we have been MUTUALLY benefited knowing each other.

If at any time we can be of assistance to you insurance-wise or otherwise, please call on us. Won't you?

We want you to have one of our 1945 Desk Year Books or Pocket Diaries. Let us know before July 20, if you will accept one.

 Every Day at the Oasis (From The Westminster Magazine)
 Everyday is alike at the oasis: Painful rattle about the mud houses. Purple shadows dart like lizards Frightened by the desert wind. And with a clatter of drums the sun walks across the sands. Amheera, clad in her gaudy rags Slings up, she loiters about her work Spinning, washing, cooking lentils with camel's dung. At sundown she gossips under the palms Filling her 'ing at the spring. Last month a rich caravan Swung in from the desert. Precious rugs were unrolled, tents erected, Coffee brewed in brazen pots. A handsome Arab walking in the dusk at sunset Gave Amheera some glass anklets For a drink of buttermilk from a skin. Before dawn the caravan departed. Riding into the sirocco It was heard of no more. But Amheera sings As she pads about the hut. The glass anklets clattering On her slender limbs.
BEULAH MAY.
 Governor Dewey has come out in favor of the United Nations Charter which just about makes it unanimous.
 Sanford's post-war plans should include an extensive advertising campaign designed to invite tourists to visit in Seminole County.
 The fate of England and perhaps of the world will be decided in this week's election, that is, the world's fate, in so far as the struggle between socialism and freedom is concerned.
 The Commerce Department warns of the danger of post-war inflation in farm values. However, the thing that is causing most of our farmers to sprout gray hairs is the danger of deflation in farm values.
 We see where the county of Dade in Georgia, which seceded from the union in 1860 and has never come back in, proposes to renege its secession resolution on July 4. Now if the United States could just make peace with the Seminole Indians, at least one of our current wars would be settled.
 The new Secretary of Agriculture, Clinton Anderson, announces that he proposes for this country an "economy of abundance." The New Deal is beginning to discover, somewhat belatedly, that no matter how much money the people have, they cannot hope for a high standard of living unless food and goods are produced.
 The Orlando Sentinel suggests a number of senators-at-large in this state in order to compromise the present impasse which is keeping scores of prominent Florida political leaders in Tallahassee at great expense to themselves and to the taxpayers. Any sort of a compromise, it seems to us, would be a good thing as there certainly seems to be little chance of settling responsibility in a perfectly constitutional way. It is doubtful if the North Florida bloc would consent to electing senators-at-large any more readily than they would to giving South Florida senators more in the regular way.
 Herald subscribers, who for the most part have accepted with good nature the opportunities of wartime newspaper delivery, will recognize in the New York newspaper deliveryman's strike a condition somewhat more acute than anything which has yet happened locally. For few are the news papers which are not in some way connected with the community and their importance in the war effort may be best appreciated if the strike of

Tuberculosis Control

Diseases of the heart and arteries and related conditions, today account for almost one-half of all the deaths in the United States. As the conquest of tuberculosis is reaching its final phase, the emphasis in public health administration now shifts to the degenerative diseases.
 "Nothing could more clearly indicate the new direction in health efforts," says Dr. Louis I. Dublin, Second Vice-President of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, "than the two recent announcements, on the same day, of the closing of the tuberculosis sanatorium of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and the establishment by the life insurance companies of a fund for extensive research on heart disease and related conditions.
 "These two developments," according to Dr. Dublin, "symbolize the closing of one era in American medical and public health history and the beginning of another."
 Declaring that the Metropolitan has virtually eradicated tuberculosis among its personnel, he goes on to say: "In the 3 years that its sanatorium at Mount McGregor, N.Y. was in operation it was clearly demonstrated that an organization guided by enlightened good will and ample resources can practically eliminate tuberculosis among its employees.
 "That the program was eminently successful is indicated by a recent study which showed that of all patients followed for at least ten years after discharge from the sanatorium, one half were either at work or able to work at the end of this period. Among patients who had been brought under treatment in the early stage of the disease and whose condition on discharge from the sanatorium was considered satisfactory, the proportion at work after at least ten years was nearly 80 per cent.
 "In the early years of the sanatorium, a very considerable proportion of the beds were occupied, but in recent years the number of tuberculosis patients was reduced to a mere handful, not enough to justify the maintenance of a large institution. If in the general population the cases of the disease were discovered early, given adequate treatment and where necessary, provided with suitable employment, the further decline in tuberculosis would be materially accelerated."
 With the success attained in combatting tuberculosis, agencies interested in public health are now stressing the fight against heart disease and kindred conditions.
 "The economic and social loss from these diseases obviously reaches an enormous total," Dr. Dublin concluded. "With the continued aging of the population as a whole, the toll of disability and death from these causes will undoubtedly increase. The research program of the Life Insurance companies, therefore, has immense possibilities for public service and will be watched hopefully by all who work in the field of public health and preventive medicine."

Tomorrow's War

The advice, "You can make it in two jumps", given to a belated traveler whose boat had just left the dock, isn't as funny today as it sounds.
 According to the Swedish inventor, Sven Lindquist, something like this method will be used in bombardment in the next war. Shells might be sent against the enemy in two firings. Blanks, prepared hundreds of miles away, would be jetpropelled to the front lines, have explosive charges fitted into them there and then be fired again, directly at the enemy.
 This indirect way of doing things results from two factors, one old and one new. Supply lines near the front have always been vulnerable; and rocket propulsion is already increasingly accurate. To hit a dime from a site 100 miles away will soon be nothing at all. And the factory in the rear could be so built as to be invisible from the air, with only a small camouflaged hole in the ground from which the blank shells would be shot.
 With such possibilities, and worse, ahead, it might be wise to make few sacrifices for peace now.

Some Country!

One of the smartest things in planning the United Nations conference was the decision to hold it in San Francisco. The long journey across the continent, over mountains and farm country and plains and mountains and desert and mountains again, brought to the foreign delegates, particularly those from Europe and the Middle East, the vastness of the United States.
 Few things could have driven home so successfully the concept of the United Nations as that example of immense territory administered by 48 states under a single central government. As one delegate put it, "Why, in Europe in that journey we would have crossed 15 countries, with a customs boundary at each." And this impression was reinforced when the delegates, at the end of the conference, took the long journey back.
 It doesn't hurt a bit, either, to have the world know at first hand that Uncle Sam possesses a lot of territory.

 People shun pain, claiming it their greatest enemy, when in reality it is often a great friend.
 Pain warns of physical disorders, sometimes trifling, often serious, which might develop dangerously had not pain given its warning.
 But you need not wait on pain nor suffer its torments. A regular physical checkup by your doctor will prevent many painful experiences and ward off serious foes.
 Do not use drugs except upon your doctor's advice, and obtain them then only from a reliable druggist.

Ada Eleanor Kimball Weds George Sires

Miss Ada Eleanor Kimball, daughter of Mrs. W. A. McMillen of Sanford and Harvey Kimball of Mt. Dora, became the bride of P. M. George E. Sires Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Presbyterian Church with the Rev. E. D. Brownlow officiating. The ceremony was performed in the presence of relatives and friends.

The bride wore a light blue suit and white accessories with a corsage of pink ranunculus roses. Mrs. Sires is a graduate of Seminole High School and attended Stetson University for two years. Mrs. Sires is from Pittsfield, Mass. and attended the schools in Pittsfield. He was a student at the Berkshire Business college. At present he is stationed at the Banana River Naval Air Station.

After the ceremony, the couple left for a wedding trip to Silver Springs.

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES

Weekly from Home Demonstrators, Tallahassee

PUTTING UP PEACHES
Plan to can the plentiful peach crop on record from 10 Southern States is expected to roll up to a peak late in July.

Choose ripe, fresh, firm fruit. Look beyond any pinkish or yellow background color indicating ripeness. Peaches picked green have poor flavor even when ripened. Don't use fruit with decayed spots. Although decay is cut out, bacteria may be left behind to spoil the fruit.

Wash and peel peaches, handling gently—a canner load at a time. For easy peeling, place a few at a time in a wire basket or cheesecloth, dip in boiling water a minute or so, then quickly into cold. Skin, pit and halve or slice. To prevent darkening after peeling, drop into a solution of 1 gallon of water with 2 tablespoons salt and 2 of vinegar, then rinse and drain.

Pre-cook peaches: If they are juicy, add sugar—1/2 cup to each quart of uncooked peaches. Then heat peaches to boiling and pack in their own juice.

For less juicy fruit, drop into thin to medium sirup, boiling hot, and just heat-through. For moderately thin sirup, use 1 cup sugar to 2 cups of either water or peach juice—made by crushing, heating and straining 3 cups of peaches too soft for canning.

To stretch cupping sugar, corn sirup may replace up to one-third of the sugar, adding honey, up to one-half. If it is necessary to can without sugar, cook the fruit in its juice or add just enough water to keep it from sticking to the pan.

Pack hot peaches evenly into hot clean jars. Place halves in overlapping layers, pitted sides downward. Fill in with 3-4 to a cup of boiling liquid, taking care to cover solid food well and leave 1/2-inch head space. Peaches not covered by liquid may turn dark. Air bubbles also cause the fruit to darken. So work out bubbles by running a knife blade down jar side. Add more liquid if necessary.

Photographic Aid Is Great Service Given By Library

By ARLENE WOLF
AP Newfeatures Writer,
NEW YORK—Books are the business of the New York Public Library, but one of its busiest sections—the Photographic Service—doesn't have a dime to its name.

The Service brings the contents of one of the largest libraries in the world to readers all over the world.

The request—400,000 a year—cover just about everything in the library. A scholar wants to check the original text of a Latin document to see if the third line really has a semi-colon or a comma; a housewife in the middle west read a recipe in a magazine two years ago, and has just worked up an appetite for the dish or a movie fan just can't live a happy life without a photo of a heart-throb of yesterday.

Anything Goes

As long as the material is in the library, and the reader knows where it can be found, the Photographic Service is willing to make copies, providing the original material is not damaged in the process, and the photograph is paid for in advance.

Started in 1914 to assist scholars in textual criticism, the Service has grown into a $100,000-a-year business which provides at cost photographic copies of anything from a whole volume to a single paragraph. Most of its bulk business comes from 500 mail order clients who keep money on deposit with the Library, and just write in for the material they need.

Many of these clients are commercial research laboratories which need texts of articles summarized in scientific abstracts. The kind of article a corporation's research department wants is a pretty good index of the new products it is working on, and Gerrit Pietera, Service director, has had to keep a couple of new synthetics under his hat for some months before they became known generally.

He knew all about penicillin, too, before it made its splash.

Service Customers

Since the war, the Army and Navy have made extensive use of the service to get copies of maps, documents and books relating to foreign lands. The invasion of North Africa was no secret to the Photographic Service the tip-off came with requests for photos of the Library's material on the topography and water systems of Algeria.

Every government in exile has made use of the Library's files of public documents. Pietera says, "I have had them photographed when original copies were destroyed abroad. Official records of whole islands in the Pacific which had been under Japanese control were also found at the Library.

The FBI is interested in photographs of the Library's directories of organizations, publicans and business concerns; the OWI uses the service to microfilm newspapers for delivery overseas.

In addition to its mail order and government business, the Photographic Service takes care of about 75 transients a day—ordinary people who may want copies of anything from a family genealogy to the words of "She Was Only A Bird In A Gilded Cage."

The Easy Way

When one New Yorker wanted to turn radio repair man and fix his own set, he came to the Library to look up the wiring plan, and carried home a photo plan to work with.

The photographic Service has overflowed from a little cubby hole in one of the main reading rooms to a large room of its own on the Library's third floor. Originally, it had one part-time employee. Today, there's a staff of 20.

MENUS

By CHARLOTTE ADAMS
Associated Press Food Editor

Last Summer we raised tampaia, a newly introduced vegetable. Though it is new to America, the Chinese and people of India have known and eaten it for years. Once you have tasted it you will know why—young and old will enjoy it.

Tampaia is something like spinach only it has more flavor and is more tender.

If you cut tampaia when the plants are six inches or less in height you can cook leaves and stems together. If the plants are higher than that, cook stems separately, as they take longer than the leaves.

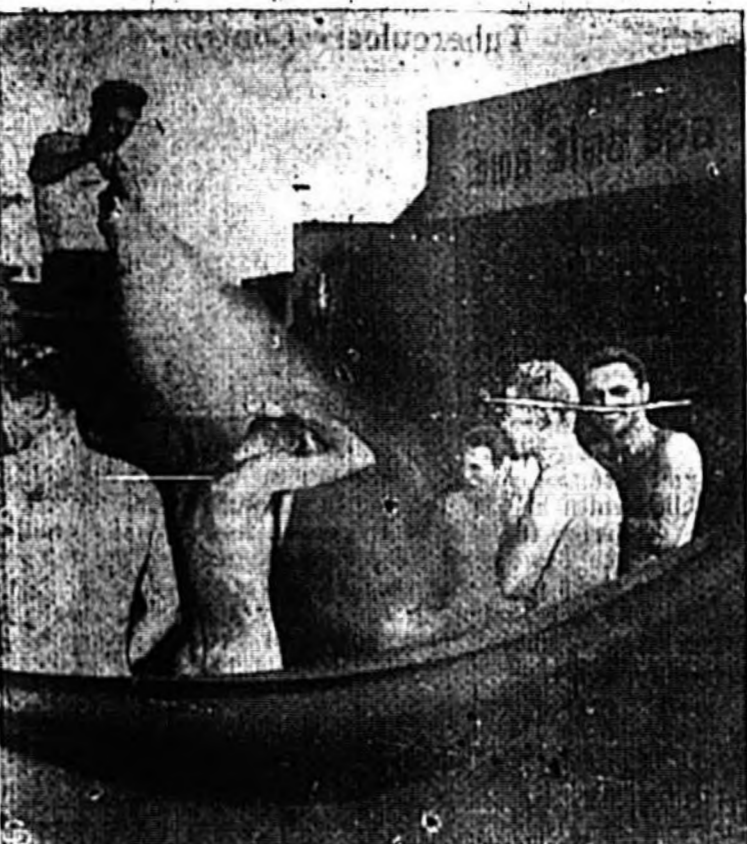

Tampaia is delicious in a salad, mixed with lettuce and some sliced cucumbers and radishes and served with the following dressing:

- Herb Dressing for Tampaia Salad
- 1 tablespoon salad oil
  - 1/2 clove garlic
  - 1/2 teaspoon curry powder
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1/2 tablespoon wine vinegar
  - 1/2 teaspoon ground pepper
  - 1/2 teaspoon basil
  - 1/2 teaspoon rosemary
- Place oil in salad bowl and add garlic clove in it for 30 minutes. Remove garlic. Add curry powder, salt, basil and rosemary and stir well. Slowly beat in vinegar. Add a good grind of fresh pepper. Put in greens and toss lightly to coat them well.
- Of course the simplest way to serve tampaia is just boiled and buttered. It should be cooked not longer than five minutes in the water which clings to its leaves after thorough washing. If you cook it longer the leaves are much, and you lose the attractive crispness which is one of its charms. Here are some other ways to use tampaia:

- Tampaia Souffle
- 1 cup chopped, cooked tampaia
  - 1/2 tablespoons butter or margarine
  - 1/2 tablespoons flour
  - 1/2 cup milk
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1/2 teaspoon rosemary
  - 1 egg yolk
  - 1/2 cup whites
- Melt butter or margarine. Remove from stove and blend in flour smoothly. Add milk and beat constantly until thick. Beat egg yolks and combine with first mixture. Stir in tampaia. Cool. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in to mixture. Pour into greased baking dish. Place in pan of hot water and bake in 375 degree oven until firm about forty minutes.

- Tampaia Timbale
- 1 cup cooked tampaia
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1/2 teaspoon onion juice
  - 2 eggs, well beaten
  - 1 1/4 cups milk
  - 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- Dash of pepper
- Chop tampaia as fine as you can in a coarse sieve. Add seasonings, onion juice, eggs, milk and butter or margarine melted. Stir just enough to blend. Turn into greased molds or custard cups, set in a pan of hot water and bake at 350 degrees thirty minutes, or until a knife inserted into the timbale comes out clean. Unmold and serve with mushroom sauce.

- Tampaia Ring
- 1 cup milk
  - 1 tablespoon flour
  - 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
  - 2 cups cooked tampaia, chopped
  - 3 eggs
  - 1/4 cup brown stock
  - Salt and pepper
- Melt butter or margarine. Remove from stove and blend in flour smoothly. Add milk and salt and pepper to taste. Return to fire and stir constantly until thickened. Add tampaia.

Florida's First General Assembly Met in Tallahassee On June 23, 1845

By R. W. PATRICK
Member of the Governing Board
P. K. Yonge Library of Florida
History, University of Florida

GAINESVILLE, June 25, (Special)—On Monday, June 23, 1845, the assembly of the first general assembly of Florida met in Tallahassee. The assembly was presided over by Governor George M. Thomas, and was attended by 33 members. The assembly met in the old Florida State Capitol building, which was then a simple wooden structure. The assembly was held in the presence of a large number of visitors, and the proceedings were of great interest to the public. The assembly was held in Tallahassee for the first time, and it was a significant event in the history of the state. The assembly was held in the presence of a large number of visitors, and the proceedings were of great interest to the public. The assembly was held in Tallahassee for the first time, and it was a significant event in the history of the state.

and towns a few had arrived in private carriages, those huge vehicles with their bodies hung on springs between high, spoked wheels, and attended by Negro coachmen and footmen. The presence of wagons and even ox carts indicated the common man's interest in the coming events. These visitors in Tallahassee were representatives of the people of Florida. Planters, lawyers, doctors, and merchants, dressed in fashion and proud of their social distinctions, discussed current problems and berated their political opponents. Sturdy, independent farmers, clothed in jeans made by their wives or daughters and filled with a knowledge gained from stump speeched, "pulpit preaching" or an occasional newspaper, boasted of their rights of citizenship. Here and there among the bystanders were a few poor whites, the representatives of a relatively small class in Florida, whose ambition and physical energy had been sapped by malnutrition and intestinal parasites. Although they lacked many of the material benefits of slaves, they gloried in the fact that they were free and, thus, set above the Negro slaves, who could be seen everywhere, as they attended their masters or loitered on the way to accomplish some errand for their mistress. The rich and the poor, the free and the slave, the official representative and the interested onlooker were stirred by the thought that Florida was becoming a self-governing commonwealth. On this June morning of 1845, the elected representatives of the people of Florida pushed through the crowded Capitol square to their assembly hall. Fourteen senators and thirty-three representatives answered the first roll call of the General Assembly; other legislators arrived in the following days, and by July 1 the general election had been held. The senators chose James A. Berthelot as their president, but the representatives were unable to elect a speaker on the first day, for their time was taken up with the report of the Committee of the St. Joseph's Constitutional Convention which reported on the general election that had been held in May. In both houses of the legislature, the first concern was that of organization which included the election of presiding officers. The senators chose James A. Berthelot as their president, but the representatives were unable to elect a speaker on the first day, for their time was taken up with the report of the Committee of the St. Joseph's Constitutional Convention which reported on the general election that had been held in May.

REPORTS FROM RADIO TOKYO indicate that U. S. invasion forces are locked in battle with Jap defenders of Kume Island, which lies 50 miles west of conquered Okinawa. Enemy sources, expressing apprehension over the approaching invasion of China or Malaya, pointed out that Kume, which is about 30 miles square, could provide air and supply bases to supplement the main Ryukyuu bases now being established on Okinawa. The map shows Kume's strategic position. (International)

If he plants inferior seed, his crop will be inferior. It is well for the farmer to know about seed and the Florida seed law. The law provides that all seed must be sold in a package which bears an analysis tag or they must come from a package bearing such a tag. This tag gives the name and variety, percentage of purity and germination, and the date on which the seed were tested. The seed must have been tested not earlier than nine months before the sale and, if the months of July and August fall within the period, not earlier than five months before the sale. The tag must indicate also whether the package contains noxious weed seed and, if so, the percentage of these. Thus, the tag carries information that tells the farmer whether the seed are the variety he wants, whether they are pure and viable, whether they have been tested recently enough to depend on the viability percentage listed, and whether the package contains weed seed. It enables him to compute accurately how much seed he will need for planting a given acreage. To be sure that he is starting his crop right—with good seed—the farmer should be careful that he gets the right variety and accurate information as to their viability. If he has any doubt about seed he obtains or if he has seed left over from the previous season which he might use, he should take advantage of the services offered by the State Seed Laboratory in Tallahassee. For a small charge, he can have a representative sample tested for viability. With the results of such a test he then will know whether he will have to plant the minimum amount of seed for a maximum stand or plant more than would be necessary if the seed were 100 percent viable.

Plans Completed For Building Of Freezing Lockers

Contract Is Awarded And Site Is Chosen For First Project Of Kind In Florida

Official announcement of completion of plans and preparations to build and staff the Seminole County Frozen Food, Quick Freezing, Locker, and Commercial Storage Plant, the first of its kind in Florida, was today made by Edward Higgins, manager of Seminole County Chamber of Commerce and Philip S. Cole vice president of the Bush Insulation Co. Inc. of New York.

The site taken, after a careful survey of sites which included land at the Sanford State Farm, back facing the railroad tracks on Commercial Street and extending towards Lake Monroe between French Avenue and Maple Avenue, it was announced.

The corporation has been formed by Fred R. Wilson, Sanford legal counsel for the company under the name of "Country Life Frozen Foods of Seminole County, Inc." This will be under the general direction of Country Life Frozen Foods of Florida, Inc., 100 Exchange Building, Jacksonville, a wholly owned Bush company.

The management of the Sanford plant is vested in a board of directors composed of Forrest Gatchel, W. A. Patrick, John Crumley and Alex R. Johnson.

The contract for building the plant has been awarded to H. I. Lane of Fort Myers, architect. The design of the plant will be thoroughly modern and attractive with flat roof and exterior decorative treatment to include glass brick walls, modern interior and attractive of plants. Construction will be of limestone concrete block with waterproof white stucco encased by a canopy.

The plant will be well ventilated with white tile for perfect sanitation, good light and easy access to the plant. The plant will be equipped with modern machinery and processing and zero or other temperature storage in their own individual storage rooms, that may range in size from 150 cubic feet to carload space as may be desired.

Such facilities may be used to bring into Florida from all sections of the country, quick frozen fresh products that are not produced here, such as asparagus from Maine, cherries from California, similar fruits and vegetables available in Florida for table use that locker patrons may have most any fresh product wanted. ## U. S. Troops Enter Berlin Amidst Cheers

American Vets Roll In As Conquerors And Return Salutes Of Soviet Army Police

BERLIN, July 1, (AP)—American occupation troops rolled into Berlin yesterday, spreading through the beaten capital's mangled wreckage to the accompaniment of scattered waves and tears from broad lines and work chains of women and girls.

The American veterans of World War II entered as conquerors and returned the crisp salutes of Red army women traffic police. There were tears of joy and cries of "God be thanked" from some Berliners, but others were silent and sullen.

Vanguards of a vast armored-vehicle convoy reached Zehlendorf this afternoon after leaving Halle at 4:00 A. M., crossing the Elbe river and driving through Russian-occupied territory to the city.

Members of the U. S. Second Army, including the 1st and 2nd Divisions, entered the city from the west and south. The 1st Division, which was the first American unit to enter the city, was met by Soviet soldiers who were celebrating the city's liberation.

The city was in a state of confusion as the American troops entered. The Soviet soldiers were celebrating the city's liberation and the American troops were entering as conquerors.

Sanford Holiday Observance Will Be One Of Quiet

There will be no special celebration in Sanford today to mark the Fourth of July, and no boat races are being planned due to curtailment of gasoline by the OPA.

The big noise will occur Thursday evening at Municipal Softball Field when the Frierson team managed by Charles Morrison clashes with the Tavern team managed by Frank Pavilio. Also on the schedule is a clash between Yowell's and the State Guard team.

Manager Morrison of Frierson's reports that his team, Nelson, red haired catcher and premier attraction for the Bobby Sox Brigade will be unable to play due to the fact that he was shot by the Japanese in the Second armored division, which will take up positions in the American occupation zone in the southwestern part of the capital.

He was Pvt. Harvey Natchez of the Ute Indian reservation in northeastern Utah, a 25-year-old veteran due to return home on points after a few more days. He drove this correspondent to Adolf Hitler's reichsbanner days. Girls in freshly ironed frocks worked in lines along the road removing debris from great piles of ruined buildings. In an eight-mile drive through the center of Berlin, not a single block was seen intact.

Members of women, children and old men queued up in front of bread stores. In Zehlendorf German child complained of hunger and got part of Natchez's ration. An old woman said she got only 200 grams of bread daily and no meat or fat. She went off with the rest of Natchez's lunch.

Twice we crossed a canal that was an open sewer which could be snuffed 600 yards away. On the Kaiserliche a Red flag flew over the stars and stripes and a pole outside the headquarters of the German Communist party.

Names of selectees who on June 27 left for regular induction, or pre-induction and physical examination, were today revealed by E. B. Carter, selective service clerk, whose headquarters are now on third floor of the Sanford Atlantic Bank Building.

Yanks Use Okinawa Graveyard As Battle Points

TEMPORARILY PINNED DOWN BY JAPANESE BARRIERS, whistling, scattered American Marines took cover in a cemetery on Okinawa ridge. In their tracks are signs of a hard-fought battle. The bodies of the fallen are scattered about the ridge, and the Japanese positions are visible in the distance.

President Truman Calls On Country To Honor Liberty

WASHINGTON, July 1, (AP)—President Truman last night called on the nation to honor the "creed of liberty" which its fight for some years has carried throughout the world.

Again this year we celebrate July 4 as the anniversary of the 169th year since the signing of the Declaration of Independence as a sovereign people.

"In this year of 1945, we have pride in the combined might of this nation which has contributed so significantly to the defeat of the enemy in Europe. We have confidence that under our leadership we soon may crush the enemy in the Pacific. We have humility for the guidance that has been given to us by our fathers in the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

"Here at home, on this July 1, 1945, let us honor our nation's creed of liberty, and the men and women of our armed forces who are carrying this creed with them throughout the world."
