Estrogen Benefits Should Be Stressed

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am 58 years old and in good health. I had my womb removed nine years ago and have been taking estrogen for 12 years. I stopped taking it two months ago after all I have read about it. I can say I feel so much better in so many ways, it's unbelievable, but the hot flashes are terrible—about every four hours and day. It's really been had. I expected to have them and it's worth it but how long will they last? I'm sure I'm through the menopause. I started at 44. I'm also sure the estrogen helped me through it but I want to quit it now. Also what other things happen to the body when you quit? My estrogen was reduced for two months before I stopped taking it.

DEAR READER—There have been so many exaggerations about estrogen and the menopause that it's perfectly understandable that you're confused, as are many other readers. In the first place, since you've had a hysterectomy, there's no risk of cancer of the uterus caused by taking estrogen hormones. Second, if you don't have lumpy breasts or breast disease, you don't develop any, there's no reason to be concerned about taking estrogen and the possibility of breast cancer. Beyond that, there is a long list of complications that can occur in some women taking female hormones but there are many other women who use them to great advantage. It makes them feel better and it can definitely improve their health. The Food and Drug Administration has now agreed that an adequate amount of Approval of the revision and the rezoning came on votes of 4-1, with commissioner Bill Kirchoff voting in opposition twice. However, Kirchoff explained he voted against the motions because his family has property adjacent to the planned project and thus did not want to cast a vote that could be construed as self-serving. He filed a conflict of interest statement and intended to abstain from the voting, but county attorney Nikki Clayton advised him to vote yes or no. "It is better to try something of this type and fail than never to try at all," Commissioner Bob Sturm said in making the motion for approval.

County Tells Gas Dealers: Limit Sales

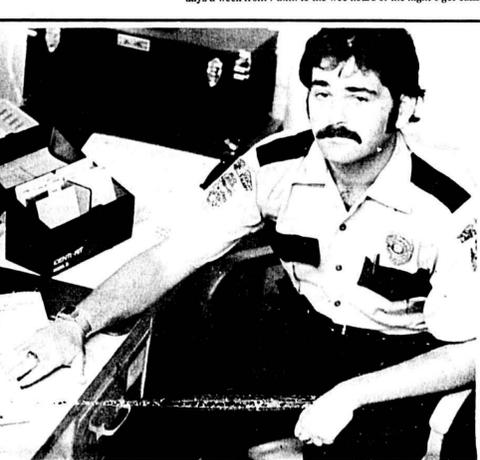

Seminole County commissioners Tuesday accepted the recommendations of the county energy committee and will send a memo to each of the 108 service station operators in the county asking for voluntary compliance with gas sale limits. On Monday, the committee had recommended service station operators set a maximum and a minimum amount on the gas purchases allowed to motorists. The maximum amount was designed to assure equal distribution to motorists and the minimum sale limit was designed to prevent tank topping. The purchase of gas when a vehicle is already overfilled is a safety hazard, said the committee. The recommendations in a resolution passed by a 4-1 vote, with Bill Kirchoff in opposition. "This committee or any other committee has no business telling retailers when they should stay open, when they should close, how much gas they should sell or anything else. Economics should prevail," Kirchoff said. "The Department of Energy is a state agency. It is a disaster to this county." Energy committee chairman Joann Blackman said today that the memo is being prepared and should be received by service station operators before the end of the week. In addition to the request for voluntary compliance with the conservation measures, Ms. Blackman said, service station operators before the end of the week in addition to the request for voluntary compliance with the conservation measures, Ms. Blackman said, service station operators should post warning signs on their pumps to alert motorists as to which pumps were in service. The commissioners approved

Farm Crisis? Not Locally, Duda Insists

Just as required. These adjustments are being made with individual independent truckers. "If ever there was a crisis in the agricultural industry, this is it," Conner said. "I urge anyone with any kind of truck ... to get in touch with us and we'll find some way to use it." "The situation is ultra-critical and unless we can find the trucks many of the crops in the field and those already harvested and awaiting shipment will be lost," Conner said. Hardest hit are farmers from Pensacola who have crops of watermelons, tomatoes, potatoes and peppers ready for market. Conner's statements Tuesday afternoon indicate the problems brought on by striking truck drivers are far worse than had been estimated earlier by government officials. As late Monday afternoon, Gov. Bob Graham announced that 40 trucks were ready to go and another 350 from the Florida Citrus Commission were being rounded up to carry produce. But so far officials have drawn a blank in getting more than a handful of the vehicles they need to move ripe crops of watermelons, tomatoes, potatoes and peppers to the fields from Gainesville north and west to Pensacola.

Lake Mary's Chuck White with sample from Ident-Kit

His Tools To Fight Crime: Plastic Cards In A Kit

In the battle against crime, Lake Mary police officer Chuck White uses a collection of plastic cards as his weapon. White, 21, works as a full-time dispatcher and part-time patrolman. But he is also on 24-hour call, as the department's conceptual artist. It is his job to be ready to paint a picture of criminals he has never seen. White recently completed a course sponsored by the Smith & Weston Company which taught him how to compose facial features of criminals based on statements taken from victims and witnesses. The course was offered to area law enforcement officials and included 16 hours of classroom work. Unlike the artists in old detective movies, White does not work with a pad and a pencil. Instead, he creates his pictures by using a combination of 400 plastic transparencies contained in an Ident-Kit. Each transparency has a separate facial feature. By piecing together the scattered recollections of those who have been victimized by a criminal or have seen the perpetrator of a crime, White is able to assemble a rendering that can be sent across police wires for widespread use in identification. "It's not as hard as it seems. Most people see more than they think they have seen. It is just a matter of bringing back what they have observed," White said. "The mind is like a camera. A person sees a face and his brain takes a picture. In a crime, particularly a violent crime, a victim may tend to bury that picture in his or her subconscious. What we do with the Ident-Kit is reassemble the picture a little at a time," he said. During the procedure, White said, the person interrogated never sees the composite picture until a first draft is complete. Upon seeing that, he said, the witness's memory reacts and compares the sketch to the picture in the witness's memory. "You start with an average composite, based upon height, weight and age," he said. Each age bracket, size and weight carries an average chin line and facial shape, he explained. Thus when a victim says the person who attacked him was about 30 years old, six foot tall and perhaps 180 pounds, for example, White can immediately produce an average face for persons with such characteristics. Then the specifics can be added. White said after getting a chin line and face shape, he will begin asking witnesses about hair line. Was his hair thick? Was it balding? Was there a part? Lake Mary will spend $300 a year to keep the newly-acquired Ident-Kit on hand. So far it has never been used in an actual case. But nationwide, more than 180 arrests for serious crimes such as murder and robbery have been made on the basis of renderings made with the kit, White said.

County To Buy Bookmobile For $52,000

Library service to Oviedo and outlying portions of Seminole County will come by wheel rather than through the mail. That was the decision made by the board of county commissioners Tuesday in approving the purchase of a $52,000 mobile bookmobile instead of subscribing to less costly books-by-mail program. However, in voting unanimously to purchase the bookmobile, the commissioners did not rule out the possibility of adding a mailing service at some point in the future. "I hope that a limited mail service to accommodate the handicapped and the shut-ins can be explored at a later date," said commissioner Bob Sturm. Commissioner Sandra Glenn agreed. "I also support the bookmobile purchase but I hope it does not eliminate the idea of adding a mailing program. I don't want books by mail to be totally abandoned." County librarian Jean Rhein last week presented information to the commissioners outlining the advantages of both the mailing service and the bookmobile. She said her recommendation would be for the commission to adopt the mailing service. She said it would be less costly to operate and would not be subject to service interruptions in the event of a mechanical breakdown. However, the commission chairman, Bob French, said he preferred the bookmobile, contending it would provide 14-hour service in that best sellers, not available by mail, could be offered to readers and the number of books available would be greater. Ms. Rhein said she will have the vehicle ready for operation as soon as possible after delivery. The vehicle, capable of carrying 3,000 books, is scheduled to be delivered in 70 days. County plans call for the bookmobile to make eight stops a week, one morning and one afternoon stop Monday through Thursday. The vehicle will stop at selected county sites yet to be determined. Competency Tests Ordered For Mother

An 18-year-old Sanford mother accused of manslaughter in connection with the drowning death of her two sons March 8 has been ordered to undergo tests to determine her competency to stand trial.

Circuit Judge Tom Waddell this week ordered a psychiatric examination for Bluet Kelt of Lake Monroe Terrace. Miss Kelt was arrested May 8 and charged with two counts of manslaughter and two counts of child abuse by Sanford police.

Police said a two-month investigation of the drownings of Telly Kelt, 2, and 6-month-old Terry Kelt preceded the arrest. The two infants died in six inches of bath water at Miss Kelt's home on March 8. Miss Kelt reportedly told police she was in the kitchen fixing dinner and left her children in the tub for about a half an hour. When she returned, the two boys were dead, police said they were told.

INNOCENT PLEA
The man charged with first degree murder in connection with the shotgun killing of 72-year-old James Wright of Sanford entered a plea of innocent in circuit court Tuesday.

Gregory Mills, 22, of Sanford was indicted by a grand jury last week. He is charged with breaking into the home of Wright at 44 Elliott Ave. in the early morning hours of May 25 and shooting him in the abdomen with a shotgun.

DIAMOND RINGS STOLEN
Three diamond rings valued at almost $5,000 were stolen from the car of a Casselberry woman while she attended a summer camp, according to Seminole County deputies.

Norine D. Guggenheim, 61, of 1341 Prince Phillip Drive, Casselberry, said she parked her car at Jessup Woods Summer Camp on Normandy Road about 1 p.m. Sunday. She discovered the diamond rings missing when she returned to her car three hours later, deputies say.

The most expensive ring was valued at $2,450. It was described as a 14-carat white gold ring with three diamonds in the center and 16 diamonds on the periphery.

Bamundo's stolen property included a cassette AM-FM stereo and a tape box with 20 cassette tapes, he said.

Monday morning on a charge of spouse abuse after he allegedly pointed a shotgun at his wife, according to Seminole County deputies.

Booker Patterson, 33, of 419 Basewood Lane, Altamonte Springs, was taken to Seminole County Jail where he was placed on an initial bond of $255, records indicate.

Deputies responded to a domestic disturbance call at the Patterson residence about 3 a.m. Sunday and were told the husband was armed, according to the report.

Delore Patterson, 39, told deputies her husband came home at 2:35 a.m. and pointed a shotgun at her while she was in bed. He demanded to know who had been calling the house, she said.

Ms. Patterson said her seven-year-old son, Todd, was in bed with her when the incident occurred.

Patterson told deputies he didn't have a gun but his wife informed them he had locked it inside of his car trunk. When Patterson opened the trunk, deputies said they found a .22 caliber rifle and placed him under arrest.

JUVENILE IN CUSTODY
Lake Mary police are asking that a 14-year-old boy be charged with delinquency in connection with the grand theft of an automobile on Sunday and the sexual battery of a 10-year-old girl on Saturday.

Police said the boy was on "non-secure detention" from the Juvenile Detention Center at the time the two crimes were committed. Under that program, juveniles are released if the Detention Center determines that they will pose no danger to the community; Police said the boy was released despite a "lengthy" record.

The boy last was charged June 11 with delinquency in connection with breaking and entering and sexual battery. Before that, police had charged him with delinquency in connection with assault, aggravated battery, and battery, among other things.

According to Lake Mary police, an officer spotted a car weaving down Country Club Road about 8 p.m. Sunday. The car did not stop when police requested, they said, instead making a sharp turn, narrowly missing another auto and striking a telephone pole.

Police said the car later was identified as belonging to Dale L. Behling, 38, 165 E. Alma Ave., Lake Mary. Behling first indicated he did not want to press charges, but later changed his mind.

Police said the boy was already in custody on the auto theft charges when they learned of a molestation, said to have taken place the day before. Police then also charged the boy in connection with that crime.

COMPANY SUED
Two victims of a get-rich-quick scheme have sued the Sanford Company involved in an effort to get their $5,000 back and to stop the company from operating.

The securities fraud division of the Florida comptroller's office filed the suit Friday on behalf of the two Central Florida men against John Woolley of Project Seventy, Inc.

The suit asks the Seminole County Circuit Court to issue a permanent injunction against the company from operating and to order restitution of the men's investments.

John Thomas Little of 617 Iris St., Allamonte Springs, and Paul A. Andrews of Orange City, paid $2,500 each to Woolley to invest in his corporation stock for a television show.

Project Seventy, Inc., which is located at 204 Ridge Drive, Sanford, has never been incorporated in Florida nor is Woolley a registered dealer or sales manager, the suit states.

For an investment of $2,500, the men were told they would receive 1,250 shares of stock in the corporation, the suit claims.

According to Woolley's calculations, a unit of 2,500 shares of stock would yield a return of more than $18,000 to the investors.

Through Woolley and promotional material, the men were told "The Great Show Bands of the '70s," the suit states. The show was to be distributed to 100 to 150 selected television stations to be shown during prime time.

Both Thomas and Little bought their stocks from Woolley in June and July, 1978 respectively.

Affirmative Action Wins Court Ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI)— The Supreme Court, in a case of major significance to American workers, ruled today federal law does not bar a company and union from voluntarily setting up an employment program that favors blacks.

On a 5-3 vote, the justices overturned a lower-court ruling on the issue which the government had warned could severely undermine its efforts to get private industry to take affirmative action steps.

The 1964 Civil Rights Act's bar against racial discrimination in employment "does not condemn all private, voluntary, race-conscious affirmative action plans," Justice William Brennan wrote for the majority.

The court's decision came on an employment sequel to last year's Bakke "reverse discrimination" case.

The new case, which rests on the employment discrimination provision of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, was initiated by a 32-year-old white factory worker named Brian Weber.

Weber charged Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. and the United Steelworkers of America illegally discriminated against whites when they voluntarily set up an on-the-job craft training program at a Granovsky, La., plant that reserved job openings for minority applicants.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed the program was illegal.

Proxmire Loses Ruling
WASHINGTON (UPI)— Undaunted by a setback in the Supreme Court, Sen. William Proxmire promises to continue his monthly "Golden Fleece" award for wasteful government spending.

The justices ruled Tuesday congressional immunity did not protect the Wisconsin Democrat for ridiculing government agencies that financed a $500,000 study of aggressive behavior in animals.

The court said Ronald Hutchinson, the research scientist who brought an $8 million suit against Proxmire, was not a "public figure" who had to prove actual malice to win a libel judgment.

Dolphins Aid Search
HULL, Mass. (UPI)— Scientists who have spent the past nine years trying to find the elusive Loch Ness Monster are turning the job over to a team of highly trained dolphins.

A spokesman for the American Academy of Applied Sciences said Tuesday the dolphins will be equipped with an underwater still-camera, sonar and a strobe light when they are released into the famous Scottish lake to look for Nessie and her mythical friends.

"When an animal passes through the beam, he triggers the strobe and the camera," said Howard Curtis.

Stone Seeks Hearing
WASHINGTON (UPI)— Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., contends the Treasury Department is under pressure not to seek a hearing on an anti-dumping petition by Florida winter vegetable growers.

The growers charge Mexican vegetables are being dumped into the United States. Stone brought the matter to the attention of his Senate colleagues Tuesday.

An aide said there has been pressure for the case to be dropped without a resolution by representatives of Arizona brokers of Mexican vegetables.

Iowa To Test Gasohol
WASHINGTON (UPI)— Amoco has selected a small town in Iowa as a gasohol test market in the first move by a major oil refiner to size up the American motorist's thirst for the 20-proof alternative to gasoline.

"Beginning sometime in early July, five stations in Ottumwa, Iowa, will be selling gasohol," Amoco spokesman Carl Meyerdrick said Tuesday. "It's to determine what are the problems and how they can be solved in the distribution of gasohol."

Several other small Midwestern markets eventually will be tested in the pilot Amoco marketing program that is expected to last a year or more, Meyerdrick said.

Newest Casino Opens
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)— The first bet, a $100 wager at the baccarat table by an employee was a loser. But with that bet, Caesars World ended a 13-month monopoly Resorts International has had on East Coast gambling.

The newest of Atlantic City's casinos, the Boardwalk Regency Hotel-Casino, opened Tuesday with little fanfare, but a crowd of eager people ready to gamble.

The $ pm opening of the $75 million Boardwalk Regency complex came after a successful four-day trial period using play money, with 2,000 gamblers lining up for a new opportunity to lay cash down on green velvet tables.

Farmers Must Repay Loans
WASHINGTON (UPI)— For the first time since the farmer-owned reserve was established in 1977, prices of two grains—barley and oats—have risen high enough so that farmers must repay loans on reserve stocks of the grains.

The Agriculture Department announced Tuesday that farmers have 30 days to repay loans on barley in a 46-million-bushel reserve and oats in a 38 million bushel reserve.

The announcement that oats and barley prices had reached "call" levels was another reflection of rising commodity prices resulting from increased foreign and domestic demand for grain.

Attack On Shah Reported

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI)— Jewish Shmuel Khalkhali, self-proclaimed chief of Iran's revolutionary court, said today members of a Moslem extremist group attacked the house of the deposed shah in Mexico, PARS news agency reported.

Mexican police officials in Cuernavaca, where the shah is residing, denied the report.

Khalkhali, quoted by the agency today, did not say when the attack took place nor did he give other details of the incident.

PARS said Khalkhali "claimed responsibility for the machine-gun attack on the residence of the ex-shah in Mexico on behalf of the Fedayane-Islam militant religious group."

"Khalkhali asserted that although the deposed shah had not been killed in this incident, he would not be able to escape because the Fedayane-Islam militants could seize him even if he went into hiding in the 'White House,'" PARS said.

Khalkhali said 160,000 people had been killed during the rule of the former shah and the Iranian nation would find and kill him wherever he might hide, the agency said.

The court's decision came on an employment sequel to last year's Bakke "reverse discrimination" case.

The new case, which rests on the employment discrimination provision of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, was initiated by a 32-year-old white factory worker named Brian Weber.

Sanford Tax Hike Just One Alternative

The story in Tuesday's Evening Herald indicating Sanford City Manager Warren E. Knowles had recommended a five percent tax hike was in error.

In fact, the possibility of a tax hike would be only one of a number of means that might be used to help balance the proposed tentative 1979-80 budget. The five percent hike was mentioned in a memo sent to city commissioners. The memo indicates that projected revenues for the coming year are $3,810,652. Proposed budget expenditures at this point are $4,342,659 according to the memo.

A five percent hike would boost the rate from $6.90 per $1,000 assessed valuation to $7.29 per $1,000 assessed valuation to property owners. Knowles' memo indicates that such a hike would raise an additional $42,443 in revenue. A legislative act prevents counties and municipalities from raising tax rates above five percent without seeking voter approval via referendum. Another solution to be considered, according to the memo, would be to consider special legislation passed for downtown improvements that set up the mechanism for a special taxing district. The Downtown Improvement Association has presented to the city a program calling for $400,000 in street and pavement improvements, but a special taxing of downtown property owners has not been sought. The Tuesday story incorrectly stated the utility budget as $27,887 for 1979-80. In fact the projected budget is about $1.4 million. Knowles said water and sewer rates could remain unchanged next year as user fees will cover the cost of operations.

The final budget will be arrived at by the city commissioners later this summer. Work sessions to discuss possible cuts in the individual departmental budget were scheduled for mid-July near the town of Jezzine, 13 miles east of Sidon, local guerrillas ordered the Syrian planes to withdraw from Lebanon.

He also warned the Palestinian guerrillas that Israel would wage an offensive campaign of strikes against them.

Israel planes have frequently attacked Palestinian targets in Lebanon. The last such mission was flown Sunday.

But this was the first time Syrian planes were tried to interfere with the Israeli planes over Lebanese skies since the punitive Israeli raids began.

The Israeli spokesman said his planes carried out their mission after downing the five Syrian fighters, but would not say what type of planes were involved in the dogfight.

Asked why the Syrian planes attacked the Israeli jets, the spokesman would only say, "Probably they didn't want us there."

In Beirut, an official at the Palestine news agency Wafa said two Israeli planes had been shot down during an air raid against the refugee camp of Ain el-Hilweh, near the coastal town of Sidon.

The state-owned Beirut radio said the hills east of Sidon were pounded by Israeli warplanes.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Tuesday during a tour of northern Israel that the Syrians should withdraw their forces from Lebanon.

"The Syrian occupation forces must leave Lebanon and return to Damascus," he said.

He also warned the Palestinian guerrillas that Israel would wage an offensive campaign of strikes against them.

Ralph Larson is obviously moved as he accepts a plaque naming him "Rotarian of the Year" during the annual installation banquet of the Rotary Club of Sanford. Israel Claims 5 Syrian Fighters Downed

By United Press International
Israeli warplanes shot down five Syrian fighter planes today in a dogfight over southern Lebanon, the Israeli military command announced.

The command said the Israeli planes flew over southern Lebanon at about 11 a.m. (5 a.m. EDT) to attack Palestinian guerrilla strongholds near the Syrian planes intercepted them.

The command said the Israeli jets shot down the five Syrian planes near the coastal town of Sidon.

"The Israeli planes were seen falling to the ground in flames

NATION IN BRIEF

Talmadge Reverses Stand, He'll Testify at Hearings

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Sen. Herman Talmadge, pushed hard by the Senate Ethics Committee to answer questions under oath, has reluctantly agreed to testify and call other defense witnesses in his financial misconduct hearings.

Talmadge surprised the panel last week by announcing he was resting his case without putting on a defense.

But the powerful Georgia Democrat reversed his stand late Thursday, a few hours after the ethics committee came up with a surprise of its own—a formal, written request that Talmadge appear Thursday to answer questions under oath.

NAACP Honors Rosa Parks
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)— The woman honored by the NAACP as the "mother of the civil rights movement" has pledged to continue to "carry the torch for freedom."

"I am truly grateful to have lived to see this day," Rosa Parks of Detroit said Tuesday night after she was awarded the NAACP's 64th Spingarn Medal for civil rights work. "This is a wonderful event in my life."

Mrs. Parks was honored for her refusal on Dec. 1, 1955, to give up her bus seat to a white man, thus prompting a year-long boycott in Montgomery, Ala., that led to the eventual desegregation of the city mass transit system. The boycott was engineered by the late Martin Luther King Jr.

Vernon Presley Dead
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)— The death of Vernon Presley, 33, father of the late Elvis Presley, leaves the multimillion-dollar estate of the King of Rock 'n' Roll for his grandmother and daughter.

The elder Presley died of heart failure Tuesday at Baptist Hospital, where he had spent much of the year with heart trouble.

Dr. Nathan Salky, a cardiologist, said Presley went into "cardiac arrest" and died at 9:20 a.m. despite intense efforts to save his life through electric shock and medication.

Proxmire Loses Ruling
WASHINGTON (UPI)— Undaunted by a setback in the Supreme Court, Sen. William Proxmire promises to continue his monthly "Golden Fleece" award for wasteful government spending.

The justices ruled Tuesday congressional immunity did not protect the Wisconsin Democrat for ridiculing government agencies that financed a $500,000 study of aggressive behavior in animals.

The court said Ronald Hutchinson, the research scientist who brought an $8 million suit against Proxmire, was not a "public figure" who had to prove actual malice to win a libel judgment.

Dolphins Aid Search
HULL, Mass. (UPI)— Scientists who have spent the past nine years trying to find the elusive Loch Ness Monster are turning the job over to a team of highly trained dolphins.

A spokesman for the American Academy of Applied Sciences said Tuesday the dolphins will be equipped with an underwater still-camera, sonar and a strobe light when they are released into the famous Scottish lake to look for Nessie and her mythical friends.

"When an animal passes through the beam, he triggers the strobe and the camera," said Howard Curtis.

Stone Seeks Hearing
WASHINGTON (UPI)— Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., contends the Treasury Department is under pressure not to seek a hearing on an anti-dumping petition by Florida winter vegetable growers.

The growers charge Mexican vegetables are being dumped into the United States. Stone brought the matter to the attention of his Senate colleagues Tuesday.

An aide said there has been pressure for the case to be dropped without a resolution by representatives of Arizona brokers of Mexican vegetables.

Iowa To Test Gasohol
WASHINGTON (UPI)— Amoco has selected a small town in Iowa as a gasohol test market in the first move by a major oil refiner to size up the American motorist's thirst for the 20-proof alternative to gasoline.

"Beginning sometime in early July, five stations in Ottumwa, Iowa, will be selling gasohol," Amoco spokesman Carl Meyerdrick said Tuesday. "It's to determine what are the problems and how they can be solved in the distribution of gasohol."

Several other small Midwestern markets eventually will be tested in the pilot Amoco marketing program that is expected to last a year or more, Meyerdrick said.

Newest Casino Opens
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)— The first bet, a $100 wager at the baccarat table by an employee was a loser. But with that bet, Caesars World ended a 13-month monopoly Resorts International has had on East Coast gambling.

The newest of Atlantic City's casinos, the Boardwalk Regency Hotel-Casino, opened Tuesday with little fanfare, but a crowd of eager people ready to gamble.

The $ pm opening of the $75 million Boardwalk Regency complex came after a successful four-day trial period using play money, with 2,000 gamblers lining up for a new opportunity to lay cash down on green velvet tables.

Farmers Must Repay Loans
WASHINGTON (UPI)— For the first time since the farmer-owned reserve was established in 1977, prices of two grains—barley and oats—have risen high enough so that farmers must repay loans on reserve stocks of the grains.

The Agriculture Department announced Tuesday that farmers have 30 days to repay loans on barley in a 46-million-bushel reserve and oats in a 38 million bushel reserve.

The announcement that oats and barley prices had reached "call" levels was another reflection of rising commodity prices resulting from increased foreign and domestic demand for grain.

Carbon Monoxide Poisoning

New Jersey Man Dies In Gasoline Line

By ANDREW TULLY III
United Press International
A man in New Jersey died from apparent carbon monoxide poisoning while waiting in line for precious gasoline.

In Baton Rouge, the Louisiana House approved a measure that would keep the oil-rich state's crude for its own residents and deny it to "the people in Massachusetts and New York and California."

And while the OPEC ministers were meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, figuring how much to raise the cost of oil, word came out of Washington the cost of gas already had jumped 5 percent in May.

The gas crisis' latest fatality was Carl Riley of North Brunswick, N.J. Police found him parked in a gas line at a Hess station in Rahway, N.J., about 6:30 a.m. Monday. He apparently had died of carbon monoxide poisoning. Police said he had been waiting in line for two hours.

In Baton Rouge, some of the state's legislators figured the industrialized North would not build pipelines and won't build refineries and won't explore for oil because they don't want to get their hands dirty or their land dirty," state Rep. Sam LeBlanc said.

In Boston, state Rep. Thomas C. Norton retorted, "That's reminiscent of the bumper stickers that used to say 'Drive 65 and Freeze a Yankee's Ass.'"

New York Gov. Hugh Carey denounced the measure as "obviously going against the whole spirit of the country." And an assemblyman in California noted that his state doesn't get any oil from Louisiana anyway.

In New Jersey, Gov. Brendan Byrne said he has federal permission to follow New York in using some of July's allocations to get the state's motorists through the rest of June. New York is using 25 million gallons of the July allocation for the last five days of this month.

In Baltimore, the state of Maryland sued the Department of Energy Tuesday, charging the state-by-state allocation program is shortchanging the industrialized Northeast.

OPEC's latest price increase is likely to raise the cost of a gallon of gas by about a nickel. And the May price increase for gas announced Tuesday would amount to a 5.1 percent annual rise if maintained at that level for a year.

To make matters more expensive, about half the gas retailers in Delaware and Pennsylvania called a strike for Thursday to protest for higher profits, and at least 150 gas stations in Illinois say they will strike this weekend. Gas dealers in Florida and Virginia are considering similar shutdowns.

It's Time For Advice, Consent

The fateful question of whether the second Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty between the United States and the Soviet Union should be ratified or amended has given rise to one of those great debates that have shaped American history. The stage has been set for a national decision with the signing of the treaty in Vienna Monday, June 18, and, remarkably, President Carter's address to the Congress and the nation that evening, only hours after leaving his final meeting with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

Unfortunately, in pronouncing the affirmative argument of this debate, the president was less than persuasive. By failing to address the specific concerns of those who fear SALT II will increase rather than diminish the nation's peril, he may have conceded the first round to his opponents.

Mr. Carter spoke largely in generalities about why the treaty "must be judged on its own merits." Moreover, he weakened his case by exaggerating SALT II's ability to limit the Soviet arms buildup as well as the dangers that will result if the Senate refuses ratification.

But it is not fear of what may happen if SALT II is amended or turned down that impresses those who are undecided or opposed to the treaty. It is fear of the treaty itself that weighs far more heavily. The questioning now coming from all across the political spectrum is instructive.

Sen. Henry Jackson, Wash., a leading SALT authority in the Senate, denounces the treaty as "appeasement." Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, warns the agreement permits the Soviet Union to increase its intercontinental missile force from 600 to 820 and its nuclear warheads from 5,000 to 15,000.

Significantly, some of the most impressive opposition to SALT II comes from military experts. For example, Lt. Gen. Edward Rowley, the Joint Chiefs of Staff's representative on the U.S. SALT negotiating team, has just resigned from the Army, making no secret of his disapproval of the treaty. Retired Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, former chief of naval operations, says SALT II is "fraud" that permits the Soviets a first-strike capability that could wipe out the U.S. counterforce. And Gen. Bernard W. Rogers, the Army's chief of staff who leaves soon to become supreme commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, warns that the growing U.S. disadvantage "will encourage the Russians to test us around the world."

What are the American people to believe? What conclusion can they draw from the clashing views of authorities upon whom they must rely for understanding of so complex an issue.

Fortunately, the hearings and debates in the Senate during the next few weeks will offer a better public understanding about whether SALT II is, in fact, a good deal for the United States and the Soviet Union. This ventilation of differences will not be the sabotage of détente by arbitrary obstructionists that the administration as well as President Brezhnev suggest. Rather, it will be healthy exercise in representative government as mandated by the framers of the Constitution, who sought the wisdom of the Senate's collective judgment on treaties and presidential appointments.

The constitutional provision for the Senate to advise as well as consent to treaties calls for the enactment of whatever amendments of SALT II the Senate may deem necessary.

On balance, we can assume that most senators as well as most Americans would favor a treaty truly limiting the arms race — or, even better, one that would require drastic cutbacks in armaments. The Senate's difficult task now is to determine how far SALT II misses this goal and what the remedy should be.

For, when hydrogen-tipped missiles have given nations the power to slay each other like gun-slingers in a shootout, we cannot afford to be second best. If there is doubt or error, it must be on the side of safety and survival.

Around

The Clock

By Jim Haynes

Okay, pop. You can plan that vacation anytime, now. . . you can take the bandaids and aspirin out of your purse. Little League season is over.

With the exception of those all-stars selected to stick around and put in another month of practice and post-season games, it's all over except for the shouting.

The kids are likely heading for the nearest water hole. Baseball was a long and demanding season. Oh, the rewards were there, it's just that both kids and parents already have their summer tanks from sitting in the sun for those tedious afternoon games. It's a case of "what do people do on a Saturday afternoon?"

Families who pack up and head for the ball park on Saturdays are suddenly faced with some nice options. Like sleeping late. No more 9 a.m. rookkie games.

And remember the beach? Well, it's hot there too, but at least that salt air breeze and pounding surf replace the flavor of four hits and three strikes. My sons were both happy and sad the season ended. Sorry they don't get to play any more games, but happy they don't have to go to any more practices for awhile.

They are going fishing today. And tomorrow. The scope of Little League is such that family involvement is considerably more than Alton Doubleday had in mind when he invented the grand old sport.

Old Alton hardly pictured parents chewing out umpires, second-guessing coaches and offering a thousand suggestions to improve junior's batting average.

This was the first year in recent memory that we managed to get through the Central Florida season without an on-field tussle between either coaches-umpire, coaches-fans or fans-umpire.

I know, pop. Things don't get really hot until all-star time rolls around. . . . And as an after-thought, mom, if you can't figure out what to do with your extra time, I have a suggestion.

Stay close to your phone — they might need an all-star alternate.

ANGLE-WALTERS

Some Good Candor

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Members of Congress can be less than candid about how much it costs to care and feed them.

Although they want a 5.3 percent pay raise and think they deserve it, most don't want to be officially recorded in favor of it.

At $67,500 annually plus generous fringe benefits, members of Congress are in the nation's top 1 percent salary bracket. Many of their aides receive only a few thousand dollars less.

True, they don't spend the full amount allotted to them for staff salaries — but the nearly $200 million annually spent for congressional staff is more than double the 1970 total.

Congress's "efficient" operation still employs nearly 100 persons to operate automatic elevators.

And that kind of waste is peanuts compared to the office building the Senate is constructing for itself. In 1972, its planners said it would be completed in four years for $48 million. The latest estimates peg the completion date in the mid-1980s and the cost at $150 million.

So perhaps it is understandable why most Senate and House members prefer not to discuss their own budget needs.

Rep. Bill Nelson, a Florida freshman Democrat, reflected the prevailing House mood when he said about the proposed 5.3 percent pay raise: "I think the people in my district are quite upset when they are crimped in their home budgets with inflation and they see the Congress increasing its salary."

Another lawmaker, GOP Rep. Ron Paul of Texas, said that his colleagues should not get a raise but should vote themselves a pay cut equivalent to the inflation rate. At that rate, they could be receiving welfare checks in a few years.

But should they be so defensive? True, it now costs more than a billion dollars annually to operate Congress and its support agencies such as the Library of Congress and the General Accounting Office. But that is only one-fifth of 1 percent of the entire federal budget.

And most congressional aides do work harder than the far more numerous bureaucrats in the executive branch.

In addition, serving in Congress can be a tough grind. Many members keep busy in Washington from Monday to Thursday with committee meetings, votes, staff discussions, White House briefings, receptions and so on. Often that is only the beginning as they return to their local base for weekend meetings, speeches, more receptions and the like.

Many Senate and House members criticize the cost of the increasing number of reporters sifting out of the congressional mall rooms. But a recent Louis Harris poll showed the public wants more communication and service from its representatives in Washington, not less.

It is certainly true that no one forced them to enter politics or to keep a busy schedule, but the public does have a stake in quality representation and should recognize it requires some effort and skill.

Unhappy Saudis Cut Back Oil Pumping

WASHINGTON — Six months ago, Saudi Arabia began pumping oil full-blast to accommodate the United States during the shutdown of the Iranian oil fields. But today, the disenchanted Saudis are cutting back production sharply. "Why should it be Saudi Arabia's responsibility to meet the shortage?" Foreign Minister Saad al-Faisal has demanded.

It's an unsettling question, which poses a direct threat to the oil industry of the United States. First, the demand of the shah jeopardized the flow of oil from Iran. Now the cavalier attitude of the Saudi sheikhs raises ominous new supply uncertainties.

The Saudis had always been staunchly pro-American. Then what caused this change of heart? Why are they suddenly unwilling to do the United States any favors?

The answer can be found in White House papers which have been concealed from the American people. Last November, for example, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger warned President Carter of the grim consequences of an Iranian collapse. The curtailment of oil shipments from Iran, he said, could be more serious to the United States than the Middle East oil embargo of 1973-74.

But the Saudis came to the rescue with a dramatic upsurge in oil production. The Jan. 19, 1979, Cabinet minutes, carefully marked for the "eyes only" of top officials, recorded:

WASHINGTON WORLD

Don't Hold Your Breath

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When we built the interstate highway system, one of the goals was supposed to be the rejuvenation of the cities by making it easier to get goods and people in and out of their congested centers.

Instead, we gave the suburbs a giant boost with both bedrooms and workplaces with the big new roads. At least for a while, made things economically and politically worse for the established cities and the people who remained in them.

That was the kind of negative accomplishment that well-meaning planners have made infamous in recent decades. But it isn't just public works enthusiasts who get us into situations that are just as bad or even worse than the original predicament.

Public financing of election campaigns provides an example. Back in the heat of Watergate days, reformers jumped on the chance to get the "fat cats" out of politics by pushing public financing.

In fairness, it should be said that groups like Common Cause tried very hard to get across-the-board legislation that would cover congressional as well as presidential campaigns.

The Senate, in fact, approved congressional public financing. But opposition in the House was led by one Wayne Hays of Ohio and he still had enough clout to stop the show.

The big public objection against public financing of congressional races was that it was a waste of taxpayers' hard-earned dollars. The bestieged shah had pleaded with the Carter administration for advice and support. But Carter had sent back word that the revolution was the shah's problem. "This is something in the hands of the people of Iran," said the president, with an air of detachment.

The Saudis rulers wondered whether they would receive the same indifferent treatment if their own regime were endangered. They put Carter to the test by calling on him to protect the tremendous U. S. stake in the Persian Gulf oil fields. He responded by ordering the aircraft carrier Constellation to rush, full-steam, from the Philippines to the Persian Gulf. But then he canceled the order, and the carrier dropped anchor off Singapore.

The Soviets tightened the pressure on Saudi Arabia, inexchange, by airlifting 500 Cuban mercenaries into the Arabian sea and sending them into action against Saudi-organized North Yemen. In response to another appeal Carter dispatched a dozen F-15 fighter planes to Saudi Arabia. But they arrived unarmed.

Distillation and desperate, the Saudis turned to their Arab neighbors, Syria and Iraq, which have close ties to Moscow. The Iraqis quickly persuaded the Soviets to call off the assault on North Yemen. Iraq also rushed a division of troops to the troubled Iranian border. So instead of the American military muscle that the Saudis had sought, the Iraqis are staging a show of force at the head of the Persian Gulf.

Now Iraq is leading the clamor inside the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries for high oil prices. Perhaps the Saudis cannot be blamed for paying more heed to Iraq than to the United States.

At the last OPEC strategy meeting in March, the oil ministers reportedly agreed to curtail production and keep supplies scarce. This was the best way, they concluded, to force higher prices upon the world.

The Saudis, who had protected U. S. interests in the past, agreed to the price pressure. They served notice on Washington that they no longer intended to play oil at a level to suit the United States.

Reported Schlesinger to the Cabinet on May 7: "The Saudi Arabian government has made it clear the production levels will come down to an average of 8.5 million barrels a day." Worse, the Saudis intend to make the 8.5 million figure the average for the year.

"Achieving this on an annual average," Schlesinger explained glumly behind closed doors, "would require a reduction well below the 8.5 million barrels level during the second quarter of this year."

The Saudis have indicated that they might increase production to help stabilize world oil prices but not, they emphasized, to alleviate shortages in the United States.

They are going fishing today. And tomorrow. The scope of Little League is such that family involvement is considerably more than Alton Doubleday had in mind when he invented the grand old sport.

South Africa Change

Conventional wisdom about most any issue usually lags behind changing realities. Though a few journalists have been reporting it, not many Americans are yet aware of how strong the winds of change are blowing in South Africa.

Last week a team of high-level public and private leaders from that country — white, black and Asian (Indian) — opened the eyes of U.S. businessmen meeting in Palm Springs, Calif., who attended a two-day seminar titled "Why Invest in South Africa?"

Sample from Dr. Jan S. Marais, member of the South African parliament: "Are we racist? Yes. Do we have color discrimination? Yes. Is there denial of basic human rights? Yes. But, are we agonizing about it? Yes. And, are changes taking place? Yes."

Though I didn't attend the seminar, a friend brought me notes from the several speeches, and Marais' straightforward candor was typical.

The seminar came in the wake of major shakeups in the cabinet of Prime Minister Pieter Willem Botha. In effect, the changes will consolidate the strength of Botha's reform wing of the National Party.

Among the messages that come through in the speeches were these from the South Africans: We have a diverse society and the solutions to our problems must be our own, but we are working together to solve them. . . . Don't put your investments, add to them. Our economy is growing and if you pull out you'll hurt the very people you're trying to help, the blacks. . . . We have only four percent of the African land mass but we produce 25 percent of the food and are helping some of the poorest black neighbors (black states) stay alive. . . . Our mineral resources are vital to the West. Don't lose them.

Judging from the notes, two of the most forceful speakers were David Thebehal, the black mayor of Soweto, and J. N. Reddy, a Hindu member of the South African parliament. Democratically elected by the million residents of Soweto, Thebehal painted a picture of a city on the verge of an urban renewal explosion. A multi-million dollar program to provide new housing and amenities is about to begin. He said: "My colleagues and I on the city council took the prime minister at his word when he promised us full municipal powers, and up to now we have had no reason to regret this."

Thebehal stresses that nearly all the impediments to black business have been lifted in Soweto and already negotiations are underway by black entrepreneurs to establish complexes in Soweto never dreamed of 10 years ago.

Criticizing not the motives but the strategy of U.S. and British groups to pressure industrial firms to "disinvest" from South Africa, Mr. Reddy said, "Make no mistake, South Africa is sophisticated enough to run your factories if you pull out. You will be the losers, not we."

Keynote speaker was Dr. Pieter Koornhof, minister of cooperation and development, who is a widely respected reform-minded Afrikaner in charge of white-black relations. He said South Africa is now entering a period of "deep reform."

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Federal Judge Halts Proffitt's Execution

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — A federal judge Tuesday halted the scheduled execution today of convicted murderer Charles William Proffitt, virtually shutting the door, for this week at least, to Florida's execution chamber.

U.S. District Judge W. Terrell Hodges ordered a stay of execution and referred Proffitt's petition for a writ of habeas corpus to a U.S. magistrate in Tampa for a recommendation on whether an evidentiary hearing should be held.

Less than 24 hours before Hodges issued his four-page order in Jacksonville, U.S. District Judge Jose Gonzalez issued a similar stay Monday in Fort Lauderdale for another convicted murderer, Robert A. Sullivan.

MIAMI (UPI) — The circuit judge presiding at Theodore Bundy's murder trial Tuesday night declined to isolate more than 400 prospective jurors so they could not read or hear news reports referring to the accused killer's past.

Ten jurors have been seated, but only tentatively. Sixteen other people out of a venire of 500 were dismissed after detailed questioning intended to reveal their attitudes toward Bundy and the death penalty.

Miami's Chief Circuit Judge Edward Cowart held an evening court session Tuesday that lasted until 10 p.m. He has expressed exasperation at the slow pace of jury selection. Cowart said he also is considering conducting court on Saturdays. He estimated the trial would last one month.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The Florida's Department of Law Enforcement's new director says field agents won't have to check with him before making any major decision, but will be able to act on their own.

The inability of agents to act decisively has quickly been one of the FOLE's biggest faults, says James W. York, who is resigning as City of Orlando police chief to accept the $40,000 year job.

The Cabinet voted 8-1 Tuesday to hire York on Gov. Bob Graham's recommendation. It succeeds Bill Troelstrup, fired by Graham five months ago.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham has signed bills that ease to punish unethical or incompetent contractors, contractors and public accountants.

Graham signed the three proposals Tuesday. Aides say he is studying the other two or so bills on regulatory agencies which came up for "summary review" during the 1979 legislative session and may act on them later today.

The contractors bill (HB 183) expands the grounds for disciplinary actions and includes provision to keep the public from getting bilked under prepayment plans. Two citizen members are added to the professional-dominated licensing board.

Lake Mary Declaring War On Abandoned, Junk Cars

By BRAD PURDOM
Herald Staff Writer

"You can drive down almost any street in Lake Mary and find junked cars," said City Manager Phil Kubles. "And I want to get rid of them."

Noting he had received at least a dozen complaints from citizens over the past few months, Kubles said Wednesday he planned to begin ridding the city of junked and abandoned automobiles immediately.

Kubles said the procedure begins with the sending of a letter of notification to anyone with such a car on their property. After receiving the letter, he said, the owner of the property has three days to clear the auto off his land. If he does not, Kubles said, the case would be turned over to the State Attorney's office for prosecution.

"I have the names and addresses for at least 115 people here," Kubles said. "I'm going to start writing letters today."

"I want Lake Mary to be the pleasant little community it should be," Kubles added. "If the city attorney says we are on solid ground, you're going to see some action around here."

Gary Massey, city attorney, said Wednesday the city "has every right to impound the cars if people don't heed the letters." Massey said the action would be legal.

City ordinance imposes a fine not exceeding $200 or a jail term of not more than 30 days, or both, for persons convicted of violating the law. According to the ordinance, a junked car is one that is "dismantled, partially dismantled, wrecked, junked, non-operating or non-discarded" and is located in a spot other than a junkyard.

Kubles said Massey had informed him he would consider the city's case, solid if the automobiles in question had no current license tag or inspection sticker. Kubles said that would constitute the city's "criterion for deciding whether a car was 'junked.'"

July 4 Committee To Meet

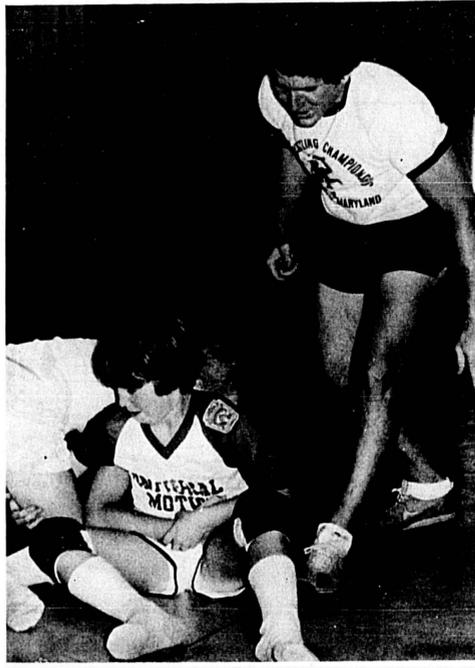

The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce has called a meeting of the Fourth of July Committee for Thursday at 5 p.m. in the chamber's First Street conference room.

The chamber's executive manager Jack Horner said all committee members are urged to attend to discuss the final arrangements for booth locations, exhibits and other planned activity.

He also urged all donations for fireworks be turned in at the meeting, indicating the group is still about $200 short of the $1,200 it will cost for the pyrotechnics.

Here is a list of those who have donated for fireworks to date: Atlantic National Bank, Jaycees, Sanford Youth

Baseball Assoc., Flagship Bank of Seminole, Sanford Serenaders, First Federal of Mid Florida, Robert E. Daehn, Sanford Senior Citizens, Knights of Columbus, Janice and Wendell Springfield, Fleet Reserve Association, Dr. Jack Morrison, Rotary Club of Sanford, Tri-County Roadrunners, Sanford Optimist Club, Bob Hattaway, Woman's Club, Pilot's Club,

Longwood OKs Land Use Map

By JANE CASSELLBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood City Commission has voted 3-1 to accept the long-range Comprehensive Land Use Plan map with four changes.

The city clerk has been authorized to set a public hearing on the map.

Commissioner J. R. Grant, one of three property owners objecting to proposed changes, cast the opposing vote Monday night.

The Grant property presently industrially zoned in a residential area, will be designated residential on the new map. The Land Planning Agency (LPA) had recommended a commercial designation for the map.

Wallace Henderson of the LPA said the property has a cemetery on one side and a railroad track on the other so they had not condemned it to future single-family use. He said the board felt by designating it commercial it would form a buffer between neighboring industrial and residential zoning.

Grant said he favored the commercial zoning as he eventually hoped to build duplexes there and thought he would stand a better chance of getting approval of the property were not already zoned residential.

Kenneth Dolmeier objected to the proposed residential designation on the map for his property on E. Williamson Road that is currently designated commercial. Dolmeier, who operates a kennel on the property, accused the commission of trying to take away his livelihood.

"It doesn't seem right," he added, pointing out that property had been zoned commercial and been used for a period of 20 years. He said the zoning was located on the back of the property and a low swampy area makes that part of the property unsuitable for building homes. Dolmeier said he is the only kennel in the city.

It was recommended by the Land Planning Agency that the present operation be allowed to continue until the property is sold or the kennel operation is suspended for 180 days. It was pointed out that any qualifying phrases (such as permitting the owner to rebuild in case of a fire) would have to be spelled out in a yet to be written comprehensive zoning ordinance.

In recent years the area surrounding the kennel property has seen much residential development, influencing the commission to seek a zoning change.

The commission also approved a residential zoning designation for the northwest corner of Longwood Hills and Lake Emma Road, currently B-1 Business. The owner of one included piece—identified only as a "Mr. Takvorian, who lives up north"—had objected to the change as he had future plans for building a professional building there.

The commission also accepted the LPA recommendation that a 600-foot deep commercial strip be established on the south side of State Road 434 from County Road 427 to the western city limits.

Poll Shows Reagan Tops Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Both Ronald Reagan and Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker were running ahead of President Carter in the latest ABC-Harris poll, with former Texas Gov. John Connally closing fast.

Reagan still led Connally 52-41, but the gap had narrowed sharply since the 65-32 percent he enjoyed in March.

The survey said a majority of Democrats and independents—58 percent—believe Kennedy would defeat Carter for the nomination. By a 46-53 percent margin, the poll showed Carter was not expected to be nominated again regardless of who opposes him in the primaries, and the same group, by 51-39 percent, believe Carter will not be re-elected if nominated.

The poll was a sampling of 1,218 voters across the country.

Reprimand Bible-Toters

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho (UPI) — Two more enlisted men have been reprimanded at Mountain Home Air Force Base for reading the Bible while on duty.

Airmen 1st Class Douglas Steve Ristau of Klamath Falls, Ore., and Chris Christensen of New York City, both of the 366th Security Police Squadron, were given written administrative reprimands Monday by their commanding officer.

Capt. George Titus, a spokesman for the base, said the airmen were relieved of duty Thursday "for carrying unauthorized reading material." He said they were reading the Bible.

A week ago an honorable discharge was issued to Airman Steve Ristau of San Mateo, Calif., who continued to read the Bible while on duty despite court-martial threats by the Air Force.

EVERY PET'S A WINNER

There were no losers, only winners as the Sanford Library sponsored its first annual pet show on the library lawn. A total of 22 pets were entered in the contest including a lizard and gerbils. There were 22 first place awards presented in 22 different categories just for insurance competition.

IN THE SERVICE

Wayne GATES, son of Ernest F. Gates, Jr. and Mrs. Wilfred D. Gates, lives at 302 Palmetto Drive, Longwood. He was assigned as a rifleman with the 7th Infantry Division at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii. He entered the Army in March 1974.

James AVRETT, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory D. Avrett, 303 Palm Place, Sanford, recently was promoted to Army Staff Sergeant while serving as a battalion sergeant major with the 1st Infantry Division at Fort Benning, Georgia. He entered the Army in January 1968. Avrett's wife, Terry, is with him in Germany.

Chemist: We Can Grow Oil

By TOM TIEDE BERKELEY, Calif. (NEA) — Dr. Melvin Calvin got the idea appropriately enough. He was stranded in a gasoline line during the 1973 Arab oil embargo, and, disgusted, he formed a hypothesis: since most fuels come from the energies of dead plants, why can't they also be extracted from live ones?

And so the good doctor, a Nobel Prize-winning chemist at the University of California, began a little known experiment that may be the most innovative approach to the energy crisis yet proposed. He suggests the nation and the world grow barrels of oil massive "petroleum" plantations.

No giggles. Calvin is already raising prototype oil on various plots throughout Southern California. This is not imitation oil, he says. It's real crude: black, gummy, and with a calorific value of 17,000 Btu per gallon. Moreover, its cost — $99 a barrel — is now competitive with the world rate.

To be sure, Calvin's notion is not yet ready for gas tanks. Oil crops, if they come at all, are years away from wide reality. But Calvin and his associates are convinced the plan is fundamentally marketable.

One day, they insist, the fields of America may bloom with petroleum as well as grain. And the sooner the better, Calvin adds. He has charts which indicate the world's subterranean oil supply will be gone in 20 years. Coal supplies are much more plentiful, he admits, but turning coal into oil creates a byproduct known as benzopyrene, a substance that is known to be carcinogenic.

And even benzopyrene is removed to coal liquefaction, a very expensive procedure, the burning of fossil fuels increases the world's already excessive supply of carbon dioxide. Calvin says when carbon dioxide collects, it prevents heat from leaving the earth — a process with catastrophic implications.

Abbar's Days Numbered?

NEW YORK (UPI) — The toughest admission for any athlete to make is that he's through. The next most difficult one is for him to realize that the biggest part of his career is behind him.

For years, Abdul-Jabbar was the most dominant one-man force in professional basketball. Some say he still is on given nights. He was the league's MVP record five times, but this past season the award went to Houston's 25-year-old Moses Malone, and if taking a back seat to Malone bothers him, he doesn't make a big point of it.

"I think it's really impossible to say who the No. 1 player is today," he says off-handedly. One day, they insist, the fields of America may bloom with petroleum as well as grain.

Along with that, the introspective Lakers' center begins work on the movie "Airplane" Thursday. "Doing something in the movies is a possibility after basketball," he says.

But how many parts do there figure to be for a 7-2 former basketball player? "By no means am I saying I'll be a sure box office attraction, but I like doing movie work as well as going to law school."

Moose increased its lead to 2-0 with another run in the bottom of the third. Rotundo walked with one out and stole second and third. McGowan watched a called third strike for the second out, and Walker was intentionally walked. V.F.W. pitcher Alton Davis balked, allowing Rotundo to score and sending Walker to second before Carter grounded out to the first baseman.

V.F.W. scored its first run in the top of the fourth. Stanley Hogan singled to center with two outs, stole second and took third on a wild pitch. Davis then drilled a single to score Hogan. Prior to Hogan's single, Walker had retired the first 11 batters in order, although Greg Hill reached base on an error with two outs in the second. He was caught stealing third.

FUEL ADJUSTMENT GOES UP AND CAR USE GOES DOWN. The effect is clear: fuel has on customer fuel adjustment charge. The media makes much of it, but it is a decrease.

The June adjustment was the primary reason was a decrease in nuclear generation from 29% in March to only 7.2% of total electrical generation in April.

Why? Because nuclear plants were being reloaded so that they will be available for maximum generation during the hotter summer months. Those fuels not produced by nuclear had to be produced by oil.

Chemist: We Can Grow Oil

By TOM TIEDE
BERKELEY, Calif. (NEA) — Dr. Melvin Calvin got the idea appropriately enough. He was stranded in a gasoline line during the 1973 Arab oil embargo, and, disgusted, he formed a hypothesis: since most fuels come from the energies of dead plants, why can't they also be extracted from live ones?

And so the good doctor, a Nobel Prize-winning chemist at the University of California, began a little known experiment that may be the most innovative approach to the energy crisis yet proposed. He suggests the nation and the world grow barrels of oil on massive "petroleum plantations."

No giggles. Calvin is already raising prototype oil on various plots throughout Southern California. This is not imitation oil, he says. It's real crude: black, gloop, and with a caloric value of 17,000 Btu per barrel. Moreover, its cost — $20 a barrel — is now competitive with the world rate.

To be sure, Calvin's notion is not yet ready for gas tanks. Oil crops, if they come at all, are years away from wide reality. But Calvin and his associates are convinced the plan is fundamentally marketable. One day, they insist, the fields of America may bloom with petroleum as well as grain.

And the sooner the better, Calvin adds. He has charts which indicate the world's subterranean oil supply will be gone in 20 years. Coal supplies are much more plentiful, he admits, but turning coal into oil creates a byproduct known as benzopyrene, a substance that is known to be carcinogenic.

Even if benzopyrene is removed in oil purification, a very expensive procedure, the burning of fossil fuels increases the world's already excessive supply of carbon dioxide. Calvin says when carbon dioxide collects, it prevents heat from leaving the earth — a process with catastrophic implications.

So, conceivably, petroleum plantations would help alleviate two world dilemmas. They would constitute an eternally renewable fuel resource, and the crops would not pollute. Besides, Dr. Calvin says the "weed" that Calvin is working with is called Euphorbia lathyris, or "gopher plant." It's a scrub that grows in wild profusion across the southwest. It's an easy duckling member of the poinsettia family, and it has at least 2,000 relatives. It grows tall and angular as do stalks of corn.

The oil of the E. lathyris is produced by photosynthesis, the devotion to which produced Dr. Calvin's Nobel Prize. The chemist says photosynthesis separates hydrogen and water in the plant, and produces carbohydrates. In time the carbohydrates are reduced to hydrocarbons, or, in effect, petroleum.

abbar's Days Numbered?
NEW YORK (UPI) — The toughest admission for any athlete to concede that the biggest part of his career is behind him. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar doesn't have that kind of hangup.

His basketball career isn't finished yet by any means, but he's honest enough to tell you the major portion of it is over, the moon is in the last quarter, so to speak, and quite likely something entirely different is in store for him up the road, possibly in the music industry or maybe in the movies.

"I've definitely played more seasons than I'm going to play," says the Los Angeles Lakers' center, who has put in 10 years in the NBA. "Professional sports are unique in that you're at the end of your career before you're 40. I'd like to fulfill my present contract which runs until I'm 35. What I would like to do is keep playing as long as I have the physical and mental capacity. My present contract will give me that."

For years, Abdul-Jabbar was the most dominant one-man force in professional basketball. Some say he still is on given nights. He was the league's MVP a record five times, but this past season the award went to Houston's 25-year-old Moses Malone, and if taking a back seat to Malone bothers him, he doesn't make a big point of it.

"I think it's really impossible to say who the No. 1 player is today," he says off-handedly.

Here to encephalogram a local jazz ceremony honoring the famed saxophonist Lester Young, Abdul-Jabbar continues to involve himself more and more with music. He hosted a three-day jazz festival in Los Angeles last year and will do so again this year on Sept. 7-9.

Along with that, the introspective Lakers' center begins work on the movie "Airplane" Thursday.

"Doing something in the movies is a possibility after basketball," he says.

But how many parts do there figure to be for a 7-2 former basketball player?

"By no means am I saying I'll be a sure box office attraction, but I like doing movie work," says Abdul-Jabbar. "I've thought about the music industry as well as going to law school."

Measured by any yardstick, Abdul-Jabbar has come a long way since the days when he was known as Lew Alcindor. Sheltered and protected to a large degree because of all the publicity he generated in high school and college, he never had too much to say and was thought of being withdrawn.

"People, the press, thought it was my image and I accepted it," he says. "It wasn't necessarily the way I really felt. I suppose the way I answered questions helped people come to the conclusion they did about me being a private person. I don't elaborate. I've never asked questions. I'm more to the point. But that doesn't mean I have any bad feelings toward the press. They've proved I'm pretty accessible."

"Fans' interest can't be sustained over such a long period. The organization has talked about playing the same number of games as I did in my school and college. In my opinion, that will make the game less exciting because the players will become more tired and more prone to injury."

Abdul-Jabbar was here during the NBA draft, although he didn't attend it. The procedure, however, reminded him of how he felt about the draft choice in 1969.

"I thought Milwaukee was so far away," he says.

Then in 1975, he said he wanted to be traded and the Bucks obliged by making a deal for him with the Lakers.

"I wish I could've brought the Milwaukee fans into Los Angeles with me," he says. "They were always very interested. The Los Angeles fans are different. They come late and leave early and don't do much while they're there."

China, Taiwan Still At Odds Over Olympics

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — China says it wants to participate in next year's Summer Olympics and it wants to let Taiwan participate too, but only with a name, a flag and a national anthem to indicate that Taiwan is a province of China.

Taiwan says it insists on full equality between the two Chinese representations.

With the rival Chinese delegations still at odds and not conceding an inch from their previous positions, the matter will be left for the International Olympic Committee to decide at its executive meeting today.

On the eve of the scheduled discussion of how more than 900 million Chinese should be represented in international sports events, both sides distributed statements Tuesday, but they brought little news.

So far, mainland China has kept out of the Olympics because of the IOC's refusal to expel Taiwan. The Communist Chinese declaration said again Peking is now willing to let Taiwan participate in the Olympic movement but only as the "Chinese Taiwan Olympic Committee" — that is to say as a local organization of China.

The Peking declaration said Taiwan shouldn't use terms like "Taiwan," "National flag," a "National anthem," or "anything that could symbolize the Republic of China."

Rangers Closing In On California

By United Press International The Texas Rangers are doing it in spite of injuries and that's a good sign for any manager. "Right now the best thing we are doing is pitching the ball and catching it," Texas Manager Pat Corrales said Tuesday night after the Rangers topped San Diego, St. Louis and San Francisco 6, Atlanta 5, Yankees 11, Blue Jays 3. Jim Spencer slammed a two-run homer to back up the eight-inning pitching of Luis Tiant, 6-2.

Jon Matlack, 5-4, struck out nine and allowed seven hits through 8-3 innings before Jim Klem came on to record his 12th save. Billy Sample broke up the game in the eighth with a solo homer. "It's always big to drive in the winning run," said Sample. "But this was a big game, a good game, a well-pitched game and to break up a game like that is something special."

Even though Richie Zisk is slumping and sitting on the bench, Al Oliver is still out of the lineup with a sprained hand and catcher Jim Sundberg is in the hospital with a bruise on his head from being hit with a Don Asse pitch, the Rangers managed to win their eighth game in 11 outings and hand the division-leading Angels their fifth straight loss.

Asses record slipped to 6-4 and in those six losses the Angels have scored a total of eight runs. "In other games, the New York Yankees hammered Toronto, 11-4, Detroit upended Boston, 6-4, Baltimore nipped Cleveland, 6-0, Seattle nipped the Chicago White Sox, 5-2, Minnesota edged

Texas Vs. Houston A Possibility

World Series 'On The Range?'

By United Press International An all-Texas World Series? Before you laugh, remember the Texas Rangers are only one game behind first-place California in the American League West and the Houston Astros — who have never won more than 84 games in any of their 17 years of existence — have suddenly pulled out to the major leagues' largest lead — 6½ games over Cincinnati in the National League West. "I have to say they (Astros) are for real," conceded Cincinnati's Joe Morgan Tuesday night, after Houston rallied for five eighth-inning runs en route to a 6-5 triumph over the Reds. "They are no flake. They are getting a lot of breaks but we have to have them to win."

What you also need for a pennant is all 25 players contributing throughout the season. Seldom-used Denny Walling slammed a three-run homer and pinch hitter Jesus Alou, who moonlights as the regular first-base coach, hit a two-run double as the Astros won their 18th in the last 20 at the Astrodome.

Cincinnati's George Foster blasted his 13th and 14th homers of the month, giving him 19 overall and a major-league leading 83 RBI. Joe Sambito, who earned his seventh save, has not allowed an earned run in his last 19 appearances, spanning 30 2/3 innings.

In other NL games, Philadelphia topped Chicago, 5-3, Pittsburgh edged New York, 2-1, Montreal trimmed St. Louis, 5-3, San Diego beat Los Angeles, 5-1, and San Francisco defeated Atlanta, 6-5. In the AL, it was: Baltimore 4, Cleveland 3; New York 11, Toronto 2; Detroit 6, Boston 4; Minnesota 8, Milwaukee 7; Texas 2, California 1; Kansas City 7, Oakland 6 in 10 innings; Philadelphia 5, Cubs 3.

Mike Schmidt's three-run homer capped a four-run sixth inning that carried Philadelphia over Chicago, 5-3, before a Wrigley Field season-high crowd of 35,970. Pirates 2, Mets 1: Bill Robinson celebrated his 35th birthday with a seventh-inning home run to break a tie and lift Pittsburgh over New York.

Rain, Upsets Set Tone At Wimbledon

Cawley was sidelined for nine months with an ankle injury, but took both titles in the pre-Wimbledon grass tournaments at Beckenham and Chichester. "Now I want to win Wimbledon again before I stop playing," she said Tuesday after dispatching American Marie Loue, 6-0, 6-3, in the first round with her customary flair.

McKay A Squash Household Word

By BARBARA McDOWELL NEW YORK (NEA) — The list of athletes who have dominated their sports for more than 15 years is short and illustrious: Babe Ruth, Muhammad Ali, Jack Nicklaus. Heather McKay is no less than the best woman squash player in the world. And she has been at least 1962. The 37-year-old Australian-Candian has not lost a match in competition for 16 years. She believes no athlete has ever matched that record. Mrs. McKay took up squash in 1959 with five fellow members of the field hockey team sponsored by her small country town in southeastern Australia. "I thought we'd try this new game that was supposed to get you fit for everything," she recalls. "I'd had to pay to belong to an expensive club, there would have been a proliferation of masses charging low fees. "If I had to pay to belong to an expensive club, there would have been a proliferation of masses charging low fees. "If I had to pay to belong to an expensive club, there would have been a proliferation of masses charging low fees."

She was recognized as the best in the world when she won her first 16 consecutive British squash crowns in 1962. "It was hardly the life she had envisioned. "I thought I'd wind up getting married, having children and staying in the old hometown," she laughs. "Instead, she moved to the city of Sydney to pursue her sport. Retaining her amateur status Mrs. McKay took up squash in 1959 with five fellow members of the field hockey team sponsored by her small country town in southeastern Australia. New Trial Sought For Convicted Deputy Killer

By SHARON CARRASCO
Herald Staff Writer

A Seminole County Circuit Judge has been asked to grant convicted murderer Terry Melvin Sims a new trial. William Heffernan, special assistant public defender for Sims, made that request this week before Circuit Court Judge Thomas Waddell for a variety of reasons from pre-trial publicity to prosecutorial misconduct.

Help Sought In Murder

Night owls may help solve the murder of an Altamonte Springs man who was found Friday afternoon beneath the State Road 436 overpass at Interstate 4 in Altamonte Springs. Police believe one of the two men could have been Blount, and the other, his murderer. The witness said the traffic was pretty light but there were other cars that passed the men on the bridge when he did, Perry said.

The judge also said he didn't know when Sims was scheduled for sentencing. If he is to be sentenced this week, the motion would be considered at the same time, he said.

The witness was traveling in the extreme outside lane and didn't get a close look at the two men, Perry said. However, he was driving in the back of the lead with a sharp object, possibly a tire iron, police said.

The jury, in a separate hearing following the verdict, recommended the death penalty for Sims. Sims was the third man convicted in connection with the robbery-killing.

For A Bang-Up Fourth

Afloat Or Ashore Enjoy An All-American Picnic

Fourth of July is the top summer event throughout the country. Normally it is an on-the-road day when friends and relatives drop in for home-cooked specialties.

This year start with a basic "anywhere" picnic. Add other dishes to suit a block party, a cycling event or a Fourth afloat.

GRILLED CHICKEN Place broiler-ryer chicken halves or quarters skin side up on grate set about 6 inches from charcoal briquettes that have reached the light gray ash stage (or a red glow at night).

WESTERN POTATO SALAD 3 pounds potatoes 1/2 cup mayonnaise 1/2 cup finely chopped fresh onion 1/2 cup chicken broth 3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice

BEAN DISHES DAD CAN FIX Beans are a less-expensive source of good protein. Whip up a quick bean dish if you're holding down the home fort while wife and children are visiting relatives or busy with early evening activities.

simmer 15 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Drain potatoes. Add to chicken broth mixture. Toss lightly to mix. Cool. Add remaining ingredients and toss lightly. Serve immediately or chill before serving. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 8 servings.

FRESH WATERMELON BOAT WITH TURKEY SALAD 2 quarts cooked turkey, cut in large chunks 4 cups seedless green grapes 3 cups diagonally sliced celery

GRILLED CHICKEN Place broiler-ryer chicken halves or quarters skin side up on grate set about 6 inches from charcoal briquettes that have reached the light gray ash stage (or a red glow at night).

Measure around rim to decide width of scallops. If rim measures 4 1/2 inches, there is room for 15 3-inch scallops or 20 2-inch scallops.

RED AND GREEN COLESLAW 2 cups finely shredded green cabbage 2 cups finely shredded red cabbage 1/2 cup finely chopped celery 1/2 cup finely chopped fresh onion

Slaw With Burgers

By AILEEN CLAIRE Special to Herald The keys to a good slaw are crisp vegetables and tangy dressing.

A popular combination for a summer slaw includes cabbage, carrots, pineapple chunks, green pepper and a burger sauce.

COAST-TO-COAST BURGERS Las Angeles: Garnish with crumbled bacon and avocado salsa. Milwaukee: Top with sauerkraut. Albuquerque: Mix chili powder with burger sauce for a burger topping.

BURGER BUNS Instead of the traditional sesame-seed bun, try a taco shell, rye bread, pita bread or an Italian hard roll to enclose your next burger.

Rising Gas Prices Altering Lifestyles In Seminole

By BRAD PURDOM
Herald Staff Writer

Skyrocketing gasoline prices are beginning to change the lifestyles of Seminole County families and teenagers. Sanford teenagers say the cost of gasoline is cramping their style, as well as their wallets. No longer do couples routinely head for Orlando on dates. Trips to the beach are becoming more scarce. But, perhaps worst of all in their eyes, many are having to find work to pay for their gasoline.

"I'm having to cut down on dates, especially to Winter Park or Orlando," said Tim Barley, 17, of Lake Mary. "Worse than that, I have to ride my bike if it's possible. Gas has just gotten too high."

Tim may be having problems, but Melissa Gonzalez, 17, of Sanford, says she's really in trouble.

"You can't use Mom and Dad's credit cards anymore, because it's those national stations that are always out of gas," she says. "And you can't use the air-conditioning either."

Donna Lawrence, another Sanford 17-year-old, says she is glad she lives on a lake because "nowadays you have to pick one day a week for the beach." She adds, "You just can't go anywhere you want to anymore."

Angel Vidal, 15, Sanford, used to get enough money from mowing one yard to buy a tankful of gas. No more.

"I don't even get half a tank," he says. "And you can't go too far at night because you can't find any stations to buy gas at so you can get back home."

Families, with or without teenage drivers, are changing the way they operate, too. Shopping trips are being organized and consolidated. Perhaps worse, families either are cutting down the frequency of vacations and pleasure trips or canceling them altogether.

Mrs. Lou Woodruff, 1308 S. Magnolia Ave., Sanford, has been returning to her North Carolina home at least once a year for the past 31 years.

"This year," she says, "I'm not even thinking about it. It's not just the expense of gasoline, it's also the availability I'm concerned about."

"We usually go to Gainesville about once a month," said Mrs. Susan Paul, 312 Country Club Road, Lake Mary. "But with the cost of gas as well as the question of whether you can get it at all, we're just not making the trip. Our friends used to come down here to see us, too, but they're not coming very often anymore, either."

Mrs. Paul says the way she handles errands has changed, too. She now rides her bicycle to her friends' homes and for quick trips to the store.

"I even take my bike for small loads of laundry," she says. "When I do use the car, I try to arrange it so I get everything done on one trip."

Mrs. Glenda Emerson of Abbott Ave., Lake Mary, says with a laugh, "You try to tell a 15 or 16-year-old girl she's going to stay at home. My daughter Debbie is involved in a lot of things. All I can do is try to arrange the trips so we get most of it done at once."

Of all these stories, Teresa LeFils, an 18-year-old Osteen girl, may be the most poignant.

"We live 30 miles from everything," she says. "So I've been spending a lot of time at home. Guys say it just costs too much to come all the way out here."

Will Ask County For It

SMH Needs $709,120 For Indigents

By GEOFFREY POUNDS
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole Board of County Commissioners will be asked to provide $709,120 of tax money to fund indigent care at the Seminole Memorial Hospital in the coming year, according to a request to be presented by the hospital board of trustees sometime before July 1.

Should the request not be approved, SMH board chairman Thomas Blayney today warned, services in the upcoming year would have to be curtailed or rates to paying patients would have to be increased.

"We wouldn't have a choice. If we are not funded at the level we are calling for, we would have to review our options and our obligations. We would either have to trim services or raise the rates to non-indigents," he said.

The request for tax funds is contained in a 1980 budget today approved by the hospital board in special session. The budget request, Seminole taxpayers would pay about 43 cents per $1,000 assessed valuation for hospital maintenance. This year taxpayers paid about 24 cents per $1,000 of assessed valuation. Total tax receipts given the hospital in this fiscal year amounted to $387,893.

Hospital board member Allan Keen pointed out that even at the requested tax contribution, the hospital would wind up losing nearly $85,000 as a result of indigent care obligations.

Projections of 1980 indigent care costs reviewed by the board indicate $796,170 will be required to pay for medical services to the poor. The figure is based on an operating cost per patient day of $210.17. An estimate of 2,992 patient days was used. A patient day is each day a patient remains in a hospital, not the number of patients - 10 patients each staying 10 days would equal 100 patient days.

The issue of indigent care is central to the board's request to the county for a change in organization. The hospital board has asked the county commissioners to allow the hospital to convert from a county-owned facility to a private not-for-profit hospital. If the request is granted, the hospital board would begin negotiations with the county for lease of the hospital building in Sanford.

In a report being prepared, board members state that the hospital has been unable to make desired improvements to the hospital because of a siphoning of funds to pay for a private not-for-profit hospital. If the request is granted, the hospital board would begin negotiations with the county for lease of the hospital building in Sanford.

School Vacancies: Black, White Issue?

Board Getting Tough On Drugs In Schools

By SHARON CARRASCO
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County students who are caught with drugs on campus will be in for more stringent penalties this fall.

The school board directed Seminole County Superintendent of Schools William Layer to draft a new policy that would discourage students from bringing any controlled substance to school. The draft is expected to be ready for presentation to the school board by the end of July, Layer indicated.

Although policy varies from school to school, a student normally is suspended for five days for his first offense and 10 days for subsequent offenses, said Ralph Ray, administrative assistant and public information officer.

"But if we suspect he is selling drugs, we recommend him to the school board for expulsion," Ray said.

School Board member Pat Telson made the recommendation Wednesday for a stiffer policy in an effort to keep the school campuses "as drug-free as possible."

"I would like some clout so those students - whether elementary, middle school or high school - are at school in a condition to learn," Mrs. Telson said.

Currently, the school district has the legal right to search students' lockers for any contraband material, Ray told the school board.

Mrs. Telson said she would like to extend that legal right to search students' cars. In order to park in the school parking lot, students could be required to sign a card granting school officials the right to search their vehicles, Mrs. Telson suggested.

Concurring with Mrs. Telson, Layer said the school district "follows the law straight down the line and I think we need a stronger policy."

Layer said he would gather opinions from area principals concerning the more stringent policy and include their input in his draft.

"You can have a preventative program but if students violate it, you need a backup punch," Layer said.

The policy, Ray said today, applies only to students.

The Seminole County school board doesn't have a discipline policy pertaining to teachers who are caught smoking marijuana or in possession of controlled substances on the campus, he added. No incident of that kind has ever been reported, he said.

"Action would be taken on a teacher who was caught smoking," Ray explained. "Teachers are handled by the superintendent. If they are guilty of wrongdoing, they would be suspended and the matter would be brought before the school board."
