Fighter Jet Crash May Leave 40 Dead In California Town

By TIM REITERMAN
Associated Press Writer
ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP) — Rescue crews searched today for more victims believed buried in charred debris after a Navy fighter jet crashed into an apartment house and exploded, touching off an inferno that spread to two adjoining apartment buildings. The local fire chief said as many as 40 persons may have perished. Four persons were known dead and at least 17 were injured, with an unknown number missing, including the plane's pilot. Many residents of the apartments were families of Navy men assigned to the nearby base where the plane was headed when it crashed Wednesday night. Fire Chief Ernest Servente estimated that 42 to 45 tenants were inside when the jet slammed into the four-story, 27-unit stucco apartment building. The building exploded in flames and witnesses said they saw only a very few people escape. Servente said that "it probably will take all day" for firemen, Marines, coroner's officials and rescue squad members to sift through the heap of steaming rubble that remained of the apartments. Authorities said that in all, more than 200 persons were believed living in the buildings affected by the crash and fire in the San Francisco Bay area community. "There's no question they're going to be pulling bodies out of there. There's no knowing how many are dead," said city councilman Malcolm Longaker. Intense heat prevented workers from entering the rubble for several hours after the 8:25 p.m. PST crash. Workers wearing asbestos clothing and firemen protected by a stream of

PUMP MALFUNCTION HAMPERS FIREMEN
Midway Volunteer Firemen (above) were hampered by pump and truck trouble Wednesday afternoon as fire consumed an old frame bar building on Spies Avenue that was the residence of five persons. There were no injuries, authorities reported, as Ginderville, Lake Mary and Seminole Goldenrod Volunteer Departments responded to keep blaze (below) from spreading. Louis Mims told Deputy Ron Morton that he and his wife Mamie were sleeping in a rear room when a neighbor awakened them and helped them out of the smokefilled building. Mims was able only to save his alarm clock and television. Joe Yates of Southern Music Co. said two pool tables and a music machine, valued at $3,000, were stored in a front room and destroyed in the fire. Cause of the blaze was not immediately determined. Three other persons living in the building were not at home when the fire broke out.

N. Brock Is Asking For A Blanket Order

By BOB LLOYD
Assistant State Attorney
Newman Brock said today he's asking County Court Judge Wallace Hall to issue a blanket court order requiring Circuit Clerk Arthur Beckwith Jr. to turn over all Peace Justice Court files to the State Attorney's office. Brock said in this manner over 1,100 criminal cases left pending Jan. 1 with the Article Five phase-out of JP Courts can be disposed of faster. The state attorney's office has been getting individual court orders so Beckwith would release individual documents from some of the JP files so the state attorney could investigate and file direct informations in some cases. Brock concurred on the blanket court order and said, "If the state attorney's office had problems they should have come to me and discussed it." Beckwith said he had refused to let the state attorney's office extract documents from JP files because under law it can't be done without a court order. "If there's any problem," Beckwith said, "I believe it is that the state attorney's office doesn't know the law." Beckwith pointed out that Article Five phased-out five courts and consolidated them under County Court. He said in January 1973 his office processed 2,297 County Court cases filed as compared with 472 in January 1972. "And this is only traffic and criminal cases," Beckwith said. "I doesn't include cases of because of the pressures put on his office by Article Five. There's no problem," he said. "They can check out the files to peruse." But he admitted this would "probably be on a limited basis right now" because most of the files aren't ready. Beckwith said he's been able to assign only one of his 57 employees to the job of putting the jumbled JP files in order.

Pinellas Violence Flares

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Fighting broke out at four Pinellas County schools this morning and school officials blamed rising tensions between black and white students. A school spokesman said the fighting erupted at Pinellas Park Junior High School when white students displayed anti-black slogans. Sheriff's deputies were called to the campus and made "several arrests," the spokesman said. No injuries were reported in the fighting. Buses are taking black students off campus," said Brock Lucas, Pinellas County schools superintendent. The buses were escorted by sheriff's deputies, he said, and some white students left the campus on their own. He said "the school is still open and plans to remain open for the students still there." Some five miles east of Madiera Beach Junior High School black students refused to go to class this morning and took over the hallways, spokesman said. Fighting erupted and sheriff's deputies were called in to quell the disturbance. No arrests or injuries were reported, a spokesman said. Sheriff's deputies and school security officials patrolled the campus at Boca High School in Gulfport where students engaged in fights between students. Racial fighting first erupted at Boca High last week and police had to be called to the campus Monday after fighting broke out in a cafeteria. All was reported calm today at Dunjunior High School in northwest St. Petersburg today following racial fighting Wednesday. Meanwhile across the state in wealthy Palm Beach County Boca Raton High School, where police confiscated a rifle and knives from whites and accused blacks of firing guns in the air.

Is SEA After School Maintenance Money?

By BILL SCOTT
The approximate $300,000 set aside for renovations and maintenance of the county's dilapidated schools, most of them in Sanford, may be one of them in the move by the Seminole Education Association (SEA) teachers union in its request that the county School Board voluntarily agree to collective bargaining over teacher contracts. This was disclosed today after conversations with Owen Arnold, SEA executive director for Seminole and Lake Counties and Walter Teague, school finance officer. First, Arnold stated that the SEA would approach the Board with a "package" asking for improvements for teachers in various areas, but he declined to name specifics until after the SEA meets with the Board Wednesday night; however, when questioned concerning "money matters," Arnold stated 80 per cent of the proposals to be brought to the Board were of a "non-money" type, but later he advised that moneys not allotted by the Board for capital outlay (new schools) would be up for negotiation between the Board and the SEA. "It has been designated for capital outlay, then it can't be used for anything else, but if not delegated, then it is up for negotiation," Arnold said. Students Have Pollution Solution

By ALLAN MAY
Copley News Service

BELLINGHAM, Wash. — A group of scrounging students who didn't know it couldn't be done have built an automobile that offers, among other things, a solution for pollution problems.

The handsome, yellow two-seater also boasts an ability to pivot on one rear wheel, an engine assembly that can be removed from the car in 10 minutes, automatic seat belts and the ability to park in a space only 10 inches longer than the car.

The unique vehicle was designed and built by students of Western Washington State College. The students, concerned about the environment, set out to produce a car that would be nearly pollution free. The other innovations are fringe benefits created by the students as they put the car together.

Students from many of the college's technology programs designed and built the car. Dr. Michael Seal, assistant professor of technology, acted as their adviser.

The result is a 16-foot-long, two-seat auto with a rear-mounted, 1,900-cc, overhead engine, four-cylinder engine. The engine burns propane, a fuel which produces a low level of air pollution. The exhaust system contains a thermal reactor which burns excess hydrocarbons and further reduces undesirable emissions. The car will comply with all federal pollution standards scheduled to go into effect by 1976.

The car's mileage in city driving is the equivalent of 12 miles a gallon in a gasoline-powered vehicle. It easily exceeds freeway speeds.

The engine is mounted over the rear axle and the drive train are a subassembly that can be removed from the car in 10 minutes by removing seven bolts and unfastening simplified hydraulic and electrical couplings.

Two more bolts remove the engine from the subassembly. If the car were commercially produced, the owner could drive it into a garage, leave the engine and drive train to be worked on, and drive away with a borrowed subassembly supplied by the garage — all in 30 minutes.

The spare tire is mounted protruding from the front of the car. Thus, it becomes a pneumatic bumper capable of sustaining a head-on collision at 5 miles an hour without damage. The rear bumper is a steel compartment filled with 18 soft-drink cans. A rear-end collision would be absorbed by the cans which are easily replaced.

The reinforced polyester body has two doors that open by swinging up and outward. Seat belts are attached to the floor and the doors. When the doors close the seat belts are automatically fastened. The brake pedal is adjustable for people with long or short legs.

A clear plastic window behind the seats offers a wide field of vision and doubles as a headrest.

A specially designed steering mechanism allows the car to pivot on one rear wheel, making sharp cornering simple and parking relatively easy.

More than 100 students participated in planning, designing and building the car. They did it with no financial assistance from the treasury of the state-supported college.

Most of the parts were made by the students in the college's shops. Some were donated by business houses throughout Washington state.

About $1,000 in cash was given by businesses. Another $5,000 came from faculty and student organizations.

'SMOGLASS' CAR — This 16-foot-long, two-seat auto was built by students at Western Washington State College in an effort to help solve the pollution problem. The car has a rear-mounted, four-cylinder engine, which burns propane. It will comply with federal pollution standards for 1976.

Jaques Part-Time

"There is a definite need for me to go back to my job."

BY DONNA ESTES

LONGWOOD — "I'll conduct the mayor's office as I see fit. I have been giving one-half day. I offered my services and you refused. I will still do the job of representing the people," Mayor Eugene Jaques stormed angrily as the City Council in work session for the third consecutive time indicated unwillingness to pay the chief executive a salary of $5,000 annually (some $2,300 more than he is now receiving) for his full-time services.

"I offered a service to the city at this rate and I see no reason for referring to Councilman E. H. Ferrell offered an answer at a ridiculous rate," Jaques said. Councilman E. L. Helms saying he "denoted a bit of temper" on the mayor's part, told Jaques he would also give "you a chance to get mad at me. I agree with Ferrell."

The matter came to a head when Jaques emphasized his opinion that the city needs "direction" to the extent of having someone who can handle complaints and follow through.

Ferrell said the city apparently needs a professional administrator, but Jaques contended an administrator cannot be hired under the current charter.

"I will go along with it, if that is what you want to do. I will not back it at all," the mayor declared, adding again that the city charter makes no provision for such an employe.

Ferrell contended that the administrator or manager should be in charge of operating the entire city and would be paid a salary of $12,000 to $15,000 annually. He recommended Council give itself three months to decide on the duties of the office and "what we want."

"There is a definite need for me to go back to my job," Jaques countered, pointing out he has been giving the city time by working in the city hall daily.

Councilman E. H. Williamson indicated, however, much of the business coming through the mayor's office is from land developers seeking guidance.

"Let them come to the Council meetings and ask their questions," he said.

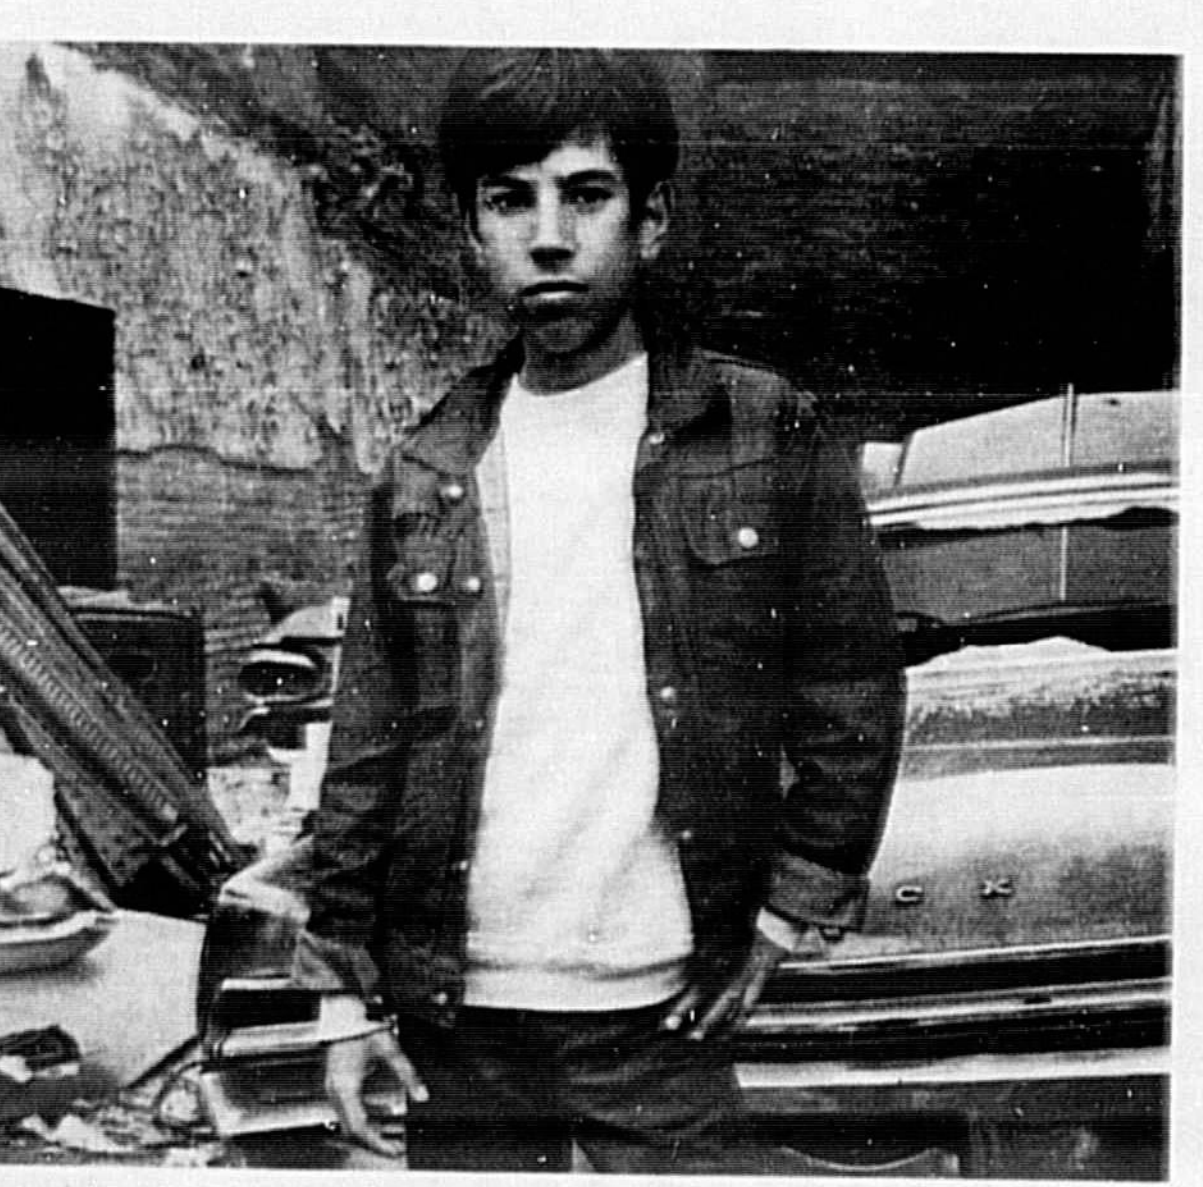

"How about state officials and what about people wanting to annex to the city?" the mayor asked. Williamson again contended the question should be directed to the Council in public meeting.

Offering aid to the mayor so that he would not have to spend so much time in city hall, Council Chairman William Klosky said he would be "more than glad to help" by manning the office from 10:30 to 1 p.m. daily while the mayor could be present from 8 to 10:30 a.m. He asked other members of the board to volunteer time during the day.

At this point Jaques said he would conduct the mayor's office as he sees fit.

Helms and Ferrell, members of the city's finance committee, said they would research the budget to determine availability of funds for the new position.

Labor Strike Halts Penn Central Road

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — All passenger and freight service on the Penn Central railroad was halted today by a strike of 28,000 conductors and brakemen trying to stop the nation's largest rail line from reducing train crews by a third.

"We have the right to negotiate our contract," said the United Transportation Union, AFL-CIO, as it set up picket lines at Penn Central depots in 16 states, two Canadian provinces and the District of Columbia.

"We're out of business," a railroad spokesman said, acknowledging that the remaining 67,000 operating employes — represented by other unions — would honor the picket lines. There was no indication whether the Nixon administration, which had delayed the walkout 30 days, would make new efforts now to end it.

Trustees of the Penn Central, now undergoing reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws, said the hardships facing shippers and passengers who use the 1,300 freight and 1,412 passenger trains the line operates daily were "unfortunate and unnecessary."

They estimated the walkout could result in lost revenues of $20 million if it lasts five days and around $55 million if it continues a month. They explained that the heaviest impact would come in the first week.

There are more than 60,000 daily passengers, most of them commuters in the New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Detroit and Chicago areas. Many are expected to shift to auto transportation.

The key to the dispute, unresolved after more than 18 months of negotiations, is new work rules authorized by U.S. District Court Judge John P. Fullmer, who is supervising the reorganization.

Penn Central trustees said the rules became "effective today" — touching off the UTTU strike.

Watergate Expansion Voted Down

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rejecting Republican attempts to expand its focus, the Senate has voted to form a special committee to investigate the Watergate bugging incident and other allegations of GOP political espionage against Democrats in 1972.

The vote Wednesday was 77 to 0 after Republican senators failed to gain equal membership on the panel and to broaden its inquiry to include charges of Democratic misdeeds in the 1964 and 1968 campaigns.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said the hearings facing shippers and passengers who use the 1,300 freight and 1,412 passenger trains the line operates daily were "unfortunate and unnecessary."

Members of the panel will be named by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Republican Leader Hugh Scott.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler has pledged administration cooperation with any nonpartisan investigation. The White House was reported to favor an evenly divided committee.

Two former officials of President Nixon's re-election campaign were convicted Jan. 30 of conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping in connection with the break-in and bugging of Democratic national headquarters in the Watergate complex in Washington. Five other persons, including a former Nixon security man, pleaded guilty to similar charges early in the trial.

Democrats initiated the congressional probe, saying the trial failed to investigate the bugging, partly because the Nixon administration's Justice Department was reluctant to fully probe allegations that high-ranking White House officials approved the operation.

Debate on the resolution which has been designated S. 907, was acrimonious with Republicans accusing Democrats of trying to stack the committee so they could conduct a partisan probe aimed at discrediting the GOP.

Earlier, Republicans lost two attempts by Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., to split the committee evenly with three Democrats and three Republicans, and another by Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Fla., to extend the probe to include the 1964 and 1968 presidential campaigns. It finally was decided to boost the committee's membership from the original five to seven, but with Democrats still in the majority.

WIRING involved in a fire at Jim Spencer's Restaurant this morning is shown to Sanford Fire Chief G. M. Harriett (right) by Assistant Chief W. C. Gailey. The fire department responded to the fire after Sanford Police Patrolman R. M. Nicholson noticed smoke coming from the building at 5:12 a.m. Harriett said damage was confined to the kitchen area, but was extensive. The fire apparently started in a deep fat fryer, and was probably caused by faulty equipment, Harriett said. The fire had almost burned itself out when discovered, and had not spread to other parts of the building. The restaurant will be closed temporarily, according to the owner. (Gary Taylor Photo)

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY Mom and money are soon parted

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

Now that belts are back in style, I can get one of those money-changers street car conductors wear.

If you've ever had a kid ask you for a popside and given him a quarter with orders to "bring back the change" you know, as I do, that you have about as much chance of seeing your remaining 15 cents as High Heifer has of making Eagle Scout: very little.

But with a money-changer I wouldn't have to ask that classic question: "Where's the change?" and be told my debtor had treated himself to a stopoff at a pay toilet.

I don't care how little or how much change a kid has left, he will somehow manage to get rid of it. Take lunch money. For 40 cents the school cafeteria serves a nontime meal that is wholesome, hot and balanced —

Snoutdog Disputes Agriculture Issue

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department, once site of the fatdog controversy, now is center of a more vocal battle: what could be called the snoutdog dispute.

Consumers were virtually unanimous four years ago in pressing the government to roll back fat levels in hot dogs. But they are split on whether to permit hot dogs and other cooked sausages to contain meat byproducts such as hearts, livers, tongues, spleens and snouts.

The byproducts aren't in all hot dogs and their presence must be disclosed on package labels. But even limited presence disturbs those that want them out. The byproducts are nutritious and cheap, say those who want them left in.

The Agriculture Department received 604 opinions from the public during the fat controversy. At the halfway point in the time allotted for comment on a proposal to ban byproducts in all cooked sausages except those labeled imitation, the department had received 600 letters.

"I refuse to feed hot dogs to my family. I've talked to many who feel the same," wrote Billie R. King of Huntington, Ind. "We never knew byproducts meant lips, snouts, spleens, etc."

Was Road Deputy Now 'Talk' Officer

By GARY TAYLOR

What started out as a talk at a school has now grown into a full-time job for Deputy Harold "Beau" Taylor of the Seminole County Sheriff's Department. Taylor is the department's Community Relations and Safety Officer.

Taylor joined the department about three years ago as a member of the uniformed deputy division. Prior to joining the sheriff's department, Taylor was a musician. He was playing the drums in a band one night when he met and became friends with a deputy, who convinced Taylor to join the force.

Taylor had been a deputy about a year when Sheriff John Polk asked him to represent the department by giving a talk at a school. Soon, Taylor was a part-time Safety Officer for the department, handling the Helping Hands program, giving talks and making department moves.

A few months ago, realizing the position was a full-time job, Polk sought funds from the County Commission. He was turned down. Without a budget to work from, Taylor took over the Community Relations Department.

He's come a long way since then, recently acquiring an office to work from in Casselberry. "Public response has been tremendous," commented Taylor, adding "donations from businesses and organizations have accounted for most of the equipment we are now using."

The one-room office Taylor works out of was donated by the Sanford. It is complete with blue lights and Sheriff's Department decals, and soon will be equipped with a two-way radio on the department's frequency, which is being donated by another organization.

"By donating a VW van to be used in the Drug Abuse and Traffic Safety Program, I felt I was doing a small part in making our county a safer and better place to live for all of us," commented Baker, who lives in Sanford with his wife and three children.

Taylor will be able to take county citizens into the van to show them how the deputies operate under actual on-the-scene situations. Inside the van, Taylor has setup various displays which he uses with his talks at schools and other meetings and events.

Recently, the Youth Deputy Division of the sheriff's department purchased camera equipment for use in the Community Relations Department. "It's just another example of how everyone's chipping in to help out," commented Taylor.

Taylor has sought to build better relations with the Florida Sheriff's Boys Ranch and Girls Villa, visiting each from time to time and helping line up visits to Central Florida for the residents of the two facilities.

Taylor also works closely with law enforcement classes at Seminole High School, a new program offered to students there recently.

A painful decision.

New DeBary-Deltona Chapter SAR Gets New Charter

By FANNETTE EDWARDS

The newly organized DeBary-Deltona Chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution, Inc. received its charter Wednesday night at an installation dinner held at the Holiday Inn in Sanford.

Former members of the Deland Chapter of the SAR, they desired to have their own Chapter, as their membership increased, and so, with the aid of Sid Porter, president of the Deland Chapter, they organized the DeBary-Deltona Chapter about two months ago, after requesting a Charter from the National Organization, signed-up 28 members and last evening formally received their Charter, dated January, 1973 from Cecil L. Bothwell Jr., Regional Vice-President of the Florida Society, SAR, Inc., representing the National Organization.

Although the name implies only members living in DeBary and Deltona, they will do accept all eligible members (those who can trace their ancestry to the American Revolution) living in Sanford, or any nearby city, as well. The SAR has been in existence since 1889.

The room was resplendent with lovely ladies from the DAR Chapters in Sanford and Deland in their formal and furs, and the gentlemen, their escorts, from the SAR of Deland and Deltona.

The dinner meeting was called to order by the President Forrest C. Respass. The Pledge of Allegiance given by all in attendance was led by Herbert H. Guild and the Pledge to the SAR, given by James A. Rucker. Invocation was rendered by Chaplain Clarence C. Shaffer.

After dinner, the president welcomed all and introduced Ralph A. Smith, chairman of Sanford Affairs Committee and general chairman of the evening, who in turn, presented the entertainment, namely, the Chamber Singers of Seminole Junior College and their director, Mrs. Jais Ellis. The students rendered several musical numbers ranging from modern to classical.

Col. Zack M. Williams, Past Regional Vice-President and chairman of the National Constitution Week Committee, spoke briefly and then inducted

Consumers Now Require Acute Safety Awareness

By JOYCE ROARK
Copley News Service

Sidney Margolis in his book "The Consumer's Guide To Better Buying" states "the problem of product safety has come to public attention in an era of many new mechanical and electrical products, and in an era of inadequate testing for safety and frequently lose quality control."

Recently Consumer's Union reported the finding of tests done on children's car seats. They did not protect the child when the car was involved in an accident.

At this same time the American Safety Belt Council, Inc. has published reports that using seat belts will reduce deaths and injuries incurred in accidents.

We are all safety conscious but few of us use the knowledge available to insure our safety. For example, the simple task of placing dress, cleaning products, sharp objects, and anything that could be harmful to children should be placed out of their reach. Yet the hospitals are full of children poisoned or hurt by these very products.

Since 1965 all cars manufactured for use in the U.S. have seat belts installed. They wouldn't have been required if they hadn't proved to have a tremendous potential in reducing injury and death in traffic accidents. It's hard to believe but less than 20 percent of motorists use their seat belts.

It would appear that people want safety as long as it doesn't inconvenience them or use any extra time. We, as a safety conscious public, want the government and manufacturers to make everything safe for us but in such a way that it won't require any thought or work on our part. Children's car seats may have been proven not entirely safe by Consumer's Union, but they will protect a child from getting hurt if you should have to stop suddenly or if the car should get out of control on an icy street.

Read Fine Print In Health Policies

By CARLTON SMITH

Figures on health care costs recently released by the Social Security Administration, signal a warning to both retirees and to younger members of their families who may have to share their financial problems.

Most Americans probably believe that for the over-65, Medicare covers nearly all hospital and medical expenses except for minor incidentals. The fact is that Medicare, plus all the supplemental private insurance carried by the over-65 population, still leaves them with about one-fourth of health care costs to be paid out of pocket.

Average medical expenses in this group, the latest yearly figures show, are $861 per person. Expenses of the 65-and-over consistently run higher than for any other age group. The above figure, for instance, is six times the average yearly expense—$140—of the under-19 youth group.

Medicare and private insurance together covered about three-fourths of the health care bills for the 65-and-over. The average individual out-of-pocket cost was $222.

Blame the gap on the soaring costs of health care. Seven years ago, before Medicare was legislated, older people paid about half of their hospital and medical bills out of pocket. That has since been $234—not much different from the $226 that today represents only a fourth of their bills.

The end result is that the average retired couple today needs $45 a year in cash to pay for medical care. And that's for a couple about in the middle of their life. For those in the upper half of the statistics, out-of-pocket costs can obviously run to many hundreds of dollars. Planning for retirement

Deltona Youth Baseball Funding Drive

By FANNETTE EDWARDS

"Help...Help...Help"... is the plea of Frank Lombardo, Director and "Lefty" Vann, president of the Deltona Community Youth Baseball team organized last Fall for the youth of Deltona, ages 8 to 12.

"Help is needed from the residents of Deltona, if we are to be able to maintain this much needed baseball club," said Lombardo.

According to Lombardo, all the money received from pledges and contributions from the various clubs, organizations and merchants of the community have been utilized for the purchase of new uniforms for 64 players, for caps and socks, and the various items needed for getting a ball club started.

Now that all the funds have been practically depleted, money is needed to purchase balls, bats and other items plus insurance for the players and the cost of building a fence around the grounds.

Therefore, as of this week, the Club is staging a community-wide drive for funds in the streets, or getting into trouble because he had no special interest to keep him busy or to boy friends to play with after school?

When money is available and a ball park, concessions stand will be built and every thing that is needed to complete a regulation ball park. But this can be done only with the help of each member of the Deltona Community contributing his share.

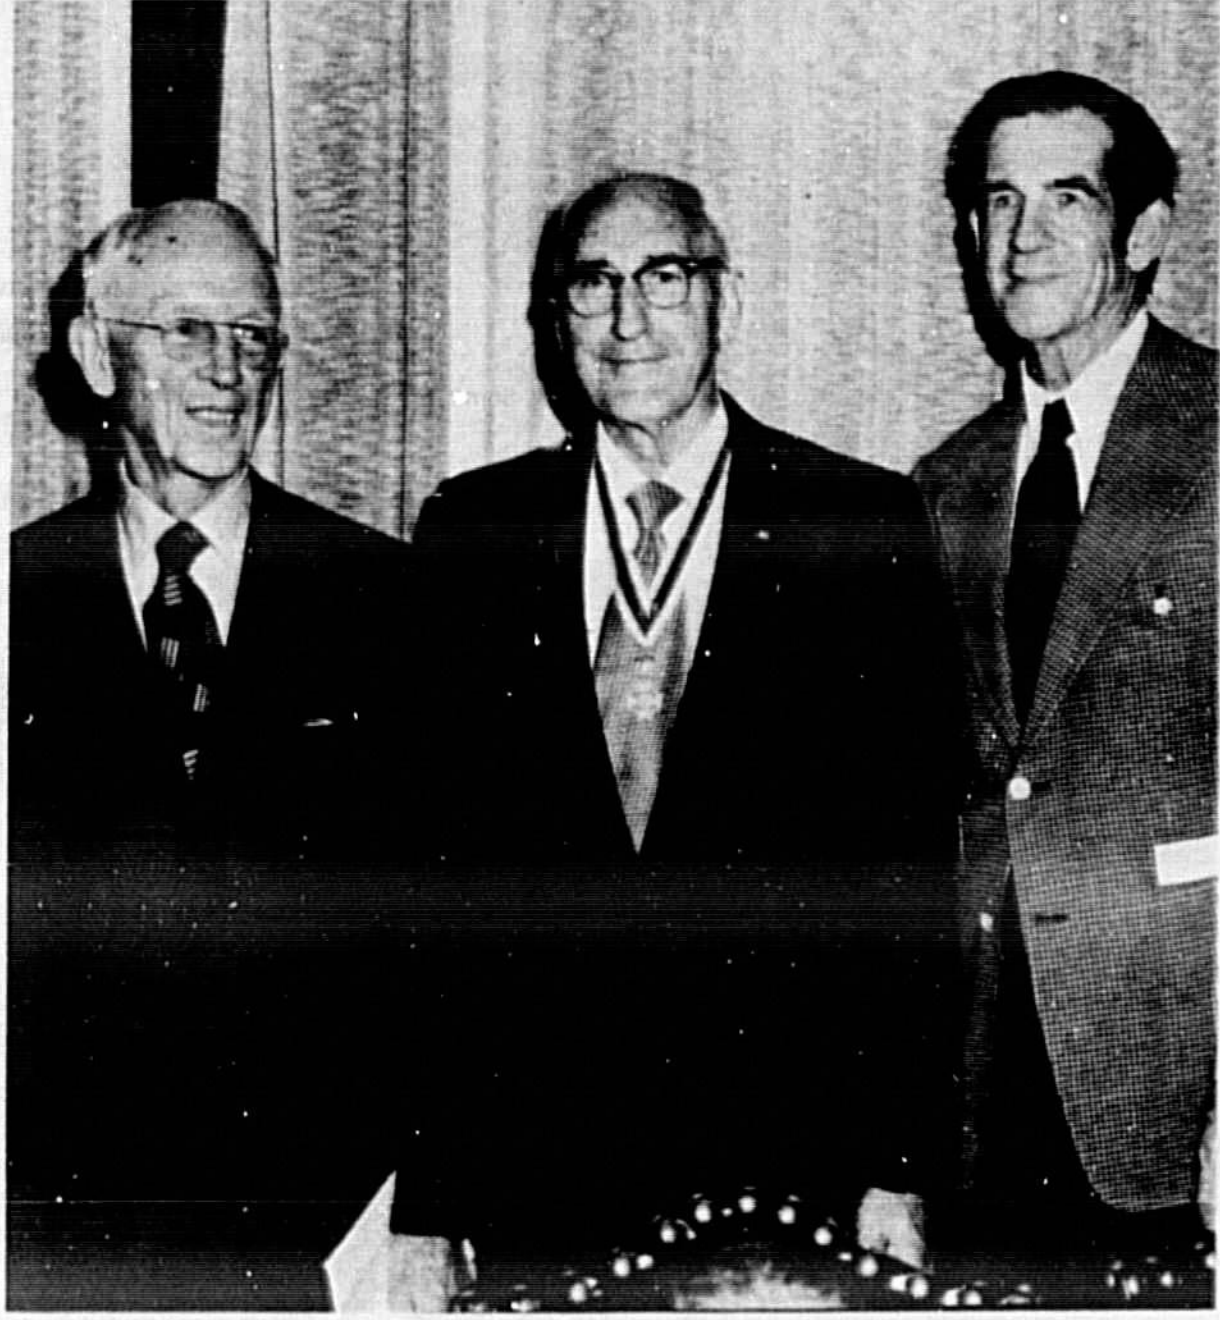

To date 78 boys have signed-up with the club. The ball park is in Lions Field at Elgrove.

Ask yourself, as a mother or father or interested American, which you would rather have... a healthy, happy, vibrant youth, or a poor neglected child with no companionship of boys his own age?

A busy boy is a good boy. A boy left unto himself becomes a mischievous boy. Don't let this happen to the youth of our Community. Help him by contributing just $1 to keep this very important, needed boys' club going. Then you, too, can take credit for the fine young DEBARY — In conjunction with the DeBary Silver Anniversary Celebration all this year, an auction will be staged on Saturday, Feb. 8, on the DeBary Chamber of Commerce grounds from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

FRANK LOMBARDO, Director of Promotions, sells first $1.00 membership card in the Deltona Community Youth Baseball Club to "Lefty" Vann, organizer, and the President of the Club. "I believe in starting at the top," says Lombardo, "so I start with the boss". This week opens their community-wide drive for $1 memberships to maintain the Club. (Charles Edwards Photo)

Employment Rise Feared

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP)—If you are one of the 4.4 million to 4.7 million jobless members of the labor force you can hardly be expected to appreciate the administration's attitude toward the unemployment rate.

That rate is now down to 5.2 per cent of the work force, lowest since July 1970. It is falling rather steadily now, and conceivably could be somewhere around 4.5 per cent late in the year.

But already the administration has made clear its fear that the rate might drop too swiftly. Yes, fear: fear that a jobless rate of less than 4.5 per cent might signal more inflation.

It has, therefore, set that rate as an end-of-the-year goal. By what logic can idleness purposely be tolerated? The explanation goes something like this: If the jobless rate is descending it means the economy is expanding and absorbing once idle workers. This is healthy, to a point, but it also could signal the onset of inflation.

This has been the story of free economies. They often seek to produce more than their capacity to produce and when that happens it means that supply is insufficient to meet demand. Up go prices.

Wages might rise and be an element in those prices, but even more importantly, labor costs rise. There is a difference: wages could rise 50 per cent a year if productivity rose 50 per cent. That wouldn't be inflationary.

But, when the demand for workers is high, such as in an expansion, there is a tendency for the less productive workers to be used. They are less skilled or lack motivation or proper work habits, or may have other deficiencies.

Speed up this process and you run the risk of throwing elements of the expansion out of balance. A sharp demand for labor, for example, might push up labor costs and then prices, leading to demands for higher wages to meet prices, and so on until a self-sustaining spiral is generated.

The fear of rekindled inflation is illustrated by figures for the fourth quarter of 1972 showing that labor cost per unit of output rose at an annual rate of 3 per cent, after having fallen for two straight quarters.

8:30 CBS THE WALTONS The Waltons face a bit of claim-jumping tonight, and one problem leads to others. It takes money to hire a lawyer to fight a lumber company's seizure of Walton's Mountain as unregistered land, so John-Boy takes a job in the city. On his first payday, he's held up. Finally, the Waltons are able to prove their claim on land the family has owned since 1796.

9:11-20 CBS CBS THURSDAY NIGHT MOVIES "The Professionals" A solid action picture with strong acting from Burt Lancaster, Lee Marvin, Robert Ryan and Jack Palance, and feminine support from Claudia Cardinale. She plays the wife of an unscrupulous wealthy rancher, played by Ralph Bellamy. When she's allegedly kidnaped by Mexican guerrillas leader (Palmer), Bellamy hires four soldiers of fortune — Marvin, Ryan, Lancaster and Woody Strode — to ride into Mexico and reclaim her. When they get the hideout, they find out the wife was not really kidnapped. Well-done picture, fine directing by Richard Brooks, keeps the interest perking throughout.

Worry Clinic

Loretta worried lest she lose her mind. For she was attacked at the age of 12 by a sea fiend...

CASE W-322: Loretta R., aged 16, has a phobia. "Dr. Crane," she confessed, "when I was 12, a man grabbed me by the throat and choked me till I lost consciousness."

Usually, they started because of some unfortunate experience, like that which Loretta describes. For a toddler may have had a cat spring upon it when a dog barked at the cat.

This was the feline creature loop for safety and the preambulator were the only high place, the cat may land on the baby's face, then insert its claws and spring upward.

Millions of human beings are victims of some type of phobia. And a phobia is merely an abnormal fear that persists.

Many dignified lawyers and doctors, possibly 50 years of age or older, suffer from it, but don't confess it to their friends.

Others are terrified by high places (acrophobia) or by open spaces (lagrophobia). An abnormal dread of cats is called alophobia.

Microphobia refers to a hysterical worry about germs. There are dozens of these catalogued phobias.

Florida Taxpayers Share

JACKSONVILLE — Florida taxpayers will be required to pay out approximately $5.9 billion in Federal taxes on their share of the cost of the Federal spending budget of $26.7 billion proposed by President Nixon for the Federal fiscal year beginning July 1, 1973, according to an estimate today by the Florida State Chamber of Commerce.

The State Chamber pointed out that any change which Congress may make in this budget will reduce or increase the amount that Florida taxpayers will have to bear depending on whether Congress cuts or spends more.

The State Chamber noted that budgeted outlays for fiscal year 1974 reflected an increase of $19 billion after an indicated increase of $18 billion in 1972.
