Rockefeller Out In 1976 Election

WASHINGTON (AP) - Vice President Nelson A Rockefeller stepped aside today as President Ford's 1976 running mate, saying he does not want to be considered "I have no comment as for the Republican ticket next year. . He did so in a letter to Ford, saying:

"After much thought, I have decided ... that I do not wish my name to enter into your consideration for the upcoming Republican vice presidential nominee. "I wish you to know this now for your own planning,"

The Rockefeller announcement, a political bolt no one had anticipated, could undercut the planned presidential challenge of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan. The conservative Reagan had gained early support across Republicans the still see linckef ther a the symbol of Rockefeller's announcement was relayed by his press secretary Hugh Morrow, who said the vice president was delivering the letter to Ford today.

Rockefeller's decision means the Republican vice presidential spot will be an object of maneuver and potential political bargaining. It also means that if Ford does win the GOP nomination, he will be in a position to choose a new Republican face who would instantly become a party power for future campaigns.

There had been no advance signal that Rockefeller was considering the step he took today, but there had been public evidence of disagreement between the President and vice president over administration handling of the financial crisis besetting New York City.

Ford Conference Today On Shakeup

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford, who has decided on a major top-level shake-up in administration ranks, will hold a news conference at 7:30 p.m. EST today,

Press Secretary Ron Nessen announced. Ford presumably scheduled the session with reporters to formally disclose his intent to replace Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger and Director William Colby of the Central Intelligence Agency. Nessen said the session, to be held in the East Room of the White House, would be available for live television and radio broadcast.

Ford Strategists Confident

won't be politically fatal if he does. There is concern and some pessimism in the Ford camp about those two states because Reagan has special advantages in both. In part, these assessments may be an exercise in campaign gamesmanship, since it is to a candidate's advantage to start with low expectations and exceed them rather than to promote optimistic forecasts that don't pan

$2 Bill To Make Comeback

WASHINGTON (AP) - The two-dollar bill is making a comeback after 10 years of retirement. But in terms of value, the bill will only be a shadow of its former self. Treasury Department officials are expected to announce the resurrection at a news conference today. At the same time, they are expected to announce that the bill will once again carry the portrait of Thomas Jefferson, the nation's third president.

Lull In Beirut Fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Another lull in Beirut's Christian-Moslem war set in today, with only scattered shooting reported. Broadcasts and newspapers expressed hope that the 12th cease-fire negotiated by Premier Rashid Karami might be successful.

Security officials attributed the new lull to round-theclock negotiations by Karami, Palestinian guerrilla leaders and representatives of the rightwing Christian Phalange party. Militiamen of both sides began to heed the repeated cease-fire calls of their leaders.

Left-wirg Moslems and Palestinian guerrillas halted their week-long assaults on the downtown hotel district, where Phalangists and militiamen of the National Liberal party were holed up in the Holiday Inn, the Phoenicia, the St. Georges and other high-rise vantage points.

Morocco Plans Sahara March

New Minimum Wage Will Affect Jobless

Federal law provides for a current minimum wage of $2.10 an hour. It will go to $2.30 in January, with a predictable impact on the employment of young and unskilled individuals seeking work.

And already the AFL-CIO is calling on Congress to boost the minimum wage to $3.00 an hour. If current hourly rates are keeping people from getting jobs, we can imagine what another boost would do to the nation's unemployment

The union's legislative director, Andrew Biemiller, says no one who has lived through the galloping inflation of the last few years should seriously question the $3 minimum wage.

Inflation certainly has had a devasting effect on the purchasing power of every American. It is a valid argument for an increased minimum wage, but at the same time, we must keep in mind the inflationary effect of a boost.

When the wage base rises, so do the prices that everybody must pay in the market place. The gains that minimum wage workers may get are wiped out by the effects of inflation.

Biemiller says the $2.30 minimum actually falls below the federal government's designated overty level, the wage would have to be $2.42 an nour for fulltime, year-round work.

But Biemiller is playing games with us. The poverty level is for a family of four, and the wage rate is for an individual worker. They can't be compared because of differing circumstances within families.

He also ignores the existence of the food stamp program and other welfare programs available for families which fall within the arbitrary and often misleading poverty level. All that is beside the point, because the most us effect of an increased minimum wage is on bility of young people and older unskilled s to get a job. Businesses simply will not pay d of money. They aren't doing it now, and i't be expected to do so in the future. ther than paying such rates for labor of onable ability, training and skill, businesses do without or seek skilled labor. As we have said time and again, the federal overnment should make it possible for our youth and for unskilled workers to get jobs at less than the minimum wage, on a temporary basis, until they can prove themselves. Urtil we find some way to waive the minimum wage for certain categories of labor, the U.S. will never solve its unemployment problem

The higher minimum wage, the shorter work week and higher overtime pay advocated by the unions will only make the situation worse.

Regulated Society

President Ford has said he wants to get government off But James T. Lynn, Mr. Ford's director of the Office of Management and Budget, while insisting that members of the administration support reduction of government's role in everyday life, concedes that "it won't be easy."

The reason is that many Southerners believe gun control would be a much more serious federal invasion of their lives than forced busing. Less and less do they govern themselves. siderably over the weekend as Milwee sealed a berth in midgets competition of Pop Warner League play and Sanford's junior midgets moved to within one victory of a bowl game.

Milwee stopped Sanford midgets, 21-6, as Rusty Strouse scored on runs of 3 and 28 yards. Other midget action found Tuskawilla stopping Jackson Heights, 40-0, as Richard Bradshaw scored three TDs to close out a 5-2 season; and South Seminole whipping Teague, 19-0. with Barry Johnson scoring on TD runs of 3, 40 and 50 yards Sanford's junior midgets were beaten by Pinecastle, 9-7, in nonconference action. A win Saturday will pit them against DeLand on Nov. 15, with the winner advancing to the Disney Bowl and the loser playing in the Rotary 3owl. South Seminole went to Atlanta and lost by 6-0.

Elsewhere in junior midget action, Conway halted Teague, 6-0; DeLand took 40-0 measure of Milwee; South Seminole stopped Lakeview, 7-6; and Tuskawilla used a six-yard run by Carl Carlson for a 6-0 win over Jackson Heights.

In junior bantam play Sanford traveled to Atlanta to drop a 44-12 game. South Seminole was knocked off by Pinecastle 46-6.
