Few nabbed in DUI crackdown

By NICK PFEIPAUF

SANFORD — Compared to other parts of Central Florida, Sanford and the northern part of Seminole County had relatively few traffic-related mishaps over the Memorial Day holiday weekend.

While there were a number of accidents with multiple injuries along Central Florida's interstate highways, as well as roadways near New Smyrna Beach, Ocala and Orlando, Seminole County was quiet.

Sanford police Commander Dennis Whitmire reported no serious vehicular accidents were covered in the city. "But our officers were working," he said. "From 10 p.m. Friday until 4 p.m. Saturday, we joined with the Sheriff's Department, FHP and others in a major crackdown against drunk drivers."

Whitmire said in the area from CR-434 north to the Lake Monroe area, our officers and sheriff's deputies made three arrests of persons driving under the influence, two of persons with suspended driver's licenses, and 45 other arrests."

Whitmire explained that rather than focusing on a particular area, the various law enforcement stops were made by roving units. In all, 25 separate units were involved in what was called

Teachers change attitudes about violence

By DENIS BLOODSWORTH
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — When a group of students from Seminole High School saw the results of a survey about violence, they were shocked. Some of the results showed:

• 100 percent of the 10th grade males said watching fights was "a lot of fun."

• 50 percent of the 10th grade males said carrying a gun was a good idea; 30 percent of the females agreed.

• 50 percent of the 9th and 10th graders said it was never okay to walk away from a fight.

And who were the students who expressed these violent tendencies? It was the same Seminole High students who said they were shocked by their own answers.

According to Mary A. Cragar, business technology teacher at SHS, the results had a sobering effect on the 9th and 10th graders. She and Antonia Howington, the language arts specialist at Seminole High, utilized several methods for changing the students' attitudes. Then the students were surveyed again.

"Their attitudes had changed," Cragar said. "When the students saw it [the results of the first survey] in writing, it shocked them." She said it got the students' attention and they were willing to listen to alternatives.

Cragar and Howington won a grant from The Foundation of Seminole County Schools to implement the study, which aimed to curb school violence through the use of technology. Although the necessary computer system was not in place in time for the project, Cragar said they were able to accomplish most of the goals of the grant.

Local antismoking laws undermined?

By LARRY SCHWARTZ
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Cigarette makers are undermining city and county attempts to limit smoking, especially by teenagers, by pushing state laws that forbid local tobacco control, anti-smoking advocates said today.

States have "been sold a bill of goods by the tobacco industry," said Faye Fisher of the Center on Smoking in Health. "It's time to recognize those bills for what they are, which is a sham."

At least one attempt to preempt city and county tobacco ordinances that are more strict than state law. This year, 19 state legislatures debated tobacco industry-sponsored legislation that included such provisions, says a coalition report that was being unveiled at an anti-tobacco meeting today in Chicago.

All but five of the bills were aimed at ways to discourage teen smoking, the report said. But some of the pre-emption laws would have forbidden additional local restrictions on teen smoking, instead promising to supersede any existing or future local law regarding any aspect of tobacco sales, use or promotion.

Pennsylvania is debating pre-emption now. The bill would take away from health inspectors the responsibility for enforcing state anti-smoking laws and give the job to the state Agriculture Department. The agriculture inspectors would visit stores once a year, while many health inspectors make frequent, surprise health inspections.

The bill prohibits stronger city or county laws to discourage teenage smoking or to punish the retailers who sell them tobacco, Fisher said.

Tobacco companies had not seen the coalition's report, but said there was no necessary to weaken antismoking laws. In fact, prevention of local ordinances simply can make good business.

"Business owners, restaurateurs and smokers like the concept of uniformity statewide," R.J. Reynolds spokeswoman Susan Hill said.

"Fortunately, you hear this from restaurateurs, where someone drives across the county and you have a different smoking ordinance in effect there," she explained. "They feel that puts them at a competitive disadvantage, which is why we hear support for statewide ordinances."

At the federal level, Philip Morris Inc. is promoting the Congress pre-empt pending Food and Drug Administration regulation of tobacco marketing. The proposal accepts some FDA-regulated restrictions, such as a ban on cigarette vending machines and billboards near schools and at beachfront parks.

But it would allow advertising in many magazines read by teen-agers and would block plans for tobacco companies to spend money educating teens about smoking's dangers. Also, it would prevent any future government attempt to adjust or eliminate the process of nicotine or other chemicals in cigarettes.

The antismoking coalition said industry-sponsored legislation containing pre-emption has passed in more than 20 states since 1984.

Domestic violence alleged

James Randall "Buddy" Demarcus, 35, 178 Orange Avenue, Sanford, was arrested for battery/domestic violence by Seminole County sheriff's deputies on Sunday night.

According to the arrest report, Demarcus and his wife were involved in a verbal dispute and each slapped the other and he pushed her to the ground. The report stated that the wife's 11-year-old daughter became frightened and called 9-1-1. The report stated that the wife did not wish to press charges.

Demarcus was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility, but bond was not set.

Domestic dispute

Laura Elizabeth Treas, 35, and Ann Marie Castaneda, 35, both of 5901 S. Sanford Ave., Apt. 25, Sanford, were arrested for domestic violence by Sanford Police on Sunday night.

According to the arrest report, the women were involved in a verbal argument when Treas said Castaneda pushed her to the floor and punched her in the nose. Castaneda said Treas then punched her in the mouth.

Treas was treated for her injuries and released from Columbia Medical Center-Sanford. Castaneda's injuries did not require medical attention.

Both women were taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where they were held without bond.

Argument ends in arrest

Michael Lee Shoemaker, 35, 597 Palm Tree Court, Sanford, was arrested for battery/domestic violence by Sanford Police on Sunday night.

According to the arrest report, Shoemaker and his wife were arguing when he grabbed her hair and pushed her head into a door, causing a cut on her finger and a laceration on her head.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held with out bond.

Drug charges alleged

Scott Wayne Barber, 35, of Swamp Lane, Geneva, was arrested for possession of narcotic and possession of narcotic paraphernalia by Seminole County sheriff's deputies on Sunday night.

According to the arrest report, Barber was seen trying to hide something in the corner outside a business at the corner of Jersey and Highway 44. When the deputy approached him and asked if the items in the corner were his, he said they were. The deputy looked at the items and found a pipe and two white rocks that tested positive as crack cocaine.

Barber was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $5,000 bond.

Battery charges filed

Aaron White, 25, who refused to give police any information about his address, was arrested for battery/domestic violence by Sanford Police on Monday morning.

According to the arrest report, witnesses at the Fountain Motel saw him give his girlfriend a bear hug and try to forcefully remove her from a room while hurting her head. Deputies said the girlfriend did not speak English and could not offer any answers to their questions except through an interpreter.

White was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held with out bond.

DUI arrest

Thomas A. Vanderweine, 39, 370 Woodland Cir., Longwood was arrested for driving under the influence by Seminole County sheriff's deputies on Monday morning.

Deputies said he was speeding and following other cars too closely. He was arrested on charges of driving under the influence and possession of a controlled substance. He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held in lieu of $500 bond.

Children's advocate organizes day of support for children

By SARAH ANN GOSWAMI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Marian Wright Edelman is not content to be a soloist in raising America's consciousness about its children. So she's asking for a chorus to join her in taking a stand for the nation's youngest.

More than 2,000 organizations are joining Edelman's Children's Defense Fund in sponsoring the Stand for Children rally Saturday at the Lincoln Memorial.

"We want this day to be for children what the 1968 march did for civil rights and what Earth Day did for the environment, because it is time," said Edelman, president and founder of the fund.

It's coming not a moment too soon, Edelman says.

She rattles off statistics gathered by the fund, which she founded and serves as president: Every 30 seconds, somewhere in the United States, a child is born into poverty. Every 18 minutes a baby dies and gunfire claims a youngster's life every two hours.

The rally will feature a day of activities for children and families, including music and dance, reading circles, sing-alongs and exhibits.

"This is about values and what America wants to stand for, and if it doesn't stand for its children, it doesn't stand for anything," Edelman said.

A highlight will be a children's march to the memorial, orchestrated to encourage a deeper public commitment to protecting the nation's youth.

One notable absence will be speeches by politicians — not one. Edelman, a Republican, has been invited. "Of course, if politicians want to come to parents they are welcome to do so," she says.

They are reluctant to give an estimate on the number of people they expect to attend. In Washington, school organizations, churches, synagogues, scouting groups and other community groups are being urged to get their members out.

The U.S. Conference of Mayors has endorsed Stand for Children and reported earlier this month that mayors from more than five dozen cities said they have issued or plan to issue proclamations declaring Saturday as Stand for Children Day.

"We are like an underdeveloped nation when it comes to caring and protecting our children," Edelman said in an interview.

The defense fund's 1988 yearbook paints a sad portrait of life as a child in a nation that leads in military technology and experts, the value of goods and services produced and in the number of millionaires and billionaires among industrialized nations.

Every day in the United States, according to the yearbook:

- 3,980 children are born into poverty; 27 die from it.
- 4,408 children are reported abused or neglected; three die.
- 18 children are killed by firearms.
- 3,588 children quit school.
- 3,700 become pregnant.
- 780 are born at low weights.

Among developed countries, America also loses the most children to gunfire, and has twice the rate of teen-age births as England and five times the rate of France, Italy and other Western European nations, the report concluded.

The American Association of Retired Persons, the seniors' lobby, is among those endorsing the rally. It estimates that 1.2 million children are being raised by grandparents — a figure that has risen dramatically in recent years — because of drug and child abuse, teen-age pregnancy and other factors.

Economists: No inflation expected before 1988

By JOHN B. SHULLMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The U.S. economy appears safe from recession at least through next year, forecasters said today.

At the same time, the forecasters contended that early signs of rising prices were temporary and inflation would remain in check while the unemployment rate would be unchanged.

The consensus of the 28 professional forecasters surveyed by the National Association of Business Economists called for the economy to grow 3.5 percent this year, later than the 1.9 percent pace they predicted in February.

But the gross domestic product — the broadest measure of the nation's economic health — would decelerate slightly to 2.1 percent in 1987, according to the survey conducted earlier this month.

The GDP grew 2 percent in 1984.

Many economists say the Federal Reserve target for economic growth is between 3 percent and 2.5 percent — a rate they believe would sustain the five-year-old expansion without heating inflation.

A separate survey of 148 association members found only 20 percent expected Fed policy-makers to cut short-term interest rates in the next six months to stimulate economic growth. Sixty-eight percent predicted no change and 10 percent expected a tighter monetary policy.

The other survey found the forecasters expecting inflation to grow 3.5 percent this year and 3 percent in 1987. The Consumer Price Index rose 2.5 percent in 1986, the lowest since a 1.1 percent gain in 1984.

"The survey panel members expected that much of the recent hike in inflation rates — caused by rising oil and grain prices — will be reversed over the remainder of this year and next year," the survey summary said.

The consensus forecast also called for the unemployment rate to remain unchanged at 5.6 percent this year and rising slightly to 5.7 percent in 1987.

In their examination of economic growth, the forecasters expected GDP growth to begin moderating during the second half of 1986. The panel estimated an annualized growth rate of 3 percent in the current quarter, up from 2.6 percent in the first three months, before slowing to 2.5 percent in the final six months.

"It is likely that the NAEB panel members reduced their forecast for second half GDP growth because of slower housing activity coming from higher mortgage rates," the summary said.

Indeed, 74 percent of the association's survey panel believed housing starts will be reduced by between 5 percent and 10 percent because of the recent jump of more than 1 percentage point in mortgage rates. New housing starts are expected to fall 10 percent in 1986.

But the survey panel also predicted that other construction would be offset completely by smaller plant declines.

School cafeteria mystery

By DAVID REED
Associated Press Writer

BLACKSBURG, Va. — In school cafeterias across the nation, the scene is replayed time and again: a frazzled woman with a hair net and fogged glasses peeps some mystery meat on a tray.

Now, haute cuisine chefs in tall white hats have been brought in by the federal government to teach school cafeteria workers how to cook.

With such shows as comfort tossed spaghetti, crusty vegetable pizza and tabbouleh salad.

"We can do it in restaurants," said Chef David St. Jean-Grubb of the Culinary Institute of America. "Why can't we do it in food service?"

In a recent study, only 1 percent of the schools met the federal government's 1994 dietary guidelines, including limits on fat and salt, said Ellen Haas, undersecretary of food and nutrition for the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The USDA reported in 1990 that 38 percent of the calories 23 million students a day eat at school came from fat — 15 percent of it saturated fat. It also said students were consuming twice the recommended amounts of sodium.

To reverse those numbers, the department has allocated $14 million and enlisted the help of the Culinary Institute to train school food service workers this summer on ways of changing lunch menus and cooking techniques.

The USDA is also under orders to improve the nutritiousness of the food it ships to schools around the country.

That means more freshly cooked meals and less reliance on meat, processed food and entrees children traditionally love, such as corn dogs and pepperoni pizza.

"There will be a very significant shift in the kinds of lunch that will be served in the next school year," Haas said. "For example, we've reduced the fat content in beef, taken out sodium in canned soups and provided more turkey."

In one of seven training programs taking place across the country, St. Jean-Grubb and other crisply adorned chefs revealed some trade secrets along with techniques in cooking tender, healthy food.

"You have to get inside a child's head," St. Jean-Grubb said. "Why does a child like fat food? Because it all tastes sweet."

To get them to eat carrots, for example, add some brown sugar or honey, he suggested.

Also teach vegetables to retain their bold colors, and flavor foods with spices and citrus rather than salt, he urged.

The 54 chefs trained in what appeared to be a top-notch kitchen at Virginia Tech made entrees such as herbaceous turkey pizza, corned beef spaghetti and white bean vegetable pizza.

Voice recorder offers insight

WASHINGTON — The badly battered cockpit voice recorder of ValuJet Flight 592 indicates there were fire and oxygen problems in the passenger cabin moments before the plane crashed in the Florida Everglades.

About six minutes after the DC-9 took off from Miami International Airport, "it appears that the cockpit door opened (and) there were verbal indications from the cockpit that there was fire in the passenger cabin," National Transportation Safety Board Vice Chairman Robert Francis said Monday.

The tape from the cockpit voice recorder, recovered from the Everglades muck Sunday, also contains "indications from the cabin that there were problems obtaining oxygen."

Francis offered no other details, saying the examination of the tape has just begun and the information on it is "very, very difficult to decipher at this point."

Memorial Day

readily fields of flowers to a small-town cemetery in Amish country. Americans paused to honor those who died for their country.

In his Memorial Day address Monday, President Clinton paid tribute to those who gave their lives in peacetime as well as war.

He remembered Commerce Secretary Ron Brown, who died in a plane crash while on a mission to Bosnia in April and the 14 people killed in a helicopter crash at Camp Lejeune, N.C., three weeks ago, and Adm. Jeremy Borda, who committed suicide this month.

Baby's grave

READSBORO, Vt. — To Tom and Tami DeBlasi, their baby was much more than a name and an all-too-brief lifespan. So they added a family photograph, laminated against the weather, to the headstone.

Jonica Deanna was just 11 months old, and they loved her as much.

But the picture was not enough, so they had a knee-high china statue custom-made in Jonica's memory, with black hair like hers. On what would have been her birthday, her niece set a pink lunch at the grave.

Her father, a carpenter, built two square flowerboxes to flank the stone, and the family planted a small tree for ornaments at Christmas time. Family members brought a crutching lion, a painted noose and a ceramic bunny; a wooden carving of a girl on a swing hung from a tree branch overhead.

But when Tom DeBlasi built a thin trellis over the headstone last summer, cemetery officials decided they had had enough. "It's excessive," said one. "It's entirely different than the normal response of families to death." So they ordered the decorations removed, setting off a dispute that still rages.

Abuse of exported female labor

MANILA, Philippines — While working as a housemaid in Oman, Nene kept a pair of scissors hidden under her pillow to protect herself from the sexual advances of her employer's son.

"I might kill him," she wrote to her mother in the Philippines. "He wants me and he is insistent."

Nene, who spoke on condition that her last name not be used, spent 20-hour days cleaning, tracing and cooking — with no days off — while trying to avoid her harasser. She finally convinced her employer to let her go home to the Philippines by fabricating a story that her 5-year-old child was ill.

Nene's experience is becoming increasingly common, according to about 50 U.N. experts who began meeting in Manila on Monday to discuss the growing problem of abuse associated with exported female labor.

Dramatic ending

HOLON, Israel — It was billed as a dramatic ending to a lachrymose campaign: Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin would venture into towns that once rioted against him, Benjamin Netanyahu would meet with Arabs whom his party has opposed.

Yezers will be making what could be the most important decision in Israel's history — whether to continue Rabin's peace policies or to elect a challenger who opposes further land-for-peace deals with the Palestinians.

But on Monday, the hot full day of campaigning before Wednesday's elections had an unexpectedly lighthearted finish. Although they ventured into potentially hostile territory, both candidates appeared before friendly audiences.

IN BRIEF

AND

Letter handcuffs Reds

MIAMI — This time against the Cincinnati Reds, Al Leiter had control. The Florida Marlins' left-hander allowed just two walks and three hits over eight innings Monday to beat the Reds 6-2. Five days earlier, Leiter gave up nine walks and lost to Cincinnati 6-1. Leiter (7-4) is tied for second in the National League with 88 walks in 78 1-3 innings. But he also ranks second in ERA at 2.57, behind only teammate Kevin Brown's 2.34. Beginning with Leiter's no-hitter against Colorado on May 11, he has allowed just eight hits in four starts covering 80 1-3 innings. Opponents are hitting .088 during that stretch. Because of poor run support, his record during that span is just 2-2. But the Marlins staked Leiter to a 4-0 lead in the first inning Monday. Jeff Conine hit his ninth homer and his third in two days. He also singled home two runs in a four-run first inning against John Smiley (4-5). The Marlins climbed to .500, their best record ever after 88 games.

Reds get saves leader

MIAMI — Career saves leader Lee Smith is bound for the Cincinnati Reds' bullpen, but not as a replacement for closer Jeff Brantley. Smith, who has 471 saves, was traded to the Reds — his seventh team — by the California Angels for left-hander Chuck McElroy. Smith, 36, had said he would ask to be traded or would retire if he wasn't the Angels' closer. Smith, placed on the 15-day disabled list in April after off-season surgery on his right knee, was 0-0 with no saves and a 2.45 ERA in 11 innings. McElroy, 26, was 2-0 with a 6.87 ERA. Smith makes $8.1 million and McElroy $617,000. The Angels agreed to pick up the difference in their salaries this season.

Tide, Gators get top seeds

OMAHA, Neb. — Alabama, the regular-season and Southeastern Conference tournament winner, received the top seed in the College World Series. The SEC's No. 1 seed, Alabama (48-17), will open the 1994 NCAA Division I tournament Friday against No. 8 Oklahoma State (48-19), No. 4 Clemson (49-18) will face No. 5 Miami (47-18) on Friday night. On Saturday, No. 3 Florida (48-16) faces No. 7 Florida State (51-15) and No. 3 Wichita State (54-9) plays No. 6 Louisiana State (48-15).

Lasier gets lion's share at Indy

INDIANAPOLIS — A day after winning the Indianapolis 500, Buddy Lasier received $1.37 million from a purse of $8.1 million, the richest prize package in the history of the sport. The purse breaks the mark of $6.66 million set last year, although Lasier's winnings for the HomeGard Racing Team fall short of the record prize of $1.574 million to Al Unser Jr. and Team Penske in 1984. Davy Jones, the runner-up who finished less than one second behind Lasier, received $682,500. Third-place Richie Hearn, the only other driver to finish all 200 laps, earned $975,000, the fourth-highest payoff to a rookie. Tony Stewart, selected rookie of the year, took home $828,056 for finishing 24th. Stewart started on the pole in place of Scott Brayton, who was killed in practice May 17.

Arizona claims softball crown

COLUMBUS, Ga. — Jenny Dalton hit a three-run homer as Arizona beat Washington 6-4 for its fourth NCAA softball title. Allison Johnson had a two-run double and Lety Pinado added an RBI single for the Wildcats (58-9).

French Open begins

PARIS — On a dreary, rainy opening day, Pete Sampras, Andre Agassi and Monica Seles overcame injury worries, tricky opponents and emotional moments to move safely into the second round of the French Open. Sampras, the men's top seed, beat Sweden's Magnus Gustafsson 6-1, 7-5, 7-6 (7-5) for his first victory on clay this year, setting up a second-round clash against two-time champion Sergi Bruguera of Spain. Agassi, No. 9, received a warning and a point penalty for audible obscenities before taking advantage of a rain delay to subdue Spanish qualifier Jacobo Diaz, 6-1, 6-7 (5-7), 6-4, 6-4. Seles, playing her first French Open since her starring in Germany three years ago, dedicated Court A to 1990's French star Suzanne Lenglen. She then returned to the same court, now shoulder and all, and easily beat French wild card Caroline Dancu 6-1, 6-1.

Lions look to future

Oviedo has 10 grads sign college grants

OVIEDO — The Oviedo football team placed four players to lead the list of the school's 10 graduating senior athletes who have earned collegiate athletic scholarships. Running back Mike Giummo, offensive lineman Matt Lusack, linebacker Dennis McCormack and defensive tackle Chris Martin all accepted athletic grants to continue their football careers at the next level. Giummo rushed for 703 yards and seven touchdowns on 133 carries for the Lions, including an 136 yard, three touchdown rushing performance in a 34-0 homecoming rout of Seminole last season. He also displayed soft hands by hauling in seven passes for 61 yards and three touchdowns last season. Giummo will attend Kentucky Wesleyan University. Lusack, who was part of the offensive line that helped Giummo average 8.3 yards per carry, is headed to Gannon (Pa.) University. Martin will attend Marietta (Ga.) Community College, while McCormack will attend Syracuse University next season. Bonnie Dedelow earned a scholarship to Florida Community College in Jacksonville by helping the Oviedo volleyball team to a 21-6 record and a Class 6A, District four volleyball championship last season. Dedelow had seven kills in a 15-3, 15-5 win over DeLand in 6A sub-regional volleyball playoffs last season. Phillip Graves and Chad Hill helped the Lions basketball team to a 22-7 record last season, including its second straight title in the Central Florida Classic. Graves is heading to Eckerd College, while Hill will only travel a short distance from home to attend Valencia Community College. Cameron Zarbaugh, who helped the Oviedo soccer team to an impressive 25-3-3 record last season, will continue his soccer career thanks to a grant from Lynn College. Carrie McAuliffe will stay close to home to attend Seminole Community College on a softball scholarship after helping to lead the Lions to the 1996 6A-4 softball title. Ryan Rhaldi will continue his cheerleading career thanks to a scholarship from the University of Central Florida. Four Oviedo athletes who did not receive scholarships plan to try and continue their athletic careers as walk-ons. Kevin Murray will try to earn a spot on the women's soccer team at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, while Travis Weeks will attempt the same feat for the Vanderbilt University men's soccer squad. Matt Dorn is scheduled to tryout for the Florida State University cross country team, while Jan Beas will attempt to run on the University of Nebraska cross country and track teams.

Mike Giummo rushed for 703 yards and seven touchdowns on 133 carries for Oviedo last season. He also hauled in seven passes for 61 yards and three touchdowns. Giummo will attend Kentucky Wesleyan University.

Lyman nabs first at Daytona USA

DAYTONA BEACH — The team of Darren Mobley and Dan Barbera from Lyman High School were the big winners in the Ford/AAA Auto Skills State Competition Tuesday May 7, on the grounds of DAYTONA USA, the "Ultimate Motorsports Attraction." DAYTONA USA, Daytona International Speedway's newest and brightest project, will officially open its doors to the public on Friday, July 8. DAYTONA USA, located just outside the Speedway's turn four, will vividly present the color and excitement of racing through interactive exhibits and displays. Mobley and Barbera comprised one of 10 two-member teams which had qualified for the state competition in Daytona Beach. This was the event's first year at DAYTONA USA.

Before the start of the timed competition, 10 Ford Contours were identically "bugged" by contest organizer Keith Draper, an automotive technology instructor at Daytona Beach Community College. Once the scores from the hands-on repair competition and the previously administered written examinations were tallied, the team of Mobley and Barbera barely edged out the tm of Steven Cekov and David Wellbaum from Cooper City High School. Although Mobley and Barbera actually drove their repaired Ford Contour through the final judging area second, their combined scores enabled them to capture first place. For their combined efforts, the two received $12,000 in automotive scholarships and will go on to represent the state of Florida at the national finals in Washington, D.C. on June 17.

Florida's Big Three advance to CWS

GAINESVILLE — Andy Lopez spent Memorial Day playing at the office planning a trip to the College World Series. But it's exactly where the coach of No. 2 seed Florida Gators, wanted to be. His team will face in-state rival Florida State on Saturday in a nationally televised game in Omaha. Fifth-seed Miami will meet No. 4 Clemson on Friday night in the eight team tournament. The double-elimination tournament runs through June 8. Lopez, who led seventh-seed Pepperdine to the 1992 title, will become the seventh college baseball coach to take two schools to the College World Series. The Gators (48-16) earned the berth after defeating Massachusetts 12-2 Sunday in the East Region Final. "I put a note in our guys' locker this morning saying that we need to play 36 strong innings to win," Lopez said. "If I wanted to get real picky, I could argue that our schedule was really tough and we deserved the No. 1 seed, but I don't think it matters too much." The Seminole County trio of David and Rick Eohstein (Seminole High School) and Eric Castaldo (Lake Brantley) helped lead the Gators win the East Regional title. Lopez plans to start left-hander John Kaufman against Florida State (51-15). Kaufman, who earned two complete-game victories in the East Regional tournament, is 10-4 with a 4.50 earned run average. The Gators know the World Series field well. Top-seed Alabama and No. 6 Louisiana State shared the

Poof. Jordan, Bulls make Magic disappear

ORLANDO — Michael Jordan has made a career of playing his best when it matters most. When that wasn't the case against the Orlando Magic in last year's playoffs, when he repeatedly failed in the clutch and cost his Chicago Bulls a chance at the NBA title, it devastated him. So he promised the world — and himself — that it would never happen again. And it hasn't. After three games in which an ordinary Jordan was all the Bulls needed, Jordan shifted into extraordinary gear Monday. He scored 46 points as the Chicago won 108-101 to complete a sweep of Orlando and dethrone the Magic as Eastern Conference champions. "Jordan is Jordan," Orlando's Shaquille O'Neal said. "That's why he's the best player in the world." Said Magic coach Brian Hill: "I thought coming into (Monday), we did a more-than-reasonable

Abnormal valve may weaken heart

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 54-year-old granddaughter has been diagnosed with a thick, fused heart valve. She's been told it will have to be replaced one day. Is this condition genetic? Is there a chance of heart attack?

DEAR READER: I can't tell from your brief description whether your granddaughter's abnormal valve is congenital or acquired. She certainly could have been born with it, or it might have developed later — as a consequence of rheumatic fever, for instance.

In either case, it is not functioning properly and is preventing the normal flow of blood through the heart. While this abnormal valve does not place her at risk for a heart attack, it may — over time — cause the heart to over-work and become weak. If and when that occurs, the valve will have to be repaired or replaced.

Early signs of trouble include exercise intolerance and difficulty breathing. Your granddaughter should be closely monitored by a cardiologist, who will probably order periodic cardiograms and ultrasound examinations to assess cardiac function.

Also, because abnormal cardiac valves are prone to infection, your granddaughter should take antibiotics before having dental work or any other procedure that releases bacteria into the bloodstream.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffered a rotator cuff tear about 1-1/2 years ago and still have pain and stiffness — despite therapy. Is this unusual?

DEAR READER: The rotator cuff refers to tissues that stabilize the shoulder joint. Once torn or severely injured — a common consequence of strenuous activity — the cuff may partially heal, but — in my experience — patients are frequently left with some disability, such as pain and stiffness, necessitating surgical repair.

The operation can be performed relatively easily through an arthroscope (the "Band-Aid" procedure) by any qualified orthopedic surgeon.

If you are content to put up with your discomfort, leave well enough alone. If, however, your shoulder pain is interfering with a normally vigorous life, you should be examined by an orthopedist, have an MRI scan performed, and consider surgical correction.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "An Informed Approach to Surgery." Other readers who would like a copy should send $5 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station,

New York, NY 10158. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: When in an airplane, I see people removing their shoes and putting on slippers because their feet swell. Should I remove my support stockings when taking long flights?

DEAR READER: When we sit for prolonged periods, gravity causes blood to accumulate in the feet, leading to swelling, a common occurrence during long airplane flights. In general, the amount of swelling is trivial.

However, some people — especially those with varicose veins and heart disorders — can be quite bothered by it.

PETER GOTT, M.D.

If you wear support stockings for a circulatory disturbance, I recommend that you keep them on during air travel, because they will help reduce gravitational swelling.

Surround at once

By Phillip Alder

Bobby Richman is a colorful character who was born in the United States but has lived in Sydney, Australia, for many years. If you met him, you would soon find out that he has a keen sense of humor with a particular love for bridge, food and wine.

He is an astute player who has often represented his adopted homeland in international competition.

This deal occurred during one of his regular rubber-bridge games. If you wish to test yourself, look only at the West hand and select an opening lead after the given auction.

The bidding is hardly textbook. North isn't worth his second-round reverse. He should rebid a slightly heavier one no-trump (or two diamonds). Most would treat South's two-spade rebid as forcing for one round, but North knew he had already overbid.

On this layout, a diamond lead would have worked well. But that wasn't appealing, given North's known length in the suit. Instead, Richman opted for the unbid suit. He was just about to lead the two when he realized this might cost a trick (as it does with this layout). As dummy, not South, rated to have any missing club honors, Richman led the club jack.

It worked perfectly. After winning dummy's queen with his ace, East returned a club. Richman took two tricks in the suit before ending with his singleton diamond. And when he got in with the spade king, Richman led a heart to his partner's ace for the billing diamond ruff.

This surrounding play, as it is called, is easy to find when you can see the dummy, but is very rare at trick one.
