Term limits, property caps pass

JACKSONVILLE — City voters voted overwhelmingly to limit Jacksonville City Council members to two four-year terms and to cap property tax increases to 3 percent a year. City residents approved the term limits Tuesday by a vote of 49,485 in favor, or 82 percent, and 10,592 against. The tax cap was approved by a vote of 45,263 in favor of the proposal, or 73 percent, with 15,706 against. The two-term limit and the property cap tax questions were placed on the ballot after Concerned Taxpayers of Duval County and Citizens for a Two-Term Limit gathered 30,000 signatures to put the issues on the ballot. The limit isn't due to take effect until 1999. Council members taking office this year would be allowed to seek two consecutive terms. Those already in office also would be able to seek re-election to four-year terms. But court action is expected on the tax-cap issue. City General Counsel James Harrison said the cap would not be binding on the city.

FDA balks at shark warning

MIAMI — Federal regulators say there is no reason to issue national warnings on eating mercury-contaminated shark meat even though levels exceed federal limits and prompted a health advisory in Florida. Florida on May 13 advised fishermen and seafood lovers, especially pregnant women and small children, to limit shark consumption after finding excessive methyl mercury levels in 25 shark meat samples taken from supermarkets. Those tests were spot-checked and confirmed by a U.S. Food and Drug Administration laboratory, but the agency refused to follow in Florida's footsteps by issuing a national health advisory. "These kinds of contamination have to be judged on a case-by-case basis," said FDA spokesman Chris Lecos in Washington. "The levels in Florida were quite low, and it certainly isn't a level people should be alarmed about."

Gay Court to change name

ALAMO, Calif. — A kiss-in by gay activists failed to stop county officials from approving Gay Court residents' request to change their street's name. The Contra County Board of Supervisors voted 4-0 on Tuesday to change the street name to High Eagle Road, said Phil Batchelor, county administrator. One member abstained. "They had a petition filed by 92 percent of the residents on the street and they took action," he said. Name changes usually are routine affairs, but this one drew attention when gay rights groups said the action was homophobic. Some protesters staged a kiss-in on Gay Court in this suburb 30 miles east of San Francisco. Calls to the San Francisco branch of Queer Nation, one of the groups opposing the measure, were not returned immediately Tuesday.

Repeat DUI case gets MADD mad

SANFORD — A man with five previous drunk driving convictions was sentenced this morning over the courtroom protests of the local MADD group to a year of weekends in jail and probation for his sixth DUI offense. Seminole County Judge Newman D. Brock sentenced David Bruce, of Sanford, to 5 years probation, and 52 weekends in the Seminole County jail. Although the State Attorney's office had previously agreed not to make any suggestions before sentencing, Joseph Lyons, a representative of Mothers Against Drunk Driving, requested the opportunity to speak prior to sentencing. Judge Brock refused, saying, "I believe the court is capable of making its decisions without suggestions from MADD." Lyons was allowed to say, "This is a serious offense, and sooner or later someone will be

Jail escapee returning to Sanford

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County jail escapee Richard W. Barefoot may be returned to Sanford following an appearance before a U.S. Magistrate today. Maj. Duane Rutledge, in charge of the county jail, said this morning Barefoot, 38, could be returned to the jail after his court appearance. Barefoot escaped from the jail Monday at about 2 p.m. following an exercise break in an open area surrounded by a 22-foot fence and a coil of razor-sharp wire. He was tackled and captured 32 hours later outside a restaurant near Jacksonville.

"I just had an intuition and I knew that was him. I called Jacksonville and a few minutes later, they called and said, 'We got him.'"

—Eric Thompson, Deputy U.S. Marshall

Although two correctional officers were in the exercise yard with Barefoot and 14 other inmates Monday, Barefoot was able to scale the fence, cutting his arms in the process, and run along the roof of the jail and escape. Rutledge said the escape should not have happened. He said he is continuing an investigation into the incident. "Anytime you have two officers and 15 inmates and no one saw him go over, I'd say that was human error," Rutledge said. No actions have been taken against the two officers, Rutledge said. Deputy U.S. Marshall Eric Thompson said he was able to track Barefoot to a Waffle House restaurant at Interstate 295 in Orange Park near Jacksonville using electronic surveillance.

Although Thompson refused to discuss the method he used to track Barefoot flight while in his office in Orlando, Thompson said, "I just had an intuition and I knew that was him. I called Jacksonville and a few minutes later, they called and said 'We got 'em.'" Thompson said deputy marshalls Ralph Carr and David Alred from Jacksonville first saw Barefoot as he left the restaurant and approached a pay telephone, raising speculation marshalls tapped the telephone of a relative or associate Barefoot was calling. The marshalls said Barefoot fled but they tackled him nearby. Barefoot received a cut to the

Sunniland appreciated

Kathy Krasnoff, president of the Junior Woman's Club of Sanford, on Tuesday presented Sunniland President and Chief Executive Officer Lee Moore with the first Certificate of Appreciation from the club. She said Sunniland, a Sanford corporation that produces roofing supplies, fertilizers and pesticides, contributes in many subtle ways to better the community. "They let us use the copy machine all the time. I met a lady from a church who said they do the same for them. And when I attended the fund-raising Seminole Community College auction last winter I noticed how many of the products had been donated by Sunniland," Krasnoff said. The thank you is long overdue, she said. "I wanted people to know how Sunniland gives to the community more than anyone realized." Moore also is a former mayor of Sanford.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Woman charged with murdering son

PANAMA CITY — A Florida Panhandle woman is being held without bond on a murder charge after doctors unhooked life support systems from her 3-year-old son, who authorities said had been beaten.

Tracy Legli Roberts, 21, was in the Bay County Jail on an open count of murder Tuesday. A grand jury will review the case to determine if she should be indicted and if so the degree of the alleged crime.

Ms. Roberts, a cook, turned herself in Friday, a day after she and her husband gave permission to shut down the equipment that had kept Richard Faison alive for two weeks at Bay Medical Center.

At the time of his death, Ms. Roberts had been free on a $10,000 bond after being charged with aggravated child abuse. The death prompted authorities to add the murder charge and issue a new warrant for her arrest.

An autopsy revealed the toddler suffered a blunt trauma to his head, said Sheriff Guy Tunnell.

Police had accused Ms. Roberts of striking the child in the forehead. He had been unconscious and hospitalized since May 3.

Ms. Roberts claimed the boy had fallen and hit his head on a couch.

Smoking may be banned for city workers

BOCA RATON — A plan to forbid the city from hiring anyone who has smoked within a year has run into opposition from civil libertarians, but defenders say it will cut skyrocketing health insurance costs.

The policy also bans tobacco use by all current city employees while they are on the clock, even if on break or away from city property, but would not govern a worker's behavior during time off, said city Personnel Director Richard Bender.

The proposal, which comes up for a city council vote next Tuesday, "is not only irrational and unjustified, it's unconstitutional," according to Robyn Blumner, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union in Florida.

City Manager Richard Wilker is supporting the proposal and says it would reduce the $2 million a year the city spends on employee health insurance. He could not say how much the city would save, but he reports that the Surgeon General determined that smoking costs the nation $95 billion a year in health care costs and lost productivity.

Boy drowns in his sleep

HOLLY HILL — A 7-week-old boy drowned in his sleep when a nearby fish tank leaked into his crib and the infant couldn't lift his head, police said.

During a 10-minute period, a 6-inch stream squirled from the 35-gallon aquarium into Charles Ray Davis' vinyl-covered crib, said Holly Hill Police detective Mark Barker.

"The weight of the wet blankets, coupled with the baby's own weight, formed a concave pool of water in the bottom of the crib," Barker said Tuesday. "The weight prevented the child from keeping his head above the water, so he drowned in about 2 1/2 inches of water."

The baby, born Easter morning, was living with his grandparents, Charles and Carol Titus, when the accident happened. Police said the baby's parents were transients who were staying in the area, which is north of Daytona Beach, but not in the Titus' home.

The grandfather told police he woke up about 5 a.m. when he heard the rasping sound of the aquarium's pump drawing air instead of water. Titus unplugged the pump and went back to bed, unaware of the tragedy.

When Titus got up at 6 a.m. and reached for the baby, he found the wet blankets and cold child.

Singer Buffett files Alaska skies

KODIAK, Alaska — Florida singer Jimmy Buffett recently tried some changes in latitude, flying across much of southwest Alaska for a book he is writing about a seaplane pilot.

"I have been working on it for going on two years, and for some strange reason ... this hero is a seaplane pilot and it is about his adventures," said Buffett, who himself has a pilot's license.

The Key West singer was in Kodiak over the weekend recovering from a head cold and a week of flying in a Peninsula Airways Grumman Goose amphibious plane.

It was a far cry from his songs about life in the sunny Caribbean. In addition to his two-decade singing career, which includes hit songs like "Margaritaville" and "Changes in Latitude, Changes in Attitudes," Buffett has written two children's books and a collection of short stories.

He said he was working on his latest literary effort, titled "Where is Joe Merchant?", when he read a book about Kodiak Island.

"The flying and the descriptions of the weather really got me intrigued," Buffett said.

Liberty City rebuilds after rioting in 1980

Associated Press

MIAMI — A community development group has built a new neighborhood from the rubble of the 1980 riots in Liberty City.

Eleven years ago, housing burned and police judges hung and bullets from residents of the neighborhood just north of Miami. The ruins were spotted by the acquisition of five police officers by an all-white jury to the beating death of a black motorcyclist.

The non-profit Tenacity Economic Development Corp. built the multi-million dollar Edison Gardens project using land donated by Dade County, or paid for with foundation and government grants, bank loans and private investments. It was the first new housing built in Liberty City in 30 years.

Tenacity executives say the project has been successful.

"Once you get people a decent place to live, it just happens," said Tenacity vice president Joann Perry. "A lot of the fears are lowered when you know the children can go outside and play."

Residents of Edison Gardens say the apartment complex is secure, quiet and convenient.

Kirby came in 5th at this year's first race in Talladega, Ala., and 12th at the Daytona International Speedway. The 4th race in the series will be held in Grand Rapids, Mich., over the July 4th holiday weekend.

"My father takes care of the mechanical end of the races," he said. "I only do the driving." Kirby has been racing his fully restored 1964 Bridgestone motorcycle for the past 6 years. The Chicago victory was his first. "The best I have done up until that time," he said, "was a 3rd place last year at the Atlanta Super Speedway."

Young readers honored

By VICKI BUSHMAN Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — At Goldboro Elementary School last night, 114 students were honored with a banquet for having read more than 100 books over the course of the school year.

"That's a lot of time and effort to read that many books," said Arthur McDaniel, assistant principal at Goldboro. "I don't know that I could read 100 books over the course of the year."

The most prolific of the top readers were kindergartner Joseph (Santiago) Platero who read 161 books this year; first grader Michelle Beer who read 204 books; second grader Damian Ramecar who read 136 books; third grader Charles Hammock who read 228 books, the school record; fourth grader Michael Ramecar who read 207 books; fifth grader Langston Hall who read 125 books and ESE student Jeremy Rabun who read 160 books.

The students were taking part in the Golden Eagle Reading Club, a club that challenges all students in the school to read.

During the course of the school year 21,300 books were read by students in kindergarten through fifth grade and in the exceptional education section.

"Reading is so important. We have to start them reading as soon as we can," McDaniel said.

Last year, a group of teachers at the school devised the challenge to see if they could get the students interested in reading. The students loved the competition.

And the Walt Disney World Company loved the idea, presenting the program with their Teacher of Merit award and accompanying grant money.

The money was used, McDaniel said, to purchase incentive prizes for the youngsters. A ribbon is given to students when they've read 25 books; a badge is given for reading 50 books; a school t-shirt is given for having read 75 books and students who've read 100 books or more receive a trophy and an invitation to the banquet.

The students must tell their teacher about the book that they have read before they can move on to the next one. A verified reading is recorded and the teachers keep track of the numbers for each student.

"These kids aren't just reading easy things, either," McDaniel is quick to point out. "This is at or above their grade level."

Task force investigates truck stop murders

Associated Press

LEESBURG — A task force investigating the possible serial murders of 11 truck stop prostitutes in five states is focusing on a Florida man charged with two murders in Tampa and suspected in two other slayings, a newspaper reports.

The Ohio Attorney General's Office confirmed Tuesday the task force has been examining Oscar Ray Bolin Jr.'s possible links to those murders, the Daily Commercial in Leesburg reported in Wednesday editions.

The killer or killers is believed to be a truck driver who kills prostitutes with crushing blows to the head or by suffocation or strangulation. The prostitutes are then dumped along the roadway.

Of the 11 murders believed linked, seven were in Ohio, and one each occurred in Illinois, Alabama, Pennsylvania and New York.

Bolin, a 29-year-old long-haul truck driver, is in the Hillsborough County Jail, charged with murdering two Tampa women in 1986. He also is suspected in the murder of a Land O' Lakes woman in 1986 and a Dallas woman in 1987, Hillsborough authorities said.

Bolin is now the second known suspect in the prostitute killings, which date back to 1985. Investigators have said there are more but have not released any names.

The prime suspect in at least three of the slayings remains Alvin F. Wilson, a 37-year-old Fruitland Park truck driver awaiting trial in Tavares on several charges, including rape and solicitation to commit murder.

Leesa Brown, spokeswoman for the Ohio attorney general's office, said authorities had not revealed their investigation of Bolin earlier because it would have hurt the investigation.

"He is just one of many leads the task force is following," Ms. Brown told the newspaper.

"We're following up and working with Florida authorities on Bolin, but we're not going to load up on a plane and come right down there," said Ohio task force spokesman Gerry Billy.

Hillsborough Sheriff's Capt. Gary Terry said he believes Bolin is responsible for more murders than just the ones in Florida and Texas.

In July of last year, after it formed a task force of its own, the Hillsborough Sheriff's Office began sending out information packets to other law-enforcement agencies in case they had any unsolved crimes or murders Bolin may have committed.

Bolin is charged with killing 25-year-old Natalie Holley of Tampa by stabbing her to death in his car after abducting her at gunpoint. He then dumped her body along the road, police say.

That same year, Bolin abducted 17-year-old Stephanie Anne Collins from a shopping center parking lot and took her to a trailer park where she was killed, authorities said. She died from blunt trauma to the head and stab wounds, authorities said.

In December 1986, authorities found the body of Teri Lynn Matthews, 26, of Land O' Lakes. She, too, was believed to have been abducted and murdered. She died from blunt trauma and multiple stab wounds as had Collins.

School unions award scholarships

By VIKKI BOGARDNER
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — A pair of Lake Mary High School students were among the winners of scholarships given by the Seminole Education Association recently. Erika Diane Weisman and Mary-Therese Greenan each earned $650 in scholarship money as part of the SEA district-wide scholarship awards. Tina Marie Muegich of Oviedo High School also received a $650 scholarship.

The Seminole Education Association is a union which represents the teachers of the district. Among their goals is that they try to encourage young people to pursue teaching as a career.

The applicants were all members of the Future Educators of America, an organization designed to assist young people who are considering a career in education in attaining that goal.

Though, according to a spokesman for SEA, there were few entries in this year's scholarship contest, the quality of future educators was impressive.

The membership numbers in the local Future Educators of America chapters is not, according to district information, decreasing. Participation in this year's scholarship effort was spotty, with no several schools not even offering a nomination from among their ranks.

There are chapters at each of the Seminole County High Schools.

The SEA raised money for the scholarships through a special Scholarship Run which raised money from among their membership. According to their representative, the group raised a little more money than they were able to give away this year.

Traffic stop ends in arrest

SANFORD — Charles C. Michalowski, 30, 408 S. Sanford Drive, Sanford, was arrested on drug-related charges Tuesday following a traffic stop.

A Seminole County deputy reported stopping the driver of the car Michalowski was riding in on U.S. Highway 17-82 near Bush Boulevard. As he approached the car, the deputy reported seeing the passenger throw a plastic bag out the window, which was found to contain marijuana, authorities said.

Speeding leads to arrest

SANFORD — Richard Phillip Hoski, 22, 401 W. Seminole Blvd., Sanford, was arrested after a traffic stop Monday.

A Florida Highway Patrol trooper reported seeing him driving 75 to 85 m.p.h. on State Road 46 at about 9:30 a.m. The trooper reported after stopped Hoski near County Road 15 and asked his name. Hoski gave him a false name and gave two different birth dates.

Hoski was arrested for resisting arrest and driving with a suspended license.

Warrant arrests

The following people were taken into custody for outstanding charges:

Debbie Ann Woods, 26, 1109 E. Bay St., Sanford, was arrested Monday morning at the Seminole County jail on two outstanding arrest warrants, one for violation of probation for a grand theft conviction and the second for violation of probation for two petit theft convictions.

Miller Adolphus Brown, 30, 1003 Cypress Ave., Sanford, was arrested Monday after he turned himself in to Sanford police on a warrant for violation of probation on an aggravated battery conviction.

Kids listen to some non-smoking ads

Associated Press

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Anti-smoking messages targeted at youths are more effective on radio than on television — and cheaper, too, a new study shows.

"Our work suggests that nationwide radio campaigns could change adolescents' attitudes toward cigarettes relatively inexpensively," said Earl Bauman, professor of health behavior and health education at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Bauman was the lead researcher of the five-year, $1.8 million study that examined the media's anti-smoking campaigns for teen-agers. One city used as a target site was Lakeland, Fla.

He said extending the radio broadcasts to reach 75 percent of the 12- to 17-year-old U.S. population four to six times would cost less than $2 million, he said. By contrast, a combined program involving radio, television and peer group contacts among kids would cost almost $29 million.

Shuttle launch now delayed until June 1

By PAUL ROSEN
AP Science Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL — Three equipment problems in quick succession forced NASA to delay for at least 10 days the launch of Columbia today on a flight to study the effects of weightlessness on the body.

"I walked in this morning and it was like walking into a buzz saw. Bam! Bam! Bam! I said, 'What's going on?'" Beacom Murrah, a NASA official in charge of Columbia's countdown, said after the postponement Tuesday.

The shuttle had been scheduled to start its nine-day biomedical research mission today.

Murrah said NASA engineers received a report from a contractor about midnight Monday that there could be a problem with temperature sensors in the fuel lines.

Within hours, engineers found that one of 23 units that processes computer signals had failed. Later, one of five main computers on the spacecraft shut down.

Murrah said NASA decided to replace all of the faulty parts, a process that will delay the launch until at least June 1.

Scheduled to fly with the astronauts are 30 white rats and 2,478 tiny jellyfish. The goal of the flight is learn how humans and animals react to weightlessness.

Four of Columbia's seven astronauts have been training for the biomedical mission since 1984. It was delayed by the Challenger accident in 1986.

The problem with the fuel sensor was discovered in an analysis of a sensor that had been removed from Columbia in September. A report received from the manufacturer of the device said that it had a crack in a stainless steel weld.

Engineers, worried there could be a similar flaw in the other sensors on Columbia, decided to replace them all.

Murrah said there was concern a faulty weld could allow the pencil-sized sensor to break loose and flow with the fuel into a pump that feeds Columbia's main engines. The sensors measure the temperature of the liquid propellant.

Cold fusion

Cold fusion theory has been infused with a fresh dose of scientific respectability. A team of researchers, led by one of America's pre-eminent "hot" fusion physicists, recently announced that they have developed new evidence to support the existence of this energy source.

In the May issue of "Fusion Technology," the journal of the American Nuclear Society, Frederick J. Miyer and physicist John R. Reits posit the existence of an undiscovered subatomic particle that produces irregular bursts of heat and occasional nuclear byproducts.

Mayer, widely known in the scientific community for his work in fusion research over the last two decades, particularly his contribution to development of methods to harness hot fusion with laser lights, suggests that the sporadic behavior of this hypothetical particle might well account for the inconsistent results of cold fusion experiments around the world.

Nuclear fusion, which powers the sun and stars as well as hydrogen bombs, is created by welding atoms together. The reaction generates tremendous amounts of energy, but also required temperatures of several million degrees to get started.

Two years ago, a pair of chemists, B. Stanley Pons of the University of Utah and Martin Fleischmann of the University of Southampton in Great Britain, announced that they had produced nuclear fusion at room temperature in a simple tabletop device.

For a brief and shining moment they were the toast of the scientific community. But, then, other researchers were unable to replicate their results and Messrs. Pons and Fleischmann fell into disrepute within the scientific community and cold fusion research began to be regarded with a considerable measure of skepticism.

If cold fusion is ever produced it will rate as one of the greatest discoveries in the history of human civilization. It holds out the possibility of a safe, inexpensive, limitless source of energy because it conceivably would be generated in water from the sea. Such a source would not produce radioactive waste, unlike conventional nuclear reactors.

The effort of modern scientists to produce nuclear fusion at room temperature appears somewhat akin to the quest of ancient alchemists to transform lead into gold. Cold fusion may as yet prove to be unachievable. Nonetheless, it holds out such tremendous possibilities for humanity that it merits thorough scientific investigation.

Frugal future for Stanford

Stanford University is paying a stiff price for squandering its federal research money. The U.S. Office of Naval Research, which monitors Stanford's grants, is cutting about $18 million from the money it expected to receive.

This is just punishment. For years, Stanford abused the government's policy of reimbursing a high percent of overhead costs associated with research projects. Stanford charged the government for depreciation on a yacht, the university president's wedding reception, antiques for the president's home, and discount sports tickets for the faculty, among other things.

Now that the government is wise to the tactics, it is reimbursing the university only 55 percent of its grant-related administrative costs instead of the traditional 70 percent.

In the wake of the attendant congressional investigation, Harvard, for example, has announced changes of its own.

It seems that the government now has the attention of the universities.

Rx needed for media data-doctors

Is there a growing epidemic of crime? Of starving American children? Of dead babies? Of ill-educated teen-agers? Or is it a growing epidemic of media mindlessness and maliciousness?

Data-doctoring has long been an American public policy disaster. It comes with the noble territory of a free press and free politics. But is statistics-spinning getting worse? Can something be done?

- In recent weeks, we heard:
  - That the violent crime rate is going up.
  - That "a startling number of American children (are) in danger of starving" (said Dan Rafter, in a CBS lead story).
  - That our schools are a disaster.
  - That the infant mortality rate — remarkably! — has improved.

These distorted stories will have a public policy impact, as politicians echo the hype to get funds, make laws, and sometimes — yes! — get personal publicity.

Mickey Kaus of The New Republic called the hungry-children story "crap" that "oozes phoniness." The "data" came from the left-wing activist Food Research and Action Center. The project was funded by Kraft General Foods, which Kaus notes is "a major corporate beneficiary of federal food subsidies."

According to FRAC, if, even once in a year, you rely "on a limited number of foods," because you are short of money, then your children are "at risk" of "hunger." Pass the pasta.

Infant mortality is down. Surprise! Much touted, as a disaster, it has declined steadily, by half, for blacks and whites, since 1970.

Education? If I hear that the drop-out rate is "soaring" one more time, I will vaporize. It's at an all-time low.

The crime situation is big league. It's our most serious problem. That's why we should know what's going on.

The Washington Post headline about the new 1986 FBI crime data read "Violent Crimes Up 10 percent Last Year." On ABC's "Good Morning America," one alleged expert said it means "the battle is being lost," and the second agreed. Other big media headlines it about the same way.

Missing was the fact that the Bureau of Justice Statistics had recently looked 1980 data that showed violent crime was not up, but down. The decrease was tiny (0.4 percent) but the rate held constant for five years, at levels 14 percent lower than a decade earlier.

FBI data deals only with "crimes reported to the police." BJS conducts a huge "victimization" survey that actually asks about experiences (sample size: 97,000).

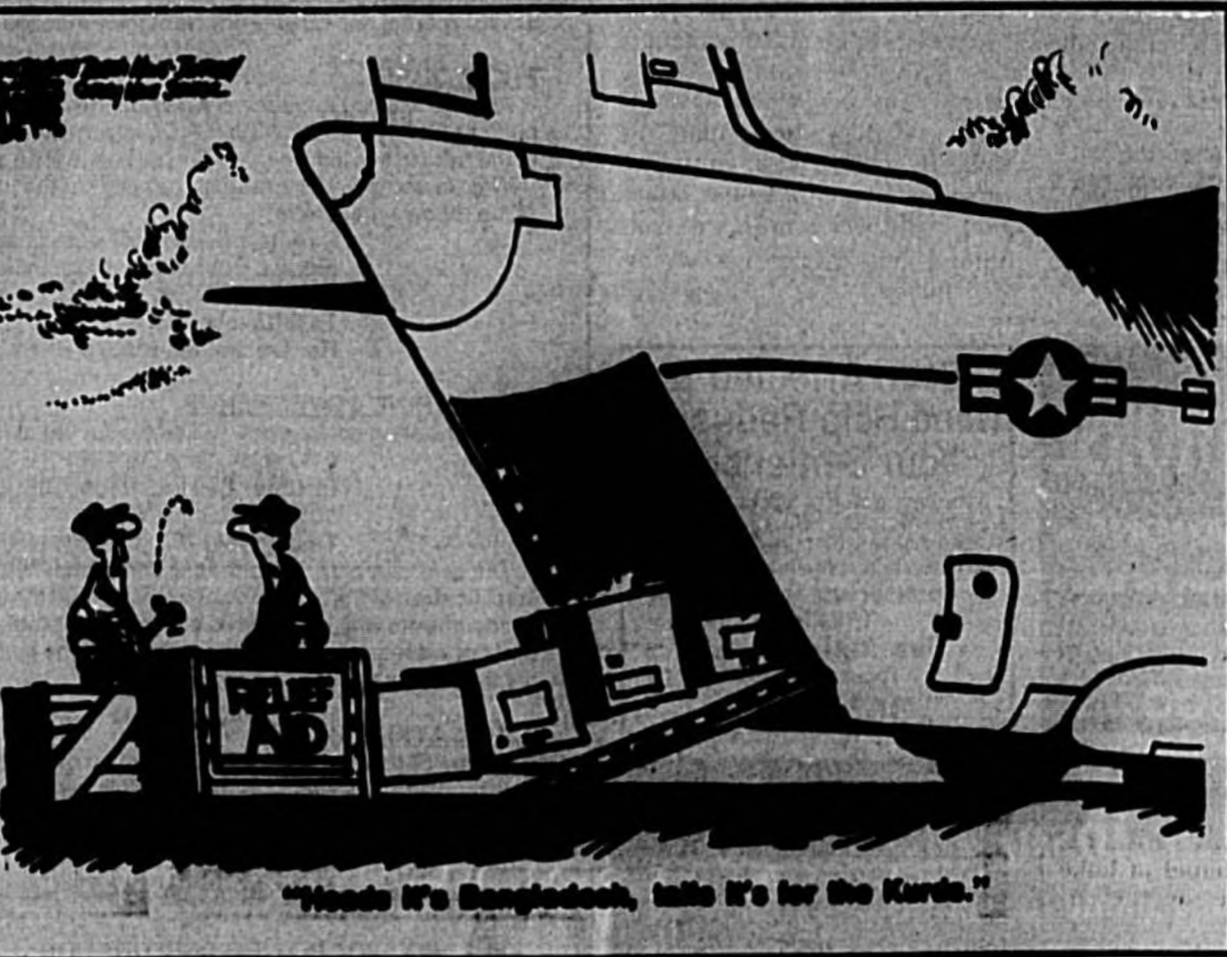

Which is better? BJS is, says Christopher Jencks, writing in The American Prospect. (Police are slower to report crimes to the FBI these days.) I think Jencks is right. In any event, it is irresponsible to report the FBI data without the BJS data.

Also, it's not just sloppy journalism. Everyone now has an interest in pumping up the data. Conservatives want to show moral decay. They want more money for cops. Liberal Sen. Joseph Biden used the FBI report to demand "tough measures to ban killer assault guns and combat the epidemic of violence against women." (BJS data shows rape down by 18 percent.)

Journalists, who should sort out facts from hype, are getting worse at it.

Distorted stories will have a public policy impact.

Your lipstick or your paycheck?

BOSTON — The ad in my magazine is promoting nakedness. Not the real thing, of course, but a line of cosmetics which, by careful application, will allow me to achieve an elusive, artistic and expensive imitation of the real thing.

The Naked Look — a direct descendant of the Natural Look — is divided into three parts, one for Saturday, one for work, one for evenings. By my own calculations it takes eight separate items and several days' pay just to "achieve the work face."

Tell that to Terri Fichette. Terri is a dark-haired 38-year-old with the energy and complexion of a Green Bay cheerleader. She achieves The Naked Look the old-fashioned way. She doesn't put on a face to go to work or anywhere else.

But for lack of lipstick, Terri now lacks a job. Last week, Continental fired her for her post as a ticket agent at Boston's Logan Airport. They considered her lack of foundation a lack of loyalty. She refused to go along with the company's full-fashion makeover.

When a new appearance code for employees came along with the new uniforms — out with subergine, in with navy — it included a new uniform for faces. A man's mustache, they ordered, can be no more than a quarter-inch beyond the corners of his mouth. A woman's face must be covered with lipstick and makeup.

Fichette, a lively and appealing woman, didn't object to the notion of "looking professional." Having worked the 5:30 a.m. shift she says, with a laugh, "I think you should have a fresh, vibrant look. People should know you are awake."

But as someone who had never worn makeup, she immediately pierced the subliminal message in the code: A woman needed to cover her skin and color her lips in order to work with the public. In fact, before firing her, Continental, in all its subtlety, offered to transfer her to baggage.

"Do you need makeup to look professional? Or do you need it to look attractive?" she asks now. Why does the company make women wear makeup when men don't? This is what Terri will be testing in court when she brings a sex-discrimination suit.

The airlines start with a bad record in this department. In the Coffee, Tea or Me Days, applying to be a flight attendant was like entering a beauty contest. In the Fly Me, I'm Susan Era, they weren't marketing Suzy's skills as crashlanding. As recently as 1982, Continental was successfully sued for sex discrimination because it imposed more stringent weight restrictions on women than men.

But Terri Fichette's suit heads directly into a new and less certain area. At what point does a company's right to enforce standards of grooming become an illegal double standard? How is ordering makeup for a woman different from ordering a mustache trim for a man?

A company can insist on some grooming guidelines. The average flyer might feel uneasy about a pilot with green hair and three earrings. But as Karen Nussbaum, the head of Nine to Five, a working women's advocacy group says, "It's one thing to say you have to be well-groomed and you need a washed face. It's quite another to say you can't walk in the door without painting that face."

The message in the makeup requirement is really quite profound: A woman's face isn't good enough as it is. It's only acceptable to be seen in public if it's covered, colored, contoured, brightened, glossed, smoothed, glowing. In short, a woman must be "made up" with all the meanings of that phrase.

Nussbaum monitors a surprising number of calls on their hotline from working women whose jobs have been threatened by their "appearance." Once only an actress or model or fallen woman wore makeup. Now it seems "there are few occupations that don't have a 'beauty' qualification."

When Terri gets the company to court, Continental will undoubtedly argue that requiring women but not men to wear makeup isn't discrimination. It's a recognition of reality. There are different community standards for men and women. And that's true.

Millions of women wouldn't dream of leaving for the office without, in the words of the copywriter, putting their work face on. But this massive insecurity can't become a legal reason to penalize the confident, the comfortable, or those like Terri who don't "need" makeup.

Your lipstick or your paycheck? What misguided image-maker thought that blush on would get this airline out of bankruptcy? Continental has egg on its face. Somebody better go check the mirror.

Continental has egg on its face; somebody better go check the mirror.

Iranian terrorism likely in Kuwait

WASHINGTON — Now that Kuwait has been liberated from Iraq, its citizens can go back to the relatively tranquil times of being a terrorism target.

Kuwait must be on guard against its old enemy, Iran, whose appetite for terrorism and subversion is never sated. Intelligence sources predict Iran will renew terrorist attacks against Kuwait in a bid to destabilize the Sabah royal family there.

For Kuwait, choosing between Iran and Iraq has been like choosing between forms of death.

Now that the "evil" Americans have dispatched Iran's long-time enemy, Iraq, which has seen its stature and army decimated, Iran can free itself for other adventures. Mohammed Reza Shahri — whose resumption as a judge, intelligence chief and prosecutor evinces blood-letting — has just been appointed leader of the Iranian Hajj, or pilgrimage, to the holy cities of Mecca and Medina in Saudi Arabia next month.

Reyshahri also moonlights as Iran's terrorist chief responsible for the region that includes Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and other Gulf states. You don't have to be James Bond to figure out the rest.

The history of Iranian terrorism against Kuwait is a horrifying study. Kuwait has long been used for target practice by Iranian terrorists. In December 1983, a series of car bombings was directed at the U.S. and French embassies in Kuwait, the international airport and the ministries of electricity and water.

Some 17 Iraqi Shites working for Iranian masters were arrested and found guilty of the acts. Their imprisonment prompted Lebanese Shites to take Western hostages in Beirut and hold them in exchange for the 17. No exchange was ever made, but the terrorists were deliberately or accidentally released the day Iraq invaded Kuwait last August.

In December 1984, pro-Iranian terrorists hijacked a Kuwaiti airliner to Tehran. They tortured Kuwaiti and American passengers for six days, killing several. Tehran released the plane, but gave asylum to the terrorists. The next month, the emir of Kuwait narrowly escaped death when bombs exploded as his limousine passed. Bombs disrupted Kuwait's oil-producing and refining infrastructure in May and June of 1986, and again in early 1987.

The more the incidents occurred, the more the Sabah family of Kuwait felt their primary threat was the fundamentalist Shites of Iran, and not the Sunni leadership of Iraq's Saddam Hussein. Kuwait continued increasing its financial support of Iraq in their eight-year war with Iran.

Iran's spiritual leader, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, declared in July 1987 that Kuwait was a top target.

"To date, the government which has explicitly supported the regime of Iraq and helped it, fully supported and permitted the Iraqi regime in pursuit of its mischief ... is the government of Kuwait. ... We will not restrain ourselves. We will do whatever is necessary and whatever appropriate for the time. ... Therefore, the target of this offensive will logically be Kuwait."

A couple of months later, Iran launched three of its missiles not against Iraq but against Kuwait — though they were a non-combatant in the war. American officials believe it may be a forerunner of the future for the Kuwaitis, who may have a short respite between crises.

Choosing between Iran and Iraq has been like choosing between forms of death.

Memorial

held this Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The members of the auxiliary will be setting the poppies at the Sanford area Public, Winn Dixie, and Wal-Mart stores, and at the downtown Post Office.

Joann Smith, an Auxiliary member said, "The funds will go, as they always have, to any and all veterans in need of assistance."

She said, "Last year, the group gave $700 to the VA Hospital in Gainesville, to help provide TV sets for veterans recovery rooms."

In issuing the proclamation, for the observance of Memorial Day, Mayor Smith also urged area citizens as well as those of surrounding communities to attend various special memorial services during the weekend in their places of worship or other areas.

While the only parade planned for Seminole County is the one scheduled for Sanford Monday morning, May 27, the City of Longwood will be holding a special memorial ceremony on that day, at the Longwood City Cemetery, beginning at 10 a.m., and sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

lives."

Judge Brock explained Bruce's previous DUI convictions. They included a 1985 case in DeKalb County, Georgia, an early 1988 conviction in Atlanta, an October 1988 case again in DeKalb County, a November 1988 case in Georgia and a 1989 DUI conviction in Lake Mary. Bruce had also been convicted of a speeding charge in Seminole County in 1980.

Detail on the current case was not immediately available.

For the defense, Bruce's mother, Margaret Bruce, a certified nurse at the VA hospital in Brockton, Mass., said she had worked with alcoholics for years.

"I assure you, my son had undergone the proper treatment, and I know he will be OK."

Bruce also explained that he ran a one-man computer hardware business, and would lose the business if he was placed in jail.

Bruce's attorney, Neil Paulson, Jr., explained that his client had already undergone two separate drug rehabilitation programs, and had given up driving.

Judge Brock said the Department of Corrections had recommended one year in jail, but said, "I think he is deserving of that. But, we have to weigh the situation that the man is a productive member of society and would lose a great deal if we put him in jail full time."

The total sentence given to Bruce was 5 years probation at a cost of $50 per month for supervision, permanent suspension of his drivers license, monthly testing, attendance at Alcoholics Anonymous meetings, pay a fine of $1,000 and spend 52 weekends in the John E. Folk Correctional Facility.

The weekend time period runs from 7 p.m. Fridays until 5 p.m. Sundays.

Jail

forehead which required stitches, Thompson said.

The marshalls also reported Barefoot had cuts on both arms, apparently caused by the jail's razor wire, but the cuts were not serious. Thompson said Barefoot was treated at a Jacksonville-area hospital and would appear in court today on escape charges.

Barefoot was being held in the Seminole County jail for transport to a federal prison to serve a sentence of 30 months for possession of stolen mail. Seminole County sheriff's investigator Jerry Human said Barefoot is wanted in Seminole County and up to 20 other counties in the state for stealing government payments and blank checks from mailboxes.

Human said during the first four months of 1990, Barefoot is believed to have stolen checks from several mailboxes in the Martham Woods Road area. He said the thefts began less than two weeks after Barefoot escaped from a federal prison camp in Terre Haute, Ind.

Human said he interviewed Barefoot in Jacksonville shortly after his September 1989 recapture. Human said Barefoot confessed to the Seminole County thefts and others in the state. Barefoot has not appeared in Seminole County courts on the charges, he said. Barefoot escaped from the Duval County courthouse later that month and was captured again in Pompano Beach in January 1990.

Money for the media

End-user spending per person per year in 1984 and 1989

Source: Verano, Diller & Associates
 In 1989, American consumers spent over $46 more per capita on home video than they did in 1984. However, substantially less growth was seen at the box office field, where consumers spent only about $4 more.

Blockbuster Video says business not in decline

Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE — Blockbuster Chairman H. Wayne Huisenga turned his annual shareholders meeting into a raucous rally for financial glory and pledged to prove wrong analysts who say the home-video industry is dying.

"Predictions of the demise of Blockbuster Entertainment Corp. and the home video industry are wrong," Huisenga told the more than 1,000 cheering shareholders, employees and franchisees at their annual meeting Tuesday. "We are not going away. Not in three years, not in 23 years. Not in anyone's foreseeable future."

Until recently, company shareholders have had plenty to cheer about. Blockbuster, which had just 19 stores four years ago, has more than 1,600 today.

The company is king of the U.S. video rental business, posting a $66.65 million profit on more than $1.13 billion in revenue last year. Until recently, the company's stock did well.

However, recent reports that new technology could threaten Blockbuster's video future have spooked investors.

Some analysts have questioned whether other formats, such as pay-per-view movies, will eat into Blockbuster's business. One analyst recently described Blockbuster as a "casket case."

Huisenga admitted the company's growth won't be as great in the future. Still, he said, it will be robust.

He said the recent drop in the stock price is largely the result of investors, called "short sellers," who bet the stock price would fall.

Blockbuster stock closed Tuesday at $6.87 1/2, down about 40 percent from a 52-week high of $15.35.

Shareholders at most annual meetings get boring, number-filled highlights of last year's performance. But Tuesday night, stockholders got a Wild West video featuring Huisenga as a trail boss in a 10-gallon hat.

"You're a great company," Huisenga said. "And I'm telling you it will be even greater in the years to come."

Earlier, a shareholder asked about plans by Cox Home Video Inc. to sell its 82 Blockbuster video stores. Cox is the third-largest Blockbuster franchisee.

"We could have gone all day without that question," Huisenga replied.

Cox Home Video is a unit of Cox Cable Communications, a division of Atlanta-based Cox Enterprises Inc., which also owns The Palm Beach Post.

In addition to its 82 stores, Cox also wants to sell its rights to operate 40 additional stores, said company spokesman David Andersen.

Huisenga said the company was disappointed that Cox wants out.

In related news, Huisenga said he plans to sell up to 2 million additional shares of stock to pay for continuing efforts to land a professional baseball team in South Florida.

Interstate roads said congested

By Libby Moore & Associates
 Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Interstate Highway System is almost complete and — according to Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan — almost completely congested.

"We have poured enough concrete," Moynihan says. "Our primary object must be to improve the efficiency of the system we now have."

The New York Democrat and a bipartisan coalition of his colleagues are seeking to persuade Congress to cast aside what they see as a traditional, pro-highway approach by the Bush administration.

The emphasis, they say, should be on the more efficient use of the existing transportation system — not new highways.

The Interstate Highway System, begun in 1956, is nearly 42,000 miles of concrete, asphalt and steel stretching from New York to California, Montana to Texas. Sections in Boston and Los Angeles remain to be completed.

The total cost of the system: some $120 billion in federal and state money.

"And the net result of having built all these highways is that we have all this congestion," Moynihan said in a recent interview.

Moynihan is pushing a five-year, $105 billion Surface Transportation Efficiency Act that would give states more freedom to decide how their federal transportation dollars are spent.

The bill would create a new program giving states 50 percent of the total dollar amount to meet specific transportation needs.

If Idaho or North Dakota or other largely rural states want to use federal funds for highways, so be it. Likewise, New Jersey, New York and other largely urban states would be free to put the major share of the federal contribution into mass transit, if they so choose.

Moynihan contends that by giving states — and thus their residents — more transportation options, highway congestion would be reduced.

The Senate Public Works Committee is ready to put the bill into final form and send it to the Senate floor for action by mid-June.

But the measure may be far different than the one Bush and Transportation Secretary Samuel K. Skinner sent to Capitol Hill.

Remove plastic drink bottles from garbage, county requests

By J. MARK SANFORD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Although plastics make up a small part of Seminole County's garbage, the county's recycling coordinator says residents need to remove plastic drink bottles from their garbage to help slow the filling of the county dump.

"All of the municipal waste items are going to be essential for us to meet the (state-imposed) 30 percent goal," said Sherry Newkirk, coordinator of the county recycling program. "We only have four items we recycle — plastic bottles, glass, newspapers and aluminum cans — so every item is important."

As the 1996 state deadline for communities to recycle 30 percent of their garbage nears, recycling officials increasingly are looking beyond newspapers and glass to plastics.

Newkirk said the focus is growing on plastics as a recycling item because so few types of plastic are widely recycled. Southeast Recycling in Langwood, the county's recycler, accepts two kinds of plastic out of a half dozen that are widely used.

Every year, Floridians throw away 1.3 million tons of plastics, which cost a fortune to collect and stink while burning. Plastics of all kinds make up about 8 percent of America's garbage, according to federal estimates.

But in Seminole County, which has an extensive construction industry, plastics of the type recycled by the county make up less than one-tenth of one percent of the 388,000 tons of garbage taken to the county dump. By comparison, demolition debris comprises more than 43 percent of all waste in the county and yard waste makes up nearly a third of all garbage in the county.

To encourage recycling, the Legislature three years ago voted to require most plastic containers sold in Florida to bear an imprinted, numerical code. Coding was supposed to make it easier and less expensive to recycle plastics by helping consumers distinguish one type from another. That's necessary because some recycling haulers accept only certain plastics.

Nearly a year after the coding system became mandatory, however, results have been mixed.

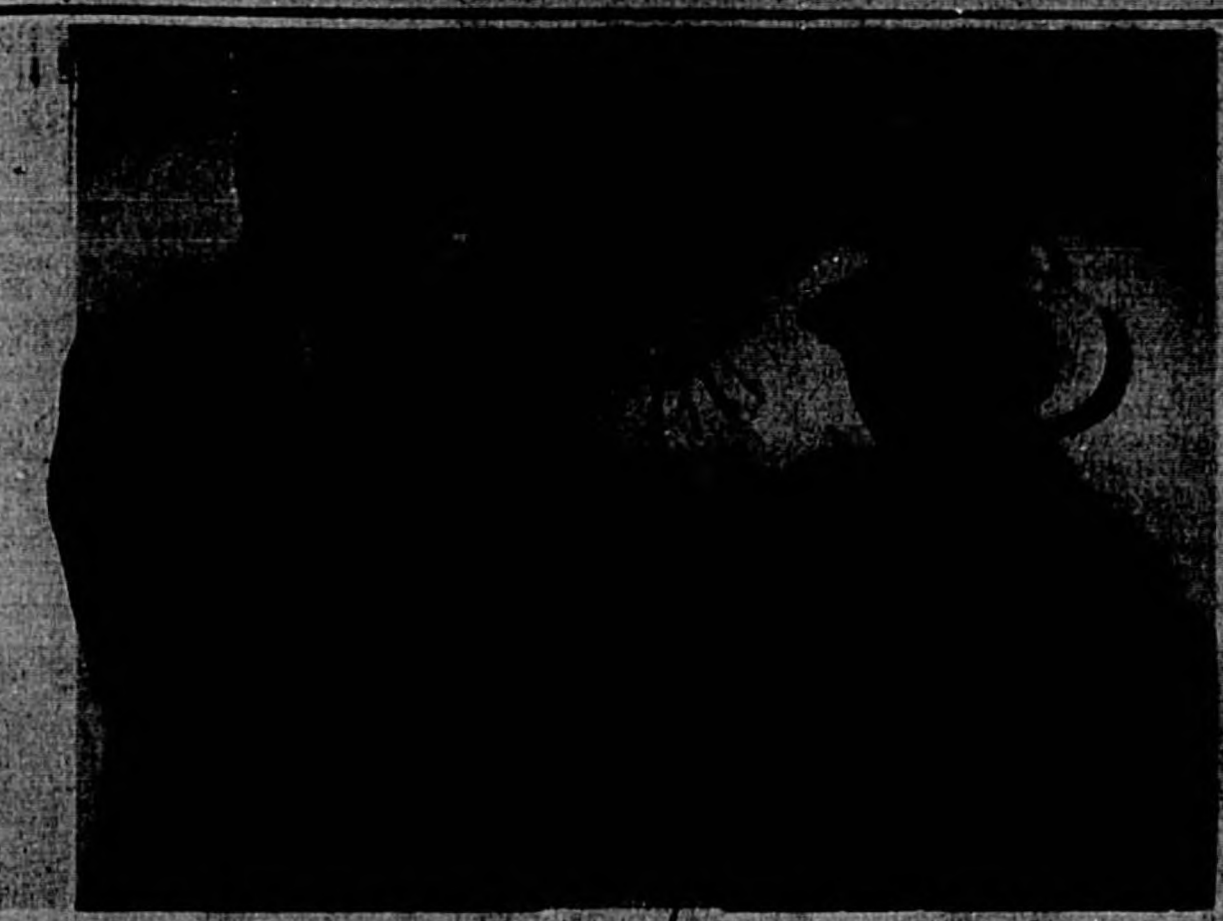

Government officials say consumers are more knowledgeable about plastics recycling, and recycling coordinators expect more plastics to be re-used this year than ever before. But recycling companies continue the expensive process of hand-sorting plastics because they say it's impractical to ask consumers to do it.

And, although many companies began coding plastics before the law took effect 10 months ago, Floridians still recycled only about 2.6 percent of the plastic containers they used from July 1989 through June 1990, according to the state Department of Environmental Regulation.

Nevertheless, recycling officials say, coding has been beneficial. Russell Martin of DER said codes can be useful to recycling companies that must train employees to sort the products.

The coding also has made consumers more apt to toss plastics in a recycling bin than a trash can, recycling officials said.

"People are now aware that plastics can be recycled," Stone-Franklin said. "Some of it that awareness has to do with the plastics coding system."

Rail workers allege safety deficiencies

By JOHN BIANCHI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Amtrak's cost-saving policies have undermined public safety, rail workers told Congress today, but the railroad called the complaints a smokescreen for a simple wage dispute.

The allegations by Amtrak union officials and employees based in Boston are the latest salvo in a running labor dispute between the railroad and its workers in the Northeast Corridor. They also come in the midst of investigations into two recent collisions involving Amtrak trains in the corridor.

Most of Amtrak's workers have gone three years without a wage increase. So strained are labor-management relations at Amtrak in Boston that members of the Massachusetts congressional delegation intervened and sought a review by the House Transportation subcommittee, which called today's hearing.

Workers contended that efforts by Amtrak to make a profit and eliminate the need for government subsidies by the year 2000 have led to reduced maintenance and training.

They said Amtrak has reduced inspections of its cars, including the brakes; cut back on signal maintenance, allowed engineers to operate trains without adequate training and retaliated against employees who spoke out.

"I can cite to you specific instances of trains being ordered to depart Boston with defective brakes over the objections of the on-duty car inspector and the train crew. Instances of doors flying open at high speed for no apparent reason," Harold G. Malone, legislative director of the United Transportation Union, said in prepared testimony.

Amtrak employee Albert January said in prepared testimony that testing of Amtrak's signal apparatus between Providence, R.I., and Boston was "grossly overdue" in late 1990 in the weeks before a major accident at Boston's Back Bay Station.

And another employee, Paul Hanson, alleged that car inspectors who test train brakes "had little or no training. ... I, myself, observed brake valves left in a cut-out position, brake shoes worn too thin, and air leaks not reported."

"There are serious charges that need to be looked into," said subcommittee Chairwoman Barbara Boxer, D-Calif. "The atmosphere at the Boston-area Amtrak is nothing short of poisoned and we need to find out why."

Amtrak Executive Vice President Dennis F. Sullivan said in prepared testimony that the railroad has never sacrificed safety for the sake of operating free of federal subsidies.

"It would be irresponsible for any Amtrak employee to alarm the public by attempting to recast non-safety related issues — such as compensation or work location — into public safety concerns," Sullivan said. "Safety is too important an issue to be used as leverage in labor disputes and negotiations."

The hearing comes as federal investigators probe the Dec. 12, 1990 crash at Back Bay Station that left 267 injured.

Charter foe loses another round

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff writer

SANFORD — County patience has worn thin during the 2½ years since charter critic Bob Webster sued Seminole County to try to block it from switching to a locally-established constitutional form of government.

"This has been a cloud on the county's charter for three years," assistant county attorney Henry Brown said, venting his frustration, during a Jan. 25 hearing before Seminole Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. He apologized several times to Mize for the outburst, according to a transcript of the hearing.

But Mize recognized the complexity of the issue. "I'm coming into a can of worms," he commented, saying he needed more time to review the case.

Webster, a member of the county-appointed committee that drafted the Seminole County Charter in 1988, has continued his unsuccessful fight begun Sept. 29, 1988 to block the county charter. A similar effort to prevent Orange County from adopting a charter form of government also failed.

Webster has appealed Mize's

March ruling that favored the county.

"We haven't failed," Webster said. "We have been outflanked," Webster said, by what he described as "judges taking a dive on this."

Webster's attorney, Johnnie McLeod, said Monday he and his client will pursue the lawsuit until they have a chance to argue their case before a judge.

"We've never had a hearing," McLeod said. "We've taken no testimony in the case. We just want our due process. We feel we've been denied our due process."

Of Brown's comments during the January hearing, McLeod said "Government attorney's have to keep their mind open to the fact that a citizen may have a complaint. These full-time government attorneys seem to think 'I represent the government so I must be right.'"

Webster claims Seminole County erred in adopting the charter ordinance by not having a copy of the charter available for the public prior to commissioners adopting it in September 1988. He also challenged the charter itself.

Ex-mayor Rizzo claims Philadelphia nomination

Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA — Frank Rizzo, who worked his way up from beat cop to mayor in the 1970s, claimed the Republican nomination for his old job while Democrats picked a former district attorney to pull Philadelphia back from the brink of financial collapse.

Rizzo, 70, will face Ed Rendell Nov. 5 if he can withstand a recount likely to be requested by another former district attorney, Ron Castille. Rizzo had a 1,120-vote lead over Castille with 89 percent of the precincts counted.

Rizzo claimed victory in his third comeback attempt.

Rizzo, a burly, tough-talking, tell-it-to-the-judge police commissioner who served two terms in City Hall as a Democrat, switched to the GOP after his first comeback attempt.

Study: workers 55 and older make sense

By CATHERINE WILSON
AP Business Writer

MIAMI BEACH — Older workers make economic sense for business, according to a study that presents hard numbers to debunk some common myths about employees 55 and older.

Studies at three major companies found turnover, absenteeism and tardiness went down with age, and long-held beliefs about higher training costs, lower productivity and inflexibility among older workers were disproved, said The Commonwealth Fund report released Tuesday.

"Until now, corporations have had to make policies about older workers based on hunches and impressions," said Thomas Moloney, the charitable foundation's senior vice president. "These studies for the first time provide numerical results from real companies that have hired older workers."

Consultants examined the success of programs emphasizing older workers at Atlanta-based Days Inns of America Inc., The Travelers Corp. of Hartford, Conn., and B&Q plc, Britain's largest home improvement store chain.

"The interesting thing about the three case studies is that in no instance were these companies motivated by compassion or social justice," Moloney said. "These were motivated by profitability and the availability of skilled workers."

At Days Inns, older workers in the company's 24-hour computerized telephone reservation center in Atlanta trained in the same time, stayed an average of three years instead of one for younger workers and generated more bookings than younger workers, the report said.

At Travelers, a job bank staffed largely by company retirees in place of temporary agency hires saved in one year $871,000, or $4-$9 an hour per worker, capitalized on company familiarity and improved morale by conveying the idea that the company takes care of its own, the study found.

IN BRIEF

STANLEY CUP

Penguins even series

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — Mario Lemieux is back on his feet, and so are the Pittsburgh Penguins.

"It's great having him back. People don't know how tough he is," Kevin Stevens said after his celebrated teammate gave the Penguins an emotional lift and a goal in their 5-3 victory over the Minnesota North Stars Tuesday night.

Lemieux had been a question mark right up until gametime because of a back problem, but became a big exclamation point with some rugged physical play as the Penguins evened the Stanley Cup finals at two games apiece.

From the start, Lemieux looked the picture of health as the Penguins rushed to a 3-0 lead in the first 2:56. No team has opened a Stanley Cup final game with three goals in a shorter amount of time.

Once they got over the shock of an early three-goal deficit, the North Stars made things interesting. They trailed by only one goal going into the third period and had the opportunity to tie with several good chances.

But Pittsburgh goaltender Tom Barraso, who finished with 35 saves and was voted the No. 1 star of the game, was there to put up a stop sign.

NBA PLAYOFFS

Bulls up 2-0

CHICAGO — By the time Michael Jordan got untracked in the second half, his Chicago Bulls teammates already had the game under control.

Jordan scored 27 of his game-high 35 points in the second half Tuesday night, and the Bulls defeated the Detroit Pistons 105-97 for a 2-0 lead in the best-of-7 Eastern Conference finals.

The scene shifts to the Palace of Auburn Hills for games Saturday and Monday, and if a fifth game is necessary it will be played in Chicago on May 29.

The possibility of a sweep exists, especially if the Bulls can be as dominating on the road as they have been at home. Chicago is 9-1 in the playoffs and 7-0 at home.

It marked the first time since 1987 that the two-time defending champion Pistons have been down 2-0. That year, they lost to Boston in seven games in the Eastern Conference finals.

Blazers even West series

PORTLAND, Ore. — Terry Porter scored 26 points, including a crucial 20-footer with 1:39 to play, as the Portland Trail Blazers evened the Western Conference finals at 1-1 by beating the Los Angeles Lakers 109-98 Tuesday night.

The Lakers, who lost on the road for the first time in five playoff games, never led in the second half and threw the ball away twice after narrowing Portland's lead to 100-98 late in the game.

Clyde Drexler had 21 points and 10 rebounds for the Blazers, who outrebounced the Lakers 51-28. Jerome Kersey scored 18 points and Kevin Duckworth 17 for Portland, which lost the series opener 111-106 on their homecourt Saturday.

James Worthy scored 21 points and Byron Scott 20, including four 3-pointers, for the Lakers. Magic Johnson had 19 points and 12 assists, but committed eight turnovers.

Sam Perkins also scored 19 points for the Lakers, who play host for the third and fourth games of the best-of-7 series Friday night and Sunday.

BASEBALL

Cubs can Zimmer

NEW YORK — Don Zimmer, unable to inspire his Chicago Cubs despite the addition of three All-Star free agents, was fired as manager.

The 60-year-old Zimmer led the Cubs to the National League East title just two years ago, but the team was tied for last place in the division this year with an 18-19 record.

Cubs batting coach Joe Altobelli, who managed Baltimore to the 1983 World Series championship, was named interim skipper, and Cubs general manager Jim Frey said he hopes to have a full-time replacement within a few days.

Zimmer, 885-858 in his managerial career, became the second skipper fired this season.

SOUTHERN LEAGUE

Lookouts cool Suns

JACKSONVILLE — Joe Turek allowed only three hits to lead Chattanooga to a 4-0 Southern League victory over Jacksonville on Tuesday.

Turek (2-2) struck out seven and walked one while going the distance for the Lookouts.

Shawn Barton (2-2) took the loss for the Suns. He went more than seven innings, allowing 10 hits, four runs, one walk and had three strike outs.

Among the state's elite

Seminole Soccer Club has 27 players make select teams

From Staff Reports

Twenty-seven boys and girls representing the Seminole Soccer Club have been named to the Florida Youth Soccer Association's 1991 state select teams.

Also, two players from the Maitland Soccer Club were selected as were three from the Winter Park Soccer Club and two from the Orlando United Soccer Club.

Over 2,600 players participated in the trials for the 236 available berths on the six age groups of teams and two age groups of player pools. Some of them will go on to the USA Regional Team trials while the others will play in Select Player tournaments.

Among the 23 girls who were named to their respective state select teams or state player pool, 11 were repeat selectees.

For starters, Allison Neri and Allison Satterthwait, both of the Seminole Soccer Club, were both named to the girls' Under-14 state select pool for the second consecutive year.

They are joined by fellow Seminole Soccer Club players Margi Burkhart, Della Eubanks, Kristi Finley, Danya Harris, Carrie Moore and Kelli Strickland; Andrea Gillen and Sarah Yohe of the Maitland

Soccer Club; and Jennifer Meyers of the Winter Park Soccer Club.

Three Lake Brantley High School varsity players and one from Lake Mary High School are on the girls' Under-16 state select team. Representing the Seminole Soccer Club and Lake Brantley are Nicole Delahoussaye, Alyssa O'Brien and Marci Stark while Adriane Hemmerly represents both the Seminole Soccer Club and Lake Mary.

This makes the second year in a row that O'Brien and Stark have received state-select honors. Last year, O'Brien was named to the Under-14 state select player pool while this is the second year for Stark on the Under-16 state select team.

Of the nine area players on the girls' Under-16 state select team and alternate squad, seven were state select players last year. Eight played for their respective high school varsity teams this past season.

Leading the group is Becky Carr of the Seminole Soccer Club who helped lead Lyman High School to the Class 4A state championship this year. Amy Geltz and Stephanie Gringer, also of the Seminole Soccer Club, were instrumental in bringing the Class 3A state title to Bishop Moore High School.

Also named to the Under-18 state select team were Stephanie Beaudoin (Deltona High School) and Dana Hoover (Lake Mary) of the Seminole Soccer Club and Michelle Harris (Lake Mary) of the Winter Park Soccer Club.

Named to the list of eight alternates were Leanne Bazile (Lake Mary) and Carly Reiter of the Seminole Soccer Club and Michelle

Changing on the fly

Cubs rally for Babe Ruth win

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The Hungry Howies Cubs scored five runs in the bottom of the fourth inning to score a come-from-behind 8-4 win over the Pretty Punch Blue Jays in a Sanford Recreation Department Babe Ruth Baseball League game at Chase Park Tuesday night.

The game was originally scheduled for Monday but had to be moved to Tuesday because of a problem with the lights at Chase Park.

The win got the Cubs even in the standings at 3-3 while the Blue Jays fell to 1-4. The remainder of the league has the Knights of Columbus Cardinals on top at 5-0 followed by the Prestige Lumber Expos (3-1), the Kiwanis Club Orioles (3-2), the Cubs, the Rotary Royals (2-3), the Moose Lodge Pirates and Woodman of the World A's (both 1-3) and the Blue Jays.

There will be a doubleheader at Chase Park Thursday before the league takes off for the Memorial Day holiday weekend. At 6 p.m. the Pirates play the Royals and at 8 p.m. the Expos take on the Orioles.

The Cubs took the initial lead with a run in the bottom of the first inning. Lawrence Mason walked, stole second and scored on Derrell Jackson's single.

Mac Cox walked and later scored to tie the game for the Blue Jays in the top of the second inning but the Cubs answered with two runs in the bottom of the second. Murphy Bryan and John Martin both walked and came around to score for the Cubs.

The Blue Jays looked like they might claim their second win of the season when wildness allowed them to score three times in the top of the fourth inning. Cox and Linn Van walked and Demetrice Turner was hit by a pitch to load the bases. Eddie Key and Tim Hunter both walked to force in runs and Ray June hit a sacrifice fly for the third run.

But the Cubs bats awoke in the bottom of the inning and allowed them to take the lead and the win. Eric Johnson doubled but was picked off second. Cornelius Martin singled, stole second and scored on a single by Bryan, who was also picked off.

John Martin walked and went to second on a throwing error from where he scored on a single by Terrell Jackson. Joe Tittle walked and both runners stole a base. Derrell Jackson singled to score both runners and later scored on Kelvin Jones' single.

Adrian Mitchell did a marvelous job on the hill for the Cubs, scattering four singles and striking out eight in getting the win.

Knight, Cubs beat Pirates for third straight Little Major win

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The Railroaders Cubs clubbed seven extra-base hits as they continued their hot play in beating the Suniland Corporation Pirates 17-11 in a Sanford Recreation Department Little Major Baseball League game at Roy Holler Field Tuesday night.

The win was the third straight for the Cubs and improved their record to 6-3 while the Pirates fell to 4-5 on the season.

In the other game Tuesday, the Rinker Materials Dodgers scored three runs in the top of the sixth inning to take an 8-6 win and keep the Fisher, Laurence & Deen Blue Jays winless.

The win broke a three-game losing streak for the defending city champions and improved the Dodgers record to 2-7. The Blue Jays fall to 0-9 with the loss.

There will be a mixed division doubleheader at Roy Holler Field Thursday before the league takes off for the Memorial Day weekend. At 5:45 p.m. the defending American Division champion Disabled American Veterans Royals will play the First Union Bank A's and at 7:45 p.m. the Pirates will take on the American Division leading K & D Trailer Sales Red Sox.

The Cubs jumped on the Pirates with five first-inning runs but the Bucs fought back to within 6-4 before the winners put an eight spot on the board in the top of the fourth inning. The Pirates scored two runs in the bottom of fourth to keep the game going but they would get no closer.

Winning pitcher Aaron Knight pitched out of bases loaded jams in the third, fourth and fifth innings and a second and third and two-out situation in the sixth inning to preserve his team's victory.

Contributing to the 17-hit Cubs offense were Knight (double, two singles, three runs scored), John Eady (home run, single), Fabian McKinney (triple, double, two runs scored), David Kees (double, single, two runs scored) and Terrance Daniels (two singles, two runs scored).

Cook (Lake Howell) of the Winter Park Soccer Club.

Last year, Beaudoin, Harris and Bazile were named to the Under-16 state select team while Carr, Gelts, Gringer and Hoover were on the Under-18 state select team.

By comparison, a total of 10 boys from the area were named to their respective state select teams or player pool. Of those, five were honored for the second year in a row.

In the Under-13 1/4 boys division, Robert Evans and Kris Leenim of the Seminole Soccer Club were selected to the state player pool. Evans was also named to the pool last year.

Jim Meletidis of the Seminole Soccer Club was the lone area selection on the Under-14 1/4 state team. It was also the second year in a row that Meletidis was named to the Under-14 state squad.

Lake Mary High School's Jody DeBruin (representing the Orlando United Soccer Club) and Lyman High School's Frank Cipolla (of the Seminole Soccer Club) were named for the second consecutive year to the Under-16 1/4 state select team. Roland Bernard of the Orlando United Soccer Club was also picked to the team this year.

Another Lyman High School and Seminole Soccer Club player, Daniel McAvoy, was the sole area selection on the Under-16 1/4 state team.

Finally, in the Under-17 1/4 age group, Lake Mary High School's Matt Buckmaster (Seminole Soccer Club) was a repeat selection to the state team. Quinn O'Sullivan and Brandon Reinke of the Seminole Soccer Club were alternate selections.

Russ scores first win at New Smyrna Speedway

Special to the Herald

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — Young Shane Russ led every lap but the first to score his initial career win in the FASCAR-sanctioned 25-lap Late Model feature on Saturday night at New Smyrna Speedway.

Running strong in the former Dick Anderson machine, Russ dove inside of early leader/pole sitter Jess Taylor from his outside front row starting spot to take over for good on lap two.

With five laps down, rookie Ricky Marshall tagged veteran Joe Middleton and the pair spun, resulting in a caution period. At the restart, the leader spun in spewed oil coming off turn four, but he was given his spot back after the "kitty litter" was spread.

A brief wheel-to-wheel duel then developed between Russ and Taylor. The whole left side of Taylor's Thunderbird body then started peeling off and he had to pit to have the panels removed.

At the finish, it was Russ followed by Chuckie Lee, division high-point man Middleton, Granny Tatroe and Hal Perry.

Chuck Stanley topped Marc Kinley by inches in the Limited Late Model heat following a heated duel. The fight was rekindled in the main, with Kinley coming out on top this time to score his seventh victory in a row. He was at the wheel of the Applebee's Restaurant Mercury Cougar.

Stanley was a close second, followed by John Schumann, Mike Kubanek and Claude Collignon.

Pulling out of a tight front pack early in the Florida Modified final, Mike Fitch scored his 12th victory of the season over Gary Salvatore, division point leader Scott McDade, Wally Patterson and Ray Smith.

Bobby Sears took the Mini Stock feature over arch rival Buddy Ingersoll.

The wild Bomber final went to Roger Favreau, who seems to have adopted Ernie Irvan's driving style. Early in the race, Kevin Sheppard was sideswiped and smashed the outside rail. The car became airborne and almost left the "ball park," but Sheppard was not injured.

Dave Savicki drove his "Purple Plymouth" to victory in the Sportsman feature. Midway in the event, Joey Stutz went from fourth to first in an incredible move, only to have his engine go sour once he took the point.

An extra large field of four-cylinder cars took the green for the 50-lap Enduro, but at the end, experience prevailed as veteran Wayne Marshall emerged as the winner. Fan Participation race winners were Gary Marcum and Chris Wire.

ORLANDO SPEEDWORLD — Cocoa's Dave McCabe found himself in Victory Lane on Friday night at Orlando SpeedWorld after the conclusion of the 25-lap Late Model feature, which was punctuated by several crashes and the disqualification of the apparent winner.

Heat winner and pole sitter Bill Posey had problems getting his car up to speed. The field stacked up behind him on several occasions, several cars showing considerable damage before one third of the FACAR-sanctioned event was completed.

Shane Russ then grabbed the point and moved up to a full straightaway lead over second-place runner Ronnie Roach. Running by himself on lap 19, Russ spun out. Roach then inherited the lead and went on to an easy apparent victory.

However, during the post-race inspection, Ronnie's car was found to be underweight and the top spot was awarded to sec-

Bussard, defense no-hits Orioles

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Steve Bussard relied on good defense in tossing a no-hitter as the Marshall USA Expos whitewashed the Ace Hardware Orioles 10-0 in four innings in Sanford Recreation Department Little Major Baseball League action at Roy Heller Field Monday evening.

Bussard did not have great control as he walked eight while striking out only five in his four innings of work, but his defense was able to bail him out of tough situations.

Shortstop Mike Evans threw out a runner at the plate in first inning, Aaron Thomas fielded a hard grounder and made the third out at third base with the bases loaded in the second inning, the combination of Rod Raines to Evans to Chris Lytle turned a double play to end the third inning and catcher Danny Harrison threw out a runner on an attempted steal in the fourth.

Offensively, the Expos scored three runs in the first inning, two in the second, one in the third and four in the fourth to end the game by the mercy rule.

Lytle opened the game with a double and scored on a double by Evans. Evans scored when Thomas' grounder went through the Orioles shortstop for an error. Thomas later scored on a wild pitch.

Bussard got things started in the second by drawing a bases on balls. Raines singled Bussard to third with Raines winding up on second. Both runners scored when Lytle reached on an error.

Evans singled and came around on wild pitches for the third inning run while Bussard, Raines, Lytle and Harrison scored the fourth inning runs despite Lytle getting the only hit of the frame. Providing the offense for the Expos were Lytle and Evans (one double, one single and two runs scored each), Raines (single, two runs scored), Bussard (two runs scored) and Harrison and Thomas (one run scored each).

Despite walking eight batters in just four innings, Steve Bussard of the Marshall USA Expos was able to no-hit the Ace Hardware Orioles.

(double) and Benji Chisolm and Marcus Sheppard (one run scored each).

Doing the damage for the Pirates were Lawrence Rudolph (double, two singles), Larnell Payson (home run, single, three runs scored), Bruce Carter (triple, double, run scored), Lonnie Fuller (two singles), Ernest Anderson (single, four runs scored), Adam Ripley (two runs scored) and John Justice (run scored).

The Dodgers fell behind the Blue Jays 4-0 but fought back to tie the game at 4-4 and 5-5 before the Jays scored a run in the bottom of the fifth inning to go up 6-5.

Chad Sheffield led off the sixth inning and tied the game with an inside-the-park home run. Joey Johnson then a walk it looked like the Blue Jays may get out of the inning with no further damage when the next two batters struck out. But winning pitcher Gerald Bishop singled and Terrell Bender tripled in both runners for the go ahead runs.

Bishop came on in relief in the second inning and allowed two runs on two hits while striking out 11, including the last five in a row, over the final 4 1/2 innings to claim the win.

Providing the offense for the Dodgers were Sheffield (home run, double, single, two runs scored), Bishop (home run, single, two runs scored), Bender and J.J. Bryant (one triple, one single and one run scored each), Alfred Harris (single) and Johnson and Brian Porter (one run scored each).

Pacing the Blue Jays offense were Danny Beauchene (double, two singles), Willie Robinson and Brady Jenkins (one double each), Bryan Seelbinder (two runs scored) and Ivory Peterson, Brad Brumley, Kevin Giovanelli and Henry Wilson (one run scored each).

No way to keep them all happy

DEAR ABBY: I am from a large family — all teetotalers and non-smokers. We all get together for reunions and celebrations, and alcohol is never a part of it.

Our daughter is engaged to a young man who also has a large family here in town. Most of them drink and smoke. (The women even drink beer straight from the can.)

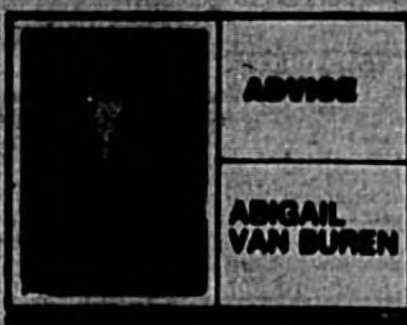

Our daughter and her fiance plan to be married this summer. We knew they wanted a home wedding here in our home, and we were planning the reception (no alcohol); we have lots of room and were looking forward to it. But recently, they casually mentioned that they would like to have everything at his parents' home. I know what the reception would be like — lots of drinking and smoking.

Abby, if they insist on doing this, I don't think I could bring my family — especially my elderly parents — who would be horrified at a reception of this kind.

If I don't invite my parents, they will be very hurt. Do you have any suggestions on how to get through this and keep everybody happy?

IN THE MIDDLE:

DEAR IN THE MIDDLE: There is no way you can mix non-smoking teetotalers with smokers and drinkers, and

ADVICE

"Keep everybody happy."

Whoever hosts the celebration has the privilege of doing it their way. You could compromise by having a smokeson, non-alcohol wedding at your home, followed by a reception at the home of the groom's parents, where there will be no restrictions.

DEAR ABBY: My husband of three years refuses to sleep on his left side. He believes that if he sleeps on his left side over a long period of time, it will damage his heart. So every night he hugs me for a few minutes (I sleep on my left side), then he turns his back on me in order not to damage his heart.

Abby, he is making me paranoid about this because I always sleep on my left side, which my husband insists is bad for my heart.

Is there any medical evidence to support his claim?

DEAR LEFT-SIDE SLEEPER: A call to the American Heart Association confirms the following: Sleeping on one's left side does no damage to the heart.

Busy cook cuts corners not quality

By JEAN KING
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Nina Crouse, formerly of East Liverpool, Ohio, has made Sanford her home since 1989.

Crouse, a widow, shares her home with her mother, Anna Poling.

Crouse also volunteers her time and keeps busy with her job as cashier at Wal-Mart where she works the swing shift.

With eight grandchildren, her job and her altruistic endeavors, Crouse said she hardly has time to cook.

"In the summer time my mother and I eat mostly salads and she makes a wonderful broccoli cheddar soup that we enjoy," she said.

Crouse first learned to cook when she was about 10 or 11. Her mother also taught her to can their own home grown vegetables and fruits when they lived in West Virginia. At that time she belonged to 4-H and entered foodstuffs in fairs.

Our Cook of the Week has come a long way with a lifetime of volunteer service and preparing major meals for others.

Her favorite meal is spaghetti. The last time that she prepared it was for a VFW benefit dinner to help raise funds for cancer aid and research.

Presently, Crouse is president of the VFW Ladies Auxiliary #10108 in Sanford and past district president of district 18 which includes Orange and Seminole counties.

Crouse managed Seminole County Meals on Wheels for two years and ran the operation out of her own home. Then for the next seven years she was site manager for Congregate Meals.

"Now, I nuke everything," she said laughing.

With Crouse's varied hours as a cashier, she finds it difficult to do much cooking or work around the house anymore.

"My son, Michael Marione lives next door and is a big help to us," she said. "My mother does most of the cooking now and we eat out a lot, too."

BROCCOLI CHEDDAR SOUP

1/2 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup margarine
1/4 cup flour
1 10 ounce package broccoli, cooked, chopped and drained
1/2 tsp. salt
4 cups milk
2 cups shredded cheese
Saute onion in margarine. Blend in flour and salt, add milk and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add cheese and broccoli, stir until cheese is melted.

SLOPPY JOE WITH CHEESE

1 large onion chopped
1 lb. ground beef
1/2 tsp. seasoned salt
2 Tbsp. worcestershire sauce
2 Tbsp. white vinegar
1/2 cup diced cheddar cheese
2 cloves fresh garlic chopped
1 Tbsp. butter
2 Tbsp. brown sugar
1 (12 ounce) bottle chili sauce

Nina Crouse has been cooking since childhood.

Saute onions and garlic in melted butter, lightly. Set aside. Brown ground beef; drain well. Put meat in pot with all ingredients, except cheese. Cook slowly on top of stove, stir occasionally. Cook 30 to 45 minutes. During the last few minutes, add cheese until melted. Serve on rolls.

NO BAKE CHOCOLATE COOKIES

2 cups sugar 1/2 cup milk

1/2 cup cocoa 1 stick butter

Bring to a boil and cook one minute. Remove from heat and add 1 tsp. vanilla, 1/2 cup peanut butter and three cups quick oats (nuts if desired) Drop on cookie sheets. Makes three dozen.

Inhaled fungus spores will infect the lungs

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband has pulmonary histoplasmosis. The symptoms are chronic fatigue and aches in his lower legs and arms. How long will it take for him to fully recover and become active again? A lung biopsy shows him still in the healing process.

DEAR READER: Histoplasmosis is a fungus that occurs worldwide, but is especially common in the Mississippi and Ohio river valleys in the United States. The fungus spores are present in the soil and can infect the lungs when spore-containing dust is inhaled.

About 90 percent of all histoplasmosis cases are insignificant; the fungus causes a limited pulmonary infection resembling flu, with cough, fever, malaise and shadows on the chest X-ray. Patients recover without treatment; in fact, years may pass before the consequences of the infection are discovered (usually in routine chest X-ray examinations).

Of the remaining 10 percent, only about half require treatment, usually because of an immune deficiency that permits the fungus to spread to the liver or bone marrow. For example, AIDS patients are especially prone to a progressive and virulent form of histoplasmosis. The remaining 5 percent may have illness that is severe but clears completely without treatment.

The diagnosis is difficult to establish in patients living in endemic areas, such as St. Louis, where up to 80 percent of healthy people have had the infection, so blood tests are not reliable in identifying which patients have acute histoplasmosis. In such patients, biopsy and culture of infected tissue may be necessary for diagnosis. Treatment with the powerful anti-fungus drug Amphotericin B is virtually 100 percent effective.

Previous histoplasmosis can reactivate if, at a later time, the patient becomes ill from another disease that affects the immune system.

In short, your husband seems to be recovering. The process may take months, however. At this point, he probably does not need treatment. Histoplasmosis will not cause any long-term serious health consequences, once healing is complete.

Monday's deal showed one method by which declarer can mislead the defenders. He discarded from a suit in which he was strong, rather than one in which he was weak.

On today's hand, taken from the Vanderbilt Knockout Teams at the Spring North American Bridge Championships, declarer was strong in the suit led but was wide open in another suit. He had to try to keep that fact from his opponents.

After the speedy auction at both tables, West led the heart 10. The first declarer made the bad play of the heart ace from the dummy. He led a diamond back to his queen, then a diamond to the jack, king and ace. Feeling sure South had the heart king, from his "failure" to finesse at trick one, East switched to the spade four. West took declarer's 10 with the jack and returned the spade eight.

East won with the king and led back his last spade so West could cash two more tricks in the suit. That gave the defenders five tricks, and declarer was minus 50.

At the other table, John Roberts of New York "finessed" dummy's heart queen at trick one. He led a diamond back to his queen and a second diamond, covered by the jack, king and ace. Now the position was not nearly so clear to East. If his partner held the heart king, a spade switch rated to be second best. Also it wasn't obvious that declarer had four club tricks ready to run. After some thought, East played back a second heart, and South claimed nine tricks for plus 400. The swing was 450 points or 10 IMPs.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 23, 1991

There are indications you may make some critical changes in the year ahead that will have a positive effect upon your financial position. There's a chance you may fulfill a long-standing expectation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try to avoid speculative involvements today, especially those where you may have to borrow in order to enter the venture. What starts out wrong could end quite dismal. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This might not be one of your better days for decision-making. Unfortunately, there's also a chance that those whom you go to for counsel could be even more inept than you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Try not to do anything today that could disrupt what is presently running smoothly.

Let your motto be "If it ain't broke, don't fix it."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Deliberately playing up to another in order to make someone you like jealous could lead to all types of complications today. Don't play games.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Success is within your grasp today — if you're tenacious and consistent. The odds won't be as favorable, though, when you take gambles in hopes of winning.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If associates sense that you have little regard for their opinions and ideas, they aren't apt to have much respect for yours. Keep an open mind and avoid prejudging.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't let someone who is notorious for falling to manage personal resources try to manage yours today. This could turn out to be a very expensive error on your part.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can bring into being what you positively envision today. However, this may not be true of the people you'll be involved with: what you collectively attempt could fail.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You won't object to going out of your way to be of assistance to another today. What could bug you, however, is this individual's lack of appreciation and acknowledgment.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you won't object to going out of your way to be of assistance to another today, check to see what your old stand-bys are doing. Involvements with new acquaintances might not work out comfortably today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Guard against the inclination to undo your own accomplishments today. Once you've successfully achieved something, let it rest and move on to your next goal.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have a very keen imagination today, and this can be a big plus, provided it's channeled constructively. However, if you start conceptualizing negatively, you'll be self-defeating.
