in comparison with the precipitation in other sections of the State during the past few days. According to a newspaper account, 6.26 inches of rain fell in Miami and vicinity yesterday, which is considerably more than the rainfall in this section.

In view of the relatively poor drainage in the low Evergiades farming section, many farmers in this locality are of the optimious that prospects for good cross in that vicinity have been greated in order to get the certificate.

This is the second year of the commercial pian in the school but it is being operated on a different hasis this year.

An interesting comment Banford is found in the "High-ways of Florida", a picture-que if mawhat unreliable booklet, produced under the direction of the State Rosd Department, which says, "Sanford produces more than one-fourth of all the celery of the United States and for miles the air is filled with the spicy fragrance of this cellulose vegeatle. Every available space in the City, including the lawns, is deand settuce". Sanford boasts loud-by of, its colory production, but we did not know we planted our lawns with it.

Mussolini's recent visit to Berin reveals that the Germans and talians virtually have an alliince to fight communism (meaning Russis) and that they are going to try to gain the goodwill of France and England, sufficiently,
a least, to get them to remain scutral in the coming war against he Soviets. But France already is a military alliance with dusis, and remaining neutral, in any fight where her old enamy,

Better Business

October is here at last. And those long, lean hungry months of July, August, and September have departed, taking with them, we hope, all that is left of the hot weather, flies, and mosquitoes, as well as those unsavory business conditions normally known as hard times. For the next eight months at least business should be better.

The cooler weather of October almost invariably brings with it a stimulant to business, Local residents fortunate enough to have spent the summer at the beaches or in the North, have returned. The farmers are putting out their seed beds and for the first time in months many local negroes have work to do. Fall house cleaning is under way and winter clothes agon have to be bought.

This particular winter promises to be a mod one. The farmers, generally speaking, are in a better financial condition than they have been in many years. They are ready to make real profits this year, given good growing conditions and a good market. The weather, of course, is in the hands of the Gods, but improved business conditions in the hands of the Gods, but improved business conditions in the hands of the Gods, but improved business conditions in the North as well as higher wages for labor should provide a better market.

The Chamber of Commerce is active in trying to lay the foundation for a modern trailer camp and is also working on extensive plans to bring in many winter visitors. Thousands of people, throughout the country, due to various old age pension plans, are for the first time in their lives in many cases physically and financially able to spend their winters in Florida. They have no preconceived notions about where to go. Many of them can be induced to come here.

Hotel reservations as well as transportation companies indicate that the coming tourist season in Florida will be bigger than last year. St. Petersburg is reported as making plans for from a 18-to 25 percent increase in tourist registrations. Reports from Miami reveal that increase in tourist registrations. International Law

Time was when many a bright young man turned to international law for a living. Now, however, this profession is rapidly being closed to him and in its place is developing nothing better than international anarchy. "College students who planned to become international lawyers may as well change their courses to something more useful," says the Kansas City Star

"There is no such thing as international law left, and probably will not be for a generation," the Star continues. There was a time when all nations subscribed to a code of ethics and law which was a matter of pride. But international relations today are in such a deplorable state that the lawyer who depends solely upon that kind of practice can trade his books for gas masks and await the ultimate outcome.

"Italy, Germany and Russia have utterly disregarded President Roosevelt was pulling the tenets of international law in regard to the Spanish said they could not be put out for the small towns and cities civil war. The submarine piracy in the Mediterranean is when he said at Bonneville Dam a violation of international law, and the search for them that cheaper power would result is not much better.
