

THE GREAT Waltz BEATRICE FABER

Synopsis: In 1848, young Johann Strauss called Schani Schani in Vienna, to follow him on his trip to the hard-pressed Austria. She, who loves the waltz, is considered barbaric by the hitherto about Schani, who organizes an orchestra, gets a trial of his engagement and meets Cora Donner, a famous opera singer who comes to hear him. Cora arranges to sing his latest song at a reception. The event is the place where the police of Count Schani's sponsor, but Schani is shocked when Cora reveals his identity and makes a fool of him.

Chapter Four

A fury that was like a tropical fever began to mount in Schani when he heard the chatter of the guests. Hofbauer was assuring them that though waltzes made his flesh creep, yet they were popular with the lower classes. Puffing out his chest, he seemed to say, "I should know, I am a famous music publisher."

Hofbauer nodded loftily. "Quite amusing but certainly not music." At this, Schani plunged into their midst. "Not to cross our path," he said loudly, and turned to Cora. "So to your Madama. The intermission will have all heard of me. I might have misled you but a waltz, sung as it is written, is music in its own right."

Hofbauer raised his monocle languidly. "Really, Mr. Strauss, how can you waste your eloquence on something so trivial as a waltz?"

Schani felt pain lance through his heart. To think that they could talk like this about his waltz that he loved best in the world. "Bis-

The marriage was two weeks later.

"Does it occur to you how strange you will seem some day with your quadrille, your minuet, your gavotte?" He made a violent gesture. "You don't like my manners? My taste? Well, I don't like yours. You presume to despise waltzes. But they're warm and beautiful, like the woman we love, like—like—"

"He broke off, aware that he had struck him from their midst. Every back was turned. "Goodnight," he said harshly and made for the door.

Outside, Schani careened crazily down the street, as if to release his pent-up feelings. But suddenly, a figure under the lamplight caught his eye. He crossed the street. "Poldi. What are you doing here?" Schani looked down at her. Her eyes were two dark pools of indignation and suddenly Schani found that that was what he wanted most in the world. Poldi—a home—and peace. His arms went about her.

"A police officer passed by and asked me if you were with me. 'Do you need a light for that?'"

"The light doesn't matter either," Schani said, drawing Poldi to him fondly. "You see we are going to get married."

"He looked down at her. 'Will you?'"

"Oh Schani," Poldi cried and there were both laughter and tears in her eyes.

Araucan in arm they strolled homeward, but as they opened Schani's front door a half hour later, they found the whole orchestra there. Schani remembered that he had told them they would rehearse late tonight.

"You had. Just when he had hoped to be alone with Poldi too. Then his idea came to him. Poldi's partner were here. Why not make it a celebration?"

"Stunning about the room he began to fill glasses. Then he faced them all. "My dear mother, my dear friends and my dear colleagues..."

"Dudman broke in. "Last week Kienast worked in the bakery shop. Tonight he's a colleague."

Kienast jumped up. "Yes, and tomorrow who knows what I may be—maybe Kienast. Franz Joseph is not so secure my friends—and the revolution not so far off."

"There were cries of 'Shut up... shut up...'"

"Schani continued. "Tonight is a good night for all of us. For now we have made a toast. He held his glass high. "For my part, I have had a greater success than you have. I have found a better friend than my friends and—"

"I belong to you! My future wife." The beloved period was short. "The best of nights to you, Schani. Schani made up his mind that a thing must be done. He must, immediately, Poldi get to bed. He brought her up and a few weeks later, a quiet marriage ceremony took place in the parlour of the bakery shop.

"Poldi was in her kitchen one morning making some poppy seed buns when she noticed the door was open. There were COLOS, Panama Canal Zone—(AP)—United States Army authorities yesterday arrested four Germans, one a woman, after the group had taken photographs of coastal defenses at Fort Randolph.

The four were detained in the guard house at Fort De Lesseppe pending further investigation to determine whether they would be held on spy charges.

Those arrested gave their names as Ingeborg Guttman, Hans Schackow, Gisbert Gross, and Edward Robert Kubrig. Guttman and Schackow were reported to be employees of the German steamship line, Hapag-Lloyd, with headquarters at Cristobal.

Army officials said the four appeared at noon at the Fort Randolph guard gates and said they were en route in Kubrig's car to the post exchange restaurant.

Asked if they had cameras, they reportedly replied "no."

A few minutes later a sentry in the heavily fortified area of Caleta Island, where Fort Randolph is situated, said he found the group taking pictures and when he challenged them they did not stop. He then aimed his rifle and arrested the visitors.

The films were developed yesterday but Fort Randolph officials declined to disclose the results.

Soldiers at the fort were believed to have told investigating authorities that they had seen the Germans taking pictures of other fortified areas besides Point Caleta.

with the formation and operation of the Rotary Student Loan Fund, said that the capital amount of this fund is now approximately $35,000, that more than $75,000 worth of loans have actually been made, and that loans are made from it to between 40 and 50 boys each year.

Charles Bradshaw and Elton Moughton, two new members, were welcomed into the club by President George Rollins who presided over the meeting. President Rollins also welcomed to the luncheon B. F. Haynes, an old member whose recent illness has prevented his attendance for several months.

Outlining the various means which students have of working their way through college, Mr. Beatty said that such students at the University received more than $200,000 in loans, scholarships, or other types of assistance during the past year. But he added that in spite of all the aid which can be given there are still thousands of young men who are unable to attend college because of a lack of financial means.

Scholarships aggregating some $41,000 helped 294 students at the University meet their expenses last year, he said, while the University loan fund of $5,000 aided more than 270 other students. Five hundred students working off the campus in various capacities around town earned $25,000 last year, while 875 students were employed on the campus, and 260 worked for the National Youth Administration.

Mr. Graham said that the Rotary Student Loan Fund idea originated among a group of Rotarians in Gainesville in 1922 when it was proposed to provide assistance to certain outstanding athletes who wanted to attend their way through school. "This plan was later abandoned, he said, when it was discovered that the athletes could get scholarships and did not need loans, and revised as a means of helping non-athletes.

The loans bear interest of six percent, he said, and are restricted to students other than freshmen, who have a scholastic average of "C" or better. Most of the loans, he said, are promptly repaid, while the interest charge of six percent has paid all operating expenses and provided a surplus of $8,000.

Thus the matter stood for several weeks; casualties on each side ran from 10 to 100 every day. Hunger began to tell on the Confederates; their men were weakening. Then the Union troops were stricken by a rampant stomach and intestinal ailment. Camp doctors prescribed a plentiful diet of fresh fruit for the men, and as blackberries were plentiful in the region, the soldiers fell to picking and eating them.

In many places the berries grew the thickest between the two lines. Strange as it seems, truces were declared on occasions so that both Union and Confederate soldiers might go out and pick berries without getting shot. These interludes were without antagonism or bloodshed. On July 1, 1863, Confederate General Pemberton gave up the Vicksburg fort and the long siege ended.

Pointing out that the treatment was useless with some forms of asthma, Dr. Buff explained that it is of great curative value in treating of asthma caused by the dilation of air passages. He said that the treatment could be completed in six or seven successive weeks and in conclusion declared that it is most valuable in treating asthma cases which show little improvement after routine medical care. The new formula, he said, almost always helps this disease.

Rolla J. Reel And W. H. DaBoll Die In Local Air Crash

Missing Motor And Attempt To Land Said To Have Been Cause Of Accident

Passengers Flown Without A Permit

Department Of Commerce Officials Arrive For Inquiry

Rolla J. Reel, local aviation enthusiast, and William H. DaBoll were killed instantly at the Municipal Airport yesterday afternoon about 1:45 o'clock when the small "Aviation" experimental plane in which they were flying crashed from an altitude of approximately 100 feet shortly after the take-off.

Eye witnesses said the craft's four cylinder motor started missing as the plane passed over the northern boundary of the airport. The pilot throttled the engine and attempted a sharp bank down in order to bring the plane down within the airport.

The pilot apparently lost control of the craft which went into a spin and plummeted earthward, landing on the left wing and engine about 50 feet from the northern boundary.

A loosened sparkplug had blown out, causing the motor to miss. It was revealed after the crash.

Valie A. Williams, who with Ralph Wight, James Webb, and other Sanford residents had been inspecting the plane which came here from Orlando, had just alighted after a flight over the city.

Mr. Reel, 58, is head of the Reel and Sons Dodge, Plymouth and used car agency here, and has been a business success for the past 12 years. For eight years he has been an aviation enthusiast and owns a small plane which he has been flying regularly. Several months ago Mr. Reel was injured when his plane crashed after a take-off from the DeLand airport.

Mr. DaBoll was a transport pilot from Lakeland. He was believed to have been piloting the small motor plane, at the time of the accident but it is not definitely known since the craft was equipped with dual controls.

Valie Williams who had gone aloft to see how the ship performed was the occupant of the plane before its last ride.

"We came down after a short spin and Mr. Reel, who was at the controls, said that he would take a short trip with the plane," Williams said "last night" describing the fatal "last ride."

"He and DaBoll taxied off and the plane went into the air, rising to about 200 feet when we could hear his engine missing. The pilot evidently cut off the motor and then we saw the ship turn out of the wind and head back towards the port. In just a few seconds it was plummeting down to earth. I had been taking moving pictures of the take-off. After it was up a piece, I took down my equipment. I don't know why."

Spectators rushed to the plane after the crash but found that the two men were dead. Neither of the occupants was badly cut but the terrific impact killed them instantly.

Eye witnesses said Mr. Reel's chest was crushed, his neck snapped.

Funeral Services For R. J. Reel To Be Held Tomorrow

Air Crash Victim Has Been In Business Here For 19 Years

Funeral services for Rolla J. Reel, who was killed in the crash of his plane yesterday afternoon, will be held in the First Baptist Church, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock with the Rev. W. P. Hocking pastor of the church officiating. The interment will be in the First Baptist Church cemetery.

The remains of William H. DaBoll, who was killed in the crash, will be held in the morgue until the morning to be held in the First Baptist Church at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. He is survived by his wife, Lillian D. DaBoll.

Mr. Reel has been in business in Sanford since October, 1919. He took over the Dodge agency here from the late W. Phillips, a partner of Orlando and has had the Dodge agency here that time.

Known to his scores of friends as "Pop", Mr. Reel came here from Daytona Beach where he was in business for two years. He was born in Virginia and on Oct. 2, 1880 and moved to Florida with his parents at the age of two years.

Mr. Reel was the son of F. J. Reel who was one of Orange county's pioneer settlers, and was mayor of Orlando in 1895 and 1896.

During the past eight years, Mr. Reel has devoted much of his spare time to aviation.

Survivors are his widow, R. J. Reel and five sons, Watson M., Milton D., C. R., and L. E. and Roy C. Reel, all of Sanford.

Following the funeral services tomorrow afternoon the body will be taken to Orlando and interment will be made in the family plot in a cemetery there.

Mr. Reel was a member of the Masonic Lodge and members of the Lodge will be asked to serve as pallbearers.

Those who will be asked are: Ralph B. Chapman, Jim D. Jenkins, J. K. Smith, Ralph Wight, Valie A. Williams, and George Deutch.

Holy Land Is Most Active Trouble Spot

Observers See Peace Of Near East At Stake In England's Punitive Campaign

The Associated Press

London, Oct. 18.—(AP)—An old but still burning question warms the hearts of British statesmen as they make the New Year and the East come to the fore. It is the question of the Holy Land.

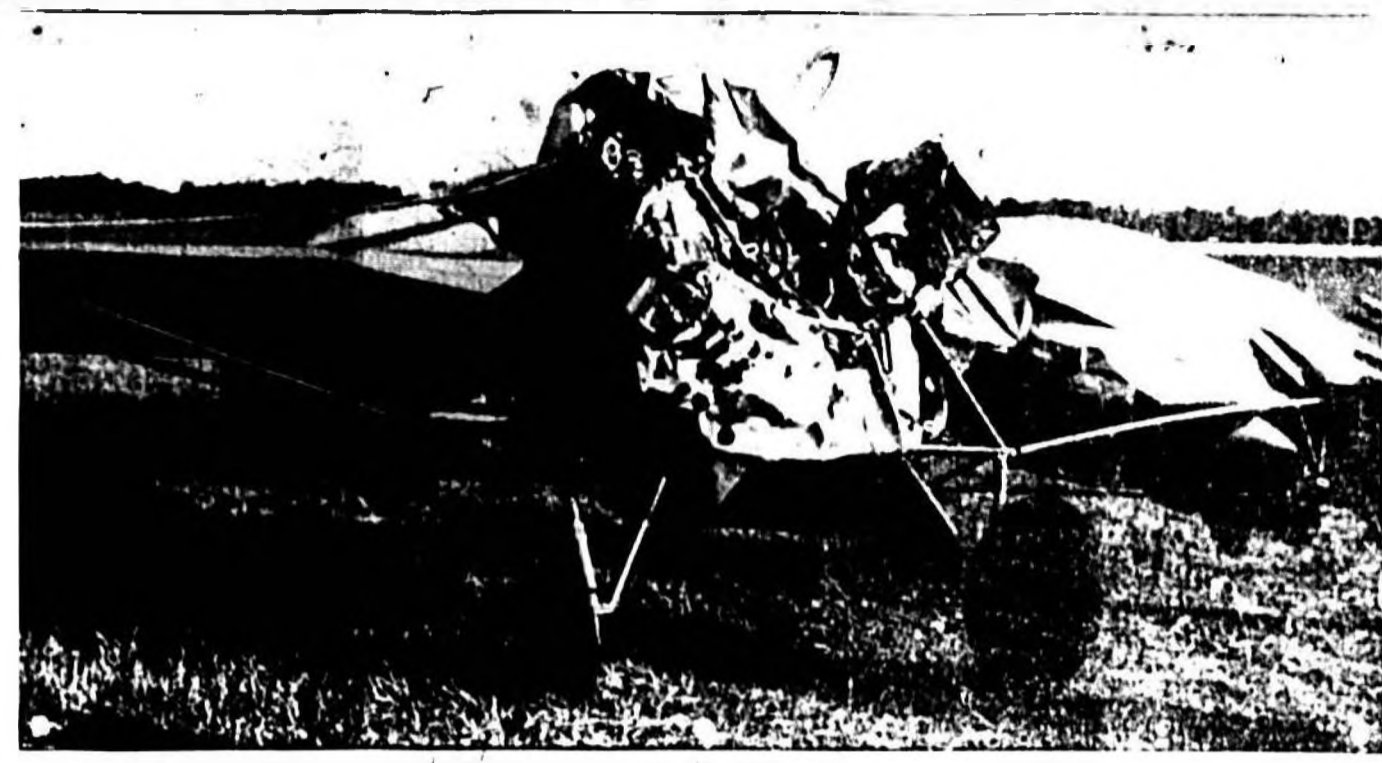

The Holy Land, a strip of land between the Mediterranean and the Red Seas, has been the scene of a long and bitter struggle. It is the birthplace of the world's great religions and the site of the most sacred shrines of the world.

The British government is now engaged in a punitive campaign against the Arab rebels in the Holy Land. The rebels have been active in the region since the end of the war, and have been responsible for the deaths of many British soldiers and the destruction of many villages.

The British government has taken a firm stand against the rebels, and has been successful in restoring order to the region. However, the rebels have not been completely defeated, and the British government is now engaged in a long and difficult campaign to bring them to heel.

Observers see the peace of the Near East at stake in England's punitive campaign. They believe that the British government's actions will have far-reaching consequences for the region, and that the peace of the Near East will be at stake if the British government does not succeed in bringing the rebels to heel.

nine months of 1938 as compared with $49,482,000 for the same

September of this year showed an

The Florida Tax Revision
League estimates that a general sales tax of 3 percent would raise $20,000,000 a year for the state. That would go a long way in relieving over-burdened real estate. If the proceeds of the sales tax were used that way.
The danger is that the burden of the sales tax will be in addition to the tax burdens already carried.

Only Fair To The Schools

What is probably the most important amendment to the State Constitution on which the people are asked to vote in the November 8th election has to do with the schools. The purpose of the amendment is to place the schools on an equal basis with the other institutions of the State and the various departments of State government in the distribution of tax funds.

Approved by the last session of the Legislature, the amendment pertains to Section 2 of Article IX of the Constitution of Florida relating to taxation and finance and declares that the Legislature shall provide ways and means of raising the revenue with which to meet the appropriations made by the Legislature for the benefit of the public schools and State institutions of higher learning as a regular part of State expense and on a basis of absolute equality.

"The Legislature shall provide for raising revenue to defray the expenses of the State, the amendment reads, including State appropriations for the benefit of the uniform system of public free schools provided in accordance with Article III of the Constitution, of the State, institutions of Higher Learning, for each fiscal year, and also a sufficient sum to pay the principal and interest of the existing indebtedness of the State.

For some time it has been the practice of the Legislature to make a State appropriation for the schools, and then to neglect to levy a sure and adequate tax to supply the necessary revenue to meet the appropriation. This year the Legislature may have appropriated ten million dollars for schools, the tax levied for his purpose, actually raise only eight million dollars and the school are faced with a deficit of two millions.

At the same time the State may have a general surplus in its general fund out of which it operates its public institutions, all its other institutions, and departments of government. But as a result of a decision of the supreme court in 1935, the State is unable to use any of the balances in the general fund to meet the deficit which in each school fund may be faced.

It is to remedy this situation that the so-called "Parity Amendment" has been advanced. If it passes, the schools, henceforth, will be on exactly the same basis as any other branch of the government and will receive from the general fund all monies appropriated by the State Legislature in the same proportion as the State prison, the hospital for the insane, and the various State office holder throughout the state.

In other words, as long as the office holders are paid off, the school teachers will be paid off. And if it reaches the point where insufficient funds are on hand to meet State expenses, the school teachers cannot be penalized to any greater extent than the other holders. It seems to be in all fairness to the institutions which today are raising the men and women of tomorrow, this amendment should be approved.

A Chair Of Democracy

Receiving much favorable comment in the press of the state is the decision of Southern College at Lakeland to establish a Chair of Democracy at the institution. The purpose is not alone to combat the growth of communism, fascism and other un-American trends, but actually to teach democracy and to show wherein democracy is superior to other forms of government.

As explained by Dr. Ludd M. Spovey, president of Southern, the objectives of the new chair, are as follows:—"The first purpose of the chair of Democracy will be to make plain the meaning of Democracy. This will be done by giving students a complete history of the rise and progress of Democracy.

"Second, to show clearly that the failures of Democracy have not been due to the system itself, but to the failures of its leaders.

"Third, to teach that Democracy is more than an abstract theory of life. It is a sharp instrument by which man can hew out a good world for himself and his children.

"Fourth, to make plain that the fruits of totalitarian states are more than nullified by the hideous price paid for them; that it is futile to save the life of the world and allow it to lose its soul.

"Fifth, to show that Democracy, like everything else, must be judged by its final fruits. When people become rightly aware of these fruits they are willing to struggle for them and it necessary fight for them.

"Sixth, to insist that Democracy must go on the march. It must become highly vocal and intensive.

"Seventh, to prepare leaders in the field of political science who will go back to their communities as zealous devotees of an active Democracy.

"Eighth, to see that the young people of America embrace Democracy with even a greater enthusiasm than is manifested by the youth of Russia, Germany and Italy toward their national programs.

"Ninth, to arouse in our present political leaders a new interest in Democracy.

"Tenth, to show that in the long run no other system of government can set the world on the road to permanent peace and prosperity."

Lack Of Facilities For Parking Annoying

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Lack of proper parking facilities costs American motorists $100,000,000 annually in lost time. That is the estimate city traffic engineer Leslie J. Sarason of Chicago gave municipal officials here.

"Traffic engineers have for years concerned themselves almost exclusively with the task of providing highways for moving vehicles," he said. "Now we must turn our attention to the problem of accommodating vehicles that are standing."

Missing Motor And Attempt To Land Said To Have Been Cause Of Accident

The crash was unexpected by those watching the plane, who believed that the pilot could manipulate it to a safe landing. Witnesses stated that the pilot could have landed the craft in the open field next to the airport but he evidently was attempting to land it on the flying field.

The steel between the cockpit and the engine, a 95-horsepower Cirrus Mark, prevented the four cylinder airplane motor from being driven into the cabin by the force of the impact. The safety belts holding in the two fliers were torn from their fastenings on the sides of the plane.

In the craft was a temporary certificate issued by the Aeronautics Bureau of the Department of Commerce which provided that none but bona fide members of the company which constructed the craft be permitted to ride as passengers. The Bureau's ATC rating evidently had not been given for the craft since the number for this rating did not appear in the certificate.

The certificate was issued jointly to Verne C. Babcock and William C. Rhodes. Mr. Babcock was designer and owner of the new style craft which was being tested with a view to manufacturing a more socially planes of this style, it was understood.

The air speed indicator which was broken in the smashup registered about 125 miles per hour. The ignition switch had not been cut off. Mr. Williams said that the tank was half full of gasoline when he was up.
Two officials of the Aeronautics Bureau of the Department of Commerce visited the airport this morning to conduct an investigation of the crash up. J. L. Templeton flew here from Miami and L. M. Young drove from his headquarters in Jacksonville.
They took written statements from eye witnesses and made a thorough investigation of the plane for a report to Washington officials. They declined, however, to make any statements concerning the plane crash, which was the first fatal crashup at the local airport.

CITRUS LEADERS MAKE PLANS FOR AVOIDING CRISIS

S. R. Smith, AAA marketing specialist, declared the marketing problem was complicated further by an estimated 10 percent reduction this year in consumer buying power.
"This year, the opening season prices are so low," he added, "that it makes us shudder to think what the prices will be the rest of the year unless the industry can do something."

Rumrich Tells Of His Work As German Spy

ted Mueller's advertisement to the Times.
Maurer said he told the Times advertising agent that he did not believe the advertisement had any political significance to my knowledge.
Charles W. Hoy, Times business office employee, said the newspaper hesitated over accepting the ad, but finally agreed "because it was written on the stationery of the Hamburg American Steamship line."

Hardly said Schlueter told Rumrich he had ripped open and bagged a German in Atlanta last year and taken pictures of contacts between Bethlehem Steel Corporation and the Soviet American Trading Corporation, for a man who works for Russia.
He depicted Glaser as a willing tool acting in concert with Rumrich, and said that Glaser had stolen the secret "Z code" for communication between Army air fields and Army planes in the air.

Hardly countered a practical statement of German foreign office officials in Berlin that the case was "not so much a case of spies caught as spies unmasked," and that it was "greatly exaggerated."

The prosecutor said contrary to reports that the long operated spy on a paymaster scale, the government would show that Capt. Leon Vito von Horn and Capt. Leon Erich Pflofer, two of the "high officials" of the German war ministry, boasted.
"We have spies in every important airplane plant in the United States," he added.

Hardly said the box was made to Dr. Ignatz T. Griehl, former Park Avenue physician and U. S. Army reserve officer, who fled to Germany just before he was indicted in the espionage investigation.
Hardly also said von Horn is former Mrs. Kate Moore Busch, a friend of Dr. Griehl who will appear as a material witness for the government a fine, big home in Washington, D. C., at no expense.

Hardly intimated that the German intelligence officer wanted Mrs. Busch to open a fashionable salon which would serve as a backdrop for espionage activities in the Nation's capital.
Attorneys for the three defendants all pictured their clients either as "innocent tools" of the ring or "victims of a frame-up."

George C. Dix, attorney for Fraulein Hofmann, specifically charged that Leon G. Torroni, former F. B. I. agent who "broke" the case, evolved "a diabolical plot to let Dr. Griehl escape to Germany and make Miss Hofmann an easy victim."

Dr. Erich Schlueter, sea-going "fucker" of the Europa's crew, commanded Miss Hofmann to deliver certain packages when the ship docked in New York—and anybody ordered by the government of Germany to do something, he added, "obeys—or else."

Cane cutting will get under way in the Everglades shortly. All raw sugar produced in Florida is shipped to the Savannah Sugar Refining Company where it is refined and marketed under the trade name of "Dixie Crystals."

San Francisco, Oct. 18. (AP)—Sixty thousand bachelors, who have no-one of marrying or rearing families, are proving a problem to social agencies and their lives.
They are Filipinos—the latest addition to America's melting pot and the one that appears least likely to melt.

In the wake of immigration that preceded the Philippine independence act, the new arrivals were virtually all men. Now that the act has been clamped down there is no way for them to obtain brides from among their own people. Few American cons have married them, nor is there much mingling with Mexicans, Chinese or other racial groups. The men simply remain single.

The U. S. immigration service estimates that 97 percent of the Filipinos now in the country are males, average 30 years of age. To permit them to go back to a normal life among their own people, Congress voted free transportation to the islands but so far only 1,500 have taken advantage of it. The offer expires next December 31.

"We think our people should go home but the movement will require time and careful arrangements," says Dr. Helen C. Mansfield, president of the Filipino Federation of America. "Filipinos are a proud people. They do not want to go back without money or without assurance they will earn a living."

Edward W. Cahill, district immigration commissioner, who has made a close study of the Filipino problem, feels that 50 percent engage in farm labor, while those in cities work as movie boys, elevator operators, janitors, etc. Their earnings are small but few go on relief. They are Malay in race, Christian in religion.

Even their own leaders concede that Filipinos need their money largely on "boobies, gambling and women." Their native attire is peculiar in California, which contains about half the nation's Filipino population. Taxi dance gambling houses are allowed to run while open in some actual areas that need Filipino labor.

Celery Feds Lose To Daytona Beach By 14 - 7 Score

Seminole High Eleven Suffers First Defeat

Buccaners Come From Behind To Score Two Touchdowns In Drives Through Forward Wall Of Local Crew

The Seminole High School Celery Feds outplayed the Daytona Beach High School Buccaners in the first quarter of their North coast Florida conference tilt last night to take a 7 to 0 lead but folded up in the later quarters and the Buccaners romped to a 14 to 7 victory with scores coming in the second and third periods.

The Buccaners showed strength in the first period with Darrell Ferguson and Art Williams going through the Buc defense and Ferguson finally went over from the four yard marker for the initial touchdown of the tilt but the tide changed later.

Darrell kicked the extra point and then kicked off to Daytona Beach eleven which then began an offense that the Feds could not stop. The Buccaners powered right through the middle of the Seminole line and then would run a play around end.

The Buccaners went on to score after Sanford kicked off to them with Frank Zimmerman doing most of the ball carrying. Zimmerman took the ball to the one yard line where he went over for the touchdown and John Crane kicked the extra point with the score.

The half ended with Daytona Beach in possession of the ball on the Sanford 16 yard line.

The second half opened as Sanford kicked off to Daytona Beach. Johns was tackled on his own 17 yard line. The Buccaners began another touchdown drive running through the middle of the Fed line and using an occasional end run.

They racked up five first downs as they marched 83 yards for the winning touchdown with one once giving the ball over to Sanford. Bullington was the chief ball carrier during the drive and he went over from the two yard line for the marker with one again kicking the conversion.

The Feds began fighting hard but the line wasn't blocking and the interference running was very poor. The Feds attempted to pass late in the last period but it was impossible for Ferguson to even get set for the aerial as the Buc line came charging through the Seminole forward wall.

Frank Zimmerman led the individual ground gaining with 66 yards from scrimmage and he was followed closely by Art Williams of the Feds who racked up 63 yards from scrimmage. Darrell Ferguson came third with 35 yards from scrimmage. Fritz

THE GREAT WALTZ
BEATRICE FABER
Symptoms: In 1935, young Joseph Schani, called Schani by his friends, is following his true calling of composing waltzes. He is a young man, handsome, intelligent, and as the clattering wagons went down the street, flanked on both sides by the crowd, Schani shivered. What now? He turned to speak to the person beside him. But no words came. Schani addressed him frigidly. "Mr. Strauss, will you please get off my street."
He shook his head despairingly. How dreadful that she should have teeth like hers! He had a faint suspicion "I'm afraid it wouldn't do any good. There are two other men in it."
"Never mind," she said thinly. As far as I'm concerned, they can fight their whole revolution on my street. I'll stand and witness it to the end. "Goddess of Liberty, what have I always wanted to be?"
Schani caught the sweet, subtle perfume and felt his pulse race. "Would you like to dance?" You must be cold.
"No thank you," she said and moved glacially, straggling him with her heavy hands. "The floor is light of liberty keeps me warm."
Schani was a moody silence. Miraculously, Schani looked the other way. Now it was beginning to rain a slow, persistent rain that would stretch them through in no time. She probably hated him now. Women disliked rain. Her good looks were more than anything else more than tyranny - more than injustice. Then suddenly, he caught her. The farmers must be very happy. She had whispered, "Let her go on. Is this a revolution?" Schani couldn't believe his ears.

Chapter Five
Marching, singing, shouting Schani was swept down the street with the others. He felt uplifted, reborn and fiercely akin to this rabble. He stopped though as a city street was taken up.
"For Hohentried!" someone shouted and hurled a brick. There was a small group in front of the County Jail. The cry was taken up. "For Hohentried!" and then more rocks and bricks were being hurled at the wall. A crowd of men, Schani moved toward them. This sort of violence was unnecessary. Then a voice came to his ears. A beautiful, silver voice that he could never forget. It issued from a carriage that was, at the moment, carrying her down the street. It was a young man. "Well really gentlemen," Caria was saying, and involuntarily, Schani knew that there was a girl in her.
One of the men groaned, "Let her go on. Is this a revolution?" Schani couldn't believe his ears.

Canton March Continued By Japan's Troops

British Forces Start Drive To Clear All Armed Arabs From City Of Jerusalem

Czech-Hungarian Crisis Continues

Paris Begins Negotiations For Peace With Nazi State

Japanese troops continued their rapid south China advance today, while British forces started a drive to clear armed Arabs out of Jerusalem and the British cabinet met to consider the Palestine problem, home defense and other matters.

At same time Czechoslovakia and Hungary kept heavy troop concentrations facing each other at their border, France's government faced new labor opposition and Spanish insurgents were said to have been repulsed on Ebro front.

Another important development was a report by authoritative quarters in Paris that preliminary negotiations looking toward "full settlement" of the differences between France and Germany had been started. Premier Edouard Daladier conferred with Count Johannes von Weizsaeck, German ambassador to France, yesterday upon the latter's return to Berlin and the envoy arranged to talk with Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet today.

In North China, Japanese forces their way through Chinese defenses to threaten Canton from both northeast and east. One column was reported about 35 miles east of Canton and another was said to be 40 miles to northeast and a third 30 miles to the southeast. Foreign military experts were unable to understand what had happened to Chinese defenses.

Officials Strike Snag At National Citrus Conference

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—The national citrus conference struck a snag today when the Agriculture Department declined to make a commitment on the surplus burden it was willing to bear.

AAA representatives served notice again that the industry would be expected to carry most of the load.

Government men and the industry representatives apparently agreed the grapefruit surplus would reach nearly 10,000,000 boxes.

An AAA official was quoted as telling citrus men in a closed session that the industry itself was primarily responsible for a solution and that Government help must be considered supplementary.

A proposal to keep low grade citrus fruit off the market gained attention yesterday as means of relieving the industry's ills.

Charges Of New Deal's Farm Program Collapse Brings Mixed Reactions

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—A statement by John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, that the Administration's farm program had collapsed, produced a mixed reaction yesterday.

Several Democratic members of Congress reacted sharply; some other legislators said the crop control program had failed to accomplish its purpose and that other means of assisting the farmer would have to be found.

U. S. Engineer Sees Proposed Canal Route

Col. Watkins, District Chief, Is Enthusiastic Over Its Possibilities

Colonel Lewis H. Watkins, district engineer of the U. S. Army Engineers, arrived in Sanford today on his way to inspect the proposed canal route. He was accompanied by a small party from Capt. At the St. John River Improvement Works, and spent the day morning surveying a portion of the St. John River through which the proposed 20-foot Indian River canal is routed.

According to the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, Captain Watkins picked up members of the party at the Sanford Municipal Plaza at 8:00 o'clock yesterday morning and took them as far up the river as Lake Harney. Captain Smith reported that Colonel Watkins was very enthusiastic over his comments on the possibilities of the proposed canal and that he was delighted to find the river so wide and clear of obstructions between Sanford and Lake Harney.

C. H. Eckerson Withdraws From Commission Race

C. H. Eckerson, president of Eckerson Fruit Canners, Inc., today announced his withdrawal as a candidate for the City Commission in Group No. 1. In making this announcement Mr. Eckerson indicated that he was withdrawing in order to emphasize his independence from any local political faction or group.

Mr. Eckerson's announcement of his withdrawal from the race is as follows: "It has come to my attention from several sources that my candidacy in Group 1 for City Commissioner is said to be more or less sponsored by certain existing political factions in spite of my previous public statement that I was not directly or indirectly connected with or interested in any of the existing factions here and that my campaign would be based solely and entirely on the individual merit of the problems confronted by the Commission and that judgment in these matters would be rendered in an unbiased manner, and a decision made only after carefully analyzing all conditions surrounding each and every individual problem studied."

"Due to the fact that a great many city voters have told me of this report, that my interest in this campaign was solely to promote and amplify certain present conditions, and in order to eliminate this idea entirely from the minds of the City voters, I have deemed it advisable to withdraw my candidacy as of today."

"In making this statement of withdrawal I am not in any way endorsing or supporting any political party or faction."

Hunters Are Preparing For Opening Of Season Nov. 20

A few days ago daily growing numbers of hunters were seen in the woods of the county, preparing for the opening of the season. The opening of the season is set for Nov. 20 and closes at sunset on Feb. 20, with the exception of an extension of time for hunting migratory game birds. The change has been made in hunting regulations effective on Nov. 20 and closing on Dec. 23, the open season on taking ducks, geese, cranes, wild geese and similar migratory birds, has been lengthened 10 days. The duck stamp again will be required in addition to the license for anyone over 16 years of age taking the game.

The board in a 100,000 word decision held that unfair labor practices by the corporation caused its employees to join the "little loop" in 18 months ago. If the corporation does not reinstate all striking employees, it was ordered to pay a penalty at wages.

Florida hunters killed more than a million game birds and animals in the 90-day hunting season of 1937-38. They paid $121,947 in licenses for hunting privileges.

Boys Warned Not To Fire Guns In City

After receiving complaints that small calibre fire arms are being discharged by boys within the City Limits, Chief of Police Roy G. Williams warned today that this was in violation to a City ordinance.

Most of the shooting has occurred in the south part of the city, Chief Williams stated, adding that he believed it was done by boys in the vicinity while hunting rabbits. Pointing to the danger of a careless shot or a stray bullet within the city, Chief Williams said that it will be necessary for the Police Department to enforce the ordinance forbidding the discharging of firearms.
