record of 44 wins and 30 setback while Sanford has 45 victories and 29 losses for a one-game margin.

By the way, you "young timers" should be told that as the result of the World Series scandal in 1919, the Chicago Black Sox became known as the White Sox and it's been that way ever since.

Over the years the Florida State League has provided the start in professional baseball for more than 100 players who have gone on to the major leagues. Among those former Sanford athletes were Ben Cantwell, Bert Chapman, Buddy Lake, Mickey Livingston, Early Wynn, Ellis Clary, Sid Hudson and Ken Harrelson.

Some of you not so old timers should know that Stan Musial began his professional career in 1940 as a 19-year-Old hurler for the Daytona Beach Islanders — a farm club of the St. Louis Cardinals. And it was in 1961 that Pete Rose started his professional career with the Tampa Tarpons. Pele pounded out 30 triples that year, hitting .331, Two years later he was playing second base for Cincinnati.

On the other hand there were some major leaguers who would up their careers in the Florida

State League, Let's recall a few, in 1937, Sanford had a catcher named Sal Holbrook. He had caught several seasons for the Washington Benators. In 1939 the Sanford club was managed by Dale Alexander. Just four years before he won the American League batting champion-ship playing first base for the Detroit Tigers. He was a playing manager for Sanford and led the club to set all kinds of State League records as they won the pennant that year.

In 1947 Myril Hoag was a playing manager for the Gainesville G-Men. He usually played the outfield. When he wasn't out there he was on the mound. His pitching record that year was 17 wins and three losses. Houg at one time was the regular leftfielder for the New York Yankees. Hoag had the distinction of going through the entire 1939 World Series againt the Cincinnati Reds without a hit. Then there was Bill Stinecke, a former catcher for the Yankees. For several seasons he managed the St. Augustine Saints. To be sure, there were almost 10 years with the Boston Braves. Chapman caught a couple seasons for the Boston Red Sox.

Getting back to local players who went up. Cantwell hurled

In 1933. Cantwell made arrangements with the Braves to take teenager Buddy Lake to Boston's Spring training camp in Bradenton. Lake impressed the club. The Braves took him north a pimp in his high-profile pro-with them before farming him out to the New York-Penn arrested again on charges of out to the New York-Penn League. Lake went with the Braves in 1934 and 1935 - the last year Babe Ruth ever went to Spring training. The Yankees in 1934 sold Ruth to the Braves. During the 1935 season the Babe one day slammed three home runs. When he crossed the plat after the thrid homer he went to a box seat and told his wife that he was going to hang em up. He did.

Mickey Livingston, a tall rangy athlete who once caught for Sanford went to the major and caught for the Chicago Cubs. In October 1945, I was aboard a troop ship returning from Europe. After three rough days at sea out of LeHarve we hit beautiful weather. We went up on deck and listened to the World Series over the vessel's public address system - or whatever you call it on a ship. And, my friend Livingston was behind the plate for the Cube. All of you should know by now that Early Wyan went from Sanford to huri for Washington, Cleveland and the White Sox the last major league pitcher to win 300 games. By the may, he was only the 20th hurler in history to rack up that many victories. Sanford's Ellis Clary played for the Washington Senators. In 1944, he played third base for the American League champions, the old St. Louis Browns. He later scouted 40 years with the Minnesota Twins, two years with the White Sox and 15 now in his third year as a scout for the Toronto Blue

Sid Hudson went from Sanford direct to the Washington Senators. He later was sold to the Boston Red Sox. After his playing days he became a pitching coach for the Red Sox, and later the Texas Rangers. Today is a pitching coach for the Baylor University Bears in Waco, Tex-

Ken Harrelson, the "Hawk," went to the major and today he's one of the broadcasters for the White Sox.

workers' compensation was the estate's only legal remedy. Florida's worker's compensation law grants managers immunity from injury lawsuits unless a worker shows the manager was guilty of culpable negligence, something that would amount to a first-degree misdemeanor. That means a manager would have to have inflicted injury, not just exposed a worker to !t.

But the appeals court said that standard is too high and amounted to abolishing the right to sue for negligence.

The Circle K managers named in Ms. Shova's lawsuit argued that Florida's workers' compensation law has provided a reasonable alternative to negligence suits.

SANFORD - A Sanford Police officer was involved in an accident with a suspect on Saturday morning while the suspect was attempting to avoid arrest.

Police report they received a call at 8:39 a.m. informing them that a man was stealing hub caps and clothing from the clothes line at 1615 W. Third St., Sanford.

When they arrived on the scene, Officer Jimmy Betta took off in pursuit of the suspect, later identified as Thomas J. Lines, who left the scene in a pick-up truck, police said.

Lines lives at 673 Keuka Ct. in Winter

According to Lt. Mitch Tindel, a spokesman for the police department, Betts followed Lines to U.S. Highway 17-92 where he turned south and continued to flee. At the intersection of U.S. Highway 17-92 and 19th Street, Lines applied his brakes and attempted to stop, Tindel said. When Betts attempted to stop, he drove into the back of Lines' vehicle. According to Tindel, there was little damage to Lines' car, but the patrol car suffered approximately $1,500 to the front bumper. After the accident, Lines once again attempted to flee. Other officers then joined the pursuit. He was cornered at a business on the 2400 block of French Avenue, Sanford, where officers arrested him. Tindel said.

He was charged with burglary, fleeing and attempting to clude police, Tindel said.

Kissimmee restoration program on hold

By Associated Press

ORLANDO - The $371 million Kissimmee River restoration program has presidential and congressional support, but is being held hostage in a struggle over a California flood-control project.

Sen. John Seymour. R-Calif., wants a dam to protect Sacra-mento residents from flooding. but Sen. Bill Bradley, D.N.J., opposes the project, at least for now, because of environmental concerns. The Orlando Sentinel reported Saturday.

Their standoff has stalled a Senate vote on a mammoth $2.5 billion water bill that includes the funds to return the Kissimmee River to its natural state.

The unprecedented program would allow much of the river to resume its natural course, restoring wetlands lost when it was transformed into a straight canal in the 1980s and '70s for flood control.

Without a bill this year, half the money needed for the project - the federal half - would be gone. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the agency in charge of restoring the Klasimmee, would be banned from involvement.

There are just four weeks left before the scheduled adjournment for the year.

The disagreement could be resolved in time. But other bill-killing disputes may pop up before the end of the session, say congressional staffers who have unhered the bill this far.

No one knows when or even if the bill will make it to the Senate

Under Senate rules, members can filibuster or debate as long as they like on the floor. Near the end of a session, even the hint of a filibuster can hold a bill hostage.

That is why the bill is not set for a vote. Senate leaders want the kinks worked out before it comes to the floor.

SANFORD - Parking spots were hard to come by at Flea World and the newly-expanded Fun World amusement park on Saturday.

A celebration marking the opening of two new go-kart tracks, a covered midway and a covered barbecue area at the amusement park, included a trio of performing monkeys yesterday and will include several appearances today by Keelan, the winner of last month's Elvis impersonator contest at the complex.

This has been great," said Bill Patti, public relations director for the complex. Things are really crowded."

Though workers still labored under the hot sun to renovate the pair of miniature golf courses at Fun World, families played through the work areas.

"It's like playing in a con-struction site," said Rudy Rulz. 9, of Sanford. Ruiz said that his father had promised the family they could play miniature golf on Saturday and they weren't going to let a little construction work stop them.

Most of those crowded into the amusment park were there to try out one or both of the new go-leart tracks that have been installed. "I like the new slick track." said Jeff Galen, 14. of Lake Mary.

A self-proclatmed go-kart expert. Galen said the slick track was "much more fun" than the traditional tracks found at other parks.

"It's a lot more exciting because it puts a certain amount of uncertainty in the ride."

Mara King and her daughter Lee, 6, of Sanford were more satisfied to ride the easier gokart track in the two seat kart that was designed for family drives.

"She can get the experience and I don't have to have a heart attack," the mother said.

Elvis will appear today at noon, 2 and 4 p.m. on the Flea World stage. At 11 a.m., 1 and 3 p.m., the Sunshine Monkeyshines will perform on that same stage.

The monkeys will also put on shows at Fun World at noon, 2 and 4 p.m.

Science business

It happens more and more frequently in the lucrative and increasingly interwoven spheres of biological research and blotech business: Scientists write journal articles about discoveries, drugs or therapies in which they have a significant financial interest. Yet often no mention of that interest is made in the text of the article or in any accompanying note. The reader therefore has no way to know that the author or his company benefits significantly by writing a glowing article.

An example: A prominent blochemist writes about a certain kind of compound, noting that it is a good candidate for pharmaceutical developemnt. In addition to being an expert on the compound, the blochemist holds a patent on it and happens to be co-founder of a blotech company to which it is exclusively licensed.

Although some biologists interviewed in a recent Science magazine article insist they would not allow their financial interests to interfere with their objectivity in writing reviews, such a relationship looks like a blatant conflict of interest and, at the very least, should be disclosed.

Preferably, scientists who have financial stakes in biotech companies should not be sought out by journals to write reviews on related subjects. But there are exceedingly few scientists in certain specialities who have not invested in, or played roles in the founding of, biotech firms.

The problem, like the soaring financial success of the biotech industry, is relatively new, and questions of ethics arising from it are just beginning to be examined closely. Scientific journals can do their part by requiring authors to discloss their financial in the control of the problem in the control of the problem.

To date, the New England Journal of Mediciae, the Journal of the American Medical Association and Science are the only journals that require disclosure. At a time when science has suffered a string of serious ethical embarrassments, other journals would do well to follow their lead.

Rice price crisis

Here's another fine mess protectionism got a nation into.

Japan claims to have an economic and spiritual interest in rice. Resisting international pressure to open its huge rice market, Japan refuses on grounds it must remain self-sufficient in its staple food. Before the quasi-religious Sumo wrestling matches begin, rice is scattered about to purify the ring.

Now Japan has a rice shortage because last year's harvest, battered by typhoons and conversion of rice paddies to other uses, was the worst in years. The shortage doubled prices paid by Japanese manufacturers of rice crackers, sake and other ingestible products. The governemnt thus faces pitting two traditional, politically influential forces against each other — rice farmers vs. sake brewers and rice cracker manufacturers.

Fearful of alienating either side or of opening its nationally protected market to outsiders, the Agricultural Ministry plans to allocate 50,000 tons of high-quality rice to food processors at bargain prices in hopes of aiding them until the next harvest in the fall.

But the complex web of federal controls the plan involves is unraveling even without international pressure. Despite generous federal subsidies, many farmers can't support themselves and are forced to take jobs in factories or shops. Others now sell their produce on the private market, not to the government as they are supposed to.

The food processors, accounting for oneeighth of rice consumption have financial reasons to seek cheaper rice from the United States or other nations. Japanese rice farming is inefficient and costly.

In the long run, the Japanese Maginot Line that long has blocked imported rice may be breached. That would help U.S. rice producers. Japanese consumers and free global competition.

Candidates should be accountable

Voters as well as non-voters often complain that elected officials are not responsive to their concerns. One way of insuring more responsive officials is to choose your candidates wisely and hold them accountable, once they are in office non-voters are outside of the political process and have opted to disenfranchise themselves.

Tuesdays primary elections brought the 1992 political process one step closer to the general election. The primary system is indigenous to the United States. Primaries are both direct and indirect. The presidential primaries held earlier this year in most state are indirect. Delegates are bound and pledged in accordance with their parties state or national rules, to vote reflecting the voters preference.

The Caucus was the first method employed in selecting candidates during the Colonial period. This method prevailed until the 19th century. Nominating Conventions were introduced to atem the tide of abuses of the prior system. Alas, they too fell into disrepute.

Elections held after 1890 had mandatory regulations and were conducted by public officials, at public expense. Primaries are required for all states, except for certain Southern States.

Primaries afford a host of candidates the opportunity to extol their virtues and present platforms designed to convince the electorate of their capabilities. Unfortunately, primaries in many instances have degenerated into mudalinging interludes that vilify ones opponent and offer no remedy to problems besetting our cities, our states and our nation. Vilification has no place among rational people. We all know that there are no perfect human beings, each of us has our achilles heel.

Voters are responsible for not demanding that candidates address issues. Meaningless rhetoric should be identified for what it is. Candidates attempting to obscure issues rather than confront them should be soundly defeated.

front them should be soundly defeated.

Voters preparing for the run-off elections, Tuesday, Oct. 1, should devise a score card for each candidate in their respective parties. Scores should be heavily weighted in favor or candidates who: discuss the issues pertinent to the community (local, state, national); present well defined realistic action plans; and whose past history reveals a record of broad commitments to the community as a volunteer. Community involvement should be a prerequisite for public service. It logically follows that a persons performance in the public sector will be influenced by his or her private sector emphasis.

Voters need to analyze why they are voting for a particular candidate. Is it a matter that affects them personally and of no relative value to the community? Have we prioritized the issues considering corporate community needs as opposed to our personal agendas? Politicians impact our lives from birth to death and great care should be exercised in choosing candidates.

Finally, as voters compare candidates how clearly has the candidate enunciated his or her stand on salient issues. Specifically what solutions to problems has he or she formulated.

When candidate forums are held, all candidates should be willing to participate and discuss all tasues relevant to the general welfare of the community. Forums should be planned to allow enough time for in depth discussion. Forums sponsored by organizations like the League of Women Voters, a non-partisan organization, provide an ample medium for discourse, Voters should avail themselves of these opportunities to view the candidates in person.

Let us find different ways of advertising our candidates desire to become an elected official, other than the destruction of trees. I abhor the sacrificing of trees for the production of campaign literature. Another concern is the massive expenditure of funds for campaigns in the face of devastating human need in this country and worldwide.

Sirica heroics stand time's test

A bone fide, certified, 24-cerat American hero passed away on Aug. 14, and if we had given him his due, we would have declared a day of national mourning.

He was John Joseph Sirica, the 88-year-old, retired federal judge who, more than any other person on the planet, was responsible for cracking the Watergate case and ensuring that Richard Milhous Nixon will be eternally and rightfully remembered as one of history's most nefarious villains.

This is not to abuse the contributions of other stalwarts who stepped forward when their country needed them: Sen. Sam Ervin, the jowly North Carolina Democrat who chaired the Senste Watergate Committee; Special Prosecutors Archibald Cox and Leon Jaworski; House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter Rodino; Washington Post reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein.

But none of them played as crucial a role as Judge Sirica, without whom Watergate would have been just another ephemeral scandal. For those of vaporous memory, and for those too young to have any memory of it at all, what he did was this.

In 1972, as chief judge of the federal district court in Washington, D.C., he selected himself to preside over the trials of the seven men who had been charged with planning and perpetrating the June 1972, burglary of the Democratic Party headquarters in the Watergate hotel/office complex.

Sirica was a rock-ribbed Republican, the son of an immigrant barber, a former boxer, an undestinguished jurist of volatile temperament. More than a few of the ubiquitous "observers" in this amart-alecty town thus regarded his self-appointment as a joke and perhaps even a partisan ploy to sweep the Watergate meas under the rus.

What the critics failed to take into account was the fact that John Joseph Birica was a man of surpassing courage and fundamental honesty. As former—Watergate prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste put it in a recent letter to The Washington Post: "Judge Birica had an instinct for truth and the courage to insist that perjury and obstruction of justice would not be tolerated in his courthouse, no matter how high and mighty the perpetrators."

high and mighty the perpetrators."

Thus it came about that when five of the original defendants pleaded guilty and two others were found guilty of simple criminal charges. Judge Sirica employed a tactic that critics censured as judicial coercion: He threatened severe sentences. One defendant. James McCord, was thereby persuaded to pen a letter in which he declared that "political pressure (was) applied to the defendants to plead guilty and remain silent" and that "perjury occurred during the trial."

The day the McCord letter was read in open court. March 23, 1973, was the day Richard Nixon's fate was sealed. It took another 18 months for his trespasses to be fully exposed, but in the end, the nation would know the truth: Their president had participated directly in a cover-up of criminal activity, he had obstructed justice, he had brazenly and repeatedly lied.

During that 18 months, Judge Birica prasided over numerous other Watergate-related proceedings. He berated witnesses, attorneys, prosecutored witnesses. As the judge himself put it in his book about the experience. "I had no intention of sitting on the bench like a nincompoop and watching the parade go by." Twice Birica ruled that Nixon had to surrender tape recordings of White House conversations. The second time, Sirica's mandate was upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court. Sixteen days later, Richard Nixon resigned.

It goes without saying that Nixon did not appreciate John Sirica — indeed he once referred to him as a "son-of-a-b-..." It is perhaps coincidental, but that is the same epilhet the president often used to describe the press.

If that puts me and my confreres anywhere in the company of John Sirica, I am truly honored and deeply humbled.

OSHA not living up to its duties

WASHINGTON — At least one American worker is killed every hour of every day on the Job — more than 10,000 workers a year. Every five seconds another worker is injured on the Job, or some 6 million a year.

More than 20 years after the passage of the landmark Occupational Safety and Health Act, the federal agency charged with protecting worker safety and health, OSHA, receives $380 million a year to carry out its mission of protecting nearly 100 million American workers—less than $4 per worker.

In comparison, the federal government spends four times as much, $1.1 billion, to protect fish and wildlife. In the past decade, OSHA's budget for safety training amounts to 2 cents for each worker under its jurisdiction. Unemployment and safety are the double whammy for the American worker this Labor Day.

The tack of funding means that at OSHA's current level of inspections. it will take them 84 years to reach every workplace. The to reach every workplace. The state-by-state profile ranges from inspecting each workplace once every 11 years in Nevada to once every 167 years in Nebraska. AFL-ClO safety expert Jim Elienberger notes that while some of the government's statistica-gathering is flawed and controversial, the picture currently points to an

points to an upswing in injuries and

upswing in injuries and illnesses since 1984.

"It is clear that the plant that wants to operate in a way that jeopardizes the lives and the health of its workers has a very, very good chance of getting away with it and never having an inspection," AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland told our associate Dale Van Atta. "History has proven that if employers think they have a pretty damn good chance to do it, they'll do it. And that's the word that's being sent out by all this talk about deregulation and getting government off the backs of business and so forth."

American insurance companies are emerging as unlikely allies of workers in the crusade for workplace safety — even if it is driven more by checkbook than by conscience. Fewer accidents mean fewer payouts on workers' compensation insurance. Most of the top insurers offer safety experts and programs for the companies they insure, which may well do more for worker safety than OSHA.

DuPont usually ranks at or near the top for safety programs, and it was one of the earliest American companies manufacturing explosives. Among DuPont's 100,000 employees, they average a mere 30 lost-time claims each year. This is a lost workday incidence rate of just .04 in 1990 when the national average was 78.7.

Sometimes safety is as simple as reinventing the way a pole is elimbed. When too many workers were getting injured on the job. AT&T formed a school for pole-climbing in Valley Forge, Pa., to develop a safer way to ahinny up the pole. The "three-point contact" method was devised, which means that three limbs should be touching the pole at all times. The number of accidents among pole climbers plummeted.

The Dallas-based Coca-Cola Bottling Group was struggling under the weight of workers' compensation claims that were eating up 79 percent of the budget. Many of the accidents were occurring on the trailers that hauled the bottles. Employees' opinions were solicited and the result was more trailer hand grips, lowering the entire trailers 2 inches (which made it easier to pull cases off) and improving interior lighting.

offer the additional perks. County officials originally thought they could build the 18,000- to 20,000-square-foot facility for about $60 a square foot. or about $1.5 million. The deal would include building the facility on Seminole Soccer Club land at their Markham Road fields. then replacing their land with and purchased nearby. But according a county report. staff found property next to the club's fields owned by the Ball family had gone from an original asking price of $28,000 per acre to $50,000 an acre after the soccer facility plans had been announced. In addition, the club wanted the county to take over maintenance of all 14 fields since they might be used for national team training.

Consultants concluded that deal would cost almost 63 miltion, nearly double the original estimate.

County staff considered and rejected other proposals from Winter Springs, Altamonte Springs and property owned by Heathrow developers.

The focus then narrowed to the county's own Sylvan Lake Park. The park already had four soccer fields. It was close to Seminole Soccer's fields, so a sharing agreement was possible. Also, there was about eight acres of vacant land in the park set aside for a tennia and racquetball facility.

The county Parks and Recreation Advisory Board thought the park proposal was a great idea, but recommended the tourist tax replace the ball court land by actually building facility. Price ing: $250,000.

In addition, Rabun said Soccer Club officials were agreeable to allowing the county to use four of their fields as a backup to the county park fields, if they were improved and maintained. In conjunction with the improvements needed at the county's ficids, installation of irrigation equipment, and other improvements inflated the original cost estimate to $2.4 million.

In addition to the construction coals, the facility will cost about $10,000 a month to operate and maintain. The county proposes to charge the Soccer Federation $1,100 a month for electricity and utilities. Combined with a $201,500 a year debt payment, the facility will cost the county about $322,000 a year. "To get a sports facility will require a real commitment on our part," said Rabun. "This is the big leagues."

The current two-cent tax raises about $650,000 annually. A third cent would add another $325,000 to that amount each

If the county did not raise the two-cent tax on short-term accommodations, consultants all other tourist grants would have to be eliminated by next year and the annual support for the Central Florida Zoological Park would have to be cut from $180,000 to less than $55,000.

Even if commissioners vote to raise the "bed tax" later this year, most tourist grants will have to be eliminated by 1994 except for the $180,000 zoo support and $84,400 for other grants. Up to $600,000 in grant spending would be dropped to pay for soccer facility expenses and other commitments.

Rev. Amos Jones

Jones, 57, 1400 W. 8th St., Sanford, is the pastor of St. Paul's Baptist Church in Sanford.

Jones said that the suit should have been filed years ago.
"We're late in doing this." he said. "When I ran for County Commission in 1988, we should have done it then. We knew then that we had to do something, but we kept putting it off until things got better, but they didn't and here we are now."

The pastor, who also works part time as a professor of religion and philosophy at

Bethune-Cookman College, said the only way that minorities can improve their lot is to work in the polical system to bring about the necessary changes.

Jones, who is married to Queen Esther Jones, said he has always been interested in politics. We can not help but be interested in the political pro-cess," he said. "It is in everything that we do."

Jones said that the plaintiffs in the law suit saw the need to improve the way representatives are elected in Seminole County.

"li's not a matter of discov-ering something new," Jones "We just needed to come together to come to the root of the problem."

King, 62, of 141 Bethune Cir., Sanford, was previously the General Manager of the Orlando Times and is retired from the Air Force after 30 years.

He said that he is very active in community affairs and in community organizations including serving as a deacon in his church and as a member of the Masons.

He said the plaintiffs in the suit are a loose affiliation of men with one goal in mind: to give something back to the commu-

"We have no other agenda." he said. "We want the people in every community to be represented by someone who lives in that community."

King said that the suit is designed to make the county "comply with the constitution." which, he said, allows for one man, one vote.

Martines is a retired 22-year veteran of the New York City Police Department. He subsequently worked for 61/2 years as an investigator for the New York Attorney General's Office. He also was in charge of the Puerto Rico prison system and in charge of security for a casino

Before moving to Florida frm Puerto Rico, Martinez said he was rejected by 68 employers in central Florida law enforcement and security positions before taking the real estate job. He believes his Hispanic background prejudiced employers against him. What does a commissioner from the north end of the county care about poor people living near (County Roard) 4267." said Martinez. "We need to have equal representation."

He said that minorities, like Hispanics and African Americans, are not asking to be given anything that they do not deserve. They are, through suits like the one that he and the others have filed, asking to be given the opportunities that are rightfully theirs.

"We are not asking for quotas, handouts or favors," he said. "We are just asking to be given the opportunity to have what is

Thomas. 67. of 129 Bethune Circle, Sanford, a key player in the 1984 federal law suit that brought single district repre-sentation to the Sanford City Commission, will seek a third term this year.

He said he believes that the same problems that existed in Sanford then are evident county-wide now.

There is no minority representation on the the board of county commissioners." said Thomas. "That is something that concerns all of us who filed this sutt."

Thomas, a widower, will retire as a visiting teacher for the Seminole County school district on Oct. 30. He said he will spend more time in the political arena after he retires from education.

He said that he has been active in education, but it has only been within the fast ten years that he has become involved in politica: ** A lifelong resident of Santord.

Thomas said that he has always known of the problems resulting from a lack of minority representation in government, but there has only been an active search for a solution in Seminole County for the last dozen years or so, he said.

Roof, building permits subside

Wind and hail takes its toll on homeowners in Seminole

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The hailstorm of roofing permits percipitated by the March hallstorms have finally begun to subside, according to a county Building Division report released this week.

Since March, a total of 7,177 permits for new roofs were issued by the building division. according to Building Official Dave Beltz. In July, 1,312 permits were issued, higher than prior years, but far less than the average of the past three months. Another 64 roofing permits for commercial buildings have been issued since March, said Beitz.

In the City of Lake Mary alone. live permits were taken out during August for repairing hail damage to roofs. The estimated cont of the five projects in $10.39O.

Lake Mary Administrative Secretary Lois Long-Abrams said, "This is probably damage that occurred back during the storms, but weren't noticed until we started having the heavy rains."

Long-Abrams added, "Some of the roofing companies have told me they are booked solid for the next several months, just on hall damage alone."

Arlene Rumbley, with the City of Sanford Building Department said. "We gave out several building permits for new roofs during August, but none that we know of were identified as damaged from hail.

Further south in Longwood, closer to the main hall damage area. Bonnie Howlington of the building department said the city issued 73 roofing permits during August. "Almost all of the roofs were damaged because of the weather," a building inspector said, "We had a couple of small ternadoes in addition to the hall, and we had problems all over the city."

In Seminole County meanwhile, new housing starts continued to improve, according to the report. A total of 81 home construction permits were issued last month, compared to 71 issued during the month of July 1991. A total of 790 new home permits were issued through July 1991, compared to 730 permits issued for the same period in 1991.

Only one commercial construction permit was issued in July, compared to five during July 1991. Still, commercial construction is up 25 percent compared to a year ago. In the first seven months of 1991, 47 commercial permits were issued. So far this year, 59 permits have been issued.

The total value of construction permitted by the county is down alightly for July, but up for the year-to-date compared to a year ago. About $18.7 million worth of construction was permitted last month, compared to $18.7 million in July 1991. So far this year, about $186.2 million in construction has been permitted, six percent more than the $156.4 million permitted last

Nine-mile backup

I-4's Orange Boulevard exit at Banford was backed up Friday afternoon as drivers tried to avoid a roughly nine-mile, three-hour back-up eastbound from the Volusia County line to near Longwood, according to Florida Highway Patrol officials. An accident involving two tractor trailers col-lided causing one to filp over on its side. John Mishler, 49, of Largo was charged with careless driving when his truck hit the one driven by Alan B. Strand, 45, of Knoxville, Tenn.

School district to replace outdated phone system

By VICKI Dog Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County school district has decided they can no longer patch together their antiquated telephone system at the administrative offices in Sanford and they have decided to purchase a new one. According to Don Nicholas, director of the district's maintenance department, the system currently in place has simply become too antiquated. He said that the system is about 15 years old.

"The switching gears are so old that they don't work all the time," Nicholas said. "And I believe the system has been struck by lightening a few times."

Nicholas said that the old system, which was not designed to handle the kind of growth the district has experienced, can not be expanded further.

"It no longer can meet the district's needs," Nicholas said.

He noted that the system, as with all older electronic equipment, is outdated.

The district has, in the past, attempted to solve switching voice mail by buying or leasing additional pieces of equipment that are only temporary solutions.

Last year, a system thought to be better suited for the district. was leased, but Nicholas said it turned out to be more trouble

Messages left on voice mutt often disappeared and voiceactivated extensions brought complaints from people who only heard parts of their callers

"We leased it to see if it would work," said Nicholas. "It didn't."

The new system will be purchased for $120,000 over the next five years. Nicholas said.

It is being purchased from United Telephone and Southern Bell. Nicholas said they have worked out an arrangement that the system will be replaced by the company if it fails to meet the district's need.

The old system will be removed and the new one installed the weekend of Sept. 19. The maintenance department, working with the telephone employees, should be able to install the new system without disrupting district operations.

Worshippers gather to see Virgin Mary

MARLBORO TOWNSHIP, N.J. - More than 7,000 faithful worshippers were expected to crowd into the backyard of a man who says the Virgin Mury appears to him on the first Sunday of the month.

But Marlboro township officials urged people not to come to Joseph Januazkiewicz's home because of limited parking and rest facilities in this rural community.

"This is basically just 10,000 people who stop over Joe's house to worship." Mariboro Police Capt. Robert Stover said. "It's a tremendous strain on the community."

Januszkiewicz, a 54-year-old draftsman, said the Blessed Virgin appeared to him daily, bathed in a golden light, in his backyard for 18 months before telling him she would appear only on the first Sunday of each month. Other visitors have not seen the apparition.

Yahweh sentenced to 18 years

FORT LAUDERDALE - Yahweh Ben Yahweh, guilty of erimes described by a judge as gross and horrendous, was sentenced to 18 years in prison for ordering 14 murders of "white devils" and wayward disciples.

Yahweh, 56, and six followers of his black religious sect were convicted in May of federal conspiracy charges for leading a bloody reign of terror as he built his Miami-based Nation of Yahweh into a 22-state empire.

He will be eligible for parole after serving one-third of his sentence, which also includes a $20,000 fine.

Chief U.S. District Judge Norman Roetiger said Friday he thought the crimes were "so horrendous and so gross" that the maximum 20-year term was not enough, but he noted the sect cleaned up its act" in recent years "and tried to be a good citizen of the community."

Summer movie season ending

LOS ANGELES - It's a wrap for the summer movie season this Labor Day weekend and domestic ticket sales for the usually lucrative hot-weather months are coming up only

Faced with miserable returns from Jack Nicholson's "Man Trouble" and Kim Basinger's "Cool World," among others, the box office take is about 5 percent below last summer.

But even though several films — including a host of sequels — played below expectations at U.S. and Canadian theaters. these releases still have a chance to break even or collect larger profits through overseas and home video sales.

The best-performing summer title at North American movie theaters was the costly "Batman Returns." The $85 million sequel grossed $158.1 million, far below its 1989 ancestor

"Batman," which grossed $251.2 million.
"Lethal Weapon 3" was second best for the summer with $141 million, slightly less than 1989's "Lethal Weapon 2."

Economic recovery sluggish

Fed's easy-money policy seen ineffective in spurring economy

By DAVE SKIDMORE Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - When the Labor Deportment reported an unexpected decline in jobs during August, the Federal Reserve dutifully nudged interest rates lower to attmulate the economy.

But analysis increasingly are questioning whether the central bank's easy-money policy can do much good. After all, the Fed has cut rates 24 times since 1989 and the economy remains sluggish.

The Fed on Friday reduced the benchmark federal funds rate for interbank loans by one-quarter percentage point to 3 percent, a 29-year low, after the Labor Department said employers slashed payrolls by 83,000 jobs.

The unemployment rate edged down to 7.6 percent in August, but only because of a temporary federal jobs program for teen-

When the latest cycle of easing began three years ago the federal funds rate was 9.75 percent.

The amazing part of the story is that all of that easing has barely kept the economy out of recession," said economist David Jones of Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., a government securities dealer in New York.

"It's the first time since the 1930s that borrowers have been so unresponsive to lower interest rates," he said. "The reason. of course, is too much debt and not enough

Of the Fed's two major tools for silmulating the economy, lowering the federal funds rate - the interest banks charge each other for overnight loans - is the less dramatic. The central bank does not announce changes in its target, but instead influences it by adding or withdrawing reserves from the bunking system.

The Fed also could have, but chose not to, cut its more influential discount rate, which it charges on its own loans to banks. The rate was reduced to 3 percent July 2.

Jones and other analysts believe the Fed avoided the more dramatic discount rate reduction for fear of rolling foreign exchange markets. For two weeks, the value of the dollar has bounced off post-World War II lows against the German mark.

Fast food work risky for teens

Dy DAVID DISHMEAU Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO - Dishing up fast food may be hazardous to teen-agers' health, according to a workplace study that estimates thousands of youngsters get hurt working at the corner eatery.

The report released Saturday by the Chicago-based National Safe Workplace Institute also chastises the Labor Department for lax enforcement of child labor laws.

A Labor Department spokeswoman called the report dishonest. Officials at McDonald's Corp., the largest U.S. fast-food chain and one of the nation's largest employers of teens, also disputed the report's claims, as did Burger King.

The report estimates that of 5.5 million workers ages 12 to 17, some 71,660 were hurt and 139 died in 1990 as a result of their jobs.

Of those, the report says. about 20,000 were hurt in the restaurant industry - primarily working with fast-food - as a result of slips and falls, cuts, burns, electrical shock, vehicle accidents, heavy lifting, chemical exposure and sleep loss.

Adolescents get hurt anywhere they are employed. whether laboring on a farm, at a hotel. In the garment industry or at a supermarket. But the single largest number of work-related injuries among teen agers occur in food service, the report says. Joseph A. Kinney, executive director of the non-profit in-stitute that produced the report. said he hopes it will provoke national debate on teen labor

Karen Ray collected money this weekend for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Ray collected donations from drivers at the intersection of Tuskawilla Road and Winter Springs Boulevard on Saturday, Labor Day weekend is traditionally a time when the MDA does much of its fundgaising. For the second year in a row the MDA telethon, hosted by enter-tainer Jerry Lewis, has been criticized by some muscular dystrophy victims for the way they are portrayed. Lewis' MDA telethon is a 21thour show, which begins at 9 p.m. EDT tonight from the Sahara Hotel on the Las Vegas Strip. Lewis, 66, has been involved with MDA more than 40 years and has helped raise more than $1.1 billion for the organization, according to association figures. The 1991 show raised more than $45 million in viewer pledges, a telethon record, with corporate sponsors contributing another $65 million.

Optometrist offers free exams

muse than a child's school performance. If left untreated, some common eye disorders in children can lead to serious and irreversible vision problems.

That's why Martin Kansol, O.D., a Lake Mary optometriat, is offering free eye screenings for area school children during August and September.

"Children have a biological timeclock that may affect the success of treatment for certain eye problems such as strabismus (misalignment of the eyes) and amblyopia (lazy eye)," Dr. Kansol sald. "A thorough eye exam should be an essential part of a child's back-to-school routine."

According to the National Society to Prevent Blindness, about 11.4 million Americans have significant vision problems. One in six children between the ages of five and 12 have vision problems that can seriously affect reading and learning ability. Many of these children, although of average or above-average intelligence, are labeled alow learners, and are unable to keep up in class because of correctable, but undetected.

Children have a biological timeclock that may affect the succes of treatment for certain eye problems.

vision problems.

Dr. Kansol said about 50 percent of all blindness can be prevented if treated early. The best form of prevention is an annual eye examination by a trained professional. Children should have a thorough eye exam before the age of nine because the visual system is usually fully developed by then.

"Children may reach a point of no return - as early as age nine — when treatment becomes difficult or impossible because an eye may have stopped developing." cording to Kansol.

Strabismus, a disorder that is not always visible to the untrained observer, affects one in 25 children. Fairlure to treat it can lead to lazy eye. A child with a lazy eye may see dimly out of one eye or may see double images because the eyes fall to work together.

Other indicators that a child may have an eye problem are:

Olificulty remembering what is read

Confusing similar words Closing one eye while reading

OTrouble finishing timed written assignments

• Excessive blinking or rubbing of eyes Losing place while reading

Complaints of headache, nausca and/or dizziness

Turning or tilting head to one side The free screening will determine 20/20 vision (the ability to see characters of a certain height from 20 feet away), eye muscle imbalances such as lazy eye, general eye health and whether the child needs corrective lenses.

Screenings will take place at Dr. Kansol's office at 380 W. Lake Mary Blvd. For more Information, call 321-8434.

Mother's smoking linked to behavior problems in children

B y B R E N D A C . C O L E M A N Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO - The more cigarettes a mother smokes, the more behavior problems her children are likely to have, researchers say.

Women who smoke at least a pack a day have children with twice the rate of extreme behavior problems - such as anxiety, disobedience or conflict with others - compared with children of non-smokers, the researchers say.

Refraining from smoking only during pre-gnancy didn't help, according to the study published in September's Pediatrics journal.

Children of pack-a-day mothers who smoked after the child's birth had problems just as often as children of pack-a-day women who smoked during pregnancy and afterward. Smoking less than a pack a day also was linked to elevated rates of behavior problems, but the rates were not as high as for heavier smokers, the researchers said. They used data from a Labor Department survey in which mothers of 2,256 youngaters ages 4 to 11 were interviewed. "We are aware of no other study to date that has investigated the relationship between maternal amoking and behavior problems in children," said the nuthers, los by Dr. Mich Wottzman, ameniate chair of padiatrics at l University of Rochester School of Medicine in New York state.

"It does not surprise me at all that this association exists," said Dr. Lorsine Stern, an associate clinical professor of pediatrics at the University of California, Los Angeles

Data from biased observers, such as mothers, have problems, she cautioned Thursday by telephone from Newhall, Calif. But she said the researchers appear to have used as reliable methods as possible, given the limitations of the

'There's thousands of toxins in cigarette smoke," any one of which could affect behavior in children, she said.

Surprisingly, Weitzman said, smoke exposure rivaled other major stresses on children — very low birthweight, poverty, chronic illness, parents' divorce - in being linked with elevated rates of serious behavior problems.

"When you add these up, they cluster together and multiply each other," Wettzman said.

For example, a boy born weighing less than 3.3 pounds to a mother who smokes at least a pack a day was eight times more likely to show extreme behavior problems than a normal-weight boy of a non-smoking mother, the study said.

if that high-risk boy also had asthma, his likelihood of having extreme behavior problems was 19 times higher than the normal-risk boy. the study said. Weltzman's team said maternal smoking during and after pregnancy may after brain structure or function, with long-term effects on children's Smoking also might alter maternal behavior in such a way to elicit problems in children, the researchers said. Or the findings could even mean that mothers who smoke are more intolerant of children's behavior and more likely to report it Weiternes could need that the study does not prove unaternal amounting causes behavior problems in children, "but it very strongly suggests there is something there.

The researchers sifted out effects of 18 traits that might have skewed the results - ranging from the child's sex, birthweight and health status to the mother's self-esteem and use of alcohol during pregnancy.

Record number enters Summertime Jamboree

By TONY BORGANI Herald Sports Editor

LAKE MARY - On a day when just about anyone would rather be doing something inside, 338 children and adults came out and ran in the Lake Mary Summertime Jamborce Saturday morning at Lake Mary High School.

High temperatures and oppressive humidity whipped the runners as they made their way around the one-mile loop.

"This is the biggest turnout we've ever had," said Lake Mary girls' coach and meet organizer Mike Gibson. "We've never had over 300 entries

If that weren't enough to make the event a success. Gibson commented that the winning times posted in all four races were impressive considering the meteorlogical conditions.

John Davis, 24, of the Oviedo Harriers had the pleasure of being the first one out and back Saturday morning, covering the two-mile distance in the 19-and-Over race in 16:58. He was followed by Lias Samocki, 23, the first female finisher and the second overall, who came in at 16:33.

An Oviedo runner was also the winner in the girls' 13-to-16 club race as Tracey Kotscos claimed top individual honors with a time of 12:49. Christina Olson of the Lake Mary Track Club was second (13:13) while Kathy Myers of the Palm Beach Bridge Club came in third (13:31).

Jenny Felderman of Slappy's Chillins (13:35) and Rockledge's Lissa Mansberry (13:43) rounded out the top five.

Led by Olson, the Lake Mary Track Club won the team trophy with a combined score of 74. They were followed by Slappy's Chillins (Lake Brantley) and the Lake Howell Airheads, who both scored 125 team points.

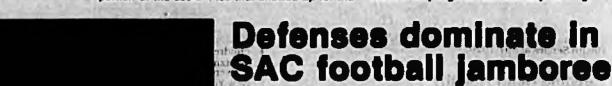

"I knew we have a pretty good top five, but I didn't think we'd win it," said Gibson. "Of course, some teams had some important people missing today."
Palm Beach's Dwayne Giscombe blew the field away in the boys' 13-to-15 club race, needing 15:50 to run the three-mile distance. Bryan Lucyk of Slappy's Chillins was a distant second ALTAMONTE SPRINGS - At least one thing seems clear after Friday night's football jamboree at Lake Brantley High School's Tom Story Field: the fight for the Semi-nole Athletic Conference title will be as close and entertaining as always.

For instance, Seminole tied Oviedo 3-3 while, of all the new twists, gaining three times more yardage on the ground than through the air: Lake Mary defeated Oviedo 10-6 in a battle between two of the county's top teams, as Chad Kessler's 42-yard field goal bounced off the left goal post; and Lyman, coming off a 1-9 campain, best defending conference champion Lake Brantley 3-0.

"This can be anybody's season." said Lake Mary head coach Doug Peters. "I see a lot of good teams here." Beminole's goal is a be attack, but it appears that the running game may become the featured threat, with Gerod Shine carrying the brunt of the load. Shine ned 49 yards on seven carries Friday night.

"You use what you've got," said
Seminole head coach Emory Blake.
"When you've got a big fullback with good speed you use him. Then with the running game going we open ourselves up for the pass. I'm open minded. You do what you need to do and accept it.

"We shined defensively. They did a super job. On offense, we didn't catch a couple passes in the end sone and (Todd) Braden started running when he should have been looking up field. If we cut out on some offensive mistakes, after the first three ball games we'll be balanced and the offense will catch up with the defense."

The Tribe defense more than made up for the slack partially created by Trevor Price and the Lake Howell defense, limiting the Silver Hawks to just 53 total yards and a 46-yard Chet King field goal. Quentin Hunt's interception helped set up the game tying 35-yard field Wenhold came in third (16:49). Finishing fourth and fifth were Shaun MacKenzle of Slappy's Chillins (17:04) and Greg De-Stefano of the Commodore Surge (17:09).

It was expected that Dan Hilley of Slappy's Chillins would challenge Giscombe for the top individual honors, but he stepped on a stone and turned an ankle during the race, forcing him to drop out.

Even without Hilley, Slappy's Chilling will had plenty to claim the team trophy with a score of 44, nearly half of the total accumulated by second-place Rockledge (87). St. Cloud came in third (94).

"It was good race." said Charlie Harris, the coach of Slappy's Chillens and the Lake Brantley High School boys' and girls' cross country teams. "It's a good way to start the season."

The final event of day was a one-mile run for children 12 and under. Twelve-year-old Scott Templin of Lake Highland Prep was the top boys' finisher. breaking the tape in 6:03. He was followed by the Wise brothers. Kamal and Ade, from Forest City Elementary, who finished in 6:13 and 6:18, respectively.

Dara and Dafina Wise, Kamal and Ade's sisters, were the top girls' finishers. Dara, 11, was fourth with a time of 6.27 while Dafina. 9, came in fifth at 6:28.

Hunters "tuning up"

Hunting season is rapidly approaching, and archera are busy "tuning" their bows and practicing.

It can well be argued that archery is hunting in its purest form. In order to be successful, the hunter must be one with nature. The stand has to be perfectly selected for a close range shot, and every move must be deliberate and undetected. One false move, or one slight sound, and the game immediately dashes off.

I have talked with many archers, and oddly enough it is not the taking of game that brings them back each year. It is the challenge of being successful when the odds are against suc-cess. If is being in the woods and observing wildlife that has not been disturbed by the explosive sounds of gunfire.

Many archery hunters also enjoy the feeling of being "in with nature. There is a closeness that comes from silently blending in with the surrounding foliage. At times, I feel as if I am a special guest, for I am privileged to view vignettes of nature unfolding before my very eyes.

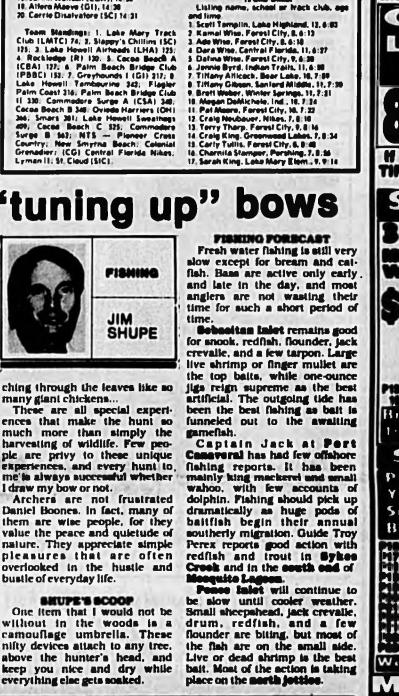

A raccoon using its tactile feet to search for food under the water, an elusive bobcat slipping through the woods without a trace, a flock of turkeys scrat-ences that make the hunt so much more than simply the harvesting of wildlife. Few people are privy to these unique experiences, and every hunt to me to always successful whether Archers are not frustrated Daniel Boones. In fact, many of them are wise people, for they value the peace and quietude of nature. They appreciate simple pleasures that are often overlooked in the hustle and bustle of everyday life.

IN BRIEF

Viking receives Cadillac certification

BANFORD - Viking Coachworks, located at 2300 Old Lake Mary Blvd., announces that Cadillac Motor Car Division of General Motors has awarded Viking Coachworks its Cadillac Master Coachbuilders certification.

This certification is reserved for those builders of Cadillad Limousines that meet or exceed Cadillac's stringent standards of manufacturing, quality control and customer satisfaction.

Viking Coachworks is the only builder of limosines in the southeastern United States, and one of the remaining 15 or so

Long affiliates with with national firm

LAKE MARY - Lake Mary tax expert Judy Long, owner of Diversivied Business Financial Services, Inc., has affiliated her tax office with Triple Check Business Services, a new company offering accounting/ bookkeeping services to small businesses

In addition to business services, Diversified Busines Financial Services, Inc., located at 210 W. Lake Mary Blvd., also offers services in tax preparation and tax planning.

Title firm introduces new product

GuifAtlantic Title, which last year introduced an instruc-tional video for out-of-state real estate closings, has carried the concept one step further by producing the video in Spanish for its Seminole operations. The company has offices in Longwood and Lake Mary

The video, which provides step-by-step instructions for the company's mailaway closing for buyers and sellers living out of Central Florida, will enable GulfAtlantic Title to accommodate the area's burgeoning Hispanic market, says President Dan Wallace who also established a separate bilingual department two years ago for the same reason.

Homebuilder receives Diamond award

MAITLAND - U.S. Home, which has built homes in Beminole County, and elsewhere in Central Florida, has received the prestigious Diamond Builder Award from Home Buyer Warranty (HBW).

U.S. Home was one of only 43 home builders from around the country receiving the Black Diamond honor, presented annually by HBW to participating companies for excellence in construction, customer service and warranty protection.

The award was presented at the recent Southeast Builders Conference to U.S. Homes's Orlando Division President Gust Valantasis, who has guided the Houston-based firm's Central Florida home building activities for the past eight years.

Auto firm celebrates anniversary

SANFORD - More than 5,000 vehicles crossed the auction block at Dealers Auto Auction of Sanford to celebrate the first anniversary of the facility with sales and other activities throughout August.

Ariniversary promotions at the facility, located at 3896 State Road 46-E in Sanford, provided an opportunity for the auction staff to thank car and truck dealers who have made its first year in operation so successful. Cliff Pool, general manager of Dealers Auto Auction, said in a press release.

We are proud of our first year as Dealers Auto Auction of Sanford, and we are committed to becoming the auction of choice in Orlando and surrounding areas," Pool said.

Dealers Auto Acution of Sanford is one of 26 auctions owned and operated by Anglo American Auto Auctions Inc.

"We are very pround of the achievements of Cliff Pool and everyone who works at Dealers Auto Auction," Michael J. Richardson, president and chief executive officer of Anglo American Auto Auctions, said in the press release. "The auction is only in its first year of operation and everyone there has worked hard to make it one of our most successful auctions."

The 44-acre facility, with 140 employees, is linked to Anglo American's IBM A/S 400 compuler system which puts it in touch with a national database of vehicle information.

Based in Nashville, Tenn., Anglo American Auto Auctiona Inc. is owned by ADT, the international security and service company, and to part of the world's largest used vehicle auction group. In 1991, Anglo American auctions handled approximately 1.3 million vehicles valued at more than $6.5 billion.

little Free trade pact will help

NEW YORK - Mexico would be the biggest beneficiary of the proposed North American free trade agreement, economists say, because it will see the largest gains in jobs and demand for its exports.

The U.S. economy should get a modest boost in the form of cheaper manufacturing costs and higher demand in Mexico for U.S.

Here, in question-and-answer form, is a look at the agreement and what it would mean for American consumers and busi-

Q: What is the North American Free Trade

A: The agreement among the United States, Mexico and Canada would phase out all tariffs for goods and services in North America and eliminate barriers to investment over a 15-year period. It would allow the United States, Mext-o and Canada to function as the world's largest open market, with more than 360 million people and more than 96 trillion in annual output.

The agreement requires approval by Congress, which is not expected to act before next year. Some lawmakers are expected to demand some compensation for the loss of jobs that are expected to result from the agreement.

The agreement would formalize a freetrade agreement already in place between modestly increase the flow of goods between Canada and Mexico.

O: How would the agreement help Mex-

A: The agreement would encourage U.S. investment in Mexican industry, create about 609,000 new jobs there and raise the average Mexican wage by about 8.7 percent, according to the institute for international Economics.

The pact would also make it easier for Mexico to export goods and services, resulting in an expected 87.7 billion increase in Mexican exports to the U.S. Mexico would be giving up more than the United States in terms of tariffs. Mexico's average tariff on U.S. goods is 10 percent, compared with the 4 percent U.S. tariff on Mexican imports. But the stimulus to Mexico's economy would outweigh the disproportionate loss of tariff income.

Would the agreement help the U.S.

At Yes, but on a percentage basis, not as much as Mexico. This is because the U.S.

economy is vastly bigger.

The pact would benefit the U.S. economy in two ways. First, it would allow U.S. and Canadian businesses to begin tapping the vast consumer demand in Mexico for their goods and services. The IIE study found the agreement would lead to an improvement of about $10 billion annually in the American ade deficit.

The additional demand would give U.S. businesses incentive to increase production.

The pact would probably make U.S. businesses more efficient and allow them to save money by shifting jobs — primarily unskilled — to the lower-paying Mexican workforce.

At Yes, some. The IIE estimates the agreement would result in the loss of 150,000 jobs, mostly unskilled and semiskilled factory positions, by 1995. However, the same study said the agreement would result in the creation of about 325,000 higher-skilled jobs in the United States, producing a net gain of 175,000 new jobs by 1995. The loss of jobs concerns labor unions. But a number of economists argued that the U.S. would lose those jobs anyway.

By Which U.S. industries would benefit most from the agreement?

At High-technology businesses that use unskilled or low-skilled assembly labor, such as computers, would benefit from lower costs, economists said, while consumer-goods products and capital goods—everything from food to film to tractors—would benefit from higher exports—B if the trade agreement means cheaper labor and import costs for U.S. companies, will U.S. consumers see a break in prices?

will U.S. consumers see a break in prices?

A: Maybe a little. Many businesses would use the lower costs to hold off or slow down planned price increases, ec-

Thrift store sales build new homes

By OCL PRESMAN Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — In the tightened economy, it seems that thrift stores have sprung up on every corner and are doing a booming business, and many of them are sources of income for charitable organizations such as Goodwill stores and the Salvation Army. Such is decidedly the case for the Habitat for Humanities Thrift Store on U.S. Hwy. 17-92 in Sanford, directly across from Sanford

Carol McMahon, Habitat store manager and the only paid employee, works full-time in the store, although it is open during the summer only on Saturdays, from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. She has recently enlisted the aid of former schoolmate, Susan Youmans, who will test her graduate degree in marketing and management while seeking employment, by doing public relations and advertising for Saturday, McMahon says, who commit to working two to four hours each week. All sale items are donations, from either individuals or businesses, and furniture is always welcome, as Habitat provides much of that at no cost to families who have sustained loss of their home or its contents. McMahon hopes to re-open the store on its regular fall schedule, with identical hours on Thursday and Friday, when her regular volunteers return from spending the summer in the north, but says she is always looking for additional volunteer help.

Once the rent, utilities and McMahon's salary are paid, all proceeds from the store are returned to Habitat's efforts to provide housing to low-income families in the Seminole County community, less 10 percent which is tithed to Habitat for Humanities International, for the purpose of building housing in their world countries.

The new neighbor said her husband was a mechanic and she's ask him to look at it and see if maybe he could fix it. I said, "OK," so she took the bike, which made three. The next day, I got a call from this neighbor telling me that her husband had fixed the bike and said she was bringing it over. So, she brought the three bikes over and said. "You owe me $10."

I nearly fainted. I did not pay her anything because I thought her husband was flxing the bike as a favor, because we let his kids use the two bikes that were in really good shape.

McMahon said it takes about $2,000 to $4,000 to build a house in a third world country, compared to anywhere from $25,000 to 940,000 locally.

Despite these costs, because all labor is volunteer and much of the community's support. Habitat has been able to complete construction of five homes in Seminole County in the past year, and three more are currently under construction.

Income from the thrift store alone isn't sufficient to pay building costs, however, and Susan's job will be to find additional sources of revenue, one of which is a campaign currently underway with the Scotty's Home Building Supply

From Oct. 1, 1992 to March 1, 1993, customers who purchase home building supplies at Scotty's can donate their cash register receipts to the Habitat campaign to contribute to the construction of another home. There will be no in-store displays, but Habitat will place house-shaped recepticle displays in schools and churches throughout the community. Provided the recepticles contain a total of $100,000 in receipts as of March 1, 1993, Scotty's will donate $10,000 toward construction of yet another Seminote home.

Only $10,000 of the receipts from builders will count toward the goals, and the rest must be from individuals," McMahon said, "But this is a reachable goal," She said one Florida community amassed $300,000 in receipts over a like time period earlier in the year.

McMahon said if a Scotty's customer knows of a Habitat home recipient, the receipt can be earmarked for construction of that particular home. The homes are sold for cost of construction on no-interest loans to qualified applicants living in sub-standard housing. In order to qualify. recipients must have a regular income for repayment, and must contribute 500 hours of "sweat equity" to Habitat, either in constructing a home or in volunteer time at the Habitat Store.

"We have some super volun-teers," McMahon said. "Many of them will use their own vehicles to pick up items which are being donated, and bring them in on their own time."

For the past few weeks. Habitat has been experimenting with a store-wide bargain price of 50 cents for each item of clothing in the store, and McMahon says it's working out very nicely. On any given Saturday morning, a long line queues up out front, which translates into nails, lumber and homes.

McMahon stresses volunteering at the Habitat thrift is You can find everything from televisions and stereos to knitting yarn and lazy Susans: office deaks and chairs to curtains and linens; and clothes for men, women and children. And the best part: volunteers get first crack at everything."

With the assistance of Carol Westall, Crawford said she prices items by her own experience, and resorts to department store and antique catalogues when in doubt.

"Some of it I go from past experience." she said, "and some of it is just hit and miss." She tries to price items just a little above garage sale items, she says, because she knows they will be in the same spot with merchandise from week to week while a garage sale is a one-day event.

Sue prices designer clothing right along with crystal chandeliers, and says she knows she's made a mistake when an item hangs around too long. Then, she spends a few hours reviewing what is in stock and adjusting the prices. The store is chock full of Aigner bags. Aureus sweaters, Carol Little suits and gift items that have been donated along with original packaging, such as quiche pans, and all sit attractively arranged and priced right. Treasures has a little of everything Habitat Thrift has, but frequently of higherquality and in like-new or new condition.

"That deak," she said, pointing to an antique desk in the front of the store, "looks just like one I spotted in an antique catalogue for $400." The price tag at Treasures is $75, she says, because someone who would appreciate such a piece would want to refinish it.

Crawford makes regular forays around the interior of the store when not pricing and sorting in the rear, and tries to rotate displays and offer new items on a regular basis. She's been at it since the store opened early in 1992 and shows no signs of stopping.

holder of a four-year degree and/or recipient of a prior employment salary of $25,000, he met the criteria for employment through PEN.

PEN, which was incorporated in 1987, charges no fee to either employers or employees, and receives funds through an arrangement with Orlando Vocational Technical School. It currently has 500 member volunteers. Orlando VoTech registers volunteers at sponsored workshops or seminars and forwards their names to the state. Germino says, and in return, funds are shared between PEN and the vocational school. PEN applicants are also encouraged to enhance their marketable skills by attending workshops and seminars at the school, and the job service provides job leads and employment opportunities which it gets by attending trade fairs and by word of mouth, Germino said.

And so many applicants are coming out of the Sanford area that PEN marketing meetings were recently relocated to Casselberry from Orlando.

While Germino has some statistics, he said there is no clear record of the number of placements PEN has made. because they have no facility to track placements unless notified by the employer or employee. indications are, however, that PEN is successfully placing a number of applicants. New members for June totaled 127. Germino said. Resumes were sent out for 117 of those applicanta, and PEN registered 24 new job orders. For the same month, PEN placed 42 out-of-work professional employees. PEN hopes to see its message widespread through flyers. College and Orlando Vocational Technical School, and notices placed in hustifies publications. For more information about PBM, call 275-1846 or 230-4766.

As to the man with Oriental features who answered 'Cincinnati'' when asked where he was from, not only was this poor guy probably born in Cincinnati — his parents and grandparents may have been, as well, dust because people have Oriental features, it does not mean they just got off the boat. Even if they are new to our country, is this the best way to welcome them? Where do we white folks get this fascination with figuring out the nationality of people of apparently Oriental descent? How often are those of us with Occidental features assumed to be foreigners? My forebears, if we go back far enough, are from the British Isles. I'm proud of my history, but never has any self-appointed expert approched me with, "Excuse me, but my friend and I have a bet on. Are you from Scotland?"

lauggestthe 'walk-a-mile-in-their-shoes' test: Ask strangers only what you would not mind strangers rou. Otherwis e. MYOB.

À WASP IN COGNEN, IND. DEAR WASPI Your uggestlo sounds reasonable to me. But for the record, if I were asked where I was from, I would take no offense, and would promptly reply, "Sloux City, lowe."

DEAR ABBY: What is the correct thing to do when you have visitors and the phone rings?

Is it OK to say, "May I call you back? I have visitors now'? My sister-in-law had that happen to her, and the party who called her just blessed her out some-thing terrible, saying, "That's the rudest thing I have ever heard of anyone doing!" Then she slammed down the telephone receiver and hasn't spoken to her since.

Abby, I have done the same thing several times, thinking it wasn't fair to leave the visitor just sitting there while I talked on the telephone. (To my way of thinking that would be even more rude.) The person who called and blessed my sister-inlaw out professes to be a great Christian.

Thank you for your answer. Sign this.

WONDERING IN CONTERS,

DEAR WONDERING: It would be unspeakably rude to leave a guest sitting alone while the ho or hostess carried on a longwinded conversation on the telephone. No reasonable person would take offense to being told, "I have company now: may I call you back?

By Phillip Alder
The Senior Life Master had agreed to teach a course to our intermediate players.
I am sure (the SLM began, in the first class) that you were each told, when sitting on your grandmother's knee, about Stayman: that you should use the convention when holding at least game-invitational values, a least game-invitational values, a four-card major and a side-suit doubleton. But that isn't always true. For example, look at this North hand. With 15 points, he is close to a slam-try opposite a strong no-trump. North should raise to three no-trump. There will surely be at least nine tricks available, and unfriendly dis-tribution might defeat a four-heart contract.

However, even the four-heart contract looks asie here. After the defenders cash three club tricks, the winning heart finesse will bring home 10 tricks. But now we come to another truism learned from your grandparents: Never concede a ruff-anddiscard. Yet there is an excep-tion to this rule as well. If you have won all possible side-suit tricks, giving the declarer a ruff-and-discard is probably your best defense.

On this deal. Victoria Donaldson was sitting East, playing with her flance. Freddie Fourpwood. After they had collected three club tricks, Victoria asw that the only chance for a fourth trick lay in the trump suit. So, at trick four, Victoria led her last club. And Freddie came through, ruffing with the heart eight and effecting a trump promotion for Victoria to defeat four hearts.

Now Victoria and Freddie are happily married with their own team-of-four growing rapidly.

spring, lack of education funding forced elementary and secondary school principals to dismiss numerous administrators, cierical staff and teachers.

Although many employees have been rehired, they feel that the state government has let everyone down.

We were expecting (to be dismissed). The teachers un-ion had made us aware of the situation at faculty meetings." John Witanowski, a Lake Mary High School English teacher, said. "I'm disappointed, there's been a lack of communication toward education. The state legislature sells the state lottery, which is supposed to be 'gravy' for the schools, but people still lose jobs. We've been sold out by the system."

When Witanowski was laid off after working at Lake Mary High for two years, he decided that he would wait until mid-September bedore actively seeking employment.

A former journalist, he had considered returning to radio

LAKE MARY - This past broadcasting. About three weeks before this school year began. Don Smith, Lake Mary's principal, called Witanowski and several other employees who had been re-leased, back to work.

> Of course, not all the workers were rehired, which has placed considerable strain on the daily routine. In many cases, class size at Lake Mary has increased to about 33. Some of the laid-off teachers had been the sponsors of varuious organizations, which left students wondering if thses clubs would be gone.

> Lake Mary thought it had lost its lacrosse team and sponsor, science teacher Trent Kubo, when she was released. Since she is working again, the team, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and the Wrestlerettes have a sponsor.

> "I really love my job at Lake Mary," Kubo said. "I think the administration dealt with me fairly. I'm just glad to be Jamborees highlighted the athletic activities during the week. The girls volleyball team opened Tuesday night against Lake Brantley and Lake Mary in which they did not fare well. Even with the actbacks, the girls are still hoping for a successful season. On Wednesday night, the boys volleyball season started when they faced off against Lake Mary and, afterward, against Lake Brantley.

The team members truly believe they have the raw talent to have a great year. but whether this will happen rests soley upon their shoulders. To conclude the week, the Fighting Seminole football team took on Lake Howell at Lake Brantley High School on Friday night. The Seminoles, led by their impeccable defense amd speedy offense, are definately considered con-tenders for the SAC crown. But they plan to to have in their possession even bigger titles. Also, on Monday, the Semi-nole swimming teams had their first practice, where they began to gear up for their long, prosperous season.

SCC program gets national accreditation

By VICKI DeSORM Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The Interior Design program at Seminole Community College is now one of only four two-year colleges in the country which has been accredited by the Foundation for Inte-(FIDER).

The only other two-year programs that have FIDER accreditation are two schools in Minnesota and one in California.

Jill Smith, the head of the interior design department and an instructor, said the accreditation means more prestige for the school and will help students who wish to go on to earn a bachelors degree from a fouryear school. "I think this adds more credibility to our program," Smith said. "And it will help our students as well."

She does not think that the enrollment in the program will increase dramatically as a result of the accreditation, but she said that students interested in earning an associates degree in interior design will be more likely to chose Seminole Community College over other achools.

"Certainly this makes us more attractive to students." she said. "And I think that will be more attractive as time goes on." Smith believes that within five years, licensing procedures will require that interior designers be graduates of FIDER accredited institutions. Also, she said, stu-dents will be better able to transfer classes from SCC to state schools with four year programs if they are coming from a FIDER accredited school.

SCC's program offers an associates degree to students who complete 75 hours of course work in technical design, graphics and studio class

There are about 150 students enrolled in the program at SCC.
"I think we'll see more students traveling here to Sanford to study interior design than we had in the past," said Smith.

FIDER looks at quality of instruction as well as facilities and preparation of students for the job market when they are selecting schools for accreditation.

Know Your School:

Rural school involves parents

mentary School is the only rural school in Seminole County, but principal Gloria Orseck, said that doesn't stop them from being at the cut-

"We are a community school," said Orseck. "We try to provide for the needs of all of our students and their families.

Geneva is one of three schools in the district which is on a year round calendar. Because the school was not put on the modified calendar to combat an overcrowding problem. Orseck said, they are on a single track. That is, all the students in the school are in class at the same time and on vacation at the same

"It is working wonderfully here," Oracck said. Under a state Community

School grant, a community health clinic will be built on the school campus by the end of the school year.

"The clinic will be for anyone in the Geneva Community who needs medical atten-tion," Orseck explained. "It will be staffed by Seminole County Health Department personnel.

The school also operates a day care center on the campus. The fees are charged on a sliding scale based on family income. Orseck said the facility received high praise from the HRS inspector who recently came to look them over.

The school also offers GED and literacy classes for parents and other community members in the evening. On staff they have an "outreach" representative who goes out into the community and helps to find ways for the school to help them.

Orseck said that the parents at the school are very active in many after-school activities.

""We draw students from the St. John's River to the Orange County line" she said. but once a month at our PTA meetings we have a performance by one of the grade levels and there are always about 400 people there for those performances."

Jill McKinley, president of the PTA, said that they are about 100 parents short of having 100 percent participa-tion in the PTA, but says parents are still signing up.

"We have a lot of things for them to get involved in." McKinley said. "We've got fundraisers and the school store and things like that. It's a real exciting achool year."

The Geneva Elementary PTA is very active in school activities. Here, taking a break from planning are, standing, Betty Laychor, secretary; Rita Hammond, treaurer; and Lisa Quintiliani, the Ways and Means chairman; seated Sandy Stratton, second vice president; Jill McKinley, president and Elisha Bethany, first vice president in charge of membership.
