Among the...

Among the... petitions which are being... dated among the people these days asking for government aid of one kind or another, and one particularly which seems to have met with some favor in Sanford recently, is a demand for the enactment of legislation providing for old age insurance. This particular petition proposes that the Federal Government shall pay to every man and woman in the United States over the age of sixty years the sum of $200 a month, or $4,800 a year for man and wife, for the balance of their lives.

It is not that $200 a month is too much money for a person who has worked hard all his life, and has saved, only to see those savings swept away by adversities over which he has no control. It is only that there are so many people like that. There are so many people who are over sixty years of age. It did not need to be so. Fifty or a hundred years ago, most people died long before they reached the age of sixty. Then there was no problem of old age insurance. Nowadays scientific progress has made it possible for a surprisingly large number of persons to live well beyond sixty.

We find in the World's Almanac that, according to the federal census of 1930, there were 16,030,708 persons in the United States over 65 years of age. It is estimated that there are now at least ten million persons who are over sixty years old. Of these ten million persons, one million are negroes, and more than that are Chinese coolies, Japs, Latin-Americans, and other immigrants. All of them, though many have never earned more than a few dollars a week in their lives would readily find, upon reaching the age of sixty, that they would each receive an annual income of $2,400 a year.

What would the cost of this insurance be? And who would pay it? Simple arithmetic reveals that the minimum cost to the government would be 24 billion dollars a year, more than six times all the ordinary expenses of the federal government in 1935, more than ten times all the money which the government raised through federal taxation during 1935, more than half of all the savings and demand deposits of all the men, women, and children, all the partnerships and corporations, big and little, in all the states and national banks in the country.

It is proposed to raise this huge sum through a national sales tax. Just what percentage a sales tax would have to carry to raise $24,000,000,000 one can only imagine. The total income of all the people in the country was only $50,000,000,000 last year. This unemployment insurance would take nearly half of that. That means that every person in the country, under the age of sixty, would have just half as much in actual purchasing power as he had last year. Not many, under sixty, would want to make that sacrifice.

Old age insurance, like health insurance and unemployment insurance, are commendable social objectives. Some day, probably very shortly, we will have all three in some form or other. But in considering such problems, it is well to keep in mind the limitations of the nation's pocketbook.

The Progress of Recovery

The Progress of Recovery is the subject of an article in the current issue of the Yale Review by Walter Lippmann, supporter of the New Deal but impartial critic of some of its policies. The government's cheap money policy as well as its gigantic expenditures greatly facilitated business during the winter of 1934. Mr. Lippmann says, but fear of the NRA, the failure to meet the demands of business for a balanced budget and a more generous amendment of the Securities Act, together with the serious effects of the drought and the widespread disturbances caused by strikes, materially retarded business during the summer.

That was the position as the summer ended," Mr. Lippmann continues. Surveying it, my own conviction is that a very substantial recovery from this point is perfectly possible if the Administration will profit by its errors and play the cards it holds. There are conditions which are beyond its control: the drought and the state of Europe. It is impossible to estimate the effects of the drought. As to Europe, however, it may be said, that while a European recovery would promote our own, European troubles need not now have the impact upon our economy which they had in 1931, when the American currency was tied to gold at the pre-war parity.

CHURCH LOYALTY

To my mind there is nothing that can take the place of regular church attendance. In the worship services there is always a quiet pervading spirit of peace which descends upon one, a peace that can neither be found nor acquired by any other means. It helps us to, strip the rust off right and leaves us with a feeling of well-being which clings to us through the week, even though the days be filled with struggles and trials. It is not only our duty to be in the Lord's house on the Lord's Day, it is also our privilege, a privilege in which is found the greatest source of joy and satisfaction. The blessings that we receive from regular church attendance more than repay us for the few short hours during the week that we spend in the house of our Lord.

The joys of Christian fellowship which we receive through church attendance make us more tolerant and considerate in our dealings with our fellow-men.

Nearly 100 guests were in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Stewart, Mrs. Kate Dickson, returned Wednesday from Utah and other Western states. They will begin housekeeping at once at 817 Elm Avenue.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather there was a large gathering of the Eastern Stars Tuesday night. Those initiated were Mrs. Shelton, Mrs. Bassett, and Mrs. Bailey. Refreshments were served by Mrs. H. F. Kent, hostess for the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence D. Wickler have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Gene, to Mr. Norman Cary Toole, to the wedding to take place Wednesday evening, Oct. 21, at their home on Oak Avenue.

SOUTHERN LINES PLEAD WITH ICC FOR HIGHER RATE

Railroads wait until era of better times appear again. WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Southern railroads Sunday said their plea for an increase in freight rates before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

L. A. Downs, of Chicago, president of the Illinois Central System which operates hundreds of miles in the South, and J. E. Wolfe, of Atlanta, Ga., chairman of the Southern Freight Association, told the Commission that added revenues are essential to Southern railroads.

Downs asserted the railroads constitute the only common carrier system of transportation in a country that holds itself out to transport for everyone every kind of freight that may be offered for movement at all seasons.

"Such a system of transportation must be supported," he said. "The railroads are here asking that they be given an opportunity of maintaining their solvency and of surviving until an era of better times appears."

The depression began so far as Southern roads are concerned not in 1929 but in 1926. The gross revenues of the Southern carriers began to decrease in 1927 and their net railway operating income in 1928. They have failed for four consecutive years to earn their fixed charges. The Southern railroads cannot obtain the amount of the increased cost of wages and materials—$400,000,000—or any substantial part thereof from their payments for labor. Public interest requires therefore that traffic which uses the rails pay a part of these increased expenses of operation.

Notwithstanding the fact that Southern railroads have substantially reduced expenses and placed other economies into effect, Telford said, "the total revenue and the total operating expenses now are so close together that the trouble at this time if not for a fair re-

RANDOM POLITICS

The known facts are that announcement of Johnson's resignation followed; that Richberg and his friends at Washington preserved a smiling silence; that the President gave no sign of replying to the questionnaire of the Chamber of Commerce. The whole chain of events, coming as soon after Lewis Douglas had resigned as budget director under circumstances never officially explained, greatly stimulated speculation over what direction the next steps in Administration policy might take. It probably will be weeks before the answer is fully apparent. Whichever way he means to go, the President contemplates no swift turning of policy, no open breaks so long as they can be avoided.

It is announced that the reworking of NRA will be accomplished gradually, a step at a time. The Douglas letter of resignation, known by informed Washington to contain some highly interesting statements, is kept secret, and he is permitted to step out quietly. Also unpublished is the letter written by Johnson a month before his resignation was accepted, offering to retire and reciting, in pungent phrase, his inner sentiments about Administration policy. Instead, the public has the exchange of correspondence given out at Hyde Park, saying little, sweetly.

This anomalous thing about it all is that, when the history books are written, they may turn out to be all wrong. Strange, indeed, to those who have seen General Johnson in the flesh and in action, is the thought that he may be passed along to posterity as a man of mystery. Yet that is the role upon which he now seems to be entering.

With the Chamber of Commerce of the United States asking the President directly for an assurance to business, and with pressure of many kinds converging against the continued influence of the "brain trust" at the White House, what Mr. Roosevelt and Baruch of Wall Street talked about would make an interesting story in itself.

Turn but for sufficient revenue to pay operating expenses and fixed charges. The Southern carriers cannot meet the unavoidable increases in the cost of labor and materials without an increase in their freight rates and charges.

CITRUS FRUITS MAKE FINE WINE CHEMISTS FIND

Removal Of Price Depressing Surpluses Seen Sure As Result

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9. (AP)—Government chemists have discovered that citrus fruits—orange, grapefruit, tangerines—will make an excellent new type of alcoholic wines and cordials.

They are hopeful it was said recently, that this method of utilizing the fruits will remove price-depressing surpluses from the markets.

The new products, developed at the agriculture department's station at Winter Haven, Fla., range from light wines to heavier, fortified liquors and are not imitations of products previously on the market, officials said, although they resemble sherry, port, and other wines.

The citrus surplus, mostly of standard fruit, usually is canned or made into marmalades and soft drinks. To turn such off-standard fruit into non-competing products is the answer to the producers' problem, the chemists believe.

Quantities fermented can be adjusted to the crop, they say, except production can be carried over to later years with improvement in quality through ageing of the wines, and the processing is simple and relatively low in cost.

The wines are prepared by reaming fruit on rapidly revolving bars. The juice, after straining is fermented with a pure culture of wine yeast. The sugar content of the resulting liquor is increased by about 25 percent with corn sugar, the additional alcohol acting as a preservative.

Four beverages made from grapefruit juice were exhibited to the chemists as examples. A light dry wine of approximately the sherry type, clear amber in color, was made by the natural fermentation of sweetened grapefruit juice.

A great mass of humanity packed on both sides of street cheered as the monarch and French officialism passed, but their cheers were drowned in a sudden fusillade of 20 shots fired from near the stock exchange.

Despite the mad confusion of the crowd, screaming beneath a veritable canopy of flags which decorated the street, the royal automobile continued on its way to the prefecture where the King had started.

The monarch was carried in the study of the prefect and laid upon a couch. He died without regaining consciousness.

Construction Of Canal Held Step Nearer Ending

(Continued From Page One) boat, he spent all of his time on deck. He sat for over four hours in the pilot's house where he asked dozens of questions of the most inquisitive kind. He was tickled to death with the river and the trip, and we feel that we have made a friend.

Senator Fletcher was not the only one of the distinguished group who sought information on the canal, Mr. Lehmann revealed. "Senator Trammell and Representative Wilcox, Peterson, and Sears also exhibited a keen interest in what was being proposed. They asked questions which required detailed answers, and, with Fred T. Williams as one of the several engineers aboard who are well acquainted with the river from every angle, we feel that their questions were thoroughly answered. I consider the trip most successful."

While the trip was of a more or less social nature, it developed into a called meeting of the St. Johns River Improvement Association since many of its members and W. F. Glynn of Crescent City, its president, C. L. Heath of Inland, its treasurer, and Mr. Lehmann, its secretary, were present.

During this session, the senators and congressmen and other high officials are called upon to speak briefly. They were told that no effort was being made to "pin them down" to a definite statement on the canal and the cut-off improvements which are being sought.

Each responded, Mr. Lehmann stated, in a satisfactory manner, and the tone of their remarks indicated, generally, a desire to cooperate in bringing the improvements to completion as soon as possible.

Four resolutions were passed during the meeting by members of the Association.

The first asked for the digging of three cut-offs to facilitate transportation on the river north of Sanford. The Association called upon "our senators and congressmen to get this needed improvement at the earliest possible moment."

The second calls upon "our senators and congressmen to give every effective leadership in securing the early construction of the St. Johns-Indian River canal."

The third opposes proposed changes in the engineering district whereby Col. Warren T. Hannum would be deprived "of credit justly due him for his magnificent work now being carried on and in contemplation for the state." The Association, therefore, calls upon "our senators and congressmen to make a most earnest effort to keep this office under the Gulf of Mexico division, instead of the South Atlantic division."

The fourth "expresses our great appreciation for Major R. G. Dunn's and Col. Warren T. Hannum's splendid service and friendship and their valued services may be continued."

FERA Crews Begin Clearing Land For Wholesale Market

First Unit Of Plant To Cost $27,500; State Marketing Board Operates It

Actual construction of a first unit of the State Farmers' Wholesale Market got under way this morning as a crew of 20 FERA workers began clearing away high weeds and grass on the French property at Thirteenth Street and French Avenue.

Work on this project which has been under consideration for many months, started exactly 20 minutes after FERA Administrator O. P. Swope at Orlando had telephoned Seminole County FERA Administrator T. K. Ager that he had authority to proceed at once.

First work involves the clearing and grading of the site which was donated through the courtesy of Alex V. French, pioneer resident of this city, members of the City and County Commissions.

At the request of John Mesch, Sr., chairman of the Board of County Commissioners and in their behalf, the FERA assumed that it had approved a $19,000 drainage ditch clearance project which will find 100 men assigned to this type of work for the next several months. Effective Friday morning of this week, 20 FERA workers will be available in each of the five County Commissioners' districts for the sole purpose of cleaning ditches and constructing other means of drainage aimed at the elimination of high water conditions which have proved costly in recent months.

Estimated cost of the first unit of the market which is to be operated by the State Marketing Board has been set at approximately $27,500.

The Marketing Board, consisting of Governor Knoch, Commissioner of Agriculture Nathan Mayo and State Marketing Commissioner I. M. Rhodes, has made available $20,000 of state funds. The FERA is providing labor approximating an outfit up to $7,500.

As fast as the need develops, more FERA workers will be assigned to the grounds. It was announced at the City Hall FERA office, so that the market may be completed in time to handle crops this fall.

John D. Arrives In State, Feeling Fine

JACKSONVILLE, Oct. 9. (AP)—In good spirits and feeling fine, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., came back to Florida today for his annual winter sojourn, rested despite his long trip and seeking two things, sunshine and peaceful quiet.

The 95-year-old philanthropist was still sleeping when he arrived here, enroute to "The Casements," his Ormond Beach home, but members of his household said he enjoyed the trip from his Lakewood, N. J., estate, and was "feeling fine."

Roosevelt Says Prices Are Yet Too Low

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. (AP)—President Roosevelt feels that commodity prices should go a little higher before an attempt be made to stabilize the price level.

The President was described as feeling that considerable progress had been made in the last year and a half in bringing the nation's needs and facilities to a more even relationship but that the greatest balance should go still higher. It is emphasized, however, that prices would be prevented from going through the roof, so to speak, and that when a reasonable level was reached, attempts should be made to keep them there.

Intimidation Of Laboring Class By Any Hooded Group Must Stop, Says Commission

The intimidation of the negro laboring class of this city by hooded groups and individuals must stop at once, the City Commission agreed during its meeting at the City Hall last night. It was brought out that the appearance of hooded Klansmen on First Street and Sanford Avenue Saturday night resulted in serious losses to business men as negro shoppers hurriedly left the streets.

As a result of a discussion, the Commissioners authorized City Attorney Fred R. Wilson to study City ordinances at once, and also to communicate, "diplomatically," with officials of the local Klan to the end that a stop be put to the appearance of hooded Klansmen on the streets of this city.

PLANNING BOARD NORTHERN SPAIN RECOMMENDS 5 HELD IN GRIP MAJOR PROJECTS OF TERRORISM

Completion of the City sewer project and construction of a sidewalk on French Avenue north of Seminole High School for the safety of students are listed as among the projects which should first be completed if and when federal funds are made available, according to recommendations of the City Planning Board.

Listed as the third most important project is a park and recreational plan which proposes the construction of a waterfront park between Sanford Avenue and the Mayfair Hotel, reconditioning of Municipal Park, beautification of Municipal Pier, and the planting of grass at Municipal Airport.

The Board's recommendation, as presented to City Commissioner last night by Board Chairman H. B. Pope, are as follows:

"Under instructions from the City Commission of Sanford, the City Planning Board met at the City Hall Oct. 5 to examine the various projects involving the use of federal funds.

"The City Planning Board understands that it is to make recommendation to the City Commission as to which proposed projects it considers most desirable.

RICHBERG HITS INCONSISTENCY OF U. S. CRITICS

Unemployment Relief Held More Important Than Budget Balancing, He Says

CHICAGO, Oct. 10. (AP)—Donald R. Richberg, director of the industrial emergency committee, yesterday charged that the "political partisan" who advocated both adequate unemployment relief and a balanced budget was "trying to make a fool out of his government."

"It is desirable and necessary to balance the federal budget at the earliest possible moment," Richberg told a Rotary club meeting here last night. "But, sweeping demands for drastic slashing of expenditures and immediate balancing of the budget, in the face of relief needs, were the product either of gross ignorance or political demagoguery."

The only honest way to criticize Administration policies, he said, was not by a blanket complaint but by specific proposals whereby the critic would himself assume the responsibility "for advocating either not meeting emergency relief demands or increasing taxation or government loans."

Declaring the most vital problem of economic recovery was the increase in private employment of industrial wage earners and in the volume of goods produced and distributed by private enterprise, Richberg asserted that the machinery for solving the problem already existed in the NRA.

Richberg assured his listeners that he had no blanket charges were planned in the Recovery Act. "When certain statements of mine in Washington a few days ago were thought to forebode the early end of my restaurant on production volume or price competition," he said, "I received a certifying amount of approval and continuation within 24 hours."

No one, he said, who has adequate knowledge of the problem would attempt to lay down any formula or principle to be applied rigidly in the making or revision of all codes.

"It would be a major calamity to abandon the efforts which, although only partially successful, have brought better order and health to certain industries," he declared that those gains must not be lost. Richberg pointed out that their preservation was in (Continued On Page Three)

Yugoslavia Moves To Halt Riots In Croatian District

European Spokesmen Fearful Over Possible Effect Of Murders On Nations

By the Associated Press. Europe "probably was saved from dire consequences by the fact the assassin was a Yugoslav," an authoritative British source said yesterday of the killing of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and French Foreign Minister Louis Barthou at Marseille.

"This is a terrible thing for Europe," the spokesman said. "In the course of it, it will mean extensive political realignments of the two continental camps and it is speaking at first sight can be safely eliminated."

A more serious view, however, was taken by one leading European statesman who said: "The terrible bomb-shell has cast sequences which may be most immediately take steps to localize the situation to halt any international complications. Unless plenty of cool thinking and active take place in Yugoslavia and France today, there is no feeling any near international borders. Everyone is centrally Europe, politically speaking, fervently hopes calm will prevail."

Another spokesman said: "If a Yugoslav shot Alexander, then international complications are almost eliminated for all practical purposes."
