Schools aim to stem child abuse

ATTLEBORO, Mass. — Inspired by the cautions on cartons of cigarettes, schools here are adding warnings to report cards to shield students from parents whose disappointment with bad grades grows violent.

"In this time of increasing awareness and the increasing incidence of child abuse and violence, we don't want to be a cause of it," said Superintendent Joseph Rappa, who announced the report card warning last week.

"Restraint and caution should be used when interpreting this document," says the notice sent home with report cards from the Attleboro Public Schools. "Under no circumstances should this document ... result in negative actions, especially physical."

This is an example of new child-abuse prevention programs based in public schools and aimed at parents. Others include sending students home with the telephone numbers of parental stress lines and holding workshops about discipline for teen-age parents.

American Education Week

Classrooms open all week for parents and friends to visit

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County is once again celebrating American Education Week along with the rest of the country today through the end of the week.

It's a chance for parents, friends of the schools and the community to celebrate the advances in education and the learning process taking place at the schools in the district.

Parents and others have been invited to come into the schools to see, first hand, what is happening in the classrooms.

"We want the students to see that education is a fun, but essential part of their lives," said Geraldine Wright, principal of Goldsboro Elementary School in Sanford. "But we also want the parents to have the opportunity to come in and experience the learning for themselves and be able to take it home."

On Thursday evening parents of Goldsboro students will have the opportunity to take part in a "Make and Take" activity in which they will be able make a learning activity they can bring home and share with their children.

At some schools, like Midway

Elementary in Sanford, the parents, grandparents and community members have been invited to join students and teachers for lunch.

"On Wednesday we are inviting those who have worked to make this a strong school to join us for lunch," Kathy Phillips, who is coordinating the American Education Week efforts at Midway.

Each school has its own special way of celebrating American Education Week.

The national theme, which has been adopted locally, is "Take A New Look."

Most schools are encouraging those who are interested in education and in the way students are being educated to visit the schools and take a look at the innovations and at the learning that is taking place.

"This is a very exciting time in education," Wright said. "We want to share it with the parents and the community."

In addition to showing off the schools, the district and local PTAs are planning salutes to the groups that make the schools run smoothly.

There will be luncheons honoring

Wildwood pursues Auto Train despite Sanford priority

By NICK PFEFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Although city officials have been assured Auto Train has no immediate plans to move out of Sanford, the City of Wildwood in Sumter County is still seeking consideration.

In early September, the Sumter County Development Council suggested a move to Wildwood. It proposed a large tract of privately owned land might be purchased as a new southern terminal for the facility. Recently, the Wildwood City Commission sent another letter to Auto Train, again suggesting the move be considered.

At Auto Train headquarters in Washington, D.C., public affairs officer Howard Robertson said Friday. "We have received another request from the city of Wildwood to be considered as the new southern terminal for Auto Train, but the request is not being considered at this time."

He added, "When we looked into several options early this year, Wildwood was on the list, but it's at the bottom of that list. At this time, I don't believe it would be seriously considered even if we were to move away from Sanford, and we have no plans to do that right now."

In late Sept., Sanford Mayor Bettye Smith, City Manager Bill Simmons, Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Dave Farr, and Kevin Grace, Seminole County Deputy City Manager, made a trip to the Auto Train headquarters in Washington, D.C., to meet with company officials.

The trip was instigated following the release of a communication from Amtrak's parent corporation, questioning the feasibility of keeping the Auto Train operation in Sanford, and suggesting that an alternate site be examined.

When they returned from Washington, the group said they had been assured by Amtrak President W. Graham Clator, "...that they have no plans to move the Auto Train operation out of Sanford."

By 1995, the Auto Train expects to put new Superliner double decker trains into service. Robertson had

Crooms tradition continues to serve Thanksgiving meal

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Once again the students, faculty and staff at the Crooms School of Choice are reaching out into the community to help those around them during the holiday season.

In a tradition that was started last Thanksgiving, the school will serve turkey with all the trimmings to those who might otherwise not have much to be thankful for on Thanksgiving.

The dinner will take place Nov. 25, the day before Thanksgiving.

"We want to give those who need it a good meal," said Sid Pollock, the school volunteer who is organizing the dinner. "But we also want to teach the students some social responsibility."

Pollock said the students, who will decorate the school cafeteria, welcome and serve the guests, will learn a valuable lesson about people in need and about their need to serve the community.

"We want them to learn a lesson about doing for others," Pollock said.

Pollock said that hotels in Las Vegas will be, once again, donating the turkeys for the dinner and some local businesses have given some of the other food items.

"We've put out the word to the community for some more help," Pollock said, "but no one has come forward to help us."

Despite the lack of community support the dinner has received when looking for assistance will probably not be evident the day of the dinner.

Pollock said the school served 1,100 dinners last year and will probably serve even more this year.

National Guard leaves south Florida

HOMESTEAD — The National Guard shut down post-hurricane operations in southern Dade County, leaving just a few dozen people behind to finish packing up.

The official word is that all of the troops are out of the hurricane area. Steven Gerrish, a spokesman at Florida National Guard headquarters upstate in St. Augustine, said Sunday.

"We have about 65 people left to clean up after ourselves and repair some equipment so we can get it on the road, but our law-enforcement missions have ended, for all intents and purposes," he said.

The Guard deployed 8,300 people to help residents after Hurricane Andrew ravaged the area 2 1/2 months ago. The Guardsmen were joined by nearly 30,000 U.S. troops.

The soldiers helped clean up, direct traffic, provide food and water, and enforce the 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew in effect from the Kendall community south about 90 miles to Florida City.

Authorities planned to end the curfew Monday, bowing to residents' complaints and a federal lawsuit filed by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Georgia man arrested in shooting

ST. AUGUSTINE — A Georgia man has been arrested in the fatal shooting of his cousin at a family barbecue after the two got into an argument, authorities said.

Glenn Reed Hodges, 37, of Douglas, Ga., was charged with second-degree murder in the Saturday night shooting of his cousin, Brenda Gail Gifford, also 37, of St. Johns County, according to the sheriff's department.

He was being held without bond Sunday at the county jail, officials said.

Ms. Gifford became angry at Hodges during a get-together at a St. Augustine-area home and threw food at him, according to a sheriff's news release.

Hodges then got a .380-caliber semiautomatic pistol from his car. He was going to fire it into the air but the gun went off as he raised his arm and the bullet hit Ms. Gifford in the head, according to the news release.

Homemade bomb found at high school

NEW FORT RICHEY — About 40 homes were evacuated after Pasco County deputies found a homemade bomb in the garage of a local high school.

More than 100 residents in the Orchid Lake neighborhood were roused from bed and cleared out at 3 a.m. Sunday when sheriff's deputies, called to investigate a loud explosion, discovered the device in the garage of a Ridgewood High School senior.

Stanley Turecki, 17, had taken chemicals from the school chemistry lab and apparently didn't know his handiwork's strength.

Sheriff's spokesman Jon Powers estimated that the bomb would, at the very least, "wipe the house." In the worst case, he said, it would have "caused extensive damage within a half-mile radius."

Turecki was arrested and charged with setting off and possessing a destructive device. He was later released into the custody of his mother.

The 40 homes, all within a quarter-mile of the Turecki house, were evacuated as a Hillsborough County Bomb Squad unit removed the device, Powers said. Many of the evacuees stayed at Ridgewood High until about 9 a.m. Sunday, when they were allowed back into their homes.

South Florida bank heists are down

MIAMI — The arrests of several busy bank robbers might be behind a drop in such crimes this year in the FBI's South Florida region, which stretches from Fort Pierce to Key West, officials said.

There were 249 bank robberies in Monroe, Dade, Broward and Palm Beach counties for the 1991-92 fiscal year that ended in September, the FBI says. That's down from 346 robberies in the same region the previous year.

FBI officials are pleased with the drop from 1990's high, but are unsure of what to make of it.

"We have not been able to figure out at this point what is the rhyme or reason," Sheriff Frew, supervisory special agent of the FBI region's bank squad, told the Sun-Sentinel in Fort Lauderdale for Sunday's edition.

In previous years, 1989-90 saw 331 bank jobs, while there were 254 in 1988-89, 309 in 1987-88, 206 in 1986-87, and 175 in 1985-86.

Ma. Frew suggested that one factor in the decrease in bank heists was the arrest of several bandits who may have been responsible for a sizeable number of crimes.

In fact, she said, 174 of the holdups in the year ending with September 1991 were committed by 19 individuals. There were far fewer aerial robbers working the region in the 1991-92 fiscal year, she said.

Memorial park may expand

By Associated Press

PENSACOLA — A recently formed group is trying to raise money to build a monument to World War II and Korean War veterans who feel left out since the dedication of Veterans Memorial Park.

The Veterans Memorial Park Monument Foundation, incorporated in August, already has an idea for a unique memorial fountain, but lacks the funding to go ahead with it, said Christopher Brewer, the group's president.

The park, dedicated last month, contains a monument to World War I veterans and a half-size replica of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington.

"Not to have something marking or memorializing World War II or Korea, even Desert Storm, it would seem like we alighted the other veterans," Brewer said.

The 16-member foundation came up with the idea of building a fountain surrounded by monuments honoring other war veterans. The group plans to start with Korea and World War II, but later wants to look at the Persian Gulf War and other conflicts that might be added to the cluster, Brewer said.

"We're trying to come up with something that's very unique," said Brewer, a Navy sailor and veteran of the Gulf War and Vietnam. "We're trying to have something a little bit uplifting."

The group does not know how much the fountain will cost, Brewer said. The Foundation has collected about $1,100 but has not sponsored a major fund-raiser, he added.

Brewer said he wants to take the idea to other veterans groups before making a final decision on a design and hiring an architect.

The group should make a proposal to the Pensacola City Council within the next several months, he said.

"We're all for it," said Lenny Collins, president of the Vietnam Veterans Wall South Foundation. "The main idea of the all veterans memorial park was to get all the memorials in there."

The Wall South memorial is the anchor of the park, which was built around the black granite wall carved with the names of 58,000 killed in Southeast Asia.

Sanford pioneer begins first dairy

By JULIAN STENSTROM
Herald Columnist

The gentleman in this 1919 photo is believed to have established the first dairy in the Sanford area. He was Nels Julius Stenstrom, a native of Sweden.

He was reared on a dairy farm about 30 miles from Stockholm. When old enough to leave home he became a seaman. Legend has it that he was the captain of the steamship that brought to America the second group of Swedes recruited by General Henry S. Sanford. That group arrived in the fall of 1871.

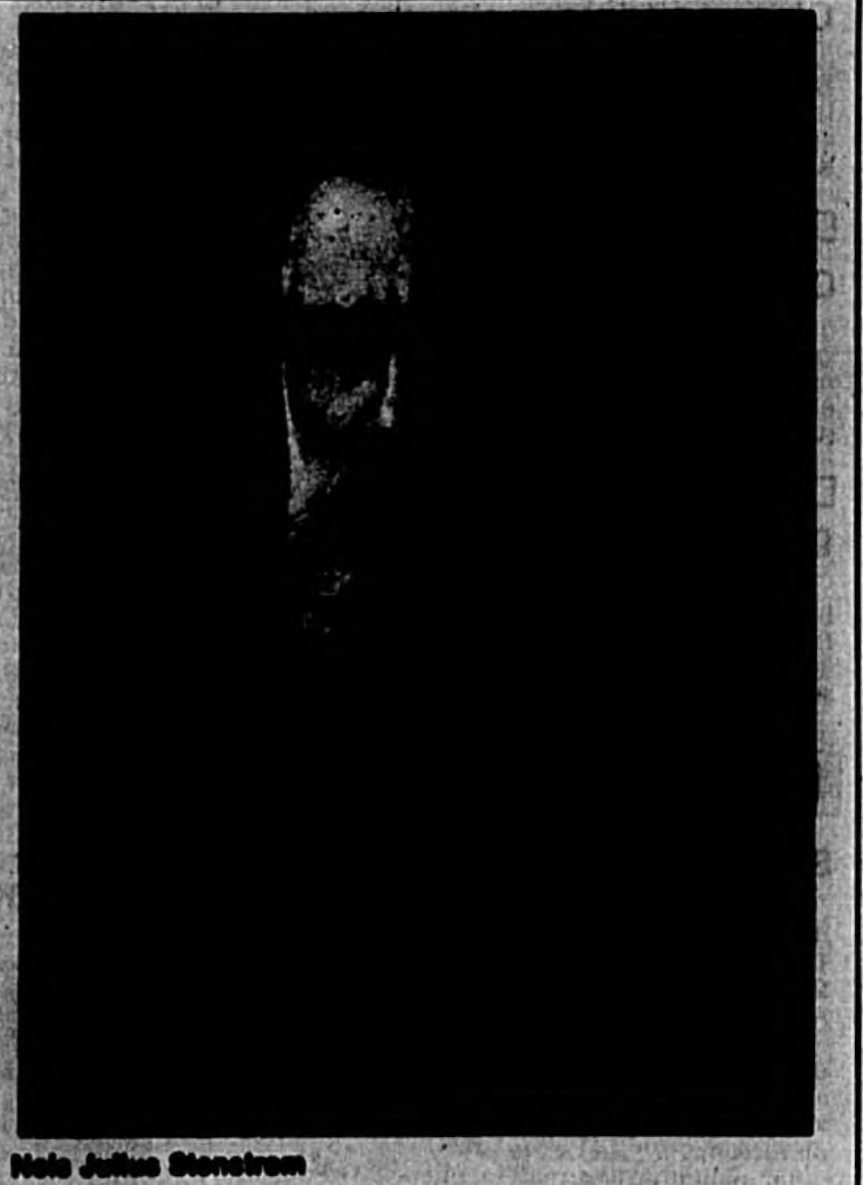

Records at the Sanford Memorial Library and Museum indicate the two steamships were the "Columbia" and the "Scandinavia." But the records do not specify which vessel brought which group.

The story is that Stenstrom became interested in what the "new" world had to offer. After a brief stop in New York for fuel and supplies the ship sailed for Savannah — at that time the nearest deep water port to Sanford.

The story goes that Stenstrom resigned his commission as the ship's captain, purchased 75 head of dairy cattle, and drove them overland to Sanford. The late Bonner Carter, as a member of the Seminole County Historical Society, led a party to what he said was the site of Stenstrom's first dairy. It is in the vicinity of Lake Ada. The lake had never been named.

Stenstrom married a Swedish schoolteacher, Josephine Jacobs. They had 10 children. The lake was named "Ada" for one of the couple's four daughters, the late Mrs. Ada Rockey. For many years she operated Rockey's Tire Shop in downtown Sanford. She was the widow of U.S. Rockey who died in 1937. In addition to Ada, the other daughters were Amy, Ina and Ayla. The Stenstroms had six sons: Iver, Ray, Leon, Orin, Newton and Guy Otis. All of the 10 children are now deceased.

Pupils wary of homework hot line House prepares for session

By Associated Press

ORLANDO — Some pupils aren't as happy as their parents and teachers about the latest advance in education technology.

Schools across the nation are installing telephone lines parents can call to get up-to-date information about school activities like PTA meetings and field trips.

What has some students wary is that moms and dads can also find out about homework assignments.

Stephen Wood, 10, said his parents call the Lake Sybil Elementary "Tel-A-Parent" line every day to check on his fifth-grade class.

"Sometimes they'll ask me, 'What did you do during the day?' and see if I'm telling them the truth," he told The Orlando Sentinel for a story Sunday.

Many Florida schools have the systems, ranging from simple answering machines to complex computers. Several companies market computerized systems that answer calls, take messages, and can be programmed to call parents with messages about special events or absent children.

By Marlene Elementary Principal Melinda Craig, whose school shares such a system with Windy Ridge Elementary, said her southeast Orange County school has logged more than 13,000 calls since August.

Parents hear an introduction and can push different numbers to learn about PTA activities, report an absence or listen to a message from a child's teacher. The message often includes what homework has been assigned, so parents can make sure it's done.

One late-working parent leaves messages for teachers on the voice-mail system, and teachers leave answers the next day on his office answering machine, Craig said.

Computerized systems, made by a variety of small manufacturers, cost from $1,500 to more than $5,000. Bob Johnson's Micro Delta Corp. in Deerfield Beach has sold 400 computerized hot lines to Florida schools and 2,000 nationally.

"It's the best technology right now," Noonan said. "But not everyone is high-tech."

Frances Cuddy set up an answering machine on an extra phone line when she took over as principal of south Orlando's Walker Middle School in January. A message is recorded each day letting what chances have done.

"I would like to have one of the new, high-powered ones," Cuddy said. "But that's a lot of money."

Cuddy sent home refrigerator magnets with the hot line number to encourage parents to call, and attributes a lower student failure rate this fall partly to parental involvement resulting from the phone line.

Johnson and other veterans including outgoing speaker T.K. Wetherell, D-Daytona Beach, and new House Republican Leader Sandra Morham, R-Largo, greeted the 43 newcomers to the 120-member House.

Sides regroup after gay rights defeat

By PAT LEISNER
Associated Press

TAMPA — Voters overturned Tampa's gay rights law following a bitter months long slugfest, but they didn't settle the issue. The legal battle is still on and both sides are regrouping, although quietly this time.

Election results showed 58.5 percent of the voters supported repeal of the 18-month-old anti-discrimination measure, while 41.5 percent favored keeping it on the books.

The measure, which banned discrimination based on sexual orientation, was added to the city's human rights ordinance in May 1991 to protect homosexuals from bias in jobs, housing and public accommodations such as restaurants. It was adopted by a slim 4-3 city council vote during an emotional six hour hearing.

Voters took it off the books on Nov. 3.

"This time the people got the right to vote and they came out in numbers," said David Caton who led a successful petition drive to put the repeal question on the ballot.

The county went to court challenging whether only qualified voters signed the petition. A judge upheld the signatures, but lawyers for Elections Supervisor Robin Krivanek are appealing to higher courts.

In a separate action, Caton has filed to get the referendum on the general election ballot. The city wanted the repeal vote to wait until the next local election, in March 1995. Caton prevailed in a lower court. The case is on appeal to the 2nd District Court of Appeal.

The controversy split the community as it flared over the months. Radicals on opposing sides, nearly drowning out the moderates, traded charges of perverts and hatemongers as the furor finally reached into the business and religious communities.

In the days leading to the vote, 10 robed members of the Invisible Empire of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan from Gainesville showed up on the steps of City Hall carrying signs reading "no rights for sodomites."

Members of Queer Nation burned President Bush in effigy. Gay supporters stormed the stage during a television talk show devoted to the referendum.

The Roman Catholic bishop said while the church steadfastly opposed discrimination, the amendment dealt with "orientation," namely, behavior or lifestyle, thus promoting more than it intended.

Other church leaders, including a Lutheran bishop, took a stand against repeal.

Caton, Florida director of the American Family Association, led a group called "Take Back Tampa" which called the measure the first step of a homosexual agenda that would teach gay lifestyle to children.

"Say No to Hate," an opposing coalition that included Tampa Mayor Sandy Freedman and U.S. Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., accused Caton's group of stirring fear and warned repeal could open the door to discrimination against other groups.

Susan Glickman, Florida director of People for the American Way, compared the issue to the civil rights fight of the 1960s.

"We're talking about a basic fundamental right — a right to housing, job and to be served in a restaurant," she said.

"The outcome showed the campaign for civil rights protection for a lifestyle didn't work," Caton countered.

The Committee for Responsible Citizenship, a newly-formed group from the business sector, got involved late in the campaign.

"We felt it was not an issue of civil rights," said spokesman Russell Bogue, adding that homosexuals were seeking special rights, approval for a lifestyle.

"We believe now that it has been repealed this should not be construed as a license to discriminate," he added.

Glickman looks to the administration of Gov. Lawton Chiles and the lifting of the ban on gays in the military as discrimination protections for homosexuals.

Hospital expansion a plus for everyone

Attorneys like to claim that when doctors were still using leeches, certain lawyers were writing historical legal briefs. Doctors counter that while the practice of law hasn't changed much in centuries, medicine is now in a high tech age.

Some of the high tech medical equipment in that high tech age will be in the new expansion of the HCA Central Florida Regional Hospital. The expansion is a medical plus for future patients.

The hospital is in the process of adding a new open heart surgical suite and a 12-bed surgical intensive care unit, equipped with state-of-the-art monitors.

High tech additions will include a heart-lung machine, new laboratory equipment, additional radiology equipment and all of the necessary specialty items for cardiac surgeons.

In the past half century, Americans have seen some of the results of medical advances. Both men and women are living longer and healthier lives. Operations are not as painful as they once were. The recovery time has been drastically shortened.

The completion of the $4.5 million expansion is set for October, 1993. In addition, a second Cardiac Catheterization Laboratory and an additional expansion of the Radiology Department are planned.

Although the cost of medical care is expensive, the HCA expansion should be a reminder that American medical care remains the best in the world.

Patients in Sanford and the surrounding area, due both to the current medical facilities and the expansion, are the beneficiaries of that exceptional medical care.

HODDING CARTER

How to form responsive government

The new president, as usual, is inundated with advice from pundits, academics, job-seekers and adversaries. Most of it is self-serving and self-evident. What follows is of a somewhat different order. For those seeking high-minded sentiments and good government platitudes, read no further.

The new president's first priority is not — repeat, not — to form a bipartisan government. His first task is to build a responsible, responsive administration. Properly understood, that is a partisan task. He has been given an opportunity by the electorate. He will fashion it into a mandate only if he staffs his government with people whose first loyalty is to him, to his program and to the broad Democratic Party agenda.

That means, first, that he must resist the impulse to choose his major appointees on the basis of their resumes alone. Washington and the nation are filled with men and women who have dedicated their lives to the single-minded pursuit of trophies for their entry in Who's Who. Some of them are quite able. Some are almost as good as their press clippings. Many are simply careerists whose chief talent is in cultivating the media.

But few of them give a damn about Bill Clinton. They were grabbing for the brass ring of advancement before he came on the scene and they will be grabbing for it after he leaves. They should be left to play with their ambitions. What President Clinton needs are men and women who put him first — not stogees, but loyalists. Fortunately, he is surrounded by such people, whose abilities are as undeniable as their commitment to him is clear. They are the people with whom he should staff the White House and the Cabinet.

There will be bleats and whimpers when and if he does so. Media toadies of this Washington eminence or that will write of Mr. Clinton's "parochialism" and "narrow base." They should be ignored. Every president governs in a snake pit. As the going gets increasingly tough, which it always does, he must have confidence that the knives in his advisers' hands are aimed at his enemies rather than at his back. The capital's resume brigades are full of people who have never met a cause too noble or leader too enlightened to betray. They are useful as writers of learned pieces in policy magazines. They are worthless as allies.

This is not a recommendation to appoint mediocrities, so long as they are faithful followers. To the contrary, it is a reminder that the nation is full of smart people, but that smart is not enough. This will be a Clinton presidency. The administration should be run by Clinton people, as bright as any and trustworthy in the crunch.

The president-elect knows this, if only because he has been a keen student of recent political history. He saw what happened to the Carter administration staffed at the top by people who, with rare exceptions, were not Carterites. He saw how much was accomplished by the first Reagan administration, where every major player was a Ronald Reagan person through and through. And he benefited directly from the self-serving betrayals that characterized the Bush administration's last year.

The second, equally partisan point is that the president-elect should lose no time in prying Republican appointees out of the bureaucratic woodwork. That means everything from Farmers Home Administration state directors to second-level officials at the U.S. Information Agency.

"I wouldn't drink any milk, I said it might be bad for me."

Egypt's Mubarak must stand strong

CAIRO, Egypt — One of the first foreign policy priorities for Bill Clinton will be to jump-start stalled Middle East peace negotiations, and bond as quickly as possible with the leader who will be a linchpin for any lasting peace between Arabs and Jews: Egypt's president, Hosni Mubarak.

The fast unfolding events in the Middle East may not patiently wait for the new Clinton administration to get America's economic house in order before reviving negotiations. Moderates like Mubarak are on a slippery slope, being pushed by Muslim extremists.

Mubarak needs little lecture on the risks, because one dark day he soared into his memory, it's the day he assumed power in a uniform splattered with the blood of his mentor, Anwar Sadat, when Muslim extremists assassinated him during an October 1981 military parade.

Many political observers here believe that Mubarak himself may be a marked man. Radical Islamic fundamentalists are actively fomenting Mubarak's overthrow. Though a minority, they're demanding that the alliance with the United States be abrogated and the Egyptian peace treaty with Israel abandoned.

Unlike his predecessor, Mubarak seems mindful of the political/religious minefield he's negotiating. He is warning that the escalating violence by Islamic extremists deals with nothing short of "the present and future of the Egyptian people and will be treated with severity."

The warnings emanate from all corners of Egyptian society. Nobel Prize-winning novelist Nagib Mahfouz is a devout Muslim who understands that fundamentalism could sound the death knell for Egypt.

In the foyer of his Cairo apartment, Mahfouz warns that the Nile soil is fertile for the spread of extremism. It is being fertilized by disaffected Egyptian youth who are not satisfied with a former subsistence agricultural life but are not educated enough to compete in Cairo. In a country where the per capita yearly income is $700, those who call for a return to Islam find many converts.

Already fundamentalists have claimed responsibility for the assassinations of secularist writer Farag Fouda and Egypt's parliamentary speaker Rifaat al-Maghoub. They are also calling for the demolition of the country's Pharaonic monuments on the grounds they are "pagan."

Ever since the extremists murdered al-Maghoub in 1990, the formerly conciliatory Mubarak has arrested hundreds of fundamentalists and detained them without trial. Amnesty International says the prisoners have been subjected to a systematic and widespread campaign of torture in prisons, which the government has denied.

Mubarak's mass crackdown on fundamentalists may actually be accelerating the danger, rather than containing it. He risks making martyrs of a minority, especially given the penchant of Egyptian jailers to torture — and risks repeating the very move that finally precipitated the assassination of his predecessor, President Sadat. Only a month before his murder, Sadat became so frustrated with opponents that he arrested 1,500 religious activists, journalists, lawyers and professors.

Western and Egyptian government officials told our associate Dale Van Atta that there are three strong foreign patrons feeding the extremist insurgency — Iran, Libya and Sudan. But they've also come to believe that Saudi Arabia, despite close ties to the West, has become a significant, indirect supporter of these groups.

Mubarak needs little lecture on the risks, because one dark day he soared into his memory.

LETTERS

In response

I am writing in response to letters written by Mr. Randall Morris and Mr. John Hauck. I would like to thank Mr. Morris for clarifying the relationship between these two gentlemen. I thought for a moment Mr. Morris might exercise a modicum of intelligence and not respond to my challenge to his friend and supporter. I had hoped Mr. Sturm would also respond, but he is a more polished politician than Mr. Morris. My letter was intended to elicit this response prior to the election for the benefit of voters, however, due to an unfortunate delay by the Herald in publishing my letter of response to Mr. Hauck, this was not possible. Perhaps the voters will remember this relationship and understand Mr. Hauck is not the unbiased person he would like us to believe.

I would like to clarify some misconceptions of Mr. Morris and Mr. Hauck. Mr. Morris should become more involved in the schools his children will attend and perhaps he would have known more of my contributions to Lake Mary and the community. My choice is to contribute my time and money to our local schools. This choice does not get the publicity or recognition desired by Mr. Morris and Mr. Hauck, but is quite satisfying. Perhaps the concept of giving and not taking is new to Mr. Morris and he should be excused. Mr. Morris should be aware as former mayor of Lake Mary, that I have made a commitment of time and money in placing my business in downtown Lake Mary two blocks from City Hall. I have been there for one year, and as yet, have not been contacted by either Mr. Morris or the Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce. So much for the effort to locate new business in downtown Lake Mary that we have all heard about and paid for!

Mr. Morris, in his professed knowledge of Lake Mary, should have been aware I have not been a "vocal" supporter of either Mr. Fees nor Mr. Lormann. No one wishing to place signs in my yard was turned away. I believe in freedom of expression and in fact have intervened in support of Mr. Morris on more than one occasion. What I don't believe in is hiding in the background and impugning someone's integrity as you and Mr. Hauck do at each election. I don't recall seeing Mr. Hauck's name on the ballot for city office recently. It is easier to remain in the background and snipe.

Mr. Morris, in his attempt to rally support for Mr. Hauck, states Mr. Hauck is a veteran. I, too, am a veteran, but this was by choice and I, along with most veterans, seek no special reward for having fulfilled our duty to our country. Perhaps Mr. Morris will tell us of his military service in his next letter to the editor. Mr. Morris also mentioned the lawsuit debacle. I might remind Mr. Morris, the law firm that recommended this suit be litigated, profited by that decision while the city lost both respect and tax dollars.

I am glad I brought happiness to the Hauck household by my use of the words, "self appointed political guru." Mr. Hauck was correct in his definition of guru, but he failed to note a true guru is not self-appointed, but placed in that position by his "followers." A little humility, please Mr. Hauck!

Mr. Hauck stated he doesn't know me, but his memory of all the things Mr. Lormann did to this community and Lormann's involvement in Longwood 15 years ago, is quite vivid. You and I have met and talked on several occasions Mr. Hauck, the latest being at the Lake Mary pig roast sponsored and paid for by the "nameless" 4th place finisher referred to in the Morris letter. In case you have "forgotten," that "nameless" person by the way, is Mr. McKeeby who selflessly, and at his own expense, sponsored the pig roast for all Lake Mary citizens to enjoy. My complaint with you Mr. Hauck is I have read your letters to the editor for some six years without answering. I have watched you take advantage of your community standing to impugn the integrity of candidates with the "guis" to run in our elections while you carefully shield yourself by not running for office. I would only request you control your propensity to question the integrity of candidates that don't share your views. We voters are capable of deciding what candidates are good and bad for our community without your assistance. Actively support your candidate, but do not denigrate the opposition by personal attacks on their integrity.

Please note that contrary to the Morris comment of an apology, neither your wife nor the CIA was mentioned in a derogatory fashion in my letter. My remarks about you were confined to you personally.

Change to come

Governor Bill Clinton told the American people that change is needed and change is what the American people will receive under President Clinton. I was one of the few members of Congress from Florida who served in the minority while President Carter was in office. There will be major differences between the Carter years and the Clinton years to come. Even though the Democrats controlled the House, the Senate and the White House in 1977, check and balances existed within the Congress. There were a number of Democrat congressmen, especially from the southeast and southwest who were conservative to moderate in philosophy. They would band together with the Republicans to block bad legislation or at least modify some of the worst provisions of bills proposed by President Carter. Gridlock is not bad when it prevents poor legislation. Once legislation is passed, it is extremely difficult to get off the books.

The situation we face today has its roots in 1974 when the so-called "Watergate Babies" were elected to the House. This large freshman class dramatically changed the House ensuring the more liberal members control the Democrat caucus. Today many of the "Watergate Babies" are in key leadership positions in the House and some have been elected to the Senate. I want to emphasize that in no way are those bad people. Most of them are effective, principled and dedicated members of Congress. Although the Republicans picked up eight seats in the House, they are still a distinct minority. Furthermore, there is no significant change in the Senate in numbers. The Republicans in the Senate retained the ability to filibuster by two votes, but little more. The Senate will be more liberal in 1993 and the addition of five women will also have an impact.

Governor Clinton has made commitments on numerous legislative issues ranging from universal health care to an increase in taxes on the "rich." Even if Governor Clinton wants to modify his positions and become more of a centrist, as most presidents tend to do, there is no turning back. The Democrat majority in Congress wants and believes in the legislation he has proposed. The bottom line is no check and balance exists in the legislative branch to stop his proposals.

In the first six months of the Clinton presidency we will see more major legislation passed than in the last 12 years. It is clear that the American public voted for change in 1992. What is not clear is if change will be for the better or worse. It is my opinion that change will be the key issue in 1993, but this time it will benefit the Republican nominee.

Noise ordinance

Before we close this public hearing, let me point out gains which I think were made by Lake Harney residents against airport noise. Although we did not secure the desired specific exclusions against airport operation on Lake Harney, I believe the general provisions of this noise ordinance prevent noise disturbance day and night from whatever source throughout Seminole County. Sheriff Don Kelinger has agreed to enforce these general provisions against airports.

And I thank the board of county commissioners, staff members and particularly, Commissioner Jennifer Kelley for their support in protecting the citizens throughout Seminole County against airport noise disturbance.

Gongwer addresses Women's Club

On Wednesday, Oct. 28, the Lake Mary's Women's Club held their membership luncheon meeting at Timucuan Country Club.

After the club's meeting, guest speaker Jill Gongwer was introduced.

Jill is with Merle Norman Fascinations in Sanford. However, she was there to talk about MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Drivers). Jill lost her beautiful 18-year-old daughter, Amy Kristin, over the 1991 Memorial Day holiday.

Jill talked about MADD and about her grief from losing her child, her only child.

"MADD is the voice to people about drunk drivers who are out on the road killing." She pointed out that "one out of two babies born today will die in alcohol related crashes. Four times as many as killed in Vietnam as are and were killed by drunk drivers. There is one crash every 1 1/2 minutes in the world." Jill stated that "My husband and my life changed forever when Amy was killed."

Some extremely relevant facts that Jill Gongwer brought to our attention was, "He has to go on even though your body shuts down for self preservation."

"The majority of our friends exited, because they can't handle grief," she said. "But this is a time you need friends desperately - but they leave and so you've lost your child and all your friends."

"It was 17 months yesterday and people still avoid saying Amy's name, but I want to talk about Amy!" Jill suggested "if you don't know what to say at a time like this, just hold that person and comfort them, they need it so desperately."

"As time passes, you suffer waves of grief, rather than constantly, and you need people to bear with you until a particular hard wave passes and you can overcome it and get on with living. But, grieving goes on and on."

Hollywood Halloween

The invitation to Hollywood Halloween at Timucuan Country Club read, "dress as your favorite entertainer. Be there when these stars come out!" The shining costumed stars included: The Blues Brothers, Lady Godiva, Elton John, The Village People, Jimmy Buffet and more.

The welcoming characters were Batman, Steve Brady, Cat Woman, Debbie Brady, Penguin, Keith Annis and Joker. Vic Johnson, who were on the Timucuan social committee along with Susan Annis.

Music was by the Secret Agent Band who also came in costume. The tasty food was heavy on hors d'oeuvres found on tables around the edges of the country club such as jambalaya - a combination of rice, sausage, pimientos and spices; chicken and pineapple kabobs that were excellent; an enormous, pumpkin decorated veggie tray and dip; chocolate chip cookies and triangle cuts of chocolate cake morsels; cheese and a variety of crackers; ham and asparagus rollups; a decorated turkey breast, and cash bar.

Members of Timucuan Country Club were extremely talented and creative. The elaborate costumes had to be seen to be believed.

The creation by Barbara Davis and Dick Sikora as Roy Rogers and Dale Evans with "Trigger" was nothing short of amazing! These two worked together to make this surprisingly realistic horse out of chicken wire, wood, papier mache and mops. It was an incredible piece of artistic craftsmanship, along with a lot of imagination. The homemade Timucuan events certainly have the quality of being novel and they put them on with a flair.

Entertainment with flair

Dora's executive chef, Steve Gilchrist, was mouthwatering and delectable. The recipes for Grouper Scampi, Fresh Fruited Chicken and Cherries Jubilee were from the kitchen of Steve Gilchrist.

They were done with a flair. As well as being an artist and executive chef, Gilchrist is charismatic. The women got to sample his recipes and they were truly irresistible.

Lady 'Noles basketball

SANFORD — The first Lady 'Noles Invitational Basketball Tournament kicks off the prep basketball season Tuesday night at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium.

Mainland and Lantana will play the opening game at 6 p.m. with host Seminole playing New Smyrna Beach at 7:30 p.m.

Mayfair Women's Golf results

SANFORD — The final round of the Mayfair Women's Golf Association's 16th Annual Tournament was won by Jo McDaniel and Helen Killebrew at Mayfair Golf Club.

The duo posted a round of 96 to edge Margaret Bots and Joanne Elam by one stroke.

On November 7th, the MWGA held a Sunday Mixed Tournament. The event was a 4-ball with the lowest two balls being used.

First place went to Roland and Helen Killebrew and Richard and Joanne Elam with 126 scores. The teams of George and Peggy Billups and Margaret Bots and Marilyn Brown also posted 126 scores with first place being decided by a match-play card.

AROUND THE STATE

Bucs hold off Bears

TAMPA — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers found the cure for a five game losing streak Sunday in Jimmy Testaverde's latest fresh start and the Chicago Bears' leaky defense.

Testaverde, back in the lineup after being benched for two weeks, threw for 182 yards and one touchdown and the Bucs (1-6) held on for a 20-17 victory when Chicago's Kevin Butler missed a 34 yard field goal with one second left.

Tampa Bay's much-criticized quarterback directed scoring drives on the Bucs' first three possessions and also threw a 12 yard TD pass to Ron Hall for a 20-0 halftime lead.

Chicago (1-6) scored two touchdowns in the last eight minutes but was unable to avoid its first three game losing streak since 1989.

Testaverde threw for 168 yards in the first half and finished with 12 completions in 21 attempts. Harbaugh was held to 12 yards before halftime and finished 17 of 33 for 225 yards.

Miami-Buffalo battle

MIAMI — Tonight's game between Buffalo and Miami could determine where the next one takes place.

Whoever the team that wins will have the home field advantage for the playoffs. Dolphins safety Louis Oliver said.

The AFC East rivals are tied for first place at 7-2. Miami won an earlier encounter 37-10 and a series sweep of Buffalo would in effect give the Dolphins a two game lead with six to play.

Oliver had the game of his life, running back three interceptions for 170 yards and one score — an NFL record tying 103 yard return.

In all, Miami forced five turnovers at Buffalo and converted them into 24 points. The Dolphins also allowed Thurman Thomas to rush for just 33 yards, he gained 300 yards in two games against them a year ago.

The game's going to be like a war, Bills backer Carlton Bailey said.

Still, both clubs appear bound for the playoffs.

AROUND THE NATION

Elliott, Kulwicks win

HAMPTON, Ga. — The Hooters 500 had something for everyone.

Bill Elliott won the race, yet lost the closest championship finish ever, while Davey Allison put an exclamation mark to one of the strangest seasons on record when he lost the championship slip by crashing at the Atlanta Motor Speedway.

Richard Petty, stock car racing's king, got an emotional farewell and Alan Kulwicki earned an enthusiastic welcome to the ranks of NASCAR Winston Cup champions.

Most of the people were clapping, cheering and waving their arms when Petty drove his car — battered in a crash on lap 95 — back onto the track for the last lap of the 328 lap race. And they will cherish being part of that moment and his slow, post-race curtain call lap.

Almost lost in the outpouring of emotion for Petty was the great on-track battle that saw Kulwicki finish second to Elliott by 7.7 seconds in the race but beat the 1988 champion by 10 points — the closest championship finish ever.

The 35-year-old Kulwicki, who came into the race trailing Davey Allison by 30 points and leading Elliott by 10, won the $1.3 million title by leading one more lap than Elliott (103-102) and getting the five-point bonus for leading the most laps in the race. Had Elliott gotten that bonus, the two would have tied in the points and Elliott would have won the championship on the basis of most race victories.

County harriers sweep

From Staff Reports

LAKE WORTH — Did anybody bring the biscuits?

Eight teams representing four Seminole County high schools went to the 1A Region III cross-country meet on Saturday and came home with six of the eight of the Region III berths in the coming Saturday Class 1A state championship meet.

Lyman's girls led by individual champion Kymah Broomick and the Lake Mary boys paced the course, recorded section titles, sweeps and highlighted the county's romp by topping the team championships.

Lake Mary girls finished second to Lyman (67-89) with Lake Brantley taking third (96). Boca Raton posted the lone team in fourth (100) and earned the final team spot in the 1A state meet.

Among the boys, Lake Mary topped Lake Brantley, its first place of the season, outpacing the Palm Bay senior team was third (99) ahead of Lyman (101) which placed second in the 1A District Class.

Seminole sophomores headed to state meets

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Carolyn Hubbard and Kara Thomas did it again.

Sophomores at Seminole High School, Hubbard and Thomas qualified for their respective state championship meets this past Saturday, Hubbard earning a berth in the Class 3A state cross country meet while Thomas will participate in the state swim meet.

Running in the 3A Region II cross country meet at the University of Central Florida on Saturday morning, Hubbard covered the two-mile course in 12:42.2 to finish second behind Kissimmee Gateway's Noelyn Sheppard (12:19).

Thomas just missed winning the 50-meter freestyle during the 3A District 3 swim meet Saturday at the YMCA Aquatic Center in Orlando, finishing 0.4 of a second behind the winner.

In cross country, the top five individuals qualify for the state meet while the top three individual males in each event advance to the state swim meet.

The Class 3A state cross country meet will be run this Saturday in Jacksonville on the north campus of Florida Community College while the Class 3A swim meet is scheduled for this Friday at the YMCA Aquatic Center on International Drive.

This will be the second time in their two-year high school careers that Hubbard and Thomas have qualified for their respective state tournaments. Last year as freshmen, Hubbard finished 10th at the state cross country meet while Thomas finished 12th in the 50-meter freestyle at the state swim meet.

Local swimmers advance

From Staff Reports

ORLANDO — The boys' team enough to make it for a crowd.

The Lake Brantley High School girls' swim team have won two state championships in a row. Next Saturday at the YMCA Aquatic Center (formerly the Orlando International Aquatic Center), the Patriots will try to make it three in a row.

But how successful they may be is not clear. They probably decided this past weekend when Lake Brantley finished a distant second to Winter Park (2:02.06) in the 1A District event at the YMCA Aquatic Center.

In the process, the Patriots qualified three individuals in three events and one relay. While Winter Park is sending five individuals including a pair of swimmers who won't swim this district championship.

Raiders slide to third loss

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald Sports Writer

SANFORD — What a difference a week makes.

Last Saturday night, the Seminole Community College men's basketball team was on top of the world, completing a week that saw the Raiders win three games impressively, win the Raider Tournament and earn the No. 1 ranking in the state junior college poll.

But after losing to Manatee Community College (96-74) at the Health and Physical Education Center Saturday night, SCC is now 3-3 and the coaching staff are scratching their heads trying to come up with the answers as to who has happened.

"We just didn't seem to have any fire," said SCC head coach Bernard Merithe. "No one stepped forward to try to lead us, we were just going through the motions. You can't do that against a team that plays defense as well as Manatee."

"I thought last night's loss (a 96-65 loss to Broward on Friday) was just one of those games. But after tonight's performance, I'm worried that we have some players on this team that won't put forth the effort that it's going to take to make us a good basketball team. It's time for them (the team) to step forward and show us that they really want to play the game like we want it played."

The Raiders just couldn't seem to do anything right in the early going. If they weren't missing shots, they were throwing passes right to the Lancer defenders, which led to easy baskets on the other end.

Over the first 14 minutes of the game, SCC could only score 13 points and fell behind 25-13.

The Lancers maintained the advantage at 12 points, 31-19, with 2:33 left before halftime, but Evon Hammond and Robert Walker came off the bench to score seven points as the Raiders cut the lead to seven, 33-26, at intermission.

Hammond was the only SCC player to score over four points in the opening 20 minutes, as he pumped in 11 counters.

The Raiders could not carry the BRADENTON — Manatee Community College used superior rebounding and a second-half scoring drought by Seminole Community College to defeat the Raiders 67-53 in a women's junior college basketball game Saturday night.

The game got off to a slow start with neither team able to score for more than two minutes. SCC finally got things going and built a 15-9 lead with 11:15 left before halftime behind four points by Ovaedra Sylvia Dames and three points by Monique Hayes.

The Lancers battled back to take a 28-27 advantage with only 0:34 left until intermission, but a free throw by Hayes and a three-pointer by Kerri Wilson with 0:04 on the clock gave the Raiders a 31-28 halftime lead.

Ovaedra's Christa Vaughan scored the first bucket of the second half to give SCC a five-point lead, 33-28, before going scoreless for almost two minutes as Manatee took the lead 35-33.

With the score tied at 35-35, the Lancers took the lead for good on a three-pointer by J. Swilley at the 16:20 mark and built the lead to eight, 43-35, before the Raiders could score again with 10 minutes remaining.

Manatee held a nine-point lead, 50-41, with 7:00 minutes to go when SCC mounted a final challenge.

Central Baptist 'suddenly' in command after sweep

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Perseverance pays off.

The Sanford Central Baptist softball team had been kind of the forgotten force in the Sanford Church League Fall Season because they lost their opening game of the season and had played one game less than everyone else.

But with one week remaining in the regular season, Central is alone atop the Fellowship Division standings after sweeping a double-header at Lee P. Moore Park Saturday, while previous leader Sanford First United Methodist was suffering its second one-run loss of the season to St. Stephen's at White Springs.

Central got off to a slow start in the 1988 game, trailing Lake Mary (Carol) in the 10th inning, but entering the 10th inning, had a pair of sacrifices erased the deficit and produced a 13-6 victory. Central then used a five-run, fourth inning to pull away from Antioch Missionary Baptist of Oviedo in a 14-2 win.

In other games at Lee P. Moore Park, Fun Division leading Sanford Family Worship Center collected a 7-0 forfeit win from Grace United Methodist and the Lake Mary Nativity Catholic Disciples doubled the score on Geneva First Baptist 14-7.

Meanwhile, at Chase Park, St. Stephen took advantage of a pair of errors to score four first among runs and First Methodist was unable to recover as the Catholics held on for a 7-6 victory and a share of second place in the Fellowship Division. St. Stephen had defeated the Methodist 9-7 in eight innings in the opening week of

Emphysema termed a chronic lung disorder

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss emphysema and how it is detected. My husband suffers from this, and we question what his blood gases must show before he can be placed on home oxygen for control.

DEAR READER: Emphysema is a chronic lung disorder, usually caused by inhaling polluted air or tobacco smoke, that is marked by trapping of stale air within the lungs. As a consequence, emphysema patients suffer from progressive breathlessness, worsened by exercise, because the lungs are unable to supply enough oxygen to the bloodstream.

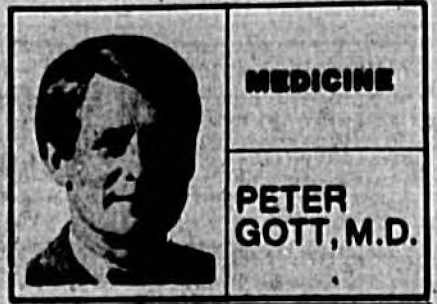

The disease is customarily diagnosed by a chest X-ray (showing over-expansion of the lungs), pulmonary function tests (indicating an inability to inhale and exhale a normal amount of air), and arterial blood gases (confirming a low oxygen content and a high level of carbon dioxide).

Patients with emphysema are often helped by supplemental oxygen, administered either during activity or intermittently to relieve shortness-of-breath. Medicare will partially reimburse the cost of oxygen therapy if the amount of oxygen in the patient's blood is less than 55 percent of normal.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Living With Chronic Lung Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband had his spleen removed about a year ago, and his doctor said it was due to chewing tobacco. Now I'm worried that his kidneys and liver will be affected. What are the chances of this happening? My husband has attempted to quit his habit but has been unsuccessful so far. DEAR READER: I am not aware that chewing tobacco can affect the spleen, an abdominal organ that recycles worn-out red blood cells. Perhaps you misunderstood the doctor. The most common reason to have spleen surgery is an injury to the organ, causing hemorrhage. Return to the physician for clarification.

Every year in late summer and early fall, bridge books come in through the door almost as quickly as dead leaves. Publishers are hoping to profit from the Christmas buying period. This week I will look at six of these books.

The "Bridge Player's Companion" by Larry Harris ($11.95, C & T Bridge Supplies, 800-525-4718) is an entertaining but oddball book. It is intended as an aid to duplicate bridge for the non-serious player. Almost half of the 148 pages are used to explain the laws. But it is done in a light style with lots of diagrams and many hints, tips and warnings.

The second part gives some advice on strategy. This is a mixed bag, with everything from "Eight ever, nine never" to the Law of Total Tricks and the Principle of Restricted Choice.

Finally, there is an analysis of some conventions, most of which are popular, but some much less so.

There is a fair amount of humor. For example, the author suggests that after you have just gone for 1700, you should say to your partner, "They could have killed me with a trump lead."

Today's deal features a play everyone should know. Against four spades, West leads the heart nine. You must call for dummy's queen. It is clear that East has the A-J of hearts. With the given distribution, if instead you play the heart two or 10, you will lose four tricks: one spade, two hearts and one club. But if you play dummy's heart queen, East cannot return the suit without giving away a trick. In an instant, you establish the clubs for a heart discard. (C)1992, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

If you're an unattached Scorpio, you might meet someone in the year ahead who'll fulfill all your romantic requirements. However, it's likely that this relationship may start out where you're just good friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's best not to gamble with friends today, even for insignificant stakes. There's a chance a misunderstanding could arise over something petty. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Give top priority today to situations that could save or make you money. Time and attention devoted to these factors should prove profitable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A significant objective can be achieved today, provided you don't tip your hand prematurely. There is a competitor lurking in the wings who would love to know your game plans.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't take to heart advice offered you today from someone who does not have an accurate handle on your affairs. While this individual's intentions may be good, the counsel may not.

FISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In a partnership today, it might be wise to let your cohort do most of the talking. There's a chance you may say the wrong thing at the wrong time.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The possibilities for achieving your ambitious and practical objectives today look very good. However, you might have to contend with some petty frustrations on the road to victory.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're likely to be painfully aware of the flaws in others today, but it will serve no useful purpose to call them to their attention. Instead, work on your own shortcomings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In commercial matters today, you might find it necessary to make small concessions in order to reap larger gains. Don't expect optimum conditions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're doing critical work today, have others double-check your efforts, especially if you're dealing with the written word. There's a chance you might miss some small oversights.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you're looking to get something expensive today that you've been wanting, don't settle for label prices. With a little negotiating, you should be able to sweeten the deal.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) When conversing with friends today, try to avoid discussing subjects that are too personal - for you or them. Focus on fun and non-offensive topics.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your greatest obstacles today could be self-defeating thoughts. You can do whatever you set your mind to - if you have the mind-set to do it.
