Agent Of CAA Says Air Lines Shirking Duty

Declares Responsibility For Airplane Crashes Should Be In Companies' Hands

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Administration claimed today that civilian air lines should take more responsibility for preventing plane crashes.

Meanwhile, the president of the Douglas Aircraft Company, Donald W. Douglas, said nothing should be allowed to interfere with the steady development of safety in aviation.

He did not explain the differences to which he referred. In Washington, Rep. Carl H. Hershaw of California revealed today that he will ask James M. Lusk, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics board, why the air navigation aids developed during the war are not in general use.

It was a real democratic get-together for all employees of Sanford, and was termed a big success by Mayor H. J. Gut, City Manager H. N. Saver, Chairman of Commerce Manager Edward Higgins, Chief of Police Roy G. Williams.

3rd DDT Malaria Control Spraying Will Start Soon

JACKSONVILLE, Jan. 23, (Special) Plans for a third, house-to-house DDT spraying program for malaria control in Florida counties, where a malaria hazard has been known to exist, are fast being whipped into shape by the State Board of Health.

This year, however, according to John Mulrennan, director of malaria control, in order for a county to be eligible for the service, that county will have to furnish the labor required in applying the spray. The State Board of Health will furnish the DDT, spraying and automobile equipment and supervision for putting the operation into effect. Heretofore, the program has been paid for entirely by funds allocated to the state health agency, by U. S. Public Health Service. Now, because of a shortage of money for so effective and so popular, it is a local health problem, it is felt that local people should assume a portion of the responsibility.

This house-to-house spraying program was begun by the State health department two years ago as a measure to control malaria-carrying mosquitos. It has proven so effective and so popular, it is felt that it should be carried out each year. Last year, alone, 59,942 houses were sprayed in 21 counties.

Under the new set-up all the houses will be eligible for a good going-over with DDT. Whereas, in the past, only houses in areas where there was a density of malaria mosquitos were sprayed. This is with the exception of those cities having a population of 1,000 or more. In those cities, a biennial program will be instituted if a malaria hazard is present, here, too, the cities are to furnish the labor.

Mr. Mulrennan pointed out that a house properly sprayed with a residual DDT remains effective in the control of many household pests besides the malaria-carrying mosquitos, for a long period of time. Flies, fleas, bed bugs, ticks and other insect pests have been effectively controlled for 12 months or more.

Because in the past, malaria was prevalent in those counties, this service will be offered first to Hernando, Sumter, Citrus, Marion, Levy, Hamilton, Suwannee, Lafayette, Dixie, Gilchrist, Madison, Jefferson, Taylor, Alachua, Calhoun, Leon, Wakulla, Jackson, Citrus, Gulf, Holmes, Washington, Franklin, and Walton.

When sufficient DDT, spraying and automobile equipment can be obtained it is hoped to extend operations to the following eligible counties: Baker, Bay, Bradford, Clay, Columbia, Lake, Liberty, Okaloosa, Pasco, Seminole, Union, and Volusia.

The counties in the first group will be contacted by representatives from the Bureau of Malaria Control in the near future.

Teen Talk

Dear Judy,
Are you hep to the new language—dog latin? All the kids here are talking nothing but Dolores Martin of Cathedral High School, New York, really can roll around her teeth. All you do is take a common noun in a word and add it. Each vowel is kept in its original form. For instance, take the sentence: Apples grow bright and high, and end their life in apple pie. Dog latin would make it: Apud put but but, a nut dot but but but, a nut dot ennut tutute tut tut a fut e mut apud put tut e put tut.

Remember Margaret Southwood, who wrote from Eaton, Bedfordshire, England, saying that she read the column in the Syracuse Herald American which some friends of her's let her see regularly well, here's another letter from her:

I long for another illustration of a loutin junior nose. I hope you like it. I am very interested in your column, and by reading I learn a lot about American young people. What kind of films do the average teen talkers like? American and only see British films about four times a year. The film stars I like are Ann Todd, Jean Craine, Rud Abbott and Lou Castelto, Rita Hayworth and John Hodiak.

"Do you suppose you could get me three pen friends who are interested in Teen Talk, and would write their opinions to me."
"I remain, your ardent admirer, Margaret."

What do the kids out there think about Swoonata's bawling the bobby tax brigade from his studio audience? Some here are awfully mad. But they all think that in a few fresh weeks spoiled it is everybody. The autograph hunters have gotten so wild it is said the movie stars are campaigning to stay away from the East. But after all the kids helped put Smatson on the platter-beam, so he couldn't buckle 'em up.

These Women

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor
Women may swish their skirts again this spring, as designers freed from government fabric restrictions, shoot the works on ruffles, fulls, pleats and drapery.

There is not a straight tubular skirt in a carload of new spring fashions, currently shown by New York designers in previews for the press. Pleats top the list of skirt treatments, with front or back shirring, unpressed pleats and haem drapes also heavily favored. Even the hobble skirt crops up in several collections, done in restrained version, with drapery at the hipline to make up for the narrow hemline.

Skirts are from one to two inches longer for street wear, reach ankle length for cocktail wear and of course sweep the floor in evening fashions. There are many uneven hemlines shown in afternoon dresses, and the trend definitely is toward less leg exposure, a more ladylike look.

There's an alarming tendency in the new spring styles toward the hip-belted potato sack silhouette of the 1920's but it's not as bad as it sounds. The difference is that, although many belts have dropped to the hipline, age audiences. Gordon MacKae, managing host of the teen-ager's radio club, says that he thinks the best behaved studio audiences are the kids from 13 to 18 and all.

After all, the time for a performer to worry is when his audience is nice and quiet and stops chasing him for his autograph.

The newest fashion hit with the kids are hand-tooled moccasins. These are tooled with pattern motifs or personal designs into the leather, by an Indian artist. Buy the bye.

bodices are tightly fitted, with tau midriffs and drapery to dramatize bustline curves.

Long-waisted dresses with pleated skirts may recall the flapper era to many, but the 1947 version is less awkward, more elegant and strictly feminine. Whereas the flapper ideal of beauty was a flat-chested, hipless silhouette, today's styles accent curves. Women definitely will have both busts and hips next spring but they'd better keep their waistlines slim or they'll look very sad in the new long-torso styles.

Designers also are flirting with the idea of round shoulders, but they are going about it most discreetly. The exaggerated square shoulder pads of the last few years are missing from many 1947 styles, but in their place are trick devices such as extended-capelet sleeves, feathers, pleats or bertha collars to give the wide-shouldered look without actual padding.

Hattie Carnegie introduces what she calls the "fichu sleeve" to achieve shoulder width along with a more natural line. This is a capelet effect at the top of the sleeve, sometimes extended around the back to form a cape collar, sometimes used only as a sleeve treatment.

Anthony Blotta also uses shoulder capes on dresses, coats and suits to achieve a new, softer shoulder look, and capes are frequent in many top collections. Suits have long jackets, almost always. Some reach to just below the hips, others are mid-length length. And the fitted torso is achieved by means of a fitted overblouse, the same length as the jacket.

Adele Simpson shows a series of casual sack suits with long, loose jackets fastened by only one top button, hanging open the rest of the way to reveal the long overblouse.

Ferree also favors the long-jacketed suit and adds a vest to each. She uses many skirts pleated all the way round, the pleats stitched to the hipline, flaring below.

Nettie Rosenstein shows the cut-away jacket with a skirt with front fullness in several versions.

Big news of the casual party clothes field is Claire McCardell's Portuguese "fishwife" series, in which she combines wild stripes and plaids recklessly and adds a big apron to a gingham dress of mismatched plaids. The same theme is carried out in playsets consisting of shorts and jacket, and in an astonishing outfit with long bloomers.

Omar Kiam introduces the "bug-me-tight" jacket, a loose, boxy affair which is wrapped around and held in place by hand-on-hip. Jo Copeland does a swishy cut lets suit with long, flaring peplum jacket and an air of elegance.

Anna Miller uses knee pleats in skirts of soft, dressmaker suits, with telling effect.

Clare Potter greets with joy the return of Irish linen, using it in both daytime and evening dresses done with her sure touch for discreet understatement.

Bruno presents dramatic evening gowns in silk tulle with yards and yards in their circular skirts.

The spring mode is lush, lavish and completely feminine. The war is over on the fashion front, and American design has won an honored place for itself in the United Nations of fashion.

National League School In Ark.

George Barr, veteran of 16 years of umpiring in the National League, held his first school for umpires 12 years ago in Hot Springs, Ark. That first school in 1935 was a success, and from that beginning the school has grown to its present proportions, accommodating almost 100 enrollees.

The idea for a school for umpires was motivated by Barr's sincere desire to help young arbiters get started, and to give additional assistance to those already in professional baseball. To that end his schools have been successful.

Graduates of his school are now working in all classifications of organized ball. Some of the more prominent include: Bill McKinley, now in the American League; Robert Austin, in the American Association; Douglass Robb, of the International League; Bill Wilson, of the Texas League; and Lynn Dowdy, now with the American Association.

After six years in Hot Springs, the school was moved to Orlando where it was held in the winter of 1941-42. No classes were held during the war years, but in 1946 the school was resumed in Orlando.

The school is being held there for the first time this year, and the conditions under which the highly educational institution is being operated are excellent. The living quarters for the men, the weather, the progress of the students and the friendly attitude of the people at the school, and the people of Sanford has been highly gratifying to Barr and his associates.

Every year Barr receives hundreds of letters from all over the world requesting information concerning his school and requirements for entry. Not everyone who writes Barr can be enrolled, but an effort is made to teach as many as possible. This year's class is the largest since the school was founded.

Men From 27 States Represented At Barr School Of Umpiring

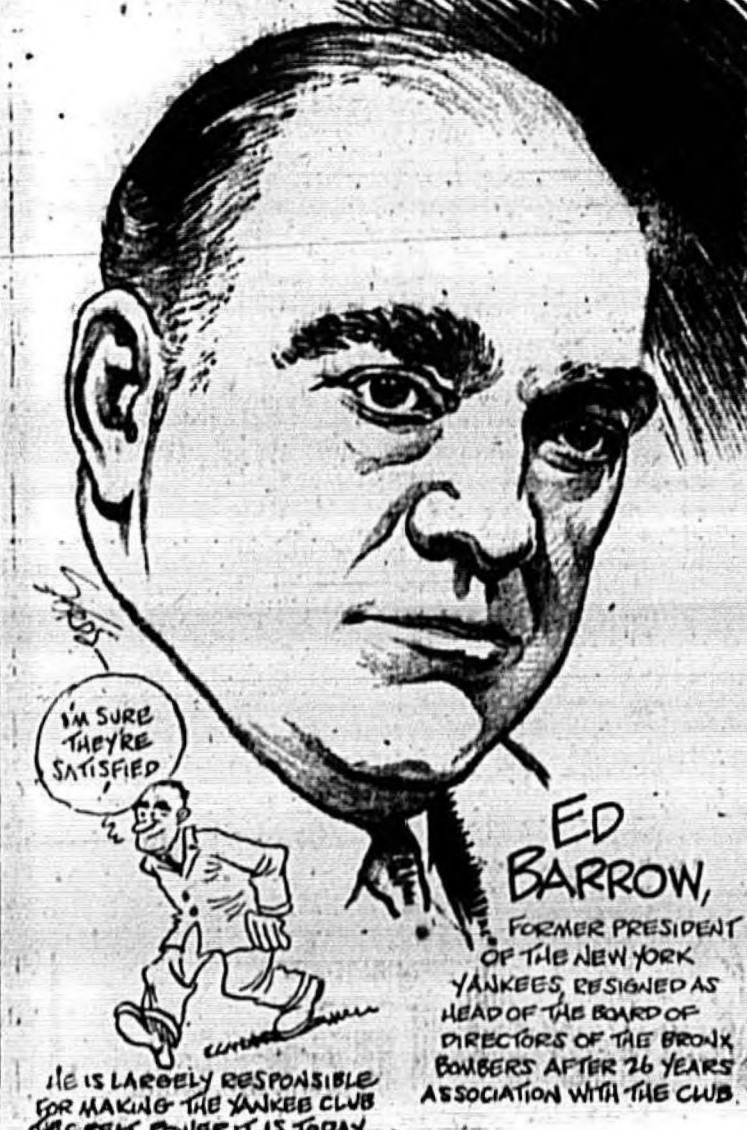

A total of 94 men are enrolled for this year's course of study in the George Barr School of Umpiring. These men have come from 27 states and one has come from Villa Acuna, Mexico. New York leads the list with the largest number of men from

JACKSON, Mich.—The Jackson Citizen Patriot, in a recent Page 1 story, announced its intention of returning to the wartime practice of rationing advertising during the first quarter of 1947 because of the newspaper shortage. However, the story stressed the fact that the normal amount of news will be carried, with no rationing whatsoever of that material. The daily stated that the newspaper problem is aggravated by its Young Solleiting Pro Grid Contract After Leaving Illini CHICAGO, Jan. 23. (AP)—Buddy Young is solleiting pro football offers today, after deciding to withdraw from the University of Illinois for financial reasons. Young is scheduled to leave Chicago tonight for Los Angeles, where he will play in a game between a team of picked collegians and a professional eleven on Sunday. Such a step automatically would conclude his eligibility in the Western Conference. Playing in Sunday's game also will cost Young his chances of competing for the United States in the 1948 olympics. Young is one of the country's outstanding collegiate sprinters, having been clocked in the 100-yard dash in nine and five-tenths seconds.

Ruth's $80,000 Equivalent To $150,000 Today CLEVELAND, Jan. 23. (AP)—Although Bobby Feller may earn a higher baseball salary this year than Babe Ruth ever did, there's no doubt that Ruth's take-home pay was much greater. Monetary experts estimate that Ruth's $80,000 earnings in a single year would be the equivalent of a salary of $150,000 today. Then, too, the Babe made quite a bit out of movies, barnstorming, ghosted articles and the like during the years when he drew $80,000 salary. In 1930, for example, he collected $100,000 from all his enterprises. Feller, of course, also is very adept at making money from extra-curricular activities. He drew about $70,000 pay from the Cleveland Indians last season, but estimates his total earnings at close to $100,000.

Bill of Rights, Willie (who has a wife and two) is getting a free education at the Agricultural College. Uncle Sam is giving him a report: "Department excellent; Progress, above average." That goes for all these under-graduate veterans, like Willie, they recieve an education more than ever now. They're industrious and well behaved - their favorite beverage is milk, or a temperate glass of beer. For them the "three R's" seem to mean: Responsibility, Resourcefulness, Restraint.

From where I sit, cynical folks who thought veterans wouldn't want to return to school - wouldn't stick to steady habits of work and moderation - have their answer in "undergraduates" like Willie.

Hints To Housewives

KEEPING BACON

The proper keeping of bacon is always a matter of concern to the housewife and especially so at the present time when the saving of all fat is so important. Every slab and strip of bacon in the home needs to be kept and used with care so that none becomes rancid or "strong" in flavor and thus goes to waste.

Unfortunately, many housewives have the mistaken idea that bacon should not be kept in the refrigerator, and much bacon becomes unfit to eat as a result. This mistake idea apparently exists because most people do not realize that the commercially cured bacon on the market has changed in the last 10 to 15 years. Formerly, most bacon was of the salty type the kind produced generally on farms by a longer and stronger cure. This saltier bacon can be kept, as it is on farms, hanging in the air during cool weather. On the other hand, mild-cured bacon, which is the kind now generally selling in stores, is more like fresh meat and always should be kept in the refrigerator—and only for a few weeks, after purchasing.

Mild-cured bacon is at its best shortly after it has been smoked, according to K. F. Warner, extension meat specialist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Packers keep such bacon under refrigeration and sell it promptly. Housewives should treat it accordingly. In storage, even in a good refrigerator, it loses the smoke flavor and gradually takes on a rancid taste as the fat breaks down. Rancidity is hastened by heat, light, contact with air and smoked bacon with salad oil will play havoc and also help keep down the mold which tends to form on the surface. Studies have shown that crude cottonseed oil is more effective for this purpose than refined cottonseed oil.

Scrub PALMETTO

... CINDERELLA OF FLORIDA INDUSTRY!

With building activity booming, and construction forecast far into the future, products from Florida palmetto point the way to a new industry.

Exterior board, interior board and plasticized board, all made from palmetto root pulp, are easy to work with, yet they're durable and tough.

Florida has an almost inexhaustible supply of palmetto roots in its 15,000,000 acres of palmetto land. These roots, delivered cheaply to processing plants, need merely an inexpensive treatment to become useful building aids. Also, dye and tannic acid are important by-products.

As a plentiful, cheap, raw material for construction, the palmetto joins Florida's other assets, in beckoning to alert industrialists.

Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly when they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of ridding the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 quarts a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood it causes many troubles. Rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a pleasant diuretic, and especially helpful for over 50 years. Doan's also keeps you healthy and will help the 10 million of us who flush out poisonous waste from our blood. Get Doan's Pills.
